'My dear, how really lovely you are! Let me look at you again.' She took her by the shoulders. 'I DO think that Eton crop suits you. Did you have it done in Paris?'

'Yes. Everyone was getting Eton-cropped. It suits you if you've got a fairly small head.'

'Lovely! And those tortoise-shell spectacles--such a becoming fashion! I'm told that all the--er--demi-mondaines in South America have taken to wearing them. I'd no idea I had such a RAVISHING beauty for a niece. How old did you say you were, dear?'

'Twenty-two.'

'Twenty-two! How delighted all the men will be when we take you to the Club tomorrow! They get so lonely, poor things, never seeing a new face. And you were two whole years in Paris? I can't think what the men there can have been about to let you leave unmarried.'

'I'm afraid I didn't meet many men, Aunt. Only foreigners. We had to live so quietly. And I was working,' she added, thinking this rather a disgraceful admission.

'Of course, of course,' sighed Mrs Lackersteen. 'One hears the same thing on every side. Lovely girls having to work for their living. It is such a shame! I think it's so terribly selfish, don't you, the way these men remain unmarried while there are so MANY poor girls looking for husbands?' Elizabeth not answering this, Mrs Lackersteen added with another sigh, 'I'm sure if I were a young girl I'd marry anybody, literally ANYBODY!'

The two women's eyes met. There was a great deal that Mrs Lackersteen wanted to say, but she had no intention of doing more than hint at it obliquely. A great deal of her conversation was carried on by hints; she generally contrived, however, to make her meaning reasonably clear. She said in a tenderly impersonal tone, as though discussing a subject of general interest:

'Of course, I must say this. There ARE cases when, if girls fail to get married it's THEIR OWN FAULT. It happens even out here sometimes. Only a short time ago I remember a case--a girl came out and stayed a whole year with her brother, and she had offers from all kinds of men--policemen, forest officers, men in timber firms with QUITE good prospects. And she refused them all; she wanted to marry into the I.C.S., I heard. Well, what do you expect? Of course her brother couldn't go on keeping her forever. And now I hear she's at home, poor thing, working as a kind of lady help, practically a SERVANT. And getting only fifteen shillings a week! Isn't it dreadful to think of such things?'

'Dreadful!' Elizabeth echoed.

No more was said on this subject. In the morning, after she came back from Flory's house, Elizabeth was describing her adventure to her aunt and uncle. They were at breakfast, at the flower-laden table, with the punkah flapping overhead and the tall stork-like Mohammedan butler in his white suit and pagri standing behind Mrs Lackersteen's chair, tray in hand.

'And oh, Aunt, such an interesting thing! A Burmese girl came on to the veranda. I'd never seen one before, at least, not knowing they were girls. Such a queer little thing--she was almost like a doll with her round yellow face and her black hair screwed up on top. She only looked about seventeen. Mr Flory said she was his laundress.'

The Indian butler's long body stiffened. He squinted down at the girl with his white eyeballs large in his black face. He spoke English well. Mr Lackersteen paused with a forkful of fish half-way from his plate and his crass mouth open.

'Laundress?' he said. 'Laundress! I say, dammit, some mistake there! No such thing as a laundress in this country, y'know. Laundering work's all done by men. If you ask me--'

And then he stopped very suddenly, almost as though someone had trodden on his toe under the table.

8

That evening Flory told Ko S'la to send for the barber--he was the only barber in the town, an Indian, and he made a living by shaving the Indian coolies at the rate of eight annas a month for a dry shave every other day. The Europeans patronized him for lack of any other. The barber was waiting on the veranda when Flory came back from tennis, and Flory sterilized the scissors with boiling water and Condy's fluid and had his hair cut.

'Lay out my best Palm Beach suit,' he told Ko S'la, 'and a silk shirt and my sambhur-skin shoes. Also that new tie that came from Rangoon last week.'

'I have done so, thakin,' said Ko S'la, meaning that he would do so. When Flory came into the bedroom he found Ko S'la waiting beside the clothes he had laid out, with a faintly sulky air. It was immediately apparent that Ko S'la knew why Flory was dressing himself up (that is, in hopes of meeting Elizabeth) and that he disapproved of it.

'What are you waiting for?' Flory said.

'To help you dress, thakin.'

'I shall dress myself this evening. You can go.'

He was going to shave--the second time that day--and he did not want Ko S'la to see him take shaving things into the bathroom. It was several years since he had shaved twice in one day. What providential luck that he had sent for that new tie only last week, he thought. He dressed himself very carefully, and spent nearly a quarter of an hour in brushing his hair, which was stiff and would never lie down after it had been cut.

Almost the next moment, as it seemed, he was walking with Elizabeth down the bazaar road. He had found her alone in the Club 'library', and with a sudden burst of courage asked her to come out with him; and she had come with a readiness that surprised him; not even stopping to say anything to her uncle and aunt. He had lived so long in Burma, he had forgotten English ways. It was very dark under the peepul trees of the bazaar road, the foliage hiding the quarter moon, but the stars here and there in a gap blazed white and low, like lamps hanging on invisible threads. Successive waves of scent came rolling, first the cloying sweetness of frangipani, then a cold putrid stench of dung or decay from the huts opposite Dr Veraswami's bungalow. Drums were throbbing a little distance away.

As he heard the drums Flory remembered that a pwe was being acted a little farther down the road, opposite U Po Kyin's house; in fact, it was U Po Kyin who had made arrangements for the pwe, though someone else had paid for it. A daring thought occurred to Flory. He would take Elizabeth to the pwe! She would love it--she must; no one with eyes in his head could resist a pwe-dance. Probably there would be a scandal when they came back to the Club together after a long absence; but damn it! what did it matter? She was different from that herd of fools at the Club. And it would be such fun to go to the pwe together! At this moment the music burst out with a fearful pandemonium--a strident squeal of pipes, a rattle like castanets and the hoarse thump of drums, above which a man's voice was brassily squalling.

'Whatever is that noise?' said Elizabeth, stopping. 'It sounds just like a jazz band!'

'Native music. They're having a pwe--that's a kind of Burmese play; a cross between a historical drama and a revue, if you can imagine that. It'll interest you, I think. Just round the bend of the road here.'

'Oh,' she said rather doubtfully.

They came round the bend into a glare of light. The whole road for thirty yards was blocked by the audience watching the pwe. At the back there was a raised stage, under humming petrol lamps, with the orchestra squalling and banging in front of it; on the stage two men dressed in clothes that reminded Elizabeth of Chinese pagodas were posturing with curved swords in their hands. All down the roadway it was a sea of white muslin backs of women, pink scarves flung round their shoulders and black hair-cylinders. A few sprawled on their mats, fast asleep. An old Chinese with a tray of peanuts was threading his way through the crowd, intoning mournfully, 'Myaype! Myaype!'

'We'll stop and watch a few minutes if you like,' Flory said.

The blaze of lights and the appalling din of the orchestra had almost dazed Elizabeth, but what startled her most of all was the sight of this crowd of people sitting in the road as though it had been the pit of a theatre.

'Do they always have their plays in the middle of the road?' she said.

'As a rule. They put up a rough stage and take it down in the morning. The show lasts all night.'

'But are they ALLOWED to--blocking up the whole roadway?'

'Oh yes. There are no traffic regulations here. No traffic to regulate, you see.'

It struck her as very queer. By this time almost the entire audience had turned round on their mats to stare at the 'Ingaleikma'. There were half a dozen chairs in the middle of the crowd, where some clerks and officials were sitting. U Po Kyin was among them, and he was making efforts to twist his elephantine body round and greet the Europeans. As the music stopped the pock-marked Ba Taik came hastening through the crowd and shikoed low to Flory, with his timorous air.

'Most holy one, my master U Po Kyin asks whether you and the young white lady will not come and watch our pwe for a few minutes. He has chairs ready for you.'

'They're asking us to come and sit down,' Flory said to Elizabeth. 'Would you like to? It's rather fun. Those two fellows will clear off in a moment and there'll be some dancing. If it wouldn't bore you for a few minutes?'

Elizabeth felt very doubtful. Somehow it did not seem right or even safe to go in among that smelly native crowd. However, she trusted Flory, who presumably knew what was proper, and allowed him to lead her to the chairs. The Burmans made way on their mats, gazing after her and chattering; her shins brushed against warm, muslin-clad bodies, there was a feral reek of sweat. U Po Kyin leaned over towards her, bowing as well as he could and saying nasally:

'Kindly to sit down, madam! I am most honoured to make your acquaintance. Good evening. Good morning, Mr Flory, sir! A most unexpected pleasure. Had we known that you were to honour us with your company, we would have provided whiskies and other European refreshments. Ha ha!'

He laughed, and his betel-reddened teeth gleamed in the lamplight like red tinfoil. He was so vast and so hideous that Elizabeth could not help shrinking from him. A slender youth in a purple longyi was bowing to her and holding out a tray with two glasses of yellow sherbet, iced. U Po Kyin clapped his hands sharply, 'Hey haung galay!' he called to a boy beside him. He gave some instructions in Burmese, and the boy pushed his way to the edge of the stage.

'He's telling them to bring on their best dancer in our honour,' Flory said. 'Look, here she comes.'

A girl who had been squatting at the back of the stage, smoking, stepped forward into the lamplight. She was very young, slim-shouldered, breastless, dressed in a pale blue satin longyi that hid her feet. The skirts of her ingyi curved outwards above her hips in little panniers, according to the ancient Burmese fashion. They were like the petals of a downward-pointing flower. She threw her cigar languidly to one of the men in the orchestra, and then, holding out one slender arm, writhed it as though to shake the muscles loose.

The orchestra burst into a sudden loud squalling. There were pipes like bagpipes, a strange instrument consisting of plaques of bamboo which a man struck with a little hammer, and in the middle there was a man surrounded by twelve tall drums of different sizes. He reached rapidly from one to another, thumping them with the heel of his hand. In a moment the girl began to dance. But at first it was not a dance, it was a rhythmic nodding, posturing and twisting of the elbows, like the movements of one of those jointed wooden figures on an old-fashioned roundabout. The way her neck and elbows rotated was precisely like a jointed doll, and yet incredibly sinuous. Her hands, twisting like snakeheads with the fingers close together, could lie back until they were almost along her forearms. By degrees her movements quickened. She began to leap from side to side, flinging herself down in a kind of curtsy and springing up again with extraordinary agility, in spite of the long longyi that imprisoned her feet. Then she danced in a grotesque posture as though sitting down, knees bent, body leaned forward, with her arms extended and writhing, her head also moving to the beat of the drums. The music quickened to a climax. The girl rose upright and whirled round as swiftly as a top, the pannier of her ingyi flying out about her like the petals of a snowdrop. Then the music stopped as abruptly as it had begun, and the girl sank again into a curtsy, amid raucous shouting from the audience.

Elizabeth watched the dance with a mixture of amazement, boredom and something approaching horror. She had sipped her drink and found that it tasted like hair oil. On a mat by her feet three Burmese girls lay fast asleep with their heads on the same pillow, their small oval faces side by side like the faces of kittens. Under cover of the music Flory was speaking in a low voice into Elizabeth's ear commenting on the dance.

'I knew this would interest you; that's why I brought you here. You've read books and been in civilized places, you're not like the rest of us miserable savages here. Don't you think this is worth watching, in its queer way? Just look at that girl's movements-- look at that strange, bent-forward pose like a marionette, and the way her arms twist from the elbow like a cobra rising to strike. It's grotesque, it's even ugly, with a sort of wilful ugliness. And there's something sinister in it too. There's a touch of the diabolical in all Mongols. And yet when you look closely, what art, what centuries of culture you can see behind it! Every movement that girl makes has been studied and handed down through innumerable generations. Whenever you look closely at the art of these Eastern peoples you can see that--a civilization stretching back and back, practically the same, into times when we were dressed in woad. In some way that I can't define to you, the whole life and spirit of Burma is summed up in the way that girl twists her arms. When you see her you can see the rice fields, the villages under the teak trees, the pagodas, the priests in their yellow robes, the buffaloes swimming the rivers in the early morning, Thibaw's palace--'

His voice stopped abruptly as the music stopped. There were certain things, and a pwe-dance was one of them, that pricked him to talk discursively and incautiously; but now he realized that he had only been talking like a character in a novel, and not a very good novel. He looked away. Elizabeth had listened to him with a chill of discomfort. What WAS the man talking about? was her first thought. Moreover, she had caught the hated word Art more than once. For the first time she remembered that Flory was a total stranger and that it had been unwise to come out with him alone. She looked round her, at the sea of dark faces and the lurid glare of the lamps; the strangeness of the scene almost frightened her. What was she doing in this place? Surely it was not right to be sitting among the black people like this, almost touching them, in the scent of their garlic and their sweat? Why was she not back at the Club with the other white people? Why had he brought her here, among this horde of natives, to watch this hideous and savage spectacle?

The music struck up, and the pwe girl began dancing again. Her face was powdered so thickly that it gleamed in the lamplight like a chalk mask with live eyes behind it. With that dead-white oval face and those wooden gestures she was monstrous, like a demon. The music changed its tempo, and the girl began to sing in a brassy voice. It was a song with a swift trochaic rhythm, gay yet fierce. The crowd took it up, a hundred voices chanting the harsh syllables in unison. Still in that strange bent posture the girl turned round and danced with her buttocks protruded towards the audience.

Her silk longyi gleamed like metal. With hands and elbows still rotating she wagged her posterior from side to side. Then--astonishing feat, quite visible through the longyi--she began to wriggle her two buttocks independently in time with the music.

There was a shout of applause from the audience. The three girls asleep on the mat woke up at the same moment and began clapping their hands wildly. A clerk shouted nasally 'Bravo! Bravo!' in English for the Europeans' benefit. But U Po Kyin frowned and waved his hand. He knew all about European women. Elizabeth, however, had already stood up.

'I'm going. It's time we were back,' she said abruptly. She was looking away, but Flory could see that her face was pink.

He stood up beside her, dismayed. 'But, I say! Couldn't you stay a few minutes longer? I know it's late, but--they brought this girl on two hours before she was due, in our honour. Just a few minutes?'

'I can't help it, I ought to have been back ages ago. I don't know WHAT my uncle and aunt will be thinking.'

She began at once to pick her way through the crowd, and he followed her, with not even time to thank the pwe people for their trouble. The Burmans made way with a sulky air. How like these English people, to upset everything by sending for the best dancer and then go away almost before she had started! There was a fearful row as soon as Flory and Elizabeth had gone, the pwe girl refusing to go on with her dance and the audience demanding that she should continue. However, peace was restored when two clowns hurried on to the stage and began letting off crackers and making obscene jokes.

Flory followed the girl abjectly up the road. She was walking quickly, her head turned away, and for some moments she would not speak. What a thing to happen, when they had been getting on so well together! He kept trying to apologize.

'I'm so sorry! I'd no idea you'd mind--'

'It's nothing. What is there to be sorry about? I only said it was time to go back, that's all.'

'I ought to have thought. One gets not to notice that kind of thing in this country. These people's sense of decency isn't the same as ours--it's stricter in some ways--but--'

'It's not that! It's not that!' she exclaimed quite angrily.

He saw that he was only making it worse. They walked on in silence, he behind. He was miserable. What a bloody fool he had been! And yet all the while he had no inkling of the real reason why she was angry with him. It was not the pwe girl's behaviour, in itself, that had offended her; it had only brought things to a head. But the whole expedition--the very notion of WANTING to rub shoulders with all those smelly natives--had impressed her badly. She was perfectly certain that that was not how white men ought to behave. And that extraordinary rambling speech that he had begun, with all those long words--almost, she thought bitterly, as though he were quoting poetry! It was how those beastly artists that you met sometimes in Paris used to talk. She had thought him a manly man till this evening. Then her mind went back to the morning's adventure, and how he had faced the buffalo barehanded, and some of her anger evaporated. By the time they reached the Club gate she felt inclined to forgive him. Flory had by now plucked up courage to speak again. He stopped, and she stopped too, in a patch where the boughs let through some starlight and he could see her face dimly.

'I say. I say, I do hope you're not really angry about this?'

'No, of course I'm not. I told you I wasn't.'

'I oughtn't to have taken you there. Please forgive me. Do you know, I don't think I'd tell the others where you've been. Perhaps it would be better to say you've just been out for a stroll, out in the garden--something like that. They might think it queer, a white girl going to a pwe. I don't think I'd tell them.'

'Oh, of course I won't!' she agreed with a warmness that surprised him. After that he knew that he was forgiven. But what it was that he was forgiven, he had not yet grasped.

They went into the Club separately, by tacit consent. The expedition had been a failure, decidedly. There was a gala air about the Club lounge tonight. The entire European community were waiting to greet Elizabeth, and the butler and the six chokras, in their best starched white suits, were drawn up on either side of the door, smiling and salaaming. When the Europeans had finished their greetings the butler came forward with a vast garland of flowers that the servants had prepared for the 'missiesahib'. Mr Macgregor made a very humorous speech of welcome, introducing everybody. He introduced Maxwell as 'our local arboreal specialist', Westfield as 'the guardian of law and order and--ah--terror of the local banditti', and so on and so forth. There was much laughter. The sight of a pretty girl's face had put everyone in such a good humour that they could even enjoy Mr Macgregor's speech--which, to tell the truth, he had spent most of the evening in preparing.

At the first possible moment Ellis, with a sly air, took Flory and Westfield by the arm and drew them away into the card-room. He was in a much better mood than usual. He pinched Flory's arm with his small, hard fingers, painfully but quite amiably.

'Well, my lad, everyone's been looking for you. Where have you been all this time?'

'Oh, only for a stroll.'

'For a stroll! And who with?'

'With Miss Lackersteen.'

'I knew it! So YOU'RE the bloody fool who's fallen into the trap, are you? YOU swallowed the bait before anyone else had time to look at it. I thought you were too old a bird for that, by God I did!'

'What do you mean?'

'Mean! Look at him pretending he doesn't know what I mean! Why, I mean that Ma Lackersteen's marked you down for her beloved nephew-in-law, of course. That is, if you aren't bloody careful. Eh, Westfield?'

'Quite right, ol' boy. Eligible young bachelor. Marriage halter and all that. They've got their eye on him.'

'I don't know where you're getting this idea from. The girl's hardly been here twenty-four hours.'

'Long enough for you to take her up the garden path, anyway. You watch your step. Tom Lackersteen may be a drunken sot, but he's not such a bloody fool that he wants a niece hanging round his neck for the rest of his life. And of course SHE knows which side her bread's buttered. So you take care and don't go putting your head into the noose.'

'Damn it, you've no right to talk about people like that. After all, the girl's only a kid--'

'My dear old ass'--Ellis, almost affectionate now that he had a new subject for scandal, took Flory by the coat lapel--'my dear, dear old ass, don't you go filling yourself up with moonshine. You think that girl's easy fruit: she's not. These girls out from home are all the same. "Anything in trousers but nothing this side the altar"--that's their motto, every one of them. Why do you think the girl's come out here?'

'Why? I don't know. Because she wanted to, I suppose.'

'My good fool! She come out to lay her claws into a husband, of course. As if it wasn't well known! When a girl's failed everywhere else she tries India, where every man's pining for the sight of a white woman. The Indian marriage-market, they call it. Meat market it ought to be. Shiploads of 'em coming out every year like carcasses of frozen mutton, to be pawed over by nasty old bachelors like you. Cold storage. Juicy joints straight from the ice.'

'You do say some repulsive things.'

'Best pasture-fed English meat,' said Ellis with a pleased air. 'Fresh consignments. Warranted prime condition.'

He went through a pantomime of examining a joint of meat, with goatish sniffs. This joke was likely to last Ellis a long time; his jokes usually did; and there was nothing that gave him quite so keen a pleasure as dragging a woman's name through mud.

Flory did not see much more of Elizabeth that evening. Everyone was in the lounge together, and there was the silly clattering chatter about nothing that there is on these occasions. Flory could never keep up that kind of conversation for long. But as for Elizabeth, the civilized atmosphere of the Club, with the white faces all round her and the friendly look of the illustrated papers and the 'Bonzo' pictures, reassured her after that doubtful interlude at the pwe.

When the Lackersteens left the Club at nine, it was not Flory but Mr Macgregor who walked home with them, ambling beside Elizabeth like some friendly saurian monster, among the faint crooked shadows of the gold mohur stems. The Prome anecdote, and many another, found a new home. Any newcomer to Kyauktada was apt to come in for rather a large share of Mr Macgregor's conversation, for the others looked on him as an unparalleled bore, and it was a tradition at the Club to interrupt his stories. But Elizabeth was by nature a good listener. Mr Macgregor thought he had seldom met so intelligent a girl.

Flory stayed a little longer at the Club, drinking with the others. There was much smutty talk about Elizabeth. The quarrel about Dr Veraswami's election had been shelved for the time being. Also, the notice that Ellis had put up on the previous evening had been taken down. Mr Macgregor had seen it during his morning visit to the Club, and in his fair-minded way he had at once insisted on its removal. So the notice had been suppressed; not, however, before it had achieved its object.

9

During the next fortnight a great deal happened.

The feud between U Po Kyin and Dr Veraswami was now in full swing. The whole town was divided into two factions, with every native soul from the magistrates down to the bazaar sweepers enrolled on one side or the other, and all ready for perjury when the time came. But of the two parties, the doctor's was much the smaller and less efficiently libellous. The editor of the Burmese Patriot had been put on trial for sedition and libel, bail being refused. His arrest had provoked a small riot in Rangoon, which was suppressed by the police with the death of only two rioters. In prison the editor went on hunger strike, but broke down after six hours.

In Kyauktada, too, things had been happening. A dacoit named Nga Shwe O had escaped from the jail in mysterious circumstances. And there had been a whole crop of rumours about a projected native rising in the district. The rumours--they were very vague ones as yet--centred round a village named Thongwa, not far from the camp where Maxwell was girdling teak. A weiksa, or magician, was said to have appeared from nowhere and to be prophesying the doom of the English power and distributing magic bullet-proof jackets. Mr Macgregor did not take the rumours very seriously, but he had asked for an extra force of Military Police. It was said that a company of Indian infantry with a British officer in command would be sent to Kyauktada shortly. Westfield, of course, had hurried to Thongwa at the first threat, or rather hope, of trouble.

'God, if they'd only break out and rebel properly for once!' he said to Ellis before starting. 'But it'll be a bloody washout as usual. Always the same story with these rebellions--peter out almost before they've begun. Would you believe it, I've never fired my gun at a fellow yet, not even a dacoit. Eleven years of it, not counting the War, and never killed a man. Depressing.'

'Oh, well,' said Ellis, 'if they won't come up to the scratch you can always get hold of the ringleaders and give them a good bambooing on the Q.T. That's better than coddling them up in our damned nursing homes of prisons.'

'H'm, probably. Can't do it though, nowadays. All these kid-glove laws--got to keep them, I suppose, if we're fools enough to make 'em.'

'Oh, rot the laws. Bambooing's the only thing that makes any impression on the Burman. Have you seen them after they've been flogged? I have. Brought out of the jail on bullock carts, yelling, with the women plastering mashed bananas on their backsides. That's something they do understand. If I had my way I'd give it 'em on the soles of the feet the same as the Turks do.'

'Ah well. Let's hope they'll have the guts to show a bit of fight for once. Then we'll call out the Military Police, rifles and all. Plug a few dozen of 'em--that'll clear the air.'

However, the hoped-for opportunity did not come. Westfield and the dozen constables he had taken with him to Thongwa--jolly round-faced Gurkha boys, pining to use their kukris on somebody--found the district depressingly peaceful. There seemed not the ghost of a rebellion anywhere; only the annual attempt, as regular as the monsoon, of the villagers to avoid paying the capitation tax.

The weather was growing hotter and hotter. Elizabeth had had her first attack of prickly heat. Tennis at the Club had practically ceased; people would play one languid set and then fall into chairs and swallow pints of tepid lime-juice--tepid, because the ice came only twice weekly from Mandalay and melted within twenty-four hours of arriving. The Flame of the Forest was in full bloom. The Burmese women, to protect their children from the sun, streaked their faces with yellow cosmetic until they looked like little African witch-doctors. Flocks of green pigeons, and imperial pigeons as large as ducks, came to eat the berries of the big peepul trees along the bazaar road.

Meanwhile, Flory had turned Ma Hla May out of his house.

A nasty, dirty job! There was a sufficient pretext--she had stolen his gold cigarette-case and pawned it at the house of Li Yeik, the Chinese grocer and illicit pawnbroker in the bazaar--but still, it was only a pretext. Flory knew perfectly well, and Ma Hla May knew, and all the servants knew, that he was getting rid of her because of Elizabeth. Because of 'the Ingaleikma with dyed hair', as Ma Hla May called her.

Ma Hla May made no violent scene at first. She stood sullenly listening while he wrote her a cheque for a hundred rupees--Li Yeik or the Indian chetty in the bazaar would cash cheques--and told her that she was dismissed. He was more ashamed than she; he could not look her in the face, and his voice went flat and guilty. When the bullock cart came for her belongings, he shut himself in the bedroom skulking till the scene should be over.

Cartwheels grated on the drive, there was the sound of men shouting; then suddenly there was a fearful uproar of screams. Flory went outside. They were all struggling round the gate in the sunlight. Ma Hla May was clinging to the gatepost and Ko S'la was trying to bundle her out. She turned a face full of fury and despair towards Flory, screaming over and over, 'Thakin! Thakin! Thakin! Thakin! Thakin!' It hurt him to the heart that she should still call him thakin after he had dismissed her.

'What is it?' he said.

It appeared that there was a switch of false hair that Ma Hla May and Ma Yi both claimed. Flory gave the switch to Ma Yi and gave Ma Hla May two rupees to compensate her. Then the cart jolted away, with Ma Hla May sitting beside her two wicker baskets, straight-backed and sullen, and nursing a kitten on her knees. It was only two months since he had given her the kitten as a present.

Ko S'la, who had long wished for Ma Hla May's removal, was not altogether pleased now that it had happened. He was even less pleased when he saw his master going to church--or as he called it, to the 'English pagoda'--for Flory was still in Kyauktada on the Sunday of the padre's arrival, and he went to church with the others. There was a congregation of twelve, including Mr Francis, Mr Samuel and six native Christians, with Mrs Lackersteen playing 'Abide with Me' on the tiny harmonium with one game pedal. It was the first time in ten years that Flory had been to church, except to funerals. Ko S'la's notions of what went on in the 'English pagoda' were vague in the extreme; but he did know that church-going signified respectability--a quality which, like all bachelors' servants, he hated in his bones.

'There is trouble coming,' he said despondently to the other servants. 'I have been watching him (he meant Flory) these ten days past. He has cut down his cigarettes to fifteen a day, he has stopped drinking gin before breakfast, he shaves himself every evening--though he thinks I do not know it, the fool. And he has ordered half a dozen new silk shirts! I had to stand over the dirzi calling him bahinchut to get them finished in time. Evil omens! I give him three months longer, and then good-bye to the peace in this house!'

'What, is he going to get married?' said Ba Pe.

'I am certain of it. When a white man begins going to the English pagoda, it is, as you might say, the beginning of the end.'

'I have had many masters in my life,' old Sammy said. 'The worst was Colonel Wimpole sahib, who used to make his orderly hold me down over the table while he came running from behind and kicked me with very thick boots for serving banana fritters too frequently. At other times, when he was drunk, he would fire his revolver through the roof of the servants' quarters, just above our heads. But I would sooner serve ten years under Colonel Wimpole sahib than a week under a memsahib with her kit-kit. If our master marries I shall leave the same day.'

'I shall not leave, for I have been his servant fifteen years. But I know what is in store for us when that woman comes. She will shout at us because of spots of dust on the furniture, and wake us up to bring cups of tea in the afternoon when we are asleep, and come poking into the cookhouse at all hours and complain over dirty saucepans and cockroaches in the flour bin. It is my belief that these women lie awake at nights thinking of new ways to torment their servants.'

'They keep a little red book,' said Sammy, 'in which they enter the bazaar-money, two annas for this, four annas for that, so that a man cannot earn a pice. They make more kit-kit over the price of an onion than a sahib over five rupees.'

'Ah, do I not know it! She will be worse than Ma Hla May. Women!' he added comprehensively, with a kind of sigh.

The sigh was echoed by the others, even by Ma Pu and Ma Yi. Neither took Ko S'la's remarks as a stricture upon her own sex, Englishwomen being considered a race apart, possibly not even human, and so dreadful that an Englishman's marriage is usually the signal for the flight of every servant in his house, even those who have been with him for years.

But as a matter of fact, Ko S'la's alarm was premature. After knowing Elizabeth for ten days, Flory was scarcely more intimate with her than on the day when he had first met her.

As it happened, he had her almost to himself during these ten days, most of the Europeans being in the jungle. Flory himself had no right to be loitering in headquarters, for at this time of year the work of timber-extraction was in full swing, and in his absence everything went to pieces under the incompetent Eurasian overseer. But he had stayed--pretext, a touch of fever--while despairing letters came almost every day from the overseer, telling of disasters. One of the elephants was ill, the engine of the light railway that was used for carrying teak logs to the river had broken down, fifteen of the coolies had deserted. But Flory still lingered, unable to tear himself away from Kyauktada while Elizabeth was there, and continually seeking--never, as yet, to much purpose--to recapture that easy and delightful friendship of their first meeting.

They met every day, morning and evening, it was true. Each evening they played a single of tennis at the Club--Mrs Lackersteen was too limp and Mr Lackersteen too liverish for tennis at this time of year--and afterwards they would sit in the lounge, all four together, playing bridge and talking. But though Flory spent hours in Elizabeth's company, and often they were alone together, he was never for an instant at his ease with her. They talked--so long as they talked of trivialities--with the utmost freedom, yet they were distant, like strangers. He felt stiff in her presence, he could not forget his birthmark; his twice-scraped chin smarted, his body tortured him for whisky and tobacco--for he tried to cut down his drinking and smoking when he was with her. After ten days they seemed no nearer the relationship he wanted.

For somehow, he had never been able to talk to her as he longed to talk. To talk, simply to talk! It sounds so little, and how much it is! When you have existed to the brink of middle age in bitter loneliness, among people to whom your true opinion on every subject on earth is blasphemy, the need to talk is the greatest of all needs. Yet with Elizabeth serious talk seemed impossible. It was as though there had been a spell upon them that made all their conversation lapse into banality; gramophone records, dogs, tennis racquets--all that desolating Club-chatter. She seemed not to WANT to talk of anything but that. He had only to touch upon a subject of any conceivable interest to hear the evasion, the 'I shan't play', coming into her voice. Her taste in books appalled him when he discovered it. Yet she was young, he reminded himself, and had she not drunk white wine and talked of Marcel Proust under the Paris plane trees? Later, no doubt, she would understand him and give him the companionship he needed. Perhaps it was only that he had not won her confidence yet.

He was anything but tactful with her. Like all men who have lived much alone, he adjusted himself better to ideas than to people. And so, though all their talk was superficial, he began to irritate her sometimes; not by what he said but by what he implied. There was an uneasiness between them, ill-defined and yet often verging upon quarrels. When two people, one of whom has lived long in the country while the other is a newcomer, are thrown together, it is inevitable that the first should act as cicerone to the second. Elizabeth, during these days, was making her first acquaintance with Burma; it was Flory, naturally, who acted as her interpreter, explaining this, commenting upon that. And the things he said, or the way he said them, provoked in her a vague yet deep disagreement. For she perceived that Flory, when he spoke of the 'natives', spoke nearly always IN FAVOUR of them. He was forever praising Burmese customs and the Burmese character; he even went so far as to contrast them favourably with the English. It disquieted her. After all, natives were natives--interesting, no doubt, but finally only a 'subject' people, an inferior people with black faces. His attitude was a little TOO tolerant. Nor had he grasped, yet, in what way he was antagonizing her. He so wanted her to love Burma as he loved it, not to look at it with the dull, incurious eyes of a memsahib! He had forgotten that most people can be at ease in a foreign country only when they are disparaging the inhabitants.

He was too eager in his attempts to interest her in things Oriental. He tried to induce her, for instance, to learn Burmese, but it came to nothing. (Her aunt had explained to her that only missionary-women spoke Burmese; nice women found kitchen Urdu quite as much as they needed.) There were countless small disagreements like that. She was grasping, dimly, that his views were not the views an Englishman should hold. Much more clearly she grasped that he was asking her to be fond of the Burmese, even to admire them; to admire people with black faces, almost savages, whose appearance still made her shudder!

The subject cropped up in a hundred ways. A knot of Burmans would pass them on the road. She, with her still fresh eyes, would gaze after them, half curious and half repelled; and she would say to Flory, as she would have said to anybody:

'How REVOLTINGLY ugly these people are, aren't they?'

'ARE they? I always think they're rather charming-looking, the Burmese. They have such splendid bodies! Look at that fellow's shoulders--like a bronze statue. Just think what sights you'd see in England if people went about half naked as they do here!'

'But they have such hideous-shaped heads! Their skulls kind of slope up behind like a tom-cat's. And then the way their foreheads slant back--it makes them look so WICKED. I remember reading something in a magazine about the shape of people's heads; it said that a person with a sloping forehead is a CRIMINAL TYPE.'

'Oh, come, that's a bit sweeping! Round about half the people in the world have that kind of forehead.'

'Oh, well, if you count COLOURED people, of course--!'

Or perhaps a string of women would pass, going to the well: heavy-set peasant-girls, copper-brown, erect under their water-pots with strong marelike buttocks protruded. The Burmese women repelled Elizabeth more than the men; she felt her kinship with them, and the hatefulness of being kin to creatures with black faces.

'Aren't they too simply dreadful? So COARSE-LOOKING; like some kind of animal. Do you think ANYONE could think those women attractive?'

'Their own men do, I believe.'

'I suppose they would. But that black skin--I don't know how anyone could bear it!'

'But, you know, one gets used to the brown skin in time. In fact they say--I believe it's true--that after a few years in these countries a brown skin seems more natural than a white one. And after all, it IS more natural. Take the world as a whole, it's an eccentricity to be white.'

'You DO have some funny ideas!'

And so on and so on. She felt all the while an unsatisfactoriness, an unsoundness in the things he said. It was particularly so on the evening when Flory allowed Mr Francis and Mr Samuel, the two derelict Eurasians, to entrap him in conversation at the Club gate.

Elizabeth, as it happened, had reached the Club a few minutes before Flory, and when she heard his voice at the gate she came round the tennis-screen to meet him. The two Eurasians had sidled up to Flory and cornered him like a pair of dogs asking for a game. Francis was doing most of the talking. He was a meagre, excitable man, and as brown as a cigar-leaf, being the son of a South Indian woman; Samuel, whose mother had been a Karen, was pale yellow with dull red hair. Both were dressed in shabby drill suits, with vast topis beneath which their slender bodies looked like the stalks of toadstools.

Elizabeth came down the path in time to hear fragments of an enormous and complicated autobiography. Talking to white men--talking, for choice, about himself--was the great joy of Francis's life. When, at intervals of months, he found a European to listen to him, his life-history would pour out of him in unquenchable torrents. He was talking in a nasal, sing-song voice of incredible rapidity:

'Of my father, sir, I remember little, but he was very choleric man and many whackings with big bamboo stick all knobs on both for self, little half-brother and two mothers. Also how on occasion of bishop's visit little half-brother and I dress in longyis and sent among the Burmese children to preserve incognito. My father never rose to be bishop, sir. Four converts only in twenty-eight years, and also too great fondness for Chinese rice-spirit very fiery noised abroad and spoil sales of my father's booklet entitled The Scourge of Alcohol, published with the Rangoon Baptist Press, one rupee eight annas. My little half-brother die one hot weather, always coughing, coughing,' etc., etc.

The two Eurasians perceived the presence of Elizabeth. Both doffed their topis with bows and brilliant displays of teeth. It was probably several years since either of them had had a chance of talking to an Englishwoman. Francis burst out more effusively than ever. He was chattering in evident dread that he would be interrupted and the conversation cut short.

'Good evening to you, madam, good evening, good evening! Most honoured to make your acquaintance, madam! Very sweltering is the weather these days, is not? But seasonable for April. Not too much you are suffering from prickly heat, I trust? Pounded tamarind applied to the afflicted spot is infallible. Myself I suffer torments each night. Very prevalent disease among we Europeans.'

He pronounced it Europian, like Mr Chollop in Martin Chuzzlewit. Elizabeth did not answer. She was looking at the Eurasians somewhat coldly. She had only a dim idea as to who or what they were, and it struck her as impertinent that they should speak to her.

'Thanks, I'll remember about the tamarind,' Flory said.

'Specific of renowned Chinese doctor, sir. Also, sir-madam, may I advise to you, wearing only Terai hat is not judicious in April, sir. For the natives all well, their skulls are adamant. But for us sunstroke ever menaces. Very deadly is the sun upon European skull. But is it that I detain you, madam?'

This was said in a disappointed tone. Elizabeth had, in fact, decided to snub the Eurasians. She did not know why Flory was allowing them to hold him in conversation. As she turned away to stroll back to the tennis court, she made a practice stroke in the air with her racquet, to remind Flory that the game was overdue. He saw it and followed her, rather reluctantly, for he did not like snubbing the wretched Francis, bore though he was.

'I must be off,' he said. 'Good evening, Francis. Good evening, Samuel.'

'Good evening, sir! Good evening, madam! Good evening, good evening!' They receded with more hat flourishes.

'Who ARE those two?' said Elizabeth as Flory came up with her. 'Such extraordinary creatures! They were in church on Sunday. One of them looks almost white. Surely he isn't an Englishman?'

'No, they're Eurasians--sons of white fathers and native mothers. Yellow-bellies is our friendly nickname for them.'

'But what are they doing here? Where do they live? Do they do any work?'

'They exist somehow or other in the bazaar. I believe Francis acts as clerk to an Indian money-lender, and Samuel to some of the pleaders. But they'd probably starve now and then if it weren't for the charity of the natives.'

'The natives! Do you mean to say--sort of CADGE from the natives?'

'I fancy so. It would be a very easy thing to do, if one cared to. The Burmese won't let anyone starve.'

Elizabeth had never heard of anything of this kind before. The notion of men who were at least partly white living in poverty among 'natives' so shocked her that she stopped short on the path, and the game of tennis was postponed for a few minutes.

'But how awful! I mean, it's such a bad example! It's almost as bad as if one of US was like that. Couldn't something be done for those two? Get up a subscription and send them away from here, or something?'

'I'm afraid it wouldn't help much. Wherever they went they'd be in the same position.'

'But couldn't they get some proper work to do?'

'I doubt it. You see, Eurasians of that type--men who've been brought up in the bazaar and had no education--are done for from the start. The Europeans won't touch them with a stick, and they're cut off from entering the lower-grade Government services. There's nothing they can do except cadge, unless they chuck all pretension to being Europeans. And really you can't expect the poor devils to do that. Their drop of white blood is the sole asset they've got. Poor Francis, I never meet him but he begins telling me about his prickly heat. Natives, you see, are supposed not to suffer from prickly heat--bosh, of course, but people believe it. It's the same with sunstroke. They wear those huge topis to remind you that they've got European skulls. A kind of coat of arms. The bend sinister, you might say.'

This did not satisfy Elizabeth. She perceived that Flory, as usual, had a sneaking sympathy with the Eurasians. And the appearance of the two men had excited a peculiar dislike in her.

She had placed their type now. They looked like dagoes. Like those Mexicans and Italians and other dago people who play the mauvais role in so many a film.

'They looked awfully degenerate types, didn't they? So thin and weedy and cringing; and they haven't got at all HONEST faces. I suppose these Eurasians ARE very degenerate? I've heard that half-castes always inherit what's worst in both races. Is that true?'

'I don't know that it's true. Most Eurasians aren't very good specimens, and it's hard to see how they could be, with their upbringing. But our attitude towards them is rather beastly. We always talk of them as though they'd sprung up from the ground like mushrooms, with all their faults ready-made. But when all's said and done, we're responsible for their existence.'

'Responsible for their existence?'

'Well, they've all got fathers, you see.'

'Oh . . . Of course there's that. . . . But after all, YOU aren't responsible. I mean, only a very low kind of man would--er--have anything to do with native women, wouldn't he?'

'Oh, quite. But the fathers of both those two were clergymen in holy orders, I believe.'

He thought of Rosa McFee, the Eurasian girl he had seduced in Mandalay in 1913. The way he used to sneak down to the house in a gharry with the shutters down; Rosa's corkscrew curls; her withered old Burmese mother, giving him tea in the dark living-room with the fern pots and the wicker divan. And afterwards, when he had chucked Rosa, those dreadful, imploring letters on scented note-paper, which, in the end, he had ceased opening.

Elizabeth reverted to the subject of Francis and Samuel after tennis.

'Those two Eurasians--does anyone here have anything to do with them? Invite them to their houses or anything?'

'Good gracious, no. They're complete outcasts. It's not considered quite the thing to talk to them, in fact. Most of us say good morning to them--Ellis won't even do that.'

'But YOU talked to them.'

'Oh well, I break the rules occasionally. I meant that a pukka sahib probably wouldn't be seen talking to them. But you see, I try--just sometimes, when I have the pluck--NOT to be a pukka sahib.'

It was an unwise remark. She knew very well by this time the meaning of the phrase 'pukka sahib' and all it stood for. His remark had made the difference in their viewpoint a little clearer. The glance she gave him was almost hostile, and curiously hard; for her face could look hard sometimes, in spite of its youth and its flower-like skin. Those modish tortoise-shell spectacles gave her a very self-possessed look. Spectacles are queerly expressive things--almost more expressive, indeed, than eyes.

As yet he had neither understood her nor quite won her trust. Yet on the surface, at least, things had not gone ill between them. He had fretted her sometimes, but the good impression that he had made that first morning was not yet effaced. It was a curious fact that she scarcely noticed his birthmark at this time. And there were some subjects on which she was glad to hear him talk. Shooting, for example--she seemed to have an enthusiasm for shooting that was remarkable in a girl. Horses, also; but he was less knowledgeable about horses. He had arranged to take her out for a day's shooting, later, when he could make preparations. Both of them were looking forward to the expedition with some eagerness, though not entirely for the same reason.

Flory and Elizabeth walked down the bazaar road. It was morning, but the air was so hot that to walk in it was like wading through a torrid sea. Strings of Burmans passed, coming from the bazaar, on scraping sandals, and knots of girls who hurried by four and five abreast, with short quick steps, chattering, their burnished hair gleaming. By the roadside, just before you got to the jail, the fragments of a stone pagoda were littered, cracked and overthrown by the strong roots of a peepul tree. The angry carved faces of demons looked up from the grass where they had fallen. Near by another peepul tree had twined itself round a palm, uprooting it and bending it backwards in a wrestle that had lasted a decade.

They walked on and came to the jail, a vast square block, two hundred yards each way, with shiny concrete walls twenty feet high. A peacock, pet of the jail, was mincing pigeon-toed along the parapet. Six convicts came by, head down, dragging two heavy handcarts piled with earth, under the guard of Indian warders. They were long-sentence men, with heavy limbs, dressed in uniforms of coarse white cloth with small dunces' caps perched on their shaven crowns. Their faces were greyish, cowed and curiously flattened. Their leg-irons jingled with a clear ring. A woman came past carrying a basket of fish on her head. Two crows were circling round it and making darts at it, and the woman was flapping one hand negligently to keep them away.

There was a din of voices a little distance away. 'The bazaar's just round the corner,' Flory said. 'I think this is a market morning. It's rather fun to watch.'

He had asked her to come down to the bazaar with him, telling her it would amuse her to see it. They rounded the bend. The bazaar was an enclosure like a very large cattle pen, with low stalls, mostly palm-thatched, round its edge. In the enclosure, a mob of people seethed, shouting and jostling; the confusion of their multi-coloured clothes was like a cascade of hundreds-and-thousands poured out of a jar. Beyond the bazaar one could see the huge, miry river. Tree branches and long streaks of scum raced down it at seven miles an hour. By the bank a fleet of sampans, with sharp beak-like bows on which eyes were painted, rocked at their mooring-poles.

Flory and Elizabeth stood watching for a moment. Files of women passed balancing vegetable baskets on their heads, and pop-eyed children who stared at the Europeans. An old Chinese in dungarees faded to sky-blue hurried by, nursing some unrecognizable, bloody fragment of a pig's intestines.

'Let's go and poke around the stalls a bit, shall we?' Flory said.

'Is it all right going in among the crowd? Everything's so horribly dirty.'

'Oh, it's all right, they'll make way for us. It'll interest you.'

Elizabeth followed him doubtfully and even unwillingly. Why was it that he always brought her to these places? Why was he forever dragging her in among the 'natives', trying to get her to take an interest in them and watch their filthy, disgusting habits? It was all wrong, somehow. However, she followed, not feeling able to explain her reluctance. A wave of stifling air met them; there was a reek of garlic, dried fish, sweat, dust, anise, cloves and turmeric. The crowd surged round them, swarms of stocky peasants with cigar-brown faces, withered elders with their grey hair tied in a bun behind, young mothers carrying naked babies astride the hip. Flo was trodden on and yelped. Low, strong shoulders bumped against Elizabeth, as the peasants, too busy bargaining even to stare at a white woman, struggled round the stalls.

'Look!' Flory was pointing with his stick to a stall, and saying something, but it was drowned by the yells of two women who were shaking their fists at each other over a basket of pineapples. Elizabeth had recoiled from the stench and din, but he did not notice it, and led her deeper into the crowd, pointing to this stall and that. The merchandise was foreign-looking, queer and poor. There were vast pomelos hanging on strings like green moons, red bananas, baskets of heliotrope-coloured prawns the size of lobsters, brittle dried fish tied in bundles, crimson chilis, ducks split open and cured like hams, green coco-nuts, the larvae of the rhinoceros beetle, sections of sugar-cane, dahs, lacquered sandals, check silk longyis, aphrodisiacs in the form of large, soap-like pills, glazed earthenware jars four feet high, Chinese sweetmeats made of garlic and sugar, green and white cigars, purple prinjals, persimmon-seed necklaces, chickens cheeping in wicker cages, brass Buddhas, heart-shaped betel leaves, bottles of Kruschen salts, switches of false hair, red clay cooking-pots, steel shoes for bullocks, papier-mache marionettes, strips of alligator hide with magical properties. Elizabeth's head was beginning to swim. At the other end of the bazaar the sun gleamed through a priest's umbrella, blood-red, as though through the ear of a giant. In front of a stall four Dravidian women were pounding turmeric with heavy stakes in a large wooden mortar. The hot-scented yellow powder flew up and tickled Elizabeth's nostrils, making her sneeze. She felt that she could not endure this place a moment longer. She touched Flory's arm.

'This crowd--the heat is so dreadful. Do you think we could get into the shade?'

He turned round. To tell the truth, he had been too busy talking--mostly inaudibly, because of the din--to notice how the heat and stench were affecting her.

'Oh, I say, I am sorry. Let's get out of it at once. I tell you what, we'll go along to old Li Yeik's shop--he's the Chinese grocer--and he'll get us a drink of something. It is rather stifling here.'

'All these spices--they kind of take your breath away. And what is that dreadful smell like fish?'

'Oh, only a kind of sauce they make out of prawns. They bury them and then dig them up several weeks afterwards.'

'How absolutely horrible!'

'Quite wholesome, I believe. Come away from that!' he added to Flo, who was nosing at a basket of small gudgeon-like fish with spines on their gills.

Li Yeik's shop faced the farther end of the bazaar. What Elizabeth had really wanted was to go straight back to the Club, but the European look of Li Yeik's shop-front--it was piled with Lancashire-made cotton shirts and almost incredibly cheap German clocks--comforted her somewhat after the barbarity of the bazaar. They were about to climb the steps when a slim youth of twenty, damnably dressed in a longyi, blue cricket blazer and bright yellow shoes, with his hair parted and greased 'Ingaleik fashion', detached himself from the crowd and came after them. He greeted Flory with a small awkward movement as though restraining himself from shikoing.

'What is it?' Flory said.

'Letter, sir.' He produced a grubby envelope.

'Would you excuse me?' Flory said to Elizabeth, opening the letter. It was from Ma Hla May--or rather, it had been written for her and she had signed it with a cross--and it demanded fifty rupees, in a vaguely menacing manner.

Flory pulled the youth aside. 'You speak English? Tell Ma Hla May I'll see about this later. And tell her that if she tries blackmailing me she won't get another pice. Do you understand?'

'Yes, sir.'

'And now go away. Don't follow me about, or there'll be trouble.'

'Yes, sir.'

'A clerk wanting a job,' Flory explained to Elizabeth as they went up the steps. 'They come bothering one at all hours.' And he reflected that the tone of the letter was curious, for he had not expected Ma Hla May to begin blackmailing him so soon; however, he had not time at the moment to wonder what it might mean.

They went into the shop, which seemed dark after the outer air. Li Yeik, who was sitting smoking among his baskets of merchandise--there was no counter--hobbled eagerly forward when he saw who had come in. Flory was a friend of his. He was an old bent-kneed man dressed in blue, wearing a pigtail, with a chinless yellow face, all cheekbones, like a benevolent skull. He greeted Flory with nasal honking noises which he intended for Burmese, and at once hobbled to the back of the shop to call for refreshments. There was a cool sweetish smell of opium. Long strips of red paper with black lettering were pasted on the walls, and at one side there was a little altar with a portrait of two large, serene-looking people in embroidered robes, and two sticks of incense smouldering in front of it. Two Chinese women, one old, and a girl were sitting on a mat rolling cigarettes with maize straw and tobacco like chopped horsehair. They wore black silk trousers, and their feet, with bulging, swollen insteps, were crammed into red-heeled wooden slippers no bigger than a doll's. A naked child was crawling slowly about the floor like a large yellow frog.

'Do look at those women's feet!' Elizabeth whispered as soon as Li Yeik's back was turned. 'Isn't it simply dreadful! How do they get them like that? Surely it isn't natural?'

'No, they deform them artificially. It's going out in China, I believe, but the people here are behind the times. Old Li Yeik's pigtail is another anachronism. Those small feet are beautiful according to Chinese ideas.'

'Beautiful! They're so horrible I can hardly look at them. These people must be absolute savages!'

'Oh no! They're highly civilized; more civilized than we are, in my opinion. Beauty's all a matter of taste. There are a people in this country called the Palaungs who admire long necks in women. The girls wear broad brass rings to stretch their necks, and they put on more and more of them until in the end they have necks like giraffes. It's no queerer than bustles or crinolines.'

At this moment Li Yeik came back with two fat, round-faced Burmese girls, evidently sisters, giggling and carrying between them two chairs and a blue Chinese teapot holding half a gallon. The two girls were or had been Li Yeik's concubines. The old man had produced a tin of chocolates and was prising off the lid and smiling in a fatherly way, exposing three long, tobacco-blackened teeth. Elizabeth sat down in a very uncomfortable frame of mind. She was perfectly certain that it could not be right to accept these people's hospitality. One of the Burmese girls had at once gone behind the chairs and begun fanning Flory and Elizabeth, while the other knelt at their feet and poured out cups of tea. Elizabeth felt very foolish with the girl fanning the back of her neck and the Chinaman grinning in front of her. Flory always seemed to get her into these uncomfortable situations. She took a chocolate from the tin Li Yeik offered her, but she could not bring herself to say 'thank you'.

'Is this ALL RIGHT?' she whispered to Flory.

'All right?'

'I mean, ought we to be sitting down in these people's house? Isn't it sort of--sort of infra dig?'

'It's all right with a Chinaman. They're a favoured race in this country. And they're very democratic in their ideas. It's best to treat them more or less as equals.'

'This tea looks absolutely beastly. It's quite green. You'd think they'd have the sense to put milk in it, wouldn't you?'

'It's not bad. It's a special kind of tea old Li Yeik gets from China. It has orange blossoms in it, I believe.'

'Ugh! It tastes exactly like earth,' she said, having tasted it.

Li Yeik stood holding his pipe, which was two feet long with a metal bowl the size of an acorn, and watching the Europeans to see whether they enjoyed his tea. The girl behind the chair said something in Burmese, at which both of them burst out giggling again. The one kneeling on the floor looked up and gazed in a naive admiring way at Elizabeth. Then she turned to Flory and asked him whether the English lady wore stays. She pronounced it s'tays.

'Ch!' said Li Yeik in a scandalized manner, stirring the girl with his toe to silence her.

'I should hardly care to ask her,' Flory said.

'Oh, thakin, please do ask her! We are so anxious to know!'

There was an argument, and the girl behind the chair forgot fanning and joined in. Both of them, it appeared, had been pining all their lives to see a veritable pair of s'tays. They had heard so many tales about them; they were made of steel on the principle of a strait waistcoat, and they compressed a woman so tightly that she had no breasts, absolutely no breasts at all! The girls pressed their hands against their fat ribs in illustration. Would not Flory be so kind as to ask the English lady? There was a room behind the shop where she could come with them and undress. They had been so hoping to see a pair of s'tays.

Then the conversation lapsed suddenly. Elizabeth was sitting stiffly, holding her tiny cup of tea, which she could not bring herself to taste again, and wearing a rather hard smile. A chill fell upon the Orientals; they realized that the English girl, who could not join in their conversation, was not at her ease. Her elegance and her foreign beauty, which had charmed them a moment earlier, began to awe them a little. Even Flory was conscious of the same feeling. There came one of those dreadful moments that one has with Orientals, when everyone avoids everyone else's eyes, trying vainly to think of something to say. Then the naked child, which had been exploring some baskets at the back of the shop, crawled across to where the European sat. It examined their shoes and stockings with great curiosity, and then, looking up, saw their white faces and was seized with terror. It let out a desolate wail, and began making water on the floor.

The old Chinese woman looked up, clicked her tongue and went on rolling cigarettes. No one else took the smallest notice. A pool began to form on the floor. Elizabeth was so horrified that she set her cup down hastily, and spilled the tea. She plucked at Flory's arm.

'That child! Do look what it's doing! Really, can't someone--it's too awful!' For a moment everyone gazed in astonishment, and then they all grasped what was the matter. There was a flurry and a general clicking of tongues. No one had paid any attention to the child--the incident was too normal to be noticed--and now they all felt horribly ashamed. Everyone began putting the blame on the child. There were exclamations of 'What a disgraceful child! What a disgusting child!' The old Chinese woman carried the child, still howling, to the door, and held it out over the step as though wringing out a bath sponge. And in the same moment, as it seemed, Flory and Elizabeth were outside the shop, and he was following her back to the road with Li Yeik and the others looking after them in dismay.

'If THAT'S what you call civilized people--!' she was exclaiming.

'I'm sorry,' he said feebly. 'I never expected--'

'What absolutely DISGUSTING people!'

She was bitterly angry. Her face had flushed a wonderful delicate pink, like a poppy bud opened a day too soon. It was the deepest colour of which it was capable. He followed her past the bazaar and back to the main road, and they had gone fifty yards before he ventured to speak again.

'I'm so sorry that this should have happened! Li Yeik is such a decent old chap. He'd hate to think that he'd offended you. Really it would have been better to stay a few minutes. Just to thank him for the tea.'

'Thank him! After THAT!'

'But honestly, you oughtn't to mind that sort of thing. Not in this country. These people's whole outlook is so different from ours. One has to adjust oneself. Suppose, for instance, you were back in the Middle Ages--'

'I think I'd rather not discuss it any longer.'

It was the first time they had definitely quarrelled. He was too miserable even to ask himself how it was that he offended her. He did not realize that this constant striving to interest her in Oriental things struck her only as perverse, ungentlemanly, a deliberate seeking after the squalid and the 'beastly'. He had not grasped even now with what eyes she saw the 'natives'. He only knew that at each attempt to make her share his life, his thoughts, his sense of beauty, she shied away from him like a frightened horse.

They walked up the road, he to the left of her and a little behind. He watched her averted cheek and the tiny gold hairs on her nape beneath the brim of her Terai hat. How he loved her, how he loved her! It was as though he had never truly loved her till this moment, when he walked behind her in disgrace, not even daring to show his disfigured face. He made to speak several times, and stopped himself. His voice was not quite ready, and he did not know what he could say that did not risk offending her somehow. At last he said, flatly, with a feeble pretence that nothing was the matter:

'It's getting beastly hot, isn't it?'

With the temperature at 90 degrees in the shade it was not a brilliant remark. To his surprise she seized on it with a kind of eagerness. She turned to face him, and she was smiling again.

'Isn't it simply BAKING!'

With that they were at peace. The silly, banal remark, bringing with it the reassuring atmosphere of Club-chatter, had soothed her like a charm. Flo, who had lagged behind, came puffing up to them dribbling saliva; in an instant they were talking, quite as usual, about dogs. They talked about dogs for the rest of the way home, almost without a pause. Dogs are an inexhaustible subject. Dogs, dogs! thought Flory as they climbed the hot hillside, with the mounting sun scorching their shoulders through their thin clothes, like the breath of fire--were they never to talk of anything except dogs? Or failing dogs, gramophone records and tennis racquets? And yet, when they kept to trash like this, how easily, how amicably they could talk!

They passed the glittering white wall of the cemetery and came to the Lackersteens' gate. Old mohur trees grew round it, and a clump of hollyhocks eight feet high, with round red flowers like blowsy girls' faces. Flory took off his hat in the shade and fanned his face.

'Well, we're back before the worst of the heat comes. I'm afraid our trip to the bazaar wasn't altogether a success.'

'Oh, not at all! I enjoyed it, really I did.'

'No--I don't know, something unfortunate always seems to happen.--Oh, by the way! You haven't forgotten that we're going out shooting the day after tomorrow? I hope that day will be all right for you?'

'Yes, and my uncle's going to lend me his gun. Such awful fun! You'll have to teach me all about shooting. I AM so looking forward to it.'

'So am I. It's a rotten time of year for shooting, but we'll do our best. Goodbye for the present, then.'

'Good-bye, Mr Flory.'

She still called him Mr Flory though he called her Elizabeth. They parted and went their ways, each thinking of the shooting trip, which, both of them felt, would in some way put things right between them.

12

In the sticky, sleepy heat of the living-room, almost dark because of the beaded curtain, U Po Kyin was marching slowly up and down, boasting. From time to time he would put a hand under his singlet and scratch his sweating breasts, huge as a woman's with fat. Ma Kin was sitting on her mat, smoking slender white cigars. Through the open door of the bedroom one could see the corner of U Po Kyin's huge square bed, with carved teak posts, like a catafalque, on which he had committed many and many a rape.

Ma Kin was now hearing for the first time of the 'other affair' which underlay U Po Kyin's attack on Dr Veraswami. Much as he despised her intelligence, U Po Kyin usually let Ma Kin into his secrets sooner or later. She was the only person in his immediate circle who was not afraid of him, and there was therefore a pleasure in impressing her.

'Well, Kin Kin,' he said, 'you see how it has all gone according to plan! Eighteen anonymous letters already, and every one of them a masterpiece. I would repeat some of them to you if I thought you were capable of appreciating them.'

'But supposing the Europeans take no notice of your anonymous letters? What then?'

'Take no notice? Aha, no fear of that! I think I know something about the European mentality. Let me tell you, Kin Kin, that if there is one thing I CAN do, it is to write an anonymous letter.'

This was true. U Po Kyin's letters had already taken effect, and especially on their chief target, Mr Macgregor.

Only two days earlier than this, Mr Macgregor had spent a very troubled evening in trying to make up his mind whether Dr Veraswami was or was not guilty of disloyalty to the Government. Of course, it was not a question of any overt act of disloyalty--that was quite irrelevant. The point was, was the doctor the KIND of man who would hold seditious opinions? In India you are not judged for what you do, but for what you ARE. The merest breath of suspicion against his loyalty can ruin an Oriental official. Mr Macgregor had too just a nature to condemn even an Oriental out of hand. He had puzzled as late as midnight over a whole pile of confidential papers, including the five anonymous letters he had received, besides two others that had been forwarded to him by Westfield, pinned together with a cactus thorn.

It was not only the letters. Rumours about the doctor had been pouring in from every side. U Po Kyin fully grasped that to call the doctor a traitor was not enough in itself; it was necessary to attack his reputation from every possible angle. The doctor was charged not only with sedition, but also with extortion, rape, torture, performing illegal operations, performing operations while blind drunk, murder by poison, murder by sympathetic magic, eating beef, selling death certificates to murderers, wearing his shoes in the precincts of the pagoda and making homosexual attempts on the Military Police drummer boy. To hear what was said of him, anyone would have imagined the doctor a compound of Machiavelli, Sweeny Todd and the Marquis de Sade. Mr Macgregor had not paid much attention at first. He was too accustomed to this kind of thing. But with the last of the anonymous letters U Po Kyin had brought off a stroke that was brilliant even for him.

It concerned the escape of Nga Shwe O, the dacoit, from Kyauktada jail. Nga Shwe O, who was in the middle of a well-earned seven years, had been preparing his escape for several months past, and as a start his friends outside had bribed one of the Indian warders. The warder received his hundred rupees in advance, applied for leave to visit the death-bed of a relative and spent several busy days in the Mandalay brothels. Time passed, and the day of the escape was postponed several times--the warder, meanwhile, growing more and more homesick for the brothels. Finally he decided to earn a further reward by betraying the plot to U Po Kyin. But U Po Kyin, as usual, saw his chance. He told the warder on dire penalties to hold his tongue, and then, on the very night of the escape, when it was too late to do anything, sent another anonymous letter to Mr Macgregor, warning him that an escape was being attempted. The letter added, needless to say, that Dr Veraswami, the superintendent of the jail, had been bribed for his connivance.

In the morning there was a hullabaloo and a rushing to and fro of warders and, policemen at the jail, for Nga Shwe O had escaped. (He was a long way down the river, in a sampan provided by U Po Kyin.) This time Mr Macgregor was taken aback. Whoever had written the letter must have been privy to the plot, and was probably telling the truth about the doctor's connivance. It was a very serious matter. A jail superintendent who will take bribes to let a prisoner escape is capable of anything. And therefore--perhaps the logical sequence was not quite clear, but it was clear enough to Mr Macgregor--therefore the charge of sedition, which was the main charge against the doctor, became much more credible.

U Po Kyin had attacked the other Europeans at the same time. Flory, who was the doctor's friend and his chief source of prestige, had been scared easily enough into deserting him. With Westfield it was a little harder. Westfield, as a policeman, knew a great deal about U Po Kyin and might conceivably upset his plans. Policemen and magistrates are natural enemies. But U Po Kyin had known how to turn even this fact to advantage. He had accused the doctor, anonymously of course, of being in league with the notorious scoundrel and bribe-taker U Po Kyin. That settled Westfield. As for Ellis, no anonymous letters were needed in his case; nothing could possibly make him think worse of the doctor than he did already.

U Po Kyin had even sent one of his anonymous letters to Mrs Lackersteen, for he knew the power of European women. Dr Veraswami, the letter said, was inciting the natives to abduct and rape the European women--no details were given, nor were they needed. U Po Kyin had touched Mrs Lackersteen's weak spot. To her mind the words 'sedition', 'Nationalism,', 'rebellion', 'Home Rule', conveyed one thing and one only, and that was a picture of herself being raped by a procession of jet-black coolies with rolling white eyeballs. It was a thought that kept her awake at night sometimes. Whatever good regard the Europeans might once have had for the doctor was crumbling rapidly.

'So you see,' said U Po Kyin with a pleased air, 'you see how I have undermined him. He is like a tree sawn through at the base. One tap and down he comes. In three weeks or less I shall deliver that tap.'

'How?'

'I am just coming to that. I think it is time for you to hear about it. You have no sense in these matters, but you know how to hold your tongue. You have heard talk of this rebellion that is brewing near Thongwa village?'

'Yes. They are very foolish, those villagers. What can they do with their dahs and spears against the Indian soldiers? They will be shot down like wild animals.'

'Of course. If there is any fighting it will be a massacre. But they are only a pack of superstitious peasants. They have put their faith in these absurd bullet-proof jackets that are being distributed to them. I despise such ignorance.'

'Poor men! Why do you not stop them, Ko Po Kyin? There is no need to arrest anybody. You have only to go to the village and tell them that you know their plans, and they will never dare to go on.'

'Ah well, I could stop them if I chose, of course. But then I do not choose. I have my reasons. You see, Kin Kin--you will please keep silent about this--this is, so to speak, my own rebellion. I arranged it myself.'

'What!'

Ma Kin dropped her cigar. Her eyes had opened so wide that the pale blue white showed all round the pupil. She was horrified. She burst out:

'Ko Po Kyin, what are you saying? You do not mean it! You, raising a rebellion--it cannot be true!'

'Certainly it is true. And a very good job we are making of it. That magician whom I brought from Rangoon is a clever fellow. He has toured all over India as a circus conjurer. The bullet-proof jackets were bought at Whiteaway & Laidlaw's stores, one rupee eight annas each. They are costing me a pretty penny, I can tell you.'

'But, Ko Po Kyin! A rebellion! The terrible fighting and shooting, and all the poor men who will be killed! Surely you have not gone mad? Are you not afraid of being shot yourself?'

U Po Kyin halted in his stride. He was astonished. 'Good gracious, woman, what idea have you got hold of now? You do not suppose that _I_ am rebelling against the Government? I--a Government servant of thirty years' standing! Good heavens, no! I said that I had STARTED the rebellion, not that I was taking part in it. It is these fools of villagers who are going to risk their skins, not I. No one dreams that I have anything to do with it, or ever will, except Ba Sein and one or two others.'

'But you said it was you who were persuading them to rebel?'

'Of course. I have accused Veraswami of raising a rebellion against the Government. Well, I must have a rebellion to show, must I not?'

'Ah, I see. And when the rebellion breaks out, you are going to say that Dr Veraswami is to blame for it. Is that it?'

'How slow you are! I should have thought even a fool would have seen that I am raising the rebellion merely in order to crush it. I am--what is that expression Mr Macgregor uses? Agent provocateur--Latin, you would not understand. I am agent provocateur. First I persuade these fools at Thongwa to rebel, and then I arrest them as rebels. At the very moment when it is due to start, I shall pounce on the ringleaders and clap every one of them in jail. After that, I dare say there may possibly be some fighting. A few men may be killed and a few more sent to the Andamans. But, meanwhile, I shall be first in the field. U Po Kyin, the man who quelled a most dangerous rising in the nick of time! I shall be the hero of the district.'

U Po Kyin, justly proud of his plan, began to pace up and down the room again with his hands behind his back, smiling. Ma Kin considered the plan in silence for some time. Finally she said:

'I still do not see why you are doing this, Ko Po Kyin. Where is it all leading? And what has it got to do with Dr Veraswami?'

'I shall never teach you wisdom, Kin Kin! Did I not tell you at the beginning that Veraswami stands in my way? This rebellion is the very thing to get rid of him. Of course we shall never prove that he is responsible for it; but what does that matter? All the Europeans will take it for granted that he is mixed up in it somehow. That is how their minds work. He will be ruined for life. And his fall is my rise. The blacker I can paint him, the more glorious my own conduct will appear. Now do you understand?'

'Yes, I do understand. And I think it is a base, evil plan. I wonder you are not ashamed to tell it me.'

'Now, Kin Kin! Surely you are not going to start that nonsense over again?'

'Ko Po Kyin, why is it that you are only happy when you are being wicked? Why is it that everything you do must bring evil to others? Think of that poor doctor who will be dismissed from his post, and those villagers who will be shot or flogged with bamboos or imprisoned for life. Is it necessary to do such things? What can you want with more money when you are rich already?'

'Money! Who is talking about money? Some day, woman, you will realize that there are other things in the world besides money. Fame, for example. Greatness. Do you realize that the Governor of Burma will very probably pin an Order on my breast for my loyal action in this affair? Would not even you be proud of such an honour as that?'

Ma Kin shook her head, unimpressed. 'When will you remember, Ko Po Kyin, that you are not going to live a thousand years? Consider what happens to those who have lived wickedly. There is such a thing, for instance, as being turned into a rat or a frog. There is even hell. I remember what a priest said to me once about hell, something that he had translated from the Pali scriptures, and it was very terrible. He said, "Once in a thousand centuries two red-hot spears will meet in your heart, and you will say to yourself, 'Another thousand centuries of my torment are ended, and there is as much to come as there has been before.'" Is it not very dreadful to think of such things, Ko Po Kyin?'

U Po Kyin laughed and gave a careless wave of his hand that meant 'pagodas'.

'Well, I hope you may still laugh when it comes to the end. But for myself, I should not care to look back upon such a life.'

She relighted her cigar with her thin shoulder turned disapprovingly on U Po Kyin while he took several more turns up and down the room. When he spoke, it was more seriously than before, and even with a touch of diffidence.

'You know, Kin Kin, there is another matter behind all this. Something that I have not told to you or to anyone else. Even Ba Sein does not know. But I believe I will tell it you now.'

'I do not want to hear it, if it is more wickedness.'

'No, no. You were asking just now what is my real object in this affair. You think, I suppose, that I am ruining Veraswami merely because I dislike him and his ideas about bribes as a nuisance. It is not only that. There is something else that is far more important, and it concerns you as well as me.'

'What is it?'

'Have you never felt in you, Kin Kin, a desire for higher things? Has it never struck you that after all our successes--all my successes, I should say--we are almost in the same position as when we started? I am worth, I dare say, two lakhs of rupees, and yet look at the style in which we live! Look at this room! Positively it is no better than that of a peasant. I am tired of eating with my fingers and associating only with Burmans--poor, inferior people--and living, as you might say, like a miserable Township Officer. Money is not enough; I should like to feel that I have risen in the world as well. Do you not wish sometimes for a way of life that is a little more--how shall I say--elevated?'

'I do not know how we could want more than what we have already. When I was a girl in my village I never thought that I should live in such a house as this. Look at those English chairs--I have never sat in one of them in my life. But I am very proud to look at them and think that I own them.'

'Ch! Why did you ever leave that village of yours, Kin Kin? You are only fit to stand gossiping by the well with a stone water-pot on your head. But I am more ambitious, God be praised. And now I will tell you the real reason why I am intriguing against Veraswami. It is in my mind to do something that is really magnificent. Something noble, glorious! Something that is the very highest honour an Oriental can attain to. You know what I mean, of course?'

'No. What do you mean?'

'Come, now! The greatest achievement of my life! Surely you can guess?'

'Ah, I know! You are going to buy a motor-car. But oh, Ko Po Kyin, please do not expect me to ride in it!'

U Po Kyin threw up his hands in disgust. 'A motor-car! You have the mind of a bazaar peanut-seller! I could buy twenty motor-cars if I wanted them. And what use would a motor-car be in this place? No, it is something far grander than that.'

'What, then?'

'It is this. I happen to know that in a month's time the Europeans are going to elect one native member to their Club. They do not want to do it, but they will have orders from the Commissioner, and they will obey. Naturally, they would elect Veraswami, who is the highest native official in the district. But I have disgraced Veraswami. And so--'

'What?'

U Po Kyin did not answer for a moment. He looked at Ma Kin, and his vast yellow face, with its broad jaw and numberless teeth, was so softened that it was almost child-like. There might even have been tears in his tawny eyes. He said in a small, almost awed voice, as though the greatness of what he was saying overcame him:

'Do you not see, woman? Do you not see that if Veraswami is disgraced I shall be elected to the Club myself?'

The effect of it was crushing. There was not another word of argument on Ma Kin's part. The magnificence of U Po Kyin's project had struck her dumb.

And not without reason, for all the achievements of U Po Kyin's life were as nothing beside this. It is a real triumph--it would be doubly so in Kyauktada--for an official of the lower ranks to worm his way into the European Club. The European Club, that remote, mysterious temple, that holy of holies far harder of entry than Nirvana! Po Kyin, the naked gutter-boy of Mandalay, the thieving clerk and obscure official, would enter that sacred place, call Europeans 'old chap', drink whisky and soda and knock white balls to and fro on the green table! Ma Kin, the village woman, who had first seen the light through the chinks of a bamboo hut thatched with palm-leaves, would sit on a high chair with her feet imprisoned in silk stockings and high-heeled shoes (yes, she would actually wear shoes in that place!) talking to English ladies in Hindustani about baby-linen! It was a prospect that would have dazzled anybody.

For a long time Ma Kin remained silent, her lips parted, thinking of the European Club and the splendours that it might contain. For the first time in her life she surveyed U Po Kyin's intrigues without disapproval. Perhaps it was a feat greater even than the storming of the Club to have planted a grain of ambition in Ma Kin's gentle heart.

As Flory came through the gate of the hospital compound four ragged sweepers passed him, carrying some dead coolie, wrapped in sackcloth, to a foot-deep grave in the jungle. Flory crossed the brick-like earth of the yard between the hospital sheds. All down the wide verandas, on sheetless charpoys, rows of grey-faced men lay silent and moveless. Some filthy-looking curs, which were said to devour amputated limbs, dozed or snapped at their fleas among the piles of the buildings. The whole place wore a sluttish and decaying air. Dr Veraswami struggled hard to keep it clean, but there was no coping with the dust and the bad water-supply, and the inertia of sweepers and half-trained Assistant Surgeons.

Flory was told that the doctor was in the out-patients' department. It was a plaster-walled room furnished only with a table and two chairs, and a dusty portrait of Queen Victoria, much awry. A procession of Burmans, peasants with gnarled muscles beneath their faded rags, were filing into the room and queueing up at the table. The doctor was in shirt-sleeves and sweating profusely. He sprang to his feet with an exclamation of pleasure, and in his usual fussy haste thrust Flory into the vacant chair and produced a tin of cigarettes from the drawer of the table.

'What a delightful visit, Mr Flory! Please to make yourself comfortable--that iss, if one can possibly be comfortable in such a place ass this, ha, ha! Afterwards, at my house, we will talk with beer and amenities. Kindly excuse me while I attend to the populace.'

Flory sat down, and the hot sweat immediately burst out and drenched his shirt. The heat of the room was stifling. The peasants steamed garlic from all their pores. As each man came to the table the doctor would bounce from his chair, prod the patient in the back, lay a black ear to his chest, fire off several questions in villainous Burmese, then bounce back to the table and scribble a prescription. The patients took the prescriptions across the yard to the Compounder, who gave them bottles filled with water and various vegetable dyes. The Compounder supported himself largely by the sale of drugs, for the Government paid him only twenty-five rupees a month. However, the doctor knew nothing of this.

On most mornings the doctor had not time to attend to the out-patients himself, and left them to one of the Assistant Surgeons. The Assistant Surgeon's methods of diagnosis were brief. He would simply ask each patient, 'Where is your pain? Head, back or belly?' and at the reply hand out a prescription from one of three piles that he had prepared beforehand. The patients much preferred this method to the doctor's. The doctor had a way of asking them whether they had suffered from venereal diseases--an ungentlemanly, pointless question--and sometimes he horrified them still more by suggesting operations. 'Belly-cutting' was their phrase for it. The majority of them would have died a dozen times over rather than submit to 'belly-cutting'.

As the last patient disappeared the doctor sank into his chair, fanning his face with the prescription-pad.

'Ach, this heat! Some mornings I think that never will I get the smell of garlic out of my nose! It iss amazing to me how their very blood becomes impregnated with it. Are you not suffocated, Mr Flory? You English have the sense of smell almost too highly developed. What torments you must all suffer in our filthy East!'

'Abandon your noses, all ye who enter here, what? They might write that up over the Suez Canal. You seem busy this morning?'

'Ass ever. Ah but, my friend, how discouraging iss the work of a doctor in this country! These villagers--dirty, ignorant savages! Even to get them to come to hospital iss all we can do, and they will die of gangrene or carry a tumour ass large ass a melon for ten years rather than face the knife. And such medicines ass their own so-called doctors give to them! Herbs gathered under the new moon, tigers' whiskers, rhinoceros horn, urine, menstrual blood! How men can drink such compounds iss disgusting.'

'Rather picturesque, all the same. You ought to compile a Burmese pharmacopoeia, doctor. It would be almost as good as Culpeper.'

'Barbarous cattle, barbarous cattle,' said the doctor, beginning to struggle into his white coat. 'Shall we go back to my house? There iss beer and I trust a few fragments of ice left. I have an operation at ten, strangulated hernia, very urgent. Till then I am free.'

'Yes. As a matter of fact there's something I rather wanted to talk to you about.'

They recrossed the yard and climbed the steps of the doctor's veranda. The doctor, having felt in the ice-chest and found that the ice was all melted to tepid water, opened a bottle of beer and called fussily to the servants to set some more bottles swinging in a cradle of wet straw. Flory was standing looking over the veranda rail, with his hat still on. The fact was that he had come here to utter an apology. He had been avoiding the doctor for nearly a fortnight--since the day, in fact, when he had set his name to the insulting notice at the Club. But the apology had got to be uttered. U Po Kyin was a very good judge of men, but he had erred in supposing that two anonymous letters were enough to scare Flory permanently away from his friend.

'Look here, doctor, you know what I wanted to say?'

'I? No.'

'Yes, you do. It's about that beastly trick I played on you the other week. When Ellis put that notice on the Club board and I signed my name to it. You must have heard about it. I want to try and explain--'

'No, no, my friend, no, no!' The doctor was so distressed that he sprang across the veranda and seized Flory by the arm. 'You shall NOT explain! Please never mention it! I understand perfectly--but most perfectly.'

'No, you don't understand. You couldn't. You don't realize just what KIND of pressure is put on one to make one do things like that. There was nothing to make me sign the notice. Nothing could have happened if I'd refused. There's no law telling us to be beastly to Orientals--quite the contrary. But--it's just that one daren't be loyal to an Oriental when it means going against the others. It doesn't DO. If I'd stuck out against signing the notice I'd have been in disgrace at the Club for a week or two. So I funked it, as usual.'

'Please, Mr Flory, please! Possitively you will make me uncomfortable if you continue. Ass though I could not make all allowances for your position!'

'Our motto, you know is, "In India, do as the English do".'

'Of course, of course. And a most noble motto. "Hanging together", ass you call it. It iss the secret of your superiority to we Orientals.'

'Well, it's never much use saying one's sorry. But what I did come here to say was that it shan't happen again. In fact--'

'Now, now, Mr Flory, you will oblige me by saying no more upon this subject. It iss all over and forgotten. Please to drink up your beer before it becomes ass hot ass tea. Also, I have a thing to tell you. You have not asked for my news yet.'

'Ah, your news. What is your news, by the way? How's everything been going all this time? How's Ma Britannia? Still moribund?'

'Aha, very low, very low! But not so low ass I. I am in deep waters, my friend.'

'What? U Po Kyin again? Is he still libelling you?'

'If he iss libelling me! This time it iss--well, it iss something diabolical. My friend, you have heard of this rebellion that is supposed to be on the point of breaking out in the district?'

'I've heard a lot of talk. Westfield's been out bent on slaughter, but I hear he can't find any rebels. Only the usual village Hampdens who won't pay their taxes.'

'Ah yes. Wretched fools! Do you know how much iss the tax that most of them have refused to pay? Five rupees! They will get tired of it and pay up presently. We have this trouble every year. But ass for the rebellion--the SO-CALLED rebellion, Mr Flory--I wish you to know that there iss more in it than meets the eye.'

'Oh? What?'

To Flory's surprise the doctor made such a violent gesture of anger that he spilled most of his beer. He put his glass down on the veranda rail and burst out:

'It iss U Po Kyin again! That unutterable scoundrel! That crocodile deprived of natural feeling! That--that--'

'Go on. "That obscene trunk of humors, that swol'n parcel of dropsies, that bolting-hutch of beastliness"--go on. What's he been up to now?'

'A villainy unparalleled'--and here the doctor outlined the plot for a sham rebellion, very much as U Po Kyin had explained it to Ma Kin. The only detail not known to him was U Po Kyin's intention of getting himself elected to the European Club. The doctor's face could not accurately be said to flush, but it grew several shades blacker in his anger. Flory was so astonished that he remained standing up.

'The cunning old devil! Who'd have thought he had it in him? But how did you manage to find all this out?'

'Ah, I have a few friends left. But now do you see, my friend, what ruin he iss preparing for me? Already he hass calumniated me right and left. When this absurd rebellion breaks out, he will do everything in his power to connect my name with it. And I tell you that the slightest suspicion of my loyalty could be ruin for me, ruin! If it were ever breathed that I were even a sympathizer with this rebellion, there iss an end of me.'

'But, damn it, this is ridiculous! Surely you can defend yourself somehow?'

'How can I defend myself when I can prove nothing? I know that all this iss true, but what use iss that? If I demand a public inquiry, for every witness I produce U Po Kyin would produce fifty. You do not realize the influence of that man in the district. No one dare speak against him.'

'But why need you prove anything? Why not go to old Macgregor and tell him about it? He's a very fair-minded old chap in his way. He'd hear you out.'

'Useless, useless. You have not the mind of an intriguer, Mr Flory. Qui s'excuse, s'accuse, iss it not? It does not pay to cry that there iss a conspiracy against one.'

'Well, what are you going to do, then?'

'There iss nothing I can do. Simply I must wait and hope that my prestige will carry me through. In affairs like this, where a native official's reputation iss at stake, there iss no question of proof, of evidence. All depends upon one's standing with the Europeans. If my standing iss good, they will not believe it of me; if bad, they will believe it. Prestige iss all.'

They were silent for a moment. Flory understood well enough that 'prestige iss all'. He was used to these nebulous conflicts, in which suspicion counts for more than proof, and reputation for more than a thousand witnesses. A thought came into his head, an uncomfortable, chilling thought which would never have occurred to him three weeks earlier. It was one of those moments when one sees quite clearly what is one's duty, and, with all the will in the world to shirk it, feels certain that one must carry it out. He said:

'Suppose, for instance, you were elected to the Club? Would that do your prestige any good?'

'If I were elected to the Club! Ah, indeed, yes! The Club! It iss a fortress impregnable. Once there, and no one would listen to these tales about me any more than if it were about you, or Mr Macgregor, or any other European gentleman. But what hope have I that they will elect me after their minds have been poisoned against me?'

'Well now, look here, doctor, I tell you what. I'll propose your name at the next general meeting. I know the question's got to come up then, and if someone comes forward with the name of a candidate, I dare say no one except Ellis will blackball him. And in the meantime--'

'Ah, my friend, my dear friend!' The doctor's emotion caused him almost to choke. He seized Flory by the hand. 'Ah, my friend, that iss noble! Truly it iss noble! But it iss too much. I fear that you will be in trouble with your European friends again. Mr Ellis, for example--would he tolerate it that you propose my name?'

'Oh, bother Ellis. But you must understand that I can't promise to get you elected. It depends on what Macgregor says and what mood the others are in. It may all come to nothing.'

The doctor was still holding Flory's hand between his own, which were plump and damp. The tears had actually started into his eyes, and these, magnified by his spectacles, beamed upon Flory like the liquid eyes of a dog.

'Ah, my friend! If I should but be elected! What an end to all my troubles! But, my friend, ass I said before, do not be too rash in this matter. Beware of U Po Kyin! By now he will have numbered you among hiss enemies. And even for you hiss enmity can be a danger.'

'Oh, good Lord, he can't touch me. He's done nothing so far--only a few silly anonymous letters.'

'I would not be too sure. He hass subtle ways to strike. And for sure he will raise heaven and earth to keep me from being elected to the Club. If you have a weak spot, guard it, my friend. He will find it out. He strikes always at the weakest spot.'

'Like the crocodile,' Flory suggested.

'Like the crocodile,' agreed the doctor gravely. 'Ah but, my friend, how gratifying to me if I should become a member of your European Club! What an honour, to be the associate of European gentlemen! But there iss one other matter, Mr Flory, that I did not care to mention before. It iss--I hope this iss clearly understood--that I have no intention of USING the Club in any way. Membership is all I desire. Even if I were elected, I should not, of course, ever presume to COME to the Club.'

'Not come to the Club?'

'No, no! Heaven forbid that I should force my society upon the European gentlemen! Simply I should pay my subscriptions. That, for me, iss a privilege high enough. You understand that, I trust?'

'Perfectly, doctor, perfectly.'

Flory could not help laughing as he walked up the hill. He was definitely committed now to proposing the doctor's election. And there would be such a row when the others heard of it--oh, such a devil of a row! But the astonishing thing was that it only made him laugh. The prospect that would have appalled him a month back now almost exhilarated him.

Why? And why had he given his promise at all? It was a small thing, a small risk to take--nothing heroic about it--and yet it was unlike him. Why, after all these years--the circumspect, pukka sahib-like years--break all the rules so suddenly?

He knew why. It was because Elizabeth, by coming into his life, had so changed it and renewed it that all the dirty, miserable years might never have passed. Her presence had changed the whole orbit of his mind. She had brought back to him the air of England--dear England, where thought is free and one is not condemned forever to dance the danse du pukka sahib for the edification of the lower races. Where is the life that late I led? he thought. Just by existing she had made it possible for him, she had even made it natural to him, to act decently.

Where is the life that late I led? he thought again as he came through the garden gate. He was happy, happy. For he had perceived that the pious ones are right when they say that there is salvation and life can begin anew. He came up the path, and it seemed to him that his house, his flowers, his servants, all the life that so short a time ago had been drenched in ennui and homesickness, were somehow made new, significant, beautiful inexhaustibly. What fun it could all be, if only you had someone to share it with you! How you could love this country, if only you were not alone! Nero was out on the path, braving the sun for some grains of paddy that the mali had dropped, taking food to his goats. Flo made a dash at him, panting, and Nero sprang into the air with a flurry and lighted on Flory's shoulder. Flory walked into the house with the little red cock in his arms, stroking his silky ruff and the smooth, diamond-shaped feathers of his back.

He had not set foot on the veranda before he knew that Ma Hla May was in the house. It did not need Ko S'la to come hurrying from within with a face of evil tidings. Flory had smelled her scent of sandalwood, garlic, coco-nut oil and the jasmine in her hair. He dropped Nero over the veranda rail.

'THE WOMAN has come back,' said Ko S'la.

Flory had turned very pale. When he turned pale the birthmark made him hideously ugly. A pang like a blade of ice had gone through his entrails. Ma Hla May had appeared in the doorway of the bedroom. She stood with her face downcast, looking at him from beneath lowered brows.

'Thakin,' she said in a low voice, half sullen, half urgent.

'Go away!' said Flory angrily to Ko S'la, venting his fear and anger upon him.

'Thakin,' she said, 'come into the bedroom here. I have a thing to say to you.'

He followed her into the bedroom. In a week--it was only a week--her appearance had degenerated extraordinarily. Her hair looked greasy. All her lockets were gone, and she was wearing a Manchester longyi of flowered cotton, costing two rupees eight annas. She had coated her face so thick with powder that it was like a clown's mask, and at the roots of her hair, where the powder ended, there was a ribbon of natural-coloured brown skin. She looked a drab. Flory would not face her, but stood looking sullenly through the open doorway to the veranda.

'What do you mean by coming back like this? Why did you not go home to your village?'

'I am staying in Kyauktada, at my cousin's house. How can I go back to my village after what has happened?'

'And what do you mean by sending men to demand money from me? How can you want more money already, when I gave you a hundred rupees only a week ago?'

'How can I go back?' she repeated, ignoring what he had said. Her voice rose so sharply that he turned round. She was standing very upright, sullen, with her black brows drawn together and her lips pouted.

'Why cannot you go back?'

'After that! After what you have done to me!'

Suddenly she burst into a furious tirade. Her voice had risen to the hysterical graceless scream of the bazaar women when they quarrel.

'How can I go back, to be jeered at and pointed at by those low, stupid peasants whom I despise? I who have been a bo-kadaw, a white man's wife, to go home to my father's house, and shake the paddy basket with old hags and women who are too ugly to find husbands! Ah, what shame, what shame! Two years I was your wife, you loved me and cared for me, and then without warning, without reason, you drove me from your door like a dog. And I must go back to my village, with no money, with all my jewels and silk longyis gone, and the people will point and say, "There is Ma Hla May who thought herself cleverer than the rest of us. And behold! her white man has treated her as they always do." I am ruined, ruined! What man will marry me after I have lived two years in your house? You have taken my youth from me. Ah, what shame, what shame!'

He could not look at her; he stood helpless, pale, hang-dog. Every word she said was justified, and how tell her that he could do no other than he had done? How tell her that it would have been an outrage, a sin, to continue as her lover? He almost cringed from her, and the birthmark stood on his yellow face like a splash of ink. He said flatly, turning instinctively to money--for money had never failed with Ma Hla May:

'I will give you money. You shall have the fifty rupees you asked me for--more later. I have no more till next month.'

This was true. The hundred rupees he had given her, and what he had spent on clothes, had taken most of his ready money. To his dismay she burst into a loud wail. Her white mask puckered up and the tears sprang quickly out and coursed down her cheeks. Before he could stop her she had fallen on her knees in front of him, and she was bowing, touching the floor with her forehead in the 'full' shiko of utter abasement.

'Get up, get up!' he exclaimed. The shameful, abject shiko, neck bent, body doubled up as though inviting a blow, always horrified him. 'I can't bear that. Get up this instant.'

She wailed again, and made an attempt to clasp his ankles. He stepped backwards hurriedly.

'Get up, now, and stop that dreadful noise. I don't know what you are crying about.'

She did not get up, but only rose to her knees and wailed at him anew. 'Why do you offer me money? Do you think it is only for money that I have come back? Do you think that when you have driven me from your door like a dog it is only because of money that I care?'

'Get up,' he repeated. He had moved several paces away, lest she should seize him. 'What do you want if it is not money?'

'Why do you hate me?' she wailed. 'What harm have I done you? I stole your cigarette-case, but you were not angry at that. You are going to marry this white woman, I know it, everyone knows it. But what does it matter, why must you turn me away? Why do you hate me?'

'I don't hate you. I can't explain. Get up, please get up.'

She was weeping quite shamelessly now. After all, she was hardly more than a child. She looked at him through her tears, anxiously, studying him for a sign of mercy. Then, a dreadful thing, she stretched herself at full length, flat on her face.

'Get up, get up!' he cried out in English. 'I can't bear that-- it's too abominable!'

She did not get up, but crept, wormlike, right across the floor to his feet. Her body made a broad ribbon on the dusty floor. She lay prostrate in front of him, face hidden, arms extended, as though before a god's altar.

'Master, master,' she whimpered, 'will you not forgive me? This once, only this once! Take Ma Hla May back. I will be your slave, lower than your slave. Anything sooner than turn me away.'

She had wound her arms round his ankles, actually was kissing his toes. He stood looking down at her with his hands in his pockets, helpless. Flo came ambling into the room, walked to where Ma Hla May lay and sniffed at her longyi. She wagged her tail vaguely, recognizing the smell. Flory could not endure it. He bent down and took Ma Hla May by the shoulders, lifting her to her knees.

'Stand up, now,' he said. 'It hurts me to see you like this. I will do what I can for you. What is the use of crying?'

Instantly she cried out in renewed hope: 'Then you will take me back? Oh, master, take Ma Hla May back! No one need ever know. I will stay here when that white woman comes, she will think I am one of the servants' wives. Will you not take me back?'

'I cannot. It's impossible,' he said, turning away again.

She heard finality in his tone, and uttered a harsh, ugly cry. She bent forward again in a shiko, beating her forehead against the floor. It was dreadful. And what was more dreadful than all, what hurt in his breast, was the utter gracelessness, the lowness of the emotion beneath those entreaties. For in all this there was not a spark of love for him. If she wept and grovelled it was only for the position she had once had as his mistress, the idle life, the rich clothes and dominion over servants. There was something pitiful beyond words in that. Had she loved him he could have driven her from his door with far less compunction. No sorrows are so bitter as those that are without a trace of nobility. He bent down and picked her up in his arms.

'Listen, Ma Hla May,' he said; 'I do not hate you, you have done me no evil. It is I who have wronged you. But there is no help for it now. You must go home, and later I will send you money. If you like you shall start a shop in the bazaar. You are young. This will not matter to you when you have money and can find yourself a husband.'

'I am ruined!' she wailed again. 'I shall kill myself. I shall jump off the jetty into the river. How can I live after this disgrace?'

He was holding her in his arms, almost caressing her. She was clinging close to him, her face hidden against his shirt, her body shaking with sobs. The scent of sandalwood floated into his nostrils. Perhaps even now she thought that with her arms around him and her body against his she could renew her power over him. He disentangled himself gently, and then, seeing that she did not fall on her knees again, stood apart from her.

'That is enough. You must go now. And look, I will give you the fifty rupees I promised you.'

He dragged his tin uniform case from under the bed and took out five ten-rupee notes. She stowed them silently in the bosom of her ingyi. Her tears had ceased flowing quite suddenly. Without speaking she went into the bathroom for a moment, and came out with her face washed to its natural brown, and her hair and dress rearranged. She looked sullen, but not hysterical any longer.

'For the last time, thakin: you will not take me back? That is your last word?'

'Yes. I cannot help it.'

'Then I am going, thakin.'

'Very well. God go with you.'

Leaning against the wooden pillar of the veranda, he watched her walk down the path in the strong sunlight. She walked very upright, with bitter offence in the carriage of her back and head. It was true what she had said, he had robbed her of her youth. His knees were trembling uncontrollably. Ko S'la came behind him, silent-footed. He gave a little deprecating cough to attract Flory's attention.

'What's the matter now?'

'The holy one's breakfast is getting cold.'

'I don't want any breakfast. Get me something to drink--gin.'

Where is the life that late I led?

14

Like long curved needles threading through embroidery, the two canoes that carried Flory and Elizabeth threaded their way up the creek that led inland from the eastern bank of the Irrawaddy. It was the day of the shooting trip--a short afternoon trip, for they could not stay a night in the jungle together. They were to shoot for a couple of hours in the comparative cool of the evening, and be back at Kyauktada in time for dinner.

The canoes, each hollowed out of a single tree-trunk, glided swiftly, hardly rippling the dark brown water. Water hyacinth with profuse spongy foliage and blue flowers had choked the stream so that the channel was only a winding ribbon four feet wide. The light filtered, greenish, through interlacing boughs. Sometimes one could hear parrots scream overhead, but no wild creatures showed themselves, except once a snake that swam hurriedly away and disappeared among the water hyacinth.

'How long before we get to the village?' Elizabeth called back to Flory. He was in a larger canoe behind, together with Flo and Ko S'la, paddled by a wrinkly old woman dressed in rags.

'How far, grandmama?' Flory asked the canoe-woman.

The old woman took her cigar out of her mouth and rested her paddle on her knees to think. 'The distance a man can shout,' she said after reflection.

'About half a mile,' Flory translated.

They had come two miles. Elizabeth's back was aching. The canoes were liable to upset at a careless moment, and you had to sit bolt upright on the narrow backless seat, keeping your feet as well as possible out of the bilge, with dead prawns in it, that sagged to and fro at the bottom. The Burman who paddled Elizabeth was sixty years old, half naked, leaf-brown, with a body as perfect as that of a young man. His face was battered, gentle and humorous. His black cloud of hair, finer than that of most Burmans, was knotted loosely over one ear, with a wisp or two tumbling across his cheek. Elizabeth was nursing her uncle's gun across her knees. Flory had offered to take it, but she had refused; in reality, the feel of it delighted her so much that she could not bring herself to give it up. She had never had a gun in her hand until today. She was wearing a rough skirt with brogue shoes and a silk shirt like a man's, and she knew that with her Terai hat they looked well on her. She was very happy, in spite of her aching back and the hot sweat that tickled her face, and the large, speckled mosquitoes that hummed round her ankles.

The stream narrowed and the beds of water hyacinth gave place to steep banks of glistening mud, like chocolate. Rickety thatched huts leaned far out over the stream, their piles driven into its bed. A naked boy was standing between two of the huts, flying a green beetle on a piece of thread like a kite. He yelled at the sight of the Europeans, whereat more children appeared from nowhere. The old Burman guided the canoe to a jetty made of a single palm-trunk laid in the mud--it was covered with barnacles and so gave foothold--and sprang out and helped Elizabeth ashore. The others followed with the bags and cartridges, and Flo, as she always did on these occasions, fell into the mud and sank as deep as the shoulder. A skinny old gentleman wearing a magenta paso, with a mole on his cheek from which four yard-long grey hairs sprouted, came forward shikoing and cuffing the heads of the children who had gathered round the jetty.

'The village headman,' Flory said.

The old man led the way to his house, walking ahead with an extraordinary crouching gait, like a letter L upside down--the result of rheumatism combined with the constant shikoing needed in a minor Government official. A mob of children marched rapidly after the Europeans, and more and more dogs, all yapping and causing Flo to shrink against Flory's heels. In the doorway of every hut clusters of moonlike, rustic faces gaped at the 'Ingaleikma'. The village was darkish under the shade of broad leaves. In the rains the creek would flood, turning the lower parts of the village into a squalid wooden Venice where the villagers stepped from their front doors into their canoes.

The headman's house was a little bigger than the others, and it had a corrugated iron roof, which, in spite of the intolerable din it made during the rains, was the pride of the headman's life. He had foregone the building of a pagoda, and appreciably lessened his chances of Nirvana, to pay for it. He hastened up the steps and gently kicked in the ribs a youth who was lying asleep on the veranda. Then he turned and shikoed again to the Europeans, asking them to come inside.

'Shall we go in?' Flory said. 'I expect we shall have to wait half an hour.'

'Couldn't you tell him to bring some chairs out on the veranda?' Elizabeth said. After her experience in Li Yeik's house she had privately decided that she would never go inside a native house again, if she could help it.

There was a fuss inside the house, and the headman, the youth and some women dragged forth two chairs decorated in an extraordinary manner with red hibiscus flowers, and also some begonias growing in kerosene tins. It was evident that a sort of double throne had been prepared within for the Europeans. When Elizabeth had sat down the headman reappeared with a teapot, a bunch of very long, bright green bananas, and six coal-black cheroots. But when he had poured her out a cup of tea Elizabeth shook her head, for the tea looked, if possible, worse even than Li Yeik's.

The headman looked abashed and rubbed his nose. He turned to Flory and asked him whether the young thakin-ma would like some milk in her tea. He had heard that Europeans drank milk in their tea. The villages should, if it were desired, catch a cow and milk it. However, Elizabeth still refused the tea; but she was thirsty, and she asked Flory to send for one of the bottles of soda-water that Ko S'la had brought in his bag. Seeing this, the headman retired, feeling guiltily that his preparations had been insufficient, and left the veranda to the Europeans.

Elizabeth was still nursing her gun on her knees, while Flory leaned against the veranda rail pretending to smoke one of the headman's cheroots. Elizabeth was pining for the shooting to begin. She plied Flory with innumerable questions.

'How soon can we start out? Do you think we've got enough cartridges? How many beaters shall we take? Oh, I do so hope we have some luck! You do think we'll get something, don't you?'

'Nothing wonderful, probably. We're bound to get a few pigeons, and perhaps jungle fowl. They're out of season, but it doesn't matter shooting the cocks. They say there's a leopard round here, that killed a bullock almost in the village last week.'

'Oh, a leopard! How lovely if we could shoot it!'

'It's very unlikely, I'm afraid. The only rule with this shooting in Burma is to hope for nothing. It's invariably disappointing. The jungles teem with game, but as often as not you don't even get a chance to fire your gun.'

'Why is that?'

'The jungle is so thick. An animal may be five yards away and quite invisible, and half the time they manage to dodge back past the beaters. Even when you see them it's only for a flash of a second. And again, there's water everywhere, so that no animal is tied down to one particular spot. A tiger, for instance, will roam hundreds of miles if it suits him. And with all the game there is, they need never come back to a kill if there's anything suspicious about it. Night after night, when I was a boy, I've sat up over horrible stinking dead cows, waiting for tigers that never came.'

Elizabeth wriggled her shoulder-blades against the chair. It was a movement that she made sometimes when she was deeply pleased. She loved Flory, really loved him, when he talked like this. The most trivial scrap of information about shooting thrilled her. If only he would always talk about shooting, instead of about books and Art and that mucky poetry! In a sudden burst of admiration she decided that Flory was really quite a handsome man, in his way. He looked so splendidly manly, with his pagri-cloth shirt open at the throat, and his shorts and puttees and shooting boots! And his face, lined, sunburned, like a soldier's face. He was standing with his birthmarked cheek away from her. She pressed him to go on talking.

'DO tell me some more about tiger-shooting. It's so awfully interesting!'

He described the shooting, years ago, of a mangy old man-eater who had killed one of his coolies. The wait in the mosquito-ridden machan; the tiger's eyes approaching through the dark jungle, like great green lanterns; the panting, slobbering noise as he devoured the coolie's body, tied to a stake below. Flory told it all perfunctorily enough--did not the proverbial Anglo Indian bore always talk about tiger-shooting?--but Elizabeth wriggled her shoulders delightedly once more. He did not realize how such talk as this reassured her and made up for all the times when he had bored her and disquieted her. Six shock-headed youths came down the path, carrying dahs over their shoulders, and headed by a stringy but active old man with grey hair. They halted in front of the headman's house, and one of them uttered a hoarse whoop, whereat the headman appeared and explained that these were the beaters. They were ready to start now, if the young thakin-ma did not find it too hot.

They set out. The side of the village away from the creek was protected by a hedge of cactus six feet high and twelve thick. One went up a narrow lane of cactus, then along a rutted, dusty bullock-cart track, with bamboos as tall as flagstaffs growing densely on either side. The beaters marched rapidly ahead in single file, each with his broad dah laid along his forearm. The old hunter was marching just in front of Elizabeth. His longyi was hitched up like a loin-cloth, and his meagre thighs were tattooed with dark blue patterns, so intricate that he might have been wearing drawers of blue lace. A bamboo the thickness of a man's wrist had fallen and hung across the path. The leading beater severed it with an upward flick of his dah; the prisoned water gushed out of it with a diamond-flash. After half a mile they reached the open fields, and everyone was sweating, for they had walked fast and the sun was savage.

'That's where we're going to shoot, over there,' Flory said.

He pointed across the stubble, a wide dust-coloured plain, cut up into patches of an acre or two by mud boundaries. It was horribly flat, and lifeless save for the snowy egrets. At the far edge a jungle of great trees rose abruptly, like a dark green cliff. The beaters had gone across to a small tree like a hawthorn twenty yards away. One of them was on his knees, shikoing to the tree and gabbling, while the old hunter poured a bottle of some cloudy liquid on to the ground. The others stood looking on with serious, bored faces, like men in church.

'What ARE those men doing?' Elizabeth said.

'Only sacrificing to the local gods. Nats, they call them--a kind of dryad. They're praying to him to bring us good luck.'

The hunter came back and in a cracked voice explained that they were to beat a small patch of scrub over to the right before proceeding to the main jungle. Apparently the Nat had counselled this. The hunter directed Flory and Elizabeth where to stand, pointing with his dah. The six beaters, plunged into the scrub; they would make a detour and beat back towards the paddy-fields. There were some bushes of the wild rose thirty yards from the jungle's edge, and Flory and Elizabeth took cover behind one of these, while Ko S'la squatted down behind another bush a little distance away, holding Flo's collar and stroking her to keep her quiet. Flory always sent Ko S'la to a distance when he was shooting, for he had an irritating trick of clicking his tongue if a shot was missed. Presently there was a far-off echoing sound--a sound of tapping and strange hollow cries; the beat had started. Elizabeth at once began trembling so uncontrollably that she could not keep her gun-barrel still. A wonderful bird, a little bigger than a thrush, with grey wings and body of blazing scarlet, broke from the trees and came towards them with a dipping flight. The tapping and the cries came nearer. One of the bushes at the jungle's edge waved violently--some large animal was emerging. Elizabeth raised her gun and tried to steady it. But it was only a naked yellow beater, dah in hand. He saw that he had emerged and shouted to the others to join him.

Elizabeth lowered her gun. 'What's happened?'

'Nothing. The beat's over.'

'So there was nothing there!' she cried in bitter disappointment.

'Never mind, one never gets anything the first beat. We'll have better luck next time.'

They crossed the lumpy stubble, climbing over the mud boundaries that divided the fields, and took up their position opposite the high green wall of the jungle. Elizabeth had already learned how to load her gun. This time the beat had hardly started when Ko S'la whistled sharply.

'Look out!' Flory cried. 'Quick, here they come!'

A flight of green pigeons were dashing towards them at incredible speed, forty yards up. They were like a handful of catapulted stones whirling through the sky. Elizabeth was helpless with excitement. For a moment she could not move, then she flung her barrel into the air, somewhere in the direction of the birds, and tugged violently at the trigger. Nothing happened--she was pulling at the trigger-guard. Just as the birds passed overhead she found the triggers and pulled both of them simultaneously. There was a deafening roar and she was thrown backwards a pace with her collar-bone almost broken. She had fired thirty yards behind the birds. At the same moment she saw Flory turn and level his gun. Two of the pigeons, suddenly checked in their flight, swirled over and dropped to the ground like arrows. Ko S'la yelled, and he and Flo raced after them.

'Look out!' said Flory, 'here's an imperial pigeon. Let's have him!'

A large heavy bird, with flight much slower than the others, was flapping overhead. Elizabeth did not care to fire after her previous failure. She watched Flory thrust a cartridge into the breech and raise his gun, and the white plume of smoke leapt up from the muzzle. The bird planed heavily down, his wing broken. Flo and Ko S'la came running excitedly up, Flo with the big imperial pigeon in her mouth, and Ko S'la grinning and producing two green pigeons from his Kachin bag.

Flory took one of the little green corpses to show to Elizabeth. 'Look at it. Aren't they lovely things? The most beautiful bird in Asia.'

Elizabeth touched its smooth feathers with her finger-tip. It filled her with bitter envy, because she had not shot it. And yet it was curious, but she felt almost an adoration for Flory now that she had seen how he could shoot.

'Just look at its breast-feathers; like a jewel. It's murder to shoot them. The Burmese say that when you kill one of these birds they vomit, meaning to say, "Look, here is all I possess, and I've taken nothing of yours. Why do you kill me?" I've never seen one do it, I must admit.'

'Are they good to eat?'

'Very. Even so, I always feel it's a shame to kill them.'

'I wish I could do it like you do!' she said enviously.

'It's only a knack, you'll soon pick it up. You know how to hold your gun, and that's more than most people do when they start.'

However, at the next two beats, Elizabeth could hit nothing. She had learned not to fire both barrels at once, but she was too paralysed with excitement ever to take aim. Flory shot several more pigeons, and a small bronze-wing dove with back as green as verdigris. The jungle fowl were too cunning to show themselves, though one could hear them cluck-clucking all round, and once or twice the sharp trumpet-call of a cock. They were getting deeper into the jungle now. The light was greyish, with dazzling patches of sunlight. Whichever way one looked one's view was shut in by the multitudinous ranks of trees, and the tangled bushes and creepers that struggled round their bases like the sea round the piles of a pier. It was so dense, like a bramble bush extending mile after mile, that one's eyes were oppressed by it. Some of the creepers were huge, like serpents. Flory and Elizabeth struggled along narrow game-tracks, up slippery banks, thorns tearing at their clothes. Both their shirts were drenched with sweat. It was stifling hot, with a scent of crushed leaves. Sometimes for minutes together invisible cidadas would keep up a shrill, metallic pinging like the twanging of a steel guitar, and then, by stopping, make a silence that startled one.

As they were walking to the fifth beat they came to a great peepul tree in which, high up, one could hear imperial pigeons cooing. It was a sound like the far-off lowing of cows. One bird fluttered out and perched alone on the topmost bough, a small greyish shape.

'Try a sitting shot,' Flory said to Elizabeth. 'Get your sight on him and pull off without waiting. Don't shut your left eye.'

Elizabeth raised her gun, which had begun trembling as usual. The beaters halted in a group to watch, and some of them could not refrain from clicking their tongues; they thought it queer and rather shocking to see a woman handle a gun. With a violent effort of will Elizabeth kept her gun still for a second, and pulled the trigger. She did not hear the shot; one never does when it has gone home. The bird seemed to jump upwards from the bough, then down it came, tumbling over and over, and stuck in a fork ten yards up. One of the beaters laid down his dah and glanced appraisingly at the tree; then he walked to a great creeper, thick as a man's thigh and twisted like a stick of barley sugar, that hung far out from a bough. He ran up the creeper as easily as though it had been a ladder, walked upright along the broad bough, and brought the pigeon to the ground. He put it limp and warm into Elizabeth's hand.

She could hardly give it up, the feel of it so ravished her. She could have kissed it, hugged it to her breast. All the men, Flory and Ko S'la and the beaters, smiled at one another to see her fondling the dead bird. Reluctantly, she gave it to Ko S'la to put in the bag. She was conscious of an extraordinary desire to fling her arms round Flory's neck and kiss him; and in some way it was the killing of the pigeon that made her feel this.

After the fifth beat the hunter explained to Flory that they must cross a clearing that was used for growing pineapples, and would beat another patch of jungle beyond. They came out into sunlight, dazzling after the jungle gloom. The clearing was an oblong of an acre or two hacked out of the jungle like a patch mown in long grass, with the pineapples, prickly cactus-like plants, growing in rows, almost smothered by weeds. A low hedge of thorns divided the field in the middle. They had nearly crossed the field when there was a sharp cock-a-doodle-doo from beyond the hedge.

'Oh, listen!' said Elizabeth, stopping. 'Was that a jungle cock?'

'Yes. They come out to feed about this time.'

'Couldn't we go and shoot him?'

'We'll have a try if you like. They're cunning beggars. Look, we'll stalk up the hedge until we get opposite where he is. We'll have to go without making a sound.'

He sent Ko S'la and the beaters on, and the two of them skirted the field and crept along the hedge. They had to bend double to keep themselves out of sight. Elizabeth was in front. The hot sweat trickled down her face, tickling her upper lip, and her heart was knocking violently. She felt Flory touch her heel from behind. Both of them stood upright and looked over the hedge together.

Ten yards away a little cock the size of a bantam, was pecking vigorously at the ground. He was beautiful, with his long silky neck-feathers, bunched comb and arching, laurel-green tail. There were six hens with him, smaller brown birds, with diamond-shaped feathers like snake-scales on their backs. All this Elizabeth and Flory saw in the space of a second, then with a squawk and a whirr the birds were up and flying like bullets for the jungle. Instantly, automatically as it seemed, Elizabeth raised her gun and fired. It was one of those shots where there is no aiming, no consciousness of the gun in one's hand, when one's mind seems to fly behind the charge and drive it to the mark. She knew the bird was doomed even before she pulled the trigger. He tumbled, showered feathers thirty yards away. 'Good shot, good shot!' cried Flory. In their excitement both of them dropped their guns, broke through the thorn hedge and raced side by side to where the bird lay.

'Good shot!' Flory repeated, as excited as she. 'By Jove, I've never seen anyone kill a flying bird their first day, never! You got your gun off like lightning. It's marvellous!'

They were kneeling face to face with the dead bird between them. With a shock they discovered that their hands, his right and her left, were clasped tightly together. They had run to the place hand-in-hand without noticing it.

A sudden stillness came on them both, a sense of something momentous that must happen. Flory reached across and took her other hand. It came yieldingly, willingly. For a moment they knelt with their hands clasped together. The sun blazed upon them and the warmth breathed out of their bodies; they seemed to be floating upon clouds of heat and joy. He took her by the upper arms to draw her towards him.

Then suddenly he turned his head away and stood up, pulling Elizabeth to her feet. He let go of her arms. He had remembered his birthmark. He dared not do it. Not here, not in daylight! The snub it invited was too terrible. To cover the awkwardness of the moment he bent down and picked up the jungle cock.

'It was splendid,' he said. 'You don't need any teaching. You can shoot already. We'd better get on to the next beat.'

They had just crossed the hedge and picked up their guns when there was a series of shouts from the edge of the jungle. Two of the beaters were running towards them with enormous leaps, waving their arms wildly in the air.

'What is it?' Elizabeth said.

'I don't know. They've seen some animal or other. Something good, by the look of them.'

'Oh, hurrah! Come on!'

They broke into a run and hurried across the field, breaking through the pineapples and the stiff prickly weeds. Ko S'la and five of the beaters were standing in a knot all talking at once, and the other two were beckoning excitedly to Flory and Elizabeth. As they came up they saw in the middle of the group an old woman who was holding up her ragged longyi with one hand and gesticulating with a big cigar in the other. Elizabeth could hear some word that sounded like 'Char' repeated over and over again.

'What is it they're saying?' she said.

The beaters came crowding round Flory, all talking eagerly and pointing into the jungle. After a few questions he waved his hand to silence them and turned to Elizabeth:

'I say, here's a bit of luck! This old girl was coming through the jungle, and she says that at the sound of the shot you fired just now, she saw a leopard run across the path. These fellows know where he's likely to hide. If we're quick they may be able to surround him before he sneaks away, and drive him out. Shall we try it?'

'Oh, do let's! Oh, what awful fun! How lovely, how lovely if we could get that leopard!'

'You understand it's dangerous? We'll keep close together and it'll probably be all right, but it's never absolutely safe on foot. Are you ready for that?'

'Oh, of course, of course! I'm not frightened. Oh, do let's be quick and start!'

'One of you come with us, and show us the way,' he said to the beaters. 'Ko S'la, put Flo on the leash and go with the others. She'll never keep quiet with us. We'll have to hurry,' he added to Elizabeth.

Ko S'la and the beaters hurried off along the edge of the jungle. They would strike in and begin beating farther up. The other beater, the same youth who had climbed the tree after the pigeon, dived into the jungle, Flory and Elizabeth following. With short rapid steps, almost running, he led them through a labyrinth of game-tracks. The bushes trailed so low that sometimes one had almost to crawl, and creepers hung across the path like trip-wires. The ground was dusty and silent underfoot. At some landmark in the jungle the beater halted, pointed to the ground as a sign that this spot would do, and put his finger on his lips to enjoin silence. Flory took four SG cartridges from his pockets and took Elizabeth's gun to load it silently.

There was a faint rustling behind them, and they all started. A nearly naked youth with a pellet-bow, come goodness knows whence, had parted the bushes. He looked at the beater, shook his head and pointed up the path. There was a dialogue of signs between the two youths, then the beater seemed to agree. Without speaking all four stole forty yards along the path, round a bend, and halted again. At the same moment a frightful pandemonium of yells, punctuated by barks from Flo, broke out a few hundred yards away.

Elizabeth felt the beater's hand on her shoulder, pushing her downwards. They all four squatted down under cover of a prickly bush, the Europeans in front, the Burmans behind. In the distance there was such a tumult of yells and the rattle of dahs against tree-trunks that one could hardly believe six men could make so much noise. The beaters were taking good care that the leopard should not turn back upon them. Elizabeth watched some large, pale yellow ants marching like soldiers over the thorns of the bush. One fell on to her hand and crawled up her forearm. She dared not move to brush it away. She was praying silently, 'Please God, let the leopard come! Oh please, God, let the leopard come!'

There was a sudden loud pattering on the leaves. Elizabeth raised her gun, but Flory shook his head sharply and pushed the barrel down again. A jungle fowl scuttled across the path with long noisy strides.

The yells of the beaters seemed hardly to come any closer, and this end of the jungle the silence was like a pall. The ant on Elizabeth's arm bit her painfully and dropped to the ground. A dreadful despair had begun to form in her heart; the leopard was not coming, he had slipped away somewhere, they had lost him. She almost wished they had never heard of the leopard, the disappointment was so agonizing. Then she felt the beater pinch her elbow. He was craning his face forward, his smooth, dull yellow cheek only a few inches from her own; she could smell the coco-nut oil in his hair. His coarse lips were puckered as in a whistle; he had heard something. Then Flory and Elizabeth heard it too, the faintest whisper, as though some creature of air were gliding through the jungle, just brushing the ground with its foot. At the same moment the leopard's head and shoulders emerged from the undergrowth, fifteen yards down the path.

He stopped with his forepaws on the path. They could see his low, flat-eared head, his bare eye-tooth and his thick, terrible forearm. In the shadow he did not look yellow but grey. He was listening intently. Elizabeth saw Flory spring to his feet, raise his gun and pull the trigger instantly. The shot roared, and almost simultaneously there was a heavy crash as the brute dropped flat in the weeds. 'Look out!' Flory cried, 'he's not done for!' He fired again, and there was a fresh thump as the shot went home. The leopard gasped. Flory threw open his gun and felt in his pocket for a cartridge, then flung all his cartridges on to the path and fell on his knees, searching rapidly among them.

'Damn and blast it!' he cried. 'There isn't a single SG among them. Where in hell did I put them?'

The leopard had disappeared as he fell. He was thrashing about in the undergrowth like a great, wounded snake, and crying out with a snarling, sobbing noise, savage and pitiful. The noise seemed to be coming nearer. Every cartridge Flory turned up had 6 or 8 marked on the end. The rest of the large-shot cartridges had, in fact, been left with Ko S'la. The crashing and snarling were now hardly five yards away, but they could see nothing, the jungle was so thick.

The two Burmans were crying out 'Shoot! Shoot! Shoot!' The sound of 'Shoot! Shoot!' got farther away--they were skipping for the nearest climbable trees. There was a crash in the undergrowth so close that it shook the bush by which Elizabeth was standing.

'By God, he's almost on us!' Flory said. 'We must turn him somehow. Let fly at the sound.'

Elizabeth raised her gun. Her knees were knocking like castanets, but her hand was as steady as stone. She fired rapidly, once, twice. The crashing noise receded. The leopard was crawling away, crippled but swift, and still invisible.

'Well done! You've scared him,' Flory said.

'But he's getting away! He's getting away!' Elizabeth cried, dancing about in agitation. She made to follow him. Flory jumped to his feet and pulled her back.

'No fear! You stay here. Wait!'

He slipped two of the small-shot cartridges into his gun and ran after the sound of the leopard. For a moment Elizabeth could not see either beast or man, then they reappeared in a bare patch thirty yards away. The leopard was writhing along on his belly, sobbing as he went. Flory levelled his gun and fired at four yards' distance. The leopard jumped like a cushion when one hits it, then rolled over, curled up and lay still. Flory poked the body with his gun-barrel. It did not stir.

'It's all right, he's done for,' he called. 'Come and have a look at him.'

The two Burmans jumped down from their tree, and they and Elizabeth went across to where Flory was standing. The leopard--it was a male--was lying curled up with his head between his forepaws. He looked much smaller than he had looked alive; he looked rather pathetic, like a dead kitten. Elizabeth's knees were still quivering. She and Flory stood looking down at the leopard, close together, but not clasping hands this time.

It was only a moment before Ko S'la and the others came up, shouting with glee. Flo gave one sniff at the dead leopard, then down went her tail and she bolted fifty yards, whimpering. She could not be induced to come near him again. Everyone squatted down round the leopard and gazed at him. They stroked his beautiful white belly, soft as a hare's, and squeezed his broad pugs to bring out the claws, and pulled back his black lips to examine the fangs. Presently two of the beaters cut down a tall bamboo and slung the leopard upon it by his paws, with his long tail trailing down, and then they marched back to the village in triumph. There was no talk of further shooting, though the light still held. They were all, including the Europeans, too anxious to get home and boast of what they had done.

Flory and Elizabeth walked side by side across the stubble field. The others were thirty yards ahead with the guns and the leopard, and Flo was slinking after them a long way in the rear. The sun was going down beyond the Irrawaddy. The light shone level across the field, gilding the stubble stalks, and striking into their faces with a yellow, gentle beam. Elizabeth's shoulder was almost touching Flory's as they walked. The sweat that had drenched their shirts had dried again. They did not talk much. They were happy with that inordinate happiness that comes of exhaustion and achievement, and with which nothing else in life--no joy of either the body or the mind--is even able to be compared.

'The leopard skin is yours,' Flory said as they approached the village.

'Oh, but you shot him!'

'Never mind, you stick to the skin. By Jove, I wonder how many of the women in this country would have kept their heads like you did! I can just see them screaming and fainting. I'll get the skin cured for you in Kyauktada jail. There's a convict there who can cure skins as soft as velvet. He's doing a seven-year sentence, so he's had time to learn the job.'

'Oh well, thanks awfully.'

No more was said for the present. Later, when they had washed off the sweat and dirt, and were fed and rested, they would meet again at the Club. They made no rendezvous, but it was understood between them that they would meet. Also, it was understood that Flory would ask Elizabeth to marry him, though nothing was said about this either.

At the village Flory paid the beaters eight annas each, superintended the skinning of the leopard, and gave the headman a bottle of beer and two of the imperial pigeons. The skin and skull were packed into one of the canoes. All the whiskers had been stolen, in spite of Ko S'la's efforts to guard them. Some young men of the village carried off the carcass in order to eat the heart and various other organs, the eating of which they believed would make them strong and swift like the leopard.

15

When Flory arrived at the Club he found the Lackersteens in an unusually morose mood. Mrs Lackersteen was sitting, as usual, in the best place under the punkah, and was reading the Civil List, the Debrett of Burma. She was in a bad temper with her husband, who had defied her by ordering a 'large peg' as soon as he reached the Club, and was further defying her by reading the Pink'un. Elizabeth was alone in the stuffy little library, turning over the pages of an old copy of Blackwood's.

Since parting with Flory, Elizabeth had had a very disagreeable adventure. She had come out of her bath and was half-way through dressing for dinner when her uncle had suddenly appeared in her room--pretext, to hear some more about the day's shooting--and begun pinching her leg in a way that simply could not be misunderstood. Elizabeth was horrified. This was her first introduction to the fact that some men are capable of making love to their nieces. We live and learn. Mr Lackersteen had tried to carry the thing off as a joke, but he was too clumsy and too nearly drunk to succeed. It was fortunate that his wife was out of hearing, or there might have been a first-rate scandal.

After this, dinner was an uncomfortable meal. Mr Lackersteen was sulking. What rot it was, the way these women put on airs and prevented you from having a good time! The girl was pretty enough to remind him of the Illustrations in La Vie Parisienne, and damn it! wasn't he paying for her keep? It was a shame. But for Elizabeth the position was very serious. She was penniless and had no home except her uncle's house. She had come eight thousand miles to stay here. It would be terrible if after only a fortnight her uncle's house were to be made uninhabitable for her.

Consequently, one thing was much surer in her mind than it had been: that if Flory asked her to marry him (and he would, there was little doubt of it), she would say yes. At another time it was just possible that she would have decided differently. This afternoon, under the spell of that glorious, exciting, altogether 'lovely' adventure, she had come near to loving Flory; as near as, in his particular case, she was able to come. Yet even after that, perhaps, her doubts would have returned. For there had always been something dubious about Flory; his age, his birthmark, his queer, perverse way of talking--that 'highbrow' talk that was at once unintelligible and disquieting. There had been days when she had even disliked him. But now her uncle's behaviour had turned the scale. Whatever happened she had got to escape from her uncle's house, and that soon. Yes, undoubtedly she would marry Flory when he asked her!

He could see her answer in her face as he came into the library. Her air was gentler, more yielding than he had known it. She was wearing the same lilac-coloured frock that she had worn that first morning when he met her, and the sight of the familiar frock gave him courage. It seemed to bring her nearer to him, taking away the strangeness and the elegance that had sometimes unnerved him.

He picked up the magazine she had been reading and made some remark; for a moment they chattered in the banal way they so seldom managed to avoid. It is strange how the drivelling habits of conversation will persist into almost all moments. Yet even as they chattered they found themselves drifting to the door and then outside, and presently to the big frangipani tree by the tennis court. It was the night of the full moon. Flaring like a white-hot coin, so brilliant that it hurt one's eyes, the moon swam rapidly upwards in a sky of smoky blue, across which drifted a few wisps of yellowish cloud. The stars were all invisible. The croton bushes, by day hideous things like jaundiced laurels, were changed by the moon into jagged black and white designs like fantastic wood-cuts. By the compound fence two Dravidian coolies were walking down the road, transfigured, their white rags gleaming. Through the tepid air the scent streamed from the frangipani trees like some intolerable compound out of a penny-in-the-slot machine.

'Look at the moon, just look at it!' Flory said. 'It's like a white sun. It's brighter than an English winter day.'

Elizabeth looked up into the branches of the frangipani tree, which the moon seemed to have changed into rods of silver. The light lay thick, as though palpable, on everything, crusting the earth and the rough bark of trees like some dazzling salt, and every leaf seemed to bear a freight of solid light, like snow. Even Elizabeth, indifferent to such things, was astonished.

'It's wonderful! You never see moonlight like that at Home. It's so--so--' No adjective except 'bright' presenting itself, she was silent. She had a habit of leaving her sentences unfinished, like Rosa Dartle, though for a different reason.

'Yes, the old moon does her best in this country. How that tree does stink, doesn't it? Beastly, tropical thing! I hate a tree that blooms all the year round, don't you?'

He was talking half abstractedly, to cover the time till the coolies should be out of sight. As they disappeared he put his arm round Elizabeth's shoulder, and then, when she did not start or speak, turned her round and drew her against him. Her head came against his breast, and her short hair grazed his lips. He put his hand under her chin and lifted her face up to meet his. She was not wearing her spectacles.

'You don't mind?'

'No.'

'I mean, you don't mind my--this thing of mine?' he shook his head slightly to indicate the birthmark. He could not kiss her without first asking this question.

'No, no. Of course not.'

A moment after their mouths met he felt her bare arms settle lightly round his neck. They stood pressed together, against the smooth trunk of the frangipani tree, body to body, mouth to mouth, for a minute or more. The sickly scent of the tree came mingling with the scent of Elizabeth's hair. And the scent gave him a feeling of stultification, of remoteness from Elizabeth, even though she was in his arms. All that that alien tree symbolized for him, his exile, the secret, wasted years--it was like an unbridgeable gulf between them. How should he ever make her understand what it was that he wanted of her? He disengaged himself and pressed her shoulders gently against the tree, looking down at her face, which he could see very clearly though the moon was behind her.

'It's useless trying to tell you what you mean to me,' he said. '"What you mean to me!" These blunted phrases! You don't know, you can't know, how much I love you. But I've got to try and tell you. There's so much I must tell you. Had we better go back to the Club? They may come looking for us. We can talk on the veranda.'

'Is my hair very untidy?' she said.

'It's beautiful.'

'But has it got untidy? Smooth it for me, would you, please?'

She bent her head towards him, and he smoothed the short, cool locks with his hand. The way she bent her head to him gave him a curious feeling of intimacy, far more intimate than the kiss, as though he had already been her husband. Ah, he must have her, that was certain! Only by marrying her could his life be salvaged. In a moment he would ask her. They walked slowly through the cotton bushes and back to the Club, his arm still round her shoulder.

'We can talk on the veranda,' he repeated. 'Somehow, we've never really talked, you and I. My God, how I've longed all these years for somebody to talk to! How I could talk to you, interminably, interminably! That sounds boring. I'm afraid it will be boring. I must ask you to put up with it for a little while.'

She made a sound of remonstrance at the word 'boring'.

'No, it is boring, I know that. We Anglo-Indians are always looked on as bores. And we ARE bores. But we can't help it. You see, there's--how shall I say?--a demon inside us driving us to talk.

We walk about under a load of memories which we long to share and somehow never can. It's the price we pay for coming to this country.'

They were fairly safe from interruption on the side veranda, for there was no door opening directly upon it. Elizabeth had sat down with her arms on the little wicker table, but Flory remained strolling back and forth, with his hands in his coatpockets, stepping into the moonlight that streamed beneath the eastern eaves of the veranda, and back into the shadows.

'I said just now that I loved you. Love! The word's been used till it's meaningless. But let me try to explain. This afternoon when you were there shooting with me, I thought, my God! here at last is somebody who can share my life with me, but really share it, really LIVE it with me--do you see--'

He was going to ask her to marry him--indeed, he had intended to ask her without more delay. But the words were not spoken yet; instead, he found himself talking egoistically on and on. He could not help it. It was so important that she should understand something of what his life in this country had been; that she should grasp the nature of the loneliness that he wanted her to nullify. And it was so devilishly difficult to explain. It is devilish to suffer from a pain that is all but nameless. Blessed are they who are stricken only with classifiable diseases! Blessed are the poor, the sick, the crossed in love, for at least other people know what is the matter with them and will listen to their belly-achings with sympathy. But who that has not suffered it understands the pain of exile? Elizabeth watched him as he moved to and fro, in and out of the pool of moonlight that turned his silk coat to silver. Her heart was still knocking from the kiss, and yet her thoughts wandered as he talked. Was he going to ask her to marry him? He was being so slow about it! She was dimly aware that he was saying something about loneliness. Ah, of course! He was telling her about the loneliness she would have to put up with in the jungle, when they were married. He needn't have troubled. Perhaps you did get rather lonely in the jungle sometimes? Miles from anywhere, no cinemas, no dances, no one but each other to talk to, nothing to do in the evenings except read--rather a bore, that. Still, you could have a gramophone. What a difference it would make when those new portable radio sets got out to Burma! She was about to say this when he added:

'Have I made myself at all clear to you? Have you got some picture of the life we live here? The foreignness, the solitude, the melancholy! Foreign trees, foreign flowers, foreign landscapes, foreign faces. It's all as alien as a different planet. But do you see--and it's this that I so want you to understand--do you see, it mightn't be so bad living on a different planet, it might even be the most interesting thing imaginable, if you had even one person to share it with. One person who could see it with eyes something like your own. This country's been a kind of solitary hell to me--it's so to most of us--and yet I tell you it could be a paradise if one weren't alone. Does all this seem quite meaningless?'

He had stopped beside the table, and he picked up her hand. In the half-darkness he could see her face only as a pale oval, like a flower, but by the feeling of her hand he knew instantly that she had not understood a word of what he was saying. How should she, indeed? It was so futile, this meandering talk! He would say to her at once, Will you marry me? Was there not a lifetime to talk in? He took her other hand and drew her gently to her feet.

'Forgive me all this rot I've been talking.'

'It's all right,' she murmured indistinctly, expecting that he was about to kiss her.

'No, it's rot talking like that. Some things will go into words, some won't. Besides, it was an impertinence to go belly-aching on and on about myself. But I was trying to lead up to something. Look, this is what I wanted to say. Will--'

'Eliz-a-beth!'

It was Mrs Lackersteen's high-pitched, plaintive voice, calling from within the Club.

'Elizabeth? Where are you, Elizabeth?'

Evidently she was near the front door--would be on the veranda in a moment. Flory pulled Elizabeth against him. They kissed hurriedly. He released her, only holding her hands.

'Quickly, there's just time. Answer me this. Will you--'

But that sentence never got any further. At the same moment something extraordinary happened under his feet--the floor was surging and rolling like a sea--he was staggering, then dizzily falling, hitting his upper arm a thump as the floor rushed towards him. As he lay there he found himself jerked violently backwards and forwards as though some enormous beast below were rocking the whole building on its back.

The drunken floor righted itself very suddenly, and Flory sat up, dazed but not much hurt. He dimly noticed Elizabeth sprawling beside him, and screams coming from within the Club. Beyond the gate two Burmans were racing through the moonlight with their long hair streaming behind them. They were yelling at the top of their voices:

'Nga Yin is shaking himself! Nga Yin is shaking himself!'

Flory watched them unintelligently. Who was Nga Yin? Nga is the prefix given to criminals. Nga Yin must be a dacoit. Why was he shaking himself? Then he remembered. Nga Yin was a giant supposed by the Burmese to be buried, like Typhaeus, beneath the crust of the earth. Of course! It was an earthquake.

'An earthquake!' he exclaimed, and he remembered Elizabeth and moved to pick her up. But she was already sitting up, unhurt, and rubbing the back of her head.

'Was that an earthquake?' she said in a rather awed voice.

Mrs Lackersteen's tall form came creeping round the corner of the veranda, clinging to the wall like some elongated lizard. She was exclaiming hysterically:

'Oh dear, an earthquake! Oh, what a dreadful shock! I can't bear it--my heart won't stand it! Oh dear, oh dear! An earthquake!'

Mr Lackersteen tottered after her, with a strange ataxic step caused partly by earth-tremors and partly by gin.

'An earthquake, dammit!' he said.

Flory and Elizabeth slowly picked themselves up. They all went inside, with that queer feeling in the soles of the feet that one has when one steps from a rocking boat on to the shore. The old butler was hurrying from the servants' quarters, thrusting his pagri on his head as he came, and a troop of twittering chokras after him.

'Earthquake, sir, earthquake!' he bubbled eagerly.

'I should damn well think it was an earthquake,' said Mr Lackersteen as he lowered himself cautiously into a chair. 'Here, get some drinks, butler. By God, I could do with a nip of something after that.'

They all had a nip of something. The butler, shy yet beaming, stood on one leg beside the table, with the tray in his hand. 'Earthquake, sir, BIG earthquake!' he repeated enthusiastically. He was bursting with eagerness to talk; so, for that matter, was everyone else. An extraordinary joie de vivre had come over them all as soon as the shaky feeling departed from their legs. An earthquake is such fun when it is over. It is so exhilarating to reflect that you are not, as you well might be, lying dead under a heap of ruins. With one accord they all burst out talking: 'My dear, I've never HAD such a shock--I fell absolutely FLAT on my back--I thought it was a dam' pariah dog scratching itself under the floor--I thought it must be an explosion somewhere--' and so on and so forth; the usual earthquake-chatter. Even the butler was included in the conversation.

'I expect you can remember ever so many earthquakes can't you butler?' said Mrs Lackersteen, quite graciously, for her.

'Oh yes, madam, many earthquakes! 1887, 1899, 1906, 1912--many, many I can remember, madam!'

'The 1912 one was a biggish one,' Flory said.

'Oh, sir, but 1906 was bigger! Very bad shock, sir! And big heathen idol in the temple fall down on top of the thathanabaing, that is Buddhist bishop, madam, which the Burmese say mean bad omen for failure of paddy crop and foot-and-mouth disease. Also in 1887 my first earthquake I remember, when I was a little chokra, and Major Maclagan sahib was lying under the table and promising he sign the teetotal pledge tomorrow morning. He not know it was an earthquake. Also two cows was killed by falling roofs,' etc., etc.

The Europeans stayed in the Club till midnight, and the butler popped into the room as many as half a dozen times, to relate a new anecdote. So far from snubbing him, the Europeans even encouraged him to talk. There is nothing like an earthquake for drawing people together. One more tremor, or perhaps two, and they would have asked the butler to sit down at table with them.

Meanwhile, Flory's proposal went no further. One cannot propose marriage immediately after an earthquake. In any case, he did not see Elizabeth alone for the rest of that evening. But it did not matter, he knew that she was his now. In the morning there would be time enough. On this thought, at peace in his mind, and dog-tired after the long day, he went to bed.

The vultures in the big pyinkado trees by the cemetery flapped from their dung-whitened branches, steadied themselves on the wing, and climbed by vast spirals into the upper air. It was early, but Flory was out already. He was going down to the Club, to wait until Elizabeth came and then ask her formally to marry him. Some instinct, which he did not understand, prompted him to do it before the other Europeans returned from the jungle.

As he came out of the compound gate he saw that there was a new arrival at Kyauktada. A youth with a long spear like a needle in his hand was cantering across the maidan on a white pony. Some Sikhs, looking like sepoys, ran after him, leading two other ponies, a bay and a chestnut, by the bridle. When he came level with him Flory halted on the road and shouted good morning. He had not recognized the youth, but it is usual in small stations to make strangers welcome. The other saw that he was hailed, wheeled his pony negligently round and brought it to the side of the road. He was a youth of about twenty-live, lank but very straight, and manifestly a cavalry officer. He had one of those rabbit-like faces common among English soldiers, with pale blue eyes and a little triangle of fore-teeth visible between the lips; yet hard, fearless and even brutal in a careless fashion--a rabbit, perhaps, but a tough and martial rabbit. He sat his horse as though he were part of it, and he looked offensively young and fit. His fresh face was tanned to the exact shade that went with his light-coloured eyes, and he was as elegant as a picture with his white buckskin topi and his polo-boots that gleamed like an old meerschaum pipe. Flory felt uncomfortable in his presence from the start.

'How d'you do?' said Flory. 'Have you just arrived?'

'Last night, got in by the late train.' He had a surly, boyish voice. 'I've been sent up here with a company of men to stand by in case your local bad-mashes start any trouble. My name's Verrall--Military Police,' he added, not, however, inquiring Flory's name in return.

'Oh yes. We heard they were sending somebody. Where are you putting up?'

'Dak bungalow, for the time being. There was some black beggar staying there when I got in last night--Excise Officer or something. I booted him out. This is a filthy hole, isn't it?' he said with a backward movement of his head, indicating the whole of Kyauktada.

'I suppose it's like the rest of these small stations. Are you staying long?'

'Only a month or so, thank God. Till the rains break. What a rotten maidan you've got here, haven't you? Pity they can't keep this stuff cut,' he added, swishing the dried-up grass with the point of his spear. 'Makes it so hopeless for polo or anything.'

'I'm afraid you won't get any polo here,' Flory said. 'Tennis is the best we can manage. There are only eight of us all told, and most of us spend three-quarters of our time in the jungle.'

'Christ! What a hole!'

After this there was a silence. The tall, bearded Sikhs stood in a group round their horses' heads, eyeing Flory without much favour. It was perfectly clear that Verral was bored with the conversation and wanted to escape. Flory had never in his life felt so completely de trop, or so old and shabby. He noticed that Verrall's pony was a beautiful Arab, a mare, with proud neck and arching, plume-like tail; a lovely milk-white thing, worth several thousands of rupees. Verrall had already twitched the bridle to turn away, evidently feeling that he had talked enough for one morning.

'That's a wonderful pony of yours,' Flory said.

'She's not bad, better than these Burma scrubs. I've come out to do a bit of tent-pegging. It's hopeless trying to knock a polo ball about in this muck. Hey, Hira Singh!' he called, and turned his pony away.

The sepoy holding the bay pony handed his bridle to a companion, ran to a spot forty yards away, and fixed a narrow boxwood peg in the ground. Verral took no further notice of Flory. He raised his spear and poised himself as though taking aim at the peg, while the Indians backed their horses out of the way and stood watching critically. With a just perceptible movement Verrall dug his knees into the pony's sides. She bounded forward like a bullet from a catapult. As easily as a centaur the lank, straight youth leaned over in the saddle, lowered his spear and plunged it clean through the peg. One of the Indians muttered gruffly 'Shabash!' Verrall raised his spear behind him in the orthodox fashion, and then, pulling his horse to a canter, wheeled round and handed the transfixed peg to the sepoy.

Verrall rode twice more at the peg, and hit it each time. It was done with matchless grace and with extraordinary solemnity. The whole group of men, Englishman and Indians, were concentrated upon the business of hitting the peg as though it had been a religious ritual. Flory still stood watching, disregarded--Verrall's face was one of those that are specially constructed for ignoring unwelcome strangers--but from the very fact that he had been snubbed unable to tear himself away. Somehow, Verrall had filled him with a horrible sense of inferiority. He was trying to think of some pretext for renewing the conversation, when he looked up the hillside and saw Elizabeth, in pale blue, coming out of her uncle's gate. She must have seen the third transfixing of the peg. His heart stirred painfully. A thought occurred to him, one of those rash thoughts that usually lead to trouble. He called to Verrall, who was a few yards away from him, and pointed with his stick.

'Do these other two know how to do it?'

Verrall looked over his shoulder with a surly air. He had expected Flory to go away after being ignored.

'What?'

'Can these other two do it?' Flory repeated.

'The chestnut's not bad. Bolts if you let him, though.'

'Let me have a shot at the peg, would you?'

'All right,' said Verrall ungraciously. 'Don't go and cut his mouth to bits.'

A sepoy brought the pony, and Flory pretended to examine the curb-chain. In reality he was temporizing until Elizabeth should be thirty or forty yards away. He made up his mind that he would stick the peg exactly at the moment when she passed (it is easy enough on the small Burma ponies, provided that they will gallop straight), and then ride up to her with it on his point. That was obviously the right move. He did not want her to think that that pink-faced young whelp was the only person who could ride. He was wearing shorts, which are uncomfortable to ride in, but he knew that, like nearly everyone, he looked his best on horseback.

Elizabeth was approaching. Flory stepped into the saddle, took the spear from the Indian and waved it in greeting to Elizabeth. She made no response, however. Probably she was shy in front of Verrall. She was looking away, towards the cemetery, and her cheeks were pink.

'Chalo,' said Flory to the Indian, and then dug his knees into the horse's sides.

The very next instant, before the horse had taken to bounds, Flory found himself hurtling through the air, hitting the ground with a crack that wrenched his shoulder almost out of joint, and rolling over and over. Mercifully the spear fell clear of him. He lay supine, with a blurred vision of blue sky and floating vultures. Then his eyes focused on the khaki pagri and dark face of a Sikh, bearded to the eyes, bending over him.

'What's happened?' he said in English, and he raised himself painfully on his elbow. The Sikh made some gruff answer and pointed. Flory saw the chestnut pony careering away over the maidan, with the saddle under its belly. The girth had not been tightened, and had slipped round; hence his fall.

When Flory sat up he found that he was in extreme pain. The right shoulder of his shirt was torn open and already soaking with blood, and he could feel more blood oozing from his cheek. The hard earth had grazed him. His hat, too, was gone. With a deadly pang he remembered Elizabeth, and he saw her coming towards him, barely ten yards away, looking straight at him as he sprawled there so ignominiously. My God, my God! he thought, O my God, what a fool I must look! The thought of it even drove away the pain of the fall. He clapped a hand over his birth-mark, though the other cheek was the damaged one.

'Elizabeth! Hullo, Elizabeth! Good morning!'

He had called out eagerly, appealingly, as one does when one is conscious of looking a fool. She did not answer, and what was almost incredible, she walked on without pausing even for an instant, as though she had neither seen nor heard him.

'Elizabeth!' he called again, taken aback; 'did you see my fall? The saddle slipped. The fool of a sepoy hadn't--'

There was no question that she had heard him now. She turned her face full upon him for a moment, and looked at him and through him as though he had not existed. Then she gazed away into the distance beyond the cemetery. It was terrible. He called after her in dismay--

'Elizabeth! I say, Elizabeth!'

She passed on without a word, without a sign, without a look. She was walking sharply down the road, with a click of heels, her back turned upon him.

The sepoys had come round him now, and Verrall, too, had ridden across to where Flory lay. Some of the sepoys had saluted Elizabeth; Verrall had ignored her, perhaps not seeing her. Flory rose stiffly to his feet. He was badly bruised, but no bones were broken. The Indians brought him his hat and stick, but they did not apologize for their carelessness. They looked faintly contemptuous, as though thinking that he had only got what he deserved. It was conceivable that they had loosened the girth on purpose.

'The saddle slipped,' said Flory in the weak, stupid way that one does at such moments.

'Why the devil couldn't you look at it before you got up?' said Verrall briefly. 'You ought to know these beggars aren't to be trusted.'

Having said which he twitched his bridle and rode away, feeling the incident closed. The sepoys followed him without saluting Flory. When Flory reached his gate he looked back and saw that the chestnut pony had already been caught and re-saddled, and Verrall was tent-pegging upon it.

The fall had so shaken him that even now he could hardly collect his thoughts. What could have made her behave like that? She had seen him lying bloody and in pain, and she had walked past him as though he had been a dead dog. How could it have happened? HAD it happened? It was incredible. Could she be angry with him? Could he have offended her in any way? All the servants were waiting at the compound fence. They had come out to watch the tent-pegging, and every one of them had seen his bitter humiliation. Ko S'la ran part of the way down the hill to meet him, with concerned face.

'The god has hurt himself? Shall I carry the god back to the house?'

'No,' said the god. 'Go and get me some whisky and a clean shirt.'

When they got back to the house Ko S'la made Flory sit down on the bed and peeled off his torn shirt which the blood had stuck to his body. Ko S'la clicked his tongue.

'Ah ma lay? These cuts are full of dirt. You ought not to play these children's games on strange ponies, thakin. Not at your age. It is too dangerous.'

'The saddle slipped,' Flory said.

'Such games,' pursued Ko S'la, 'are all very well for the young police officer. But you are no longer young, thakin. A fall hurts at your age. You should take more care of yourself.'

'Do you take me for an old man?' said Flory angrily. His shoulder was smarting abominably.

'You are thirty-five, thakin,' said Ko S'la politely but firmly.

It was all very humiliating. Ma Pu and Ma Yi, temporarily at peace, had brought a pot of some dreadful mess which they declared was good for cuts. Flory told Ko S'la privately to throw it out of the window and substitute boracic ointment. Then, while he sat in a tepid bath and Ko S'la sponged the dirt out of his grazes, he puzzled helplessly, and, as his head grew clearer, with a deeper and deeper dismay, over what had happened. He had offended her bitterly, that was clear. But, when he had not even seen her since last night, how COULD he have offended her? And there was no even plausible answer.

He explained to Ko S'la several times over that his fall was due to the saddle slipping. But Ko S'la, though sympathetic, clearly did not believe him. To the end of his days, Flory perceived, the fall would be attributed to his own bad horsemanship. On the other hand, a fortnight ago, he had won undeserved renown by putting to flight the harmless buffalo. Fate is even-handed, after a fashion.

17

Flory did not see Elizabeth again until he went down to the Club after dinner. He had not, as he might have done, sought her out and demanded an explanation. His face unnerved him when he looked at it in the glass. With the birthmark on one side and the graze on the other it was so woebegone, so hideous, that he dared not show himself by daylight. As he entered the Club lounge he put his hand over his birthmark--pretext, a mosquito bite on the forehead. It would have been more than his nerve was equal to, not to cover his birthmark at such a moment. However, Elizabeth was not there.

Instead, he tumbled into an unexpected quarrel. Ellis and Westfield had just got back from the jungle, and they were sitting drinking, in a sour mood. News had come from Rangoon that the editor of the Burmese Patriot had been given only four months' imprisonment for his libel against Mr Macregor, and Ellis was working himself up into a rage over this light sentence. As soon as Flory came in Ellis began baiting him with remarks about 'that little nigger Very-slimy'. At the moment the very thought of quarrelling made Flory yawn, but he answered incautiously, and there was an argument. It grew heated, and after Ellis had called Flory a nigger's Nancy Boy and Flory had replied in kind, Westfield too lost his temper. He was a good-natured man, but Flory's Bolshie ideas sometimes annoyed him. He could never understand why, when there was so clearly a right and a wrong opinion about everything, Flory always seemed to delight in choosing the wrong one. He told Flory 'not to start talking like a damned Hyde Park agitator', and then read him a snappish little sermon, taking as his text the five chief beatitudes of the pukka sahib, namely:

Keeping up our prestige,
The firm hand (without the velvet glove),
We white men must hang together, Give them an inch and they'll take an ell, and Esprit de Corps.

All the while his anxiety to see Elizabeth was so gnawing at Flory's heart that he could hardly hear what was said to him. Besides, he had heard it all so often, so very often--a hundred times, a thousand times it might be, since his first week in Rangoon, when his burra sahib (an old Scotch gin-soaker and great breeder of racing ponies, afterwards warned off the turf for some dirty business of running the same horse under two different names) saw him take off his topi to pass a native funeral and said to him reprovingly: 'Remember laddie, always remember, we are sahiblog and they are dirrt!' It sickened him, now, to have to listen to such trash. So he cut Westfield short by saying blasphemously:

'Oh, shut up! I'm sick of the subject. Veraswami's a damned good fellow--a damned sight better than some white men I can think of. Anyway, I'm going to propose his name for the Club when the general meeting comes. Perhaps he'll liven this bloody place up a bit.'

Whereat the row would have become serious if it had not ended as most rows ended at the Club--with the appearance of the butler, who had heard the raised voices.

'Did master call, sir?'

'No. Go to hell,' said Ellis morosely.

The butler retired, but that was the end of the dispute for the time being. At this moment there were footsteps and voices outside; the Lackersteens were arriving at the Club.

When they entered the lounge, Flory could not even nerve himself to look directly at Elizabeth; but he noticed that all three of them were much more smartly dressed than usual. Mr Lackersteen was even wearing a dinner-jacket--white, because of the season--and was completely sober. The boiled shirt and pique waistcoat seemed to hold him upright and stiffen his moral fibre like a breastplate. Mrs Lackersteen looked handsome and serpentine in a red dress. In some indefinable way all three gave the impression that they were waiting to receive some distinguished guest.

When drinks had been called for, and Mrs Lackersteen had usurped the place under the punkah, Flory took a chair on the outside of the group. He dared not accost Elizabeth yet. Mrs Lackersteen had begun talking in an extraordinary, silly manner about the dear Prince of Wales, and putting on an accent like a temporarily promoted chorus-girl playing the part of a duchess in a musical comedy. The others wondered privately what the devil was the matter with her. Flory had stationed himself almost behind Elizabeth. She was wearing a yellow frock, cut very short as the fashion then was, with champagne-coloured stockings and slippers to match, and she carried a big ostrich-feather fan. She looked so modish, so adult, that he feared her more than he had ever done. It was unbelievable that he had ever kissed her. She was talking easily to all the others at once, and now and again he dared to put a word into the general conversation; but she never answered him directly, and whether or not she meant to ignore him, he could not tell.

'Well,' said Mrs Lackersteen presently, 'and who's for a rubbah?'

She said quite distinctly a 'rubbah'. Her accent was growing more aristocratic with every word she uttered. It was unaccountable. It appeared that Ellis, Westfield and Mr Lackersteen were for a 'rubbah'. Flory refused as soon as he saw that Elizabeth was not playing. Now or never was his chance to get her alone. When they all moved for the card-room, he saw with a mixture of fear and relief that Elizabeth came last. He stopped in the doorway, barring her path. He had turned dreadly pale. She shrank from him a little.

'Excuse me,' they both said simultaneously.

'One moment,' he said, and do what he would his voice trembled. 'May I speak to you? You don't mind--there's something I must say.'

'Will you please let me pass, Mr Flory?'

'Please! Please! We're alone now. You won't refuse just to let me speak?'

'What is it, then?'

'It's only this. Whatever I've done to offend you--please tell me what it is. Tell me and let me put it right. I'd sooner cut my hand off than offend you. Just tell me, don't let me go on not even knowing what it is.'

'I really don't know what you're talking about. "Tell you how you've offended me?" Why should you have OFFENDED me?'

'But I must have! After the way you behaved!'

'"After the way I behaved?" I don't know what you mean. I don't know why you're talking in this extraordinary way at all.'

'But you won't even speak to me! This morning you cut me absolutely dead.'

'Surely I can do as I like without being questioned?'

'But please, please! Don't you see, you must see, what it's like for me to be snubbed all of a sudden. After all, only last night you--'

She turned pink. 'I think it's absolutely--absolutely caddish of you to mention such things!'

'I know, I know. I know all that. But what else can I do? You walked past me this morning as though I'd been a stone. I know that I've offended you in some way. Can you blame me if I want to know what it is that I've done?'

He was, as usual, making it worse with every word he said. He perceived that whatever he had done, to be made to speak of it seemed to her worse than the thing itself. She was not going to explain. She was going to leave him in the dark--snub him and then pretend that nothing had happened; the natural feminine move. Nevertheless he urged her again:

'Please tell me. I can't let everything end between us like this.'

'"End between us"? There was nothing to end,' she said coldly.

The vulgarity of this remark wounded him, and he said quickly:

'That wasn't like you, Elizabeth! It's not generous to cut a man dead after you've been kind to him, and then refuse even to tell him the reason. You might be straightforward with me. Please tell me what it is that I've done.'

She gave him an oblique, bitter look, bitter not because of what he had done, but because he had made her speak of it. But perhaps she was anxious to end the scene, and she said:

'Well then, if you absolutely force me to speak of it--'

'Yes?'

'I'm told that at the very same time as you were pretending to--well, when you were . . . with me--oh, it's too beastly! I can't speak of it.'

'Go on.'

'I'm told that you're keeping a Burmese woman. And now, will you please let me pass?'

With that she sailed--there was no other possible word for it--she sailed past him with a swish of her short skirts, and vanished into the card-room. And he remained looking after her, too appalled to speak, and looking unutterably ridiculous.

It was dreadful. He could not face her after that. He turned to hurry out of the Club, and then dared not even pass the door of the card-room, lest she should see him. He went into the lounge, wondering how to escape, and finally climbed over the veranda rail and dropped on to the small square of lawn that ran down to the Irrawaddy. The sweat was running from his forehead. He could have shouted with anger and distress. The accursed luck of it! To be caught out over a thing like that. 'Keeping a Burmese woman'--and it was not even true! But much use it would ever be to deny it. Ah, what damned, evil chance could have brought it to her ears?

But as a matter of fact, it was no chance. It had a perfectly sound cause, which was also the cause of Mrs Lackersteen's curious behaviour at the Club this evening. On the previous night, just before the earthquake, Mrs Lackersteen had been reading the Civil List. The Civil List (which tells you the exact income of every official in Burma) was a source of inexhaustible interest to her. She was in the middle of adding up the pay and allowances of a Conservator of Forests whom she had once met in Mandalay, when it occurred to her to look up the name of Lieutenant Verrall, who, she had heard from Mr Macregor, was arriving at Kyauktada tomorrow with a hundred Military Policemen. When she found the name, she saw in front of it two words that startled her almost out of her wits.

The words were 'The Honourable'!

The HONOURABLE! Lieutenants the Honourable are rare anywhere, rare as diamonds in the Indian Army, rare as dodos in Burma. And when you are the aunt of the only marriageable young woman within fifty miles, and you hear that a lieutenant the Honourable is arriving no later than tomorrow--well! With dismay Mrs Lackersteen remembered that Elizabeth was out in the garden with Flory--that drunken wretch Flory, whose pay was barely seven hundred rupees a month, and who, it was only too probable, was already proposing to her! She hastened immediately to call Elizabeth inside, but at this moment the earthquake intervened. However, on the way home there was an opportunity to speak. Mrs Lackersteen laid her hand affectionately on Elizabeth's arm and said in the tenderest voice she had ever succeeded in producing:

'Of course you know, Elizabeth dear, that Flory is keeping a Burmese woman?'

For a moment this deadly charge actually failed to explode. Elizabeth was so new to the ways of the country that the remark made no impression on her. It sounded hardly more significant than 'keeping a parrot'.

'Keeping a Burmese woman? What for?'

'What FOR? My dear! what DOES a man keep a woman for?'

And, of course, that was that.

For a long time Flory remained standing by the river bank. The moon was up, mirrored in the water like a broad shield of electron. The coolness of the outer air had changed Flory's mood. He had not even the heart to be angry any longer. For he had perceived, with the deadly self-knowledge and self-loathing that come to one at such a time, that what had happened served him perfectly right. For a moment it seemed to him that an endless procession of Burmese women, a regiment of ghosts, were marching past him in the moonlight. Heavens, what numbers of them! A thousand--no, but a full hundred at the least. 'Eyes right!' he thought despondently. Their heads turned towards him, but they had no faces, only featureless discs. He remembered a blue longyi here, a pair of ruby ear-rings there, but hardly a face or a name. The gods are just and of our pleasant vices (pleasant, indeed!) make instruments to plague us. He had dirtied himself beyond redemption, and this was his just punishment.

He made his way slowly through the croton bushes and round the clubhouse. He was too saddened to feel the full pain of the disaster yet. It would begin hurting, as all deep wounds do, long afterwards. As he passed through the gate something stirred the leaves behind him. He started. There was a whisper of harsh Burmese syllables.

'Pike-san pay-like! Pike-san pay-like!'

He turned sharply. The 'pike-san pay-like' ('Give me the money') was repeated. He saw a woman standing under the shadow of the gold mohur tree. It was Ma Hla May. She stepped out into the moonlight warily, with a hostile air, keeping her distance as though afraid that he would strike her. Her face was coated with powder, sickly white in the moon, and it looked as ugly as a skull, and defiant.

She had given him a shock. 'What the devil are you doing here?' he said angrily in English.

'Pike-san pay-like!'

'What money? What do you mean? Why are you following me about like this?'

'Pike-san pay-like!' she repeated almost in a scream. 'The money you promised me, thakin. You said you would give me more money. I want it now, this instant!'

'How can I give it you now? You shall have it next month. I have given you a hundred and fifty rupees already.'

To his alarm she began shrieking 'Pike-san pay-like!' and a number of similar phrases almost at the top of her voice. She seemed on the verge of hysterics. The volume of noise that she produced was startling.

'Be quiet! They'll hear you in the Club!' he exclaimed, and was instantly sorry for putting the idea into her head.

'Aha! NOW I know what will frighten you! Give me the money this instant, or I will scream for help and bring them all out here. Quick, now, or I begin screaming!'

'You bitch!' he said, and took a step towards her. She sprang nimbly out of reach, whipped off her slipper, and stood defying him.

'Be quick! Fifty rupees now and the rest tomorrow. Out with it! Or I give a scream they can hear as far as the bazaar!'

Flory swore. This was not the time for such a scene. Finally he took out his pocket-book, found twenty-five rupees in it, and threw them on to the ground. Ma Hla May pounced on the notes and counted them.

'I said fifty rupees, thakin!'

'How can I give it you if I haven't got it? Do you think I carry hundreds of rupees about with me?'

'I said fifty rupees!'

'Oh, get out of my way!' he said in English, and pushed past her.

But the wretched woman would not leave him alone. She began to follow him up the road like a disobedient dog, screaming out 'Pike-san pay-like! Pike-san pay-like!' as though mere noise could bring the money into existence. He hurried, partly to draw her away from the Club, partly in hopes of shaking her off, but she seemed ready to follow him as far as the house if necessary. After a while he could not stand it any longer, and he turned to drive her back.

'Go away this instant! If you follow me any farther you shall never have another anna.'

'Pike-san pay-like!'

'You fool,' he said, 'what good is this doing? How can I give you the money when I have not another pice on me?'

'That is a likely story!'

He felt helplessly in his pockets. He was so wearied that he would have given her anything to be rid of her. His fingers encountered his cigarette-case, which was of gold. He took it out.

'Here, if I give you this will you go away? You can pawn it for thirty rupees.'

Ma Hla May seemed to consider, then said sulkily, 'Give it me.'

He threw the cigarette-case on to the grass beside the road. She grabbed it and immediately sprang back clutching it to her ingyi, as though afraid that he would take it away again. He turned and made for the house, thanking God to be out of the sound of her voice. The cigarette-case was the same one that she had stolen ten days ago.

At the gate he looked back. Ma Hla May was still standing at the bottom of the hill, a greyish figurine in the moonlight. She must have watched him up the hill like a dog watching a suspicious stranger out of sight. It was queer. The thought crossed his mind, as it had a few days earlier when she sent him the blackmailing letter, that her behaviour had been curious and unlike herself. She was showing a tenacity of which he would never have thought her capable--almost, indeed, as though someone else were egging her on.

After the row overnight Ellis was looking forward to a week of baiting Flory. He had nicknamed him Nancy--short for nigger's Nancy Boy, but the women did not know that--and was already inventing wild scandals about him. Ellis always invented scandals about anyone with whom he had quarrelled--scandals which grew, by repeated embroideries, into a species of saga. Flory's incautious remark that Dr Veraswami was a 'damned good fellow' had swelled before long into a whole Daily Worker-ful of blasphemy and sedition.

'On my honour, Mrs Lackersteen,' said Ellis--Mrs Lackersteen had taken a sudden dislike to Flory after discovering the great secret about Verrall, and she was quite ready to listen to Ellis's tales--'on my honour, if you'd been there last night and heard the things that man Flory was saying--well, it'd have made you shiver in your shoes!'

'Really! You know, I always thought he had such CURIOUS ideas. What has he been talking about now? Not SOCIALISM, I hope?'

'Worse.'

There were long recitals. However, to Ellis's disappointment, Flory had not stayed in Kyauktada to be baited. He had gone back to camp the day after his dismissal by Elizabeth. Elizabeth heard most of the scandalous tales about him. She understood his character perfectly now. She understood why it was that he had so often bored her and irritated her. He was a highbrow--her deadliest word--a highbrow, to be classed with Lenin, A. J. Cook and the dirty little poets in the Montparnasse cafes. She could have forgiven him even his Burmese mistress more easily than that. Flory wrote to her three days later; a weak, stilted letter, which he sent by hand--his camp was a day's march from Kyauktada. Elizabeth did not answer.

It was lucky for Flory that at present he was too busy to have time to think. The whole camp was at sixes and sevens since his long absence. Nearly thirty coolies were missing, the sick elephant was worse than ever, and a vast pile of teak logs which should have been sent off ten days earlier were still waiting because the engine would not work. Flory, a fool about machinery, struggled with the bowels of the engine until he was black with grease and Ko S'la told him sharply that white men ought not to do 'coolie-work'. The engine was finally persuaded to run, or at least to totter. The sick elephant was discovered to be suffering from tapeworms. As for the coolies, they had deserted because their supply of opium had been cut off--they would not stay in the jungle without opium, which they took as a prophylactic against fever. U Po Kyin, willing to do Flory a bad turn, had caused the Excise Officers to make a raid and seize the opium. Flory wrote to Dr Veraswami, asking for his help. The doctor sent back a quantity of opium, illegally procured, medicine for the elephant and a careful letter of instructions. A tapeworm measuring twenty-one feet was extracted. Flory was busy twelve hours a day. In the evening if there was no more to do he would plunge into the jungle and walk and walk until the sweat stung his eyes and his knees were bleeding from the briers. The nights were his bad time. The bitterness of what had happened was sinking into him, as it usually does, by slow degrees.

Meanwhile, several days had passed and Elizabeth had not yet seen Verrall at less than a hundred yards' distance. It had been a great disappointment when he had not appeared at the Club on the evening of his arrival. Mr Lackersteen was really quite angry when he discovered that he had been hounded into his dinner-jacket for nothing. Next morning Mrs Lackersteen made her husband send an officious note to the dakbungalow, inviting Verrall to the Club; there was no answer, however. More days passed, and Verrall made no move to join in the local society. He had even neglected his official calls, not even bothering to present himself at Mr Macgregor's office. The dakbungalow was at the other end of the town, near the station, and he had made himself quite comfortable there. There is a rule that one must vacate a dakbungalow after a stated number of days, but Verrall peaceably ignored it. The Europeans only saw him at morning and evening on the maidan. On the second day after his arrival fifty of his men turned out with sickles and cleared a large patch of the maidan, after which Verrall was to be seen galloping to and fro, practising polo strokes. He took not the smallest notice of any Europeans who passed down the road. Westfield and Ellis were furious, and even Mr Macgregor said that Verrall's behaviour was 'ungracious'. They would all have fallen at the feet of a lieutenant the Honourable if he had shown the smallest courtesy; as it was, everyone except the two women detested him from the start. It is always so with titled people, they are either adored or hated. If they accept one it is charming simplicity, if they ignore one it is loathsome snobbishness; there are no half-measures.

Verrall was the youngest son of a peer, and not at all rich, but by the method of seldom paying a bill until a writ was issued against him, he managed to keep himself in the only things he seriously cared about: clothes and horses. He had come out to India in a British cavalry regiment, and exchanged into the Indian Army because it was cheaper and left him greater freedom for polo. After two years his debts were so enormous that he entered the Burma Military Police, in which it was notoriously possible to save money; however, he detested Burma--it is no country for a horseman--and he had already applied to go back to his regiment. He was the kind of soldier who can get exchanges when he wants them. Meanwhile, he was only to be in Kyauktada for a month, and he had no intention of mixing himself up with all the petty sahiblog of the district. He knew the society of those small Burma stations--a nasty, poodle-faking, horseless riffraff. He despised them.

They were not the only people whom Verrall despised, however. His various contempts would take a long time to catalogue in detail. He despised the entire non-military population of India, a few famous polo players excepted. He despised the entire Army as well, except the cavalry. He despised all Indian regiments, infantry and cavalry alike. It was true that he himself belonged to a native regiment, but that was only for his own convenience. He took no interest in Indians, and his Urdu consisted mainly of swear-words, with all the verbs in the third person singular. His Military Policemen he looked on as no better than coolies. 'Christ, what God-forsaken swine!' he was often heard to mutter as he moved down the ranks inspecting, with the old subahdar carrying his sword behind him. Verrall had even been in trouble once for his outspoken opinions on native troops. It was at a review, and Verrall was among the group of officers standing behind the general. An Indian infantry regiment approached for the march-past.

'The ---- Rifles,' somebody said.

'AND look at it,' said Verrall in his surly boy's voice.

The white-haired colonel of the ---- Rifles was standing near. He flushed to the neck, and reported Verrall to the general. Verrall was reprimanded, but the general, a British Army officer himself, did not rub it in very hard. Somehow, nothing very serious ever did happen to Verrall, however offensive he made himself. Up and down India, wherever he was stationed, he left behind him a trail of insulted people, neglected duties and unpaid bills. Yet the disgraces that ought to have fallen on him never did. He bore a charmed life, and it was not only the handle to his name that saved him. There was something in his eye before which duns, burra memsahibs and even colonels quailed.

It was a disconcerting eye, pale blue and a little protuberant, but exceedingly clear. It looked you over, weighed you in the balance and found you wanting, in a single cold scrutiny of perhaps five seconds. If you were the right kind of man--that is, if you were a cavalry officer and a polo player--Verrall took you for granted and even treated you with a surly respect; if you were any other type of man whatever, he despised you so utterly that he could not have hidden it even if he would. It did not even make any difference whether you were rich or poor, for in the social sense he was not more than normally a snob. Of course, like all sons of rich families, he thought poverty disgusting and that poor people are poor because they prefer disgusting habits. But he despised soft living. Spending, or rather owing, fabulous sums on clothes, he yet lived almost as ascetically as a monk. He exercised himself ceaselessly and brutally, rationed his drink and his cigarettes, slept on a camp bed (in silk pyjamas) and bathed in cold water in the bitterest winter. Horsemanship and physical fitness were the only gods he knew. The stamp of hoofs on the maidan, the strong, poised feeling of his body, wedded centaurlike to the saddle, the polo-stick springy in his hand--these were his religion, the breath of his life. The Europeans in Burma--boozing, womanizing, yellow-faced loafers--made him physically sick when he thought of their habits. As for social duties of all descriptions, he called them poodle-faking and ignored them. Women he abhorred. In his view they were a kind of siren whose one aim was to lure men away from polo and enmesh them in tea-fights and tennis-parties. He was not, however, quite proof against women. He was young, and women of nearly all kinds threw themselves at his head; now and again he succumbed. But his lapses soon disgusted him, and he was too callous when the pinch came to have any difficulty about escaping. He had had perhaps a dozen such escapes during his two years in India.

A whole week went by. Elizabeth had not even succeeded in making Verrall's acquaintance. It was so tantalizing! Every day, morning and evening, she and her aunt walked down to the Club and back again, past the maidan; and there was Verrall, hitting the polo-balls the sepoys threw for him, ignoring the two women utterly. So near and yet so far! What made it even worse was that neither woman would have considered it decent to speak of the matter directly. One evening the polo-ball, struck too hard, came swishing through the grass and rolled across the road in front of them. Elizabeth and her aunt stopped involuntarily. But it was only a sepoy who ran to fetch the ball. Verrall had seen the women and kept his distance.

Next morning Mrs Lackersteen paused as they came out of the gate. She had given up riding in her rickshaw lately. At the bottom of the maidan the Military Policemen were drawn up, a dust-coloured rank with bayonets glittering. Verrall was facing them, but not in uniform--he seldom put on his uniform for morning parade, not thinking it necessary with mere Military Policemen. The two women were looking at everything except Verrall, and at the same time, in some manner, were contriving to look at him.

'The wretched thing is,' said Mrs Lackersteen--this was a propos de bottes, but the subject needed no introduction--'the wretched thing is that I'm afraid your uncle simply MUST go back to camp before long.'

'Must he really?'

'I'm afraid so. It is so HATEFUL in camp at this time of year! Oh, those mosquitoes!'

'Couldn't he stay a bit longer? A week, perhaps?'

'I don't see how he can. He's been nearly a month in headquarters now. The firm would be furious if they heard of it. And of course both of us will have to go with him. SUCH a bore! The mosquitoes--simply terrible!'

Terrible indeed! To have to go away before Elizabeth had so much as said how-do-you-do to Verrall! But they would certainly have to go if Mr Lackersteen went. It would never do to leave him to himself. Satan finds some mischief still, even in the jungle. A ripple like fire ran down the line of sepoys; they were unfixing bayonets before marching away. The dusty rank turned left, saluted, and marched off in columns of fours. The orderlies were coming from the police lines with the ponies and polo-sticks. Mrs Lackersteen took a heroic decision.

'I think,' she said, 'we'll take a short-cut across the maidan. It's SO much quicker than going right round by the road.'

It WAS quicker by about fifty yards, but no one ever went that way on foot, because of the grass-seeds that got into one's stockings.

Mrs Lackersteen plunged boldly into the grass, and then, dropping even the pretence of making for the Club, took a bee-line for Verrall, Elizabeth following. Either woman would have died on the rack rather than admit that she was doing anything but take a short-cut. Verrall saw them coming, swore, and reined in his pony. He could not very well cut them dead now that they were coming openly to accost him. The damned cheek of these women! He rode slowly towards them with a sulky expression on his face, chivvying the polo-ball with small strokes.

'Good morning, Mr Verrall!' Mrs Lackersteen called out in a voice of saccharine, twenty yards away.

'Morning!' he returned surlily, having seen her face and set her down as one of the usual scraggy old boiling-fowls of an Indian station.

The next moment Elizabeth came level with her aunt. She had taken off her spectacles and was swinging her Terai hat on her hand. What did she care for sunstroke? She was perfectly aware of the prettiness of her cropped hair. A puff of wind--oh, those blessed breaths of wind, coming from nowhere in the stifling hot-weather days!--had caught her cotton frock and blown it against her, showing the outline of her body, slender and strong like a tree. Her sudden appearance beside the older, sun-scorched woman was a revelation to Verrall. He started so that the Arab mare felt it and would have reared on her hind legs, and he had to tighten the rein. He had not known until this moment, not having bothered to inquire, that there were any YOUNG women in Kyauktada.

'My niece,' Mrs Lackersteen said.

He did not answer, but he had thrown away the polo-stick, and he took off his topi. For a moment he and Elizabeth remained gazing at one another. Their fresh faces were unmarred in the pitiless light. The grass-seeds were tickling Elizabeth's shins so that it was agony, and without her spectacles she could only see Verrall and his horse as a whitish blur. But she was happy, happy! Her heart bounded and the blood flowed into her face, dyeing it like a thin wash of aquarelle. The thought, 'A peach, by Christ!' moved almost fiercely through Verrall's mind. The sullen Indians, holding the ponies' heads, gazed curiously at the scene, as though the beauty of the two young people had made its impression even on them.

Mrs Lackersteen broke the silence, which had lasted half a minute.

'You know, Mr Verrall,' she said somewhat archly, 'we think it RATHER unkind of you to have neglected us poor people all this time. When we're so PINING for a new face at the Club.'

He was still looking at Elizabeth when he answered, but the change in his voice was remarkable.

'I've been meaning to come for some days. Been so fearfully busy--getting my men into their quarters and all that. I'm sorry,' he added--he was not in the habit of apologizing, but really, he had decided, this girl was rather an exceptional bit of stuff--'I'm sorry about not answering your note.'

'Oh, not at all! We QUITE understood. But we do hope we shall see you at the Club this evening! Because, you know,' she concluded even more archly, 'if you disappoint us any longer, we shall begin to think you rather a NAUGHTY young man!'

'I'm sorry,' he repeated. 'I'll be there this evening.'

There was not much more to be said, and the two women walked on to the Club. But they stayed barely five minutes. The grass-seeds were causing their shins such torment that they were obliged to hurry home and change their stockings at once.

Verrall kept his promise and was at the Club that evening. He arrived a little earlier than the others, and he had made his presence thoroughly felt before being in the place five minutes. As Ellis entered the Club the old butler darted out of the card-room and waylaid him. He was in great distress, the tears rolling down his cheeks.

'Sir! Sir!'

'What the devil's the matter now!' said Ellis.

'Sir! Sir! New master been beating me, sir!'

'What?'

'BEATING me sir!' His voice rose on the 'beating' with a long tearful wail--'be-e-e-eating!'

'Beating you? Do you good. Who's been beating you?'

'New master, sir. Military Police sahib. Beating me with his foot, sir--HERE!' He rubbed himself behind.

'Hell!' said Ellis.

He went into the lounge. Verrall was reading the Field, and invisible except for Palm Beach trouser-ends and two lustrous sooty-brown shoes. He did not trouble to stir at hearing someone else come into the room. Ellis halted.

'Here, you--what's your name--Verrall!'

'What?'

'Have you been kicking our butler?'

Verrall's sulky blue eye appeared round the corner of the Field, like the eye of a crustacean peering round a rock.

'What?' he repeated shortly.

'I said, have you been kicking our bloody butler?'

'Yes.'

'Then what the hell do you mean by it?'

'Beggar gave me his lip. I sent him for a whisky and soda, and he brought it warm. I told him to put ice in it, and he wouldn't--talked some bloody rot about saving the last pieces of ice. So I kicked his bottom. Serve him right.'

Ellis turned quite grey. He was furious. The butler was a piece of Club property and not to be kicked by strangers. But what most angered Ellis was the thought that Verrall quite possibly suspected him of being SORRY for the butler--in fact, of disapproving of kicking AS SUCH.

'Serve him right? I dare say it bloody well did serve him right. But what in hell's that got to do with it? Who are YOU to come kicking our servants?'

'Bosh, my good chap. Needed kicking. You've let your servants get out of hand here.'

'You damned, insolent young tick, what's it got to do with YOU if he needed kicking? You're not even a member of this Club. It's our job to kick the servants, not yours.'

Verrall lowered the Field and brought his other eye into play. His surly voice did not change its tone. He never lost his temper with a European; it was never necessary.

'My good chap, if anyone gives me lip I kick his bottom. Do you want me to kick yours?'

All the fire went out of Ellis suddenly. He was not afraid, he had never been afraid in his life; only, Verrall's eye was too much for him. That eye could make you feel as though you were under Niagara! The oaths wilted on Ellis's lips; his voice almost deserted him. He said querulously and even plaintively:

'But damn it, he was quite right not to give you the last bit of ice. Do you think we only buy ice for you? We can only get the stuff twice a week in this place.'

'Rotten bad management on your part, then,' said Verrall, and retired behind the Field, content to let the matter drop.

Ellis was helpless. The calm way in which Verrall went back to his paper, quite genuinely forgetting Ellis's existence, was maddening. Should he not give the young swab a good, rousing kick?

But somehow, the kick was never given. Verrall had earned many kicks in his life, but he had never received one and probably never would. Ellis seeped helplessly back to the card-room, to work off his feelings on the butler, leaving Verrall in possession of the lounge.

As Mr Macgregor entered the Club gate he heard the sound of music. Yellow chinks of lantern-light showed through the creeper that covered the tennis-screen. Mr Macgregor was in a happy mood this evening. He had promised himself a good, long talk with Miss Lackersteen--such an exceptionally intelligent girl, that!--and he had a most interesting anecdote to tell her (as a matter of fact, it had already seen the light in one of those little articles of his in Blackwood's) about a dacoity that had happened in Sagaing in 1913. She would love to hear it, he knew. He rounded the tennis-screen expectantly. On the court, in the mingled light of the waning moon and of lanterns slung among the trees, Verrall and Elizabeth were dancing. The chokras had brought out chairs and a table for the gramophone, and round these the other Europeans were sitting or standing. As Mr Macgregor halted at the corner of the court, Verrall and Elizabeth circled round and glided past him, barely a yard away. They were dancing very close together, her body bent backwards under his. Neither noticed Mr Macgregor.

Mr Macgregor made his way round the court. A chilly, desolate feeling had taken possession of his entrails. Good-bye, then, to his talk with Miss Lackersteen! It was an effort to screw his face into its usual facetious good-humour as he came up to the table.

'A Terpsichorean evening!' he remarked in a voice that was doleful in spite of himself.

No one answered. They were all watching the pair on the tennis court. Utterly oblivious of the others, Elizabeth and Verrall glided round and round, round and round, their shoes sliding easily on the slippery concrete. Verrall danced as he rode, with matchless grace. The gramophone was playing 'Show Me the Way to Go Home,' which was then going round the world like a pestilence and had got as far as Burma:

'Show me the way to go home,
I'm tired an' I wanna go to bed;
I had a little drink 'bout an hour ago,
An' it's gone right TO my head!' etc.

The dreary, depressing trash floated out among the shadowy trees and the streaming scents of flowers, over and over again, for Mrs Lackersteen was putting the gramophone needle back to the start when it neared the centre. The moon climbed higher, very yellow, looking, as she rose from the murk of dark clouds at the horizon, like a sick woman creeping out of bed. Verrall and Elizabeth danced on and on, indefatigably, a pale voluptuous shape in the gloom. They moved in perfect unison like some single animal. Mr Macgregor, Ellis, Westfield and Mr Lackersteen stood watching them, their hands in their pockets, finding nothing to say. The mosquitoes came nibbling at their ankles. Someone called for drinks, but the whisky was like ashes in their mouths. The bowels of all four older men were twisted with bitter envy.

Verrall did not ask Mrs Lackersteen for a dance, nor, when he and Elizabeth finally sat down, did he take any notice of the other Europeans. He merely monopolized Elizabeth for half an hour more, and then, with a brief good night to the Lackersteens and not a word to anyone else, left the Club. The long dance with Verrall had left Elizabeth in a kind of dream. He had asked her to come out riding with him! He was going to lend her one of his ponies! She never even noticed that Ellis, angered by her behaviour, was doing his best to be openly rude. It was late when the Lackersteens got home, but there was no sleep yet for Elizabeth or her aunt. They were feverishly at work till midnight, shortening a pair of Mrs Lackersteen's jodhpurs, and letting out the calves, to fit Elizabeth.

'I hope, dear, you CAN ride a horse?' said Mrs Lackersteen.

'Oh, of course! I've ridden ever such a lot, at home.'

She had ridden perhaps a dozen times in all, when she was sixteen. No matter, she would manage somehow! She would have ridden a tiger, if Verrall were to accompany her.

When at last the jodhpurs were finished and Elizabeth had tried them on, Mrs Lackersteen sighed to see her. She looked ravishing in jodhpurs, simply ravishing! And to think that in only a day or two they had got to go back to camp, for weeks, months perhaps, leaving Kyauktada and this most DESIRABLE young man! The pity of it! As they moved to go upstairs Mrs Lackersteen paused at the door. It had come into her head to make a great and painful sacrifice. She took Elizabeth by the shoulders and kissed her with a more real affection than she had ever shown.

'My dear, it would be such a SHAME for you to go away from Kyauktada just now!'

'It would, rather.'

'Then I'll tell you what, dear. We WON'T go back to that horrid jungle! Your uncle shall go alone. You and I shall stay in Kyauktada.'

19

The heat was growing worse and worse. April was nearly over, but there was no hope of rain for another three weeks, five weeks it might be. Even the lovely transient dawns were spoiled by the thought of the long, blinding hours to come, when one's head would ache and the glare would penetrate through every covering and glue up one's eyelids with restless sleep. No one, Oriental or European, could keep awake in the heat of the day without a struggle; at night, on the other hand, with the howling dogs and the pools of sweat that collected and tormented one's prickly heat, no one could sleep. The mosquitoes at the Club were so bad that sticks of incense had to be kept burning in all the corners, and the women sat with their legs in pillowslips. Only Verrall and Elizabeth were indifferent to the heat. They were young and their blood was fresh, and Verrall was too stoical and Elizabeth too happy to pay any attention to the climate.

There was much bickering and scandal-mongering at the Club these days. Verrall had put everyone's nose out of joint. He had taken to coming to the Club for an hour or two in the evenings, but he ignored the other members, refused the drinks they offered him, and answered attempts at conversation with surly monosyllables. He would sit under the punkah in the chair that had once been sacred to Mrs Lackersteen, reading such of the papers as interested him, until Elizabeth came, when he would dance and talk with her for an hour or two and then make off without so much as a good-night to anybody. Meanwhile Mr Lackersteen was alone in his camp, and, according to the rumours which drifted back to Kyauktada, consoling loneliness with quite a miscellany of Burmese women.

Elizabeth and Verrall went out riding together almost every evening now. Verrall's mornings, after parade, were sacred to polo practice, but he had decided that it was worth while giving up the evenings to Elizabeth. She took naturally to riding, just as she had to shooting; she even had the assurance to tell Verrall that she had 'hunted quite a lot' at home. He saw at a glance that she was lying, but at least she did not ride so badly as to be a nuisance to him.

They used to ride up the red road into the jungle, ford the stream by the big pyinkado tree covered with orchids, and then follow the narrow cart-track, where the dust was soft and the horses could gallop. It was stifling hot in the dusty jungle, and there were always mutterings of faraway, rainless thunder. Small martins flitted round the horses, keeping pace with them, to hawk for the flies their hooves turned up. Elizabeth rode the bay pony, Verrall the white. On the way home they would walk their sweat-dark horses abreast, so close sometimes his knee brushed against hers, and talk. Verrall could drop his offensive manner and talk amicably enough when he chose, and he did choose with Elizabeth.

Ah, the joy of those rides together! The joy of being on horseback and in the world of horses--the world of hunting and racing, polo and pigsticking! If Elizabeth had loved Verrall for nothing else, she would have loved him for bringing horses into her life. She tormented him to talk about horses as once she had tormented Flory to talk about shooting. Verrall was no talker, it was true. A few gruff, jerky sentences about polo and pigsticking, and a catalogue of Indian stations and the names of regiments, were the best he could do. And yet somehow the little he said could thrill Elizabeth as all Flory's talk had never done. The mere sight of him on horseback was more evocative than any words. An aura of horsemanship and soldiering surrounded him. In his tanned face and his hard, straight body Elizabeth saw all the romance, the splendid panache of a cavalryman's life. She saw the North-West Frontier and the Cavalry Club--she saw the polo grounds and the parched barrack yards, and the brown squadrons of horsemen galloping with their long lances poised and the trains of their pagris streaming; she heard the bugle-calls and the jingle of spurs, and the regimental bands playing outside the messrooms while the officers sat at dinner in their stiff, gorgeous uniforms. How splendid it was, that equestrian world, how splendid! And it was HER world, she belonged to it, she had been born of it. These days, she lived, thought, dreamed horses, almost like Verrall himself. The time came when she not only TOLD her taradiddle about having 'hunted quite a lot', she even came near believing it.

In every possible way they got on so well together. He never bored her and fretted her as Flory had done. (As a matter of fact, she had almost forgotten Flory, these days; when she thought of him, it was for some reason always his birthmark that she remembered.) It was a bond between them that Verrall detested anything 'highbrow' even more than she did. He told her once that he had not read a book since he was eighteen, and that indeed he 'loathed' books; 'except, of course, Jorrocks and all that'. On the evening of their third or fourth ride they were parting at the Lackersteens' gate. Verrall had successfully resisted all Mrs Lackersteen's invitations to meals; he had not yet set foot inside the Lackersteens' house, and he did not intend to do so. As the syce was taking Elizabeth's pony, Verrall said:

'I tell you what. Next time we come out you shall ride Belinda. I'll ride the chestnut. I think you've got on well enough not to go and cut Belinda's mouth up.'

Belinda was the Arab mare. Verrall had owned her two years, and till this moment he had never once allowed anyone else to mount her, not even the syce. It was the greatest favour that he could imagine. And so perfectly did Elizabeth appreciate Verrall's point of view that she understood the greatness of the favour, and was thankful.

The next evening, as they rode home side by side, Verrall put his arm round Elizabeth's shoulder, lifted her out of the saddle and pulled her against him. He was very strong. He dropped the bridle, and with his free hand, lifted her face up to meet his; their mouths met. For a moment he held her so, then lowered her to the ground and slipped from his horse. They stood embraced, their thin, drenched shirts pressed together, the two bridles held in the crook of his arm.

It was about the same time that Flory, twenty miles away, decided to come back to Kyauktada. He was standing at the jungle's edge by the bank of a dried-up stream, where he had walked to tire himself, watching some tiny, nameless finches eating the seeds of the tall grasses. The cocks were chrome-yellow, the hens like hen sparrows. Too tiny to bend the stalks, they came whirring towards them, seized them in midflight and bore them to the ground by their own weight. Flory watched the birds incuriously, and almost hated them because they could light no spark of interest in him. In his idleness he flung his dah at them, scaring them away. If she were here, if she were here! Everything--birds, trees, flowers, everything--was deadly and meaningless because she was not here. As the days passed the knowledge that he had lost her had grown surer and more actual until it poisoned every moment.

He loitered a little way into the jungle, flicking at creepers with his dah. His limbs felt slack and leaden. He noticed a wild vanilla plant trailing over a bush, and bent down to sniff at its slender, fragrant pods. The scent brought him a feeling of staleness and deadly ennui. Alone, alone, in the sea of life enisled! The pain was so great that he struck his fist against a tree, jarring his arm and splitting two knuckles. He must go back to Kyauktada. It was folly, for barely a fortnight had passed since the scene between them, and his only chance was to give her time to forget it. Still, he must go back. He could not stay any longer in this deadly place, alone with his thoughts among the endless, mindless leaves.

A happy thought occurred to him. He could take Elizabeth the leopard-skin that was being cured for her in the jail. It would be a pretext for seeing her, and when one comes bearing gifts one is generally listened to. This time he would not let her cut him short without a word. He would explain, extenuate--make her realize that she had been unjust to him. It was not right that she should condemn him because of Ma Hla May, whom he had turned out of doors for Elizabeth's own sake. Surely she must forgive him when she heard the truth of the story? And this time she SHOULD hear it; he would force her to listen to him if he had to hold her by the arms while he did it.

He went back the same evening. It was a twenty-mile journey, by rutted cart-tracks, but Flory decided to march by night, giving the reason that it was cooler. The servants almost mutinied at the idea of a night-march, and at the very last moment old Sammy collapsed in a semi-genuine fit and had to be plied with gin before he could start. It was a moonless night. They made their way by the light of lanterns, in which Flo's eyes gleamed like emeralds and the bullocks' eyes like moonstones. When the sun was up the servants halted to gather sticks and cook breakfast, but Flory was in a fever to be at Kyauktada, and he hurried ahead. He had no feeling of tiredness. The thought of the leopard-skin had filled him with extravagant hopes. He crossed the glittering river by sampan and went straight to Dr Veraswami's bungalow, getting there about ten.

The doctor invited him to breakfast, and--having shooed the women into some suitable hiding-place--took him into his own bath-room so that he could wash and shave. At breakfast the doctor was very excited and full of denunciations of 'the crocodile'; for it appeared that the pseudo-rebellion was now on the point of breaking out. It was not till after breakfast that Flory had an opportunity to mention the leopard-skin.

'Oh, by the way, doctor. What about that skin I sent to the jail to be cured? Is it done yet?'

'Ah--' said the doctor in a slightly disconcerted manner, rubbing his nose. He went inside the house--they were breakfasting on the veranda, for the doctor's wife had protested violently against Flory being brought indoors--and came back in a moment with the skin rolled up in a bundle.

'Ass a matter of fact--' he began, unrolling it.

'Oh, doctor!'

The skin had been utterly ruined. It was as stiff as cardboard, with the leather cracked and the fur discoloured and even rubbed off in patches. It also stank abominably. Instead of being cured, it had been converted into a piece of rubbish.

'Oh, doctor! What a mess they've made of it! How the devil did it happen?'

'I am so sorry, my friend! I wass about to apologize. It wass the best we could do. There iss no one at the jail who knows how to cure skins now.'

'But, damn it, that convict used to cure them so beautifully!'

'Ah, yes. But he iss gone from us these three weeks, alas.'

'Gone? I thought he was doing seven years?'

'What? Did you not hear, my friend? I thought you knew who it wass that used to cure the skins. It was Nga Shwe O.'

'Nga Shwe O?'

'The dacoit who escaped with U Po Kyin's assistance.'

'Oh, hell!'

The mishap had daunted him dreadfully. Nevertheless, in the afternoon, having bathed and put on a clean suit, he went up to the Lackersteens' house, at about four. It was very early to call, but he wanted to make sure of catching Elizabeth before she went down to the Club. Mrs Lackersteen, who had been asleep and was not prepared for visitors, received him with an ill grace, not even asking him to sit down.

'I'm afraid Elizabeth isn't down yet. She's dressing to go out riding. Wouldn't it be better if you left a message?'

'I'd like to see her, if you don't mind. I've brought her the skin of that leopard we shot together.'

Mrs Lackersteen left him standing up in the drawing-room, feeling lumpish and abnormally large as one does at such times. However, she fetched Elizabeth, taking the opportunity of whispering to her outside the door: 'Get rid of that dreadful man as soon as you can, dear. I can't bear him about the house at this time of day.'

As Elizabeth entered the room Flory's heart pounded so violently that a reddish mist passed behind his eyes. She was wearing a silk shirt and jodhpurs, and she was a little sunburned. Even in his memory she had never been so beautiful. He quailed; on the instant he was lost--every scrap of his screwed-up courage had fled. Instead of stepping forward to meet her he actually backed away. There was a fearful crash behind him; he had upset an occasional table and sent a bowl of zinnias hurtling across the floor.

'I'm so sorry!' he exclaimed in horror.

'Oh, not at ALL! PLEASE don't worry about it!'

She helped him to pick up the table, chattering all the while as gaily and easily as though nothing had happened: 'You HAVE been away a long time, Mr Flory! You're quite a STRANGER! We've SO missed you at the Club!' etc., etc. She was italicizing every other word, with that deadly, glittering brightness that a woman puts on when she is dodging a moral obligation. He was terrified of her. He could not even look her in the face. She took up a box of cigarettes and offered him one, but he refused it. His hand was shaking too much to take it.

'I've brought you that skin,' he said flatly.

He unrolled it on the table they had just picked up. It looked so shabby and miserable that he wished he had never brought it. She came close to him to examine the skin, so close that her flower-like cheek was not a foot from his own, and he could feel the warmth of her body. So great was his fear of her that he stepped hurriedly away. And in the same moment she too stepped back with a wince of disgust, having caught the foul odour of the skin. It shamed him terribly. It was almost as though it had been himself and not the skin that stank.

'Thank you EVER so much, Mr Flory!' She had put another yard between herself and the skin. 'Such a LOVELY big skin, isn't it?'

'It was, but they've spoiled it, I'm afraid.'

'Oh no! I shall love having it!--Are you back in Kyauktada for long? How dreadfully hot it must have been in camp!'

'Yes, it's been very hot.'

For three minutes they actually talked of the weather. He was helpless. All that he had promised himself to say, all his arguments and pleadings, had withered in his throat. 'You fool, you fool,' he thought, 'what are you doing? Did you come twenty miles for this? Go on, say what you came to say! Seize her in your arms; make her listen, kick her, beat her--anything sooner than let her choke you with this drivel!' But it was hopeless, hopeless. Not a word could his tongue utter except futile trivialities. How could he plead or argue, when that bright easy air of hers, that dragged every word to the level of Club-chatter silenced him before he spoke? Where do they learn it, that dreadful tee-heeing brightness? In these brisk modern girls' schools, no doubt. The piece of carrion on the table made him more ashamed every moment. He stood there almost voiceless, lumpishly ugly with his face yellow and creased after the sleepless night, and his birthmark like a smear of dirt.

She got rid of him after a very few minutes. 'And now, Mr Flory, if you DON'T mind, I ought really--'

He mumbled rather than said, 'Won't you come out with me again some time? Walking, shooting--something?'

'I have so LITTLE time nowadays! ALL my evenings seem to be full. This evening I'm going out riding. With Mr Verrall,' she added.

It was possible that she added that in order to wound him. This was the first that he had heard of her friendship with Verrall. He could not keep the dread, flat tone of envy out of his voice as he said:

'Do you go out riding much with Verrall?'

'Almost every evening. He's such a wonderful horseman! And he has absolute STRINGS of polo ponies!'

'Ah. And of course I have no polo ponies.'

It was the first thing he had said that even approached seriousness, and it did no more than offend her. However, she answered him with the same gay easy air as before, and then showed him out. Mrs Lackersteen came back to the drawing-room, sniffed the air, and immediately ordered the servants to take the reeking leopard-skin outside and burn it.

Flory lounged at his garden gate, pretending to feed the pigeons. He could not deny himself the pain of seeing Elizabeth and Verrall start on their ride. How vulgarly, how cruelly she had behaved to him! It is dreadful when people will not even have the decency to quarrel. Presently Verrall rode up to the Lackersteens' house on the white pony, with a syce riding the chestnut, then there was a pause, then they emerged together, Verrall on the chestnut pony, Elizabeth on the white, and trotted quickly up the hill. They were chattering and laughing, her silk-shirted shoulder very close to his. Neither looked towards Flory.

When they had disappeared into the jungle, Flory still loafed in the garden. The glare was waning to yellow. The mali was at work grubbing up the English flowers, most of which had died, slain by too much sunshine, and planting balsams, cockscombs, and more zinnias. An hour passed, and a melancholy, earth-coloured Indian loitered up the drive, dressed in a loin-cloth and a salmon-pink pagri on which a washing-basket was balanced. He laid down his basket and salaamed to Flory.

'Who are you?'

'Book-wallah, sahib.'

The book-wallah was an itinerant peddler of books who wandered from station to station throughout Upper Burma. His system of exchange was that for any book in his bundle you gave him four annas, and any other book. Not quite ANY book, however, for the book-wallah, though analphabetic, had learned to recognize and refuse a Bible.

'No, sahib,' he would say plaintively, 'no. This book (he would turn it over disapprovingly in his flat brown hands) this book with a black cover and gold letters--this one I cannot take. I know not how it is, but all sahibs are offering me this book, and none are taking it. What can it be that is in this black book? Some evil, undoubtedly.'

'Turn out your trash,' Flory said.

He hunted among them for a good thriller--Edgar Wallace or Agatha Christie or something; anything to still the deadly restlessness that was at his heart. As he bent over the books he saw that both Indians were exclaiming and pointing towards the edge of the jungle.

'Dekko!' said the mali in his plum-in-the-mouth voice.

The two ponies were emerging from the jungle. But they were riderless. They came trotting down the hill with the silly guilty air of a horse that has escaped from its master, with the stirrups swinging and clashing under their bellies.

Flory remained unconsciously clasping one of the books against his chest. Verrall and Elizabeth had dismounted. It was not an accident; by no effort of the mind could one imagine Verrall falling off his horse. They had dismounted, and the ponies had escaped.

They had dismounted--for what? Ah, but he knew for what! It was not a question of suspecting; he KNEW. He could see the whole thing happening, in one of those hallucinations that are so perfect in detail, so vilely obscene, that they are past bearing. He threw the book violently down and made for the house, leaving the book-wallah disappointed. The servants heard him moving about indoors, and presently he called for a bottle of whisky. He had a drink and it did him no good. Then he filled a tumbler two-thirds full, added enough water to make it drinkable, and swallowed it. The filthy, nauseous dose was no sooner down his throat than he repeated it. He had done the same thing in camp once, years ago, when he was tortured by toothache and three hundred miles from a dentist. At seven Ko S'la came in as usual to say that the bath-water was hot. Flory was lying in one of the long chairs, with his coat off and his shirt torn open at the throat.

'Your bath, thakin,' said Ko S'la.

Flory did not answer, and Ko S'la touched his arm, thinking him asleep. Flory was much too drunk to move. The empty bottle had rolled across the floor, leaving a trail of whisky-drops behind it. Ko S'la called for Ba Pe and picked up the bottle, clicking his tongue.

'Just look at this! He has drunk more than three-quarters of a bottle!'

'What, again? I thought he had given up drinking?'

'It is that accursed woman, I suppose. Now we must carry him carefully. You take his heels, I'll take his head. That's right.

Hoist him up!'

They carried Flory into the other room and laid him gently on the bed.

'Is he really going to marry this "Ingaleikma"?' said Ba Pe.

'Heaven knows. She is the mistress of the young police officer at present, so I was told. Their ways are not our ways. I think I know what he will be wanting tonight,' he added as he undid Flory's braces--for Ko S'la had the art, so necessary in a bachelor's servant, of undressing his master without waking him.

The servants were rather more pleased than not to see this return to bachelor habits. Flory woke about midnight, naked in a pool of sweat. His head felt as though some large, sharp-cornered metal object were bumping about inside it. The mosquito net was up, and a young woman was sitting beside the bed fanning him with a wicker fan. She had an agreeable negroid face, bronze-gold in the candlelight. She explained that she was a prostitute, and that Ko S'la had engaged her on his own responsibility for a fee of ten rupees.

Flory's head was splitting. 'For God's sake get me something to drink,' he said feebly to the woman. She brought him some soda-water which Ko S'la had cooled in readiness and soaked a towel and put a wet compress round his forehead. She was a fat, good-tempered creature. She told him that her name was Ma Sein Galay, and that besides plying her other trade she sold paddy baskets in the bazaar near Li Yeik's shop. Flory's head felt better presently, and he asked for a cigarette; whereupon Ma Sein Galay, having fetched the cigarette, said naively, 'Shall I take my clothes off now, thakin?'

Why not? he thought dimly. He made room for her in the bed. But when he smelled the familiar scent of garlic and coco-nut oil, something painful happened within him, and with his head pillowed on Ma Sein Galay's fat shoulder he actually wept, a thing he had not done since he was fifteen years old.

20

Next morning there was great excitement in Kyauktada, for the long-rumoured rebellion had at last broken out. Flory heard only a vague report of it at the time. He had gone back to camp as soon as he felt fit to march after the drunken night, and it was not until several days later that he learned the true history of the rebellion, in a long, indignant letter from Dr Veraswami.

The doctor's epistolary style was queer. His syntax was shaky and he was as free with capital letters as a seventeenth-century divine, while in the use of italics he rivalled Queen Victoria. There were eight pages of his small but sprawling handwriting.

MY DEAR FRIEND [the letter ran],--You will much regret to hear that the WILES OF THE CROCODILE have matured. The rebellion--the SO-CALLED rebellion--is all over and finished. And it has been, alas! a more Bloody affair than I had hoped should have been the case.

All has fallen out as I have prophesied to you it would be. On the day when you came back to Kyauktada U Po Kyin's SPIES have informed him that the poor unfortunate men whom he have Deluded are assembling in the jungle near Thongwa. The same night he sets out secretly with U Lugale, the Police Inspector, who is as great a Rogue as he, if that could be, and twelve constables. They make a swift raid upon Thongwa and surprise the rebels, of whom they are only Seven!! in a ruined field hut in the jungle. Also Mr Maxwell, who have heard rumours of the rebellion, came across from his camp bringing his Rifle and was in time to join U Po Kyin and the police in their attack on the hut. The next morning the clerk Ba Sein, who is U Po Kyin's JACKALL and DIRTY WORKER, have orders to raise the cry of rebellion as Sensationally as possible, which was done, and Mr Macgregor, Mr Westfield and Lieutenant Verrall all rush out to Thongwa carrying fifty sepoys armed with rifles besides Civil Police. But they arrive to find it is all over and U Po Kyin was sitting under a big teak tree in the middle of the village and PUTTING ON AIRS and lecturing the villages, whereat they are all bowing very frightened and touching the ground with their foreheads and swearing they will be forever loyal to the Government, and the rebellion is already at an end. The SO-CALLED weiksa, who is no other than a circus conjurer and the MINION of U Po Kyin, have vanished for parts unknown, but six rebels have been Caught. So there is an end.

Also I should inform you that there was most regrettably a Death. Mr Maxwell was I think TOO ANXIOUS to use his Rifle and when one of the rebels try to run away he fired and shoot him in the abdomen, at which he died. I think the villagers have some BAD FEELING towards Mr Maxwell because of it. But from the point of view legal all is well for Mr Maxwell, because the men were undoubtedly conspiring against the Government.

Ah, but, my Friend, I trust that you understand how disastrous may all this be for me! You will realise, I think, what is its bearing upon the Contest between U Po Kyin and myself, and the supreme LEG-UP it must give to him. It is the TRIUMPH OF THE CROCODILE. U Po Kyin is now the Hero of the district. He is the PET of the Europeans. I am told that even Mr Ellis has praised his conduct. If you could witness the abominable Conceitedness and the LIES he is now telling as to how there were not seven rebels but Two Hundred!! and how he crushed upon them revolver in hand--he who only directing operations from a SAFE DISTANCE while the police and Mr Maxwell creep up upon the hut--you would find is veritably Nauseous I assure you. He has had the effrontery to send in an official report of the matter which started, 'By my loyal promptitude and reckless daring', and I hear that positively he had had this Conglomeration of lies written out in readiness days BEFORE THE OCCURRENCE. It is Disgusting. And to think that now when he is at the Height of his triumph he will again begin to calumniate me with all the venom at his disposal etc. etc.

The rebels' entire stock of weapons had been captured. The armoury with which, when their followers were assembled, they had proposed to march upon Kyauktada, consisted of the following:

Item, one shotgun with a damaged left barrel, stolen from a Forest Officer three years earlier.

Item, six home-made guns with barrels of zinc piping stolen from the railway. These could be fired, after a fashion, by thrusting a nail through the touch-hole and striking it with a stone.

Item, thirty-nine twelve-bore cartridges.

Item, eleven dummy guns carved out of teakwood.

Item, some large Chinese crackers which were to have been fired in terrorem.

Later, two of the rebels were sentenced to fifteen years' transportation, three to three years' imprisonment and twenty-five lashes, and one to two years' imprisonment.

The whole miserable rebellion was so obviously at an end that the Europeans were not considered to be in any danger, and Maxwell had gone back to his camp unguarded. Flory intended to stay in camp until the rains broke, or at least until the general meeting at the Club. He had promised to be in for that, to propose the doctor's election; though now, with his own trouble to think of, the whole business of the intrigue between U Po Kyin and the doctor sickened him.

More weeks crawled by. The heat was dreadful now. The overdue rain seemed to have bred a fever in the air. Flory was out of health, and worked incessantly, worrying over petty jobs that should have been left to the overseer, and making the coolies and even the servants hate him. He drank gin at all hours, but not even drinking could distract him now. The vision of Elizabeth in Verrall's arms haunted him like a neuralgia or an earache. At any moment it would come upon him, vivid and disgusting, scattering his thoughts, wrenching him back from the brink of sleep, turning his food to dust in his mouth. At times he flew into savage rages, and once even struck Ko S'la. What was worse than all was the DETAIL--the always filthy detail--in which the imagined scene appeared. The very perfection of the detail seemed to prove that it was true.

Is there anything in the world more graceless, more dishonouring, than to desire a woman whom you will never have? Throughout all these weeks Flory's mind held hardly a thought which was not murderous or obscene. It is the common effect of jealousy. Once he had loved Elizabeth spiritually, sentimentally indeed, desiring her sympathy more than her caresses; now, when he had lost her, he was tormented by the basest physical longing. He did not even idealize her any longer. He saw her now almost as she was--silly, snobbish, heartless--and it made no difference to his longing for her. Does it ever make any difference? At nights when he lay awake, his bed dragged outside the tent for coolness, looking at the velvet dark from which the barking of a gyi sometimes sounded, he hated himself for the images that inhabited his mind. It was so base, this envying of the better man who had beaten him. For it was only envy--even jealousy was too good a name for it. What right had he to be jealous? He had offered himself to a girl who was too young and pretty for him, and she had turned him down--rightly. He had got the snub he deserved. Nor was there any appeal from that decision; nothing would ever make him young again, or take away his birthmark and his decade of lonely debaucheries. He could only stand and look on while the better man took her, and envy him, like--but the simile was not even mentionable. Envy is a horrible thing. It is unlike all other kinds of suffering in that there is no disguising it, no elevating it into tragedy. It is more than merely painful, it is disgusting.

But meanwhile, was it true, what he suspected? Had Verrall really become Elizabeth's lover? There is no knowing, but on the whole the chances were against it, for, had it been so, there would have been no concealing it in such a place as Kyauktada. Mrs Lackersteen would probably have guessed it, even if the others had not. One thing was certain, however, and that was that Verrall had as yet made no proposal of marriage. A week went by, two weeks, three weeks; three weeks is a very long time in a small Indian station. Verrall and Elizabeth rode together every evening, danced together every night; yet Verrall had never so much as entered the Lackersteens' house. There was endless scandal about Elizabeth, of course. All the Orientals of the town had taken it for granted that she was Verrall's mistress. U Po Kyin's version (he had a way of being essentially right even when he was wrong in detail) was that Elizabeth had been Flory's concubine and had deserted him for Verrall because Verrall paid her more. Ellis, too, was inventing tales about Elizabeth that made Mr Macgregor squirm. Mrs Lackersteen, as a relative, did not hear these scandals, but she was growing nervous. Every evening when Elizabeth came home from her ride she would meet her hopefully, expecting the 'Oh, aunt! What DO you think!'--and then the glorious news. But the news never came, and however carefully she studied Elizabeth's face, she could divine nothing.

When three weeks had passed Mrs Lackersteen became fretful and finally half angry. The thought of her husband, alone--or rather, not alone--in his camp, was troubling her. After all, she had sent him back to camp in order to give Elizabeth her chance with Verrall (not that Mrs Lackersteen would have put it so vulgarly as that). One evening she began lecturing and threatening Elizabeth in her oblique way. The conversation consisted of a sighing monologue with very long pauses--for Elizabeth made no answer whatever.

Mrs Lackersteen began with some general remarks, apropos of a photograph in the Tatler, about these fast MODERN girls who went about in beach pyjamas and all that and made themselves so dreadfully CHEAP with men. A girl, Mrs Lackersteen said, should NEVER make herself too cheap with a man; she should make herself--but the opposite of 'cheap' seemed to be 'expensive', and that did not sound at all right, so Mrs Lackersteen changed her tack. She went on to tell Elizabeth about a letter she had had from home with further news of that poor, POOR dear girl who was out in Burma for a while and had so foolishly neglected to get married. Her sufferings had been quite heartrending, and it just showed how glad a girl ought to be to marry anyone, literally ANYONE. It appeared that the poor, poor dear girl had lost her job and been practically STARVING for a long time, and now she had actually had to take a job as a common kitchen maid under a horrid, vulgar cook who bullied her most shockingly. And it seemed that the black beetles in the kitchen were simply beyond belief! Didn't Elizabeth think it too absolutely dreadful? BLACK BEETLES!

Mrs Lackersteen remained silent for some time, to allow the black beetles to sink in, before adding:

'SUCH a pity that Mr Verrall will be leaving us when the rains break. Kyauktada will seem quite EMPTY without him!'

'When do the rains break, usually?' said Elizabeth as indifferently as she could manage.

'About the beginning of June, up here. Only a week or two now. . . . My dear, it seems absurd to mention it again, but I cannot get out of my head the thought of that poor, poor dear girl in the kitchen among the BLACK BEETLES!'

Black beetles recurred more than once in Mrs Lackersteen's conversation during the rest of the evening. It was not until the following day that she remarked in the tone of someone dropping an unimportant piece of gossip:

'By the way, I believe Flory is coming back to Kyauktada at the beginning of June. He said he was going to be in for the general meeting at the Club. Perhaps we might invite him to dinner some time.'

It was the first time that either of them had mentioned Flory since the day when he had brought Elizabeth the leopard-skin. After being virtually forgotten for several weeks, he had returned to each woman's mind, a depressing pis aller.

Three days later Mrs Lackersteen sent word to her husband to come back to Kyauktada. He had been in camp long enough to earn a short spell in headquarters. He came back, more florid than ever--sunburn, he explained--and having acquired such a trembling of the hands that he could barely light a cigarette. Nevertheless, that evening he celebrated his return by manoeuvring Mrs Lackersteen out of the house, coming into Elizabeth's bedroom and making a spirited attempt to rape her.

During all this time, unknown to anyone of importance, further sedition was afoot. The 'weiksa' (now far away, peddling the philosopher's stone to innocent villagers in Martaban) had perhaps done his job a little better than he intended. At any rate, there was a possibility of fresh trouble--some isolated, futile outrage, probably. Even U Po Kyin knew nothing of this yet. But as usual the gods were fighting on his side, for any further rebellion would make the first seem more serious than it had been, and so add to his glory.

21

O western wind, when wilt thou blow, that the small rain down can rain? It was the first of June, the day of the general meeting, and there had not been a drop of rain yet. As Flory came up the Club path the sun of afternoon, slanting beneath his hat-brim, was still savage enough to scorch his neck uncomfortably. The mali staggered along the path, his breast-muscles slippery with sweat, carrying two kerosene-tins of water on a yoke. He dumped them down, slopping a little water over his lank brown feet, and salaamed to Flory.

'Well, mali, is the rain coming?'

The man gestured vaguely towards the west. 'The hills have captured it, sahib.'

Kyauktada was ringed almost round by hills, and these caught the earlier showers, so that sometimes no rain fell till almost the end of June. The earth of the flower-beds, hoed into large untidy lumps, looked grey and hard as concrete. Flory went into the lounge and found Westfield loafing by the veranda, looking out over the river, for the chicks had been rolled up. At the foot of the veranda a chokra lay on his back in the sun, pulling the punkah rope with his heel and shading his face with a broad strip of banana leaf.

'Hullo, Flory! You've got thin as a rake.'

'So've you.'

'H'm, yes. Bloody weather. No appetite except for booze. Christ, won't I be glad when I hear the frogs start croaking. Let's have a spot before the others come. Butler!'

'Do you know who's coming to the meeting?' Flory said, when the butler had brought whisky and tepid soda.

'Whole crowd, I believe. Lackersteen got back from camp three days ago. By God, that man's been having the time of his life away from his missus! My inspector was telling me about the goings-on at his camp. Tarts by the score. Must have imported 'em specially from Kyauktada. He'll catch it all right when the old woman sees his Club bill. Eleven bottles of whisky sent out to his camp in a fortnight.'

'Is young Verrall coming?'

'No, he's only a temporary member. Not that he'd trouble to come anyway, young tick. Maxwell won't be here either. Can't leave camp just yet, he says. He sent word Ellis was to speak for him if there's any voting to be done. Don't suppose there'll be anything to vote about, though eh?' he added, looking at Flory obliquely, for both of them remembered their previous quarrel on this subject.

'I suppose it lies with Macgregor.'

'What I mean is, Macgregor'll have dropped that bloody rot about electing a native member, eh? Not the moment for it just now. After the rebellion and all that.'

'What about the rebellion, by the way?' said Flory. He did not want to start wrangling about the doctor's election yet. There was going to be trouble and to spare in a few minutes. 'Any more news--are they going to have another try, do you think?'

'No. All over, I'm afraid. They caved in like the funks they are. The whole district's as quiet as a bloody girls' school. Most disappointing.'

Flory's heart missed a beat. He had heard Elizabeth's voice in the next room. Mr Macgregor came in at this moment, Ellis and Mr Lackersteen following. This made up the full quota, for the women members of the Club had no votes. Mr Macgregor was already dressed in a silk suit, and was carrying the Club account books under his arm. He managed to bring a sub-official air even into such petty business as a Club meeting.

'As we seem to be all here,' he said after the usual greetings, 'shall we--ah--proceed with our labours?'

'Lead on, Macduff,' said Westfield, sitting down.

'Call the butler, someone, for Christ's sake,' said Mr Lackersteen. 'I daren't let my missus hear me calling him.'

'Before we apply ourselves to the agenda,' said Mr Macgregor when he had refused a drink and the others had taken one, 'I expect you will want me to run through the accounts for the half-year?'

They did not want it particularly, but Mr Macgregor, who enjoyed this kind of thing, ran through the accounts with great thoroughness. Flory's thoughts were wandering. There was going to be such a row in a moment--oh, such a devil of a row! They would be furious when they found that he was proposing the doctor after all. And Elizabeth was in the next room. God send she didn't hear the noise of the row when it came. It would make her despise him all the more to see the others baiting him. Would he see her this evening? Would she speak to him? He gazed across the quarter-mile of gleaming river. By the far bank a knot of men, one of them wearing a green gaungbaung, were waiting beside a sampan. In the channel, by the nearer bank, a huge, clumsy Indian barge struggled with desperate slowness against the racing current. At each stroke the ten rowers, Dravidian starvelings, ran forward and plunged their long primitive oars, with heart-shaped blades, into the water. They braced their meagre bodies, then tugged, writhed, strained backwards like agonized creatures of black rubber, and the ponderous hull crept onwards a yard or two. Then the rowers sprang forward, panting, to plunge their oars again before the current should check her.

'And now,' said Mr Macgregor more gravely, 'we come to the main point of the agenda. That, of course, is this--ah--distasteful question, which I am afraid must be faced, of electing a native member to this Club. When we discussed the matter before--'

'What the hell!'

It was Ellis who had interrupted. He was so excited that he had sprung to his feet.

'What the hell! Surely we aren't starting THAT over again? Talk about electing a damned nigger so this Club, after everything that's happened! Good God, I thought even Flory had dropped it by this time!'

'Our friend Ellis appears surprised. The matter has been discussed before, I believe.'

'I should think it damned well was discussed before! And we all said what we thought of it. By God--'

'If our friend Ellis will sit down for a few moments--' said Mr Macgregor tolerantly.

Ellis threw himself into his chair again, exclaiming, 'Bloody rubbish!' Beyond the river Flory could see the group of Burmans embarking. They were lifting a long, awkward-shaped bundle into the sampan. Mr Macregor had produced a letter from his file of papers.

'Perhaps I had better explain how this question arose in the first place. The Commissioner tells me that a circular has been sent round by the Government, suggesting that in those Clubs where there are no native members, one at least shall be co-opted; that is, admitted automatically. The circular says--ah yes! here it is: "It is mistaken policy to offer social affronts to native officials of high standing." I may say that I disagree most emphatically. No doubt we all do. We who have to do the actual work of government see things very differently from these--ah--Paget M.P.s who interfere with us from above. The Commissioner quite agrees with me. However--'

'But it's all bloody rot!' broke in Ellis. 'What's it got to do with the Commissioner or anyone else? Surely we can do as we like in our own bloody Club? They've no right to dictate to us when we're off duty.'

'Quite,' said Westfield.

'You anticipate me. I told the Commissioner that I should have to put the matter before the other members. And the course he suggests is this. If the idea finds any support in the Club, he thinks it would be better if we co-opted our native member. On the other hand, if the entire Club is against it, it can be dropped. That is, if opinion is quite unanimous.'

'Well, it damned well is unanimous,' said Ellis.

'D'you mean,' said Westfield, 'that it depends on ourselves whether we have 'em in here or no?'

'I fancy we can take it as meaning that.'

'Well, then, let's say we're against it to a man.'

'And say it bloody firmly, by God. We want to put our foot down on this idea once and for all.'

'Hear, hear!' said Mr Lackersteen gruffly. 'Keep the black swabs out of it. Esprit de corps and all that.'

Mr Lackersteen could always be relied upon for sound sentiments in a case like this. In his heart he did not care and never had cared a damn for the British Raj, and he was as happy drinking with an Oriental as with a white man; but he was always ready with a loud 'Hear, hear!' when anyone suggested the bamboo for disrespectful servants or boiling oil for Nationalists. He prided himself that though he might booze a bit and all that, dammit, he WAS loyal. It was his form of respectability. Mr Macgregor was secretly rather relieved by the general agreement. If any Oriental member were co-opted, that member would have to be Dr Veraswami, and he had had the deepest distrust of the doctor ever since Nga Shwe O's suspicious escape from the jail.

'Then I take it that you are all agreed?' he said. 'If so, I will inform the Commissioner. Otherwise, we must begin discussing the candidate for election.'

Flory stood up. He had got to say his say. His heart seemed to have risen into his throat and to be choking him. From what Mr Macgregor had said, it was clear that it was in his power to secure the doctor's election by speaking the word. But oh, what a bore, what a nuisance it was! What an infernal uproar there would be!

How he wished he had never given the doctor that promise! No matter, he had given it, and he could not break it. So short a time ago he would have broken it, en bon pukka sahib, how easily! But not now. He had got to see this thing through. He turned himself sidelong so that his birthmark was away from the others. Already he could feel his voice going flat and guilty.

'Our friend Flory has something to suggest?'

'Yes. I propose Dr Veraswami as a member of this Club.'

There was such a yell of dismay from three of the others that Mr Macgregor had to rap sharply on the table and remind them that the ladies were in the next room. Ellis took not the smallest notice. He had sprung to his feet again, and the skin round his nose had gone quite grey. He and Flory remained facing one another, as though on the point of blows.

'Now, you damned swab, will you take that back?'

'No, I will not.'

'You oily swine! You nigger's Nancy Boy! You crawling, sneaking,--bloody bastard!'

'Order!' exclaimed Mr Macgregor.

'But look at him, look at him!' cried Ellis almost tearfully. 'Letting us all down for the sake of a pot-bellied nigger! After all we've said to him! When we've only got to hang together and we can keep the stink of garlic out of this Club for ever. My God, wouldn't it make you spew your guts up to see anyone behaving like such a--?'

'Take it back, Flory, old man!' said Westfield. 'Don't be a bloody fool!'

'Downright Bolshevism, dammit!' said Mr Lackersteen.

'Do you think I care what you say? What business is it of yours? It's for Macgregor to decide.'

'Then do you--ah--adhere to your decision?' said Mr Macgregor gloomily.

'Yes.'

Mr Macgregor sighed. 'A pity! Well, in that case I suppose I have no choice--'

'No, no, no!' cried Ellis, dancing about in his rage. 'Don't give in to him! Put it to the vote. And if that son of a bitch doesn't put in a black ball like the rest of us, we'll first turf him out of the Club himself, and then--well! Butler!'

'Sahib!' said the butler, appearing.

'Bring the ballot box and the balls. Now clear out!' he added roughly when the butler had obeyed.

The air had gone very stagnant; for some reason the punkah had stopped working. Mr Macgregor stood up with a disapproving but judicial mien, taking the two drawers of black and white balls out of the ballot box.

'We must proceed in order. Mr Flory proposes Dr Veraswami, the Civil Surgeon, as a member of this Club. Mistaken, in my opinion, greatly mistaken; however--! Before putting the matter to the vote--'

'Oh, why make a song and dance about it?' said Ellis. 'Here's my contribution! And another for Maxwell.' He plumped two black balls into the box. Then one of his sudden spasms of rage seized him, and he took the drawer of white balls and pitched them across the floor. They went flying in all directions. 'There! Now pick one up if you want to use it!'

'You damned fool! What good do you think that does?'

'Sahib!'

They all started and looked round. The chokra was goggling at them over the veranda rail, having climbed up from below. With one skinny arm he clung to the rail and with the other gesticulated towards the river.

'Sahib! Sahib!'

'What's up?' said Westfield.

They all moved for the window. The sampan that Flory had seen across the river was lying under the bank at the foot of the lawn, one of the men clinging to a bush to steady it. The Burman in the green gaungbaung was climbing out.

'That's one of Maxwell's Forest Rangers!' said Ellis in quite a different voice. 'By God! something's happened!'

The Forest Ranger saw Mr Macgregor, shikoed in a hurried, preoccupied way and turned back to the sampan. Four other men, peasants, climbed out after him, and with difficulty lifted ashore the strange bundle that Flory had seen in the distance. It was six feet long, swathed in cloths, like a mummy. Something happened in everybody's entrails. The Forest Ranger glanced at the veranda, saw that there was no way up, and led the peasants round the path to the front of the Club. They had hoisted the bundle on to their shoulders as funeral bearers hoist a coffin. The butler had flitted into the lounge again, and even his face was pale after its fashion--that is, grey.

'Butler!' said Mr Macgregor sharply.

'Sir!'

'Go quickly and shut the door of the card-room. Keep it shut. Don't let the memsahibs see.'

'Yes, sir!'

The Burmans, with their burden, came heavily down the passage. As they entered the leading man staggered and almost fell; he had trodden on one of the white balls that were scattered about the floor. The Burmans knelt down, lowered their burden to the floor and stood over it with a strange reverent air, slightly bowing, their hands together in a shiko. Westfield had fallen on his knees, and he pulled back the cloth.

'Christ! Just look at him!' he said, but without much surprise. 'Just look at the poor little b--!'

Mr Lackersteen had retreated to the other end of the room, with a bleating noise. From the moment when the bundle was lifted ashore they had all known what it contained. It was the body of Maxwell, cut almost to pieces with dahs by two relatives of the man whom he had shot.

22

Maxwell's death had caused a profound shock in Kyauktada. It would cause a shock throughout the whole of Burma, and the case--'the Kyauktada case, do you remember?'--would still be talked of years after the wretched youth's name was forgotten. But in a purely personal way no one was much distressed. Maxwell had been almost a nonentity--just a 'good fellow' like any other of the ten thousand ex colore good fellows of Burma--and with no close friends. No one among the Europeans genuinely mourned for him. But that is not to say that they were not angry. On the contrary, for the moment they were almost mad with rage. For the unforgivable had happened--A WHITE MAN had been killed. When that happens, a sort of shudder runs through the English of the East. Eight hundred people, possibly, are murdered every year in Burma; they matter nothing; but the murder of A WHITE MAN is a monstrosity, a sacrilege. Poor Maxwell would be avenged, that was certain. But only a servant or two, and the Forest Ranger who had brought in his body and who had been fond of him, shed any tears for his death.

On the other hand, no one was actually pleased, except U Po Kyin.

'This is a positive gift from heaven!' he told Ma Kin. 'I could not have arranged it better myself. The one thing I needed to make them take my rebellion seriously was a little bloodshed. And here it is! I tell you, Ma Kin, every day I grow more certain that some higher power is working on my behalf.'

'Ko Po Kyin, truly you are without shame! I do not know how you dare to say such things. Do you not shudder to have murder upon your soul?'

'What! I? Murder upon my soul? What are you talking about? I have never killed so much as a chicken in my life.'

'But you are profiting by this poor boy's death.'

'Profiting by it! Of course I am profiting by it! And why not, indeed? Am I to blame if somebody else choose to commit murder? The fisherman catches fish, and he is damned for it. But are we damned for eating the fish? Certainly not. Why NOT eat the fish, once it is dead? You should study the Scriptures more carefully, my dear Kin Kin.'

The funeral took place next morning, before breakfast. All the Europeans were present, except Verrall, who was careering about the maidan quite as usual, almost opposite the cemetery. Mr Macgregor read the burial service. The little group of Englishmen stood round the grave, their topis in their hands, sweating into the dark suits that they had dug out from the bottom of their boxes. The harsh morning light beat without mercy upon their faces, yellower than ever against the ugly, shabby clothes. Every face except Elizabeth's looked lined and old. Dr Veraswami and half a dozen other Orientals were present, but they kept themselves decently in the background. There were sixteen gravestones in the little cemetery; assistants of timber firms, officials, soldiers killed in forgotten skirmishes.

'Sacred to the memory of John Henry Spagnall, late of the Indian Imperial Police, who was cut down by cholera while in the unremitting exercise of' etc., etc., etc.

Flory remembered Spagnall dimly. He had died very suddenly in camp after his second go of delirium tremens. In a corner there were some graves of Eurasians, with wooden crosses. The creeping jasmine, with tiny orange-hearted flowers, had overgrown everything. Among the jasmine, large rat-holes led down into the graves.

Mr Macgregor concluded the burial service in a ripe, reverent voice, and led the way out of the cemetery, holding his grey topi--the Eastern equivalent of a top hat--against his stomach. Flory lingered by the gate, hoping that Elizabeth would speak to him, but she passed him without a glance. Everyone had shunned him this morning. He was in disgrace; the murder had made his disloyalty of last night seem somehow horrible. Ellis had caught Westfield by the arm, and they halted at the grave-side, taking out their cigarette-cases. Flory could hear their slangy voices coming across the open grave.

'My God, Westfield, my God, when I think of that poor little b--lying down there--oh, my God, how my blood does boil! I couldn't sleep all night, I was so furious.'

'Pretty bloody, I grant. Never mind, promise you a couple of chaps shall swing for it. Two corpses against their one--best we can do.'

'Two! It ought to be fifty! We've got to raise heaven and hell to get these fellows hanged. Have you got their names yet?'

'Yes, rather!! Whole blooming district knows who did it. We always do know who's done it in these cases. Getting the bloody villagers to talk--that's the only trouble.'

'Well, for God's sake get them to talk this time. Never mind the bloody law. Whack it out of them. Torture them--anything. If you want to bribe any witnesses, I'm good for a couple of hundred chips.'

Westfield sighed. 'Can't do that sort of thing, I'm afraid. Wish we could. My chaps'd know how to put the screw on a witness if you gave 'em the word. Tie 'em down on an ant-hill. Red peppers. But that won't do nowadays. Got to keep our own bloody silly laws. But never mind, those fellows'll swing all right. We've got all the evidence we want.'

'Good! And when you've arrested them, if you aren't sure of getting a conviction, shoot them, jolly well shoot them! Fake up an escape or something. Anything sooner than let those b--s go free.'

'They won't go free, don't you fear. We'll get 'em. Get SOMEBODY, anyhow. Much better hang wrong fellow than no fellow,' he added, unconsciously quoting.

'That's the stuff! I'll never sleep easy again till I've seen them swinging,' said Ellis as they moved away from the grave. 'Christ! Let's get out of this sun! I'm about perishing with thirst.'

Everyone was perishing, more or less, but it seemed hardly decent to go down to the Club for drinks immediately after the funeral. The Europeans scattered for their houses, while four sweepers with mamooties flung the grey, cement-like earth back into the grave, and shaped it into a rough mound.

After breakfast, Ellis was walking down to his office, cane in hand. It was blinding hot. Ellis had bathed and changed back into shirt and shorts, but wearing a thick suit even for an hour had brought on his prickly heat abominably. Westfield had gone out already, in his motor launch, with an inspector and half a dozen men, to arrest the murderers. He had ordered Verrall to accompany him--not that Verrall was needed, but, as Westfield said, it would do the young swab good to have a spot of work.

Ellis wriggled his shoulders--his prickly heat was almost beyond bearing. The rage was stewing in his body like a bitter juice. He had brooded all night over what had happened. They had killed a white man, killed A WHITE MAN, the bloody sods, the sneaking, cowardly hounds! Oh, the swine, the swine, how they ought to be made to suffer for it! Why did we make these cursed kid-glove laws? Why did we take everything lying down? Just suppose this had happened in a German colony, before the War! The good old Germans! They knew how to treat the niggers. Reprisals! Rhinoceros hide whips! Raid their villages, kill their cattle, burn their crops, decimate them, blow them from the guns.

Ellis gazed into the horrible cascades of light that poured through the gaps in the trees. His greenish eyes were large and mournful. A mild, middle-aged Burman came by, balancing a huge bamboo, which he shifted from one shoulder to the other with a grunt as he passed Ellis. Ellis's grip tightened on his stick. If that swine, now, would only attack you! Or even insult you--anything, so that you had the right to smash him! If only these gutless curs would ever show fight in any conceivable way! Instead of just sneaking past you, keeping within the law so that you never had a chance to get back at them. Ah, for a real rebellion--martial law proclaimed and no quarter given! Lovely, sanguinary images moved through his mind. Shrieking mounds of natives, soldiers slaughtering them. Shoot them, ride them down, horses' hooves trample their guts out, whips cut their faces in slices!

Five High School boys came down the road abreast. Ellis saw them coming, a row of yellow, malicious faces--epicene faces, horribly smooth and young, grinning at him with deliberate insolence. It was in their minds to bait him, as a white man. Probably they had heard of the murder, and--being Nationalists, like all schoolboys--regarded it as a victory. They grinned full in Ellis's face as they passed him. They were trying openly to provoke him, and they knew that the law was on their side. Ellis felt his breast swell. The look of their faces, jeering at him like a row of yellow images, was maddening. He stopped short.

'Here! What are you laughing at, you young ticks?'

The boys turned.

'I said what the bloody hell are you laughing at?'

One of the boys answered, insolently--but perhaps his bad English made him seem more insolent than he intended.

'Not your business.'

There was about a second during which Ellis did not know what he was doing. In that second he had hit out with all his strength, and the cane landed, crack! right across the boy's eyes. The boy recoiled with a shriek, and in the same instant the other four had thrown themselves upon Ellis. But he was too strong for them. He flung them aside and sprang back, lashing out with his stick so furiously that none of them dared come near.

'Keep your distance, you --s! Keep off, or by God I'll smash another of you!' Though they were four to one he was so formidable that they surged back in fright. The boy who was hurt had fallen on his knees with his arms across his face, and was screaming 'I am blinded! I am blinded!' Suddenly the other four turned and darted for a pile of laterite, used for road-mending, which was twenty yards away. One of Ellis's clerks had appeared on the veranda of the office and was leaping up and down in agitation.

'Come up, sir come up at once. They will murder you!'

Ellis disdained to run, but he moved for the veranda steps. A lump of laterite came sailing through the air and shattered itself against a pillar, whereat the clerk scooted indoors. But Ellis turned on the veranda to face the boys, who were below, each carrying an armful of laterite. He was cackling with delight.

'You damned, dirty little niggers!' he shouted down at them. 'You got a surprise that time, didn't you? Come up on this veranda and fight me, all four of you! You daren't. Four to one and you daren't face me! Do you call yourselves men? You sneaking, mangy little rats!'

He broke into Burmese, calling them the incestuous children of pigs. All the while they were pelting him with lumps of laterite, but their arms were feeble and they threw ineptly. He dodged the stones, and as each one missed him he cackled in triumph. Presently there was a sound of shouts up the road, for the noise had been heard at the police station, and some constables were emerging to see what was the matter. The boys took fright and bolted, leaving Ellis a complete victor.

Ellis had heartily enjoyed the affray, but he was furiously angry as soon as it was over. He wrote a violent note to Mr Macgregor, telling him that he had been wantonly assaulted and demanding vengeance. Two clerks who had witnessed the scene, and a chaprassi, were sent along to Mr Macgregor's office to corroborate the story. They lied in perfect unison. 'The boys had attacked Mr Ellis without any provocation whatever, he had defended himself,' etc., etc. Ellis, to do him justice, probably believed this to be a truthful version of the story. Mr Macgregor was somewhat disturbed, and ordered the police to find the four schoolboys and interrogate them. The boys, however, had been expecting something of the kind, and were lying very low; the police searched the bazaar all day without finding them. In the evening the wounded boy was taken to a Burmese doctor, who, by applying some poisonous concoction of crushed leaves to his left eye, succeeded in blinding him.

The Europeans met at the Club as usual that evening, except for Westfield and Verrall, who had not yet returned. Everyone was in a bad mood. Coming on top of the murder, the unprovoked attack on Ellis (for that was the accepted description of it) had scared them as well as angered them. Mrs Lackersteen was twittering to the tune of 'We shall all be murdered in our beds'. Mr Macgregor, to reassure her, told her in cases of riot the European ladies were always locked inside the jail until everything was over; but she did not seem much comforted. Ellis was offensive to Flory, and Elizabeth cut him almost dead. He had come down to the Club in the insane hope of making up their quarrel, and her demeanour made him so miserable that for the greater part of the evening he skulked in the library. It was not till eight o'clock when everyone had swallowed a number of drinks, that the atmosphere grew a little more friendly, and Ellis said:

'What about sending a couple of chokras up to our houses and getting our dinners sent down here? We might as well have a few rubbers of bridge. Better than mooning about at home.'

Mrs Lackersteen, who was in dread of going home, jumped at the suggestion. The Europeans occasionally dined at the Club when they wanted to stay late. Two of the chokras were sent for, and on being told what was wanted of them, immediately burst into tears. It appeared that if they went up the hill they were certain of encountering Maxwell's ghost. The mali was sent instead. As the man set out Flory noticed that it was again the night of the full moon--four weeks to a day since that evening, now unutterably remote, when he had kissed Elizabeth under the frangipani tree.

They had just sat down at the bridge table, and Mrs Lackersteen had just revoked out of pure nervousness, when there was a heavy thump on the roof. Everyone started and look up.

'A coco-nut falling!' said Mr Macgregor.

'There aren't any coco-nut trees here,' said Ellis.

The next moment a number of things happened all together. There was another and much louder bang, one of the petrol lamps broke from its hook and crashed to the ground, narrowly missing Mr Lackersteen, who jumped aside with a yelp, Mrs Lackersteen began screaming, and the butler rushed into the room, bareheaded, his face the colour of bad coffee.

'Sir, sir! Bad men come! Going to murder us all, sir!'

'What? Bad men? What do you mean?'

'Sir, all the villagers are outside! Big stick and dah in their hands, and all dancing about! Going to cut master's throat, sir!'

Mrs Lackersteen threw herself backwards in her chair. She was setting up such a din of screams as to drown the butler's voice.

'Oh, be quiet!' said Ellis sharply, turning on her. 'Listen, all of you! Listen to that!'

There was a deep, murmurous, dangerous sound outside, like the humming of an angry giant. Mr Macgregor, who had stood up, stiffened as he heard it, and settled his spectacles pugnaciously on his nose.

'This is some kind of disturbance! Butler, pick that lamp up. Miss Lackersteen, look to your aunt. See if she is hurt. The rest of you come with me!'

They all made for the front door, which someone, presumably the butler, had closed. A fusillade of small pebbles was rattling against it like hail. Mr Lackersteen wavered at the sound and retreated behind the others.

'I say, dammit, bolt that bloody door, someone!' he said.

'No, no!' said Mr Macgregor. 'We must go outside. It's fatal not to face them!'

He opened the door and presented himself boldly at the top of the steps. There were about twenty Burmans on the path, with dahs or sticks in their hands. Outside the fence, stretching up the road in either direction and far out on to the maidan, was an enormous crowd of people. It was like a sea of people, two thousand at the least, black and white in the moon, with here and there a curved dah glittering. Ellis had coolly placed himself beside Mr Macgregor, with his hands in his pockets. Mr Lackersteen had disappeared.

Mr Macgregor raised his hand for silence. 'What is the meaning of this?' he shouted sternly.

There were yells, and some lumps of laterite the size of cricket balls came sailing from the road, but fortunately hit no one. One of the men on the path turned and waved his arms to the others, shouting that they were not to begin throwing yet. Then he stepped forward to address the Europeans. He was a strong debonair fellow of about thirty, with down-curving moustaches, wearing a singlet, with his longyi kilted to the knee.

'What is the meaning of this?' Mr Macgregor repeated.

The man spoke up with a cheerful grin, and not very insolently.

'We have no quarrel with you, min gyi. We have come for the timber merchant, Ellis.' (He pronounced it Ellit.) 'The boy whom he struck this morning has gone blind. You must send Ellit out to us here, so that we can punish him. The rest of you will not be hurt.'

'Just remember that fellow's face,' said Ellis over his shoulder to Flory. 'We'll get him seven years for this afterwards.'

Mr Macgregor had turned temporarily quite purple. His rage was so great that it almost choked him. For several moments he could not speak, and when he did so it was in English.

'Whom do you think you are speaking to? In twenty years I have never heard such insolence! Go away this instant, or I shall call out the Military Police!'

'You'd better be quick, min gyi. We know that there is no justice for us in your courts, so we must punish Ellit ourselves. Send him out to us here. Otherwise, all of you will weep for it.'

Mr Macgregor made a furious motion with his fist, as though hammering in a nail, 'Go away, son of a dog!' he cried, using his first oath in many years.

There was a thunderous roar from the road, and such a shower of stones, that everyone was hit, including the Burmans on the path. One stone took Mr Macgregor full in the face, almost knocking him down. The Europeans bolted hastily inside and barred the door. Mr Macgregor's spectacles were smashed and his nose streaming blood. They got back to the lounge to find Mrs Lackersteen looping about in one of the long chairs like a hysterical snake, Mr Lackersteen standing irresolutely in the middle of the room, holding an empty bottle, the butler on his knees in the corner, crossing himself (he was a Roman Catholic), the chokras crying, and only Elizabeth calm, though she was very pale.

'What's happened?' she exclaimed.

'We're in the soup, that's what's happened!' said Ellis angrily, feeling at the back of his neck where a stone had hit him. 'The Burmans are all round, shying rocks. But keep calm! They haven't the guts to break the doors in.'

'Call out the police at once!' said Mr Macgregor indistinctly, for he was stanching his nose with his handkerchief.

'Can't!' said Ellis. 'I was looking round while you were talking to them. They've cut us off, rot their damned souls! No one could possibly get to the police lines. Veraswami's compound is full of men.'

'Then we must wait. We can trust them to turn out of their own accord. Calm yourself, my dear Mrs Lackersteen, PLEASE calm yourself! The danger is very small.'

It did not sound small. There were no gaps in the noise now, and the Burmans seemed to be pouring into the compounds by hundreds. The din swelled suddenly to such a volume that no one could make himself heard except by shouting. All the windows in the lounge had been shut, and some perforated zinc shutters within, which were sometimes used for keeping out insects, pulled to and bolted. There was a series of crashes as the windows were broken, and then a ceaseless thudding of stones from all sides, that shook the thin wooden walls and seemed likely to split them. Ellis opened a shutter and flung a bottle viciously among the crowd, but a dozen stones came hurtling in and he had to close the shutter hurriedly. The Burmans seemed to have no plan beyond flinging stones, yelling and hammering at the walls, but the mere volume of noise was unnerving. The Europeans were half dazed by it at first. None of them thought to blame Ellis, the sole cause of this affair; their common peril seemed, indeed, to draw them closer together for the while. Mr Macgregor, half-blind without his spectacles, stood distractedly in the middle of the room, yielding his right hand to Mrs Lackersteen, who was caressing it, while a weeping chokra clung to his left leg. Mr Lackersteen had vanished again. Ellis was stamping furiously up and down, shaking his fist in the direction of the police lines.

'Where are the police, the f-- cowardly sods?' he yelled, heedless of the women. 'Why don't they turn out? My God, we won't get another chance like this in a hundred years! If we'd only ten rifles here, how we could slosh these b--s!'

'They'll be here presently!' Mr Macgregor shouted back. 'It will take them some minutes to penetrate that crowd.'

'But why don't they use their rifles, the miserable sons of bitches? They could slaughter them in bloody heaps if they'd only open fire. Oh, God, to think of missing a chance like this!'

A lump of rock burst one of the zinc shutters. Another followed through the hole it had made, stove in a 'Bonzo' picture, bounced off, cut Elizabeth's elbow, and finally landed on the table. There was a roar of triumph from outside, and then a succession of tremendous thumps on the roof. Some children had climbed into the trees and were having the time of their lives sliding down the roof on their bottoms. Mrs Lackersteen outdid all previous efforts with a shriek that rose easily above the din outside.

'Choke that bloody hag, somebody!' cried Ellis. 'Anyone'd think a pig was being killed. We've got to do something. Flory, Macgregor, come here! Think of a way out of this mess, someone!'

Elizabeth had suddenly lost her nerve and begun crying. The blow from the stone had hurt her. To Flory's astonishment, he found her clinging tightly to his arm. Even in that moment it made his heart turn over. He had been watching the scene almost with detachment--dazed by the noise, indeed, but not much frightened. He always found it difficult to believe Orientals could be really dangerous. Only when he felt Elizabeth's hand on his arm did he grasp the seriousness of the situation.

'Oh, Mr Flory, please, please think of something! You can, you can! Anything sooner than let those dreadful men get in here!'

'If only one of us could get to the police lines!' groaned Mr Macgregor. 'A British officer to lead them! At the worst I must try and go myself.'

'Don't be a fool! Only get your throat cut!' yelled Ellis. '_I_'ll go if they really look like breaking in. But, oh, to be killed by swine like that! How furious it'd make me! And to think we could murder the whole bloody crowd if only we could get the police here!'

'Couldn't someone get along the river bank?' Flory shouted despairingly.

'Hopeless! Hundreds of them prowling up and down. We're cut off--Burmans on three sides and the river on the other!'

'The river!'

One of those startling ideas that are overlooked simply because they are so obvious had sprung into Flory's mind.

'The river! Of course! We can get to the police lines as easy as winking. Don't you see?'

'How?'

'Why, down the river--in the water! Swim!'

'Oh, good man!' cried Ellis, and smacked Flory on the shoulder. Elizabeth squeezed his arm and actually danced a step or two in glee. 'I'll go if you like!' Ellis shouted, but Flory shook his head. He had already begun slipping his shoes off. There was obviously no time to be lost. The Burmans had behaved like fools hitherto, but there was no saying what might happen if they succeeded in breaking in. The butler, who had got over his first fright, prepared to open the window that gave on the lawn, and glanced obliquely out. There were barely a score of Burmans on the lawn. They had left the back of the Club unguarded, supposing that the river cut off retreat.

'Rush down the lawn like hell!' Ellis shouted in Flory's ear. 'They'll scatter all right when they see you.'

'Order the police to open fire at once!' shouted Mr Macgregor from the other side. 'You have my authority.'

'And tell them to aim low! No firing over their heads. Shoot to kill. In the guts for choice!'

Flory leapt down from the veranda, hurting his feet on the hard earth, and was at the river bank in six paces. As Ellis had said, the Burmans recoiled for a moment when they saw him leaping down. A few stones followed him, but no one pursued--they thought, no doubt, that he was only attempting to escape, and in the clear moonlight they could see that it was not Ellis. In another moment he had pushed his way through the bushes and was in the water.

He sank deep down, and the horrible river ooze received him, sucking him knee-deep so that it was several seconds before he could free himself. When he came to the surface a tepid froth, like the froth on stout, was lapping round his lips, and some spongy thing had floated into his throat and was choking him. It was a sprig of water hyacinth. He managed to spit it out, and found that the swift current had floated him twenty yards already. Burmans were rushing rather aimlessly up and down the bank, yelling. With his eye at the level of the water, Flory could not see the crowd besieging the Club; but he could hear their deep, devilish roaring, which sounded even louder than it had sounded on shore. By the time he was opposite the Military Police lines the bank seemed almost bare of men. He managed to struggle out of the current and flounder through the mud, which sucked off his left sock. A little way down the bank two old men were sitting beside a fence, sharpening fence-posts, as though there had not been a riot within a hundred miles of them. Flory crawled ashore, clambered over the fence and ran heavily across the moonwhite parade-ground, his wet trousers sagging. As far as he could tell in the noise, the lines were quite empty. In some stalls over to the right Verrall's horses were plunging about in a panic. Flory ran out on to the road, and saw what had happened.

The whole body of policemen, military and civil, about a hundred and fifty men in all, had attacked the crowd from the rear, armed only with sticks. They had been utterly engulfed. The crowd was so dense that it was like an enormous swarm of bees seething and rotating. Everywhere one could see policemen wedged helplessly among the hordes of Burmans, struggling furiously but uselessly, and too cramped even to use their sticks. Whole knots of men were tangled Laocoon-like in the folds of unrolled pagris. There was a terrific bellowing of oaths in three or four languages, clouds of dust, and a suffocating stench of sweat and marigolds--but no one seemed to have been seriously hurt. Probably the Burmans had not used their daks for fear of provoking rifle-fire. Flory pushed his way into the crowd and was immediately swallowed up like the others. A sea of bodies closed in upon him and flung him from side to side, bumping his ribs and choking him with their animal heat. He struggled onwards with an almost dreamlike feeling, so absurd and unreal was the situation. The whole riot had been ludicrous from the start, and what was most ludicrous of all was that the Burmans, who might have killed him, did not know what to do with him now he was among them. Some yelled insults in his face, some jostled him and stamped on his feet, some even tried to make way for him, as a white man. He was not certain whether he was fighting for his life, or merely pushing his way through the crowd. For quite a long time he was jammed, helpless, with his arms pinned against his sides, then he found himself wrestling with a stumpy Burman much stronger than himself, then a dozen men rolled against him like a wave and drove him deeper into the heart of the crowd. Suddenly he felt an agonizing pain in his right big toe--someone in boots had trodden on it. It was the Military Police subahdar, a Rajput, very fat, moustachioed, with his pagri gone. He was grasping a Burman by the throat and trying to hammer his face, while the sweat rolled off his bare, bald crown. Flory threw his arm round the subahdar's neck and managed to tear him away from his adversary and shout in his ear. His Urdu deserted him, and he bellowed in Burmese:

'Why did you not open fire?'

For a long time he could not hear the man's answer. Then he caught it:

'Hukm ne aya'--'I have had no order!'

'Idiot!'

At this moment another bunch of men drove against them, and for a minute or two they were pinned and quite unable to move. Flory realized that the subabdar had a whistle in his pocket and was trying to get at it. Finally he got it loose and blew piercing blasts, but there was no hope of rallying any men until they could get into a clear space. It was a fearful labour to struggle our of the crowd--it was like wading neck-deep through a viscous sea. At times the exhaustion of Flory's limbs was so complete that he stood passive, letting the crowd hold him and even drive him backwards. At last, more from the natural eddying of the crowd than by his own effort, he found himself flung out into the open. The subahdar had also emerged, ten or fifteen sepoys, and a Burmese Inspector of Police. Most of the sepoys collapsed on their haunches almost falling with fatigue, and limping, their feet having been trampled on.

'Come on, get up! Run like hell for the lines! Get some rifles and a clip of ammunition each.'

He was too overcome even to speak in Burmese, but the men understood him and lopped heavily towards the police lines. Flory followed them, to get away from the crowd before they turned on him again. When he reached the gate the sepoys were returning with their rifles and already preparing to fire.

'The sahib will give the order!' the subahdar panted.

'Here you!' cried Flory to the Inspector. 'Can you speak Hindustani?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Then tell them to fire high, right over the people's heads. And above all, to fire all together. Make them understand that.'

The fat Inspector, whose Hindustani was even worse than Flory's, explained what was wanted, chiefly by leaping up and down and gesticulating. The sepoys raised their rifles, there was a roar, and a rolling echo from the hillside. For a moment Flory thought that his order had been disregarded, for almost the entire section of the crowd nearest them had fallen like a swath of hay. However, they had only flung themselves down in panic. The sepoys fired a second volley, but it was not needed. The crowd had immediately begun to surge outwards from the Club like a river changing its course. They came pouring down the road, saw the armed men barring their way, and tried to recoil, whereupon there was a fresh battle between those in front and those behind; finally the whole crowd bulged outwards and began to roll slowly up the maidan. Flory and the sepoys moved slowly towards the Club on the heels of the retreating crowd. The policemen who had been engulfed were straggling back by ones and twos. Their pagris were gone and their puttees trailing yards behind them, but they had no damage worse than bruises. The Civil Policemen were dragging a very few prisoners among them. When they reached the Club compound the Burmans were still pouring out, an endless line of young men leaping gracefully through a gap in the hedge like a procession of gazelles. It seemed to Flory that it was getting very dark. A small white-clad figure extricated itself from the last of the crowd and tumbled limply into Flory's arms. It was Dr Veraswami, with his tie torn off but his spectacles miraculously unbroken.

'Doctor!'

'Ach, my friend! Ach, how I am exhausted!'

'What are you doing here? Were you right in the middle of that crowd?'

'I was trying to restrain them, my friend. It was hopeless until you came. But there is at least one man who bears the mark of this, I think!'

He held out a small fist for Flory to see the damaged knuckles. But it was certainly quite dark now. At the same moment Flory heard a nasal voice behind him.

'Well, Mr Flory, so it's all over already! A mere flash in the pan as usual. You and I together were a little too much for them--ha, ha!'

It was U Po Kyin. He came towards them with a martial air, carrying a huge stick, and with a revolver thrust into his belt. His dress was a studious negligee--singlet and Shan trousers--to give the impression that he had rushed out of his house post-haste. He had been lying low until the danger should be over, and was now hurrying forth to grab a share of any credit that might be going.

'A smart piece of work, sir!' he said enthusiastically. 'Look how they are flying up the hillside! We have routed them most satisfactory.'

'WE!' panted the doctor indignantly.

'Ah, my dear doctor! I did not perceive that you were there. It is possible that YOU also have been in the fighting? YOU--risking your most valuable life! Who would have believed such a thing?'

'You've taken your time getting here yourself!' said Flory angrily.

'Well, well sir, it is enough that we have dispersed them. Although,' he added with a touch of satisfaction, for he had noticed Flory's tone, 'they are going in the direction of the European houses, you will observe. I fancy that it will occur to them to do a little plundering on their way.'

One had to admire the man's impudence. He tucked his great stick under his arm and strolled beside Flory in an almost patronizing manner, while the doctor dropped behind, abashed in spite of himself. At the Club gate all three men halted. It was now extraordinarily dark, and the moon had vanished. Low overhead, just visible, black clouds were streaming eastward like a pack of hounds. A wind, almost cold, blew down the hillside and swept a cloud of dust and fine water-vapour before it. There was a sudden intensely rich scent of damp. The wind quickened, the trees rustled, then began beating themselves furiously together, the big frangipani tree by the tennis court flinging out a nebula of dimly seen blossom. All three men turned and hurried for shelter, the Orientals to their houses, Flory to the Club. It had begun raining.

23

Next day the town was quieter than a cathedral city on Monday morning. It is usually the case after a riot. Except for the handful of prisoners, everyone who could possibly have been concerned in the attack on the Club had a watertight alibi. The Club garden looked as though a herd of bison had stampeded across it, but the houses had not been plundered, and there were no new casualties among the Europeans, except that after everything was over Mr Lackersteen had been found very drunk under the billiard-table, where he had retired with a bottle of whisky. Westfield and Verrall came back early in the morning, bringing Maxwell's murderers under arrest; or at any rate, bringing two people who would presently be hanged for Maxwell's murder. Westfield, when he heard the news of the riot, was gloomy but resigned. AGAIN it happened--a veritable riot, and he not there to quell it! It seemed fated that he should never kill a man. Depressing, depressing. Verrall's only comment was that it had been 'damned lip' on the part of Flory (a civilian) to give orders to the Military Police.

Meanwhile, it was raining almost without cease. As soon as he woke up and heard the rain hammering on the roof Flory dressed and hurried out, Flo following. Out of sight of the houses he took off his clothes and let the rain sluice down on his bare body. To his surprise, he found that he was covered with bruises from last night; but the rain had washed away every trace of his prickly heat within three minutes. It is wonderful, the healing power of rainwater. Flory walked down to Dr Veraswami's house, with his shoes squelching and periodical jets of water flowing down his neck from the brim of his Terai hat. The sky was leaden, and innumerable whirling storms chased one another across the maidan like squadrons of cavalry. Burmans passed, under vast wooden hats in spite of which their bodies streamed water like the bronze gods in the fountains. A network of rivulets was already washing the stones of the road bare. The doctor had just got home when Flory arrived, and was shaking a wet umbrella over the veranda rail. He hailed Flory excitedly.

'Come up, Mr Flory, come up at once! You are just apropos. I was on the point of opening a bottle of Old Tommy Gin. Come up and let me drink to your health, ass the saviour of Kyauktada!'

They had a long talk together. The doctor was in a triumphant mood. It appeared that what had happened last night had righted his troubles almost miraculously. U Po Kyin's schemes were undone. The doctor was no longer at his mercy--in fact, it was the other way about. The doctor explained to Flory:

'You see, my friend, this riot--or rather, your most noble behaviour in it--wass quite outside U Po Kyin's programme. He had started the SO-CALLED rebellion and had the glory of crushing it, and he calculated that any further outbreak would simply mean more glory still. I am told that when he heard of Mr Maxwell's death, hiss joy was positively'--the doctor nipped his thumb and forefinger together--'what iss the word I want?'

'Obscene?'

'Ah yes. Obscene. It iss said that actually he attempted to dance--can you imagine such a disgusting spectacle?--and exclaimed, "Now at least they will take my rebellion seriously!" Such iss his regard for human life. But now hiss triumph iss at an end. The riot hass tripped up in mid-career.'

'How?'

'Because, do you not see, the honours of the riot are not hiss, but yours! And I am known to be your friend. I stand, so to speak, in the reflection of your glory. Are you not the hero of the hour? Did not your European friends receive you with open arms when you returned to the Club last night?'

'They did, I must admit. It was quite a new experience for me. Mrs Lackersteen was all over me. "DEAR Mr Flory", she calls me now. And she's got her knife properly in Ellis. She hasn't forgotten that he called her a bloody hag and told her to stop squealing like a pig.'

'Ah, Mr Ellis iss sometimes over-emphatic in hiss expressions. I have noticed it.'

'The only fly in the ointment is that I told the police to fire over the crowd's heads instead of straight at them. It seems that's against all the Government regulations. Ellis was a little vexed about it. "Why didn't you plug some of the b--s when you had the chance?" he said. I pointed out that it would have meant hitting the police who were in the middle of the crowd; but as he said, they were only niggers anyway. However, all my sins are forgiven me. And Macgregor quoted something in Latin--Horace, I believe.'

It was half an hour later when Flory walked along to the Club. He had promised to see Mr Macgregor and settle the business of the doctor's election. But there would be no difficulty about it now. The others would eat out of his hand until the absurd riot was forgotten; he could have gone into the Club and made a speech in favour of Lenin, and they would have put up with it. The lovely rain streamed down, drenching him from head to foot, and filling his nostrils with the scent of earth, forgotten during the bitter months of drought. He walked up the wrecked garden, where the mali, bending down with the rain splashing on his bare back, was trowelling holes for zinnias. Nearly all the flowers had been trampled out of existence. Elizabeth was there, on the side veranda, almost as though she were waiting for him. He took off his hat, spilling a pool of water from the brim, and went round to join her.

'Good morning!' he said, raising his voice because of the rain that beat noisily on the low roof.

'Good morning! ISN'T it coming down? Simply PELTING!'

'Oh, this isn't real rain. You wait till July. The whole Bay of Bengal is going to pour itself on us, by instalments.'

It seemed that they must never meet without talking of the weather. Nevertheless, her face said something very different from the banal words. Her demeanour had changed utterly since last night. He took courage.

'How is the place where that stone hit you?'

She held her arm out to him and let him take it. Her air was gentle, even submissive. He realized that his exploit of last night had made him almost a hero in her eyes. She could not know how small the danger had really been, and she forgave him everything, even Ma Hla May, because he had shown courage at the right moment. It was the buffalo and the leopard over again. His heart thumped in his breast. He slipped his hand down her arm and clasped her fingers in his own.

'Elizabeth--'

'Someone will see us!' she said, and she withdrew her hand, but not angrily.

'Elizabeth, I've something I want to say to you. Do you remember a letter I wrote you from the jungle, after our--some weeks ago?'

'Yes.'

'You remember what I said in it?'

'Yes. I'm sorry I didn't answer it. Only--'

'I couldn't expect you to answer it, then. But I just wanted to remind you of what I said.'

In the letter, of course, he had only said, and feebly enough, that he loved her--would always love her, no matter what happened. They were standing face to face, very close together. On an impulse--and it was so swiftly done that afterwards he had difficulty in believing that it had ever happened--he took her in his arms and drew her towards him. For a moment she yielded and let him lift up her face and kiss her; then suddenly she recoiled and shook her head. Perhaps she was frightened that someone would see them, perhaps it was only because his moustache was so wet from the rain. Without saying anything more she broke from him and hurried away into the Club. There was a look of distress or compunction in her face; but she did not seem angry.

He followed her more slowly into the Club, and ran into Mr Macgregor, who was in a very good humour. As soon as he saw Flory he boomed genially, 'Aha! The conquering hero comes!' and then, in a more serious vein, offered him fresh congratulations. Flory improved the occasion by saying a few words on behalf of the doctor. He painted quite a lively picture of the doctor's heroism in the riot. 'He was right in the middle of the crowd, fighting like a tiger,' etc., etc. It was not too much exaggerated--for the doctor had certainly risked his life. Mr Macgregor was impressed, and so were the others when they heard of it. At all times the testimony of one European can do an Oriental more good than that of a thousand of his fellow countrymen; and at this moment Flory's opinion carried weight. Practically, the doctor's good name was restored. His election to the Club could be taken as assured.

However, it was not finally agreed upon yet, because Flory was returning to camp. He set out the same evening, marching by night, and he did not see Elizabeth again before leaving. It was quite safe to travel in the jungle now, for the futile rebellion was obviously finished. There is seldom any talk of rebellion after the rains have started--the Burmans are too busy ploughing, and in any case the waterlogged fields are impassable for large bodies of men. Flory was to return to Kyauktada in ten days, when the padre's six-weekly visit fell due. The truth was that he did not care to be in Kyauktada while both Elizabeth and Verrall were there. And yet, it was strange, but all the bitterness--all the obscene, crawling envy that had tormented him before--was gone now that he knew she had forgiven him. It was only Verrall who stood between them now. And even the thought of her in Verrall's arms could hardly move him, because he knew that at the worst the affair must have an end. Verrall, it was quite certain, would never marry Elizabeth; young men of Verrall's stamp do not marry penniless girls met casually at obscure Indian stations. He was only amusing himself with Elizabeth. Presently he would desert her, and she would return to him--to Flory. It was enough--it was far better than he had hoped. There is a humility about genuine love that is rather horrible in some ways.

U Po Kyin was furiously angry. The miserable riot had taken him unawares, so far as anything ever took him unawares, and it was like a handful of grit thrown into the machinery of his plans. The business of disgracing the doctor had got to be begun all over again. Begun it was, sure enough, with such a spate of anonymous letters that Hla Pe had to absent himself from office for two whole days--it was bronchitis this time--to get them written. The doctor was accused of every crime from pederasty to stealing Government postage stamps. The prison warder who had let Nga Shwe O escape had now come up for trial. He was triumphantly acquitted, U Po Kyin having spent as much as two hundred rupees in bribing the witnesses. More letters showered up on Mr Macgregor, proving in detail that Dr Veraswami, the real author of the escape, had tried to shift the blame on to a helpless subordinate. Nevertheless, the results were disappointing. The confidential letter which Mr Macgregor wrote to the Commissioner, reporting on the riot, was steamed open, and its tone was so alarming--Mr Macgregor had spoken of the doctor as 'behaving most creditably' on the night of the riot--that U Po Kyin called a council of war.

'The time has come for a vigorous move,' he said to the others--they were in conclave on the front veranda, before breakfast. Ma Kin was there, and Ba Sein and Hla Pe--the latter a bright-faced, promising boy of eighteen, with the manner of one who will certainly succeed in life.

'We are hammering against a brick wall,' U Po Kyin continued; 'and that wall is Flory. Who could have foreseen that that miserable coward would stand by his friend? However, there it is. So long as Veraswami has his backing, we are helpless.'

'I have been talking to the Club butler, sir,' said Ba Sein. 'He tells me that Mr Ellis and Mr Westfield still do not want the doctor to be elected to the Club. Do you not think they will quarrel with Flory again as soon as this business of the riot is forgotten?'

'Of course they will quarrel, they always quarrel. But in the meantime the harm is done. Just suppose that man WERE elected! I believe I should die of rage if it happened. No, there is only one move left. We must strike at Flory himself!'

'At Flory, sir! But he is a white man!'

'What do I care? I have ruined white men before now. Once let Flory be disgraced, and there is an end of the doctor. And he shall be disgraced! I will shame him so that he will never dare show his face in that Club again!'

'But, sir! A white man! What are we to accuse him of? Who would believe anything against a white man?'

'You have no strategy, Ko Ba Sein. One does not ACCUSE a white man; one has got to catch him in the act. Public disgrace, in flagrante delicto. I shall know how to set about it. Now be silent while I think.'

There was a pause. U Po Kyin stood gazing out into the rain with his small hands clasped behind him and resting on the natural plateau of his posterior. The other three watched him from the end of the veranda, almost frightened by this talk of attacking a white man, and waiting for some masterstroke to cope with a situation that was beyond them. It was a little like the familiar picture (is it Meissonier's?) of Napoleon at Moscow, poring over his maps while his marshals wait in silence, with their cocked hats in their hands. But of course U Po Kyin was more equal to the situation than Napoleon. His plan was ready within two minutes. When he turned round his vast face was suffused with excessive joy. The doctor had been mistaken when he described U Po Kyin as attempting to dance; U Po Kyin's figure was not designed for dancing; but, had it been so designed, he would have danced at this moment. He beckoned to Ba Sein and whispered in his ear for a few seconds.

'That is the correct move, I think?' he concluded.

A broad, unwilling, incredulous grin stole slowly across Ba Sein's face.

'Fifty rupees ought to cover all the expenses,' added U Po Kyin, beaming.

The plan was unfolded in detail. And when the others had taken it in, all of them, even Ba Sein, who seldom laughed, even Ma Kin, who disapproved from the bottom of her soul, burst into irrepressible peals of laughter. The plan was really too good to be resisted. It was genius.

All the while it was raining, raining. The day after Flory went back to camp it rained for thirty-eight hours at a stretch, sometimes slowing to the pace of English rain, sometimes pouring down in such cataracts that one thought the whole ocean must by now have been sucked up into the clouds. The rattling on the roof became maddening after a few hours. In the intervals between the rain the sun glared as fiercely as ever, the mud began to crack and steam, and patches of prickly heat sprang out all over one's body.

Hordes of flying beetles had emerged from their cocoons as soon as the rain started; there was a plague of loathly creatures known as stink-bugs, which invaded the houses in incredible numbers, littered themselves over the dining-table and made one's food uneatable. Verrall and Elizabeth still went out riding in the evenings, when the rain was not too fierce. To Verrall, all climates were alike, but he did not like to see his ponies plastered with mud. Nearly a week went by. Nothing was changed between them--they were neither less nor more intimate than they had been before. The proposal of marriage, still confidently expected, was still unuttered. Then an alarming thing happened. The news filtered to the Club, through Mr Macgregor, that Verrall was leaving Kyauktada; the Military Police were to be kept at Kyauktada, but another officer was coming in Verrall's place, no one was certain when. Elizabeth was in horrible suspense. Surely, if he was going away, he must say something definite soon? She could not question him--dared not even ask him whether he was really going; she could only wait for him to speak. He said nothing. Then one evening, without warning, he failed to turn up at the Club. And two whole days passed during which Elizabeth did not see him at all.

It was dreadful, but there was nothing that could be done. Verrall and Elizabeth had been inseparable for weeks, and yet in a way they were almost strangers. He had kept himself so aloof from them all--had never even seen the inside of the Lackersteens' house. They did not know him well enough to seek him out at the dakbungalow, or write to him; nor did he reappear at morning parade on the maidan. There was nothing to do except wait until he chose to present himself again. And when he did, would he ask her to marry him? Surely, surely he must! Both Elizabeth and her aunt (but neither of them had even spoken of it openly) held it as an article of faith that he must ask her. Elizabeth looked forward to their next meeting with a hope that was almost painful. Please God it would be a week at least before he went! If she rode with him four times more, or three times--even if it were only twice, all might yet be well. Please God he would come back to her soon! It was unthinkable that when he came, it would only be to say good-bye!

The two women went down to the Club each evening and sat there until quite late, listening for Verrall's footsteps outside while seeming not to listen; but he never appeared. Ellis, who understood the situation perfectly, watched Elizabeth with spiteful amusement. What made it worst of all was that Mr Lackersteen was now pestering Elizabeth unceasingly. He had become quite reckless. Almost under the eyes of the servants he would waylay her, catch hold of her and begin pinching and fondling her in the most revolting way. Her sole defence was to threaten that she would tell her aunt; happily he was too stupid to realize that she would never dare do it.

On the third morning Elizabeth and her aunt arrived at the Club just in time to escape a violent storm of rain. They had been sitting in the lounge for a few minutes when they heard the sound of someone stamping the water off his shoes in the passage. Each woman's heart stirred, for this might be Verrall. Then a young man entered the lounge, unbuttoning a long raincoat as he came. He was a stout, rollicking, chuckle-headed youth of about twenty-five, with fat fresh cheeks, butter-coloured hair, no forehead, and, as it turned out afterwards, a deafening laugh.

Mrs Lackersteen made some inarticulate sound--it was jerked out of her by her disappointment. The youth, however, hailed them with immediate bonhomie, being one of those who are on terms of slangy intimacy with everyone from the moment of meeting them.

'Hullo, hullo!' he said 'Enter the fairy prince! Hope I don't sort of intrude and all that? Not shoving in on any family gatherings or anything?'

'Not at all!' said Mrs Lackersteen in surprise.

'What I mean to say--thought I'd just pop in at the Club and have a glance round, don't you know. Just to get acclimatized to the local brand of whisky. I only got here last night.'

'Are you STATIONED here?' said Mrs Lackersteen, mystified--for they had not been expecting any newcomers.

'Yes, rather. Pleasure's mine, entirely.'

'But we hadn't heard. . . . Oh, of course! I suppose you're from the Forest Department? In place of poor Mr Maxwell?'

'What? Forest Department? No fear! I'm the new Military Police bloke, you know.'

'The--what?'

'New Military Police bloke. Taking over from dear ole Verrall. The dear ole chap got orders to go back to his regiment. Going off in a fearful hurry. And a nice mess he's left everything in for yours truly, too.'

The Military Policeman was a crass youth, but even he noticed that Elizabeth's face turned suddenly sickly. She found herself quite unable to speak. It was several seconds before Mrs Lackersteen managed to exclaim:

'Mr Verrall--going? Surely he isn't going away YET?'

'Going? He's gone!'

'GONE?'

'Well, what I mean to say--train's due to start in about half an hour. He'll be along at the station now. I sent a fatigue party to look after him. Got to get his ponies aboard and all that.'

There were probably further explanations, but neither Elizabeth nor her aunt heard a word of them. In any case, without even a good-bye to the Military Policeman, they were out on the front steps within fifteen seconds. Mrs Lackersteen called sharply for the butler.

'Butler! Send my rickshaw round to the front at once! To the station, jaldi!' she added as the rickshaw-man appeared, and, having settled herself in the rickshaw, poked him in the back with the ferrule of her umbrella to start him.

Elizabeth had put on her raincoat and Mrs Lackersteen was cowering in the rickshaw behind her umbrella, but neither was much use against the rain. It came driving towards them in such sheets that Elizabeth's frock was soaked before they had reached the gate, and the rickshaw almost overturned in the wind. The rickshaw-wallah put his head down and struggled into it, groaning. Elizabeth was in agony. It was a mistake, SURELY it was a mistake. He had written to her and the letter had gone astray. That was it, that MUST be it! It could not be that he had meant to leave her without even saying good-bye! And if it were so--no, not even then would she give up hope! When he saw her on the platform, for the last time, he could not be so brutal as to forsake her! As they neared the station she fell behind the rickshaw and pinched her cheeks to bring the blood into them. A squad of Military Police sepoys shuffled hurriedly by, their thin uniforms sodden into rags, pushing a handcart among them. Those would be Verrall's fatigue party. Thank God, there was a quarter of an hour yet. The train was not due to leave for another quarter of an hour. Thank God, at least, for this last chance of seeing him!

They arrived on the platform just in time to see the train draw out of the station and gather speed with a series of deafening snorts. The stationmaster, a little round, black man, was standing on the line looking ruefully after the train, and holding his waterproof-covered topi on to his head with one hand, while with the other he fended off two clamorous Indians who were bobbing at him and trying to thrust something upon his attention. Mrs Lackersteen leaned out of the rickshaw and called agitatedly through the rain.

'Stationmaster!'

'Madam!'

'What train is that?'

'That is the Mandalay train, madam.'

'The Mandalay train! It can't be!'

'But I assure you, madam! It is precisely the Mandalay train.' He came towards them, removing his topi.

'But Mr Verrall--the Police officer? Surely he's not on it?'

'Yes, madam, he have departed.' He waved his hand towards the train, now receding rapidly in a cloud of rain and steam.

'But the train wasn't due to start yet!'

'No, madam. Not due to start for another ten minutes.'

'Then why has it gone?'

The stationmaster waved his topi apologetically from side to side. His dark, squabby face looked quite distressed.

'I know, madam, I know! MOST unprecedented! But the young Military Police officer have positively COMMANDED me to start the train! He declare that all is ready and he do not wish to be kept waiting. I point out the irregularity. He say he do not care about irregularity. I expostulate. He insist. And in short--'

He made another gesture. It meant that Verrall was the kind of man who would have his way, even when it came to starting a train ten minutes early. There was a pause. The two Indians, imagining that they saw their chance, suddenly rushed forward, wailing, and offered some grubby notebooks for Mrs Lackersteen's inspection.

'What DO these men want?' cried Mrs Lackersteen distractedly.

'They are grass-wallahs, madam. They say that Lieutenant Verrall have departed owing them large sums of money. One for hay, the other for corn. Of mine it is no affair.'

There was a hoot from the distant train. It rolled round the bend, like a black-behinded caterpillar that looks over its shoulder as it goes, and vanished. The stationmaster's wet white trousers flapped forlornly about his legs. Whether Verrall had started the train early to escape Elizabeth, or to escape the grass-wallahs, was an interesting question that was never cleared up.

They made their way back along the road, and then struggled up the hill in such a wind that sometimes they were driven several paces backwards. When they gained the veranda they were quite out of breath. The servants took their streaming raincoats, and Elizabeth shook some of the water from her hair. Mrs Lackersteen broke her silence for the first time since they had left the station:

'WELL! Of all the unmannerly--of the simply ABOMINABLE. . . !'

Elizabeth looked pale and sickly, in spite of the rain and wind that had beaten into her face. But she would betray nothing.

'I think he might have waited to say good-bye to us,' she said coldly.

'Take my word for it, dear, you are thoroughly well rid of him! . . . As I said from the start, a most ODIOUS young man!'

Some time later, when they were sitting down to breakfast, having bathed and got into dry clothes, and feeling better, she remarked:

'Let me see, what day is this?'

'Saturday, Aunt.'

'Ah, Saturday. Then the dear padre will be arriving this evening. How many shall we be for the service tomorrow? Why, I think we shall ALL be here! How very nice! Mr Flory will be here too. I think he said he was coming back from the jungle tomorrow.' She added almost lovingly, 'DEAR Mr Flory!'

24

It was nearly six o'clock in the evening, and the absurd bell in the six-foot tin steeple of the church went clank-clank, clank-clank! as old Mattu pulled the rope within. The rays of the setting sun, refracted by distant rainstorms, flooded the maidan with a beautiful, lurid light. It had been raining earlier in the day, and would rain again. The Christian community of Kyauktada, fifteen in number, were gathering at the church door for the evening service.

Flory was already there, and Mr Macgregor, grey topi and all, and Mr Francis and Mr Samuel, frisking about in freshly laundered drill suits--for the six-weekly church service was the great social event of their lives. The padre, a tall man with grey hair and a refined, discoloured face, wearing pince-nez, was standing on the church steps in his cassock and surplice, which he had put on in Mr Macgregor's house. He was smiling in an amiable but rather helpless way at four pink-cheeked Karen Christians who had come to make their bows to him; for he did not speak a word of their language nor they of his. There was one other Oriental Christian, a mournful, dark Indian of uncertain race, who stood humbly in the background. He was always present at the church services, but no one knew who he was or why he was a Christian. Doubtless he had been captured and baptized in infancy by the missionaries, for Indians who are converted when adults almost invariably lapse.

Flory could see Elizabeth coming down the hill, dressed in lilac-colour, with her aunt and uncle. He had seen her that morning at the Club--they had had just a minute alone together before the others came in. He had only asked her one question.

'Has Verrall gone--for good?'

'Yes.'

There had been no need to say any more. He had simply taken her by the arms and drawn her towards him. She came willingly, even gladly--there in the clear daylight, merciless to his disfigured face. For a moment she had clung to him almost like a child. It was a though he had saved her or protected her from something. He raised her face to kiss her, and found with surprise that she was crying. There had been no time to talk then, not even to say, 'Will you marry me?' No matter, after the service there would be time enough. Perhaps at his next visit, only six weeks hence, the padre would marry them.

Ellis and Westfield and the new Military Policeman were approaching from the Club, where they had been having a couple of quick ones to last them through the service. The Forest Officer who had been sent to take Maxwell's place, a sallow, tall man, completely bald except for two whisker-like tufts in front of his ears, was following them. Flory had not time to say more than 'Good evening' to Elizabeth when she arrived. Mattu, seeing that everyone was present, stopped ringing the bell, and the clergyman led the way inside, followed by Mr Macgregor, with his topi against his stomach, and the Lackersteens and the native Christians. Ellis pinched Flory's elbow and whispered boozily in his ear:

'Come on, line up. Time for the snivel-parade. Quick march!'

He and the Military Policeman went in behind the others, arm-in-arm, with a dancing step--the policeman, till they got inside, wagging his fat behind in imitation of a pwe-dancer. Flory sat down in the same pew as these two, opposite Elizabeth, on her right. It was the first time that he had ever risked sitting with his birthmark towards her. 'Shut your eyes and count twenty-five', whispered Ellis as they sat down, drawing a snigger from the policeman. Mrs Lackersteen had already taken her place at the harmonium, which was no bigger than a writing-desk. Mattu stationed himself by the door and began to pull the punkah--it was so arranged that it only flapped over the front pews, where the Europeans sat. Flo came nosing up the aisle, found Flory's pew and settled down underneath it. The service began.

Flory was only attending intermittently. He was dimly aware of standing and kneeling and muttering 'Amen' to interminable prayers, and of Ellis nudging him and whispering blasphemies behind his hymn book. But he was too happy to collect his thoughts. Hell was yielding up Eurydice. The yellow light flooded in through the open door, gilding the broad back of Mr Macgregor's silk coat like cloth-of-gold. Elizabeth, across the narrow aisle, was so close to Flory that he could hear every rustle of her dress and feel, as it seemed to him, the warmth of her body; yet he would not look at her even once, lest the others should notice it. The harmonium quavered bronchitically as Mrs Lackersteen struggled to pump sufficient air into it with the sole pedal that worked. The singing was a queer, ragged noise--an earnest booming from Mr Macgregor, a kind of shamefaced muttering from the other Europeans, and from the back a loud, wordless lowing, for the Karen Christians knew the tunes of the hymns but not the words.

They were kneeling down again. 'More bloody knee-drill,' Ellis whispered. The air darkened, and there was a light patter of rain on the roof; the trees outside rustled, and a cloud of yellow leaves whirled past the window. Flory watched them through the chinks of his fingers. Twenty years ago, on winter Sundays in his pew in the parish church at home, he used to watch the yellow leaves, as at this moment, drifting and fluttering against leaden skies. Was it not possible, now, to begin over again as though those grimy years had never touched him? Through his fingers he glanced sidelong at Elizabeth, kneeling with her head bent and her face hidden in her youthful, mottled hands. When they were married, when they were married! What fun they would have together in this alien yet kindly land! He saw Elizabeth in his camp, greeting him as he came home tired from work and Ko S'la hurried from the tent with a bottle of beer; he saw her walking in the forest with him, watching the hornbills in the peepul trees and picking nameless flowers, and in the marshy grazing-grounds, tramping through the cold-weather mist after snipe and teal. He saw his home as she would remake it. He saw his drawing-room, sluttish and bachelor-like no longer, with new furniture from Rangoon, and a bowl of pink balsams like rosebuds on the table, and books and water-colours and a black piano. Above all the piano! His mind lingered upon the piano--symbol, perhaps because he was unmusical, of civilized and settled life. He was delivered for ever from the sub-life of the past decade--the debaucheries, the lies, the pain of exile and solitude, the dealings with whores and moneylenders and pukka sahibs.

The clergyman stepped to the small wooden lectern that also served as a pulpit, slipped the band from a roll of sermon paper, coughed, and announced a text. 'In the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Amen.'

'Cut it short, for Christ's sake,' murmured Ellis.

Flory did not notice how many minutes passed. The words of the sermon flowed peacefully through his head, an indistinct burbling sound, almost unheard. When they were married, he was still thinking, when they were married--

Hullo! What was happening?

The clergyman had stopped short in the middle of a word. He had taken off his pince-nez and was shaking them with a distressed air at someone in the doorway. There was a fearful, raucous scream.

'Pike-san pay-like! Pike-san pay-like!'

Everyone jumped in their seats and turned round. It was Ma Hla May. As they turned she stepped inside the church and shoved old Mattu violently aside. She shook her fist at Flory.

'Pike-san pay-like! Pike-san pay-like! Yes, THAT'S the one I mean--Flory, Flory! (She pronounced it Porley.) That one sitting in front there, with the black hair! Turn round and face me, you coward! Where is the money you promised me?'

She was shrieking like a maniac. The people gaped at her, too astounded to move or speak. Her face was grey with powder, her greasy hair was tumbling down, her longyi was ragged at the bottom. She looked like a screaming hag of the bazaar. Flory's bowels seemed to have turned to ice. Oh God, God! Must they know--must Elizabeth know--that THAT was the woman who had been his mistress? But there was not a hope, not the vestige of a hope, of any mistake. She had screamed his name over and over again. Flo, hearing the familiar voice, wriggled from under the pew, walked down the aisle and wagged her tail at Ma Hla May. The wretched woman was yelling out a detailed account of what Flory had done to her.

'Look at me, you white men, and you women, too, look at me! Look how he has ruined me! Look at these rags I am wearing! And he is sitting there, the liar, the coward, pretending not to see me! He would let me starve at his gate like a pariah dog. Ah, but I will shame you! Turn round and look at me! Look at this body that you have kissed a thousand times--look--look--'

She began actually to tear her clothes open--the last insult of a base-born Burmese woman. The harmonium squeaked as Mrs Lackersteen made a convulsive movement. People had at last found their wits and began to stir. The clergyman, who had been bleating ineffectually, recovered his voice, 'Take that woman outside!' he said sharply.

Flory's face was ghastly. After the first moment he had turned his head away from the door and set his teeth in a desperate effort to look unconcerned. But it was useless, quite useless. His face was as yellow as bone, and the sweat glistened on his forehead. Francis and Samuel, doing perhaps the first useful deed of their lives, suddenly sprang from their pew, grabbed Ma Hla May by the arms and hauled her outside, still screaming.

It seemed very silent in the church when they had finally dragged her out of hearing. The scene had been so violent, so squalid, that everyone was upset by it. Even Ellis looked disgusted. Flory could neither speak nor stir. He sat staring fixedly at the altar, his face rigid and so bloodless that the birth-mark seemed to glow upon it like a streak of blue paint. Elizabeth glanced across the aisle at him, and her revulsion made her almost physically sick. She had not understood a word of what Ma Hla May was saying, but the meaning of the scene was perfectly clear. The thought that he had been the lover of that grey-faced, maniacal creature made her shudder in her bones. But worse than that, worse than anything, was his ugliness at this moment. His face appalled her, it was so ghastly, rigid and old. It was like a skull. Only the birthmark seemed alive in it. She hated him now for his birthmark. She had never known till this moment how dishonouring, how unforgivable a thing it was.

Like the crocodile, U Po Kyin had struck at the weakest spot. For, needless to say, this scene was U Po Kyin's doing. He had seen his chance, as usual, and tutored Ma Hla May for her part with considerable care. The clergyman brought his sermon to an end almost at once. As soon as it was over Flory hurried outside, not looking at any of the others. It was getting dark, thank God. At fifty yards from the church he halted, and watched the others making in couples for the Club. It seemed to him that they were hurrying. Ah, they would, of course! There would be something to talk about at the Club tonight! Flo rolled belly-upwards against his ankles, asking for a game. 'Get out, you bloody brute!' he said, and kicked her. Elizabeth had stopped at the church door. Mr Macgregor, happy chance, seemed to be introducing her to the clergyman. In a moment the two men went on in the direction of Mr Macgregor's house, where the clergyman was to stay for the night, and Elizabeth followed the others, thirty yards behind them. Flory ran after her and caught up with her almost at the Club gate.

'Elizabeth!'

She looked round, saw him, turned white, and would have hurried on without a word. But his anxiety was too great, and he caught her by the wrist.

'Elizabeth! I must--I've got to speak to you!'

'Let me go, will you!'

They began to struggle, and then stopped abruptly. Two of the Karens who had come out of the church were standing fifty yards away, gazing at them through the half-darkness with deep interest. Flory began again in a lower tone:

'Elizabeth, I know I've no right to stop you like this. But I must speak to you, I must! Please hear what I've got to say. Please don't run away from me!'

'What are you doing? Why are you holding on to my arm? Let me go this instant!'

'I'll let you go--there, look! But do listen to me, please! Answer me this one thing. After what's happened, can you ever forgive me?'

'Forgive you? What do you mean, FORGIVE you?'

'I know I'm disgraced. It was the vilest thing to happen! Only, in a sense it wasn't my fault. You'll see that when you're calmer. Do you think--not now, it was too bad, but later--do you think you can forget it?'

'I really don't know what you're talking about. Forget it? What has it got to do with ME? I thought it was very disgusting, but it's not MY business. I can't think why you're questioning me like this at all.'

He almost despaired at that. Her tone and even her words were the very ones she had used in that earlier quarrel of theirs. It was the same move over again. Instead of hearing him out she was going to evade him and put him off--snub him by pretending that he had no claim upon her.

'Elizabeth! Please answer me. Please be fair to me! It's serious this time. I don't expect you to take me back all at once. You couldn't, when I'm publicly disgraced like this. But, after all, you virtually promised to marry me--'

'What! Promised to marry you? WHEN did I promise to marry you?'

'Not in words, I know. But it was understood between us.'

'Nothing of the kind was understood between us! I think you are behaving in the most horrible way. I'm going along to the Club at once. Good evening!'

'Elizabeth! Elizabeth! Listen. It's not fair to condemn me unheard. You knew before what I'd done, and you knew that I'd lived a different life since I met you. What happened this evening was only an accident. That wretched woman, who, I admit, was once my--well--'

'I won't listen, I won't listen to such things! I'm going!'

He caught her by the wrists again, and this time held her. The Karens had disappeared, fortunately.

'No, no, you shall hear me! I'd rather offend you to the heart than have this uncertainty. It's gone on week after week, month after month, and I've never once been able to speak straight out to you. You don't seem to know or care how much you make me suffer. But this time you've got to answer me.'

She struggled in his grip, and she was surprisingly strong. Her face was more bitterly angry than he had ever seen or imagined it. She hated him so that she would have struck him if her hands were free.

'Let me go! Oh, you beast, you beast, let me go!'

'My God, my God, that we should fight like this! But what else can I do? I can't let you go without even hearing me. Elizabeth, you MUST listen to me!'

'I will not! I will not discuss it! What right have you to question me? Let me go!'

'Forgive me, forgive me! This one question. Will you--not now, but later, when this vile business is forgotten--will you marry me?'

'No, never, never!'

'Don't say it like that! Don't make it final. Say no for the present if you like--but in a month, a year, five years--'

'Haven't I said no? Why must you keep on and on?'

'Elizabeth, listen to me. I've tried again and again to tell you what you mean to me--oh, it's so useless talking about it! But do try and understand. Haven't I told you something of the life we live here? The sort of horrible death-in-life! The decay, the loneliness, the self-pity? Try and realize what it means, and that you're the sole person on earth who could save me from it.'

'Will you let me go? Why do you have to make this dreadful scene?'

'Does it mean nothing to you when I say that I love you? I don't believe you've ever realized what it is that I want from you. If you like, I'd marry you and promise never even touch you with my finger. I wouldn't mind even that, so long as you were with me. But I can't go on with my life alone, always alone. Can't you bring yourself ever to forgive me?'

'Never, never! I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth. I'd as soon marry the--the sweeper!'

She had begun crying now. He saw that she meant what she said. The tears came into his own eyes. He said again:

'For the last time. Remember that it's something to have one person in the world who loves you. Remember that though you'll find men who are richer, and younger, and better in every way than I, you'll never find one who cares for you so much. And though I'm not rich, at least I could make you a home. There's a way of living--civilized, decent--'

'Haven't we said enough?' she said more calmly. 'Will you let me go before somebody comes?'

He relaxed his grip on her wrists. He had lost her, that was certain. Like a hallucination, painfully clear, he saw again their home as he had imagined it; he saw their garden, and Elizabeth feeding Nero and the pigeons on the drive by the sulphur-yellow phloxes that grew as high as her shoulder; and the drawing-room, with the water-colours on the walls, and the balsams in the china bowl mirrored by the table, and the book-shelves, and the black piano. The impossible, mythical piano--symbol of everything that that futile accident had wrecked!

'You should have a piano,' he said despairingly.

'I don't play the piano.'

He let her go. It was no use continuing. She was no sooner free of him than she took to her heels and actually ran into the Club garden, so hateful was his presence to her. Among the trees she stopped to take off her spectacles and remove the signs of tears from her face. Oh, the beast, the beast! He had hurt her wrists abominably. Oh, what an unspeakable beast he was! When she thought of his face as it had looked in church, yellow and glistening with the hideous birthmark upon it, she could have wished him dead. It was not what he had done that horrified her. He might have committed a thousand abominations and she could have forgiven him. But not after that shameful, squalid scene, and the devilish ugliness of his disfigured face in that moment. It was, finally, the birthmark that had damned him.

Her aunt would be furious when she heard that she had refused Flory. And there was her uncle and his leg-pinching--between the two of them, life here would become impossible. Perhaps she would have to go Home unmarried after all. Black beetles! No matter. Anything--spinsterhood, drudgery, anything--sooner than the alternative. Never, never, would she yield to a man who had been so disgraced! Death sooner, far sooner. If there had been mercenary thoughts in her mind an hour ago, she had forgotten them. She did not even remember that Verrall had jilted her and that to have married Flory would have saved her face. She knew only that he was dishonoured and less than a man, and that she hated him as she would have hated a leper or a lunatic. The instinct was deeper than reason or even self-interest, and she could no more have disobeyed it than she could have stopped breathing.

Flory, as he turned up the hill, did not run, but he walked as fast as he could. What he had to do must be done quickly. It was getting very dark. The wretched Flo, who even now had not grasped that anything serious was the matter, trotted close to his heels, whimpering in a self-pitying manner to reproach him for the kick he had given her. As he came up the path a wind blew through the plaintain trees, rattling the tattered leaves and bringing a scent of damp. It was going to rain again. Ko S'la had laid the dinner-table and was removing some flying beetles that had committed suicide against the petrol-lamp. Evidently he had not heard about the scene in church yet.

'The holy one's dinner is ready. Will the holy one dine now?'

'No, not yet. Give me that lamp.'

He took the lamp, went into the bedroom and shut the door, The stale scent of dust and cigarette-smoke met him, and in the white, unsteady glare of the lamp he could see the mildewed books and the lizards on the wall. So he was back again to this--to the old, secret life--after everything, back where he had been before.

Was it not possible to endure it! He had endured it before. There were palliatives--books, his garden, drink, work, whoring, shooting, conversations with the doctor.

No, it was not endurable any longer. Since Elizabeth's coming the power to suffer and above all to hope, which he had thought dead in him, had sprung to new life. The half-comfortable lethargy in which he had lived was broken. And if he suffered now, there was far worse to come. In a little while someone else would marry her. How he could picture it--the moment when he heard the news!--'Did you hear the Lackersteen kid's got off at last? Poor old So-and-so--booked for the altar, God help him,' etc., etc. And the casual question--'Oh, really? When is it to be?'--stiffening one's face, pretending to be uninterested. And then her wedding day approaching, her bridal night--ah, not that! Obscene, obscene. Keep your eyes fixed on that. Obscene. He dragged his tin uniform-case from under the bed, took out his automatic pistol, slid a clip of cartridges into the magazine, and pulled one into the breech.

Ko S'la was remembered in his will. There remained Flo. He laid his pistol on the table and went outside. Flo was playing with Ba Shin, Ko S'la's youngest son, under the lee of the cookhouse, where the servants had left the remains of a woodfire. She was dancing round him with her small teeth bared, pretending to bite him, while the tiny boy, his belly red in the glow of the embers, smacked weakly at her, laughing, and yet half frightened.

'Flo! Come here, Flo!'

She heard him and came obediently, and then stopped short at the bedroom door. She seemed to have grasped now that there was something wrong. She backed a little and stood looking timorously up at him, unwilling to enter the bedroom.

'Come in here!'

She wagged her tail, but did not move.

'Come on, Flo! Good old Flo! Come on!'

Flo was suddenly stricken with terror. She whined, her tail went down, and she shrank back. 'Come here, blast you!' he cried, and he took her by the collar and flung her into the room, shutting the door behind her. He went to the table for the pistol.

'No come here! Do as you're told!'

She crouched down and whined for forgiveness. It hurt him to hear it. 'Come on, old girl! Dear old Flo! Master wouldn't hurt you. Come here!' She crawled very slowly towards his feet, flat on her belly, whining, her head down as though afraid to look at him. When she was a yard away he fired, blowing her skull to fragments.

Her shattered brain looked like red velvet. Was that what he would look like? The heart, then, not the head. He could hear the servants running out of their quarters and shouting--they must have heard the sound of the shot. He hurriedly tore open his coat and pressed the muzzle of the pistol against his shirt. A tiny lizard, translucent like a creature of gelatine, was stalking a white moth along the edge of the table. Flory pulled the trigger with his thumb.

As Ko S'la burst into the room, for a moment he saw nothing but the dead body of the dog. Then he saw his master's feet, heels upwards, projecting from beyond the bed. He yelled to the others to keep the children out of the room, and all of them surged back from the doorway with screams. Ko S'la fell on his knees behind Flory's body, at the same moment as Ba Pe came running through the veranda.

'Has he shot himself?'

'I think so. Turn him over on his back. Ah, look at that! Run for the Indian doctor! Run for your life!'

There was a neat hole, no bigger than that made by a pencil passing through a sheet of blotting-paper, in Flory's shirt. He was obviously quite dead. With great difficulty Ko S'la managed to drag him on to the bed, for the other servants refused to touch the body. It was only twenty minutes before the doctor arrived. He had heard only a vague report that Flory was hurt, and had bicycled up the hill at top speed through a storm of rain. He threw his bicycle down in the flower-bed and hurried in through the veranda. He was out of breath, and could not see through his spectacles. He took them off, peering myopically at the bed. 'What iss it, my friend?' he said anxiously. 'Where are you hurt?' Then, coming closer, he saw what was on the bed, and uttered a harsh sound.

'Ach, what is this? What has happened to him?'

The doctor fell on his knees, tore Flory's shirt open and put his ear to his chest. An expression of agony came into his face, and he seized the dead man by the shoulders and shook him as though mere violence could bring him to life. One arm fell limply over the edge of the bed. The doctor lifted it back again, and then, with the dead hand between his own, suddenly burst into tears. Ko S'la was standing at the foot of the bed, his brown face full of lines. The doctor stood up, and then losing control of himself for a moment, leaned against the bedpost and wept noisily and grotesquely his back turned on Ko S'la. His fat shoulders were quivering. Presently he recovered himself and turned round again.

'How did this happen?'

'We heard two shots. He did it himself, that is certain. I do not know why.'

'How did you know that he did it on purpose? How do you know that it was not an accident?'

For answer, Ko S'la pointed silently to Flo's corpse. The doctor thought for a moment, and then, with gentle, practised hands, swathed the dead man in the sheet and knotted it at foot and head. With death, the birthmark had faded immediately, so that it was no more than a faint grey stain.

'Bury the dog at once. I will tell Mr Macgregor that this happened accidentally while he was cleaning his revolver. Be sure that you bury the dog. Your master was my friend. It shall not be written on his tombstone that he committed suicide.'

25

It was lucky that the padre should have been at Kyauktada, for he was able, before catching the train on the following evening, to read the burial service in due form and even to deliver a short address on the virtues of the dead man. All Englishmen are virtuous when they are dead. 'Accidental death' was the official verdict (Dr Veraswami had proved with all his medico-legal skill that the circumstances pointed to accident) and it was duly inscribed upon the tombstone. Not that anyone believed it, of course. Flory's real epitaph was the remark, very occasionally uttered--for an Englishman who dies in Burma is so soon forgotten--'Flory? Oh yes, he was a dark chap, with a birthmark. He shot himself in Kyauktada in 1926. Over a girl, people said. Bloody fool.' Probably no one, except Elizabeth, was much surprised at what had happened. There is a rather large number of suicides among the Europeans in Burma, and they occasion very little surprise.

Flory's death had several results. The first and most important of them was that Dr Veraswami was ruined, even as he had foreseen. The glory of being a white man's friend--the one thing that had saved him before--had vanished. Flory's standing with the other Europeans had never been good, it is true; but he was after all a white man, and his friendship conferred a certain prestige. Once he was dead, the doctor's ruin was assured. U Po Kyin waited the necessary time, and then struck again, harder than ever. It was barely three months before he had fixed it in the head of every European in Kyauktada that the doctor was an unmitigated scoundrel. No public accusation was ever made against him--U Po Kyin was most careful of that. Even Ellis would have been puzzled to say just what scoundrelism the doctor had been guilty of; but still, it was agreed that he was a scoundrel. By degrees, the general suspicion of him crystallized in a single Burmese phrase--'shok de'. Veraswami, it was said, was quite a clever little chap in his way--quite a good doctor for a native--but he was THOROUGHLY shok de. Shok de means, approximately, untrustworthy, and when a 'native' official comes to be known as shok de, there is an end of him.

The dreaded nod and wink passed somewhere in high places, and the doctor was reverted to the rank of Assistant Surgeon and transferred to Mandalay General Hospital. He is still there, and is likely to remain. Mandalay is rather a disagreeable town--it is dusty and intolerably hot, and it is said to have five main products all beginning with P, namely, pagodas, pariahs, pigs, priests and prostitutes--and the routine-work of the hospital is a dreary business. The doctor lives just outside the hospital grounds in a little bake-house of a bungalow with a corrugated iron fence round its tiny compound, and in the evenings he runs a private clinic to supplement his reduced pay. He has joined a second-rate club frequented by Indian pleaders. Its chief glory is a single European member--a Glasgow electrician named Macdougall, sacked from the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company for drunkenness, and now making a precarious living out of a garage. Macdougall is a dull lout, only interested in whisky and magnetos. The doctor, who will never believe that a white man can be a fool, tries almost every night to engage him in what he still calls 'cultured conversation'; but the results are very unsatisfying.

Ko S'la inherited four hundred rupees under Flory's will, and with his family he set up a tea-shop in the bazaar. But the shop failed, as it was bound to do with the two women fighting in it at all hours, and Ko S'la and Ba Pe were obliged to go back to service. Ko S'la was an accomplished servant. Besides the useful arts of pimping, dealing with money-lenders, carrying master to bed when drunk and making pick-me-ups known as prairie oysters on the following morning, he could sew, darn, refill cartridges, attend to a horse, press a suit, and decorate a dinner-table with wonderful, intricate patterns of chopped leaves and dyed rice-grains. He was worth fifty rupees a month. But he and Ba Pe had fallen into lazy ways in Flory's service, and, they were sacked from one job after another. They had a bad year of poverty, and little Ba Shin developed a cough, and finally coughed himself to death one stifling hot-weather night. Ko S'la is now a second boy to a Rangoon rice-broker with a neurotic wife who makes unending kit-kit, and Ba Pe is pani-wallah in the same house at sixteen rupees a month. Ma Hla May is in a brothel in Mandalay. Her good looks are all but gone, and her clients pay her only four annas and sometimes kick her and beat her. Perhaps more bitterly than any of the others, she regrets the good time when Flory was alive, and when she had not the wisdom to put aside any of the money she extracted from him.

U Po Kyin realized all his dreams except one. After the doctor's disgrace, it was inevitable that U Po Kyin should be elected to the Club, and elected he was, in spite of bitter protests from Ellis. In the end the other Europeans came to be rather glad that they had elected him, for he was a bearable addition to the Club. He did not come too often, was ingratiating in his manner, stood drinks freely, and developed almost at once into a brilliant bridge-player. A few months later he was transferred from Kyauktada and promoted. For a whole year, before his retirement, he officiated as Deputy Commissioner, and during that year alone he made twenty thousand rupees in bribes. A month after his retirement he was summoned to a durbar in Rangoon, to receive the decoration that had been awarded to him by the Indian Government.

It was an impressive scene, that durbar. On the platform, hung with flags and flowers, sat the Governor, frock-coated, upon a species of throne, with a bevy of aides-de-camp and secretaries behind him. All round the hall, like glittering waxworks, stood the tall, bearded sowars of the Governor's bodyguard, with pennoned lances in their hands. Outside, a band was blaring at intervals. The gallery was gay with the white ingyis and pink scarves of Burmese ladies, and in the body of the hall a hundred men or more were waiting to receive their decorations. There were Burmese officials in blazing Mandalay pasos, and Indians in cloth-of-gold pagris, and British officers in full-dress uniform with clanking sword-scabbards, and old thugyis with their grey hair knotted behind their heads and silver-hilted dahs slung from their shoulders. In a high, clear voice a secretary was reading out the list of awards, which varied from the C.I.E. to certificates of honour in embossed silver cases. Presently U Po Kyin's turn came and the secretary read from his scroll:

'To U Po Kyin, Deputy Assistant Commissioner, retired, for long and loyal service and especially for his timely aid in crushing a most dangerous rebellion in Kyauktada district'--and so on and so on.

Then two henchmen, placed there for the purpose hoisted U Po Kyin upright, and he waddled to the platform, bowed as low as his belly would permit, and was duly decorated and felicitated, while Ma Kin and other supporters clapped wildly and fluttered their scarves from the gallery.

U Po Kyin had done all that mortal man could do. It was time now to be making ready for the next world--in short, to begin building pagodas. But unfortunately, this was the very point at which his plans went wrong. Only three days after the Governor's durbar, before so much as a brick of those atoning pagodas had been laid, U Po Kyin was stricken with apoplexy and died without speaking again. There is no armour against fate. Ma Kin was heartbroken at the disaster. Even if she had built the pagodas herself, it would have availed U Po Kyin nothing; no merit can be acquired save by one's own act. She suffers greatly to think of U Po Kyin where he must be now--wandering in God knows what dreadful subterranean hell of fire, and darkness, and serpents, and genii. Or even if he has escaped the worst, his other fear has been realized, and he has returned to the earth in the shape of a rat or a frog. Perhaps at this very moment a snake is devouring him.

As to Elizabeth, things fell out better than she had expected. After Flory's death Mrs Lackersteen, dropping all pretences for once, said openly that there were no men in this dreadful place and the only hope was to go and stay several months in Rangoon or Maymyo. But she could not very well send Elizabeth to Rangoon or Maymyo alone, and to go with her practically meant condemning Mr Lackersteen to death from delirium tremens. Months passed, and the rains reached their climax, and Elizabeth had just made up her mind that she must go home after all, penniless and unmarried, when--Mr Macgregor proposed to her. He had had it in his mind for a long time; indeed, he had only been waiting for a decent interval to elapse after Flory's death.

Elizabeth accepted him gladly. He was rather old, perhaps, but a Deputy Commissioner is not to be despised--certainly he was a far better match than Flory. They are very happy. Mr Macgregor was always a good-hearted man, but he has grown more human and likeable since his marriage. His voice booms less, and he has given up his morning exercises. Elizabeth has grown mature surprisingly quickly, and a certain hardness of manner that always belonged to her has become accentuated. Her servants live in terror of her, though she speaks no Burmese. She has an exhaustive knowledge of the Civil List, gives charming little dinner-parties and knows how to put the wives of subordinate officials in their places--in short, she fills with complete success the position for which Nature had designed her from the first, that of a burra memsahib.

THE END

|| namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammÄ• sambuddhassa ||

khuddakanikÄ• ye

buddhavaá¹ƒsa-aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ•

ganthÄ• rambhakathÄ•

anantaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ \Be 1/ \Ne 1/ \Ee 1/ karuá¹‡Ä• layaá¹ƒ layaá¹ƒ, malassa __buddhaá¹ƒ_ namÄ• mi __dhammaá¹ƒ_ bhavasaá¹ƒvaraá¹ƒ varaá¹ƒ, guá¹‡Ä• karaÃ±ceva niraá¹…gaá¹‡ paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya seá¹-á¹-ho jinasÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ, yaá¹ƒ dhammasenÄ• pati dhammarÄ• jaá¹ƒ.

apucchi satthÄ• ramapÄ• rapÄ• raguá¹ƒ, niraá¹…gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• tigaá¹‡assa majjhe || subuddhavaá¹ƒsenidha __buddhavaá¹ƒso, _ visuddhavaá¹ƒsena vinÄ• yakena.

hatÄ• vakÄ• sena pakÄ• sito yo, samÄ• dhivÄ• sena tathÄ• gatena || yÄ• vajjakÄ• lÄ• \Ne 2/ avinÄ• sayantÄ• , pÄ• á¸·ikkamaÃ±ceva ca pÄ• á¸·iyatthaá¹ƒ.

kathÄ• nusandhiá¹ƒ sugatassa puttÄ• , yathÄ• sutaá¹ƒyeva samÄ• hariá¹ƒsu || tasseva \Be 2/ sambuddhavaranvayassa, sadÄ• janÄ• naá¹ƒ savanÄ• matassa.

pasÄ• dapaÃ±Ã±Ä• jananassa yasmÄ• , saá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• nukkamato pavattÄ• || sakkaccasaddhammaratena __buddhasÄ«hena_ sÄ«lÄ• diguá¹‡oditena.

Ä• yÄ• citohaá¹ƒ sucirampi kÄ• laá¹ƒ, tasmÄ• ssa saá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anamÄ• rabhissaá¹ƒ || sadÄ• \Ee 2/ janÄ• naá¹ƒ kalinÄ• sanassa, ciraá¹-á¹-hitatthaá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanassa.

mamÄ• pi puÃ±Ã±odayavuddhiyatthaá¹ƒ, pasÄ• danatthaÃ±ca mahÄ• janassa || mahÄ• vihÄ• rÄ• gatapÄ• á¸·imaggasannissitÄ• saá¹…karadosahÄ«nÄ• .

samÄ• satoyaá¹ƒ pana buddhavaá¹ƒsasaá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• hessati sÄ• rabhÅ«tÄ• || sotabbarÅ«paá¹ƒ pana __buddhavaá¹ƒsakathÄ• ya_ aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ idha natthi yasmÄ• .

pasÄ• danaá¹ƒ buddhaguá¹‡e ratÄ• naá¹ƒ, pavÄ• hanaá¹ƒ pÄ• pamahÄ• malassa ||

tasmÄ• hi sakkaccasamÄ• dhiyuttÄ• , vihÄ• ya vikkhepamanaÃ±Ã±acittÄ• .

saá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anaá¹ƒ vaá¹‡á¹‡ayato suvaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, nidhÄ• ya kaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ madhuraá¹ƒ sabbampi hitvÄ• pana kiccamaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, sakkacca maccenidha niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ.

sotuá¹ƒ kathetumpi budhena yuttÄ• , kathÄ• panÄ• yaá¹ƒ atidullabhÄ• ti || tattha \Be 3/ ``buddhavaá¹ƒsasaá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• hessati sÄ• rabhÅ«tÄ• â€™â€™ ti vutta vavatthapetabbo. tatridaá¹ƒ vavatthÄ• naá¹ƒ --- ito heá¹-á¹-hÄ• kappasatasahassÄ• dhikes asaá¹…khyeyyesu uppannÄ• naá¹ƒ paÃ±cavÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ uppannakappÄ• dip paveá¹‡ivitthÄ• rakathÄ• ``buddhavaá¹ƒso nÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti veditabbo.

svÄ• yaá¹ƒ kappaparicchedo nÄ• maparicchedo gottaparicchedo jÄ• tiparicchedo nagarapa 3/ mÄ• tuparicchedo bodhirukkhaparicchedo dhammacakkappavattanaparicchedo abhisama sÄ• vakasannipÄ• taparicchedo aggasÄ• vakaparicchedo upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kaparicchedo aggas parivÄ• rabhikkhuparicchedo raá¹ƒsiparicchedo sarÄ«rappamÄ• á¹‡aparicchedo bodhisattÄ byÄ• karaá¹‡aparicchedo bodhisattapadhÄ• naparicchedo Ä• yuparicchedo parinibbÄ• napa Ä• gatehi bÄ• vÄ«satiyÄ• paricchedehi paricchinno vavatthito.

pÄ• á¸·ianÄ• ruá¸·ho pana __sambahulavÄ• ro_pettha Ä• netabbo. so agÄ• ravÄ• saparicc nÄ• á¹-akitthiparicchedo aggamahesiparicchedo puttaparicchedo yÄ• naparicchedo abhinikl padhÄ• naparicchedo upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kaparicchedo vihÄ• raparicchedoti dasadhÄ• vavatthito taá¹ƒ sambahulavÄ• rampi, yathÄ• á¹-á¹-hÄ• ne mayaá¹ƒ pana.

dassetvÄ• va gamissÄ• ma, tattha tattha samÄ• sato || so evaá¹ƒ vavatthito pana ---

kenÄ• yaá¹ƒ desito kattha, kassatthÄ• ya ca desito.

kimatthÄ• ya kadÄ• kassa, vacanaá¹ƒ kena cÄ• bhato || sabbametaá¹ƒ vidhiá¹ƒ vatvÄ• , pubbameva samÄ• sato.

pacchÄ• haá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsassa, karissÄ• matthavaá¹‡á¹‡ananti ||

tattha __kenÄ• yaá¹ƒ desito_ti ayaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒso kena desito? sabbadhammesu appa dasabalena catuvesÄ• rajjavisÄ• radena dhammarÄ• jena \Be 4/ dhammassÄ• minÄ• tathÄ sammÄ• sambuddhena desito.

__kattha desito_ti? kapilavatthumahÄ• nagare nigrodhÄ• rÄ• mamahÄ• vihÄ• re paramaru devamanussanayananipÄ• tabhÅ«te ratanacaá¹…kame caá¹…kamantena desito.

__kassatthÄ• ya_ \Ne 4/ __ca desito_ti? dvÄ• sÄ«tiyÄ• Ã±Ä• tisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ anekakoá¹ atthÄ• ya desito.

__kimatthÄ• ya desito_ti? caturoghanittharaá¹‡atthÄ• ya desito.

__kadÄ• desito_ti bhagavÄ• hi paá¹-hamabodhiyaá¹ƒ vÄ«sativassÄ• ni anibaddhavÄ• so phÄ• sukaá¹ƒ hoti, tattha tattheva gantvÄ• vasi. kathaá¹ƒ? __paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ_ vassaá¹ƒ isipa (SN c V 1081; Vin I 13 Ä• dayo; Paá¹-is II 30) pavattetvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasa brahmakoá¹-iyo pÄ• yetvÄ• bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiá¹ƒ upanissÄ• ya isipatane migadÄ• ye vasi. __dutiyaá¹ƒ_ vassa veá¸·uvane mahÄ• vihÄ• re. __tatiyacatutthÄ• ni_pi tattheva. __paÃ±camaá¹ƒ_ vesÄ• liá¹ƒ kÅ«á¹-Ä• gÄ• rasÄ• lÄ• yaá¹ƒ. __chaá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ_ makulapabbate. __sattamaá¹ƒ_ tÄ• vatiá __aá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ_ bhaggesu saá¹ƒsumÄ• ragiriá¹ƒ upanissÄ• ya bhesakaá¸·Ä• vane. __na __dasamaá¹ƒ_ pÄ• lileyyakavanasaá¹‡á¸• e. __ekÄ• dasamaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• á¸·Ä• yaá¹ƒ brÄ• hm veraÃ±jÄ• yaá¹ƒ. __terasamaá¹ƒ_ cÄ• liyapabbate. __cuddasamaá¹ƒ_ jetavanamahÄ• vihÄ kapilavatthumahÄ• nagare. __soá¸·asamaá¹ƒ_ Ä• á¸·avakaá¹ƒ dametvÄ• caturÄ• sÄ«tipÄ• pÄ• yetvÄ• Ä• á¸·aviyaá¹ƒ. __sattarasamaá¹ƒ_ rÄ• jagaheyeva. __aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasamaá¹ƒ_ __ekÅ«navÄ«satimaá¹ƒ vÄ«satimaá¹ƒ_ pana vassaá¹ƒ rÄ• jagaheyeva vasi. tena \Ee 4/ vut paá¹-hamabodhiyaá¹ƒ vÄ«sativassÄ• ni anibaddhavÄ• so hutvÄ• yattha yattha phÄ• sukaá gantvÄ• vasÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya pana sÄ• vatthiá¹ƒyeva upanissÄ• ya jetava pubbÄ• rÄ• me ca dhuvaparibhogavasena vasi.

yadÄ• pana satthÄ• buddho hutvÄ• bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiyaá¹ƒ isipatane migadÄ• ye paá¹-hama vuá¹-á¹-havasso pavÄ• retvÄ• uruvelaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• tattha tayo mÄ• se vasanto tebhÄ• tikaj bhikkhusahassehi kataparivÄ• ro \Be 5/ phussamÄ• sapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ g vasi, tadÄ• bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asito nikkhantassa panassa paÃ±ca mÄ• sÄ• jÄ• tÄ• . sakalo hema udÄ• yittherassa Ä• gatadivasato sattaá¹-á¹-hadivasÄ• vÄ«tivattÄ• . so pana phaggunÄ«pu

--- ``atikkanto hemanto, vasantakÄ• lo anuppatto, samayo tathÄ• gatassa kapilapuraá¹ƒ gar cintetvÄ• kulanagaragamanatthÄ• ya saá¹-á¹-himattÄ• hi gÄ• thÄ• hi gamanavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ cassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• Ã±Ä• tisaá¹…gahaá¹ƒ kÄ• tukÄ• mo hutvÄ• aá¹…gamagadhavÄ• sahassehi kapilavatthuvÄ• sÄ«naá¹ƒ dasahi sahassehÄ«ti sabbeheva vÄ«satiyÄ• khÄ«á¹‡ rÄ• jagahato nikkhamitvÄ• divase divase yojanaá¹ƒ gacchanto rÄ• jagahato saá¹-á¹-hiyojan \Ne 5/ dvÄ«hi mÄ• sehi sampÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• tattha Ã±Ä• tÄ«naá¹ƒ vandÄ• panatthaá¹ƒ __ya akÄ• si. tadÄ• yaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒso desito.

__kassa vacana_nti? sÄ• vakapaccekabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ sammÄ• saml

__kenÄ• bhato_ti? Ä• cariyaparamparÄ• ya Ä• bhato. ayaÃ±hi sÄ• riputtatthero bhaddajÄ« moggaliputto sudatto dhammiko dÄ• sako soá¹‡ako revatoti evamÄ• dÄ«hi yÄ• va tatiyasaá uddhampi tesaá¹ƒyeva sissÄ• nusissehÄ«ti evaá¹ƒ tÄ• va Ä• cariyaparamparÄ• ya yÄ• vajj

ettÄ• vatÄ• ---

``kenÄ• yaá¹ƒ desito kattha, kassatthÄ• ya ca desito.

kimatthÄ• ya kadÄ• kassa, vacanaá¹ƒ kena cÄ• bhatoâ€™â€™ ti || --- ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• vuttatthÄ• hoti.

nidÄ• nakathÄ•

bÄ• hiranidÄ• naá¹ƒ

evaá¹ƒ \Be 6/ \Ne 6/ Ä• bhatassa panassa idÄ• ni atthavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• hoti, sÄ• panÄ• yaá yasmÄ• dÅ«renidÄ• naá¹ƒ avidÅ«renidÄ• naá¹ƒ santikenidÄ• nanti, imÄ• ni tÄ«á¹‡i nidÄ• n vaá¹‡á¹‡itÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡itÄ• nÄ• ma hoti. ye ca naá¹ƒ suá¹‡anti, tehi samudÄ• gamato \Ee viÃ±Ã±Ä• tattÄ• suviÃ±Ã±Ä• tÄ• va hoti, tasmÄ• tÄ• ni nidÄ• nÄ• ni dassetvÄ• va vaá¹‡á¹ tattha Ä• dito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya tÄ• va tesaá¹ƒ nidÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ paricchedo veditabbo. tatrÄ• y atthadÄ«panÄ• --- __dÄ«paá¹…kara_dasabalassa pÄ• damÅ«le katÄ• bhinÄ«hÄ• rassa m __vessantara_ttabhÄ• vÄ• cavitvÄ• tusitabhavane nibbatti, tÄ• va pavattÄ• kathÄ• __dÅ« tusitabhavanato cavitvÄ• yÄ• va bodhimaá¹‡á¸• e sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡appatti, tÄ• va __avidÅ«renidÄ• naá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma. ``ekaá¹ƒ samayaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• sÄ• vatthiyaá¹ƒ viharati je anÄ• thapiá¹‡á¸• ikassa Ä• rÄ• meâ€™â€™ ti ca, ``rÄ• jagahe viharati veá¸·uvane kalandak

``vesÄ• liyaá¹ƒ viharati mahÄ• vane kÅ«á¹-Ä• gÄ• rasÄ• lÄ• yaâ€™â€™ nti ca evaá¹ƒ mah sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡appattito yÄ• va parinibbÄ• namaÃ±cÄ• etasmiá¹ƒ antare bhaga taá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ __santikenidÄ• naá¹ƒ_ nÄ• mÄ• ti veditabbaá¹ƒ. ettÄ• vatÄ• saá¹…khepeneva dÅ«rÄ• vidÅ«rasantikenidÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ vasena __bÄ• hiranidÄ• navaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• _ samattÄ abbhantaranidÄ• naá¹ƒ

1. ratanacaá¹…kamanakaá¹‡á¸• avaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•

idÄ• ni pana ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``brahmÄ• \Ne 7/ ca lokÄ• dhipatÄ« sahampatÄ«, kataÃ±jalÄ« anadhivaraá¹ƒ a santÄ«dha sattÄ• pparajakkhajÄ• tikÄ• , desehi dhammaá¹ƒ anukampimaá¹ƒ pajaâ€™â€™

Ä• dinayappavattassa __abbhantaranidÄ• nassa_ atthavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• hoti.

ettha \Be 7/ ``ekaá¹ƒ samayaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• rÄ• jagahe viharati veá¸·uvane kalandakanivÄ• tiÄ• disuttantesu viya --- ``ekaá¹ƒ samayaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• sakkesu viharati kapilavatthusmiá¹ kho Ä• yasmÄ• sÄ• riputto yena bhagavÄ• tenupasaá¹…kami; upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• bhaga apucchÄ«â€™â€™ ti evamÄ• dinÄ• nayena nidÄ• naá¹ƒ avatvÄ• kasmÄ• ``brahmÄ• ca kataÃ±jalÄ« anadhivaraá¹ƒ ayÄ• cathÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dinÄ• nayena nidÄ• naá¹ƒ vuttanti?
sabbadhammadesanÄ• kÄ• raá¹‡abhÅ«tÄ• ya brahmuno dhammadesanÄ• yÄ• canÄ• ya s

``kadÄ• yaá¹ƒ dhammadesanatthaá¹ƒ, ajjhiá¹-á¹-ho brahmunÄ• jino.

kadÄ• kattha ca kenÄ• yaá¹ƒ, gÄ• thÄ• hi samudÄ«ritÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

vuccate \Ee 6/ --- buddhabhÅ«tassa pana bhagavato aá¹-á¹-hame sattÄ• he satthÄ• dham ajjhiá¹-á¹-ho Ä• yÄ• cito. tatrÄ• yaá¹ƒ anupubbikathÄ• --- mahÄ• puriso kira katÄ• bhinÄ«h mahÄ• bhinikkhamanadivase vivaá¹-apÄ• kaá¹-abÄ«bhacchasayanÄ• sanaceá¹-ikÄ• nÄ• á saá¹ƒviggahadayo paá¹-ekadesÄ• vacchannaá¹ƒ __channaá¹ƒ_ Ä• mantetvÄ• --- ``arinara kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma turaá¹…gavaramÄ• harÄ• â€™â€™ ti kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ Ä• harÄ• p varaturaá¹…gamÄ• ruyha nagaradvÄ• re adhivatthÄ• ya devatÄ• ya nagaradvÄ• re vivaá¹-e rajjÄ• ni tena rattÄ• vasesena atikkamitvÄ• anomasatto __anomÄ• ya_ nÄ• ma nadiyÄ• tÄ \Ne 8/ --- ``channa, tvaá¹ƒ mama imÄ• ni aÃ±Ã±ehi asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡Ä• ni Ä• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni varaturaá¹…gamÄ• dÄ• ya kapilapuraá¹ƒ gacchÄ• hÄ«â€™â€™ ti channaá¹ƒ vissajjetvÄ• asitoraganÄ«luppalasadisenÄ• sinÄ• sakesamakuá¹-aá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• Ä• kÄ• se ukkhipitvÄ pattacÄ«varaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• sayameva pabbajitvÄ• anupubbena cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• no anilabalasamuddhutataraá¹…gabhaá¹…gaá¹ƒ asaá¹…gaá¹ƒ gaá¹…gaá¹ƒ nadiá¹ƒ uttaritvÄ• maá¹‡igaá¹‡araá¹ƒsijÄ• lavijjotitarÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• issariyamadamattaá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ parihÄ• sento viya ca uddhatavesassa janassa lajjamuppÄ• vayakantÄ«hi nÄ• garajanahadayÄ• ni attani bandhanto viya ca dvatiá¹ƒsavaramahÄ• puris rÅ«pasiriyÄ• sabbajananayanÄ• ni vilumpamÄ• no viya ca rÅ«pÄ«pÄ• dasaÃ±caro puÃ±Ã± ca gamanena nissaá¹…go santindriyo santamÄ• naso \Be 8/ yugamattaá¹ƒ pekkhamÄ• no caritvÄ• yÄ• panamattaá¹ƒ bhattaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• nagarato nikkhamitvÄ• __paá¹‡á¸• avapa chÄ• yÅ«dakasampanne sucibhÅ«mibhÄ• ge paramaramaá¹‡Ä«ye pavivitte okÄ• se nisÄ« missakabhattaá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• paá¹‡á¸• avagirÄ• nusÄ• rena bimbisÄ• rena magadhan santikaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• nÄ• magottaá¹ƒ pucchitvÄ• tena pamuditahadayena ``mama rajjabhÄ• rajjena nimantiyamÄ• no --- ``alaá¹ƒ, mahÄ• rÄ• ja, na mayhaá¹ƒ rajjenattho ahaá¹ƒ rajjaá¹ƒ lokahitatthÄ• ya padhÄ• namanuyuÃ±jitvÄ• loke vivaá¹-acchado buddho bhavissÄ• mÄ«ti tena ca ``buddho hutvÄ• sabbapaá¹-hamaá¹ƒ mama vijitaá¹ƒ osareyyÄ• thÄ• â€™â€™ ti v paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• Ä• á¸·Ä• raÃ±ca udakaÃ±ca upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ dhammad pakkamitvÄ• uruvelÄ• yaá¹ƒ chabbassÄ• ni dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ karontopi amataá¹ƒ adhiga oá¸·Ä• rikÄ• hÄ• rapaá¹-isevanena sarÄ«raá¹ƒ santappesi.

tadÄ• \Ee 7/ pana uruvelÄ• yaá¹ƒ __senÄ• nigame_ senÄ• nigamakuá¹-umbikassa dhÄ«tÄ vayappattÄ• ekasmiá¹ƒ nigrodharukkhe patthanamakÄ• si --- ``sacÄ• haá¹ƒ samajÄ• tikaá¹ paá¹-hamagabbhe puttaá¹ƒ labhissÄ• mi, balikammaá¹ƒ karissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tassÄ• s vesÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amadivase ``ajja balikammaá¹ƒ karissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti pÄ• tova pÄ• y paramamadhuraá¹ƒ sampaá¹-ipÄ• desi. bodhisattopi tadaheva katasarÄ«rapaá¹-ijaggano bh Ä• gamayamÄ• no pÄ• tova gantvÄ• tasmiá¹ƒ nigrodharukkhamÅ«le nisÄ«di. atha kho __p dhÄ• tÄ« rukkhamÅ«lasodhanatthÄ• ya gatÄ• bodhisattaá¹ƒ pÄ• cÄ«nalokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ olok saÃ±jhÄ• ppabhÄ• nuraÃ±jitavarakanakagirisikharasadisasarÄ«rasobhaá¹ƒ timiranikaranidh kamalavanavikasanakaraá¹ƒ ghanavivaramupagataá¹ƒ divasakaramiva taruvaramupagataá sarÄ«rato cassa nikkhantÄ• hi pabhÄ• hi sakalaÃ±ca taá¹ƒ rukkhaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡ etadahosi --- ``ajja amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ \Ne 9/ devatÄ• rukkhato oruyha sahattheneva baliá¹ƒ paá¹ nisinnÄ• â€™â€™ ti. sÄ• vegena gantvÄ• sujÄ• tÄ• ya etamatthaá¹ƒ Ä• rocesi.

tato \Be 9/ sujÄ• tÄ• saÃ±jÄ• tasaddhÄ• hutvÄ• sabbÄ• laá¹…kÄ• rena alaá¹…karitvÄ• s suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiá¹ƒ paramamadhurassa madhupÄ• yÄ• sassa pÅ«retvÄ• aparÄ• ya suva sÄ«senÄ• dÄ• ya nigrodharukkhÄ• bhimukhÄ« agamÄ• si. sÄ• gacchantÄ« dÅ«ratova taá¹ sakalaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ rukkhaá¹ƒ sarÄ«rappabhÄ• ya suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• puÃ±Ã±as nisinnaá¹ƒ disvÄ• pÄ«tisomanassajÄ• tÄ• sujÄ• tÄ• ``rukkhadevatÄ• â€™â€™ ti saÃ±Ã±A paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya onatonatÄ• gantvÄ• sÄ«sato taá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiá¹ƒ otÄ• retvÄ• mahA paÃ±capatiá¹-á¹-hitena vanditvÄ• --- ``yathÄ• mama manoratho nipphanno, evaá¹ƒ tumhÄ• ti vatvÄ• pakkÄ• mi.

atha kho bodhisattopi suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• __neraÃ±jarÄ• ya_ nadiyÄ• tÄ«raá¹ __suppatiá¹-á¹-hitassa_ nÄ• ma titthassa tÄ«re suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiá¹ƒ á¹-hapetvÄ• nhatvÄ• ekÅ«napaÃ±Ã±Ä• sapiá¹‡á¸• e karonto taá¹ƒ pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• --- ``sacÄ• ha ayaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• ti paá¹-isotaá¹ƒ gacchatÅ«â€™â€™ ti khipi. sÄ• pÄ• ti paá¹-isotaá nÄ• ma nÄ• garÄ• jassa bhavanaá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ thÄ• lakÄ• ni heá¹-á¹-hÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si.

mahÄ• satto tattheva vanasaá¹‡á¸• e divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamay tiá¹‡ahÄ• rakena mahÄ• purisassa Ä• kÄ• raá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-h bodhimaá¹‡á¸• amÄ• ruyha dakkhiá¹‡adisÄ• bhÄ• ge aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. so pana padeso padum akampittha. mahÄ• puriso --- ``ayaá¹ƒ padeso mama guá¹‡aá¹ƒ dhÄ• retuá¹ƒ asamatthoâ€™ pacchimadisÄ• bhÄ• gamagamÄ• si. sopi tatheva kampittha. puna uttaradisÄ• bhÄ• gamag puna puratthimadisÄ• bhÄ• gamagamÄ• si. tattha pallaá¹…kappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ
--- ``idaá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ kilesaviddhaá¹ƒsanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naâ€™â€™ nti sanniá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ agge gahetvÄ• cÄ• lesi. tÄ• ni tÅ«likaggena paricchinnÄ• ni viya ahesuá¹ƒ. bodhisatto --- `` imaá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ na bhindissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hah Ä• bhujitvÄ• bodhikkhandhaá¹ƒ piá¹-á¹-hito katvÄ• puratthÄ• bhimukho nisÄ«di.

taá¹…khaá¹‡aÃ±Ã±eva \Be 10/ sabbalokÄ• bhihÄ• ro mÄ• ro bÄ• husahassaá¹ƒ mÄ• petv himagirisikharasadisaá¹ƒ \Ne 10/ __girimekhalaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma arivaravÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ varavÄ• navayojanikena dhanuasipharasusarasattisabalenÄ• tibahalena mÄ• rabalena samparivuto ajjhottharanto mahÄ• sapattaá¹ƒ viya mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ samupÄ• gami. mahÄ• puriso sÅ«riye mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• vikasitajayasumanakusumasadisassa cÄ«varassa upari patam rattapavÄ• laá¹…kurasadisaruciradassanehi bodhirukkhaá¹…kurehi pÄ«tiyÄ• viya pÅ«jiyam pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nussatiÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ labhitvÄ• majjhimayÄ• me dibbacakkhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ paá¹-iccasamuppÄ• de Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ otÄ• retvÄ• vaá¹-á¹-avivaá¹-á¹-aá¹ƒ sammasanto aru ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ, sandhÄ• vissaá¹ƒ anibbisaá¹ƒ.

gahakÄ• raá¹ƒ gavesanto, dukkhÄ• jÄ• ti punappunaá¹ƒ ||

``gahakÄ• raka diá¹-á¹-hosi, puna gehaá¹ƒ na kÄ• hasi.

sabbÄ• te phÄ• sukÄ• bhaggÄ• , gahakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ visaá¹…khataá¹ƒ.

visaá¹…khÄ• ragataá¹ƒ cittaá¹ƒ, taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Dhp 153-15

imaá¹ƒ __udÄ• naá¹ƒ_ udÄ• netvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vimuttisukhapaá¹-isevanena vÄ«tinÄ• me samÄ• pattito vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya devatÄ• naá¹ƒ kaá¹…khaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• tÄ• saá¹ƒ kaá¹…khÄ• v uppatitvÄ• yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• tÄ• saá¹ƒ kaá¹…khaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• pal pÄ• cÄ«nanissite uttaradisÄ• bhÄ• ge á¹-hatvÄ• --- ``imasmiá¹ƒ vata me pallaá¹…ke sabba paá¹-ividdhaâ€™â€™ nti cattÄ• ri asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni kappasatasahassaÃ±ca pÅ«ritÄ• naá phalÄ• dhigamaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kaÃ±ceva bodhirukkhaÃ±ca animisehi akkhÄ«hi o vÄ«tinÄ• mesi, taá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ __animisacetiyaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma jÄ• taá¹ƒ.

atha pallaá¹…kassa ca á¹-hitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nassa ca antare puratthimapacchimato Ä• yate rata caá¹…kamanto sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• mesi, taá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ __ratanacaá¹…kamacetiyaá tato pacchimadisÄ• bhÄ• ge devatÄ• ratanagharaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma mÄ• pesuá¹ƒ, tattha pallaá¹… abhidhammapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ visesato cettha anantanayasamantapaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ vicinanto sa taá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ __ratanagharacetiyaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma \Be 11/ jÄ• taá¹ƒ. evaá¹ƒ bodhisamÄ« vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• paÃ±came sattÄ• he bodhirukkhamÅ«lÄ• yena ajapÄ• lanigrodho tenupa vicinantoyeva vimuttisukhaÃ±ca paá¹-isaá¹ƒvedento __ajapÄ• lanigrodhe_ sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ« evaá¹ƒ \Ne 11/ aparaá¹ƒ sattÄ• haá¹ƒ __mucalinde_ nisÄ«di. tassa nisinnamattasseva bha sakalacakkavÄ• á¸·agabbhaá¹ƒ pÅ«rento mahÄ• akÄ• lamegho udapÄ• di. tasmiá¹ƒ pana u cintesi --- ``ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• megho satthari mayhaá¹ƒ bhavanaá¹ƒ paviá¹-á¹-hamatte uppann laddhuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti. so sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ devavimÄ• nasadisaá¹ƒ dibbavi samatthopi evaá¹ƒ kate --- ``na mayhaá¹ƒ mahapphalaá¹ƒ bhavissati, dasabalassa kÄ• yave karissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti atimahantaá¹ƒ attabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ katvÄ• satthÄ• raá¹ƒ sattakkhattuá upari mahantaá¹ƒ phaá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. atha bhagavÄ• parikkhepassa antova sabbaratanamaye paccagghapallaá¹…ke upari viniggalantavividhasurabhikusumadÄ• mavit vividhasurabhigandhavÄ• site gandhakuá¹-iyaá¹ƒ viharanto viya vihÄ• si. evaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• tato aparaá¹ƒ sattÄ• haá¹ƒ rÄ• jÄ• yatane nisÄ«di. tatthÄ• pi vimuttisukha ettÄ• vatÄ• sattasattÄ• hÄ• ni paripuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. etthantare bhagavÄ• jhÄ• nasu vÄ«tinÄ• mesi.

athassa sattasattÄ• hÄ• tikkame --- ``mukhaá¹ƒ dhovissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cittaá¹ƒ uppajji.
__agadaharÄ«takaá¹ƒ_ Ä• haritvÄ• adÄ• si. athassa sakko __nÄ• galatÄ• _dantakaá¹-á¹-h adÄ• si. tato bhagavÄ• dantakaá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ khÄ• ditvÄ• anotattadahodakena mukhaá¹ƒ dh nisÄ«di. tasmiá¹ƒ samaye catÅ«hi lokapÄ• lehi upanÄ«te paccagghe selamaye patte __tapu vÄ• á¹‡ijÄ• naá¹ƒ manthaÃ±ca madhupiá¹‡á¸• ikaÃ±ca paá¹-iggahetvÄ• paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• p ajapÄ• lanigrodharukkhamÅ«le nisÄ«di. athassa tattha nisinnamattasseva attanÄ• adhigata gambhÄ«rabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ paccavekkhantassa sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• ciá¹‡á¹‡o --- ``adhigato gambhÄ«ro duddaso duranubodho santo paá¹‡Ä«to atakkÄ• vacaro nipuá¹‡o paá¹‡á¸• itave

SN a I 172; Vin I 7) paresaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ adesetukÄ• matÄ• kÄ• rappatto parivitakko udap atha \Be 12/ \Ee 10/ __brahmÄ• sahampati_ dasabalassa cetasÄ• cetoparivitakkamaÃ±Ã bho, loko, vinassati vata, bho, lokoâ€™â€™ ti (SN a I 172; MN I 282; Vin I 8) vÄ• caá¹ƒ nicc dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·abrahmagaá¹‡aparivuto sakkasuyÄ• masantusitaparanimmitavas bhagavato purato pÄ• turahosi. so attano patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• natthÄ• ya pathaviá¹ƒ nimminitvÄ• jÄ• á¹‡umaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ pathaviyaá¹ƒ nihantvÄ• jalajÄ• malÄ• vikalakamalamakulasadisaá dasanakhasamodhÄ• nasamujjalamaÃ±jaliá¹ƒ sirasmiá¹ƒ katvÄ• --- ``desetu, bhante \Ne 1 desetu sugato dhammaá¹ƒ, santi sattÄ• apparajakkhajÄ• tikÄ• , assavanatÄ• dhammassa dhammassa aÃ±Ã±Ä• tÄ• roâ€™â€™ ti (SN a I 172; Vin I 8) --- ``pÄ• turahosi magadhesu pubbe, dhammo asuddho samalehi cintito.

apÄ• puretaá¹ƒ amatassa dvÄ• raá¹ƒ, suá¹‡antu dhammaá¹ƒ vimalenÄ• nubuddhaá¹ƒ ||

``sele yathÄ• pabbatamuddhaniá¹-á¹-hito, yathÄ• pi passe janataá¹ƒ samantato.

tathÅ«pamaá¹ƒ dhammamayaá¹ƒ sumedha, pÄ• sÄ• damÄ• ruyha samantacakkhu.

sokÄ• vatiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ janatamapetasoko, avekkhassu jÄ• tijarÄ• bhibhÅ«taá¹ƒ ||

``uá¹-á¹-hehi vÄ«ra vijitasaá¹…gÄ• ma, satthavÄ• ha anaá¹‡a vicara loke.

desassu bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ, aÃ±Ã±Ä• tÄ• ro bhavissantÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (MN I 282; SN

``nanu tumhehi `buddho bodheyyaá¹ƒ tiá¹‡á¹‡o tÄ• reyyaá¹ƒ mutto moceyyaâ€™â€™ â€™

``kiá¹ƒ \Be 13/ me aÃ±Ã±Ä• tavesena, dhammaá¹ƒ sacchikatenidha.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , tÄ• rayissaá¹ƒ sadevakaâ€™â€™ nti || (Bv II 55) --- patthanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• sabbaÃ±Ã±ubhÄ• vaá¹ƒ pattoti ca, ``tumhehi dh nÄ• ma aÃ±Ã±o dhammaá¹ƒ desessati, kimaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ lokassa saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ leá evamÄ• dÄ«hi anekehi nayehi bhagavantaá¹ƒ dhammadesanatthaá¹ƒ ayÄ• ci. tena vuttaá¹ 11/ pana bhagavato aá¹-á¹-hame sattÄ• he satthÄ• dhammadesanatthÄ• ya brahmunÄ• Ä idÄ• ni ``kadÄ• kattha ca kenÄ• yaá¹ƒ, gÄ• thÄ• hi samudÄ«ritÄ• â€™â€™ ti imesaá¹ƒ pa okÄ• so anuppatto. tattha __kadÄ• vuttÄ• _ti? paá¹-hamamahÄ• saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• le vuttÄ• .

nÄ• mesÄ• saá¹…gÄ«tikkhandhe (Vin II 437) vuttanayeneva veditabbÄ• . __kattha kena vu parinibbute rÄ• jagahanagare __vebhÄ• rapabbatapasse sattapaá¹‡á¹‡iguhÄ• dvÄ• re_ vijit ajÄ• tasattunÄ• magadhamahÄ• rÄ• jena dhammasaá¹…gÄ• yanatthaá¹ƒ kÄ• rite paripuá¹ \Ne 13/ daá¹-á¹-habbasÄ• ramaá¹‡á¸• e maá¹‡á¸• ape dhammÄ• sanagatenÄ• yasmatÄ• _ lokÄ• dhipatÄ«â€™â€™ ti ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• vuttÄ• ti veditabbÄ• . ayamettha gÄ• thÄ• saml

ettÄ• vatÄ• ---

``kadÄ• yaá¹ƒ dhammadesanatthaá¹ƒ, ajjhiá¹-á¹-ho brahmunÄ• jino.

kadÄ• kattha ca kenÄ• yaá¹ƒ, gÄ• thÄ• hi samudÄ«ritÄ• â€™â€™ ti || --- ayampi gÄ• thÄ• vuttatthÄ• hoti. evaá¹ƒ iminÄ• sambandhena vuttÄ• ya panassÄ• anuttÄ karissÄ• ma.

tattha __brahmÄ• _ti brÅ«hito tehi tehi guá¹‡avisesehÄ«ti brahmÄ• . ayaá¹ƒ pana __brahm mahÄ• brahmabrÄ• hmaá¹‡atathÄ• gatamÄ• tÄ• pituseá¹-á¹-hÄ• dÄ«su dissati. tathÄ• hi `` tiÄ• dÄ«su (MN III 166) mahÄ• brahmÄ• ti adhippeto.

``tamonudo \Be 14/ buddho samantacakkhu, lokantagÅ« sabbabhavÄ• tivatto.

anÄ• savo sabbadukkhappahÄ«no, saccavhayo brahme upÄ• sito meâ€™â€™ ti || (Sn 113

ettha brÄ• hmaá¹‡o. ``brahmÄ• ti kho, bhikkhave, tathÄ• gatassetaá¹ƒ adhivacanaâ€™â€™ ``brahmÄ• ti mÄ• tÄ• pitaro pubbÄ• cariyÄ• ti vuccareâ€™â€™ ti (AN a III 31; a IV 63; It 10 mÄ• tÄ• pitaro. ``brahmacakkaá¹ƒ pavattetÄ«â€™â€™ ti (MN I 148; SN a II 21; AN a IV 8; b ettha seá¹-á¹-ho adhippeto. idha pana paá¹-hamajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹‡Ä«taá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetvÄ• pa nibbatto kappÄ• yuko mahÄ• brahmÄ• adhippeto (Ps I 3). __ca_-saddo sampiá¹‡á¸• anatth dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu brahmÄ• no cÄ• ti attho, padapÅ«raá¹‡amatto vÄ• . __lok saá¹…khÄ• raloko sattaloko okÄ• salokoti tayo \Ee 12/ lokÄ• . tesu idha sattaloko adhippeto adhipatÄ«ti __lokÄ• dhipati, _ lokekadesassÄ• pi adhipati lokÄ• dhipatÄ«ti vuccati devÄ• dh viya.

__sahampatÄ«_ti so kira kassapassa bhagavato sÄ• sane sahako nÄ• ma thero paá¹-hama 14/ aparihÄ«najjhÄ• no jÄ«vitapariyosÄ• ne paá¹-hamajjhÄ• nabhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ kappÄ• yukam tatra pana naá¹ƒ ``sahampati brahmÄ• â€™â€™ ti saÃ±jÄ• nanti. ``sahakapatÄ«â€™â€™ t katvÄ• ruá¸·hÄ«vasena ``sahampatÄ«â€™â€™ ti vadanti. __kataÃ±jalÄ«_ti kataÃ±jaliko, a katvÄ• ti attho. __anadhivara_nti accantavaro adhivaro nÄ• ssa atthÄ«ti __anadhivaro, _ na atthÄ«ti vÄ• anadhivaro, anuttaroti attho, taá¹ƒ anadhivaraá¹ƒ. __ayÄ• cathÄ• _ti ayÄ• citth idÄ• ni yassatthÄ• ya so bhagavantaá¹ƒ ayÄ• ci, tamatthaá¹ƒ dassetuá¹ƒ __ ``santÄ«dha s vuttaá¹ƒ. tattha __santÄ«_ti saá¹ƒvijjanti upalabbhanti, buddhacakkhussa Ä• pÄ• thaá¹ƒ Ä• attho. __idhÄ• _ti ayaá¹ƒ desÄ• padese nipÄ• to \Be 15/. svÄ• yaá¹ƒ katthaci sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ u yathÄ• ha --- ``idheva, bhikkhave, samaá¹‡o, idha dutiyo samaá¹‡o, idha tatiyo samaá¹‡o, id samaá¹‡o, suÃ±Ã±Ä• parappavÄ• dÄ• samaá¹‡ebhi aÃ±Ã±ehÄ«â€™â€™ ti (MN I 139; DI okÄ• saá¹ƒ, yathÄ• ha ---

``idheva tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nassa, devabhÅ«tassa me sato.

punarÄ• yu ca me laddho, evaá¹ƒ jÄ• nÄ• hi mÄ• risÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (DN II 369) --- katthaci padapÅ«raá¹‡amattameva hoti. yathÄ• ha --- ``idhÄ• haá¹ƒ, bhikkhave, bhuttÄ• vÄ• ti (MN I 30). katthaci lokaá¹ƒ upÄ• dÄ• ya, yathÄ• ha --- ``idha tathÄ• gato loke uppajjati bah bahujanasukhÄ• yÄ• â€™â€™ ti (AN a I 170). idhÄ• pi lokameva upÄ• dÄ• ya vuttoti vedita sattaloketi attho. __sattÄ• _ti rÅ«pÄ• dÄ«su khandhesu chandarÄ• gena sattÄ• visattÄ• Ä• sattÄ• , sattÄ• ti pÄ• á¹‡ino vuccanti. ruá¸·hÄ«saddena pana vÄ«tarÄ• gesupi ayaá¹ƒ vohÄ• __apparajakkhajÄ• tikÄ• _ti paÃ±Ã±Ä• maye akkhimhi appaá¹ƒ parittaá¹ƒ rÄ• gadosamoha evaá¹ƒsabhÄ• vÄ• ca teti apparajakkhajÄ• tikÄ• , appaá¹ƒ rÄ• gÄ• dirajameva vÄ• yesaá¹ apparajakkhasabhÄ• vÄ• apparajakkhajÄ• tikÄ• ti evamettha attho daá¹-á¹-habbo. tesaá¹ƒ ``sattÄ• naâ€™â€™ nti \Ee 13/ vibhattivipariá¹‡Ä• maá¹ƒ katvÄ• --- ``desehi dhammaâ€™â katvÄ• attho daá¹-á¹-habbo. __desehÄ«_ti Ä• yÄ• canavacanametaá¹ƒ, desehi kathehi upa __dhamma_nti ettha ayaá¹ƒ __dhamma_-saddo pariyattisamÄ• dhipaÃ±Ã±Ä• pakatisabhÄ• vasuÃ±Ã±atÄ• puÃ±Ã±aÄ• pattiÃ±eyyacatusacc

--- ``idha bhikkhu dhammaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡Ä• ti suttaá¹ƒ geyyaá¹ƒ veyyÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ ... p ntiÄ• dÄ«su (MN I 239; AN a IV 102) pariyattiyaá¹ƒ dissati. ``evaá¹ƒdhammÄ• te bhagavant ntiÄ• dÄ«su samÄ• dhimhi.

``yassete caturo dhammÄ• , vÄ• narinda yathÄ• tava.

saccaá¹ƒ dhammo dhiti cÄ• go, diá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ so ativattatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || ---

Ä• dÄ«su \Be 16/ (J I 2.147) paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya. ``jÄ• tidhammÄ• jarÄ• dhammÄ• , atho maraá¹‡ a III 39) pakatiyaá¹ƒ. ``kusalÄ• dhammÄ• , akusalÄ• dhammÄ• , abyÄ• katÄ• dhammÄ• â tikamÄ• tikÄ•) sabhÄ• ve. ``tasmiá¹ƒ kho pana samaye dhammÄ• honti khandhÄ• hontÄ« suÃ±Ã±atÄ• yaá¹ƒ. ``dhammo suciá¹‡á¹‡o sukhamÄ• vahÄ• tÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (Sn 1 puÃ±Ã±e. ``dve aniyatÄ•  dhammÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su Ä• pattiyaá¹ƒ. ``sabbe dhammÄ• bhagavato Ã±Ä• á¹‡amukhe Ä• pÄ• thaá¹ƒ Ä• gacchantÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (Nidd I 156 mogharÄ• jamÄ• á¹‡avapucchÄ• niddesa 85) Ã±eyye. ``diá¹-á¹-hadhammo pattadhammo vi I 299; Vin I 27, 57) catusaccadhamme. idhÄ• pi catusaccadhamme daá¹-á¹-habbo (Ps I sutt Dhs-a cittuppÄ• dakaá¹‡á¸• a 1). __anukampÄ• _ti anukampaá¹ƒ anuddayaá¹ƒ karohi. __im Ä• ha. __paja_nti pajÄ• tattÄ• pajÄ• , taá¹ƒ pajaá¹ƒ, sattanikÄ• yaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsÄ• radukkhato keci pana ---

``bhagavÄ• ti lokÄ• dhipatÄ« naruttamo, kataÃ±jalÄ« brahmagaá¹‡ehi yÄ• citoâ€™â€™ ti || --- paá¹-hanti. ettÄ• vatÄ• sabbaso ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• vuttatthÄ• hoti.

 atha bhagavato taá¹ƒ brahmuno sahampatissa Ä• yÄ• canavacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• aparimitasa dasabalassa parahitakaraá¹‡anipuá¹‡amaticÄ• rassa sabbasattesu okÄ• sakaraá¹‡amatten taá¹ƒ pana bhagavato karuá¹‡uppattiá¹ƒ dassentehi saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• le saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• rake

 <2> á¹• 21 ``sampannavijjÄ• caraá¹‡assa \Ne 16/ \Ee 14/ tÄ• dino, jutindharassantimadeha tathÄ• gatassappaá¹-ipuggalassa, uppajji kÄ• ruÃ±Ã±atÄ• sabbasatteâ€™â€™ ti || --- ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• á¹-hapitÄ• .

 tattha __sampannavijjÄ• caraá¹‡assÄ• _ti sampannaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma tividhaá¹ƒ paripuá¹‡á¹‡as tattha ---

``sampannaá¹ƒ \Be 17/ sÄ• likedÄ• raá¹ƒ, suvÄ• bhuÃ±janti kosiya.

paá¹-ivedemi te brahme, na naá¹ƒ vÄ• retumussaheâ€™â€™ ti || (J I 14.1) --- idaá¹ƒ __paripuá¹‡á¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma. ``iminÄ• pÄ• timokkhasaá¹ƒvarena upeto h samupagato sampanno samannÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti (Vibh 511) idaá¹ƒ __samaá¹…gisampan mahÄ• pathaviyÄ• heá¹-á¹-himatalaá¹ƒ sampannaá¹ƒ, seyyathÄ• pi khuddamadhuá¹ƒ anÄ« (Vin III 18) idaá¹ƒ __madhurasampannaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma. idha paripuá¹‡á¹‡asampannampi sam (Ps I 64). __vijjÄ• _ti paá¹-ipakkhadhamme vijjhanaá¹-á¹-hena viditakaraá¹‡aá¹-á¹-hena vinc vijjÄ• . tÄ• pana tissopi vijjÄ• aá¹-á¹-hapi vijjÄ• . tisso vijjÄ• __bhayabheravasutte_ (MN I 5 Ä• gatanayeneva veditabbÄ• , aá¹-á¹-ha __ambaá¹-á¹-hasutte_ (DN I 278 Ä• dayo). tatra hi manomayiddhiyÄ• ca saha cha abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pariggahetvÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha vijjÄ• vuttÄ• . __car indriyesu guttadvÄ• ratÄ• bhojane mattaÃ±Ã±utÄ• jÄ• gariyÄ• nuyogo saddhÄ• hirÄ« otta Ä• raddhavÄ«riyatÄ• upaá¹-á¹-hitassatitÄ• paÃ±Ã±Ä• sampannatÄ• cattÄ• ri rÅ«pÄ• vaca dhammÄ• veditabbÄ• . imeyeva hi pannarasa dhammÄ• yasmÄ• etehi carati ariyasÄ• vak tasmÄ• ``caraá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti vuttÄ• . yathÄ• ha --- ``idha, mahÄ• nÄ• ma, ariyasÄ• vako II 24) sabbaá¹ƒ __majjhimapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sake_ vuttanayeneva veditabbaá¹ƒ. vijjÄ• ca caraá¹ vijjÄ• caraá¹‡Ä• ni, sampannÄ• ni paripuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni vijjÄ• caraá¹‡Ä• ni yassa soyaá¹ƒ sam vijjÄ• caraá¹‡ehi sampanno samaá¹…gÄ«bhÅ«to, samannÄ• gatoti vÄ• sampannavijjÄ• ca yujjateva, tassa sampannavijjÄ• caraá¹‡assa (Sp (to Vin III) I 1 veraÃ±jakaá¹‡á¸• avaá¹‡á¹‡ __tÄ• dino_ti ``iá¹-á¹-hepi tÄ• dÄ« aniá¹-á¹-hepi tÄ• dÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dinÄ• nayena __mah Ä• gatatÄ• dilakkhaá¹‡ena tÄ• dino, iá¹-á¹-hÄ• niá¹-á¹-hÄ• dÄ«su avikÄ• rassa tÄ• disassÄ• __jutindharassÄ• _ti \Ne 17/ \Ee 15/ jutimato, yugandhare saradasamaye samuditadivasakarÄ• tirekatarasassirikasarÄ«rajutivisaradharassÄ• ti attho. ``paÃ±Ã±Ä• pa vÄ• vattuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-ati. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ --- ``cattÄ• ro \Be 18/ loke pajjotÄ• , paÃ±camettha na vijjati.

divÄ• tapati Ä• dicco, rattimÄ• bhÄ• ti candimÄ• ||

``atha aggi divÄ• rattiá¹ƒ, tattha tattha pabhÄ• sati.

sambuddho tapataá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-ho, esÄ• Ä• bhÄ• anuttarÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (SN a I 26, 85).

tasmÄ• ubhayathÄ• pi sarÄ«rapaÃ±Ã±Ä• jutivisaradharassÄ• ti attho. __antimadehadhÄ• sabbapacchimasarÄ«radhÄ• rino, apunabbhavassÄ• ti attho.

__tathÄ• gatassÄ• _ti ettha aá¹-á¹-hahi kÄ• raá¹‡ehi bhagavÄ• ``tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti vu aá¹-á¹-hahi? tathÄ• Ä• gatoti tathÄ• gato, tathÄ• gatoti tathÄ• gato, tathalakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ä• tathadhamme yÄ• thÄ• vato abhisambuddhoti tathÄ• gato, tathadassitÄ• ya tathÄ• gato, tat tathÄ• kÄ• ritÄ• ya tathÄ• gato, abhibhavanaá¹-á¹-hena tathÄ• gatoti.

kathaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• __tathÄ• Ä• gatoti tathÄ• gato_? yathÄ• yena abhinÄ«hÄ• rena dÄ• n sÄ«lanekkhammapaÃ±Ã±Ä• vÄ«riyakhantisaccaadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• namettupekkhÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ dasa upapÄ• ramiyo dasa paramatthapÄ• ramiyoti samattiá¹ƒsa pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• aá¹ jÄ«vitapariccÄ• gaá¹ƒ dhanarajjaputtadÄ• rapariccÄ• ganti ime paÃ±ca mahÄ• pariccÄ• ge vipassiÄ• dayo sammÄ• sambuddhÄ• Ä• gatÄ• , tathÄ• amhÄ• kampi bhagavÄ• Ä• gatot ``yatheva lokamhi vipassiÄ• dayo, sabbaÃ±Ã±ubhÄ• vaá¹ƒ munayo idhÄ• gatÄ• .

tathÄ• ayaá¹ƒ sakyamunÄ«pi Ä• gato, tathÄ• gato vuccati tena cakkhumÄ• â€™â€™ ti || kathaá¹ƒ __tathÄ• gatoti tathÄ• gato? _ yathÄ• sampatijÄ• tÄ• vipassiÄ• dayo samehi pÄ patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya uttarÄ• bhimukhÄ• sattapadavÄ«tihÄ• rena gatÄ• , tathÄ• amhÄ• kampi b yathÄ• ha ---

``muhuttajÄ• tova \Be 19/ \Ne 18/ \Ee 16/ gavampatÄ« yathÄ• , samehi pÄ• dehi phusÄ« va so vikkamÄ« sattapadÄ• ni gotamo, setaÃ±ca chattaá¹ƒ anudhÄ• rayuá¹ƒ marÅ« ||

``gantvÄ• na so sattapadÄ• ni gotamo, disÄ• vilokesi samÄ• samantato.

aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gupetaá¹ƒ giramabbhudÄ«rayÄ«, sÄ«ho yathÄ• pabbatamuddhaniá¹-á¹-hitoâ€ kathaá¹ƒ __tathalakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ä• gatoti tathÄ• gato? _ sabbesaá¹ƒ rÅ«pÄ• rÅ«padhammÄ sÄ• maÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡aÃ±ca tathaá¹ƒ avitathaá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• á¹‡agatiyÄ• Ä• gato avirajjhitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

``sabbesaá¹ƒ pana dhammÄ• naá¹ƒ, sakasÄ• maÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

tathamevÄ• gato yasmÄ• , tasmÄ• satthÄ• tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti || kathaá¹ƒ __tathadhamme yÄ• thÄ• vato abhisambuddhoti tathÄ• gato_? tathadhammÄ• nÄ yathÄ• ha --- ``cattÄ• rimÄ• ni, bhikkhave, tathÄ• ni avitathÄ• ni anaÃ±Ã±athÄ• ni. katamÄ• dukkhaâ€™ nti, bhikkhave, tathametaá¹ƒ avitathametaá¹ƒ anaÃ±Ã±athametaâ€™â€™ nti (S tÄ• ni ca bhagavÄ• abhisambuddho, tasmÄ• tathÄ• naá¹ƒ abhisambuddhattÄ• ``tathÄ• ga abhisambuddhattho hi ettha gatasaddo.

``tathanÄ• mÄ• ni saccÄ• ni, abhisambujjhi nÄ• yako.

tasmÄ• tathÄ• naá¹ƒ saccÄ• naá¹ƒ, sambuddhattÄ• tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ || kathaá¹ƒ __tathadassitÄ• ya tathÄ• gato_? bhagavÄ• hi aparimÄ• á¹‡Ä• su lokadhÄ• tÅ«su sattÄ• naá¹ƒ cakkhusotaghÄ• á¹‡ajivhÄ• kÄ• yamanodvÄ• resu Ä• pÄ• thaá¹ƒ Ä• gacchant rÅ«pasaddagandharasaphoá¹-á¹-habbadhammÄ• rammaá¹‡aá¹ƒ tathÄ• gato sabbÄ• kÄ• ra tathadassitÄ• ya tathÄ• gato. atha vÄ• yaá¹ƒ loke tathaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ lokassa tatheva dasseti. t tathÄ• gato. ettha tathadassiatthe ``tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti padasambhavo veditabbo.

``tathÄ• kÄ• rena \Be 20/ yo dhamme, jÄ• nÄ• ti anupassati.

tathadassÄ«ti sambuddho, tasmÄ• vutto tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ || kathaá¹ƒ \Ne 19/ \Ee 17/ __tathavÄ• ditÄ• ya tathÄ• gato_? yaÃ±ca abhisambodhiyÄ• pari paÃ±cacattÄ• lÄ«savassaparimÄ• á¹‡akÄ• le suttÄ• dinavaá¹…gasaá¹…gahitaá¹ƒ bhÄ• sita sabbaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ ekatulÄ• ya tulitaá¹ƒ viya tathameva avitathameva hoti. tenevÄ• ha --- ``yaÃ±ca, cunda, rattiá¹ƒ tathÄ• gato anuttaraá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ abhisambujjhati, ya anupÄ• disesÄ• ya nibbÄ• nadhÄ• tuyÄ• parinibbÄ• yati, yaá¹ƒ etasmiá¹ƒ antare bhÄ• sati taá¹ƒ tatheva hoti, no aÃ±Ã±athÄ• . tasmÄ• `tathÄ• gatoâ€™ ti vuccatÄ«â€™â€™ ti.

ettha pana gadaattho hi gatasaddo. evaá¹ƒ tathavÄ• ditÄ• ya tathÄ• gato. Ä• gadanaá¹ƒ Ä• tatho aviparÄ«to Ä• gado assÄ• ti tathÄ• gato. da-kÄ• rassa ta-kÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• vutto.

``tathÄ• vÄ• dÄ« jino yasmÄ• , tathadhammappakÄ• sako.

tathÄ• mÄ• gadanaÃ±cassa, tasmÄ• buddho tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ || kathaá¹ƒ __tathÄ• kÄ• ritÄ• ya tathÄ• gato? _ bhagavÄ• hi yaá¹ƒ yaá¹ƒ vÄ• caá¹ƒ abhÄ• s karoti, vÄ• cÄ• ya kÄ• yo anulometi, kÄ• yassapi vÄ• cÄ• . tenevÄ• ha --- ``yathÄ• vÄ• dÄ«, bhikkhave, tathÄ• gato tathÄ• kÄ• rÄ«, yathÄ• kÄ• rÄ« tathÄ• vÄ• dÄ« `tathÄ• gatoâ€™ ti vuccatÄ«â€™â€™ ti (AN a IV 23; Nidd II posÄ• lamÄ• á¹‡avapucchÄ• n yathÄ• ca vÄ• cÄ• gatÄ• , kÄ• yopi tathÄ• gato, yathÄ• kÄ• yo gato, vÄ• cÄ• pi tathÄ• g tathÄ• kÄ• ritÄ• ya tathÄ• gato.

``yathÄ• vÄ• cÄ• gatÄ• tassa, tathÄ• kÄ• yo gato yato.

tathÄ• vÄ• ditÄ• ya sambuddho, satthÄ• tasmÄ• tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ || kathaá¹ƒ __abhibhavanaá¹-á¹-hena tathÄ• gato? _ upari bhavaggaá¹ƒ heá¹-á¹-hÄ• avÄ«ci tiriyaá¹ƒ aparimÄ• á¹‡Ä• su lokadhÄ• tÅ«su sabbasatte abhibhavati sÄ«lenapi samÄ• dhinÄ vimuttiyÄ• pi \Ne 20/ vimuttiÃ±Ä• á¹‡adassanenapi, na \Be 21/ tassa tulÄ• vÄ• pamÄ• á¹‡a atulo appameyyo anuttaro. tenevÄ• ha ---

``sadevake, bhikkhave, loke ... pe ... tathÄ• gato abhibhÅ« anabhibhÅ«to aÃ±Ã±adatthu das `tathÄ• gatoâ€™ ti vuccatÄ«â€™â€™ ti (AN a I 23; posÄ• lamÄ• á¹‡avapucchÄ• niddesa 8 tatrevaá¹ƒ padasiddhi veditabbÄ• --- agado viya agado. ko panesa? desanÄ• vilÄ• so ceva hesa mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo bhisakko dibbÄ• gadena sappe viya sabbaparappavÄ• dino sadeva sabbalokÄ• bhibhavanato aviparÄ«to desanÄ• vilÄ• so ceva \Ee 18/ puÃ±Ã±ussayo ca aga ta-kÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• ``tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti veditabbo. evaá¹ƒ abhibhavanaá¹-á¹-hena tath ``tatho aviparÄ«to ca, agado yassa satthuno.

vasavattÄ«ti so tena, hoti satthÄ• tathÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ || __appaá¹-ipuggalassÄ• _ti paá¹-ipuggalavirahitassa, aÃ±Ã±o koci ``ahaá¹ƒ buddhoâ€™â€™ dÄ• tuá¹ƒ samattho nÄ• massa puggalo, natthÄ«ti appaá¹-ipuggalo, tassa appaá¹-ipuggalas udapÄ• di. __kÄ• ruÃ±Ã±atÄ• _ti karuá¹‡Ä• ya bhÄ• vo kÄ• ruÃ±Ã±atÄ• . __sabbasatte_ti niravasesasattapariyÄ• dÄ• navacanaá¹ƒ, sakale sattanikÄ• yeti attho. ettÄ• vatÄ• ayampi atha bhagavÄ• brahmunÄ• dhammadesanatthÄ• ya Ä• yÄ• cito sattesu kÄ• ruÃ±Ã±ataá¹ desetukÄ• mo mahÄ• brahmÄ• naá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• ya ajjhabhÄ• si --- ``apÄ• rutÄ• tesaá¹ƒ amatassa dvÄ• rÄ• , ye sotavanto pamuÃ±cantu saddhaá¹ƒ.

vihiá¹ƒsasaÃ±Ã±Ä« paguá¹‡aá¹ƒ na bhÄ• siá¹ƒ, dhammaá¹ƒ paá¹‡Ä«taá¹ƒ manujesu brahm II 71; SN a I 172; Vin I 9).

atha \Be 22/ kho __brahmÄ• sahampati_ ``katÄ• vakÄ• so khomhi bhagavatÄ• dhammade dasanakhasamodhÄ• nasamujjalaá¹ƒ aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ sirasi katvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ abhivÄ• detv brahmagaá¹‡aparivuto pakkÄ• mi. atha satthÄ• tassa brahmuno paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• -- paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ \Ne 21/ dhammaá¹ƒ deseyyaâ€™â€™ nti (MN I 283; Vin I 10) cintento --- ``Ä imaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ khippaá¹ƒ Ä• jÄ• nissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti cittaá¹ƒ uppÄ• detvÄ• puna oloke kÄ• laá¹…katabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• udakassa ca abhidosakÄ• laá¹…katabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ Ã±atv etarahi paÃ±cavaggiyÄ• bhikkhÅ« viharantÄ«â€™â€™ ti paÃ±cavaggiye Ä• vajjento ``bÄ• migadÄ• yeâ€™â€™ ti Ã±atvÄ• Ä• sÄ• á¸·hiyaá¹ƒ pabhÄ• tÄ• ya rattiyÄ• kÄ• lasseva patt aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasayojanikaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipanno antarÄ• magge __upakaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma Ä• buddhabhÄ• vamÄ• vikatvÄ• taá¹ƒdivasameva sÄ• yanhasamaye isipatanamagamÄ• si. ta buddhabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ pakÄ• setvÄ• paÃ±Ã±attavarabuddhÄ• sanagato paÃ±cavaggiye bhikkh __dhammacakkappavattanasuttantaá¹ƒ_ (SN c V 1081; Vin I 13 Ä• dayo; Paá¹-is II 30) dese tesu \Ee 19/ aÃ±Ã±Ä• sikoá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±atthero desanÄ• nusÄ• rena Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ pesetvÄ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahi brahmakoá¹-Ä«hi saddhiá¹ƒ sotÄ• pattiphale patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. satthÄ• tatt upagantvÄ• punadivase vappattheraá¹ƒ sotÄ• pattiphale patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesi. eteneva upÄ• y sotÄ• pattiphale patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• petvÄ• puna paÃ±camiyaá¹ƒ pakkhassa paÃ±capi te there sa __anattalakkhaá¹‡asuttantaá¹ƒ_ (SN b III 59; Vin I 20 Ä• dayo) desesi, desanÄ• pariyosÄ• n arahatte patiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu.

atha satthÄ• tattheva __yasassa_ kulaputtassa upanissayaá¹ƒ disvÄ• gehaá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya n ``ehi yasÄ• â€™â€™ ti (Vin I 26) pakkositvÄ• tasmiÃ±Ã±eva rattibhÄ• ge sotÄ• pattiphale p punadivase arahatte ca patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• petvÄ• aparepi tassa sahÄ• yake __catupaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• s ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbÄ• jetvÄ• arahatte patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesi. evaá¹ƒ loke ekasaá¹-á¹-satthÄ• vuá¹-á¹-havasso pavÄ• retvÄ• bhikkhÅ« Ä• mantetvÄ• etadavoca --- ``paratthaá¹ƒ \Be 23/ cattano atthaá¹ƒ, karontÄ• pathaviá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ.

byÄ• harantÄ• manussÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammaá¹ƒ caratha bhikkhavo ||

``viharatha vivittesu, pabbatesu vanesu ca.

pakÄ• sayantÄ• saddhammaá¹ƒ, lokassa satataá¹ƒ mama ||

``karontÄ• \Ne 22/ dhammadÅ«teyyaá¹ƒ, vikhyÄ• payatha bhikkhavo.

santi atthÄ• ya sattÄ• naá¹ƒ, subbatÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ mama ||

``sabbaá¹ƒ pidahatha dvÄ• raá¹ƒ, apÄ• yÄ• namanÄ• savÄ• .

saggamokkhassa maggassa, dvÄ• raá¹ƒ vivarathÄ• samÄ• ||

``desanÄ• paá¹-ipattÄ«hi, karuá¹‡Ä• diguá¹‡Ä• layÄ• .

buddhiá¹ƒ saddhaÃ±ca lokassa, abhivaá¸• á¸• hetha sabbaso ||

``gihÄ«namupakarontÄ• naá¹ƒ, niccamÄ• misadÄ• nato.

karotha dhammadÄ• nena, tesaá¹ƒ paccÅ«pakÄ• rakaá¹ƒ ||

``samussayatha saddhammaá¹ƒ, desayantÄ• isiddhajaá¹ƒ.

katakattabbakammantÄ• , paratthaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajjathÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

evaÃ±ca pana vatvÄ• bhagavÄ• te bhikkhÅ« disÄ• su vissajjetvÄ• sayaá¹ƒ uruvelaá¹ƒ ga kappÄ• sikavanasaá¹‡á¸• e __tiá¹ƒsa bhaddavaggiyakumÄ• re_ vinesi. tesu yo sabbapacch sabbaseá¹-á¹-ho anÄ• gÄ• mÄ«, ekopi arahÄ• vÄ• puthujjano vÄ• nÄ• hosi. tepi sabbe eh pabbÄ• jetvÄ• disÄ• su pesetvÄ• sayaá¹ƒ uruvelaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• aá¸• á¸• huá¸• á¸• hÄ• ni p dassetvÄ• uruvelakassapÄ• dayo sahassajaá¹-ilaparivÄ• re __tebhÄ• tikajaá¹-ile_ dametvÄ pabbÄ• jetvÄ• \Ee 20/ gayÄ• sÄ«se nisÄ«dÄ• petvÄ• __Ä• dittapariyÄ• yadesanÄ• ya_ (S patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• petvÄ• tena arahantasahassena bhagavÄ• parivuto ``bimbisÄ• rassa raÃ±Ã± mocessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti rÄ• jagahanagarÅ«pacÄ• re laá¹-á¹-hivanuyyÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• ma a raÃ±Ã±o Ä• rocesi. rÄ• jÄ• --- ``satthÄ• Ä• gatoâ€™â€™ ti sutvÄ• dvÄ• dasanahutehi brÄ parivuto dasabalaá¹ƒ ghanavivaragatamiva divasakaraá¹ƒ \Be 24/ vanavivaragataá¹ƒ muniv upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• cakkÄ• laá¹…katatalesu jalajÄ• malÄ• vikalakamalakomalesu dasabala makuá¹-amaá¹‡ijutivisaravijjotinÄ• sirasÄ• nipatitvÄ• ekamantaá¹ƒ nisÄ«di saddhiá¹ƒ paris atha kho tesaá¹ƒ brÄ• hmaá¹‡agahapatikÄ• naá¹ƒ etadahosi --- ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho mahÄ• sama 23/ brahmacariyaá¹ƒ carati, udÄ• hu uruvelakassapo mahÄ• samaá¹‡eâ€™â€™ ti? atha kh cetoparivitakkamaÃ±Ã±Ä• ya theraá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• ya ajjhabhÄ• si --- ``kimeva disvÄ• uruvelavÄ• si, pahÄ• si aggiá¹ƒ kisakovadÄ• no.

pucchÄ• mi taá¹ƒ kassapa etamatthaá¹ƒ, kathaá¹ƒ pahÄ«naá¹ƒ tava aggihuttaâ€™â€™ nti thero bhagavato adhippÄ• yaá¹ƒ viditvÄ• --- ``rÅ«pe ca sadde ca atho rase ca, kÄ• mitthiyo cÄ• bhivadanti yaÃ±Ã±Ä• .

etaá¹ƒ malantÄ« upadhÄ«su Ã±atvÄ• , tasmÄ• na yiá¹-á¹-he na hute araÃ±jiâ€™â€™ nti ||

imaá¹ƒ gÄ• thaá¹ƒ vatvÄ• attano sÄ• vakabhÄ• vappakÄ• sanatthaá¹ƒ tathÄ• gatassa pÄ• ``satthÄ• me, bhante, bhagavÄ• , sÄ• vakohamasmÄ«â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ• ekatÄ• ladvitÄ• l sattatÄ• lappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ vehÄ• saá¹ƒ sattakkhattuá¹ƒ abbhuggantvÄ• pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ bhagavantaá¹ƒ vanditvÄ• ekamantaá¹ƒ nisÄ«di.

 atha kho mahÄ• jano tassa taá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``aho mahÄ• nubhÄ• vÄ• l thÄ• magatadiá¹-á¹-hiko attÄ• naá¹ƒ `arahÄ• ahaâ€™ nti maÃ±Ã±amÄ• no uruvelakassapo bhinditvÄ• tathÄ• gatena damitoâ€™â€™ ti dasabalassa guá¹‡akathaá¹ƒ kathesi. taá¹ƒ sut ``nÄ• hamidÄ• niyeva imaá¹ƒ uruvelakassapaá¹ƒ damemi, atÄ«tepi esa mayÄ• damitoyevÄ mahÄ• jano uá¹-á¹-hÄ• yÄ• sanÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ vanditvÄ• sirasi aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ paggahetvÄ• idÄ• ni amhehi esa \Be 25/ damito diá¹-á¹-ho, kathaá¹ƒ panesa atÄ«te bhagavatÄ• damitoâ tena mahÄ• janena yÄ• cito \Ee 21/ bhavantarena paá¹-icchannaá¹ƒ __mahÄ• nÄ• radakas kathetvÄ• cattÄ• ri ariyasaccÄ• ni pakÄ• sesi. tato satthu dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• rÄ• jÄ• ekÄ• dasanahutehi saddhiá¹ƒ sotÄ• pattiphale patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si, ekanahutaá¹ƒ upÄ• sakattaá saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gantvÄ• svÄ• tanÄ• ya bhagavantaá¹ƒ saddhiá¹ƒ bhikkhusaá¹…ghena nimant tikkhattuá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• vanditvÄ• pakkÄ• mi.

punadivase \Ne 24/ bhagavÄ• bhikkhusahassaparivuto marugaá¹‡aparivuto viya dasasata brahmagaá¹‡aparivuto viya mahÄ• brahmÄ• rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ pÄ• visi. rÄ• jÄ• buddhappamu dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• bhojanapariyosÄ• ne bhagavantaá¹ƒ etadavoca --- ``ahaá¹ƒ, bhante, tÄ« vasituá¹ƒ na sakkhissÄ• mi, velÄ• ya vÄ• avelÄ• ya vÄ• bhagavato santikaá¹ƒ Ä• gamissÄ atidÅ«re, idaá¹ƒ pana amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ veá¸·uvanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ pavivekakÄ• mÄ• n naccÄ• sannaá¹ƒ gamanÄ• gamanasampannaá¹ƒ nijjanasambÄ• dhaá¹ƒ pavivekasukhaá¹ƒ sÄ«talasilÄ• talasamalaá¹…kataá¹ƒ paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yabhÅ«mibhÄ• gaá¹ƒ surabhikusuma ramaá¹‡Ä«yapÄ• sÄ• dahammiyavimÄ• navihÄ• raá¸• á¸• huyogamaá¹‡á¸• apÄ• dipaá¹-im bhagavÄ• paá¹-iggaá¹‡hÄ• tu navatapanaá¹…gÄ• rasaá¹…kÄ• sena suvaá¹‡á¹‡abhiá¹…gA maá¹‡ivaá¹‡á¹‡audakaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• veá¸·uvanÄ• rÄ• maá¹ƒ pariccajanto dasabalassa hatt tasmiá¹ƒ Ä• rÄ• mapaá¹-iggahaá¹‡e ``buddhasÄ• sanassa mÅ«lÄ• ni otiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• nÄ«â€™â naccantÄ« viya ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• pathavÄ« kampi. jambudÄ«pe pana á¹-hapetvÄ• veá¸·uvana pathaviá¹ƒ kampetvÄ• gahitasenÄ• sanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma natthi. atha satthÄ• veá¸·uvanÄ• rÄ• n vihÄ• radÄ• nÄ• numodanamakÄ• si ---

``Ä• vÄ• sadÄ• nassa panÄ• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ, ko nÄ• ma vattuá¹ƒ, puriso samattho.

aÃ±Ã±atra buddhÄ• pana lokanÄ• thÄ• , yutto mukhÄ• naá¹ƒ nahutena cÄ• pi ||

``Ä• yuÃ±ca \Be 26/ vaá¹‡á¹‡aÃ±ca sukhaá¹ƒ balaÃ±ca, varaá¹ƒ pasatthaá¹ƒ paá¹-ibhÄ• na dadÄ• ti nÄ• mÄ• ti pavuccate so, yo deti saá¹…ghassa naro vihÄ• raá¹ƒ ||

``dÄ• tÄ• nivÄ• sassa nivÄ• raá¹‡assa, sÄ«tÄ• dino jÄ«vitupaddavassa.

pÄ• leti Ä• yuá¹ƒ pana tassa yasmÄ• , Ä• yuppado hoti tamÄ• hu santo || ``accuá¹‡hasÄ«te \Ee 22/ vasato nivÄ• se, balaÃ±ca vaá¹‡á¹‡o paá¹-ibhÄ• na hoti.

tasmÄ• hi so deti vihÄ• radÄ• tÄ• , balaÃ±ca vaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹-ibhÄ• nameva ||

``dukkhassa sÄ«tuá¹‡hasarÄ«sapÄ• ca, vÄ• tÄ• tapÄ• dippabhavassa loke.

nivÄ• raá¹‡Ä• nekavidhassa niccaá¹ƒ, sukhappado hoti vihÄ• radÄ• tÄ• ||

``sÄ«tuá¹‡havÄ• tÄ• tapaá¸• aá¹ƒsavuá¹-á¹-hi \Ne 25/, sarÄ«sapÄ• vÄ• á¸·amigÄ• didukkha

yasmÄ• nivÄ• reti vihÄ• radÄ• tÄ• , tasmÄ• sukhaá¹ƒ vindati so parattha ||

``pasannacitto bhavabhogahetuá¹ƒ, manobhirÄ• maá¹ƒ mudito vihÄ• raá¹ƒ.

yo deti sÄ«lÄ• diguá¹‡oditÄ• naá¹ƒ, sabbaá¹ƒ dado nÄ• ma pavuccate so ||

``pahÄ• ya maccheramalaá¹ƒ salobhaá¹ƒ, guá¹‡Ä• layÄ• naá¹ƒ nilayaá¹ƒ dadÄ• ti.

khittova so tattha parehi sagge, yathÄ• bhataá¹ƒ jÄ• yati vÄ«tasoko ||

``vare \Be 27/ cÄ• rurÅ«pe vihÄ• re uá¸·Ä• re, naro kÄ• raye vÄ• saye tattha bhikkhÅ«.

dadeyyannapÄ• naÃ±ca vatthaÃ±ca nesaá¹ƒ, pasannena cittena sakkacca niccaá¹ƒ ||

``tasmÄ• mahÄ• rÄ• ja bhavesu bhoge, manorame paccanubhuyya bhiyyo.

vihÄ• radÄ• nassa phalena santaá¹ƒ, sukhaá¹ƒ asokaá¹ƒ adhigaccha pacchÄ• â€™â€™ ti |

iccevaá¹ƒ munirÄ• jÄ• nararÄ• jassa bimbisÄ• rassa vihÄ• radÄ• nÄ• numodanaá¹ƒ katvÄ bhikkhusaá¹…ghaparivuto paramadassanÄ«yÄ• ya attano sarÄ«rappabhÄ• ya suvaá¹‡á¹‡a nagaravanavimÄ• nÄ• dÄ«ni kurumÄ• no anopamÄ• ya buddhalÄ«á¸·Ä• ya anantÄ• ya buc veá¸·uvanamahÄ• vihÄ• rameva pÄ• visÄ«ti.

``akÄ«á¸·ane veá¸·uvane vihÄ• re, tathÄ• gato tattha manobhirÄ• me.

nÄ• nÄ• vihÄ• rena vihÄ• si dhÄ«ro, veneyyakÄ• naá¹ƒ samudikkhamÄ• noâ€™â€™ || athevaá¹ƒ \Ee 23/ bhagavati tasmiá¹ƒ viharante __suddhodana_mahÄ• rÄ• jÄ• ``putto me dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ katvÄ• paramÄ• bhisambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• pavattitavaradhammacakko r veá¸·uvanamahÄ• vihÄ• re viharatÄ«â€™â€™ ti sutvÄ• aÃ±Ã±ataraá¹ƒ mahÄ• maccaá¹ƒ Ä purisasahassaparivÄ• ro rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• mama vacanena `pitÄ• vo suddhodanama daá¹-á¹-hukÄ• moâ€™ ti vatvÄ• puttaá¹ƒ me gaá¹‡hitvÄ• ehÄ«â€™â€™ ti. so ``sÄ• dhu, d paá¹-issuá¹‡itvÄ• purisasahassaparivÄ• ro saá¹-á¹-hiyojanamaggaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• dhammade pÄ• visi. so ``tiá¹-á¹-hatu tÄ• va raÃ±Ã±Ä• pahitasÄ• sanaâ€™â€™ nti parisapariyante á¹-h dhammadesanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• yathÄ• á¹-hitova saddhiá¹ƒ purisasahassena \Ne 26/ arahattaá¹ bhagavÄ• --- ``etha, bhikkhavoâ€™â€™ ti hatthaá¹ƒ pasÄ• resi. te sabbe taá¹…khaá¹‡aÃ± iddhimayapattacÄ«varadharÄ• vassasaá¹-á¹-hikattherÄ• viya Ä• kappasampannÄ• hutvÄ• parivÄ• resuá¹ƒ. rÄ• jÄ• ``neva \Be 28/ gato Ä• gacchati, na ca sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ suyyatÄ«â€™ nÄ«hÄ• rena navakkhattuá¹ƒ amacce pesesi. tesu navasu purisasahassesu ekopi raÃ±Ã±o vÄ• pahiá¹‡i. sabbe arahattaá¹ƒ patvÄ• va pabbajiá¹ƒsu.

atha rÄ• jÄ• cintesi --- ``ko nu kho mama vacanaá¹ƒ karissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti sabbarÄ• jabala __udÄ• yiá¹ƒ_ addasa. so kira raÃ±Ã±o sabbatthasÄ• dhako amacco abbhantariko ativissÄ saddhiá¹ƒ ekadivaseyeva jÄ• to sahapaá¹ƒsukÄ«á¸·ito sahÄ• yo. atha naá¹ƒ rÄ• jÄ• Ä• ma ahaá¹ƒ mama puttaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-hukÄ• mo navapurisasahassÄ• ni pesesiá¹ƒ, ekapurisopi Ä• Ä• rocetÄ• natthi, dujjÄ• no kho pana me jÄ«vitantarÄ• yo, ahaá¹ƒ jÄ«vamÄ• nova puttaá¹ƒ sakkhissasi me puttaá¹ƒ dassetuâ€™â€™ nti? so ``sakkhissÄ• mi, deva, sace pabbajituá¹ƒ Ä• ha. ``tÄ• ta, tvaá¹ƒ pabbajitvÄ• vÄ• apabbajitvÄ• vÄ• mayhaá¹ƒ puttaá¹ƒ dassehÄ«â€ devÄ• â€™â€™ ti raÃ±Ã±o sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ Ä• dÄ• ya rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• satthu dhamma purisasahassena arahattaá¹ƒ patvÄ• ehibhikkhubhÄ• ve patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya phaggunÄ«puá¹‡ ``atikkanto hemanto, vasantasamayo anuppatto, supupphitÄ• vanasaá¹‡á¸• Ä• , paá¹-ipajja dasabalassa Ã±Ä• tisaá¹…gahaá¹ƒ kÄ• tuâ€™â€™ nti cintetvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…
gÄ• thÄ• hi bhagavato kulanagaraá¹ƒ gamanatthÄ• ya gamanavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vaá¹‡á¹‡esi --- ``aá¹…gÄ• rino dÄ• ni dumÄ• bhadante, phalesino chadanaá¹ƒ vippahÄ• ya.

te accimantova pabhÄ• sayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``dumÄ• \Be 29/ vicittÄ• suvirÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• , rattaá¹…kureheva ca pallavehi.

ratanujjalamaá¹‡á¸• apasannibhÄ• sÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``supupphitaggÄ• kusumehi bhÅ«sitÄ• , manuÃ±Ã±abhÅ«tÄ• sucisÄ• dhugandhÄ• .

rukkhÄ• virocanti ubhosu passesu, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``phalehinekehi samiddhibhÅ«tÄ• , vicittarukkhÄ• ubhatovakÄ• se.

khuddaá¹ƒ pipÄ• sampi vinodayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicittamÄ• lÄ• \Ne 27/ sucipallavehi, susajjitÄ• morakalÄ• pasannibhÄ• .

rukkhÄ• virocanti ubhosu passesu, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``virocamÄ• nÄ• phalapallavehi, susajjitÄ• vÄ• sanivÄ• sabhÅ«tÄ• .

tosenti addhÄ• nakilantasatte, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suphullitaggÄ• vanagumbanissitÄ• , latÄ• anekÄ• suvirÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• .

tosenti satte maá¹‡imaá¹‡á¸• apÄ• va, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``latÄ• anekÄ• dumanissitÄ• va, piyehi saddhiá¹ƒ sahitÄ• vadhÅ«va.

palobhayantÄ« hi sugandhagandhÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicittanÄ«lÄ• dimanuÃ±Ã±avaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• \Be 30/, dijÄ• samantÄ• abhikÅ«jamÄ• nÄ• .

tosenti maÃ±jussaratÄ• ratÄ«hi, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``migÄ• ca nÄ• nÄ• suvirÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• , uttuá¹…gakaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca manuÃ±Ã±anettÄ• .

disÄ• samantÄ• mabhidhÄ• vayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``manuÃ±Ã±abhÅ«tÄ• ca mahÄ« samantÄ• , virÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• haritÄ• va saddalÄ• .

supupphirukkhÄ• moá¸·inivalaá¹…katÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``susajjitÄ• muttamayÄ• va vÄ• lukÄ• , susaá¹‡á¹-hitÄ• cÄ• rusuphassadÄ• tÄ• .

virocayanteva disÄ• samantÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``samaá¹ƒ suphassaá¹ƒ sucibhÅ«mibhÄ• gaá¹ƒ, manuÃ±Ã±apupphodayagandhavÄ• sitaá¹ƒ

virÄ• jamÄ• naá¹ƒ sucimaÃ±ca sobhaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``susajjitaá¹ƒ nandanakÄ• nanaá¹ƒva, vicittanÄ• nÄ• dumasaá¹‡á¸• amaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ.

sugandhabhÅ«taá¹ƒ pavanaá¹ƒ surammaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ |

``sarÄ• vicittÄ• vividhÄ• manoramÄ• , susajjitÄ• paá¹…kajapuá¹‡á¸• arÄ«kÄ• .

pasannasÄ«todakacÄ• rupuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suphullanÄ• nÄ• vidhapaá¹…kajehi \Be 31/ \Ne 28/, virÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• sucigandhagandhÄ•

pamodayanteva narÄ• marÄ• naá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suphullapaá¹…keruhasannisinnÄ• , dijÄ• samantÄ• mabhinÄ• dayantÄ• .

modanti bhariyÄ• hi samaá¹…gino te, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suphullapupphehi rajaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• , alÄ« vidhÄ• vanti vikÅ«jamÄ• nÄ• .

madhumhi gandho vidisaá¹ƒ pavÄ• yati, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``abhinnanÄ• dÄ• madavÄ• raá¹‡Ä• ca, girÄ«hi dhÄ• vanti ca vÄ• ridhÄ• rÄ• .

savanti najjo suvirÄ• jitÄ• va samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``girÄ« samantÄ• va padissamÄ• nÄ• , mayÅ«ragÄ«vÄ• iva nÄ«lavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• .

disÄ• rajindÄ• va virocayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``mayÅ«rasaá¹…ghÄ• girimuddhanasmiá¹ƒ, naccanti nÄ• rÄ«hi samaá¹…gibhÅ«tÄ• .

kÅ«janti nÄ• nÄ• madhurassarehi, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suvÄ• dikÄ• nekadijÄ• manuÃ±Ã±Ä• , vicittapattehi virÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• .

girimhi á¹-hatvÄ• abhinÄ• dayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suphullapupphÄ• karamÄ• bhikiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• \Be 32/, sugandhanÄ• nÄ• dalalaá¹…katÄ• ca.

girÄ« virocanti disÄ• samantÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``jalÄ• sayÄ• nekasugandhagandhÄ• , surindauyyÄ• najalÄ• sayÄ• va.

savanti najjo suvirÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicittatitthehi alaá¹…katÄ• ca, manuÃ±Ã±anÄ• nÄ• migapakkhipÄ• sÄ• .

najjo virocanti susandamÄ• nÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``ubhosu passesu jalÄ• sayesu, supupphitÄ• cÄ• rusugandharukkhÄ• .

vibhÅ«sitaggÄ• surasundarÄ« ca, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``sugandhanÄ• nÄ• dumajÄ• lakiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ \Ne 29/, vanaá¹ƒ vicittaá¹ƒ suranandanaá¹ƒva.

manobhirÄ• maá¹ƒ satataá¹ƒ gatÄ«naá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``sampannanÄ• nÄ• suciannapÄ• nÄ• , sabyaÃ±janÄ• sÄ• durasena yuttÄ• .

pathesu gÄ• me sulabhÄ• manuÃ±Ã±Ä• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``virÄ• jitÄ• Ä• si mahÄ« samantÄ• , vicittavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• kusumÄ• sanassa.

rattindagopehi alaá¹…katÄ• va samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``visuddhasaddhÄ• diguá¹‡ehi \Be 33/ yuttÄ• , sambuddharÄ• jaá¹ƒ abhipatthayantÄ• .

bahÅ«hi tattheva janÄ• samantÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicitraÄ• rÄ• masupokkharaÃ±Ã±o, vicitranÄ• nÄ• padumehi channÄ• .

bhisehi khÄ«raá¹ƒva rasaá¹ƒ pavÄ• yati, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicitranÄ«lacchadanenalaá¹…katÄ• , manuÃ±Ã±arukkhÄ• ubhatovakÄ• se.

samuggatÄ• sattasamÅ«habhÅ«tÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicitranÄ«labbhamivÄ• yataá¹ƒ vanaá¹ƒ, surindaloke iva nandanaá¹ƒ vanaá¹ƒ.

sabbotukaá¹ƒ sÄ• dhusugandhapupphaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``subhaÃ±jasaá¹ƒ yojanayojanesu, subhikkhagÄ• mÄ• sulabhÄ• manuÃ±Ã±Ä• .

janÄ• bhikiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sulabhannapÄ• nÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``pahÅ«tachÄ• yÅ«dakarammabhÅ«tÄ• , nivÄ• sinaá¹ƒ sabbasukhappadÄ• tÄ• .

visÄ• lasÄ• lÄ• ca sabhÄ• ca bahÅ«, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicittanÄ• nÄ• dumasaá¹‡á¸• amaá¹‡á¸• itÄ• , manuÃ±Ã±auyyÄ• nasupokkharaÃ±Ã±o.

sumÄ• pitÄ• sÄ• dhusugandhagandhÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vÄ• to \Be 34/ mudÅ«sÄ«talasÄ• dhurÅ«po, nabhÄ• ca abbhÄ• vigatÄ• samantÄ• .

disÄ• ca sabbÄ• va virocayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``pathe \Ne 30/ rajonuggamanatthameva, rattiá¹ƒ pavassanti ca mandavuá¹-á¹-hÄ«.

nabhe ca sÅ«ro mudukova tÄ• po, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``madappabÄ• hÄ• madahatthisaá¹…ghÄ• , kareá¹‡usaá¹…ghehi sukÄ«á¸·ayanti.

disÄ• vidhÄ• vanti ca gajjayantÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vanaá¹ƒ sunÄ«laá¹ƒ abhidassanÄ«yaá¹ƒ, nÄ«labbhakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ iva rammabhÅ«taá¹ƒ.

vilokitÄ• naá¹ƒ ativimhanÄ«yaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``visuddhamabbhaá¹ƒ gaganaá¹ƒ surammaá¹ƒ, maá¹‡imayehi samalaá¹…katÄ• va.

disÄ• ca sabbÄ• atirocayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``gandhabbavijjÄ• dharakinnarÄ• ca, sugÄ«tiyantÄ• madhurassarena.

caranti tasmiá¹ƒ pavane suramme, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``kilesasaá¹…ghassa bhitÄ• sakehi, tapassisaá¹…ghehi nisevitaá¹ƒ vanaá¹ƒ.

vihÄ• raÄ• rÄ• masamiddhibhÅ«taá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``samiddhinÄ• nÄ• phalino \Be 35/ vanantÄ• , anÄ• kulÄ• niccamanobhirammÄ• .

samÄ• dhipÄ«tiá¹ƒ abhivaá¸• á¸• hayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``nisevitaá¹ƒ nekadijehi niccaá¹ƒ, gÄ• mena gÄ• maá¹ƒ satataá¹ƒ vasantÄ• .

pure pure gÄ• mavarÄ• ca santi, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vatthannapÄ• naá¹ƒ sayanÄ• sanaÃ±ca, gandhaÃ±ca mÄ• laÃ±ca vilepanaÃ±ca.

tahiá¹ƒ samiddhÄ• janatÄ• bahÅ« ca, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``puÃ±Ã±iddhiyÄ• sabbayasaggapattÄ• , janÄ• ca tasmiá¹ƒ sukhitÄ• samiddhÄ• .

pahÅ«tabhogÄ• vividhÄ• vasanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``nabhe ca abbhÄ• suvisuddhavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• , disÄ• ca cando suvirÄ• jitova.

rattiÃ±ca vÄ• to mudusÄ«talo ca, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``canduggame \Ne 31/ sabbajanÄ• pahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• , sakaá¹…gaá¹‡e citrakathÄ• vadantÄ•

piyehi saddhiá¹ƒ abhimodayanti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``candassa raá¹ƒsÄ«hi nabhaá¹ƒ viroci, mahÄ« ca saá¹ƒsuddhamanuÃ±Ã±avaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• .

disÄ• ca sabbÄ• parisuddharÅ«pÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``dÅ«re \Be 36/ ca disvÄ• varacandaraá¹ƒsiá¹ƒ, pupphiá¹ƒsu pupphÄ• ni mahÄ«talasmiá¹ƒ samantato gandhaguá¹‡atthikÄ• naá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``candassa raá¹ƒsÄ«hi vilimpitÄ• va, mahÄ« samantÄ• kusumenalaá¹…katÄ• .

viroci sabbaá¹…gasumÄ• linÄ«va, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``kucanti hatthÄ«pi madena mattÄ• , vicittapiÃ±chÄ• ca dijÄ• samantÄ• .

karonti nÄ• daá¹ƒ pavane suramme, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``pathaÃ±ca sabbaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajjanakkhamaá¹ƒ, iddhaÃ±ca raá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ sadhanaá¹ƒ sabho sabbatthutaá¹ƒ sabbasukhappadÄ• naá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vanaÃ±ca sabbaá¹ƒ suvicittarÅ«paá¹ƒ, sumÄ• pitaá¹ƒ nandanakÄ• nanaá¹ƒva.

yatÄ«na pÄ«tiá¹ƒ satataá¹ƒ janeti, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``alaá¹…kataá¹ƒ devapuraá¹ƒva rammaá¹ƒ, kapÄ«lavatthuá¹ƒ iti nÄ• madheyyaá¹ƒ.

kulanagaraá¹ƒ idha sassirikaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``manuÃ±Ã±aaá¹-á¹-Ä• lavicittarÅ«paá¹ƒ, suphullapaá¹…keruhasaá¹‡á¸• amaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ.

vicittaparikhÄ• hi puraá¹ƒ surammaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``vicittapÄ• kÄ• raÃ±ca \Be 37/ toraá¹‡aÃ±ca, subhaá¹…gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ devanivÄ• sabhÅ«taá¹ƒ manuÃ±Ã±avÄ«thi suralokasannibhaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``alaá¹…katÄ• sÄ• kiyarÄ• japuttÄ• , virÄ• jamÄ• nÄ• varabhÅ«sanehi.

surindaloke iva devaputtÄ• , samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``suddhodano \Ne 32/ munivaraá¹ƒ abhidassanÄ• ya, amaccaputte dasadhÄ• apesayi.

balena saddhiá¹ƒ mahatÄ• muninda, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``nevÄ• gataá¹ƒ passati neva vÄ• caá¹ƒ, sokÄ• bhibhÅ«taá¹ƒ naravÄ«raseá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ.

tosetumicchÄ• mi narÄ• dhipattaá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ || ``taá¹ƒdassanenabbhutapÄ«tirÄ• si, udikkhamÄ• naá¹ƒ dvipadÄ• namindaá¹ƒ.

tosehi taá¹ƒ muninda guá¹‡aseá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, samayo mahÄ• vÄ«ra aá¹…gÄ«rasÄ• naá¹ƒ ||

``Ä• sÄ• ya kassate khettaá¹ƒ, bÄ«jaá¹ƒ Ä• sÄ• ya vappati.

Ä• sÄ• ya vÄ• á¹‡ijÄ• yanti, samuddaá¹ƒ dhanahÄ• rakÄ• .

yÄ• ya Ä• sÄ• ya tiá¹-á¹-hÄ• mi, sÄ• me Ä• sÄ• samijjhatu ||

``nÄ• tisÄ«taá¹ƒ \Ee 24/ nÄ• tiuá¹‡haá¹ƒ, nÄ• tidubbhikkhachÄ• takaá¹ƒ.

saddalÄ• haritÄ• bhÅ«mi, esa kÄ• lo mahÄ• munÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

atha naá¹ƒ satthÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho, udÄ• yi, gamanavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vaá¹‡á¹‡esÄ«â€™â€™ tumhÄ• kaá¹ƒ pitÄ• suddhodanamahÄ• rÄ• jÄ• daá¹-á¹-hukÄ• mo, karotha Ã±Ä• takÄ• naá ``sÄ• dhu, udÄ• yi, karissÄ• mi Ã±Ä• tisaá¹…gahaá¹ƒ, tena hi bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa Ä• roce __gamiyavattaá¹ƒ_ pÅ«ressantÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. ``sÄ• dhu, bhanteâ€™â€™ ti thero bhi satthÄ• aá¹…gamagadhavÄ• sÄ«naá¹ƒ kulaputtÄ• naá¹ƒ dasahi sahassehi, kapilavatthuvÄ sahassehÄ«ti sabbeheva vÄ«satiyÄ• khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savabhikkhusahassehi parivuto rÄ• jagah yojanaá¹ƒ yojanaá¹ƒ gacchanto dvÄ«hi mÄ• sehi kapilavatthupuraá¹ƒ sampÄ• puá¹‡i. sÄ• k bhagavati --- ``amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• tiseá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ passissÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti bhagavato va vÄ«maá¹ƒsamÄ• nÄ• ``nigrodhasakkassÄ• rÄ• mo ramaá¹‡Ä«yoâ€™â€™ ti sallakkhetvÄ• kÄ• retvÄ• gandhapupphahatthÄ• paccuggamanaá¹ƒ karontÄ• sabbÄ• laá¹…kÄ• rehi sam gandhapupphacuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• dÄ«hi pÅ«jayamÄ• nÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ purakkhatvÄ• nigrodhÄ tatra bhagavÄ• vÄ«satiyÄ• khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savasahassehi parivuto paÃ±Ã±attavarabuddhÄ• s pana mÄ• najÄ• tikÄ• mÄ• natthaddhÄ• , ``siddhatthakumÄ• ro amhehi daharataro, amhÄ• putto, bhÄ• gineyyo, nattÄ• â€™â€™ ti cintetvÄ• daharadahare rÄ• jakumÄ• re Ä• haá¹ƒsu mayaá¹ƒ tumhÄ• kaá¹ƒ piá¹-á¹-hito piá¹-á¹-hito nisÄ«dissÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti. tesvevaá¹ƒ nis ajjhÄ• sayaá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• --- ``ime Ã±Ä• takÄ• attano moghajiá¹‡á¹‡abhÄ• vena na maá¹ƒ jÄ• nanti `buddho nÄ• ma kÄ«diso, buddhabalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma kÄ«disaâ€™ nti vÄ• , `buddho n nÄ• ma edisaâ€™ nti vÄ• , handÄ• haá¹ƒ attano buddhabalaá¹ƒ iddhibalaÃ±ca dassento pÅ Ä• kÄ• se dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·avitthataá¹ƒ sabbaratanamayaá¹ƒ caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• mahÄ• janassa ajjhÄ• sayaá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• dhammaÃ±ca deseyyaâ€™â€™ nti cintesi. tena bhagavato parivitakkadassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``na hete jÄ• nanti sadevamÄ• nusÄ• , buddho ayaá¹ƒ kÄ«disako naruttamo.

iddhibalaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• balaÃ±ca kÄ«disaá¹ƒ, buddhabalaá¹ƒ lokahitassa kÄ«disaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``na \Be 39/ \Ee 25/ hete jÄ• nanti sadevamÄ• nusÄ• , buddho ayaá¹ƒ edisako

iddhibalaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• balaÃ±ca edisaá¹ƒ, buddhabalaá¹ƒ lokahitassa edisaá¹ƒ ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``handÄ• haá¹ƒ dassayissÄ• mi, buddhabalamanuttaraá¹ƒ.

caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payissÄ• mi, nabhe ratanamaá¹‡á¸• itaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __na hete jÄ• nantÄ«_ti na hi ete jÄ• nanti. __na_-kÄ• ro paá¹-isedhattho. __hi_-kÄ• nipÄ• to. yasmÄ• panete mama Ã±Ä• tiÄ• dayo devamanussÄ• mayÄ• buddhabale ca idd ``ediso buddho, edisaá¹ƒ iddhibalaâ€™â€™ nti, tasmÄ• ahaá¹ƒ mama buddhabalaÃ±ca idd attho. __sadevamÄ• nusÄ• _ti ettha devÄ• ti upapattidevÄ• adhippetÄ• . saha devehÄ«ti sa sadevÄ• eva mÄ• nusÄ• sadevamÄ• nusÄ• . atha vÄ• __devo_ti sammutidevo, suddhoda raÃ±Ã±Ä• suddhodanenÄ• ti sadevÄ• . __mÄ• nusÄ• _ti Ã±Ä• timÄ• nusÄ• , sadevÄ• sas sarÄ• jÄ• no vÄ• ete mama Ã±Ä• timÄ• nusÄ• mama balaá¹ƒ na vijÄ• nantÄ«ti attho. sesa gacchantiyeva. sabbepi devÄ• devanaá¹-á¹-hena ``devÄ• â€™â€™ ti vuccanti. devanaá¹ƒ kÄ«á¸·Ä• di. atha vÄ• devÄ• ca mÄ• nusÄ• ca devamÄ• nusÄ• , saha devamÄ• nusehi sa vacanaseso daá¹-á¹-habbo. __buddho_ti catusaccadhamme buddho anubuddhoti buddho. y ``abhiÃ±Ã±eyyaá¹ƒ \Ne 34/ abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• taá¹ƒ, bhÄ• vetabbaÃ±ca bhÄ• vitaá¹ƒ.

pahÄ• tabbaá¹ƒ pahÄ«naá¹ƒ me, tasmÄ• buddhosmi brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• â€™â€™ ti || (MN II 3

idha pana kattukÄ• rake buddhasaddasiddhi daá¹-á¹-habbÄ• . adhigatavisesehi devamanus vata so bhagavÄ• â€™â€™ ti evaá¹ƒ buddhattÄ• Ã±Ä• tattÄ• buddho. idha kammakÄ• rak daá¹-á¹-habbÄ• . buddhamassa atthÄ«ti vÄ• buddho, buddhavantoti attho. taá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ veditabbaá¹ƒ. __kÄ«disako_ti kÄ«diso kiá¹ƒsarikkhako kiá¹ƒsadiso kiá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡o kiá¹ƒsaá rasso vÄ• ti attho.

__naruttamo_ti \Be 40/ narÄ• naá¹ƒ naresu vÄ• uttamo pavaro seá¹-á¹-hoti naruttamo. __i ijjhanaá¹ƒ iddhi nipphattiatthena paá¹-ilÄ• bhaá¹-á¹-hena ca iddhi. atha vÄ• ijjhanti tÄ• ya sa vuddhÄ• ukkaá¹ƒsagatÄ• hontÄ«ti \Ee 26/ iddhi. sÄ• pana dasavidhÄ• hoti. yathÄ• ha --- ``iddhiyoti dasa iddhiyo. katamÄ• dasa? adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• iddhi, vikubbanÄ• iddhi, manor Ã±Ä• á¹‡avipphÄ• rÄ• iddhi, samÄ• dhivipphÄ• rÄ• iddhi, ariyÄ• iddhi, kammavipÄ• kajÄ• vijjÄ• mayÄ• iddhi, tattha tattha sammÄ• payogapaccayÄ• ijjhanaá¹-á¹-hena iddhÄ«â€™â€ tÄ• saá¹ƒ idaá¹ƒ nÄ• nattaá¹ƒ --- pakatiyÄ• eko bahukaá¹ƒ Ä• vajjeti, sataá¹ƒ vÄ• sahassa Ã±Ä• á¹‡ena adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ti ``bahuko homÄ«â€™â€™ ti (Paá¹-is III 10) evaá¹ƒ vibhajitvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• navasena nipphannattÄ• __adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• iddhi_ nÄ• ma. tassÄ• yamatt catutthajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• tato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya sace sataá¹ƒ icchati ``sataá¹ƒ hom ti kÄ• mÄ• vacaraparikammacittehi parikammaá¹ƒ katvÄ• puna abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• dakaá¹ƒ jh vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya puna Ä• vajjitvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ti, adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacittena saheva sataá¹ƒ h eseva nayo.

tattha pÄ• dakajjhÄ• nacittaá¹ƒ nimittÄ• rammaá¹‡aá¹ƒ parikammacittÄ• ni satÄ• rammaá¹‡ aÃ±Ã±atarÄ• rammaá¹‡Ä• ni vÄ• , tÄ• ni ca kho vaá¹‡á¹‡avasena, no paá¹‡á¹‡attivasena. a satÄ• rammaá¹‡ameva, taá¹ƒ pana appanÄ• cittaá¹ƒ viya gotrabhuanantarameva uppajjati rÅ«pÄ• vacaracatutthajhÄ• nikaá¹ƒ \Ne 35/. so pana pakativaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vijahitvÄ• kumÄ• r nÄ• gavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vÄ• dasseti. supaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vÄ• ... pe ... vividhampi senÄ• (Paá¹-is III 13) evaá¹ƒ Ä• gatÄ• iddhi pakativaá¹‡á¹‡avijahanavikÄ• ravasena pavattattÄ• _

``idha bhikkhu imamhÄ• kÄ• yÄ• aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ abhinimminÄ• ti rÅ«piá¹ƒ manoma ahÄ«nindriyaâ€™â€™ nti (Paá¹-is III 14) iminÄ• nayena Ä• gatÄ• iddhi sarÄ«rasseva abbh manomayassa sarÄ«rassa nipphattivasena pavattattÄ• __manomayiddhi_ nÄ• ma.

Ã±Ä• á¹‡uppattito pubbe vÄ• pacchÄ• vÄ• taá¹…khaá¹‡e vÄ• tena attabhÄ• vena paá¹-ilabhitabbaarahattaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• nubhÄ• vena nibbatto viseso \Be 41/ __Ã±Ä• á¹‡avippl Ä• yasmato bÄ• kulassa ca Ä• yasmato saá¹ƒkiccassa ca Ã±Ä• á¹‡avipphÄ• rÄ• iddhi, tesa kathetabbaá¹ƒ (Mp I 1.226).

samÄ• dhito pubbe vÄ• pacchÄ• vÄ• taá¹…khaá¹‡e vÄ• samathÄ• nubhÄ• vena nibbatt iddhi_ nÄ• ma. Ä• yasmato sÄ• riputtassa samÄ• dhivipphÄ• rÄ• iddhi (Ud 34), Ä• yasmato samÄ• dhivipphÄ• rÄ• iddhi (MN I 507), Ä• yasmato khÄ• á¹‡ukoá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa samÄ• khÄ• á¹‡ukoá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±attheravatthu), uttarÄ• ya upÄ• sikÄ• ya samÄ• dhivipphÄ• rÄ• id uttarÄ• upÄ• sikÄ• vatthu; Mp I 1.262), sÄ• mÄ• vatiyÄ• upÄ• sikÄ• ya samÄ• dhivipphÄ• r sÄ• mÄ• vatÄ«vatthu; Mp I 1.260-261) tesaá¹ƒ vatthÅ«nettha kathetabbÄ• ni, ganthavitthÄ• pana mayÄ• na vitthÄ• ritÄ• ni.

katamÄ• ariyÄ• iddhi? idha bhikkhu sace Ä• kaá¹…khati ``paá¹-ikkÅ«le appaá¹-ikkÅ«lasaÃ vihareyyaâ€™â€™ nti appaá¹-ikkÅ«lasaÃ±Ã±Ä« tattha viharati, sace Ä• kaá¹…khati ``appaá paá¹-ikkÅ«lasaÃ±Ã±Ä« vihareyyaâ€™â€™ nti paá¹-ikkÅ«lasaÃ±Ã±Ä« tattha viharati ... pe ... viharati sato sampajÄ• noti (Paá¹-is III 17). ayaÃ±hi cetovasippattÄ• naá¹ƒ ariyÄ• naá¹ƒyeva iddhi_ nÄ• ma.

katamÄ• kammavipÄ• kajÄ• iddhi? sabbesaá¹ƒ pakkhÄ«naá¹ƒ sabbesaá¹ƒ devÄ• naá¹ƒ p manussÄ• naá¹ƒ ekaccÄ• naÃ±ca \Ne 36/ vinipÄ• tikÄ• naá¹ƒ vehÄ• sagamanÄ• dikÄ• __k katamÄ• puÃ±Ã±avato iddhi? rÄ• jÄ• cakkavattÄ« vehÄ• saá¹ƒ gacchati saddhiá¹ƒ caturaá jaá¹-ilakassa gahapatissa asÄ«tihattho suvaá¹‡á¹‡apabbato nibbatti. ayaá¹ƒ __puÃ±Ã±avato ghosakassa gahapatino (Dhp-a I kumbhaghosakaseá¹-á¹-hivatthu) sattasu á¹-hÄ• nesu mÄ• katepi arogabhÄ• vo __puÃ±Ã±avato iddhi_. meá¹‡á¸• akaseá¹-á¹-hissa (Dhp-a II meá¹‡á¸• aá¹-á¹-hakarÄ«samatte padese sattaratanamayÄ• naá¹ƒ meá¹‡á¸• akÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• tubhÄ• v katamÄ• vijjÄ• mayÄ• iddhi? vijjÄ• dharÄ• vijjaá¹ƒ parijappitvÄ• vehÄ• saá¹ƒ gacchanti, A hatthimpi dassenti ... pe ... vividhampi senÄ• byÅ«haá¹ƒ dassentÄ«ti (Paá¹-is III 18). Ä• dina __vijjÄ• mayÄ• iddhi_ nÄ• ma. taá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ kammaá¹ƒ katvÄ• nibbatto \Be 42/ viseso `sam ijjhanaá¹-á¹-hena iddhÄ«â€™ ti ayaá¹ƒ __tattha tattha sammÄ• payogapaccayÄ• ijjhanaá¹-imissÄ• dasavidhÄ• ya iddhiyÄ• balaá¹ƒ iddhibalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma, idaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ iddhibalaá (Vism II 375 Ä• dayo).

__paÃ±Ã±Ä• bala_nti sabbalokiyalokuttaraguá¹‡avisesadÄ• yakaá¹ƒ arahattamaggapaÃ±Ã tampi ete na jÄ• nanti. keci ``channaá¹ƒ asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• nametaá¹ƒ adhivacan vadanti. __buddhabala_nti ettha buddhabalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma buddhÄ• nubhÄ• vo, dasabalaÃ±Ä dasabalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni nÄ• ma á¹-hÄ• nÄ• á¹-á¹-hÄ• naÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, atÄ«tÄ• nÄ• gatapaccuppannakammavipÄ• kajÄ• nanaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, sabbatthagÄ• minipa anekadhÄ• tunÄ• nÄ• dhÄ• tulokajÄ• nanaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• dhimuttikaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, jhÄ• navimokkhasamÄ• dhisamÄ• pattÄ«naá¹ƒ saá¹ƒkilesavodÄ• navuá¹-á¹-hÄ• nesu yathÄ pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nussatiÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, cutÅ«papÄ• taÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, Ä• savakkhayaÃ±Ä• á¹ dasannaá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• á¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ adhivacanaá¹ƒ buddhabalanti. __edisa_nti Ä«disaá¹ƒ, ayam __handÄ• _ti vavassaggatthe nipÄ• to. __aha_nti attÄ• naá¹ƒ niddisati. kiá¹ƒ vuttaá¹ƒ hoti?

Ã±Ä• takÄ• buddhabalaá¹ƒ vÄ• buddhaguá¹‡e vÄ• na jÄ• nanti, kevalaá¹ƒ attano \Ee 28/nissÄ• ya mÄ• navasena sabbalokajeá¹-á¹-haseá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ maá¹ƒ na vandanti. tasmÄ• tes bhaÃ±jitvÄ• vandanatthaá¹ƒ buddhabalaá¹ƒ dasseyyanti vuttaá¹ƒ hoti. __dassayissÄ• mÄ« ``dassessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti ca pÄ• á¹-ho, soyevattho. __buddhabala_nti buddhÄ• nubhÄ• vÄ• . __anuttara_nti niruttaraá¹ƒ. __caá¹…kama_nti caá¹…kamitabbaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ vucca mÄ• peyyaá¹ƒ. ``caá¹…kamanaá¹ƒ mÄ• pessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti ca pÄ• á¹-ho, soyevattho. __sabbaratanamaá¹‡á¸• ita_nti sabbehi ratijananaá¹-á¹-hena ratanehi muttÄ• -maá¹‡i-veá¸·uriya-saá¹…kha-silÄ• -pavÄ• á¸·a-rajata-suvaá¹‡á¹‡a-masÄ• ragalla-lo dasahi maá¹‡á¸• ito alaá¹…kato sabbaratanamaá¹‡á¸• ito, taá¹ƒ sabbaratanamaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ ratanamaá¹‡á¸• itaâ€™â€™ nti paá¹-hanti keci.

athevaá¹ƒ bhagavatÄ• cintitamatte dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·avÄ• sino bhummÄ• dayo de sÄ• dhukÄ• ramadaá¹ƒsu. tamatthaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sentehi saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• rakehi ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``bhummÄ• \Be 43/ mahÄ• rÄ• jikÄ• tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• , yÄ• mÄ• ca devÄ• tusitÄ paranimmitÄ• yepi ca brahmakÄ• yikÄ• , Ä• nanditÄ• vipulamakaá¹ƒsu ghosaâ€™â€™ nti

Ä• digÄ• thÄ• yo á¹-hapitÄ• ti veditabbÄ• .

tattha __bhummÄ• _ti bhummaá¹-á¹-hÄ• , pÄ• sÄ• á¹‡apabbatavanarukkhÄ• dÄ«su á¹-hitÄ mahÄ• rÄ• japakkhikÄ• . bhummaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ saddaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• Ä• kÄ• s abbhavalÄ• hakÄ• devatÄ• , tato uá¹‡havalÄ• hakÄ• devatÄ• , tato sÄ«tavalÄ• hakÄ• dev devatÄ• , tato vÄ• tavalÄ• hakÄ• devatÄ• , tato cattÄ• ro mahÄ• rÄ• jÄ• no, tato tÄ• vatiá¹ƒ tusitÄ• , tato nimmÄ• naratÄ«, tato paranimmitavasavattÄ«, tato brahmakÄ• yikÄ• , tato bra mahÄ• brahmÄ• no, tato parittÄ• bhÄ• , tato appamÄ• á¹‡Ä• bhÄ• , tato Ä• bhassarÄ• , tato appamÄ• á¹‡asubhÄ• , tato subhakiá¹‡hÄ• , tato vehapphalÄ• , tato avihÄ• , tato atappÄ• , sudassÄ«, tato akaniá¹-á¹-hÄ• devatÄ• saddaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• mahantaá¹ƒ saddaá¹ƒ akaá¹ƒsu.
arÅ«pÄ• vacarasatte ca á¹-hapetvÄ• sotÄ• yatanapavattiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne sabbe devamanussa gatahadayÄ• ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddamakaá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. __Ä• nanditÄ• _ti pamuditahadayÄ• , s hutvÄ• ti attho. __vipula_nti puthulaá¹ƒ.

atha satthÄ• cintitasamanantarameva odÄ• takasiá¹‡asamÄ• pattiá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• --- cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu Ä• loko hotÅ«â€™â€™ ti \Ee 29/ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena adhiá¹-á¹-h ahosi pathavito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya yÄ• va akaniá¹-á¹-habhavanÄ• . tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <7> á¹• 21 ``obhÄ• sitÄ• ca pathavÄ« sadevakÄ• , puthÅ« ca lokantarikÄ• asaá¹ƒvutÄ• .

tamo ca tibbo vihato tadÄ• ahu, disvÄ• na accherakaá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raâ€™â€™ nti || tattha \Ne 38/ \Be 44/ __obhÄ• sitÄ• _ti pakÄ• sitÄ• . __pathavÄ«_ti etthÄ• yaá¹ƒ pathavÄ« kakkhaá¸·apathavÄ«, sasambhÄ• rapathavÄ«, nimittapathavÄ«, sammutipathavÄ«ti. tÄ• su ajjhattikÄ• pathavÄ«dhÄ• tu? yaá¹ƒ ajjhattaá¹ƒ paccattaá¹ƒ kakkhaá¸·aá¹ƒ kharigataâ€™â€ vuttÄ• ayaá¹ƒ __kakkhaá¸·apathavÄ«_ nÄ• ma. ``yo pana bhikkhu pathaviá¹ƒ khaá¹‡eyya v tiÄ• dÄ«su (Vin IV 85) vuttÄ• sasambhÄ• rapathavÄ«, ye ca kesÄ• dayo vÄ«sati koá¹-á¹-hÄ bÄ• hirÄ• ; sÄ• pi vaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• dÄ«hi sambhÄ• rehi saddhiá¹ƒ pathavÄ«ti __sasambhÄ• rapa ``pathavÄ«kasiá¹‡ameko saÃ±jÄ• nÄ• tÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (DN III 360) __nimittapathav ``Ä• rammaá¹‡apathavÄ«â€™â€™ tipi vuccati. pathavÄ«kasiá¹‡ajhÄ• nalÄ• bhÄ« devaloke ``pathavÄ«devoâ€™â€™ ti nÄ• maá¹ƒ labhati. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ --- ``Ä• po ca devÄ• pathavÄ 340) ayaá¹ƒ __sammutipathavÄ«, _ paÃ±Ã±attipathavÄ« nÄ• mÄ• ti veditabbÄ• . idha pana adhippetÄ• (Ps I 2 pathavÄ«vÄ• ravaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•).

__sadevakÄ• _ti sadevalokÄ• . ``sadevatÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho atthi ce sundarataraá¹ƒ obhÄ• sitoti attho. __puthÅ«_ti bahÅ«. __lokantarikÄ• _ti asurakÄ• yanarakÄ• nametaá¹ƒ a tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ cakkavÄ• á¸·Ä• naá¹ƒ antarÄ• ekÄ• lokantarikÄ• hoti, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ sakaá¹-ac aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ Ä• hacca á¹-hitÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe okÄ• so viya ekeko lokantarikanirayo, aá¹-á¹-hayojanasahasso hoti. __asaá¹ƒvutÄ• _ti heá¹-á¹-hÄ• appatiá¹-á¹-hÄ• . __tamo cÄ• __tibbo_ti bahalo ghano. candimasÅ«riyÄ• lokÄ• bhÄ• vato niccandhakÄ• rova hoti. __vihat yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• sattesu kÄ• ruÃ±Ã±ataá¹ƒ paá¹-icca pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyakaraá¹‡atthaá¹ tamo tibbo lokantarikÄ• su á¹-hito, vihato viddhasto ahosÄ«ti attho.

__accheraka_nti accharÄ• paharaá¹‡ayoggaá¹ƒ, vimhayavasena aá¹…gulÄ«hi paharaá¹‡a __pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«ra_nti paá¹-ipakkhaharaá¹‡ato pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ. paá¹-iharati sattÄ• naá¹ƒ diá \Ee 30/ cittÄ• nÄ«ti vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ, appasannÄ• naá¹ƒ sattÄ• naá¹ƒ pasÄ• daá¹ƒ pa pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ. ``pÄ• á¹-iheraâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, soyevattho. ettha Ä• lokavidhÄ• n adhivacanaá¹ƒ. __disvÄ• na accherakaá¹ƒ_ \Be 45/ __pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«ra_nti ettha devÄ• ca ma nibbattasattÄ• pi ca taá¹ƒ bhagavato pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• paramappÄ«tisomanassaá vacanaá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• attho daá¹-á¹-habbo, itarathÄ• na pubbena vÄ• paraá¹ƒ, na parena idÄ• ni \Ne 39/ na kevalaá¹ƒ manussalokesuyeva Ä• loko atthi, sabbattha tividhepi saá¹…khÄ• rasattokÄ• sasaá¹…khÄ• te loke Ä• lokoyevÄ• ti dassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``sadevagandhabbamanussarakkhase,

Ä• bhÄ• uá¸·Ä• rÄ• vipulÄ• ajÄ• yatha.

imasmiá¹ƒ loke parasmiÃ±cobhayasmiá¹ƒ, adho ca uddhaá¹ƒ tiriyaÃ±ca vitthataâ€™â€™ nti || --- ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• vuttÄ• .

tattha __devÄ• _ti sammutidevÄ• upapattidevÄ• visuddhidevÄ• ti sabbepi devÄ• idha saá gandhabbÄ• ca manussÄ• ca rakkhasÄ• ca devagandhabbamanussarakkhasÄ• . saha de __sadevagandhabbamanussarakkhaso_. ko pana so? loko, tasmiá¹ƒ sadevagandhabbama Ä• loko. __uá¸·Ä• rÄ• _ti etthÄ• yaá¹ƒ uá¸·Ä• ra-saddo madhuraseá¹-á¹-havipulÄ• dÄ«su di ``uá¸·Ä• rÄ• ni khÄ• danÄ«yabhojanÄ«yÄ• ni khÄ• danti bhuÃ±jantÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su ``uá¸·Ä• rÄ• ya kho pana bhavaá¹ƒ vacchÄ• yano pasaá¹ƒsÄ• ya samaá¹‡aá¹ƒ gotamaá¹ƒ (MN I 288) seá¹-á¹-he. ``atikkamma devÄ• naá¹ƒ devÄ• nubhÄ• vaá¹ƒ appamÄ• á¹‡o uá¸·Ä (DN II 32; MN III 201) vipule. svÄ• yaá¹ƒ idha seá¹-á¹-he daá¹-á¹-habbo (Sv III 142; Vv-a 1). appamÄ• á¹‡Ä• . __ajÄ• yathÄ• _ti uppajji udapÄ• di pavattittha. __imasmiá¹ƒ loke parasmi manussaloke ca parasmiá¹ƒ devaloke cÄ• ti attho. __ubhayasmi_nti tadubhayasmiá¹ƒ, ajjha daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. __adho cÄ• _ti avÄ«ciÄ• dÄ«su nirayesu. __uddha_nti bhavaggatopi udd __tiriyaÃ±cÄ• _ti tiriyatopi dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu. __vitthata_nti visaá¹-aá¹ƒ. andh vidhamitvÄ• vuttappakÄ• raá¹ƒ lokaÃ±ca \Ee 31/ padesaÃ±ca ajjhottharitvÄ• Ä• bhÄ• \Be atha vÄ• __tiriyaÃ±ca vitthata_nti tiriyato vitthataá¹ƒ mahantaá¹ƒ, appamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ padesa aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«ti attho.

atha bhagavÄ• dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·esu Ä• lokapharaá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pA samÄ• pajjitvÄ• tato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya Ä• vajjitvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacittena Ä• kÄ• samabbhu Ã±Ä• tÄ«naá¹ƒ sÄ«sesu pÄ• dapaá¹ƒsuá¹ƒ okiramÄ• no viya mahatiyÄ• devamanussapari yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ dasseti. taá¹ƒ pana pÄ• á¸·ito evaá¹ƒ veditabbaá¹ƒ (Paá¹-is I 11

``katamaá¹ƒ \Ne 40/ tathÄ• gatassa yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ«re Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ? idha tathÄ• gato y asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ sÄ• vakehi uparimakÄ• yato aggikkhandho pavattati, heá¹-á¹-himakÄ• heá¹-á¹-himakÄ• yato aggikkhandho pavattati, uparimakÄ• yato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati ... aggikkhandho pavattati, pacchimakÄ• yato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati. pacchimakÄ• yato agg puratthimakÄ• yato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati ... pe ... dakkhiá¹‡aakkhito aggikkhandho pava udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati. vÄ• maakkhito aggikkhandho pavattati, dakkhiá¹‡aakkhito udakad
... dakkhiá¹‡akaá¹‡á¹‡asotato aggikkhandho pavattati, vÄ• makaá¹‡á¹‡asotato udakadhÄ• vÄ• makaá¹‡á¹‡asotato aggikkhandho pavattati, dakkhiá¹‡akaá¹‡á¹‡asotato udakadhÄ• rÄ• dakkhiá¹‡anÄ• sikÄ• sotato aggikkhandho pavattati, vÄ• manÄ• sikÄ• sotato udakadhÄ• rÄ vÄ• manÄ• sikÄ• sotato aggikkhandho pavattati, dakkhiá¹‡anÄ• sikÄ• sotato udakadhÄ• rÄ dakkhiá¹‡aaá¹ƒsakÅ«á¹-ato aggikkhandho pavattati, vÄ• maaá¹ƒsakÅ«á¹-ato udakadhÄ• rÄ vÄ• maaá¹ƒsakÅ«á¹-ato aggikkhandho pavattati, dakkhiá¹‡aaá¹ƒsakÅ«á¹-ato udakadhÄ• rÄ dakkhiá¹‡ahatthato aggikkhandho pavattati, vÄ• mahatthato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati. vÄ• pavattati, dakkhiá¹‡ahatthato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati ... pe ... dakkhiá¹‡apassato aggikkha vÄ• mapassato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati. vÄ• mapassato \Be 47/ aggikkhandho pavattati, d udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati ... pe ... dakkhiá¹‡apÄ• dato aggikkhandho pavattati, vÄ• mapÄ• d pavattati. vÄ• mapÄ• dato aggikkhandho pavattati, dakkhiá¹‡apÄ• dato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pav aá¹…gulaá¹…gulehi aggikkhandho pavattati, aá¹…gulantarikÄ• hi udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati.

aggikkhandho pavattati, aá¹…gulaá¹…gulehi udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati ... pe ... ekekalomato pavattati, ekekalomato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati. lomakÅ«pato lomakÅ«pato aggikkhandho lomakÅ«pato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattati --- channaá¹ƒ vaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ nÄ«lÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ«ta odÄ• tÄ• naá¹ƒ maÃ±jiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ pabhassarÄ• naá¹ƒ.

``bhagavÄ• caá¹…kamati, nimmito tiá¹-á¹-hati vÄ• nisÄ«dati vÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ vÄ• kappeti. bh nimmito caá¹…kamati vÄ• nisÄ«dati vÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ vÄ• kappeti. bhagavÄ• nisÄ«dati, nimm tiá¹-á¹-hati vÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ vÄ• kappeti. bhagavÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ kappeti, nimmito caá¹…kamati v nisÄ«dati vÄ• . nimmito caá¹…kamati, bhagavÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hati vÄ• nisÄ«dati vÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ v tiá¹-á¹-hati, bhagavÄ• caá¹…kamati vÄ• nisÄ«dati vÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ vÄ• kappeti. nimmito nis caá¹…kamati vÄ• \Ne 41/ tiá¹-á¹-hati vÄ• seyyaá¹ƒ vÄ• kappeti. nimmito seyyaá¹ƒ kappeti vÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hati vÄ• nisÄ«dati vÄ• , idaá¹ƒ tathÄ• gatassa yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ«re Ã±Ä• á¹‡a tassa pana bhagavato tejokasiá¹‡asamÄ• pattivasena uparimakÄ• yato aggikkhandho pava Ä• pokasiá¹‡asamÄ• pattivasena heá¹-á¹-himakÄ• yato udakadhÄ• rÄ• pavattatÄ«ti puna u pavattaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nato aggikkhandho pavattati, aggikkhandhassa pavattaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nato udak dassetuá¹ƒ, ``heá¹-á¹-himakÄ• yato aggikkhandho pavattati, uparimakÄ• yato udakadhÄ• rÄ vuttanti veditabbÄ• . eseva nayo sesapadesupi. aggikkhandho panettha udakadhÄ• rÄ• ya a udakadhÄ• rÄ• aggikkhandhena. rasmÄ«su pana dutiyÄ• dutiyÄ• rasmi purimÄ• ya purim pavattati. dvinnaÃ±ca cittÄ• naá¹ƒ ekakkhaá¹‡e pavatti nÄ• ma \Be 48/ natthi, buddhÄ• naá bhavaá¹…gaparivÄ• sassa lahukatÄ• ya paÃ±cahÄ• kÄ• rehi ciá¹‡á¹‡avasitÄ• ya etÄ• rasm pavattanti, tassÄ• pana rasmiyÄ• Ä• vajjanaparikammÄ• dhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ni visuá¹ƒyeva. bhagavÄ• \Ee 32/ nÄ«lakasiá¹‡aá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjati. pÄ«tarasmiÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ atthÄ• ya pÄ«t samÄ• pajjati.

evaá¹ƒ bhagavato yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ«re kayiramÄ• ne sakalassÄ• pi dasasahassacakkavÄ alaá¹…kÄ• rakaraá¹‡akÄ• lo viya ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``sattuttamo anadhivaro vinÄ• yako, satthÄ• ahÅ« devamanussapÅ«jito.

mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo satapuÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡o, dassesi accherakaá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raâ€™â€™ r tattha __sattuttamo_ti attano sÄ«lÄ• dÄ«hi guá¹‡ehi sabbesu sattesu uttamo pavaro seá¹-á sattÄ• naá¹ƒ vÄ• uttamo sattuttamo. __satta_nti hi Ã±Ä• á¹‡assa nÄ• maá¹ƒ, tena dasabalacatuvesÄ• rajjachaasÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡asaá¹…khÄ• tena sattena seá¹-á¹-ho samÄ• nÄ• dhikaraá¹‡avasena satto uttamoti vÄ• sattuttamo. yadi evaá¹ƒ ``uttamasattoâ€™ uttama-saddassa pubbanipÄ• tapÄ• á¹-hato. na panesa bhedo aniyamato bahulavacanato o naruttamapurisuttamanaravarÄ• di-saddÄ• viya daá¹-á¹-habbo. atha vÄ• sattaá¹ƒ uttamaá idhÄ• pi ca uttama-saddassa pubbanipÄ• to bhavati. uttamasattoti visesanassa pubbanipÄ• paddhagÅ«â€™â€™ ti ettha viyÄ• ti nÄ• yaá¹ƒ doso. ubhayavisesanato vÄ• Ä• hitaggiÄ• c __vinÄ• yako_ti bahÅ«hi vinayanÅ«pÄ• yehi satte vineti dametÄ«ti vinÄ• yako. __satthÄ• _t diá¹-á¹-hadhammikasamparÄ• yikatthehi yathÄ• rahaá¹ƒ satte anusÄ• satÄ«ti satthÄ• . __al __devamanussapÅ«jito_ti dibbehi paÃ±cakÄ• maguá¹‡ehi dibbanti kÄ«á¸·antÄ«ti devÄ• . m manussÄ• , devÄ• ca manussÄ• ca devamanussÄ• , devamanussehi \Be 49/ pÅ«jito deva pupphÄ• dipÅ«jÄ• ya ca paccayapÅ«jÄ• ya ca pÅ«jito, apacitoti attho. kasmÄ• pana devam kataá¹ƒ, nanu bhagavÄ• tiracchÄ• nagatehipi Ä• ravÄ• á¸·akÄ• á¸·Ä• palÄ• ladhanapÄ• lap sÄ• tÄ• girÄ• á¸·avakahemavatasÅ«cilomakharalomayakkhÄ• dÄ«hi vinipÄ• tagatehipi pÅ«j ukkaá¹-á¹-hapariccheda vasena sabbapuggalapariccheda vasena cetaá¹ƒ vuttanti veditabbaá mahatÄ• buddhÄ• nubhÄ• vena samannÄ• gato. __satapuÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡o_ti anantesu c ekekaá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±akammaá¹ƒ satakkhattuá¹ƒ kareyyuá¹ƒ ettakehi janehi katakammaá¹ƒ boc sataguá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• nibbatto. tasmÄ• ``satapuÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡oâ€™â€™ ti vuccati. keci puÃ±Ã±akammena nibbattaekekalakkhaá¹‡oâ€™â€™ ti vadanti. ``evaá¹ƒ sante yo koci buc taá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• su paá¹-ikkhittaá¹ƒ. __dassesÄ«_ti \Ee 33/ sabbesaá¹ƒ devamanussÄ yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ dassesi.

atha satthÄ• Ä• kÄ• se pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ katvÄ• mahÄ• janassa cittÄ• cÄ• raá¹ƒ oloketv ajjhÄ• sayÄ• nukÅ«laá¹ƒ dhammakathaá¹ƒ caá¹…kamanto kathetukÄ• mo Ä• kÄ• se dasas sabbaratanamayaá¹ƒ ratanacaá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• pesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``so yÄ• cito devavarena cakkhumÄ• , atthaá¹ƒ samekkhitvÄ• tadÄ• naruttam caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payi lokanÄ• yako, suniá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ sabbaratananimmitaâ€™â€™ nti tattha __so_ti so satthÄ• . __yÄ• cito_ti paá¹-hamameva aá¹-á¹-hame sattÄ• he dhammade __devavarenÄ• _ti sahampatibrahmunÄ• . __cakkhumÄ• _ti ettha cakkhatÄ«ti cakkhu, sam attho. taá¹ƒ pana cakkhu duvidhaá¹ƒ --- Ã±Ä• á¹‡acakkhu, maá¹ƒsacakkhÅ«ti. tattha Ã±Ä• a --- buddhacakkhu, dhammacakkhu, samantacakkhu, dibbacakkhu, paÃ±Ã±Ä• cakkhÅ«ti. tes Ä• sayÄ• nusayaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aÃ±ceva indriyaparopariyattaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aÃ±ca, yaá¹ƒ ``buddhacak ti (DN II 69; MN I 283; II 339; SN a I 172; Vin I 9) Ä• gataá¹ƒ. __dhammacakkhu_ nÄ• ma he tayo maggÄ• tÄ«á¹‡i ca phalÄ• ni, yaá¹ƒ ``virajaá¹ƒ vÄ«tamalaá¹ƒ dhammacakkhuá¹ƒ udap SN c V 1081; Vin I 16; Paá¹-is II 30) Ä• gataá¹ƒ. __samantacakkhu_ nÄ• ma sabbaÃ±Ã±uta yaá¹ƒ ``tathÅ«pamaá¹ƒ dhammamayaá¹ƒ, sumedha, pÄ• sÄ• damÄ• ruyha samantacakkhÅ 338; SN a I 172; Vin I 8) Ä• gataá¹ƒ. __dibbacakkhu_ nÄ• ma Ä• lokavaá¸• á¸• hanena uppa sampayuttaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, yaá¹ƒ ``dibbena cakkhunÄ• visuddhenÄ• â€™â€™ ti (MN I 148, 82, 261; Vin I 10) Ä• gataá¹ƒ. __paÃ±Ã±Ä• cakkhu_ nÄ• ma ``cakkhuá¹ƒ udapÄ• di, Ã±Ä• á c V 1082; Vin I 15; Kv 405; Paá¹-is II 30) ettha pubbenivÄ• sÄ• diÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• c __maá¹ƒsacakkhu_ nÄ• ma ``cakkhuÃ±ca paá¹-icca rÅ«pe cÄ• â€™â€™ ti (MN I 204, 400 43; b IV 60; Kv 465, 467) ettha pasÄ• damaá¹ƒsacakkhu vuttaá¹ƒ (Sv I 213). taá¹ƒ pana duv sasambhÄ• racakkhu pasÄ• dacakkhÅ«ti. tesu yvÄ• yaá¹ƒ akkhikÅ«pake akkhipattakehi pa yattha catasso dhÄ• tuyo vaá¹‡á¹‡agandharasojÄ• sambhavo jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vo cakkhupa saá¹…khepato terasa sambhÄ• rÄ• honti. vitthÄ• rato pana sambhavamÄ• nÄ• ni catusam jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vo cakkhupasÄ• do kÄ• yapasÄ• doti ime kammasamuá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• cattÄ idaá¹ƒ __sasambhÄ• racakkhu_ nÄ• ma. yaá¹ƒ pana setamaá¹‡á¸• alaparicchinnena kaá¹‡ diá¹-á¹-hamaá¹‡á¸• ale sanniviá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ rÅ«padassanasamatthaá¹ƒ pasÄ• damattaá¹ƒ, id nÄ• ma. sabbÄ• ni panetÄ• ni ekavidhÄ• ni aniccato saá¹…khatato, duvidhÄ• ni sÄ• savÄ• tividhÄ• ni bhÅ«mito upÄ• diá¹‡á¹‡attikato, catubbidhÄ• ni ekantaparittaappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• niy paÃ±cavidhÄ• ni rÅ«panibbÄ• nÄ• rÅ«pasabbÄ• rammaá¹‡Ä• nÄ• rammaá¹‡avasena, chal buddhacakkhÄ• divasena. iccevametÄ• ni vuttappakÄ• rÄ• ni cakkhÅ«ni assa bhagavato sa __cakkhumÄ• _ti vuccati. __atthaá¹ƒ samekkhitvÄ• _ti caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• , dhamm devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ hitatthaá¹ƒ upaparikkhitvÄ• upadhÄ• retvÄ• ti adhippÄ• yo. __mÄ• p __lokanÄ• yako_ti saggamokkhÄ• bhimukhaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ nayatÄ«ti lokanÄ• yako. __suniá¹-á niá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ, pariyositanti attho. __sabbaratananimmita_nti dasavidharatanamayaá¹ƒ.

idÄ• ni \Be 51/ bhagavato tividhapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyasampattidassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<11> á¹• 21 ``iddhÄ« ca Ä• desanÄ• nusÄ• sanÄ«, tipÄ• á¹-ihÄ«re bhagavÄ• vasÄ« ahu.

caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payi lokanÄ• yako, suniá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ sabbaratananimmitaâ€™â€™ nti

tattha \Ne 44/ __iddhÄ«_ti iddhividhaá¹ƒ iddhipÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma. taá¹ƒ pana ekopi bahudhÄ• pi hutvÄ• eko hotÄ«tiÄ• dinayappavattaá¹ƒ (DN I 239; MN I 147; Paá¹-is III 10). _ cittÄ• cÄ• raá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• kathanaá¹ƒ Ä• desanÄ• pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ sÄ• vakÄ• naÃ satatadhammadesanÄ• . __anusÄ• sanÄ«_ti anusÄ• sanipÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ, tassa tassa a attho. iti etÄ• ni tÄ«á¹‡i pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni. tattha iddhipÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyena anusÄ• sanipÄ• á mahÄ• moggallÄ• nassa Ä• ciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, Ä• desanÄ• pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyena anusÄ• sanipÄ• á anusÄ• sanipÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ pana buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ satatadhammadesanÄ• . __tipÄ• á¹-ih pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyesÅ«ti attho. __bhagavÄ• _ti idaá¹ƒ guá¹‡avisiá¹-á¹-hasattuttamagarugÄ• rav vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ porÄ• á¹‡ehi --- ``bhagavÄ• ti vacanaá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, bhagavÄ• ti vacanamuttamaá¹ƒ.

garugÄ• ravayutto so, bhagavÄ• tena vuccatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Vism I 142; Ps I mÅ«lapariyÄ (to Vin III) I 1 veraÃ±jakaá¹‡á¸• avaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; It-a nidÄ• navaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Nidd I-a 50).

__vasÄ«_ti etasmiá¹ƒ tividhepi pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riye vasippatto, ciá¹‡á¹‡avasÄ«ti attho. __vasiy vasiyo --- Ä• vajjanasamÄ• pajjanaadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• navuá¹-á¹-hÄ• napaccavekkhaá¹‡asaá¹…k jhÄ• naá¹ƒ yathicchakaá¹ƒ yadicchakaá¹ƒ yÄ• vaticchakaá¹ƒ Ä• vajjati Ä• vajjanÄ• ya dandh sÄ«ghaá¹ƒ Ä• vajjetuá¹ƒ samatthatÄ• __Ä• vajjanavasÄ«_ nÄ• ma. tathÄ• yaá¹ƒ yaá¹ƒ jhÄ
... samÄ• pajjati samÄ• pajjanÄ• ya dandhÄ• yitattaá¹ƒ natthÄ«ti sÄ«ghaá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjana __samÄ• pajjanavasÄ«_ nÄ• ma. dÄ«ghaá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹ƒ á¹-hapetuá¹ƒ samatthatÄ• __adhiá lahuá¹ƒ vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• tuá¹ƒ samatthatÄ• __vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• navasÄ«_ nÄ• ma. __paccavekkhaá paccavekkhaá¹‡ajavanÄ• neva honti tÄ• ni Ä• vajjanÄ• nantarÄ• neva hutvÄ• uppajjantÄ«t vuttÄ• ni. iti imÄ• su paÃ±casu vasÄ«su ciá¹‡á¹‡avasitÄ• vasÄ« nÄ• ma hoti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• vasÄ« ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti.

idÄ• ni tassa ratanacaá¹…kamassa nimmitavidhÄ• nassa dassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<12> á¹• 21 ``dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• , sinerupabbatuttame.

thambheva dassesi paá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iyÄ• , caá¹…kame ratanÄ• mayeâ€™â€™ ti || --- Ä• digÄ•

tattha \Ne 45/ __dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• _ti dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu. __sine mahÄ• merusaá¹…khÄ• te seá¹-á¹-hapabbate. __thambhevÄ• _ti thambhe viya dasacakkav sinerupabbatÄ• , te paá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iyÄ• á¹-hite suvaá¹‡á¹‡athambhe viya katvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ upa mÄ• petvÄ• dassesÄ«ti attho. __ratanÄ• maye_ti ratanamaye.

<13> __dasasahassÄ« atikkammÄ• _ti ratanacaá¹…kamaá¹ƒ pana bhagavÄ• mÄ• pento t sabbapariyantaá¹ƒ pÄ• cÄ«nacakkavÄ• á¸·amukhavaá¹-á¹-iá¹ƒ ekaá¹ƒ koá¹-iá¹ƒ pacchimac atikkamitvÄ• á¹-hitaá¹ƒ katvÄ• mÄ• pesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- ``dasasahassÄ« atikkamma, caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payÄ« jino.

sabbasoá¹‡á¹‡amayÄ• passe, caá¹…kame ratanÄ• mayeâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __jino_ti kilesÄ• rijayanato jino. __sabbasoá¹‡á¹‡amayÄ• passe_ti tassa pana evaá¹ caá¹…kamassa \Ee 36/ ubhayapassesu suvaá¹‡á¹‡amayÄ• paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yÄ• mariyÄ maá¹‡imayÄ• ti adhippÄ• yo.

<14> __tulÄ• saá¹…ghÄ• á¹-Ä• _ti tulÄ• yugaá¸·Ä• , tÄ• nÄ• nÄ• ratanamayÄ• ti veditabb __sovaá¹‡á¹‡aphalakatthatÄ• _ti sovaá¹‡á¹‡amayehi phalakehi atthatÄ• , tulÄ• saá¹…ghÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡amayo padaracchadoti attho. __vedikÄ• sabbasovaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• _ti vedikÄ• pana s yÄ• panesÄ• caá¹…kamanaparikkhepavedikÄ• , sÄ• ekÄ• va aÃ±Ã±ehi ratanehi asammis nimmitÄ• _ti ubhosu passesu nimmitÄ• . __da_-kÄ• ro padasandhikaro.

<15> __maá¹‡imuttÄ• vÄ• lukÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• _ti \Be 53/ maá¹‡imuttÄ• mayavÄ• lukÄ• kiá¹‡ muttÄ• ca vÄ• lukÄ• ca maá¹‡imuttÄ• vÄ• lukÄ• . tÄ• hi maá¹‡imuttÄ• vÄ• lukÄ• hi Ä• kiá maá¹‡imuttÄ• vÄ• lukÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• . __nimmito_ti iminÄ• kÄ• rena nimmito kato. __ratanÄ• caá¹…kamoti attho. __obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• _ti sabbÄ• pi dasa disÄ• obhÄ• seti pakÄ• sahassaraá¹ƒsiÄ• dicco viya. __uggato_ti udito. yathÄ• pana abbhuggato sahassaraá¹ƒsi s obhÄ• seti, evameva esopi sabbaratanamayo caá¹…kamo obhÄ• setÄ«ti attho.

idÄ• ni \Ne 46/ pana niá¹-á¹-hite caá¹…kame tattha bhagavato pavattidassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<16> á¹• 21 ``tasmiá¹ƒ caá¹…kamane dhÄ«ro, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o.

virocamÄ• no sambuddho, caá¹…kame caá¹…kamÄ« jino ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``dibbaá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹ƒ.

caá¹…kamane okiranti, sabbe devÄ• samÄ• gatÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``passanti taá¹ƒ devasaá¹…ghÄ• , dasasahassÄ« pamoditÄ• .

namassamÄ• nÄ• nipatanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• â€™â€™ ti || --- gÄ• thÄ• yo tattha __dhÄ«ro_ti dhitiyutto. __dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o_ti suppatiá¹-á¹-hitapÄ• datalÄ• d dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡ehi samannÄ• gatoti attho. __dibba_nti devaloke bhavaá __pÄ• richattaka_nti devÄ• naá¹ƒ tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• naá¹ƒ koviá¸·Ä• rarukkhassa nissandena s yojanasataparimÄ• á¹‡o paramadassanÄ«yo pÄ• ricchattakarukkho nibbatti. yasmiá¹ƒ pupp devanagaraá¹ƒ ekasurabhigandhavÄ• sitaá¹ƒ hoti, tassa kusumareá¹‡uokiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni nava piÃ±jarÄ• ni hutvÄ• khÄ• yanti. imassa pana pÄ• ricchattakarukkhassa pupphaÃ±ca pÄ• ric __caá¹…kame okirantÄ«_ti tasmiá¹ƒ ratanacaá¹…kame avakiranti, tena vuttappakÄ• rena p caá¹…kamamÄ• naá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ pÅ«jentÄ«ti attho. __sabbe devÄ• _ti kÄ• mÄ• vacan ``passanti \Ee 37/ taá¹ƒ devasaá¹…ghÄ• â€™â€™ ti. taá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ ratanacaá¹…kan Ä• layesupi passantÄ«ti attho. __dasasahassÄ«_ti bhummatthe paccattavacanaá¹ƒ, dasasa taá¹ƒ passantÄ«ti attho. __pamoditÄ• _ti pamuditÄ• . __nipatantÄ«_ti \Be 54/ sannipatanti.

__tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• _ti pÄ«tivasena tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• . __pamoditÄ• _ti idÄ• ni vat tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• didevehi saddhinti sambandho daá¹-á¹-habbo, itarathÄ• punaruttidosato na n pamoditÄ• taá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ passanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• tahiá¹ƒ tahiá¹ idÄ• ni ye passiá¹ƒsu ye sannipatiá¹ƒsu, te sarÅ«pato dassetuá¹ƒ --- <19> á¹• 21 ``tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• ca yÄ• mÄ• ca, tusitÄ• cÄ• pi devatÄ• .

nimmÄ• naratino devÄ• , ye devÄ• vasavattino.

udaggacittÄ• sumanÄ• , passanti lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``sadevagandhabbamanussarakkhasÄ• \Ne 47/, nÄ• gÄ• supaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• atha

passanti taá¹ƒ lokahitÄ• nukampakaá¹ƒ, nabheva accuggatacandamaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``Ä• bhassarÄ• subhakiá¹‡hÄ• , vehapphalÄ• akaniá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca devatÄ• .

susuddhasukkavatthavasanÄ• , tiá¹-á¹-hanti paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``muÃ±canti pupphaá¹ƒ pana paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikaá¹ƒ, mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ candan bhamenti celÄ• ni ca ambare tadÄ• , aho jino lokahitÄ• nukampakoâ€™â€™ ti || --- imÄ• gÄ• thÄ• yo vuttÄ• .

tattha __udaggacittÄ• _ti pÄ«tisomanassavasena udaggacittÄ• . __sumanÄ• _ti udaggacitt __lokahitÄ• nukampaka_nti lokahitaÃ±ca lokÄ• nukampakaÃ±ca. lokahitena vÄ• anukampa __nabheva accuggatacandamaá¹‡á¸• ala_nti ettha Ä• kÄ• se abhinavoditaá¹ƒ paripuá¹‡á¹‡ sabbopaddavavinimuttaá¹ƒ saradasamaye candamaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ viya buddhasiriyÄ• viroca nayanÄ• nandakaraá¹ƒ passantÄ«ti attho.

__Ä• bhassarÄ• _ti ukkaá¹-á¹-haparicchedavasena vuttaá¹ƒ. parittÄ• bhaappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• bhaÄ• bhassarÄ• parittamajjhimapaá¹‡Ä«tabhedena dutiyajjhÄ gahitÄ• ti \Be 55/ veditabbÄ• . __subhakiá¹‡hÄ• _ti idaá¹ƒ ukkaá¹-á¹-haparicchedavaseneva parittasubhaappamÄ• á¹‡asubhasubhakiá¹‡hÄ• parittÄ• dibhedena tatiyajjhÄ• nena nibbatt veditabbÄ• . __vehapphalÄ• _ti vipulÄ• phalÄ• ti vehapphalÄ• . te catutthajjhÄ• nanibbattÄ ekatalavÄ• sino. heá¹-á¹-hÄ• pana paá¹-hamajjhÄ• nanibbattÄ• brahmakÄ• yikÄ• dayo das dassitÄ• . cakkhusotÄ• namabhÄ• vato asaÃ±Ã±asattÄ• ca arÅ«pino ca idha na uddiá¹-á¹-devatÄ• _ti idhÄ• pi ukkaá¹-á¹-haparicchedavaseneva vuttaá¹ƒ. tasmÄ• avihÄ• tappasudassÄ• sudassiakaniá¹-á¹-hasaá¹…khÄ• tÄ• paÃ±capi suddhÄ• vÄ• sÄ• ga __susuddhasukkavatthavasanÄ• _ti suá¹-á¹-hu suddhÄ• ni susuddhÄ• ni sukkÄ• ni odÄ• tÄ vatthÄ• ni nivatthÄ• ni ceva pÄ• rutÄ• ni ca yehi \Ee 38/ te susuddhasukkavatthavasanÄ• , paridahitaparisuddhapaá¹‡á¸• aravatthÄ• ti attho. ``susuddhasukkavasanÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pA __paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• _ti katapaÃ±jalikÄ• kamalamakulasadisaá¹ƒ aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ sirasi katvÄ• tiá¹ __muÃ±cantÄ«_ti \Ne 48/ okiranti. __pupphaá¹ƒ panÄ• _ti kusumaá¹ƒ pana. ``pupphÄ• ni v vacanavipariyÄ• so daá¹-á¹-habbo, attho panassa soyeva. __paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ika_nti paÃ±c nÄ«lapÄ«talohitodÄ• tamaÃ±jiá¹-á¹-hakavaá¹‡á¹‡avasena paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ. __candana candanacuá¹‡á¹‡ena missitaá¹ƒ. __bhamenti celÄ• nÄ«_ti bhamayanti vatthÄ• ni. __aho jin ``aho jino lokahito aho ca lokahitÄ• nukampako aho kÄ• ruá¹‡ikoâ€™â€™ ti evamÄ• dÄ«ni muÃ±canti pupphaá¹ƒ bhamayanti celÄ• nÄ«ti sambandho.

idÄ• ni tehi payuttÄ• ni thutivacanÄ• ni dassetuá¹ƒ imÄ• gÄ• thÄ• yo vuttÄ• ---

<23> á¹• 21 ``tuvaá¹ƒ satthÄ• ca ketÅ« ca, dhajo yÅ«po ca pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

parÄ• yano patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca, dÄ«po ca dvipaduttamo ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• , devatÄ• yo mahiddhikÄ• .

parivÄ• retvÄ• namassanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``devatÄ• devakaÃ±Ã±Ä• ca, pasannÄ• tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• .

paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikapupphehi, pÅ«jayanti narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``passanti taá¹ƒ devasaá¹…ghÄ• , pasannÄ• tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• .

paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikapupphehi, pÅ«jayanti narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``aho \Be 56/ acchariyaá¹ƒ loke, abbhutaá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

na medisaá¹ƒ bhÅ«tapubbaá¹ƒ, accheraá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``sakasakamhi bhavane, nisÄ«ditvÄ• na devatÄ• .

hasanti tÄ• mahÄ• hasitaá¹ƒ, disvÄ• naccherakaá¹ƒ nabhe ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca bhÅ«maá¹-á¹-hÄ• , tiá¹‡apanthanivÄ• sino.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``yepi dÄ«ghÄ• yukÄ• nÄ• gÄ• , puÃ±Ã±avanto mahiddhiko.

pamoditÄ• namassanti, pÅ«jayanti naruttamaá¹ƒ ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``saá¹…gÄ«tiyo \Ne 49/ pavattenti, ambare anilaÃ±jase.

cammanaddhÄ• ni vÄ• denti, disvÄ• naccherakaá¹ƒ nabhe ||

<32> á¹• 21 ``saá¹…khÄ• ca paá¹‡avÄ• ceva, athopi á¸• iá¹‡á¸• imÄ• bahÅ«.

antalikkhasmiá¹ƒ vajjanti, disvÄ• naccherakaá¹ƒ nabhe ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``abbhuto vata no ajja, uppajji lomahaá¹ƒsano.

dhuvamatthasiddhiá¹ƒ labhÄ• ma, khaá¹‡o no paá¹-ipÄ• dito ||

<34> á¹• 21 ``buddhoti tesaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na, pÄ«ti uppajji tÄ• vade.

buddho buddhoti kathayantÄ• , tiá¹-á¹-hanti paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• ||

<35> á¹• 21 ``hiá¹…kÄ• rÄ• sÄ• dhukÄ• rÄ• ca, ukkuá¹-á¹-hi sampahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

pajÄ• ca vividhÄ• gagane, vattanti paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• ||

<36> á¹• 21 ``gÄ• yanti seá¸·enti ca vÄ• dayanti ca, bhujÄ• ni pothenti ca naccayanti ca.

muÃ±canti pupphaá¹ƒ pana paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikaá¹ƒ, mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ candanacuá¹‡á¹‡amis

<37> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• tuyhaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, pÄ• desu cakkalakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

dhajavajirapaá¹-Ä• kÄ• , vaá¸• á¸• hamÄ• naá¹…kusÄ• citaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha idhalokaparalokahitatthaá¹ƒ sÄ• satÄ«ti __satthÄ• . ketÅ«_ti ketuno apacitikÄ• tabba viyÄ• ti ketu. __dhajo_ti indadhajo samussayaá¹-á¹-hena dassanÄ«yaá¹-á¹-hena ca tuvaá¹ƒ atha \Be 57/ vÄ• yathÄ• hi loke yassa kassaci dhajaá¹ƒ disvÄ• va --- ``ayaá¹ƒ dhajo itthan dhajavÄ• dhajÄ«ti paÃ±Ã±Ä• yati, evameva bhagavÄ• paÃ±Ã±Ä• nibbÄ• nÄ• dhigamÄ• y nibbÄ• nÄ• dhigamo paÃ±Ã±Ä• yati. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- __ ``dhajo yÅ«po cÄ• â€™â€™ _ti. __

vuttÄ• naá¹ƒ dÄ• nÄ• diÄ• savakkhayaÃ±Ä• á¹‡apariyosÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ sabbayÄ• gÄ• naá¹ƒ tuvanti attho. __parÄ• yano_ti paá¹-isaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ. __patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• _ti yathÄ• mahÄ• pathav Ä• dhÄ• rabhÄ• vena patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nissayabhÅ«tÄ• , evaá¹ƒ tuvampi patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• bhÅ«tÄ yathÄ• caturaá¹…ge tamasi vattamÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ sattÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• ropito padÄ«po rÅ«pasan avijjandhakÄ• re vattamÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ sattÄ• naá¹ƒ paramatthasandassano padÄ«po tuvanti bhinnanÄ• vÄ• naá¹ƒ sattÄ• naá¹ƒ samuddadÄ«po \Ne 50/ yathÄ• patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• \Ee 39/ h saá¹ƒsÄ• rasÄ• gare alabbhaneyyapatiá¹-á¹-he osÄ«dantÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹‡Ä«naá¹ƒ dÄ«po __dvipaduttamo_ti dvipadÄ• naá¹ƒ uttamo dvipaduttamo, ettha pana niddhÄ• raá¹‡alakkha chaá¹-á¹-hÄ«samÄ• sassa paá¹-isedho natthi, niddhÄ• raá¹‡alakkhaá¹‡Ä• ya chaá¹-á¹-hiyÄ sammÄ• sambuddho pana apadÄ• naá¹ƒ dvipadÄ• naá¹ƒ catuppadÄ• naá¹ƒ bahuppadÄ• n saÃ±Ã±Ä«naá¹ƒ asaÃ±Ã±Ä«naá¹ƒ nevasaÃ±Ã±Ä«nÄ• saÃ±Ã±Ä«naá¹ƒ uttamova. kasmÄ• vuttoti ce? seá¹-á¹-hataravasena. imasmiÃ±hi loke seá¹-á¹-ho nÄ• ma uppajjamÄ• no apada nuppajjati. ayaá¹ƒ dvipadesuyeva uppajjati. kataradvipadesÅ«ti? manussesu ceva devesu c uppajjamÄ• no tisahassimahÄ• sahassilokadhÄ• tu vase kattuá¹ƒ samattho buddho hutvÄ• uppajjamÄ• no dasasahassilokadhÄ• tu vasavattÄ« mahÄ• brahmÄ• hutvÄ• nibbattati. so Ä• rÄ• miko vÄ• sampajjati. iti tatopi seá¹-á¹-hataravasena ``dvipaduttamoâ€™â€™ ti vutto __dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuyÄ• _ti dasasahassisaá¹…khÄ• tÄ• ya lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• . __mahi yuttÄ• , mahÄ• nubhÄ• vÄ• ti attho. __parivÄ• retvÄ• _ti bhagavantaá¹ƒ samantato parikkhi saÃ±jÄ• tasaddhÄ• . __narÄ• sabha_nti narapuá¹…gavaá¹ƒ. __aho acchariya_nti ettha and niccaá¹ƒ na hotÄ«ti acchariyaá¹ƒ, accharÄ• yogganti vÄ• acchariyaá¹ƒ, ``aho, idaá¹ƒ vimha accharaá¹ƒ pahariuá¹ƒ yuttanti attho. __abbhuta_nti \Be 58/ abhÅ«tapubbaá¹ƒ abhÅ«tanti a ubhayampetaá¹ƒ vimhayÄ• vahassÄ• dhivacanaá¹ƒ. __lomahaá¹ƒsana_nti lomÄ• naá¹ƒ ud medisaá¹ƒ bhÅ«tapubba_nti na mayÄ• Ä«disaá¹ƒ bhÅ«tapubbaá¹ƒ, abbhutaá¹ƒ diá¹-á¹-har vacanaá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• gahetabbaá¹ƒ. __acchera_nti acchariyaá¹ƒ.

__sakasakamhi bhavane_ti attano attano bhavane. __nisÄ«ditvÄ• nÄ• _ti upavissa. __deva vacanaá¹ƒ devÄ• nampi devadhÄ«tÄ• nampi sÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡avacananti veditabbaá¹ƒ. __ha mahÄ• hasitaá¹ƒ hasanti, pÄ«tivasaá¹ƒ gatahadayatÄ• ya mihitamattaá¹ƒ akatvÄ• aá¹-á¹-a __nabhe_ti Ä• kÄ• se.

__Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• _ti Ä• kÄ• se vimÄ• nÄ• dÄ«su á¹-hitÄ• , eseva nayo bhÅ«maá¹-á¹-h __tiá¹‡apanthanivÄ• sino_ti \Ee 40/ tiá¹‡aggesu ceva panthesu ca nivÄ• sino. __puÃ±Ã±ava __mahiddhikÄ• _ti mahÄ• nubhÄ• vÄ• . __saá¹…gÄ«tiyo pavattentÄ«_ti devanÄ• á¹-akasaá tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ pÅ«janatthÄ• ya payujjantÄ«ti attho. __ambare_ti Ä• kÄ• se. __anilaÃ±jase_ anekatthattÄ• \Ne 51/ ``anilaÃ±jaseâ€™â€™ ti vuttaá¹ƒ, purimasseva vevacanaá¹ƒ. __cam cammavinaddhÄ• ni. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho, devadundubhiyoti attho. __vÄ• dentÄ«_ti vÄ __saá¹…khÄ• _ti dhamanasaá¹…khÄ• . __paá¹‡avÄ• _ti tanumajjhaturiyavisesÄ• . __á¸• iá tiá¹‡avÄ• khuddakabheriyo vuccanti. __vajjantÄ«_ti vÄ• dayanti. __abbhuto vata no_ti acch __uppajjÄ«_ti uppanno. __lomahaá¹ƒsano_ti lomahaá¹ƒsanakaro. __dhuva_nti yasmÄ• pa loke uppanno, tasmÄ• dhuvaá¹ƒ avassaá¹ƒ atthasiddhiá¹ƒ labhÄ• mÄ• ti adhippÄ• yo. __la __khaá¹‡o_ti aá¹-á¹-hakkhaá¹‡avirahito navamo khaá¹‡oti attho. __no_ti amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ. __p paá¹-iladdho.

__buddhoti tesaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• nÄ• _ti buddhoti idaá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ devÄ• naá¹ƒ udapÄ• dÄ«ti attho. __tÄ• vade_ti tasmiá¹ƒ kÄ• le. __hiá¹…kÄ• rÄ• _ti hiá¹…kÄ• rasaddÄ• pahaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• le karonti. __sÄ• dhukÄ• rÄ• _ti sÄ• dhukÄ• rasaddÄ• ca pavattanti. __uk ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddo ca unnÄ• dasaddo cÄ• ti attho. __pajÄ• _ti devÄ• dayo adhippetÄ• . keci gagane vattantÄ«â€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti. __gÄ• yantÄ«_ti buddhaguá¹‡apaá¹-isaá¹ƒyuttaá¹ƒ __seá¸·entÄ«_ti \Be 59/ mukhena seá¸·itasaddaá¹ƒ karonti. __vÄ• dayantÄ«_ti \Ee 41/ mah vipaÃ±cikÄ• makaramukhÄ• dayo vÄ«á¹‡Ä• ca turiyÄ• ni ca tathÄ• gatassa pÅ«janatthÄ• y __bhujÄ• ni pothentÄ«_ti bhuje apphoá¹-enti. liá¹…gavipariyÄ• so daá¹-á¹-habbo. __naccan naccÄ• penti sayaÃ±ca naccanti.

__yathÄ• tuyhaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, pÄ• desu cakkalakkhaá¹‡a_nti ettha yena pakÄ• rena __ yogato __mahÄ• vÄ«ro. pÄ• desu cakkalakkhaá¹‡a_nti tava ubhosu pÄ• datalesu sahassÄ• sanÄ• bhikaá¹ƒ sabbÄ• kÄ• raparipÅ«raá¹ƒ cakkalakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ sobhatÄ«ti attho. __cakka_ sampattirathaá¹…gairiyÄ• pathadÄ• naratanadhammakhuracakkalakkhaá¹‡Ä• dÄ«su dissat cakkÄ• ni yehi samannÄ• gatÄ• naá¹ƒ devamanussÄ• naâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (AN a IV 31 ``cakkaá¹ƒva vahato padaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (Dhp 1) rathaá¹…ge. ``catucakkaá¹ƒ navac
I 29) iriyÄ• pathe. ``dadaá¹ƒ bhuÃ±ja ca mÄ• ca pamÄ• do, cakkaá¹ƒ vattaya sabbapÄ• á¹‡ ettha dÄ• ne. ``dibbaá¹ƒ cakkaratanaá¹ƒ pÄ• tubhÅ«taâ€™â€™ nti (DN II 243; III 85; MN III ratanacakke. ``mayÄ• pavattitaá¹ƒ cakkaâ€™â€™ nti (Sn 562; Bv 28.17) ettha pana dhamm \Ne 52/ posassa, cakkaá¹ƒ bhamati matthakeâ€™â€™ ti (J I 1.104; I 5.103) ettha khuracakk attho. ``pÄ• datalesu cakkÄ• ni jÄ• tÄ• nÄ«â€™â€™ ti (DN II 35; III 200, 204; MN II 386) ett lakkhaá¹‡acakke daá¹-á¹-habbo (Ps I 148; Mp I 1.187; II 4.8; Paá¹-is-a II 2.44). __dhajavajir vaá¸• á¸• hamÄ• naá¹…kusÄ• cita_nti dhajena ca vajirena ca paá¹-Ä• kÄ• ya ca vaá¸• á¸• h Ä• citaá¹ƒ alaá¹…kataá¹ƒ parivÄ• ritaá¹ƒ pÄ• desu cakkalakkhaá¹‡anti attho. cakkalakkhaá¹ sesalakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni gahitÄ• neva honti. tathÄ• asÄ«ti anubyaÃ±janÄ• ni byÄ• mappabhÄ• dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡Ä• sÄ«tianubyaÃ±janabyÄ• mappabhÄ• hi samalaá¹…ka sabbaphÄ• liphullo viya pÄ• ricchattako vikasitapadumaá¹ƒ viya kamalavanaá¹ƒ vividharata navakanakatoraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tÄ• rÄ• marÄ«civirÄ• jitamiva gaganatalaá¹ƒ ito cito ca vidhÄ• vam chabbaá¹‡á¹‡abuddharasmiyo muÃ±camÄ• no ativiya sobhati.

idÄ• ni \Be 60/ bhagavato rÅ«pakÄ• yadhammakÄ• yasampattidassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<38> á¹• 21 ``rÅ«pe sÄ«le samÄ• dhimhi, paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya ca asÄ• diso.

vimuttiyÄ• asamasamo, dhammacakkappavattaneâ€™â€™ ti || --- ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• vuttÄ• tattha __rÅ«pe_ti ayaá¹ƒ __rÅ«pa_-saddo khandhabhavanimittapaccayasarÄ«ravaá¹‡á¹‡a dissati. yathÄ• ha --- ``yaá¹ƒ kiÃ±ci rÅ«paá¹ƒ atÄ«tÄ• nÄ• gatapaccuppannaâ€™â€™ nti (M 2; Vin I 22) ettha rÅ«pakkhandhe dissati. ``rÅ«pÅ«papattiyÄ• maggaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetÄ«â€™â€ 624) ettha rÅ«pabhave. ``ajjhattaá¹ƒ arÅ«pasaÃ±Ã±Ä« bahiddhÄ• rÅ«pÄ• ni passatÄ«â€™ 249; AN a I 435-442; Dhs 204-205) ettha kasiá¹‡animitte. ``sarÅ«pÄ• , bhikkhave, uppajjant dhammÄ• no arÅ«pÄ• â€™â€™ ti (AN a II 83) ettha paccaye. ``Ä• kÄ• so parivÄ• rito rÅ«p gacchatÄ«â€™â€™ ti (MN I 306) ettha sarÄ«re. ``cakkhuÃ±ca paá¹-icca rÅ«pe ca uppajjati cakkhuviÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti (MN I 204, 400; III 421, 425-426; SN b IV 60; Kv 465) ett ``rÅ«pappamÄ• á¹‡o rÅ«pappasannoâ€™â€™ ti (AN a IV 65) ettha saá¹‡á¹-hÄ• ne. idhÄ• p (Mp I 1.1 rÅ«pÄ• divaggavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•). __sÄ«le_ti catubbidhe sÄ«le. __samÄ• dhimhÄ«_ __paÃ±Ã±Ä• yÄ• _ti lokiyalokuttarÄ• ya paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya. __asÄ• diso_ti asadiso anupamo. __

\Ne 53/. __asamasamo_ti asamÄ• atÄ«tÄ• buddhÄ• tehi asamehi buddhehi sÄ«lÄ• dÄ«hi bhagavato rÅ«pakÄ• yasampatti dassitÄ• .

idÄ• ni bhagavato kÄ• yabalÄ• diá¹ƒ dassetuá¹ƒ ---

<39> á¹• 21 ``dasanÄ• gabalaá¹ƒ kÄ• ye, tuyhaá¹ƒ pÄ• katikaá¹ƒ balaá¹ƒ.

iddhibalena asamo, dhammacakkappavattaneâ€™â€™ ti || --- vuttaá¹ƒ.

tattha __dasanÄ• gabala_nti dasachaddantanÄ• gabalaá¹ƒ. duvidhaÃ±hi tathÄ• gatassa ba Ã±Ä• á¹‡abalaÃ±cÄ• ti. tattha kÄ• yabalaá¹ƒ hatthikulÄ• nusÄ• rena veditabbaá¹ƒ. kathaá¹ƒ ``kÄ• á¸·Ä• vakaÃ±ca \Be 61/ gaá¹…geyyaá¹ƒ, paá¹‡á¸• araá¹ƒ tambapiá¹…galaá¹ƒ.

gandhamaá¹…galahemaÃ±ca, uposathachaddantime dasÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Ps I 148; Spk II 198; Vibh-a 760; Ud-a 75; Nidd II-a 81; Paá¹-is-a II 2.44) --- imÄ• ni dasa hatthikulÄ• ni veditabbÄ• ni. kÄ• á¸·Ä• vakoti pakatihatthikulaá¹ƒ. yaá¹ƒ dasan kÄ• yabalaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ ekassa kÄ• á¸·Ä• vakassa hatthino balaá¹ƒ. yaá¹ƒ dasannaá¹ƒ kÄ• á¸· taá¹ƒ ekassa gaá¹…geyyassÄ• ti eteneva upÄ• yena yÄ• va chaddantabalaá¹ƒ netabbanti.

chaddantÄ• naá¹ƒ balaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ ekassa __tathÄ• gatassa balaá¹ƒ, _ nÄ• rÄ• yanabalaá¹ƒ vuccati. tadetaá¹ƒ pakatihatthigaá¹‡anÄ• ya hatthikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ balaá¹ƒ, purisagaá 43/ purisakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ balaá¹ƒ hoti. idaá¹ƒ tÄ• va tathÄ• gatassa pakatikÄ• yabala pana appameyyaá¹ƒ dasabalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ catuvesÄ• rajjaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hasu paris catuyoniparicchedakaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ paÃ±cagatiparicchedakaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ cuddasa buddha Ã±Ä• á¹‡abalaá¹ƒ. idha pana kÄ• yabalaá¹ƒ adhippetaá¹ƒ. __kÄ• ye, tuyhaá¹ƒ pÄ• katikaá¹ kÄ• ye pÄ• katikabalanti attho. tasmÄ• ``dasanÄ• gabalaâ€™â€™ nti dasachaddantanÄ• g idÄ• ni Ã±Ä• á¹‡abalaá¹ƒ dassento __ ``iddhibalena asamo, dhammacakkappavattaneâ€™ __iddhibalena asamo_ti vikubbanÄ• dhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• dinÄ• iddhibalena \Ne 54/ asamo asa __dhammacakkappavattane_ti desanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡epi asamoti attho.

idÄ• ni ``yo evamÄ• diguá¹‡asamannÄ• gato satthÄ• , so sabbalokekanÄ• yako, taá¹ƒ satt ti tathÄ• gatassa paá¹‡Ä• mane niyogadassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<40> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ sabbaguá¹‡Å«petaá¹ƒ, sabbaá¹…gasamupÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

mahÄ• muniá¹ƒ kÄ• ruá¹‡ikaá¹ƒ, lokanÄ• thaá¹ƒ namassathÄ• â€™â€™ ti || --- vuttaá¹ƒ.

tattha __eva_nti vuttappakÄ• ranidassane nipÄ• to. __sabbaguá¹‡Å«peta_nti ettha __sabb niravasesavÄ• cÄ«. __guá¹‡o_ti ayaá¹ƒ __guá¹‡a_-saddo anekesu atthesu \Be 62/ dissati.
``anujÄ• nÄ• mi, bhikkhave, ahatÄ• naá¹ƒ vatthÄ• naá¹ƒ diguá¹‡aá¹ƒ saá¹…ghÄ• á¹-iâ€™â ettha paá¹-alatthe dissati. ``accenti kÄ• lÄ• tarayanti rattiyo, vayoguá¹‡Ä• anupubbaá¹ƒ jah a I 4) ettha rÄ• satthe. ``sataguá¹‡Ä• dakkhiá¹‡Ä• pÄ• á¹-ikaá¹…khitabbÄ• â€™â€™ ti (M Ä• nisaá¹ƒsatthe. ``antaá¹ƒ antaguá¹‡aá¹ƒâ€™â€™ (DN II 377; MN I 110, 302; II 114; III 15 3.dvattiá¹ƒsÄ• kÄ• ra) ``kayirÄ• mÄ• lÄ• guá¹‡e bahÅ«â€™â€™ ti (Dhp 53) ettha bandhan ``aá¹-á¹-haguá¹‡asamupetaá¹ƒ, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balamÄ• hariâ€™â€™ nti (Bv II 29) ettha sam sampattiatthe daá¹-á¹-habbo (Sv I 546; Ps I 166; Nidd II-a 136). tasmÄ• sabbehi lokiyalokut sabbasampattÄ«hi upetaá¹ƒ samannÄ• gatanti attho. __sabbaá¹…gasamupÄ• gata_nti sab guá¹‡aá¹…gehi vÄ• samupÄ• gataá¹ƒ samannÄ• gataá¹ƒ. __mahÄ• muni_nti aÃ±Ã±ehi pa adhikabhÄ• vato mahanto munÄ«ti vuccati mahÄ• muni. __kÄ• ruá¹‡ika_nti \Ee 44/ karuá¹‡ kÄ• ruá¹‡ikaá¹ƒ. __lokanÄ• tha_nti sabbalokekanÄ• thaá¹ƒ, sabbalokehi ``ayaá¹ƒ no dukkh sametÄ• â€™â€™ ti evamÄ• sÄ«sÄ«yatÄ«ti attho.

idÄ• ni dasabalassa sabbanipaccÄ• kÄ• rassa arahabhÄ• vadassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

<41> á¹• 21 ``abhivÄ• danaá¹ƒ thomanaÃ±ca, vandanaÃ±ca pasaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

namassanaÃ±ca pÅ«jaÃ±ca, sabbaá¹ƒ arahasÄ« tuvaá¹ƒ ||

<42> á¹• 21 ``ye \Ne 55/ keci loke vandaneyyÄ• , vandanaá¹ƒ arahanti ye.

sabbaseá¹-á¹-ho mahÄ• vÄ«ra, sadiso te na vijjatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || --- vuttaá¹ƒ.

tattha __abhivÄ• dana_nti aÃ±Ã±ehi attano abhivÄ• danakÄ• rÄ• panaá¹ƒ. __thomana_nti __vandana_nti paá¹‡Ä• manaá¹ƒ. __pasaá¹ƒsana_nti sammukhato pasaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ. __nam manasÄ• namassanaá¹ƒ vÄ• . __pÅ«jana_nti mÄ• lÄ• gandhavilepanÄ• dÄ«hi pÅ«janaÃ±c vuttappakÄ• raá¹ƒ sakkÄ• ravisesaá¹ƒ tuvaá¹ƒ arahasi yuttoti attho. __ye keci loke vandane vanditabbÄ• vandanÄ«yÄ• vandanaá¹ƒ arahanti. __ye_ti ye pana loke \Be 63/ vandanaá¹ƒ purimapadasseva vevacanaá¹ƒ. __sabbaseá¹-á¹-ho_ti sabbesaá¹ƒ tesaá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-ho uttam sadiso te loke koci na vijjatÄ«ti attho.

atha bhagavati yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• ratanacaá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• t sÄ• riputto rÄ• jagahe viharati gijjhakÅ«á¹-e pabbate paÃ±cahi parivÄ• rabhikkhusatehi. ath olokento addasa kapilapure Ä• kÄ• se ratanacaá¹…kame caá¹…kamamÄ• naá¹ƒ. tena vutta gijjhakÅ«á¹-e á¹-hitoyeva, passati lokanÄ• yakaâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• di.

<43> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• riputto mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovido.

tattha __sÄ• riputto_ti rÅ«pasÄ• riyÄ• nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• puttoti sÄ• riputto. __mah soá¸·asavidhÄ• ya paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya samannÄ• gatoti mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o. __samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nako cittaá¹ƒ samaá¹ƒ Ä• dahati Ä• rammaá¹‡e á¹-hapetÄ«ti samÄ• dhi. so tividho hoti savitakka avitakkavicÄ• ramatto avitakkaavicÄ• ro samÄ• dhÄ«ti. __jhÄ• na_nti paá¹-hamajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ tatiyajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ catutthajjhÄ• nanti \Ee 45/ imehi paá¹-hamajjhÄ• nÄ• dÄ«hi mettÄ• jhÄ• n honti, jhÄ• nampi duvidhaá¹ƒ hoti lakkhaá¹‡Å«panijjhÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• rammaá¹‡Å«panijjhÄ• nam aniccÄ• dilakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ upanijjhÄ• yatÄ«ti vipassanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ``lakkhaá¹‡Å«panijjhÄ paá¹-hamajjhÄ• nÄ• dikaá¹ƒ pana Ä• rammaá¹‡Å«panijjhÄ• nato paccanÄ«kajhÄ• panato v samÄ• dhÄ«su ca jhÄ• nesu ca kovidoti samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovido, samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakusalo evaá¹ƒnÄ• make pabbate á¹-hitoyeva __passatÄ«_ti passi.

<44> __suphullaá¹ƒ_ \Ne 56/ __sÄ• larÄ• jaá¹ƒ vÄ• _ti samavaá¹-á¹-akkhandhaá¹ƒ

samuggatavipulakomalaphalapallavaá¹…kurasamalaá¹…katasÄ• khaá¹ƒ sabbaphÄ• liphulla sÄ«lamÅ«laá¹ƒ samÄ• dhikkhandhaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• sÄ• khaá¹ƒ abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pupphaá¹ƒ vimu __olokesÄ«_ti evaá¹ƒ olokapadena sambandho. __candaá¹ƒva gagane yathÄ• _ti abbhÄ• himadhÅ«marajorÄ• hupasaggavinimuttaá¹ƒ tÄ• ragaá¹‡aparivutaá¹ƒ saradasamay rajanikaraá¹ƒ sabbakilesatimiravidhamanakaraá¹ƒ veneyyajanakumudavanavikasanakaraá¹ oloketÄ«ti attho. __yathÄ• _ti nipÄ• tamattaá¹ƒ. __majjhanhikeva sÅ«riya_nti majjhanhikasa paá¹-utarakiraá¹‡amÄ• linaá¹ƒ aá¹ƒsumÄ• linamiva virocamÄ• naá¹ƒ. __narÄ• sabha_nti na

<45> __jalanta_nti daddaá¸·hamÄ• naá¹ƒ, saradasamayaá¹ƒ paripuá¹‡á¹‡acandasassirika lakkhaá¹‡Ä• nubyaÃ±janasamalaá¹…katavarasarÄ«raá¹ƒ paramÄ• ya buddhasiriyÄ• viroca __dÄ«parukkhaá¹ƒ vÄ• _ti Ä• ropitadÄ«paá¹ƒ dÄ«parukkhamiva. __taruá¹‡asÅ«riyaá¹ƒva u abhinavoditÄ• diccamiva, sommabhÄ• vena jalantanti attho. sÅ«riyassa taruá¹‡abhÄ• vo pa vuccati. na hi candassa viya hÄ• nivuddhiyo atthi. __byÄ• mappabhÄ• nuraÃ±jita_nti byÄ• n anuraÃ±jitaá¹ƒ. __dhÄ«raá¹ƒ passati lokanÄ• yaka_nti sabbalokekadhÄ«raá¹ƒ passati nÄ• y athÄ• yasmÄ• dhammasenÄ• pati atisÄ«talasaliladharanikaraparicumbitakÅ«á¹-e nÄ• nÄ• vidhasurabhitarukusumavÄ• sitakÅ«á¹-e paramaruciracittakÅ«á¹-e gijjhakÅ«á¹-e pa cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassehi Ä• gatehi devabrahmagaá¹‡ehi parivutaá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ anuttar anopamÄ• ya \Ee 46/ buddhalÄ«á¸·Ä• ya sabbaratanamaye caá¹…kame caá¹…kamamÄ• n bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• buddhaguá¹‡aparidÄ«panaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsadesanaá attanÄ• saddhiá¹ƒ vasamÄ• nÄ• ni paÃ±ca bhikkhusatÄ• ni sannipÄ• tesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<46> á¹• 21 ``paÃ±cannaá¹ƒ bhikkhusatÄ• naá¹ƒ, katakiccÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, khaá¹‡ena sannipÄ• tayÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __paÃ±cannaá¹ƒ bhikkhusatÄ• na_nti paÃ±ca bhikkhusatÄ• ni, upayogatthe sÄ• miv __katakiccÄ• na_nti catÅ«su saccesu catÅ«hi maggehi pariÃ±Ã±Ä• pahÄ• nasacchikiriyabh pariniá¹-á¹-hitasoá¸·asakiccÄ• nanti attho. __khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• na_nti parikkhÄ«á¹‡acaturÄ• __vimalÄ• na_nti vigatamalÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 57/, khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savattÄ• vÄ• vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ paramaparisuddhacittasantÄ• nÄ• nanti attho. __khaá¹‡enÄ• _ti khaá¹‡eyeva. __sannipÄ• idÄ• ni \Be 65/ tesaá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te gamane ca kÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ dassanatthaá <47> á¹• 21 ``lokappasÄ• danaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma, pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ nidassayi.

amhepi tattha gantvÄ• na, vandissÄ• ma mayaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<48> á¹• 21 ``etha sabbe gamissÄ• ma, tucchissÄ• ma mayaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

kaá¹…khaá¹ƒ vinodayissÄ• ma, passitvÄ• lokanÄ• yakaâ€™â€™ nti || --- imÄ• gÄ• thÄ• y tattha __lokappasÄ• danaá¹ƒ nÄ• mÄ• _ti lokassa pasÄ• dakaraá¹‡ato lokappasÄ• danaá¹ ``ullokappasÄ• danaá¹ƒ nÄ• mÄ• tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa lokavivaraá¹‡apÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyanti atth akaniá¹-á¹-habhavanato heá¹-á¹-hÄ• yÄ• va avÄ«ci etthantare ekÄ• lokaá¹ƒ katvÄ• etthant sattÄ• naá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ dassanakaraá¹‡Ä• dhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nanti vuccati. __nidassa mayampi. __tatthÄ• _ti yattha bhagavÄ• , tattha gantvÄ• nÄ• ti attho. __vandissÄ• mÄ• _ti sirasÄ• vandissÄ• ma. ettha pana amhepi, mayanti imesaá¹ƒ dvinnaá¹ƒ saddÄ• naá¹ƒ puri sambandho daá¹-á¹-habbo, pacchimassa vandanakiriyÄ• ya. itarathÄ• hi punaruttidosato n __ethÄ• _ti Ä• gacchatha. __kaá¹…khaá¹ƒ_ \Ee 47/ __vinodayissÄ• mÄ• _ti etthÄ• ha --- kh kaá¹…khÄ• nÄ• ma kÄ• cipi natthi, kasmÄ• thero evamÄ• hÄ• ti? saccamevetaá¹ƒ, paá¹-h gatÄ• . yathÄ• ha ---

``katame dhammÄ• dassanena pahÄ• tabbÄ• ti? cattÄ• ro diá¹-á¹-higatasampayuttacittupp cittuppÄ• do apÄ• yagamanÄ«yo lobho doso moho mÄ• no tadekaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca kilesÄ• â€™ visadisaá¹ƒ).

na panesÄ• vicikicchÄ• saá¹…khÄ• tÄ• kaá¹…khÄ• ti, kintu paÃ±Ã±attiajÄ• nanaá¹ƒ nÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ pucchitukÄ• mo, so pana buddhÄ• naá¹ƒyeva visayo, na paccekabuddh thero avisayattÄ• evamÄ• hÄ• ti veditabbaá¹ƒ. __vinodayissÄ• mÄ• _ti vinodessÄ• ma.

atha \Be 66/ \Ne 58/ kho te bhikkhÅ« therassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• attano attano pattacÄ«va viya mahÄ• nÄ• gÄ• pabhinnakilesÄ• chinnabandhanÄ• appicchÄ• santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• paviv sÄ«lasamÄ• dhipaÃ±Ã±Ä• vimuttivimuttiÃ±Ä• á¹‡adassanasampannÄ• taramÄ• nÄ• sann <49> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• dhÅ«ti te paá¹-issutvÄ• , nipakÄ• saá¹ƒvutindriyÄ• .

pattacÄ«varamÄ• dÄ• ya, taramÄ• nÄ• upÄ• gamuâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __sÄ• dhÅ«_ti ayaá¹ƒ __sÄ• dhu_-saddo Ä• yÄ• canasampaá¹-icchanasampahaá¹ƒ tathÄ• hesa --- ``sÄ• dhu me, bhante bhagavÄ• , saá¹ƒkhittena dhammaá¹ƒ desetÅ«â€™â€ 382; AN a IV 257) Ä• yÄ• cane dissati. ``sÄ• dhu, bhanteti kho so bhikkhu bhagavato bhÄ• anumoditvÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (MN III 86) sampaá¹-icchane. ``sÄ• dhu sÄ• dhu, sÄ• rip 349) sampahaá¹ƒsane.

``sÄ• dhu dhammaruci rÄ• jÄ• , sÄ• dhu paÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡avÄ• naro.

sÄ• dhu mittÄ• namaddubbho, pÄ• passÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ sukhaâ€™â€™ nti || ---

Ä• dÄ«su (J II 18.101) sundare. idha sampaá¹-icchane. tasmÄ• sÄ• dhu suá¹-á¹-hÅ«ti thera sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• ti attho (Sv I 189; Ps I 1 suttanikkhepavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Spk I 115 aggikabhÄ• radvÄ• jasuttavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•). __nipakÄ• _ti paá¹‡á¸• itÄ• paÃ±Ã±avantÄ• . __
guttadvÄ• rÄ• , indriyasaá¹ƒvarasamannÄ• gatÄ• ti attho. __taramÄ• nÄ• _ti turitÄ• . __upÄ upasaá¹…kamiá¹ƒsu.

50-1__._ idÄ• ni \Ee 48/ dhammasenÄ• patissa pavattiá¹ƒ dassentehi saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• rakeh vimalehÄ«â€™â€™ _tiÄ• digÄ• thÄ• yo vuttÄ• tattha __dantehÄ«_ti kÄ• yena ca cittena ca arahatte, nimittatthe bhummaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. __tehi bhikkhÅ«hÄ«_ti paÃ±cahi bhikkh __mahÄ• gaá¹‡Ä«_ti sÄ«lÄ• dÄ«hi ca saá¹…khyÄ• vasena ca mahanto gaá¹‡o assa atthÄ« nÄ• nÄ• padavasena vÄ• sÄ«lÄ• dÄ«hi guá¹‡ehi mahanto gaá¹‡oti mahÄ• gaá¹‡o, mahÄ• mahÄ• gaá¹‡Ä«. __laá¸·anto devova gagane_ti iddhivilÄ• sena vilÄ• sento devo viya gagan upasaá¹…kamÄ«ti attho.

<52> idÄ• ni \Be 67/ ``te itthambhÅ«tÄ• upasaá¹…kamiá¹ƒsÅ«â€™â€™ ti upasaá¹…kama ``ukkÄ• sitaÃ±ca khipitaâ€™â€™ _ntiÄ• di \Ne 59/ Ä• raddhaá¹ƒ. tattha __ukkÄ• sitaÃ±cÄ• __khipita_nti khipitasaddaÃ±ca. __ajjhupekkhiyÄ• _ti upekkhitvÄ• , taá¹ƒ ubhayaá¹ƒ akatvÄ __subbatÄ• _ti suvimaladhutaguá¹‡Ä• . __sappatissÄ• _ti sahapatissayÄ• , nÄ«cavuttinoti a

<53> __sayambhu_nti sayameva aÃ±Ã±Ä• padesaá¹ƒ vinÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• adhig __accuggata_nti abhinavoditaá¹ƒ. __candaá¹ƒ vÄ• _ti candaá¹ƒ viya, nabhe jalantaá¹ƒ bhag candaá¹ƒ viya passantÄ«ti evaá¹ƒ padasambandho daá¹-á¹-habbo. idhÄ• pi __yathÄ• _-sad

<54> __vijjuá¹ƒ vÄ• _ti vijjughanaá¹ƒ viya. yadi ciraá¹-á¹-hitikÄ• acirappabhÄ• assa tÄ• dis __gagane yathÄ• _ti Ä• kÄ• se yathÄ• , idhÄ• pi __yathÄ• _-saddo nipÄ• tamattova. ito par yathÄ• -saddo nipÄ• tamattoti daá¹-á¹-habbo.

<55> __rahadamiva vippasanna_nti atigambhÄ«ravitthataá¹ƒ mahÄ• rahadaá¹ƒ viya anÄ• v salilaá¹ƒ. __suphullaá¹ƒ padumaá¹ƒ yathÄ• _ti suvikasitapadumavanaá¹ƒ rahadamivÄ• ti att ``suphullaá¹ƒ kamalaá¹ƒ yathÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa kamanÄ«yabhÄ• vena suphu attho.

<56> atha te bhikkhÅ« dhammasenÄ• patippamukhÄ• aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ sirasi katvÄ• dasabalass pÄ• desu nipatiá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- __ ``aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ paggahetvÄ• na, tuá¹-á¹-haha pamoditÄ• â€™â€™ _tiÄ• di. tattha __nipatantÄ«_ti nipatiá¹ƒsu, vandiá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. __cak cakkaá¹ƒ lakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ yasmiá¹ƒ pÄ• de so pÄ• do cakkalakkhaá¹‡o, tasmiá¹ƒ cakkalakkh ``pÄ• deâ€™â€™ ti vuttaá¹ƒ, satthuno cakkÄ• laá¹…katatalesu pÄ• desu nipatiá¹ƒsÅ«ti atth

<57> idÄ• ni tesaá¹ƒ kesaÃ±ci therÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• maá¹ƒ dassentehi __ ``sÄ• riputto mahÄ• koraá¹‡á¸• asamasÄ• disoâ€™â€™ _tiÄ• di gÄ• thÄ• yo vuttÄ• . tattha __koraá¹‡á¸• asama koraá¹‡á¸• akusumasadisavaá¹‡á¹‡o, yadi evaá¹ƒ ``koraá¹‡á¸• asamoâ€™â€™ ti vÄ• , ``ko vattabbaá¹ƒ, kiá¹ƒ dvikkhattuá¹ƒ \Be 68/ ``samasÄ• disoâ€™â€™ ti vuttanti ce? nÄ• yaá¹ƒ c koraá¹‡á¸• asamattÄ• koraá¹‡á¸• asadisabhÄ• veneva koraá¹‡á¸• asamasÄ• diso. na panÄ adhippÄ• yo. __samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakusalo_ti ettha ayaá¹ƒ __kusala_-saddo tÄ• va arogyÄ• navajjachekasukhavipÄ• kÄ• dÄ«su dissati. ayaÃ±hi ``kacci nu bhoto kusalaá¹ƒ, ka ntiÄ• dÄ«su (J I 15.146; II 20.129) Ä• rogye dissati. ``katamo pana, bhante, kÄ• yasamÄ• cA kho, mahÄ• rÄ• ja, kÄ• yasamÄ• cÄ• ro anavajjoâ€™â€™ ti (MN II 361) evamÄ• dÄ«su ana aá¹…gapaccaá¹…gÄ• naâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (MN II 87) cheke. ``kusalassa kammassa ka tiÄ• dÄ«su (Dhs 431 Ä• dayo) sukhavipÄ• ke. idha pana cheke daá¹-á¹-habbo. __vandate_t

<58> __gajjitÄ• _ti gajjantÄ«ti gajjitÄ• . __kÄ• lamegho vÄ• _ti nÄ«lasaliladharo viya gajjitÄ adhippÄ• yo. __nÄ«luppalasamasÄ• diso_ti nÄ«lakuvalayasadisavaá¹‡á¹‡o. heá¹-á¹-hÄ• v veditabbo. __moggallÄ• no_ti evaá¹ƒ gottavasena laddhanÄ• mo kolito.

<59> __mahÄ• kassapopi cÄ• _ti uruvelakassapanadÄ«kassapagayÄ• kassapakumÄ• raka upÄ• dÄ• ya ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• , tasmÄ• ``mahÄ• kassapoâ€™â€™ ti vutto. __pi cÄ• _ti samb __uttattakanakasannibho_ti santattasuvaá¹‡á¹‡asadisachavivaá¹‡á¹‡o. __dhutaguá¹‡e_ti e dhammo dhuto nÄ• ma, dhutaguá¹‡o nÄ• ma dhutadhammo. katamo pana dhutadhammo n santuá¹-á¹-hitÄ• , sallekhatÄ• , pavivekatÄ• , idamaá¹-á¹-hikatÄ• ti ime dhutaá¹…gacetanÄ• paÃ±ca dhammÄ• ``appicchaá¹ƒyeva nissÄ• yÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• divacanato dhutadhammÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ dhutaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma, tasmiá¹ƒ dhutaguá¹‡e. __agganikkhitto_ti \Ee 50/ aggo seá á¹-hapito. ``etadaggaá¹ƒ, bhikkhave, mama sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ dhutavÄ• dÄ• mahÄ• kassapoâ€™â€™ ti (AN a I 188, 191) á¹-hÄ• nantare á¹-hapitoti attho. ayaá¹ƒ pana Ä• dikoá¹-ikoá¹-á¹-hÄ• saseá¹-á¹-hÄ• dÄ«su dissati. tathÄ• hesa --- ``ajjatagge, samma dov Ä• varÄ• mi dÄ• raá¹ƒ nigaá¹‡á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ nigaá¹‡á¹-hÄ«naâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (MN II 7 aá¹…gulaggena taá¹ƒ aá¹…gulaggaá¹ƒ parÄ• maseyyaâ€™â€™ (Kv 441), ``ucchaggaá¹ƒ v koá¹-iyaá¹ƒ. ``ambilaggaá¹ƒ vÄ• madhuraggaá¹ƒ vÄ• â€™â€™ (SN c V 374) ``anujÄ• nÄ• vÄ• pariveá¹‡aggena vÄ• bhÄ• jetuâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (Vin II 318) koá¹-á¹-hÄ• se. ``yÄ apadÄ• vÄ• dvipadÄ• vÄ• ... pe ... tathÄ• gato tesaá¹ƒ aggamakkhÄ• yatÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• seá¹-á¹-he. svÄ• yamidha seá¹-á¹-he daá¹-á¹-habbo. koá¹-iyampi vattati. thero attano á¹-hÄ• koá¹-ibhÅ«to ca. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- ``agganikkhittoâ€™â€™ ti, aggo seá¹-á¹-ho koá¹-ibhÅ«toti saraá¹‡agamanakathÄ• ; Sp (to Vin III) I 15). __thomito_ti pasaá¹ƒsito devamanussÄ• dÄ«h vaá¹‡á¹‡ito_ti satthÄ• rÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡ito thuto, ``kassapo, bhikkhave, candÅ«pamo kulÄ• ni u apakasseva \Ne 61/ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ apakassa cittaá¹ƒ niccanavako kulesu appagabbhoâ€™â€™ suttanayehi (SN a II 146) vaá¹‡á¹‡ito pasattho, sopi bhagavantaá¹ƒ vandatÄ«ti attho.

<60> __dibbacakkhÅ«na_nti dibbaá¹ƒ cakkhu yesaá¹ƒ atthi te dibbacakkhÅ«, tesaá¹ƒ dibba bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ __aggo_ seá¹-á¹-hoti attho. yathÄ• ha --- ``etadaggaá¹ƒ, bhikkhave, mama s bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ dibbacakkhukÄ• naá¹ƒ yadidaá¹ƒ anuruddhoâ€™â€™ ti (AN a I 188, 192). a cÅ«á¸·apituno amitodanassa nÄ• ma sakkassa putto mahÄ• nÄ• massa kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• t paramasukhumÄ• lo, so attasattamo nikkhamitvÄ• agÄ• rasmÄ• anagÄ• riyaá¹ƒ pabbajito, __saá¹…ghabhedakakkhandhake_ (Vin II 330 Ä• dayo) Ä• gatova. __avidÅ«re vÄ• _ti bhag

<61> __Ä• pattianÄ• pattiyÄ• _ti Ä• pattiyaÃ±ca anÄ• pattiyaÃ±ca kovido. __satekicchÄ• y appaá¹-ikammÄ• yapi cÄ• ti attho. tattha sappaá¹-ikammÄ• sÄ• chabbidhÄ• hoti, appaá¹-i pÄ• rÄ• jikÄ• patti. ``Ä• pattianÄ• pattiyÄ• , satekicchÄ• ya kovidoâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, s \Ee 51/ vinayapiá¹-ake. __agganikkhitto_ti ``etadaggaá¹ƒ, bhikkhave \Be 70/, mama sÄ• vak vinayadharÄ• naá¹ƒ yadidaá¹ƒ, upÄ• lÄ«â€™â€™ ti (AN a I 219, 228) etadaggaá¹-á¹-hÄ• n __upÄ• lÄ«_ti upÄ• litthero. __satthu vaá¹‡á¹‡ito_ti satthÄ• rÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡ito pasattho. thero santike vinayapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ uggaá¹‡hitvÄ• bhÄ• rukacchakavatthuá¹ƒ (Vin III 78), ajjukavatth kumÄ• rakassapavatthunti (MN I 249) imÄ• ni tÄ«á¹‡i vatthÅ«ni sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡e kathesi. tasmÄ• thero vinayadharÄ• naá¹ƒ aggoti evamÄ• dinÄ• nayena satthÄ• rÄ• vaá¹‡

<62> __sukhumanipuá¹‡atthapaá¹-ividdho_ti paá¹-ividdhasukhumanipuá¹‡attho, paá¹-ividd attho. __kathikÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaro_ti dhammakathikÄ• naá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-ho. ``etadaggaá¹ƒ, bhikkh bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ dhammakathikÄ• naá¹ƒ yadidaá¹ƒ puá¹‡á¹‡o mantÄ• á¹‡iputtoâ€™â€™ ti (A etadaggapÄ• á¸·iyaá¹ƒ Ä• ropito. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ``kathikÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaroâ€™â€™ ti. __gaá¹‡ therassa kira santike pabbajitÄ• kulaputtÄ• paÃ±casatÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. sabbepi te dasabalas jÄ• taraá¹-á¹-havÄ• sino sabbeva khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• sabbeva dasakathÄ• vatthulÄ• bhino. t ti. __isÄ«_ti esati gavesati kusale dhammeti isi. __mantÄ• á¹‡iyÄ• putto_ti mantÄ• á¹‡iyÄ• putto. __puá¹‡á¹‡o_ti tassa nÄ• maá¹ƒ. __vissuto_ti attano appicchatÄ• dÄ«hi guá¹‡ehi viss __aÃ±Ã±Ä• sikoá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±atthero_ \Ne 62/ pana satthari abhisambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• pava anupubbena Ä• gantvÄ• rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ upanissÄ• ya viharante kapilavatthuá¹ƒ Ä• gantvÄ• puá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma mÄ• á¹‡avaá¹ƒ pabbÄ• jetvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ vanditvÄ• Ä• pucchitv chaddantadahaá¹ƒ gato. puá¹‡á¹‡o pana bhagavantaá¹ƒ dassanÄ• ya therena saddhiá¹ƒ Ä pabbajitakiccaá¹ƒ matthakaá¹ƒ pÄ• petvÄ• va dasabalassa santikaá¹ƒ gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â so yonisomanasikÄ• raá¹ƒ karonto nacirasseva arahattaá¹ƒ patvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹ __anuruddhatthero_ ca __upÄ• litthero_ ca ime dve therÄ• bhagavato kapilavatthupuraá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• gamadivase pabbajitÄ• viya dassitÄ• , taá¹ƒ pana khandhakapÄ• á¸·iyÄ• aá vÄ«maá¹ƒsitvÄ• gahetabbaá¹ƒ.

atha \Be 71/ satthÄ• sÄ• riputtattherÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ \Ee 52/ paÃ±cannaá¹ƒ bhikkhusatÄ• naá attano guá¹‡e kathetumÄ• rabhi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<63> á¹• 21 ``etesaá¹ƒ cittamaÃ±Ã±Ä• ya, opammakusalo muni.

kaá¹…khacchedo mahÄ• vÄ«ro, kathesi attano guá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __opammakusalo_ti upamÄ• ya kusalo. __kaá¹…khacchedo_ti sabbasattÄ• naá¹ƒ sa idÄ• ni te attano guá¹‡e kathesi, te dassetuá¹ƒ ---

<64> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• ro te asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• , koá¹-i yesaá¹ƒ na nÄ• yati.

sattakÄ• yo ca Ä• kÄ• so, cakkavÄ• á¸·Ä• canantakÄ• .

buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ appameyyaá¹ƒ, na sakkÄ• ete vijÄ• nituâ€™â€™ nti || --- vuttaá¹ƒ.

tattha __cattÄ• ro_ti gaá¹‡anaparicchedo. __ete_ti idÄ• ni vattabbe atthe nidasseti. __asaá saá¹…khyÄ• tumasakkuá¹‡eyyattÄ• asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• , gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ vÄ«tivattÄ• ti at vÄ• mariyÄ• dÄ• . __yesa_nti yesaá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• naá¹ƒ. __na nÄ• yatÄ vuttappakÄ• re cattÄ• ro asaá¹…khyeyye dassetuá¹ƒ __ ``sattakÄ• yoâ€™â€™ _tiÄ• di vutt sattasamÅ«ho, sattakÄ• yo ananto aparimÄ• á¹‡o appameyyo. tathÄ• __Ä• kÄ• so_ Ä• kÄ __cakkavÄ• á¸·Ä• ni_ anantÄ• ni eva. buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ vijÄ• nitu_nti yasmÄ• panete anantÄ• , tasmÄ• na sakkÄ• vijÄ• nituá¹ƒ.

<65> idÄ• ni \Ne 63/ satthÄ• attano iddhivikubbane saÃ±jÄ• tacchariyabbhutÄ• naá¹ƒ deva kinnÄ• metaá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ, itopi visiá¹-á¹-hataraá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ abbhutaá¹ƒ atthi, mama dhammadesanaá¹ƒ vaá¸• á¸• hento --- ``kimetaá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ loke, yaá¹ƒ me iddhivikubbanaá¹ƒ.

aÃ±Ã±e bahÅ« acchariyÄ• , abbhutÄ• lomahaá¹ƒsanÄ• â€™â€™ ti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

tattha \Be 72/ __ki_nti paá¹-ikkhepavacanaá¹ƒ. __eta_nti idaá¹ƒ iddhivikubbanaá¹ƒ sandhÄ ayaá¹ƒ __yaá¹ƒ_-saddo ``yaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ apucchimha akittayÄ« no, aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ pucchÄ• brÅ«hÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (Sn 1058; Nidd I 110; Nidd II mettagÅ«mÄ• á¹‡avapucchÄ• 7

53/. ``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• nametaá¹ƒ, bhikkhave, anavakÄ• so; yaá¹ƒ ekissÄ• lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• dve a sammÄ• sambuddhÄ• â€™â€™ ti (AN a I 277; Vibh 809; Mil V 1.1) ettha kÄ• raá¹‡avacane kappe udapÄ• dÄ«â€™â€™ ti (DN II 4) ettha bhumme. ``yaá¹ƒ kho me, bhante, devÄ• naá¹ sammukhÄ• sutaá¹ƒ sammukhÄ• paá¹-iggahitaá¹ƒ, Ä• rocemi taá¹ƒ bhagavatoâ€™â€™ ti paccattavacane. idhÄ• pi paccattavacane daá¹-á¹-habbo (Sv II 4). aÃ±Ã±e bahÅ« mama ac santÄ«ti dÄ«peti.

idÄ• ni te acchariye dassento ---

<66> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• haá¹ƒ tusite kÄ• ye, santusito nÄ• mahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

dasasahassÄ« samÄ• gamma, yÄ• canti paÃ±jalÄ« mamaâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

tattha __yadÄ• _ti yasmiá¹ƒ kÄ• le. __aha_nti attÄ• naá¹ƒ niddisati. __tusite kÄ• ye_ti tusita devanikÄ• ye. yadÄ• panÄ• haá¹ƒ samattiá¹ƒsapÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• paÃ±camahÄ• paric Ã±Ä• tatthacariyalokatthacariyabuddhatthacariyÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-iá¹ƒ patvÄ• sattasatakamahÄ sattakkhattuá¹ƒ pathaviá¹ƒ kampetvÄ• vessantarattabhÄ• vato cavitvÄ• dutiye cittavÄ• re t tadÄ• pi santusito nÄ• ma devarÄ• jÄ• ahosiá¹ƒ. __dasasahassÄ« samÄ• gammÄ• _ti dasa sannipatitvÄ• ti attho. __yÄ• canti paÃ±jalÄ« mama_nti maá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• , ``mÄ• r pÅ«rentena na sakkasampattiá¹ƒ na mÄ• ra na brahma na cakkavattisampattiá¹ƒ patthenter lokanittharaá¹‡atthÄ• ya pana buddhattaá¹ƒ patthayamÄ• nena pÅ«ritÄ• , so tava kÄ• lo, m samayo \Ne 64/, mÄ• risa, buddhattÄ• yÄ• â€™â€™ ti (Ja I nidÄ• nakathÄ• , avidÅ«renidÄ
tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<67> á¹• 21 ``kÄ• lo kho te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, uppajja mÄ• tukucchiyaá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tÄ• rayanto, bujjhassu amataá¹ƒ padaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha \Be 73/ __kÄ• lo te_ti kÄ• lo tava, ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __uppajjÄ• _ti paá¹-isand ``okkamÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __sadevaka_nti sadevakaá¹ƒ lokanti attho. __tÄ• rayan pÅ«rentopi tÄ• rayati nÄ• ma, pÄ• ramiyo matthakaá¹ƒ pÄ• pentopi tÄ• rayati nÄ• ma, vess \Ee 54/ tusitapure paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• saá¹-á¹-hivassasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• ni sattap tattha tiá¹-á¹-hantopi tÄ• rayati nÄ• ma, devatÄ• hi yÄ• cito paÃ±cavidhaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vilokitaá mahÄ• mÄ• yÄ• deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hantopi dasamÄ• se gabbhav nÄ• ma, ekÅ«natiá¹ƒsa vassÄ• ni agÄ• ramajjhe tiá¹-á¹-hantopi tÄ• rayati nÄ• ma. rÄ• hulab channasahÄ• yo kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ Ä• ruyha nikkhamantopi tÄ«á¹‡i rajjÄ• ni atikkamitvÄ• an pabbajantopi tÄ• rayati nÄ• ma, chabbassÄ• ni padhÄ• naá¹ƒ karontopi visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡a mahÄ• bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ Ä• ruyha mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• paá¹-hamayÄ• me pubbe majjhimayÄ• me dibbacakkhuá¹ƒ visodhetvÄ• pacchimayÄ• me dvÄ• dasaá¹…gaá¹ƒ paá¹-i anulomapaá¹-ilomato sammasitvÄ• sotÄ• pattimaggaá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhantopi tÄ• rayati nÄ• ma sotÄ• pattiphalakkhaá¹‡epi, sakadÄ• gÄ• mimaggakkhaá¹‡epi, sakadÄ• gÄ• miphalakkhaá anÄ• gÄ• miphalakkhaá¹‡epi, arahattamaggakkhaá¹‡epi, arahattaphalakkhaá¹‡epi tÄ• raya aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasadevatÄ• koá¹-isahassehi paÃ±cavaggiyÄ• naá¹ƒ amatapÄ• naá¹ƒ adÄ• si, ta nÄ• mÄ• ti vuccati. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

``sadevakaá¹ƒ tÄ• rayanto, bujjhassu amataá¹ƒ padaâ€™â€™ nti ||

atha mahÄ• satto devatÄ• hi yÄ• ciyamÄ• nopi devatÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ adatvÄ• va kÄ• ladÄ«padesakulajanettiÄ• yuparicchedavasena paÃ±cavidhaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vilokanaá¹ƒ nÄ nu kho, na kÄ• loâ€™â€™ ti paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹ƒ vilokesi. tattha vassasatasahassato u nÄ• ma na hoti. kasmÄ• ? jÄ• tijarÄ• maraá¹‡Ä• dÄ«naá¹ƒ apÄ• kaá¹-attÄ• , buddhÄ• naÃ± tilakkhaá¹‡amuttÄ• nÄ• ma natthi, tesaá¹ƒ aniccaá¹ƒ dukkhamanattÄ• ti kathentÄ• naá¹ƒ `` kathentÄ«â€™â€™ ti na saddahanti, tato abhisamayo na hoti, tasmiá¹ƒ asati aniyyÄ• nikaá hoti \Be 74/. tasmÄ• so akÄ• lo. vassasatato Å«no Ä• yukÄ• lopi kÄ• lo na hoti. kasmÄ• ? t ussannakilesÄ• honti, ussannakilesÄ• naÃ±ca dinno ovÄ• do ovÄ• daá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne na tiá¹-á vassasatasahassato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vassasatato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya uddhaá¹ƒ Ä• y idÄ• ni vassasatÄ• yukÄ• manussÄ• ti atha bodhisatto ``nibbattitabbakÄ• loâ€™â€™ ti ado tato dÄ«paá¹ƒ olokento ``jambudÄ«peyeva buddhÄ• nibbattantÄ«â€™â€™ ti __dÄ«paá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma mahÄ• dasayojanasahassaparimÄ• á¹‡o, katarasmiá¹ƒ nu kho padese buddhÄ• n vilokento majjhima__desaá¹ƒ_ passi. tato kulaá¹ƒ vilokento ``buddhÄ• nÄ• ma lokasammat idÄ• ni khattiyakulaá¹ƒ lokasammataá¹ƒ, tattha nibbattissÄ• mi, __suddhodano_ nÄ• ma me bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti __kulaá¹ƒ_ addasa. tato __mÄ• taraá¹ƒ_ vilokento ``buddhamÄ• tÄ na hoti, akhaá¹‡á¸• apaÃ±casÄ«lÄ• ti ayaÃ±ca __mahÄ• mÄ• yÄ• _ nÄ• ma devÄ« edisÄ• kittakaá¹ƒ assÄ• __Ä• yÅ«â€™â€™ _ti Ä• vajjento dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ upari sattad paÃ±cavidhavilokanaá¹ƒ viloketvÄ• --- ``kÄ• lo me, mÄ• risa, buddhabhÄ• vÄ• yÄ• â€™â€™ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• tattha yÄ• vatÄ• yukaá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• sakyarÄ• jakule kucchiyaá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi (Ja I nidÄ• nakathÄ• , avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ap-avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•). tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <68> á¹• 21 ``tusitÄ• kÄ• yÄ• cavitvÄ• na, yadÄ• okkami kucchiyaá¹ƒ.

dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tu, kampittha dharaá¹‡Ä« tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti || --- Ä• di.

tattha __okkamÄ«_ti okkamiá¹ƒ pÄ• visiá¹ƒ. __kucchiya_nti mÄ• tukucchimhi. __dasasaha kampitthÄ• _ti sato sampajÄ• no pana bodhisatto mÄ• tukucchiá¹ƒ okkamanto ekÅ«navÄ«s mettÄ• pubbabhÄ• gassa somanassasahagataÃ±Ä• á¹‡asampayuttaasaá¹…khÄ• rikakusal mahÄ• vipÄ• kacittena Ä• sÄ• á¸·hipuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ uttarÄ• sÄ• á¸·hanakkhatteneva pa dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tu sakalÄ• pi \Be 75/ kampi saá¹…kampi sampakampÄ«ti attho. __ thÄ• varajaá¹…gameti dharaá¹‡Ä«, pathavÄ«.

<69> __sampajÄ• nova nikkhami_nti ettha yadÄ• panÄ• haá¹ƒ sato sampajÄ• nova mÄ• tu otaranto dhammakathiko viya nisseá¹‡ito otaranto puriso viya ca dve hatthe ca pÄ• de \Ne 6 á¹-hitakova mÄ• tukucchisambhavena kenaci asucinÄ• amakkhitova nikkhamiá¹ƒ. __sÄ• dh sÄ• dhukÄ• raá¹ƒ pavattayanti, sÄ• dhukÄ• raá¹ƒ dentÄ«ti attho. __pakampitthÄ• _ti kampit mÄ• tukucchito nikkhamanepi dasasahassÄ« pakampitthÄ• ti attho.

<70> atha bhagavÄ• gabbhokkantiÄ• dÄ«su attanÄ• samasamaá¹ƒ adisvÄ• gabbhokkan acchariyadassanatthaá¹ƒ __ ``okkanti me samo natthÄ«â€™â€™ _ti imaá¹ƒ gÄ• thamÄ• ha gabbhokkantiyaá¹ƒ, bhummatthe paccattavacanaá¹ƒ, paá¹-isandhiggahaá¹‡eti attho. __me_ sadiso natthi. __jÄ• tito_ti ettha jÄ• yati etÄ• ya mÄ• tuyÄ• ti mÄ• tÄ• ``jÄ• tÄ«â€™â€™ ti v mÄ• tuyÄ• ti attho. __abhinikkhame_ti mÄ• tukucchito abhinikkhamane pasave satÄ«ti attho pasatthÄ• sundarÄ• bodhi sambodhi. ayaá¹ƒ pana __bodhi_-saddo rukkhamagganibbÄ• n dissati --- ``bodhirukkhamÅ«le paá¹-hamÄ• bhisambuddhoâ€™â€™ ti (Vin I 1; Ud 1) ca, ``a antarÄ• ca bodhiâ€™â€™ nti (MN I 285; II 341; Vin I 11) ca Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne hi rukkho ``bodhi \Ee 56/ vuccati catÅ«su maggesu Ã±Ä• á¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti (Nidd II khaggavisÄ• á¹‡as Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne maggo. ``patvÄ• na bodhiá¹ƒ amataá¹ƒ asaá¹…khataâ€™â€™ nti Ä• g ``pappoti bodhiá¹ƒ varabhÅ«rimedhasoâ€™â€™ ti (DN III 217) Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne sabbaÃ pana bhagavato arahattamaggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ adhippetaá¹ƒ (Ps I 13; Sp (to Vin III) I 11; UdnidÄ• nakathÄ•). apare ``sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aâ€™â€™ ntipi vadanti, tassaá¹ƒ saml
attho.

kasmÄ• pana bhagavÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ paá¹-icca attÄ• naá¹ƒ pasaá¹ƒsatÄ«ti? sabbaguá¹‡ sambodhi sabbaguá¹‡adÄ• yikÄ• sabbepi niravasese buddhaguá¹‡e \Be 76/ dadÄ• ti, na p pana kassaci arahattamaggo arahattaphalameva deti, kassaci tisso vijjÄ• , kassaci cha abhi catasso paá¹-isambhidÄ• , kassaci sÄ• vakapÄ• ramiÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, paccekabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ pana sabbaguá¹‡asampattiá¹ƒ deti. tasmÄ• bhagavÄ• sabbaguá¹‡adÄ• ya seá¹-á¹-hoâ€™â€™ ti attÄ• naá¹ƒ pasaá¹ƒsati. api ca bhÅ«miá¹ƒ cÄ• letvÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ p ``sambodhiyaá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-hoâ€™â€™ ti vadati. __dhammacakkappavattane_ti ettha duvidhaá¹ƒ hoti --- paá¹-ivedhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aÃ±ca desanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡aÃ±cÄ• ti. tattha paÃ±Ã±Ä ariyaphalÄ• vahaá¹ƒ paá¹-ivedhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, karuá¹‡Ä• pabhÄ• vitaá¹ƒ sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ desanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ. paá¹-ivedhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ lokuttaraá¹ƒ kusalaá¹ƒ upekkhÄ• sahaga desanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ lokiyaá¹ƒ abyÄ• kataá¹ƒ \Ne 67/, ubhayampi panetaá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±ehi as desanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ adhippetaá¹ƒ (Paá¹-is-a II 2.44).

<71> idÄ• ni bhagavato gabbhokkamaneva pathavikampanÄ• dikaá¹ƒ pavattiá¹ƒ sutvÄ• __ lokeâ€™â€™ _ti devatÄ• hi ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• vuttÄ• . tattha __buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ guá¹‡amaha guá¹‡amahantabhÄ• vo, aho buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ mahÄ• nubhÄ• voti attho __dasasahassÄ«lok pakampathÄ• _ti dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu mahÄ• pathavÄ« chappakÄ• raá¹ƒ paka puratthimato unnamati pacchimato onamati, pacchimato unnamati puratthimato onamati, utt dakkhiá¹‡ato onamati, dakkhiá¹‡ato unnamati uttarato onamati, majjhimato unnamati pariya pariyantato unnamati majjhimato onamatÄ«ti evaá¹ƒ chappakÄ• raá¹ƒ anilabalacalitajalataraá¹…gabhaá¹…gasaá¹…ghaá¹-á¹-itÄ• viya nÄ• vÄ• catunahutÄ• dhik pathavisandhÄ• rakajalapariyantÄ• acetanÄ• pi samÄ• nÄ• sacetanÄ• viya ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ viya akampitthÄ• ti attho. __obhÄ• so_ \Ee 57/ __ca mahÄ• Ä• sÄ«_ti atikkammeva devÄ• uá¸·Ä• ro obhÄ• so ahosÄ«ti attho. __accheraá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsana_nti accheraÃ±ca lomahaá

<72> idÄ• ni pathavikampanÄ• lokapÄ• tubhÄ• vÄ• dÄ«su acchariyesu vattamÄ• nesu bha ``bhagavÄ• tamhi samayeâ€™â€™ _tiÄ• digÄ• thÄ• yo vuttÄ• . tattha __lokajeá¹-á¹-ho_ti l __sadevaka_nti \Be 77/ sadevakassa lokassa, sÄ• miatthe upayogavacanaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-habb pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ dassento.

<73> __caá¹…kamantovÄ• _ti dasalokadhÄ• tusahassÄ• ni ajjhottharitvÄ• á¹-hite tasmiá¹ƒ caá¹…kamamÄ• nova kathesi. __lokanÄ• yako_ti atha satthÄ• manosilÄ• tale sÄ«hanÄ• da gajjanto pÄ• vussakamegho viya ca Ä• kÄ• sagaá¹…gaá¹ƒ otÄ• rento viya ca aá¹-á¹-haá¹…
301) savanÄ«yena kamanÄ«yena brahmassarena nÄ• nÄ• nayavicittaá¹ƒ catusaccapaá¹-is tilakkhaá¹‡Ä• hataá¹ƒ madhuradhammakathaá¹ƒ kathesÄ«ti attho.

__antarÄ• na nivatteti, catuhatthe caá¹…kame yathÄ• _ti ettha satthÄ• rÄ• pana nimmitass ekÄ• koá¹-i pÄ• cÄ«nacakkavÄ• á¸·amukhavaá¹-á¹-iyaá¹ƒ ekÄ• pacchimacakkavÄ• á¸·amu á¹-hite tasmiá¹ƒ ratanacaá¹…kame caá¹…kamamÄ• no satthÄ• ubho koá¹-iyo patvÄ• va niv koá¹-iyo apatvÄ• na nivattati. yathÄ• catuhatthappamÄ• á¹‡e caá¹…kame caá¹…kamamÄ patvÄ• nivattati, evaá¹ƒ antarÄ• na nivattatÄ«ti attho. kiá¹ƒ pana bhagavÄ• dasasahassayojanappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• yÄ• maá¹ƒ caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ rassamakÄ• si \Ne 68/, tÄ• v nimminÄ«ti? na panevamakÄ• si. acinteyyo buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ buddhÄ• nubhÄ• vo. akaniá¹-á¹ yÄ• va avÄ«ci, tÄ• va ekaá¹…gaá¹‡Ä• ahosi. tiriyato ca dasacakkavÄ• á¸·asahassÄ• ni eka devÄ• manusse passanti, manussÄ• pi deve passanti. yathÄ• sabbe devamanussÄ• paka passanti, evaá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ caá¹…kamamÄ• naá¹ƒ passiá¹ƒsÅ«ti. bhagavÄ• pana caá antarÄ• samÄ• pattiÃ±ca samÄ• pajjati.

atha Ä• yasmÄ• sÄ• riputto aparimitasamayasamupacitakusalabalajanitadvattiá¹ƒsavarala asÄ«tÄ• nubyaÃ±janavirÄ• jitaá¹ƒ varasarÄ«raá¹ƒ saradasamaye paripuá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ viya raj sabbaphÄ• liphullaá¹ƒ viya ca yojanasatubbedhaá¹ƒ pÄ• ricchattakaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasarata byÄ• mappabhÄ• parikkhepasassirikaá¹ƒ varakanakagirimiva jaá¹…gamaá¹ƒ anopamÄ• ya buddhasirivilÄ• sena caá¹…kamantaá¹ƒ dasasahassidevagaá¹‡aparivutaá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ 78/ pana sakalÄ• pi dasasahassÄ« lokadhÄ• tu sannipatitÄ• , mahatiyÄ• panettha dhamma buddhavaá¹ƒsadesanÄ• pana bahÅ«pakÄ• rÄ• bhagavati pasÄ• dÄ• vahÄ• , yaá¹ƒnÅ«nÄ \Ee 58/ paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ paripuccheyyaâ€™â€™ nti cintetvÄ• ekaá¹ƒsaá bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• dasanakhasamujjalaá¹ƒ jalajÄ• malÄ• vikala-kamala-m sirasi katvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ __ ``kÄ«diso te mahÄ• vÄ«rÄ• â€™â€™ _tiÄ• dikaá¹ƒ paripuc

<74> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• riputto mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovido.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya pÄ• ramippatto, pucchati lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<75> á¹• 21 ``kÄ«diso te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, abhinÄ«hÄ• ro naruttama.

kamhi kÄ• le tayÄ• dhÄ«ra, patthitÄ• bodhimuttamÄ• â€™â€™ ti || ---

Ä• di. kÄ• nÄ• mÄ• yaá¹ƒ anusandhÄ«ti? pucchÄ• nusandhi nÄ• ma. tisso hi anusandhiyo ajjhÄ• sayÄ• nusandhi yathÄ• nusandhÄ«ti. tattha ``evaá¹ƒ vutte aÃ±Ã±ataro bhikkhu bhag ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho, bhante, orimaá¹ƒ tÄ«raá¹ƒ kiá¹ƒ pÄ• rimaá¹ƒ tÄ«raâ€™â€™ nti (SN b IV 241 pucchantÄ• naá¹ƒ bhagavatÄ• vissajjitasuttavasena __pucchÄ• nusandhi_ veditabbÄ• .

``atha kho aÃ±Ã±atarassa bhikkhuno evaá¹ƒ cetaso parivitakko udapÄ• di `iti kira, bho, rÅ« vedanÄ• anattÄ• , saÃ±Ã±Ä• anattÄ• , saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• anattÄ• , viÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ anattÄ kammÄ• ni kamattÄ• naá¹ƒ phusissantÄ«â€™ ti. atha kho bhagavÄ• tassa bhikkhuno cetas bhikkhÅ« Ä• mantesi --- á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ kho panetaá¹ƒ, bhikkhave, vijjati, yaá¹ƒ idhekacco mo avijjÄ• gato taá¹‡hÄ• dhipateyyena cetasÄ• satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ atidhÄ• vitabbaá¹ƒ maÃ±Ã± rÅ«paá¹ƒ anattÄ• , vedanÄ• anattÄ• , saÃ±Ã±Ä• anattÄ• , saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• anattÄ• , viÃ±Ã anattakatÄ• ni kammÄ• ni kamattÄ• naá¹ƒ phusissantÄ«â€™ ti ... pe ... taá¹ƒ kiá¹ƒ maÃ±Ã± niccaá¹ƒ vÄ• aniccaá¹ƒ vÄ• â€™â€™ ti (MN III 90) evaá¹ƒ paresaá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• sayaá¹ƒ viditvÄ __ajjhÄ• sayÄ• nusandhi_ veditabbÄ• .

yena \Be 79/ pana dhammena Ä• dimhi desanÄ• uá¹-á¹-hitÄ• , tassa dhammassa anurÅ«p paá¹-ikkhepavasena vÄ• yesu suttesu uparidesanÄ• Ä• gacchati, tesaá¹ƒ vasena __yathÄ vuttaá¹ƒ ``pucchÄ• nusandhÄ«â€™â€™ ti.

tattha __paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya pÄ• ramippatto_ti sÄ• vakapÄ• ramiÃ±Ä• á¹‡assa matthakaá¹ƒ patt tattha pucchÄ• nÄ• ma adiá¹-á¹-hajotanÄ• pucchÄ• , diá¹-á¹-hasaá¹ƒsandanÄ• pucchÄ• , v anumatipucchÄ• , kathetukamyatÄ• pucchÄ• ti paÃ±cavidhÄ• hoti. tatthÄ• yaá¹ƒ therassa k panÄ• yaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒso kappasatasahassÄ• dhikaasaá¹…khyeyyopacitapuÃ±Ã±asam \Ee 59/ kappasatasahassÄ• dhikaasaá¹…khyeyyopacitapuÃ±Ã±asambhÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ dvinna kappasatasahassopacitapuÃ±Ã±asambhÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ sesamahÄ• sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ vÄ• av visayo, tasmÄ• therassa adiá¹-á¹-hajotanÄ• pucchÄ• ti veditabbÄ• .

__kÄ«diso_ti pucchanÄ• kÄ• ro, kiá¹ƒpakÄ• roti attho. __te_ti tava. __abhinÄ«hÄ• ro_ti abh buddhabhÄ• vatthaá¹ƒ mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ bandhitvÄ• ``buddhabyÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ aladdhÄ• na u vÄ«riyamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya nipajjanaá¹ƒ. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

``kÄ«diso te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, abhinÄ«hÄ• ro naruttamÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

__kamhi kÄ• le_ti tasmiá¹ƒ kÄ• le. __patthitÄ• _ti icchitÄ• abhikaá¹…khitÄ• , ``buddho bod moceyyaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dinÄ• nayena buddhabhÄ• vÄ• ya paá¹‡idhÄ• naá¹ƒ kadÄ• katan sammÄ• sambodhi, arahattamaggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡assa ca sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡assa cetaá¹ sÄ• vakabodhipaccekabodhÄ«hi seá¹-á¹-hattÄ• uttamÄ• ti vuttÄ• . ubhinnamantarÄ• __ma idÄ• ni \Ne 70/ buddhabhÄ• vakÄ• rake dhamme pucchanto --- <76> á¹• 21 ``dÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ«laÃ±ca nekkhammaá¹ƒ, paÃ±Ã±Ä• vÄ«riyaÃ±ca kÄ«disaá¹ƒ.

khantisaccamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, mettupekkhÄ• ca kÄ«disÄ• ||

<77> á¹• 21 ``dasa pÄ• ramÄ« tayÄ• dhÄ«ra, kÄ«disÄ« lokanÄ• yaka.

kathaá¹ƒ upapÄ• ramÄ« puá¹‡á¹‡Ä• , paramatthapÄ• ramÄ« kathaâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• ha.

tattha \Be 80/ dÄ• napÄ• ramiyaá¹ƒ tÄ• va bÄ• hirabhaá¹‡á¸• apariccÄ• go __pÄ• ramÄ«_ n __upapÄ• ramÄ«_ nÄ• ma, jÄ«vitapariccÄ• go __paramatthapÄ• ramÄ«_ nÄ• mÄ• ti. esa n pÄ• ramiyo dasa upapÄ• ramiyo dasa paramatthapÄ• ramiyoti samattiá¹ƒsa pÄ• ramiyo hon dÄ• napÄ• ramitÄ• ya pÅ«ritattabhÄ• vÄ• naá¹ƒ parimÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma natthi. ekantena p __sasapaá¹‡á¸• itajÄ• take_ --- ``bhikkhÄ• ya upagataá¹ƒ disvÄ• , sakattÄ• naá¹ƒ pariccajiá¹ƒ.

dÄ• nena me samo natthi, esÄ• me dÄ• napÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Cp 1.143 tassuddÄ• n evaá¹ƒ paraá¹ƒ jÄ«vitapariccÄ• gaá¹ƒ karontassa __dÄ• napÄ• ramÄ«_ paramatthapÄ• ram tathÄ• sÄ«lapÄ• ramitÄ• ya pÅ«ritattabhÄ• vÄ• naá¹ƒ parimÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma natthi. eka __saá¹…khapÄ• lajÄ• take_ --- ``sÅ«lehi \Ee 60/ vinivijjhante, koá¹-á¹-ayantepi sattibhi.

bhojaputte na kuppÄ• mi, esÄ• me sÄ«lapÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Cp 2.91) --- evaá¹ƒ attapariccÄ• gaá¹ƒ karontassa __sÄ«lapÄ• ramÄ«_ paramatthapÄ• ramÄ« nÄ• ma j tathÄ• mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya nekkhammapÄ• ramiyÄ• pÅ«ritattabhÄ• vÄ• naá¹ƒ parim panassa __cÅ«á¸·asutasomajÄ• take_ --- ``mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ \Ne 71/ hatthagataá¹ƒ, kheá¸·apiá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒva chaá¸• á¸• ayiá¹ƒ.

cajato na hoti lagganaá¹ƒ, esÄ• me nekkhammapÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• naka dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•) --- evaá¹ƒ nissaá¹…gatÄ• ya rajjaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• nikkhamantassa __nekkhammapÄ• ran jÄ• tÄ• .

tathÄ• mahosadhapaá¹‡á¸• itakÄ• lÄ• dÄ«su paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiyÄ• pÅ«ritattabhÄ• vÄ• ekantena panassa __sattubhattakapaá¹‡á¸• itakÄ• le_ --- ``paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya vicinantohaá¹ƒ, brÄ• hmaá¹‡aá¹ƒ mocayiá¹ƒ dukhÄ• .

paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya me samo natthi, esÄ• me paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• n Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•) --- antobhastagataá¹ƒ \Be 81/ sappaá¹ƒ dassentassa __paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramÄ«_ paramatthapÄ tathÄ• vÄ«riyapÄ• ramitÄ• ya pÅ«ritattabhÄ• vÄ• naá¹ƒ parimÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma natthi. ek __mahÄ• janakajÄ• take_ --- ``atÄ«radassÄ« jalamajjhe, hatÄ• sabbeva mÄ• nusÄ• .

cittassa aÃ±Ã±athÄ• natthi, esÄ• me vÄ«riyapÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• nakath Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•) --- evaá¹ƒ mahÄ• samuddaá¹ƒ tarantassa __vÄ«riyapÄ• ramÄ«_ paramatthapÄ• ramÄ« nÄ• m tathÄ• __khantivÄ• dijÄ• take_ --- ``acetanaá¹ƒva koá¹-á¹-ente, tiá¹‡hena pharasunÄ• mamaá¹ƒ.

kÄ• sirÄ• je na kuppÄ• mi, esÄ• me khantipÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• nakathÄ•
I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•) --- evaá¹ƒ \Ne 72/ acetanabhÄ• vena viya mahÄ• dukkhaá¹ƒ adhivÄ• sentassa __khantipÄ• ra jÄ• tÄ• .

tathÄ• __mahÄ• sutasomajÄ• take_ ---

``saccavÄ• caá¹ƒnurakkhanto, cajitvÄ• mama jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ.

mocesiá¹ƒ ekasataá¹ƒ khattiye, esÄ• me saccapÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• nakat dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•) --- evaá¹ƒ jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ cajitvÄ• saccaá¹ƒ anurakkhantassa __saccapÄ• ramÄ«_ paramatthapÄ• tathÄ• __mÅ«gapakkhajÄ• take_ --- ``mÄ• tÄ• \Ee 61/ pitÄ• na me dessÄ• , attÄ• me na ca dessiyo.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ piyaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ, tasmÄ• vataá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hahiâ€™â€™ nti || (Dhs-a dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; cariyÄ• III 65) --- evaá¹ƒ jÄ«vitampi pariccajitvÄ• vataá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hahantassa __adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramÄ nÄ• ma jÄ• tÄ• .

tathÄ• __suvaá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• majÄ• take_ ---

``na maá¹ƒ koci uttasati, napi bhÄ• yÄ• mi kassaci.

mettÄ• balenupatthaddho, ramÄ• mi pavane tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ja dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Cp 3.113) --- evaá¹ƒ \Be 82/ jÄ«vitampi anoloketvÄ• mettÄ• yantassa __mettÄ• pÄ• ramÄ«_ paramattha tato \Ne 73/ __lomahaá¹ƒsajÄ• take_ --- ``susÄ• ne seyyaá¹ƒ kappemi, chavaá¹-á¹-hikaá¹ƒ upanidhÄ• yahaá¹ƒ.

gÄ• maá¹‡á¸• alÄ• upagantvÄ• , rÅ«paá¹ƒ dassentinappakaâ€™â€™ nti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• na dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Cp 3.119) --- evaá¹ƒ gÄ• madÄ• rakesu niá¹-á¹-hubhanÄ• dÄ«hi ceva mÄ• lÄ• gandhÅ«pahÄ• rÄ• dÄ«hi upekkhaá¹ƒ anativattantassa __upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramÄ«_ paramatthapÄ• ramÄ« nÄ• ma jÄ• t vitthÄ• ro pana __cariyÄ• piá¹-akato_ gahetabbo.

idÄ• ni therena puá¹-á¹-hassa bhagavato byÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ dassentehi saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• rak

<78> á¹• 21 ``tassa puá¹-á¹-ho viyÄ• kÄ• si, karavÄ«kamadhuragiro.

nibbÄ• payanto hadayaá¹ƒ, hÄ• sayanto sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<79> á¹• 21 ``atÄ«tabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ jinÄ• naá¹ƒ desitaá¹ƒ, nikÄ«litaá¹ƒ buddhaparamparÄ•

pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nugatÄ• ya buddhiyÄ• , pakÄ• sayÄ« lokahitaá¹ƒ sadevakeâ€™â€™ ti || --- tattha __tassa puá¹-á¹-ho viyÄ• kÄ• sÄ«_ti tena dhammasenÄ• patinÄ• puá¹-á¹-ho hutvÄ• abhinÄ«hÄ• rato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya abhisambodhipariyosÄ• naá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ __karavÄ«kamadhuragiro_ti karavÄ«kasakuá¹‡assa viya madhurÄ• girÄ• yassa so karavÄ karavÄ«kamadhuramaÃ±jussaroti attho. tatridaá¹ƒ karavÄ«kÄ• naá¹ƒ madhurassaratÄ• --- madhurarasaá¹ƒ \Ee 62/ ambapakkaá¹ƒ mukhatuá¹‡á¸• akena paharitvÄ• paggharitaá¹ƒ ph tÄ• á¸·aá¹ƒ datvÄ• vikÅ«jamÄ• ne catuppadÄ• madamattÄ• viya laá¸·ituá¹ƒ Ä• rabhanti, g catuppadagaá¹‡Ä• mukhagatÄ• nipi tiá¹‡Ä• ni chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• taá¹ƒ nÄ• daá¹ƒ suá¹‡anti anubandhamÄ• nÄ• ukkhittaá¹ƒ pÄ• daá¹ƒ anikkhipitvÄ• \Be 83/ cittakatÄ• viya tiá¹-á¹-har maraá¹‡abhayaá¹ƒ hitvÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hanti, Ä• kÄ• se pakkhandantÄ• pakkhinopi pakkhe pasÄ udake macchÄ• pi kaá¹‡á¹‡apaá¹-alaá¹ƒ acÄ• lentÄ• taá¹ƒ saddaá¹ƒ suá¹‡amÄ• nÄ• tiá¹-madhurassarÄ• karavÄ«kÄ• (Sv II 38; Ps II 386). __nibbÄ• payanto hadaya_nti kilesaggisantattasabbajanamÄ• nasaá¹ƒ \Ne 74/ dhammakathÄ• matadhÄ• rÄ• ya sÄ«tibhÄ __hÄ• sayanto_ti tosayanto. __sadevaka_nti sadevakaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ.

atÄ«tabuddhÄ• nanti atÄ«tÄ• naá¹ƒ buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ. amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagavato abhinÄ«hÄ• medhaá¹…karo saraá¹‡aá¹…karo dÄ«paá¹…karoti cattÄ• ro buddhÄ• ekasmiá¹ƒ kappe nib aparabhÄ• ge koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±Ä• dayo tevÄ«sati buddhÄ• ti sabbe dÄ«paá¹…karÄ• dayo ca ``atÄ«tabuddhÄ• â€™â€™ ti adhippetÄ• , tesaá¹ƒ atÄ«tabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ. __jinÄ• na_nti tas __desita_nti kathitaá¹ƒ. catuvÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ catusaccapaá¹-isaá¹ƒyuttaá¹ƒ dhar __nikÄ«lita_nti tesaá¹ƒ caritaá¹ƒ kappajÄ• tigottÄ• yubodhisÄ• vakasannipÄ• taupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kamÄ• tÄ• pituputtabhariyÄ• pa nÄ• ma. __buddhaparamparÄ• gata_nti dÄ«paá¹…karadasabalato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya yÄ• va ka desitaá¹ƒ nikÄ«litaá¹ƒ vÄ• ti attho. __pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nugatÄ• ya buddhiyÄ• _ti ekampi jÄ•
I 148, 384, 421; II 233; III 82; Vin III 12) evaá¹ƒ vibhattaá¹ƒ pubbe nivuá¹-á¹-hakkhandhasantÄ• nasaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ pubbenivÄ• saá¹ƒ anugatÄ• upagatÄ• tÄ buddhiyÄ• , pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nussatiÃ±Ä• á¹‡enÄ• ti attho. __pakÄ• sayÄ«_ti byÄ• kÄ• si. _
buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ. __sadevake_ti sadevake loketi attho.

<80> atha bhagavÄ• karuá¹‡Ä• sÄ«talena hadayena sadevakaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ savane niyojen ``pÄ«tipÄ• mojjajananaâ€™â€™ _ntiÄ• dimÄ• ha. tattha __pÄ«tipÄ• mojjajanana_nti pÄ«tip pubbabhÄ• gaá¹ƒ pÄ• mojjaá¹ƒ, paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ya pÄ«tiyÄ• jananantì attho. __sokasa sokasaá¹…khÄ• tÄ• naá¹ƒ sallÄ• naá¹ƒ vinodanaá¹ƒ viddhaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ. __sabbasampattipa sabbÄ• pi devamanussasampattiÄ• dayo sampattiyo paá¹-ilabhanti etenÄ• ti sabbasampatti sabbasampattipaá¹-ilÄ• bhaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsadesananti attho. __cittÄ«katvÄ• _ti \Be 84/ c buddhÄ• nussatiá¹ƒ purakkhatvÄ• ti attho. __suá¹‡Ä• thÄ• _ti nisÄ• metha nibodhatha. __m

<81> __madanimmadana_nti jÄ• timadÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ sabbamadÄ• naá¹ƒ nimmadanakaraá¹ Ã±Ä• tibyasanÄ• dÄ«hi phuá¹-á¹-hassa cittasantÄ• po. kiÃ±cÄ• pi atthato domanassameva antonijjhÄ• nalakkhaá¹‡o, cetaso parinijjhÄ• yanaraso, anusocanapaccupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• no, taá sokanudo, taá¹ƒ sokanudaá¹ƒ. __saá¹ƒsÄ• raparimocana_nti saá¹ƒsÄ• rabandhanato parim ``saá¹ƒsÄ• rasamatikkamaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa saá¹ƒsÄ• rasamatikkamakaranti __sabbadukkhakkhaya_nti \Ne 75/ ettha __dukkha_-saddo dukkhavedanÄ• -dukkhavatthu-dukkhÄ• rammaá¹‡a-dukkhapaccaya-dukkhaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ca pahÄ• nÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (DN I 232; MN I 383, 430; Vin III 11) dukkhavedanÄ• ya dukkhÄ• jarÄ• pi dukkhÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (DN II 387; SN c V 1081) dukkhavatthusmi rÅ«paá¹ƒ dukkhaá¹ƒ dukkhÄ• nupatitaá¹ƒ dukkhÄ• vakkantaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (SN b III ``dukkho pÄ• passa uccayoâ€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (Dhp 117) dukkhapaccaye. ``yÄ• vaÃ±cida akkhÄ• nena pÄ• puá¹‡itaá¹ƒ yÄ• va dukkhÄ• nirayÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (MN III 250) du panÄ• yaá¹ƒ dukkhavatthusmiá¹ƒ dukkhapaccayepi ca daá¹-á¹-habbo. tasmÄ• jÄ• tiÄ• disa (Dhs-a 2 Ä• dayo). __magga_nti ettha kusalatthikehi maggÄ«yati, kilese vÄ• mÄ• rento gac buddhavaá¹ƒsadesanÄ• vuccati, taá¹ƒ nibbÄ• nassa maggabhÅ«taá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsadesa sakkaccaá¹ƒ cittÄ«katvÄ• , ohitasotÄ• hutvÄ• ti attho. __paá¹-ipajjathÄ• _ti adhitiá¹-á¹-hath attho. atha vÄ• pÄ«tipÄ• mojjajananaá¹ƒ sokasallavinodanaá¹ƒ sabbasampattipaá¹-ilÄ• bh buddhavaá¹ƒsadesanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• idÄ• ni madanimmadanÄ• diguá¹‡avisesÄ• vahaá¹ƒ sab buddhabhÄ• vamaggaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajjathÄ• ti \Ee 64/ sabbesaá¹ƒ devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ budd ussÄ• haá¹ƒ janeti. sesamettha uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

iti madhuratthavilÄ• siniyÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsa-aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya ratanacaá¹…kamanakaá¹‡á¸• avaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ca sabbÄ• kÄ• rena abbhantaranidÄ• nassatthavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• .

2. sumedhapatthanÄ• kathÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• idÄ• ni \Be 85/ \Ne 76/ ---

1-2__._ á¹• 21 ``kappe ca satasahasse, caturo ca asaá¹…khiye.

amaraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, dassaneyyaá¹ƒ manoramaâ€™â€™ nti || ---

Ä• dinayappavattÄ• ya buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ya okÄ• so anuppatto. sÄ• panesÄ• suttanikkhepaá¹ƒ vicÄ• retvÄ• vuccamÄ• nÄ• pÄ• kaá¹-Ä• hoti, tasmÄ• suttanikkhepavic cattÄ• ro hi suttanikkhepÄ• attajjhÄ• sayo parajjhÄ• sayo pucchÄ• vasiko aá¹-á¹-huppattiko suttÄ• ni bhagavÄ• parehi anajjhiá¹-á¹-ho kevalaá¹ƒ attano ajjhÄ• sayena kathesi. seyyathi __Ä• kaá¹…kheyyasuttaá¹ƒ_ (MN I 64 Ä• dayo) __vatthasutta_nti (MN I 70 Ä• dayo) evamÄ __attajjhÄ• sayo_ nikkhepo.

yÄ• ni vÄ• pana ``paripakkÄ• kho rÄ• hulassa vimuttiparipÄ• canÄ«yÄ• dhammÄ• , yaá¹ƒ uttariá¹ƒ Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ khaye vineyyaâ€™â€™ nti (SN b IV 121) evaá¹ƒ paresaá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• bujjhanakabhÄ• vaÃ±ca oloketvÄ• parajjhÄ• sayavasena kathitÄ• ni. seyyathidaá¹ƒ --- __rÄ __dhammacakkappavattanasutta_nti (SN c V 1081; Vin I 13 Ä• dayo; Paá¹-is II 30) evamÄ• __parajjhÄ• sayo_ nikkhepo.

bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• te te devamanussÄ• paÃ±haá¹ƒ pucchanti. evaá¹ƒ pu yÄ• ni kathitÄ• ni __devatÄ• saá¹ƒyutta_ (SN a I 1 Ä• dayo) __bojjhaá¹…gasaá¹ƒyuttÄ• _dÄ tesaá¹ƒ __pucchÄ• vasiko_ nikkhepo.

yÄ• ni vÄ• pana uppannaá¹ƒ kÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹-icca desitÄ• ni dhammadÄ• yÄ• da- (MN puttamaá¹ƒsÅ«pamÄ• dÄ«ni (SN a II 63), tesaá¹ƒ __aá¹-á¹-huppattiko_ nikkhepo. evametes imassa buddhavaá¹ƒsassa pucchÄ• vasiko nikkhepo. pucchÄ• vasena hi bhagavatÄ• ayaá pucchÄ• vasena? Ä• yasmato sÄ• riputtattherassa. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ asmiá¹ƒ nidÄ• nasmiá¹ƒ ``sÄ• riputto \Be 86/ \Ee 65/ mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovido.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya pÄ• ramippatto, pucchati lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

kÄ«diso te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, abhinÄ«hÄ• ro naruttamÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Bv I 74-75) ---

Ä• di. tenesÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsadesanÄ• pucchÄ• vasikÄ• ti veditabbÄ• .

tattha __kappe ca satasahasse_ti ettha __kappa_-saddo panÄ• yaá¹ƒ abhisaddahanavohÄ• rakÄ• lapaÃ±Ã±attichedanavikappanalesasamantabhÄ• vaÄ• yukapp hi ``okappanÄ«yametaá¹ƒ bhoto gotamassa. yathÄ• taá¹ƒ arahato sammÄ• sambuddhassÄ abhisaddahane dissati. ``anujÄ• nÄ• mi, bhikkhave, paÃ±cahi samaá¹‡akappehi phalaá¹ƒ p evamÄ• dÄ«su (Vin II 250) vohÄ• re. ``yena sudaá¹ƒ niccakappaá¹ƒ viharÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ``iccÄ• yasmÄ• kappoâ€™â€™ ti (Sn 1098; Nidd II kappamÄ• á¹‡avapucchÄ• 117; kappa ``nigrodhakappo iti tassa nÄ• maá¹ƒ, tayÄ• kataá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡assÄ• â€™â€™ paÃ±Ã±attiyaá¹ƒ. ``alaá¹…kato kappitakesamassÅ«â€™â€™ ti evamÄ• dÄ«su (J II 22.1368 dvaá¹…gulakappoâ€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (Vin II 446) vikappe. ``atthi kappo nipajjituâ€™â€™ lese. ``kevalakappaá¹ƒ jetavanaá¹ƒ obhÄ• setvÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su samantabhÄ• ve. `` kappaá¹ƒ, tiá¹-á¹-hatu sugato kappaâ€™â€™ nti (DN II 178; Ud 51) ettha Ä• yukappe. ``kÄ« bhante, kappoâ€™â€™ ti (SN a II 128-129) ettha mahÄ• kappe. Ä• disaddena ``satthukapp sÄ• vakena saddhiá¹ƒ mantayamÄ• nÄ• na jÄ• nimhÄ• â€™â€™ ti (MN I 260) ettha paá¹-i hoti. kappakatokÄ• so jiá¹‡á¹‡o hotÄ«â€™â€™ ti (Vin IV 371) ettha vinayakappe. idha pana daá¹-á¹-habbo. tasmÄ• kappe ca satasahasseti mahÄ• kappÄ• naá¹ƒ satasahassÄ• nanti a 1.1; Mp II 3.128; Khp-a V maá¹…galasutta, evamiccÄ• dipÄ• á¹-havaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Sn-a II m Cp-a nidÄ• nakathÄ• .1; Nidd II-a khaggavisÄ• á¹‡asuttaniddesavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•). \Ne 78/ __ ``catunnaá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• naá¹ƒ matthakeâ€™â€™ ti vacanaseso daá¹-á¹-habbo. kapp catunnaá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• naá¹ƒ matthaketi attho. __amaraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagara_nti ``ama ``amaravatÄ«â€™â€™ ti \Be 87/ ca laddhanÄ• maá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. keci panettha aÃ±Ã vaá¹‡á¹‡ayanti, kiá¹ƒ tehi, nÄ• mamattaá¹ƒ panetaá¹ƒ tassa nagarassa. __dassaneyya_nti suvibhattavicitra-caccaradvÄ• ra-catukkasiá¹…ghÄ• á¹-ika-pÄ• kÄ• ra-parikkhepapÄ• sÄ• d hammiya-bhavana-samalaá¹…katattÄ• dassanÄ«yaá¹ƒ. __manorama_nti samasuciparama chÄ• yÅ«dakasampannattÄ• \Ee 66/ sulabhÄ• hÄ• rattÄ• sabbopakaraá¹‡ayuttattÄ• ca sa devamanussÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ mano ramayatÄ«ti manoramaá¹ƒ.

__dasahi saddehi avivitta_nti hatthisaddena assasaddena rathasaddena bherisaddena saá mudiá¹…gasaddena vÄ«á¹‡Ä• saddena gÄ«tasaddena sammatÄ• á¸·asaddena ``bhuÃ±jath dasamena saddenÄ• ti; imehi dasahi saddehi avivittaá¹ƒ ahosi, sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ anupamuss kÄ«á¸·antÄ«ti attho. __annapÄ• nasamÄ• yuta_nti annena catubbidhenÄ• hÄ• rena ca pÄ• annapÄ• nasamÄ• yutaá¹ƒ, iminÄ• subhikkhatÄ• dassitÄ• , bahuannapÄ• nasamÄ• yutant idÄ• ni te dasa sadde vatthuto dassanatthaá¹ƒ ---

``hatthisaddaá¹ƒ assasaddaá¹ƒ, bherisaá¹…kharathÄ• ni ca.

khÄ• datha pivatha ceva, annapÄ• nena ghositaâ€™â€™ nti || --- vuttaá¹ƒ.

tattha __hatthisadda_nti hatthÄ«naá¹ƒ koÃ±canÄ• dasaddena, karaá¹‡atthe upayogavacan nayo sesapadesupi. __bherisaá¹…kharathÄ• ni cÄ• _ti bherisaddena ca saá¹…khasaddena liá¹…gavipariyÄ• sena vuttaá¹ƒ, `khÄ• datha pivathÄ• â€™ ti evamÄ• dinayappavattena ann ghositaá¹ƒ abhinÄ• ditanti attho. etthÄ• ha --- tesaá¹ƒ pana saddÄ• naá¹ƒ ekadesova dassit ekadeso sakalo dasavidho dassitova. kathaá¹ƒ? bherisaddena mudiá¹…gasaddo saá¹…gah vÄ«á¹‡Ä• gÄ«tasammatÄ• á¸·asaddÄ• saá¹…gahitÄ• ti daseva dassitÄ• .

evaá¹ƒ ekena pariyÄ• yena nagarasampattiá¹ƒ vaá¹‡á¹‡etvÄ• puna tameva dassetuá¹ƒ ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ \Be 88/ sabbaá¹…gasampannaá¹ƒ, sabbakammamupÄ• gataá¹ƒ, s nÄ• nÄ• janasamÄ• kulaá¹ƒ.

samiddhaá¹ƒ devanagaraá¹ƒva, Ä• vÄ• saá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±akamminaâ€™â€™ nti || --- vuttaá¹ƒ.

tattha \Ne 79/ __sabbaá¹…gasampanna_nti pÄ• kÄ• ragopuraá¹-á¹-Ä• lakÄ• disabbanagar paripuá¹‡á¹‡asabbavittÅ«pakaraá¹‡adhanadhaÃ±Ã±atiá¹‡akaá¹-á¹-hodakanti vÄ• attho. __
sabbakammantena upagataá¹ƒ, samupagatasabbakammantanti attho. __sattaratanasampa paripuá¹‡á¹‡amuttÄ• disattaratanaá¹ƒ, cakkavattinivÄ• sabhÅ«mito vÄ• hatthiratanÄ• dÄ«h sampannaá¹ƒ. __nÄ• nÄ• janasamÄ• kula_nti nÄ• nÄ• vidhadesabhÄ• sehi janehi samÄ• k manussopabhogasabbopakaraá¹‡ehi samiddhaá¹ƒ phÄ«taá¹ƒ. __devanagaraá¹ƒ vÄ• _ti de viya amaravatÄ« samiddhanti vuttaá¹ƒ hoti. __Ä• vÄ• saá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±akammina_nti Ä• vasan janÄ• ti Ä• vÄ• so. ``Ä• vÄ• soâ€™â€™ ti vattabbe ``Ä• vÄ• saâ€™â€™ nti liá¹…gabhedaá paÃ±Ã±Ä• yati tenÄ• ti puÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, kularÅ«pamahÄ• bhogissariyavasena paÃ±Ã±Ä• yatÄ puÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ. sabbakusalamalarajÄ• pavÄ• hakattÄ• puÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ kammaá¹ƒ yesaá¹ƒ atthi puÃ±Ã±akamminaá¹ƒ Ä• vÄ• sabhÅ«tanti attho.

tattha __sumedho_ nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o paá¹-ivasati ubhato sujÄ• to mÄ• tito ca pitito ca yÄ• va sattamÄ• kulaparivaá¹-á¹-Ä• akkhitto anupakuá¹-á¹-ho jÄ• tivÄ• dena, abhirÅ«po da paramÄ• ya vaá¹‡á¹‡apokkharatÄ• ya samannÄ• gato, so tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• ra sanighaá¹‡á¸• ukeá¹-ubhÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• kkharappabhedÄ• naá¹ƒ itihÄ• sapaÃ±camÄ• naá¹ƒ lokÄ• yatamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡esu. tassa pana daharakÄ• leyeva mÄ• tÄ• pitaro kÄ• lam rÄ• sivaá¸• á¸• hako amacco Ä• yapotthakaá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡arajatamaá¹‡imuttÄ• vivaritvÄ• --- ``etthakaá¹ƒ te, kumÄ• ra, mÄ• tu santakaá¹ƒ, etthakaá¹ƒ pitu santakaá¹ƒ, ett ayyakapayyakÄ• naâ€™â€™ nti yÄ• va sattamÄ• kulaparivaá¹-á¹-Ä• dhanaá¹ƒ Ä• cikkhitv paá¹-ipajjÄ• hÄ«â€™â€™ ti niyyÄ• tesi. so ``sÄ• dhÅ«â€™â€™ ti sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• puÃ± ajjhÄ• vasi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``nagare \Be 89/ amaravatiyÄ• , sumedho nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

anekakoá¹-isannicayo, pahÅ«tadhanadhaÃ±Ã±avÄ• ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ«.

lakkhaá¹‡e itihÄ• se ca, sadhamme pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gatoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __nagare amaravatiyÄ• _ti amaravatÄ«saá¹…khÄ• te nagare. __sumedho nÄ• mÄ• paÃ±Ã±Ä• \Ne 80/ vuccati. sÄ• tassa sundarÄ• pasatthÄ• ti sumedhoti paÃ±Ã±Ä• yittha. _ aá¹‡ati sikkhatÄ«ti brÄ• hmaá¹‡o, mante sajjhÄ• yatÄ«ti attho \Ee 68/. akkharacintakÄ• par brÄ• hmaá¹‡oâ€™â€™ ti vadanti. ariyÄ• pana bÄ• hitapÄ• pattÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• ti. __an koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ sannicayo koá¹-isannicayo, aneko koá¹-isannicayo yassa soyaá¹ƒ anekakoá¹-dhanasannicayoti attho. __pahÅ«tadhanadhaÃ±Ã±avÄ• _ti bahuladhanadhaÃ±Ã±avÄ• . pu bhÅ«migatagabbhagatadhanadhaÃ±Ã±avasena vuttaá¹ƒ, idaá¹ƒ niccaparibhogÅ«pagatadh veditabbaá¹ƒ.

__ajjhÄ• yako_ti na jhÄ• yatÄ«ti ajjhÄ• yako, jhÄ• nabhÄ• vanÄ• rahitoti attho. vuttaÃ±heta jhÄ• yantÄ«ti. na dÄ• nime jhÄ• yantÄ«ti kho, vÄ• seá¹-á¹-ha, `ajjhÄ• yakÄ• ajjhÄ• yakÄ• â akkharaá¹ƒ upanibbattaâ€™â€™ nti (DN III 132) evaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamakappikakÄ• le jhÄ• navi brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ garahavacanaá¹ƒ uppannaá¹ƒ. idÄ• ni mantaá¹ƒ jhÄ• yatÄ«ti ajjhÄ• y iminÄ• atthena pasaá¹ƒsavacanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• voharanti. mante dhÄ• retÄ«ti __mantadharo_ vedÄ• na_nti iruvedayajuvedasÄ• mavedÄ• naá¹ƒ tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• naá¹ƒ. ayaá¹ƒ pana _ Ã±Ä• á¹‡asomanassaganthesu dissati. tathÄ• hesa --- ``yaá¹ƒ brÄ• hmaá¹‡aá¹ƒ vedagumÄ kÄ• mabhave asattaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ«su (Sn 1065) Ã±Ä• á¹‡e dissati. ``ye vedajÄ• tÄ• vi (AN a IV 57) somanasse. ``tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• ragÅ« sanighaá¹‡á¸• ukeá¹-ubhÄ• 256) ganthe. idhÄ• pi ganthe (Ps I 75). __pÄ• ragÅ«_ti tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• naá¹ƒ oá¹-á¹-hap pÄ• raá¹ƒ gatoti pÄ• ragÅ«. __lakkhaá¹‡e_ti itthilakkhaá¹‡apurisalakkhaá¹‡amahÄ• purisala lakkhaá¹‡e. __itihÄ• se_ti itiha Ä• sa, itiha Ä• sÄ• ti Ä«disavacanapaá¹-isaá¹ƒyutte \Be 90/ p ganthavisese. __sadhamme_ti brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ sake dhamme, sake Ä• cariyake vÄ• . gato, disÄ• pÄ• mokkho Ä• cariyo ahosÄ«ti attho.

athekadivasaá¹ƒ so dasaguá¹‡agaá¹‡Ä• rÄ• dhitapaá¹‡á¸• ito sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito uparip hutvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• nisinno cintesi --- ``punabbhave paá¹-isandhiggahaá¹‡ tathÄ• nibbattanibbattaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne sarÄ«rabhedanaá¹ƒ, ahaÃ±ca jÄ• tidhammo, jarÄ• dha maraá¹‡adhammo, evaá¹ƒbhÅ«tena mayÄ• ajÄ• tiá¹ƒ ajaraá¹ƒ abyÄ• dhiá¹ƒ amaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ pariyesituá¹ƒ \Ee 69/ vaá¹-á¹-ati, avassaá¹ƒ bhavacÄ• rakato muccitvÄ• nibbÄ• nagÄ• minÄ bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``rahogato \Ne 81/ nisÄ«ditvÄ• , evaá¹ƒ cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

dukkho punabbhavo nÄ• ma, sarÄ«rassa ca bhedanaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``jÄ• tidhammo jarÄ• dhammo, byÄ• dhidhammo sahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

ajaraá¹ƒ amaraá¹ƒ khemaá¹ƒ, pariyesissÄ• mi nibbutiá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``yaá¹ƒnÅ«nimaá¹ƒ pÅ«tikÄ• yaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apapÅ«ritaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gaccheyyaá¹ƒ, anapekkho anatthiko ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``atthi hehiti so maggo, na so sakkÄ• na hetuye.

pariyesissÄ• mi taá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, bhavato parimuttiyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

ettha pana gÄ• thÄ• sambandhaÃ±ca anuttÄ• napadÄ• namatthaÃ±ca vatvÄ• va gamissÄ• gato, rahasi á¹-hÄ• ne nisinno. __evaá¹ƒ cintesaha_nti evaá¹ƒ cintesiá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ. evanti imin dasseti. __tadÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• itakÄ• le. ``evaá¹ƒ cintesahaâ€™â€™ nti bl saddhiá¹ƒ sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ ekattaá¹ƒ karoti. tasmÄ• tadÄ• so sumedho ahamevÄ• cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti bhagavÄ• uttamapurisavasenÄ• ha. __jÄ• tidhammo_ti jÄ• sesapadesupi. __nibbuti_nti nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ.

__yaá¹ƒnÅ«nÄ• _ti \Be 91/ parivitakkanatthe nipÄ• to, yadi panÄ• hanti attho. __pÅ«tikÄ• y kÄ• yaá¹ƒ. __nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apapÅ«rita_nti mutta-karÄ«sa-pubbalohita-pitta-semha-kheá¸·asiá¹…ghÄ• á¹‡ikÄ• dianekakuá¹‡apapÅ«rita anÄ• layo. __atthÄ«_ti avassaá¹ƒ upalabbhati. __hehitÄ«_ti bhavissati, parivitakkanavacana sakkÄ• na hetuye_ti tena maggena na sakkÄ• na bhavituá¹ƒ. so pana maggo __hetuye_ti hetuyevÄ• ti attho. __bhavato parimuttiyÄ• _ti bhavabandhanavimuttiyÄ• ti attho.

idÄ• ni attanÄ• parivitakkitamatthaá¹ƒ sampÄ• dayituá¹ƒ __ ``yathÄ• pÄ«â€™â€™ _ti Ä• d dukkhassa paá¹-ipakkhabhÅ«taá¹ƒ sukhaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma atthi, evaá¹ƒ bhave sati tappaá¹-ipakk bhavitabbaá¹ƒ \Ee 70/, yathÄ• ca uá¹‡he sati tassa vÅ«pasamabhÅ«taá¹ƒ sÄ«talampi atthi rÄ• gÄ• diaggÄ«naá¹ƒ vÅ«pasamena nibbÄ• nena bhavitabbaá¹ƒ. yathÄ• ca pÄ• passa lÄ• paá¹-ipakkhabhÅ«to kalyÄ• á¹‡o anavajjadhammopi \Ne 82/ atthiyeva, evameva pÄ• pikÄ• y sabbajÄ• tikhepanato ajÄ• tisaá¹…khÄ• tena nibbÄ• nenÄ• pi bhavitabbamevÄ• ti. tena vutt

<10> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi dukkhe vijjante, sukhaá¹ƒ nÄ• mapi vijjati.

evaá¹ƒ bhave vijjamÄ• ne, vibhavopicchitabbako ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi uá¹‡he vijjante, aparaá¹ƒ vijjati sÄ«talaá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ tividhaggi vijjante, nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ icchitabbakaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pÄ• pe vijjante, kalyÄ• á¹‡amapi vijjati.

evameva jÄ• ti vijjante, ajÄ• tipicchitabbakaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __yathÄ• pÄ«_ti opammatthe nipÄ• to. __sukha_nti kÄ• yikacetasikasukhaá¹ƒ, suá¹-khaá¹‡atÄ«ti sukhaá¹ƒ. __bhave_ti janane. __vibhavo_ti ajananaá¹ƒ, janane vijjamÄ• ne aja icchitabbo. __tividhaggi vijjante_ti tividhe rÄ• gÄ• dike aggimhi vijjamÄ• neti attho. __nibbÄ• tividhassa rÄ• gÄ• diaggissa nibbÄ• panaá¹ƒ upasamanaá¹ƒ nibbÄ• naÃ±ca icchitabbaá¹ƒ.

__kalyÄ• á¹‡amapÄ«_ti kusalamapi. __evamevÄ• _ti evamevaá¹ƒ. __jÄ• ti vijjante_ti \Be 92 vijjamÄ• nÄ• yÄ• ti attho. liá¹…gabhedaÃ±ca vibhattilopaÃ±ca katvÄ• vuttaá¹ƒ. __ajÄ• tipÄ ajÄ• tinibbÄ• nampi icchitabbaá¹ƒ.

athÄ• haá¹ƒ parampi cintesiá¹ƒ --- ``yathÄ• nÄ• ma gÅ«tharÄ• simhi nimuggena purisena kamalakuvalayapuá¹‡á¸• arÄ«kasaá¹‡á¸• amaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ vimalasalilaá¹ƒ taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ di maggena tattha gantabbaâ€™ nti taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ gavesituá¹ƒ yuttaá¹ƒ. yaá¹ƒ tassa agavesan taá¸·Ä• kassa doso, tassa purisasseva doso. evameva kilesamaladhovane amatamahÄ• taá tassa agavesanaá¹ƒ, na so amatasaá¹…khÄ• tassa nibbÄ• namahÄ• taá¸·Ä• kassa doso, p corehi saá¹ƒparivÄ• rito puriso palÄ• yanamagge vijjamÄ• nepi sace so na palÄ• yati, na so tassa purisasseva doso. evameva kilesacorehi parivÄ• retvÄ• gahitassa purisassa vijjamÄ• nibbÄ• namahÄ• nagaragÄ• mimhi sive mahÄ• magge tassa maggassa agavesanaá¹ƒ \Ee purisasseva doso. yathÄ• byÄ• dhipÄ«á¸·ito puriso vijjamÄ• ne byÄ• dhitikicchake vejje sa gavesitvÄ• taá¹ƒ byÄ• dhiá¹ƒ na tikicchÄ• peti, na \Ne 83/ so vejjassa doso, tassa purisass pana yo kilesabyÄ• dhiparipÄ«á¸·ito kilesavÅ«pasamamaggakovidaá¹ƒ vijjamÄ• nameva Ä• tasseva doso, na kilesabyÄ• dhivinÄ• yakassa Ä• cariyassa dosoâ€™â€™ ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ

<13> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• gÅ«thagato puriso, taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ disvÄ• na pÅ«ritaá¹ƒ.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ, na doso taá¸·Ä• kassa so ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ kilesamaladhovaá¹ƒ, vijjante amatantaá¸·e.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ, na doso amatantaá¸·e ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• arÄ«hi pariruddho, vijjante gamanampathe.

na palÄ• yati so puriso, na doso aÃ±jasassa so ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ kilesapariruddho, vijjamÄ• ne sive pathe.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, na doso sivamaÃ±jase ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi \Be 93/ byÄ• dhito puriso, vijjamÄ• ne tikicchake.

na tikicchÄ• peti taá¹ƒ byÄ• dhiá¹ƒ, na doso so tikicchake ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ kilesabyÄ• dhÄ«hi, dukkhito patipÄ«á¸·ito.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ Ä• cariyaá¹ƒ, na doso so vinÄ• yakeâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __gÅ«thagato_ti gÅ«thakÅ«pagato, gÅ«thena gato makkhito vÄ• . __kilesamaladhov bhummatthe paccattavacanaá¹ƒ. __amatantaá¸·e_ti amatasaá¹…khÄ• tassa taá¸·Ä• kassa, daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ, anussaraá¹ƒ pakkhipitvÄ• vuttaá¹ƒ. __arÄ«hÄ«_ti paccatthikehi. __pariru niruddho. __gamanampathe_ti gamanapathe. chandÄ• vinÄ• satthaá¹ƒ anussarÄ• gamana palÄ• yatÄ«_ti yadi na palÄ• yeyya. __so puriso_ti so corehi pariruddho puriso. __aÃ±jasas maggassa. maggassa hi ---

``maggo \Ne 84/ pantho patho pajjo, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaá¹ƒ.

nÄ• vÄ• uttarasetu ca, kullo ca bhisi saá¹…kamoâ€™â€™ ti || (Nidd II pÄ• rÄ• yanatthutigÄ bahÅ«ni nÄ• mÄ• ni. svÄ• yamidha aÃ±jasanÄ• mena vutto. __sive_ti sabbupaddavÄ• bhÄ sivassa aÃ±jasassÄ• ti attho. __tikicchake_ti vejje. __na tikicchÄ• petÄ«_ti na tikicchÄ• pey tikicchake_ti tikicchakassa doso natthi, byÄ• dhitasseva dosoti attho. __dukkhito_ti saÃ±jÄ• takÄ• yikacetasikadukkho. __Ä• cariya_nti mokkhamaggÄ• cariyaá¹ƒ. __vinÄ• yak evaá¹ƒ panÄ• haá¹ƒ cintetvÄ• uttarimpi evaá¹ƒ cintesiá¹ƒ --- ``yathÄ• pi maá¹‡á¸• anakajÄ Ä• sattaá¹ƒ kuá¹‡apaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• sukhÄ« gaccheyya, evaá¹ƒ mayÄ• pi imaá¹ƒ pÅ« anapekkhena nibbÄ• namahÄ• nagaraá¹ƒ pavisitabbaá¹ƒ. yathÄ• ca naranÄ• riyo ukkÄ• ra katvÄ• na taá¹ƒ ucchaá¹…gena vÄ• Ä• dÄ• ya dasante vÄ• veá¹-hetvÄ• Ä• dÄ• ya gacch oloketumpi anicchantÄ• anapekkhÄ• chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• gacchanti, evaá¹ƒ mayÄ• pi imaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• amataá¹ƒ nibbÄ• nanagaraá¹ƒ pavisituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-ati. yathÄ• ca nÄ• vikÄ nÄ• vaá¹ƒ udakagÄ• hiniá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• anapekkhÄ• va gacchanti, evamahampi imaá paggharantaá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• anapekkho nibbÄ• namahÄ• nagaraá¹ƒ pavisis puriso muttÄ• maá¹‡iveá¸·uriyÄ• dÄ«ni nÄ• nÄ• vidhÄ• ni ratanÄ• ni Ä• dÄ• ya corehi sadd attano ratanavinÄ• sabhayena te core chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• khemaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hÄ• ti, e ratanavilopakacorasadiso. sacÄ• haá¹ƒ ettha taá¹‡haá¹ƒ karissÄ• mi, ariyamaggakusaladha nassissanti, tasmÄ• mayÄ• imaá¹ƒ mahÄ• corasadisaá¹ƒ karajakÄ• yaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ pavisituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<19> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi kuá¹‡apaá¹ƒ puriso, kaá¹‡á¹-he baddhaá¹ƒ jigucchiya.

mocayitvÄ• na gaccheyya, sukhÄ« serÄ« sayaá¹ƒvasÄ« ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``tathevimaá¹ƒ pÅ«tikÄ• yaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apasaÃ±cayaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gaccheyyaá¹ƒ, anapekkho anatthiko ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Ne 85/ \Ee 73/ uccÄ• raá¹-á¹-hÄ• namhi, karÄ«saá¹ƒ naranÄ• riyo.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchanti, anapekkhÄ• anatthikÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``evamevÄ• haá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apapÅ«ritaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchissaá¹ƒ, vaccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• yathÄ• kuá¹-iá¹ƒ ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi jajjaraá¹ƒ nÄ• vaá¹ƒ, paluggaá¹ƒ udagÄ• hiniá¹ƒ.

sÄ• mÄ« chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• gacchanti, anapekkhÄ• anatthikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``evamevÄ• haá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ, navacchiddaá¹ƒ dhuvassavaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchissaá¹ƒ, jiá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• vaá¹ƒva sÄ• mikÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi puriso corehi, gacchanto bhaá¹‡á¸• amÄ• diya.

bhaá¹‡á¸• acchedabhayaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchati ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``evameva imaá¹ƒ kÄ• yo, mahÄ• corasamo viya.

pahÄ• yimaá¹ƒ gamissÄ• mi, kusalacchedanÄ• bhayÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __yathÄ• pi kuá¹‡apaá¹ƒ puriso_ti yathÄ• pi daharo yuvÄ• maá¹‡á¸• anakajÄ• tiko p kukkurakuá¹‡apena vÄ• manussakuá¹‡apena vÄ• kaá¹‡á¹-he Ä• sattena aá¹-á¹-Ä«yitvÄ• taá¹ƒ kuá¹‡apaá¹ƒ mocetvÄ• \Be 95/ gaccheyya. __sukhÄ«_ti sukhito. __serÄ«_ti yathiccha __nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apasaÃ±caya_nti anekavidhakuá¹‡aparÄ• sibhÅ«taá¹ƒ ``nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apa __uccÄ• raá¹-á¹-hÄ• namhÄ«_ti uccÄ• renti vaccaá¹ƒ karonti etthÄ• ti uccÄ• ro, uccÄ• ro c uccÄ• raá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ. atha vÄ• ussÄ• siyyatÄ«ti ussÄ• so, vaccassetaá¹ƒ nÄ• maá¹ƒ, ta ussÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, tasmiá¹ƒ __ussÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• namhi, _ ukkÄ• raá¹-á¹-hÄ• neti att yathÄ• kuá¹-i_nti vaccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• kuá¹-iá¹ƒ naranÄ• riyo viyÄ• ti attho.

__jajjara_nti jiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ. __palugga_nti palujjantiá¹ƒ, vikirantinti attho. __udagÄ• hini_nti u \Ne 86/. __sÄ• mÄ«_ti nÄ• vÄ• sÄ• mikÄ• . __navacchidda_nti cakkhusotÄ• dÄ«hi navahi v chiddÄ• vacchiddehi yuttattÄ• navacchiddaá¹ƒ. __dhuvassava_nti dhuvanissandaá¹ƒ, nicca attho.

__bhaá¹‡á¸• amÄ• diyÄ• _ti yaá¹ƒkiÃ±ci ratanÄ• dikaá¹ƒ bhaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ Ä• diya. __bhaá¹‡ __disvÄ• _ti bhaá¹‡á¸• assa acchindanena bhayaá¹ƒ disvÄ• ti attho. __evamevÄ• _ti so bha puriso viya. __ayaá¹ƒ kÄ• yo_ti ayaá¹ƒ pana kucchitÄ• naá¹ƒ paramajegucchÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• yo upattiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ. Ä• yanti tatoti Ä• yo, kucchitÄ• kesÄ• dayo. iti kucchitÄ• naá¹ƒ kesÄ __mahÄ• corasamo viyÄ• _ti cakkhuÄ• dÄ«hi rÅ«pÄ• dÄ«su piyarÅ«pesu sÄ• rajjanÄ• diva pÄ• á¹‡Ä• tipÄ• tÄ• dinnÄ• dÄ• nÄ• dicoro hutvÄ• sabbakusalaá¹ƒ vilumpatÄ«ti mahÄ• cor ratanabhaá¹‡á¸• amÄ• dÄ• ya corehi saddhiá¹ƒ gacchanto puriso te core pahÄ• ya gacchat mahÄ• corasamaá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya attano sotthibhÄ• vakaraá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ gavesituá¹ veditabbo. __kusalacchedanÄ• bhayÄ• _ti kusaladhammavilopanabhayenÄ• ti attho.

athevaá¹ƒ sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito nÄ• nÄ• vidhÄ• hi upamÄ• hi nekkhammakÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ ci ``imaá¹ƒ mahÄ• dhanarÄ• siá¹ƒ saá¹ƒharitvÄ• mayhaá¹ƒ pitupitÄ• mahÄ• dayo paralokaá¹ gahetvÄ• na gatÄ• , mayÄ• pana gahetvÄ• gamanakÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ« Ä• rocesi \Be 96/ --- ``ahaá¹ƒ, mahÄ• rÄ• ja, jÄ• tijarÄ• dÄ«hi upaddutahadayo agÄ• rasmÄ pabbajissÄ• mi, mayhaá¹ƒ anekakoá¹-isatasahassaá¹ƒ dhanaá¹ƒ atthi, taá¹ƒ devo paá¹-ipaj Ä• ha --- ``na mayhaá¹ƒ te dhanena attho, tvaá¹ƒyeva yathicchakaá¹ƒ karohÄ«â€™â€™ ti.

so ca ``sÄ• dhu devÄ• â€™â€™ ti nagare bheriá¹ƒ carÄ• petvÄ• mahÄ• janassa dÄ• naá kilesakÄ• me ca pahÄ• ya amaravaranagarasadisato amaranagarato nikkhamitvÄ• ekakov himavante __dhammikaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma pabbataá¹ƒ nissÄ• ya assamaá¹ƒ katvÄ• tattha paá¹‡ paÃ±cadosavivajjitaá¹ƒ caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• aá¹-á¹-haguá¹‡asamupetaá¹ƒ abhiÃ±Ã navadosasamannÄ• gataá¹ƒ sÄ• á¹-akaá¹ƒ pajahitvÄ• dvÄ• dasaguá¹‡amupÄ• gataá¹ƒ vÄ evaá¹ƒ pana so pabbajito aá¹-á¹-hadosasamÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• laá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya rukkhamÅ«laá¹ƒ upagantvÄ• sabbadhaÃ±Ã±avikatiá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya pavattaphalabhojano hutv nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kamanavasena padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahanto sattÄ• habbhantareyeva samÄ• pattÄ«naá¹ƒ paÃ±cannaÃ±ca abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• naá¹ƒ lÄ• bhÄ« ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <27> á¹• 21 ``evÄ• haá¹ƒ \Ne 87/ cintayitvÄ• na, nekakoá¹-isataá¹ƒ dhanaá¹ƒ.

nÄ• thÄ• nÄ• thÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, himavantamupÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``himavantassÄ• vidÅ«re, dhammiko nÄ• ma pabbato.

assamo sukato mayhaá¹ƒ, paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• sumÄ• pitÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 04 ``caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ \Ee 75/ tattha mÄ• pesiá¹ƒ, paÃ±cadosavivajjitaá¹ƒ.

aá¹-á¹-haguá¹‡asamupetaá¹ƒ, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balamÄ• hariá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• á¹-akaá¹ƒ pajahiá¹ƒ tattha, navadosamupÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

vÄ• kacÄ«raá¹ƒ nivÄ• sesiá¹ƒ, dvÄ• dasaguá¹‡amupÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hadosasamÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, pajahiá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lakaá¹ƒ.

upÄ• gamiá¹ƒ rukkhamÅ«laá¹ƒ, guá¹‡e dasahupÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<32> á¹• 21 ``vÄ• pitaá¹ƒ ropitaá¹ƒ dhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, pajahiá¹ƒ niravasesato.

anekaguá¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ, pavattaphalamÄ• diyiá¹ƒ ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``tatthappadhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be 97/ padahiá¹ƒ, nissajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

abbhantaramhi sattÄ• he, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balapÄ• puá¹‡iâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __evÄ• ha_nti evaá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ, heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttappakÄ• rena cintetvÄ• ti attho. __nÄ sanÄ• thÄ• namanÄ• thÄ• naÃ±ca aá¸• á¸• hÄ• naÃ±ceva daliddÄ• naÃ±ca ``atthikÄ• gaá¹ koá¹-á¹-hÄ• gÄ• rehi datvÄ• ti attho. __himavantassÄ• vidÅ«re_ti himavantapabbatarÄ• jas __dhammiko nÄ• ma pabbato_ti evaá¹ƒnÄ• mako pabbato. kasmÄ• panÄ• yaá¹ƒ dhammik isipabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbajitvÄ• taá¹ƒ pabbataá¹ƒ upanissÄ• ya abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• yo nibbattetvÄ• sa tasmÄ• samaá¹‡adhammassa nissayabhÅ«tattÄ• ``dhammikoâ€™â€™ tveva pÄ• kaá¹-o mayha_ntiÄ• dinÄ• sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• itena assamapaá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• caá¹…kamÄ• sahat pana sahatthÄ• mÄ• pitÄ• , kintu sakkena devena pesite vissakammunÄ• devaputtena nim tadÄ• attano puÃ±Ã±Ä• nubhÄ• vena nibbattaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ sampadaá¹ƒ sandhÄ• ya --- ``sÄ• n `assamo sukato mayhaá¹ƒ, paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• sumÄ• pitÄ• .

caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ tattha mÄ• pesiá¹ƒ, paÃ±cadosavivajjitaâ€™â€™ â€™ nti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha tattha __paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• _ti paá¹‡á¹‡achadanasÄ• lÄ• . __tatthÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ assamapa __paÃ±cadosavivajjita_nti paÃ±cahi caá¹…kamadosehi vivajjitaá¹ƒ. katame paÃ±ca caá¹…k thaddhavisamatÄ• , antorukkhatÄ• , gahanacchannatÄ• , atisambÄ• dhatÄ• , ativisÄ• latÄ• dosehi vivajjitaá¹ƒ. ukkaá¹-á¹-hapariccheda dÄ«ghato saá¹-á¹-hiratano vitthÄ• rato diyaá¸• caá¹…kamo vutto. atha vÄ• __paÃ±cadosavivajjita_nti paÃ±cahi nÄ«varaá¹‡adosehi vivajji __abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balamÄ• hari_nti iminÄ• uttarapadena sambandho daá¹-á¹-habbo (Dhs-a ni __aá¹-á¹-haguá¹‡asamupeta_nti ``evaá¹ƒ samÄ• hite citte parisuddhe pariyodÄ• te anaá¹…

mudubhÅ«te kammaniye á¹-hite Ä• neÃ±jappatteâ€™â€™ ti evaá¹ƒ vuttehi aá¹-á¹-haguá¹‡e 384-386, 431-433; Vin III 12-14) samannÄ• gataá¹ƒ abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balaá¹ƒ Ä• hariá¹ƒ Ä• nesi keci \Be 98/ pana ``aá¹-á¹-hahi samaá¹‡asukhehi upetaá¹ƒ, aá¹-á¹-himÄ• ni samaá¹‡asukh dhanadhaÃ±Ã±apariggahÄ• bhÄ• vo, anavajjapiá¹‡á¸• apÄ• tapariyesanabhÄ• vo, nibbutap raá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ pÄ«á¸·etvÄ• dhanadhaÃ±Ã±Ä• dÄ«su gaá¹‡hantesu rÄ• japurisesu raá¹-á¹-h upakaraá¹‡esu nicchandarÄ• gabhÄ• vo, coravilopane nibbhayabhÄ• vo, rÄ• jarÄ• jamahÄ• asaá¹ƒsaá¹-á¹-habhÄ• vo, catÅ«su disÄ• su appaá¹-ihatabhÄ• voti imehi aá¹-á¹-hahi samaá dÅ«renidÄ• na, sumedhakathÄ• ; Dhs-a nidÄ• nakathÄ•) upetaá¹ƒ samupetaá¹ƒ assamaá¹ sambandhaá¹ƒ katvÄ• vadanti, taá¹ƒ pÄ• á¸·iyÄ• na sameti.

__sÄ• á¹-aka_nti vatthaá¹ƒ. __tatthÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ assame. __navadosamupÄ• gata_nti, sÄ attano nivatthapÄ• rutaá¹ƒ mahagghasÄ• á¹-akaá¹ƒ __pajahiá¹ƒ_ pariccajiá¹ƒ. sÄ• á¹-akaá¹ nava dose disvÄ• pajahinti dÄ«peti. tÄ• pasapabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbajitÄ• naÃ±hi sÄ• á¹-akasmi katame nava? sÄ• á¹-akassa mahagghabhÄ• vo, parapaá¹-ibaddhabhÄ• vo, paribhogena la kiliá¹-á¹-ho ca dhovitabbo puna rajitabbo ca hoti paribhogena jÄ«raá¹‡abhÄ• vo, jiá¹‡á¹‡ass tunnakaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ \Ne 89/ vÄ• aggaá¸·adÄ• naá¹ƒ vÄ• kÄ• tabbaá¹ƒ hoti puna pariyesanÄ tÄ• pasapabbajjÄ• ya ananucchavikabhÄ• vo, paccatthikÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡abhÄ• vo, gaá¹‡hanti, evaá¹ƒ gopetabbo hoti paridahato vibhÅ«sanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nabhÄ• vo, gahetvÄ• c etehi navahi dosehi (Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• na, sumedhakathÄ•) upagataá¹ƒ sÄ• á¹-akaá¹ƒ pah nivÄ• sesinti dÄ«peti. __vÄ• kacÄ«ra_nti muÃ±jatiá¹‡aá¹ƒ hÄ«rÄ• hÄ«raá¹ƒ katvÄ• ganthe vÄ• kamayacÄ«raá¹ƒ nivÄ• sanapÄ• rupanatthÄ• ya Ä• diyinti attho. __dvÄ• dasaguá¹‡amu Ä• nisaá¹ƒsehi upetaá¹ƒ. ettha __guá¹‡a_-saddo Ä• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹-á¹-ho ``sataguá¹‡Ä• dakk pÄ• á¹-ikaá¹…khitabbÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su (MN III 379) viya. __ma_-kÄ• ro padasandhik dvÄ• dasÄ• nisaá¹ƒsÄ• \Ee 77/ appagghatÄ• , aparÄ• yattatÄ• , sahatthÄ• kÄ• tuá¹ƒ sakk jiá¹‡á¹‡epi sibbitabbÄ• bhÄ• vo, corabhayÄ• bhÄ• vo pariyesantassa sukhena karaá¹‡abhÄ sÄ• ruppabhÄ• vo, sevamÄ• nassa vibhÅ«sanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• bhÄ• vo, cÄ«varappaccaye a paribhogasukhabhÄ• vo, vÄ• kuppattiyÄ• sulabhabhÄ• vo, vÄ• kacÄ«re naá¹-á¹-hepi anape guá¹‡ehi sampannaá¹ƒ (Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• na, sumedhakathÄ• ; Dhs-a nidÄ• nakathÄ•).

atha sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito tattha paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• yaá¹ƒ viharanto paccÅ«sasamaye pacc nikkhamanakÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ paccavekkhamÄ• no evaá¹ƒ kira cintesi --- ``ahaá¹ƒ pana navakanakakaá¹-akanÅ«purÄ• disaá¹…ghaá¹-á¹-anasaddasammissita-madhurahasitakathit uá¸·Ä• ravibhavasobhitaá¹ƒ suravarabhavanÄ• kÄ• ramagÄ• raá¹ƒ kheá¸·apiá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ viy sabbajanapÄ• papavÄ• hanaá¹ƒ tapovanaá¹ƒ paviá¹-á¹-hosmi, idha pana me paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• gharÄ• vÄ• so viya hoti, handÄ• haá¹ƒ rukkhamÅ«le vaseyyaâ€™â€™ nti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<31> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hadosasamÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, pajahiá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lakaâ€™â€™ nti tattha __aá¹-á¹-hadosasamÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡a_nti aá¹-á¹-hahi dosehi samÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ saá¹ƒyu aá¹-á¹-hahi? mahÄ• sambhÄ• rehi nipphÄ• danÄ«yatÄ• , tiá¹‡apaá¹‡á¹‡amattikÄ• dÄ«hi nid senÄ• sanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma mahallakassa pÄ• puá¹‡Ä• tÄ«ti avelÄ• ya vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• piyamÄ• nas vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• panÄ«yabhÄ• vo, sÄ«tuá¹‡hassa paá¹-ighÄ• tena kÄ• yassa sukhumÄ• lakaraá paviá¹-á¹-hena yaá¹ƒ kiÃ±ci pÄ• paá¹ƒ sakkÄ• kÄ• tunti garahapaá¹-icchÄ• danakaraá¹‡ab nti sapariggahabhÄ• vo, gehassa atthibhÄ• vo sadutiyakavÄ• so, Å«kÄ• maá¹…gulagharag sÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡atÄ• ya bahusÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡abhÄ• voti \Ne 90/ iti ime aá¹-á¹-ha Ä• dÄ«nave sumedhakathÄ•) disvÄ• mahÄ• satto paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• laá¹ƒ pajahiá¹ƒ.

__guá¹‡e dasahupÄ• gata_nti channaá¹ƒ paá¹-ikkhipitvÄ• dasahi guá¹‡ehi upetaá¹ƒ, rukkh attho. katamehi dasahi? appasamÄ• rambhatÄ• , upagamanamattamevettha hotÄ«ti sulabh tarupaá¹‡á¹‡avikÄ• radassanena aniccasaÃ±Ã±Ä• samuá¹-á¹-hÄ• panatÄ• , senÄ• sanama karonto lajjatÄ«ti pÄ• pakaraá¹‡Ä• rahÄ• bhÄ• vo, pariggahakaraá¹‡Ä• bhÄ• vo, devatÄ• hi channapaá¹-ikkhepo, paribhogasukhatÄ• , rukkhamÅ«lasenÄ• sanassa gatagataá¹-á¹-hÄ• r anapekkhabhÄ• voti iti ime dasa guá¹‡e (Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• na, sumedhakathÄ•) disvÄ• ru vadati. Ä• ha ca ---

``vaá¹‡á¹‡ito \Be 100/ buddhaseá¹-á¹-hena, nissayoti ca bhÄ• sito.

nivÄ• so pavivittassa, rukkhamÅ«lasamo kuto ||

``Ä• vÄ• samaccherahare, devatÄ• paripÄ• lite.

pavivitte vasanto hi, rukkhamÅ«lamhi subbato ||

``abhirattÄ• ni \Ee 78/ nÄ«lÄ• ni, paá¹‡á¸• Å«ni patitÄ• ni ca.

passanto tarupaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni, niccasaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ panÅ«dati ||

``tasmÄ• hi buddhadÄ• yajjaá¹ƒ, bhÄ• vanÄ• bhiratÄ• layaá¹ƒ.

vivittaá¹ƒ nÄ• timaÃ±Ã±eyya, rukkhamÅ«laá¹ƒ vicakkhaá¹‡oâ€™â€™ ti || (Vism I 32).

atha sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• ya diá¹-á¹-hadoso hutvÄ• rukkhamÅ«lasenÄ• viharanto uttaripi cintesi --- ``Ä• hÄ• ratthÄ• ya me gÄ• magamanaá¹ƒ Ä• hÄ• rapariyesana pÄ• rijuÃ±Ã±ena nikkhamitvÄ• Ä• hÄ• ratthÄ• ya pabbajito, Ä• hÄ• rapariyesanamÅ«lassa natthi, yaá¹ƒnÅ«nÄ• haá¹ƒ pavattaphalena yÄ• peyyaâ€™â€™ nti. imaá¹ƒ pana atthavisesa 32-33__._ ``vÄ• pitaá¹ƒ ropitaá¹ƒ dhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, pajahiá¹ƒ niravasesato.

anekaguá¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ, pavattaphalamÄ• diyiâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

tattha \Ne 91/ __vÄ• pita_nti vapitvÄ• nipphannaá¹ƒ. __ropita_nti ropitvÄ• nipphannaá¹ƒ, duvidhÄ• va sassanipphatti, taá¹ƒ duvidhampi attano appicchatÄ• ya pahÄ• ya pavattaphale __pavattaphala_nti sayameva patitaphalaá¹ƒ. __Ä• diyi_nti paribhuÃ±jiá¹ƒ.

``pavattaphalasantuá¹-á¹-ho, aparÄ• yattajÄ«viko.

pahÄ«nÄ• hÄ• raloluppo, hoti cÄ• tuddiso muni ||

``jahÄ• ti rasataá¹‡haÃ±ca, Ä• jÄ«vo tassa sujjhati.

tasmÄ• hi nÄ• timaÃ±Ã±eyya, pavattaphalabhojanaâ€™â€™ nti || (Vism I 26 thokaá¹ƒ visa evaá¹ƒ pavattamÄ• no sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito nacirasseva antosattÄ• he aá¹-á¹-ha samÄ• pa pÄ• puá¹‡i. imamatthaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sentena __ ``tatthappadhÄ• naá¹ƒ_ \Be 101/ __padahiâ€™ tattha __tatthÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ assame. __padhÄ• na_nti vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ, vÄ«riyaÃ±hi padahitabb padhÄ• nabhÄ• vakaraá¹‡ato vÄ• ``padhÄ• naâ€™â€™ nti vuccati. __padahi_nti vÄ«riyam __nissajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame_ti nisajjÄ• ya ca á¹-hÄ• nena ca caá¹…kamena ca.

sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito pana seyyaá¹ƒ paá¹-ikkhipitvÄ• nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kameheva vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sattÄ• habbhantareyeva abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡i. evaá¹ƒ pana ab sumedhatÄ• pase samÄ• pattisukhena vÄ«tinÄ• mente tadÄ• sabbajanasaá¹…gahakaro m Ã±Ä• á¹‡adÄ«paá¹…karo __dÄ«paá¹…karo_ nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke udapÄ• di.

saá¹…khepeneva tassÄ• yamÄ• nupubbikathÄ• --- ayaá¹ƒ kira dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma ma pÅ«retvÄ• vessantarattabhÄ• vasadise attabhÄ• ve á¹-hito pathavikampanÄ• dÄ«ni mahÄ• Ä• yupariyosÄ• ne \Ee 79/ tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tattha yÄ• vatÄ• yukaá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·adevatÄ• hi sannipatitvÄ• --- ``kÄ• lo kho te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, uppajja mÄ• tukucchiyaá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tÄ• rayanto, bujjhassu amataá¹ƒ padaâ€™â€™ nti || (Bv I 67) --- vutte \Ne 92/ tato so devatÄ• naá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• ca paÃ±ca mahÄ• vilokanÄ• ni viloke rammavatÄ«nagare attano yasavibhÅ«tiyÄ• vijitavÄ• sudevassa naradevassa sudevassa n deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ Ä• sÄ• á¸·hipuá¹‡á¹‡amiyÄ• uttarÄ• sÄ• á¸·hanakkhattena paá¹-isan parivÄ• rena parihariyamÄ• no mahÄ• deviyÄ• kucchimhi maá¹‡ikÅ«á¹-agato viya kenaci a vasitvÄ• saliladharavivaragato saradakÄ• lacando viya tassÄ• udarato nikkhami.

dvattiá¹ƒsa pubbanimittÄ• ni tassa pana dÄ«paá¹…karakumÄ• rassa paá¹-isandhikkhaá¹‡epi vijÄ• takkhaá¹‡epi __dvatt pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni pÄ• turahesuá¹ƒ. sabbasabbaÃ±Ã±ubodhisattesu mÄ• tukucchiá¹ƒ okka sambujjhantesu dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattantesÅ«ti imesu \Be 102/ catÅ«su á¹-hÄ• nesu dva pavattanteva. tasmÄ• mayÄ• pÄ• kaá¹-attÄ• dÄ«paá¹…karakumÄ• rassa jÄ• tiyaá¹ƒ dass ``dÄ«paá¹…kare cÄ• rukare kumÄ• re, sivaá¹ƒkare santikareva jÄ• te.

pakampi saá¹…kampi tadÄ• samantÄ• , sahassasaá¹…khyÄ• dasalokadhÄ• tu ||

``cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu, dasasahasseva devatÄ• .

ekasmiá¹ƒ cakkavÄ• á¸·asmiá¹ƒ, tadÄ• sannipatiá¹ƒsu tÄ• ||

``bodhisattaá¹ƒ mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ, jÄ• tamattantu devatÄ• .

paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaá¹‡hiá¹ƒsu, pacchÄ• taá¹ƒ manujÄ• pana ||

``avÄ• ditÄ• kenaci cammanaddhÄ• , supokkharÄ• dundubhiyo ca vÄ«á¹‡Ä• .

aghaá¹-á¹-itÄ• nÄ• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni tasmiá¹ƒ, khaá¹‡e samantÄ• madhuraá¹ƒ raviá¹ƒsu ||

``chijjiá¹ƒsu sabbattha ca bandhanÄ• ni, sayaá¹ƒ vigacchiá¹ƒsu ca sabbarogÄ• .

rÅ«pÄ• ni passiá¹ƒsu ca jÄ• tiandhÄ• , saddaá¹ƒ samantÄ• badhirÄ• suá¹‡iá¹ƒsu ||

``anussatiá¹ƒ jÄ• tijaá¸·Ä• manussÄ• , labhiá¹ƒsu yÄ• naá¹ƒ padasÄ• va paá¹…gulÄ• .

videsayÄ• tÄ• sayameva nÄ• vÄ• , sapaá¹-á¹-anaá¹ƒ sÄ«ghamupÄ• gamiá¹ƒsu ||

``Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ \Ne 93/ \Ee 80/ bhÅ«migataÃ±ca sabbaá¹ƒ, sayaá¹ƒ samantÄ• rata

nibbÄ• yi ghore niraye hutÄ• so, nadÄ«su toyampi ca nappavatti ||

``lokantare \Be 103/ dukkhanirantarepi, pabhÄ• uá¸·Ä• rÄ• vipulÄ• ahosi.

tathÄ• tadÄ• santataraá¹…gamÄ• lo, mahÄ• samuddo madhurodakoyaá¹ƒ ||

``na vÄ• yi vÄ• to pharuso kharo vÄ• , samphullapupphÄ• taravo ahesuá¹ƒ.

viroci cando adhikaá¹ƒ satÄ• ro, na cÄ• pi uá¹‡ho sÅ«riyo ahosi ||

``khagÄ• nabhamhÄ• pi ca rukkhato ca, haá¹-á¹-hÄ• va heá¹-á¹-hÄ• pathaviá¹ƒ bhajiá¹ƒsu mahÄ• catuddÄ«pagato ca megho, pavassi toyaá¹ƒ madhuraá¹ƒ samantÄ• ||

``á¹-hatvÄ• va dibbe bhavane sakasmiá¹ƒ, pasannacittÄ• pana devatÄ• yo.

nacciá¹ƒsu gÄ• yiá¹ƒsu ca vÄ• dayiá¹ƒsu, seá¸·iá¹ƒsu tÄ• keá¸·imakaá¹ƒsu ceva ||

``sayaá¹ƒ kira dvÄ• ramahÄ• kavÄ• á¹-Ä• , khaá¹‡eva tasmiá¹ƒ vivaá¹-Ä• ahesuá¹ƒ.

mahÄ• jane neva khudÄ• pipÄ• sÄ• , pÄ«á¸·esi lokaá¹ƒ kira kaÃ±ci kaÃ±ci ||

``ye niccaverÄ• pana pÄ• á¹‡isaá¹…ghÄ• , te mettacittaá¹ƒ paramaá¹ƒ labhiá¹ƒsu.

kÄ• kÄ• ulÅ«kehi cariá¹ƒsu saddhiá¹ƒ, koá¹‡Ä• varÄ• hehi akaá¹ƒsu keá¸·iá¹ƒ ||

``ghorÄ• pi sappÄ• namukhÄ• pi sappÄ• , kÄ«á¸·iá¹ƒsu kÄ• maá¹ƒ nakulehi saddhiá¹ƒ.

gaá¹‡hiá¹ƒsu majjÄ• rasiresu yÅ«kÄ• , vissatthacittÄ• gharamÅ«sikÄ• pi ||

``buddhantarenÄ• pi \Be 104/ aladdhatoye, pisÄ• caloke vigatÄ• pipÄ• sÄ• .

khujjÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ samacÄ• rukÄ• yÄ• , mÅ«gÄ• ca vÄ• caá¹ƒ madhuraá¹ƒ lapiá¹ƒsu ||

``pasannacittÄ• \Ee 81/ pana pÄ• á¹‡isaá¹…ghÄ• , tadaÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ piyamÄ• lapiá

assÄ• ca hesiá¹ƒsu pahaá¹-á¹-hacittÄ• , gajjiá¹ƒsu mattÄ• varavÄ• raá¹‡Ä• pi ||

``surabhicandanacuá¹‡á¹‡asamÄ• kulÄ• \Ne 94/, kusumakuá¹…kumadhÅ«pasugandhinÄ«

vividhacÄ• rumahaddhajamÄ• linÄ«, dasasahassi ahosi samantatoâ€™â€™ ti || tatra hissa dasasahassilokadhÄ• tukampo sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡apaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pu ekacakkavÄ• á¸·e sannipÄ• to dhammacakkappavattanakÄ• le ekappahÄ• reneva sannipat pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggahaá¹‡aá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ rÅ«pÄ• vac paá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, pacchÄ• manussÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggahaá¹‡aá¹ƒ catunnaá arÅ«pÄ• vacarajjhÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, cammanaddhadundubhÄ mahantiyÄ• dhammabheriyÄ• anusÄ• vanassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, vÄ«á¹‡Ä• bharaá¹‡Ä• na anupubbavihÄ• rapaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, bandhanÄ• naá¹ƒ sayameva chedo as pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, mahÄ• janassa sabbarogavigamo catusaccaphalapaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubba rÅ«padassanaá¹ƒ dibbacakkhupaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, badhirÄ• naá¹ƒ saddassa dibbasotadhÄ• tupaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ.

jÄ• tijaá¸·Ä• naá¹ƒ anussatuppÄ• do catusatipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• napaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá padasÄ• gamanaá¹ƒ caturiddhipÄ• dapaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, videsagatÄ• naá¹ sapaá¹-á¹-anÄ• gamanaá¹ƒ catupaá¹-isambhidÄ• dhigamassa, ratanÄ• naá¹ƒ sayameva vir dhammobhÄ• sapaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa, niraye agginibbÄ• yanaá¹ƒ ekÄ• dasagginibbÄ• yanassa nappavattanaá¹ƒ catuvesÄ• rajjapaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa, lokantare Ä• loko avijjandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ vi Ã±Ä• á¹‡alokadassanassa, mahÄ• samuddassa \Be 105/ madhurodakatÄ• nibbÄ• narasen avÄ• yanaá¹ƒ dvÄ• saá¹-á¹-hidiá¹-á¹-higatabhedanassa, tarÅ«naá¹ƒ pupphitabhÄ• vo vimutt pupphitabhÄ• vassa pubbanimittaá¹ƒ.

candassa ativirocanaá¹ƒ bahujanakantatÄ• ya pubbanimittaá¹ƒ, sÅ«riyassa nÄ• tiuá¹‡havir kÄ• yikacetasikasukhuppattiyÄ• , khagÄ• naá¹ƒ nagÄ• dÄ«hi pathavigamanaá¹ƒ ovÄ• daá¹ saraá¹‡agamanassa, mahato catuddÄ«pagatameghassa pavassanaá¹ƒ mahato dhammava sakasakabhavanesveva á¹-hatvÄ• naccÄ• dÄ«hi kÄ«á¸·anaá¹ƒ buddhabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ patvÄ• dvÄ• rakavÄ• á¹-Ä• naá¹ƒ sayameva vivaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gikamaggadvÄ• ravivaraá abhÄ• vo vimuttisukhena sukhitabhÄ• vassa, verÄ«naá¹ƒ mettacittapaá¹-ilÄ• bho catubrahm dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuyÄ• \Ee 82/ ekadhajamÄ• litÄ• ariyadhajamÄ• litÄ• ya pubbanimitt sesabuddhaguá¹‡apaá¹-ilÄ• bhassa pubbanimittÄ• nÄ«ti veditabbÄ• .

atha \Ne 95/ __dÄ«paá¹…karakumÄ• ro_ mahatiyÄ• sampattiyÄ• paricÄ• riyamÄ• no anu patvÄ• tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ utÅ«naá¹ƒ anucchavikesu tÄ«su pÄ• sÄ• desu devalokasiriá¹ƒ viya rajj uyyÄ• nakÄ«á¸·Ä• ya gamanasamaye anukkamena jiá¹‡á¹‡abyÄ• dhimatasaá¹…khÄ• te ta saÃ±jÄ• tasaá¹ƒvego nivattitvÄ• sudassananagarasadisavibhavasobhaá¹ƒ rammavatÄ« nÄ nagaraá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• puna catutthavÄ• re hatthÄ• cariyaá¹ƒ pakkosÄ• petvÄ• etadavoca - uyyÄ• nadassanatthÄ• ya nikkhamissÄ• mi hatthiyÄ• nÄ• ni kappÄ• pehÄ«â€™â€™ ti. so ` paá¹-isuá¹‡itvÄ• caturÄ• sÄ«tihatthisahassÄ• ni kappÄ• pesi. atha vissakammo nÄ• ma de nÄ• nÄ• virÄ• gavasananivÄ• sanaá¹ƒ Ä• mukkamuttÄ• hÄ• rakeyÅ«raá¹ƒ ruciranavakanakakaá¹-akamakuá¹-akuá¹‡á¸• aladharaá¹ƒ paramasurabhikusumamÄ• lasam samalaá¹…kari kira. atha dÄ«paá¹…karakumÄ• ro devakumÄ• ro viya caturÄ• sÄ«tiyÄ• ha hatthikkhandhavaragato mahatÄ• balakÄ• yena parivuto ratijananaá¹ƒ uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ pavisitv oruyha taá¹ƒ uyyÄ• namanusaÃ±caritvÄ• paramaruciradassane sakahadayasÄ«tale silÄ• t cittaá¹ƒ uppÄ• desi \Be 106/. taá¹…khaá¹‡aÃ±Ã±eva suddhÄ• vÄ• sakhÄ«á¹‡Ä• savo mahÄ samaá¹‡aparikkhÄ• re Ä• dÄ• ya mahÄ• purisassa cakkhupathe pÄ• turahosi.

mahÄ• puriso taá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``kimidaâ€™â€™ nti pucchitvÄ• , ``samaá¹‡aparikkhÄ• roâ€ alaá¹…kÄ• rabhaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ omuÃ±citvÄ• pasÄ• dhanabhaá¹‡á¸• Ä• gÄ• rikassa hatthe d saddhiá¹ƒ makuá¹-ena kese chinditvÄ• antalikkhe Ä• kÄ• se ukkhipi. atha sakko devarÄ• jÄ suvaá¹‡á¹‡acaá¹…koá¹-akena taá¹ƒ kesamakuá¹-aá¹ƒ Ä• dÄ• ya sinerumuddhani tiyojanap indanÄ«lamaá¹‡imayaá¹ƒ __makuá¹-acetiyaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma akÄ• si. atha mahÄ• puriso devad kÄ• sÄ• vaá¹ƒ paridahitvÄ• sÄ• á¹-akayugaá¹ƒ Ä• kÄ• se khipi. taá¹ƒ brahmÄ• paá¹-iggah dvÄ• dasayojanikaá¹ƒ sabbaratanamayaá¹ƒ cetiyamakÄ• si. dÄ«paá¹…karakumÄ• raá¹ƒ pa purisakoá¹-i anupabbaji. tÄ• ya pana parisÄ• ya parivuto bodhisatto dasa mÄ• se padhÄ• na visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya aÃ±Ã±ataraá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya pÄ• visi.

tasmiá¹ƒ kira nagare taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ balikaraá¹‡atthÄ• ya nirudakapÄ• yÄ• s pana mahÄ• sattassa saparisassa piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya paviá¹-á¹-hassa manussÄ• adaá¹ƒsu. taá koá¹-isaá¹…khyÄ• yÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ pariyattaá¹ƒ ahosi. mahÄ• purisassa pana pat pakkhipiá¹ƒsu. taá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• tattheva \Ee 83/ sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ paá¹-isallÄ• nÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ vissajjetvÄ• __sunandena_ nÄ• mÄ• jÄ«vakena tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• \Ne 96/ pipphalibodhirukkhamÅ«laá¹ƒ gantvÄ• tiá¹‡asanthara navutihatthaá¹ƒ bodhikkhandhaá¹ƒ piá¹-á¹-hito katvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• caturaá adhiá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• bodhirukkhamÅ«le nisÄ«di.

tato mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• rattiyÄ• paá¹-hamayÄ• me pubbenivÄ• saá¹ƒ anussaritvÄ dibbacakkhuá¹ƒ visodhetvÄ• pacchimayÄ• me anulomapaá¹-ilomavasena paccayÄ• kÄ• ra Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nacatutthajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• tato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya paÃ±casu khandhes udayabbayavasena samapaÃ±Ã±Ä• sa lakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni disvÄ• yÄ• va gotrabhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá aruá¹‡odaye ariyamaggena sakalabuddhaguá¹‡e paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• buddhasÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ n bodhisamÄ«peyeva vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• brahmuno dhammadesanaá¹ƒ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±Ä• ya __su pavattetvÄ• koá¹-isatÄ• naá¹ƒ devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yetvÄ• catud dhammavassaá¹ƒ \Be 107/ vassento mahÄ• janassa bandhanamokkhaá¹ƒ karonto janapad tadÄ• kira sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito samÄ• pattisukhena vÄ«tinÄ• mento neva pathavikampan

tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<34> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ me siddhippattassa, vasÄ«bhÅ«tassa sÄ• sane.

dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma jino, uppajji lokanÄ• yako ||

<35> á¹• 21 ``uppajjante ca jÄ• yante, bujjhante dhammadesane.

caturo nimitte nÄ• ddasaá¹ƒ, jhÄ• naratisamappitoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __eva_nti idÄ• ni vattabbaá¹ƒ nidasseti. __me_ti mama. __siddhippattassÄ• _ti paÃ±cÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• siddhippattassa. __vasÄ«bhÅ«tassÄ• _ti bhÅ«tavasissa, ciá¹‡á¹‡avas __sÄ• sane_ti vivekamÄ• nasÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• sane, anÄ• daralakkhaá¹‡e sÄ• mivacanaá¹ƒ da kilesÄ• rijayanena jino.

__uppajjante_ti paá¹-isandhiggahaá¹‡e. __jÄ• yante_ti mÄ• tukucchito nikkhamane. __bujjh sammÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ abhisambujjhante. __dhammadesane_ti dhammacakkappavattane. _ cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni. dÄ«paá¹…karassa dasabalassa paá¹-isandhi-jÄ• ti-bodhi-dhammacakk á¹-hÄ• nesu dasasahassilokadhÄ• tukampanÄ• dÄ«ni nimittÄ• nÄ«ti attho. etthÄ• ha --- tÄ• kasmÄ• \Ne 97/ ``caturo nimitteâ€™â€™ ti vuttaá¹ƒ, ayuttaá¹ƒ nanÅ«ti? nÄ• yuttaá¹ƒ, yadip nimittÄ• ni, catÅ«su á¹-hÄ• nesu pana pavattattÄ• ``caturo nimitteâ€™â€™ ti vuttaá¹ƒ. __n nÄ• ddasiá¹ƒ. idÄ• ni tesaá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ nimittÄ• naá¹ƒ adassane kÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ niddisanto ``jhÄ• naratisamappitoâ€™â€™ _ti Ä• ha. __jhÄ• naratÄ«_ti samÄ• pattisukhassetaá¹ƒ adh samappitattÄ• samaá¹…gÄ«bhÅ«tattÄ• tÄ• ni nimittÄ• ni nÄ• ddasanti attho.

atha tasmiá¹ƒ kÄ• le dÄ«paá¹…karadasabalo catÅ«hi khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savasatasahassehi parivu caramÄ• no paramarammaá¹ƒ rammaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ patvÄ• __sudassana_mahÄ• rammanagaravÄ• sino ``dÄ«paá¹…karo kira dasabalo anuttaraá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ pa anupubbena \Be 108/ cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• no rammanagaraá¹ƒ patvÄ• sudassanamahÄ• sutvÄ• sappiÄ• dÄ«ni bhesajjÄ• ni gahetvÄ• bhuttapÄ• tarÄ• sÄ• suddhuttarÄ• saá¹…gÄ buddho tenupasaá¹…kamiá¹ƒsu, upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• satthÄ• raá¹ƒ vanditvÄ• pupphÄ• dÄ nisÄ«ditvÄ• atimadhuraá¹ƒ dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• svÄ• tanÄ• ya bhagavantaá¹ƒ nimant dasabalaá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• pakkamiá¹ƒsu.

te punadivase asadisamahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ sajjetvÄ• maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• vimalakom catujjÄ• tigandhena paribhaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• lÄ• japaÃ±camÄ• ni surabhikusumÄ• ni catÅ«su koá¹‡esu sÄ«talamadhuravÄ• ripuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• cÄ• á¹-iyo á¹-hapetvÄ• kadalipaá¹‡á¹ maá¹‡á¸• apopari jayasumanakusumasadisaá¹ƒ paramaruciradassanaá¹ƒ celavitÄ• naá¹ƒ b suvaá¹‡á¹‡amaá¹‡irajatatÄ• rakÄ• hi racayitvÄ• tattha gandhadÄ• mapupphadÄ• mapattad dhÅ«pehi duddinaá¹ƒ katvÄ• sakalaÃ±ca taá¹ƒ rammaá¹ƒ rammanagaraá¹ƒ sammaá¹-á¹-ha pupphasamalaá¹…kate puá¹‡á¹‡aghaá¹-e ca á¹-hapÄ• petvÄ• nÄ• nÄ• virÄ• gÄ• dhajapaa mahÄ• vÄ«thiyÄ• ubhosu passesu sÄ• á¹‡ipÄ• kÄ• rehi parikkhipitvÄ• dÄ«paá¹…karadasa alaá¹…karontÄ• udakaparibhinnaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nesu paá¹ƒsuá¹ƒ pakkhipitvÄ• cikkhallakampi p katvÄ• muttÄ• sadisÄ• hi vÄ• lukÄ• hi Ä• kiranti, lÄ• japaÃ±camehi ca pupphehi Ä• kiranti, patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• penti.

atha tasmiá¹ƒ kÄ• le sumedhatÄ• paso attano assamapadato uggantvÄ• rammanagaravÄ• uparibhÄ• gena Ä• kÄ• sena gacchanto te haá¹-á¹-hapahaá¹-á¹-he maggaá¹ƒ sodhente ca a ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho kÄ• raá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti cintetvÄ• sabbesaá¹ƒ passantÄ• naÃ±Ã±eva \Ee 85/\Ne 98/ á¹-hatvÄ• te manusse pucchi --- ``ambho! kassatthÄ• ya tumhe imaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ s vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<36> á¹• 21 ``paccantadesavisaye, nimantetvÄ• tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

tassa Ä• gamanaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, sodhenti tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• ||

<37> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, nikkhamitvÄ• sakassamÄ• .

dhunanto vÄ• kacÄ«rÄ• ni, gacchÄ• mi ambare tadÄ• ||

<38> á¹• 21 ``vedajÄ• taá¹ƒ \Be 109/ janaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ pamoditaá¹ƒ

orohitvÄ• na gaganÄ• , manusse pucchi tÄ• vade ||

<39> á¹• 21 ``tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-ho pamudito, vedajÄ• to mahÄ• jano.

kassa sodhÄ«yati maggo, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __paccantadesavisaye_ti majjhimadesasseva ekapasse paccantadesasaÃ±Ã±ite jan magga_nti tena Ä• gantabbaá¹ƒ magganti attho. __ahaá¹ƒ tena samayenÄ• _ti ahaá¹ƒ tasm cetaá¹ƒ karaá¹‡avacanaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. __sakassamÄ• _ti attano assamapadato nik odhunanto. __ ``tena samayenaâ€™â€™ ca, ``tadÄ• â€™â€™ cÄ• _ti imesaá¹ƒ dvinnaá¹ƒ purimassa nikkhamanakiriyÄ• ya pacchimassa ca gamanakiriyÄ• ya saddhiá¹ƒ sambandho punaruttidosÄ• na muccati. __tadÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ samaye.

__vedajÄ• ta_nti saÃ±jÄ• tasomanassaá¹ƒ. __tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ pamodita_nti imÄ• n aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±avevacanÄ• ni aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±assa atthadÄ«panÄ• ni. atha vÄ• sukhena __haá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, _ pÄ• mojjena __pamuditaá¹ƒ_. __orohitvÄ• nÄ• _ti otaritvÄ• . __manusse pucchi. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __tÄ• vade_ti tadÄ• , taá¹…khaá¹‡eyevÄ• ti attho. idÄ• ni dassentena __ ``tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-ho pamuditoâ€™â€™ _tiÄ• di vuttaá¹ƒ. tattha ayaá¹ƒ ma tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-ho pamoditahadayo hutvÄ• maggaá¹ƒ sodheti, kiá¹ƒ kÄ• raá¹‡Ä• sodhet sodhetÄ«ti? evaá¹ƒ ``sodhetiâ€™â€™ saddaá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• attho daá¹-á¹-habbo, itarathÄ• __sodhÄ«yatÄ«_ti suddhabhÄ• vo karÄ«yati. __maggo aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yana_nti ma evaá¹ƒ \Ne 99/ tena sumedhatÄ• pasena puá¹-á¹-hÄ• te manussÄ• Ä• haá¹ƒsu --- ``bhant jÄ• nÄ• tha dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma buddho anuttaraá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• pava janapadacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• no anukkamena amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ patvÄ• sudassana mayaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ nimantayitvÄ• tasseva buddhassa bhagavato Ä• gamanama taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito cintesi --- ``buddhoti kho panesa ghosopi dullabho, page hi mayÄ• pi imehi manussehi saddhiá¹ƒ dasabalassa Ä• gamanamaggaá¹ƒ sodhetuá¹ƒ vaá manusse \Be 110/ Ä• ha --- ``sace, bho, tumhe imaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ buddhassa sodhetha, may detha, ahampi tumhehi saddhiá¹ƒ buddhassa maggaá¹ƒ sodhessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tato te sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• --- ``ayaá¹ƒ sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito mahiddhiko mahÄ• nubhÄ• voâ€™â€ dubbisodhanaá¹ƒ udakasambhinnaá¹ƒ ativiya visamaá¹ƒ ekaá¹ƒ okÄ• saá¹ƒ sallakkhetvÄ• tumhe sodhetha alaá¹…karotha cÄ• â€™â€™ ti adaá¹ƒsu. tato sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito buddh uppÄ• detvÄ• cintesi --- ``ahaá¹ƒ pana imaá¹ƒ okÄ• saá¹ƒ iddhiyÄ• paramadassanÄ«yaá¹ kate pana maá¹ƒ na paritosessati. ajja pana mayÄ• kÄ• yaveyyÄ• vaccaá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹ paá¹ƒsuá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• taá¹ƒ padesaá¹ƒ pÅ«reti.

tassa pana tasmiá¹ƒ padese asodhite vippakateyeva rammanagaravÄ• sino manussÄ• bha ``niá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ, bhante, bhattaâ€™â€™ nti. evaá¹ƒ tehi kÄ• le Ä• rocite dasabalo jayasumanakusumasadisavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ dupaá¹-á¹-acÄ«varaá¹ƒ timaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ paá¹-icch tassupari suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• maá¹…gena jayasumanakusumakalÄ• paá¹ƒ parikkhipanto viya kÄ• yabandhanaá¹ƒ bandhitvÄ• kanakagirisikharamatthake lÄ• khÄ• rasaá¹ƒ parisiÃ±canto pavÄ• á¸·ajÄ• lena parikkhipanto viya ca suvaá¹‡á¹‡agghikaá¹ƒ rattakambalena paá¹-imuÃ± saradasamayarajanikaraá¹ƒ rattavalÄ• hakena paá¹-icchÄ• dento viya ca lÄ• khÄ• rasena tintakiá¹ƒsukakusumasadisavaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ rattavarapaá¹ƒsukÅ«lacÄ«varaá¹ƒ pÄ• rupitvÄ• g kaÃ±canaguhato sÄ«ho viya nikkhamitvÄ• gandhakuá¹-ipamukhe aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. atha sabbe pattacÄ«varamÄ• dÄ• ya bhagavantaá¹ƒ parivÄ• rayiá¹ƒsu. te pana parivÄ• retvÄ• á¹-hitÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ ---

``appicchÄ• pana santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• , vattÄ• ro vacanakkhamÄ• .

pavivittÄ• asaá¹ƒsaá¹-á¹-hÄ• , vinÄ«tÄ• pÄ• pagarahino ||

``sabbepi sÄ«lasampannÄ• , samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovidÄ• .

paÃ±Ã±Ä• vimuttisampannÄ• , tipaÃ±cacaraá¹‡Ä• yutÄ• ||

``khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• \Ne 100/ vasippattÄ• , iddhimanto yasassino.

santindriyÄ• damappattÄ• , suddhÄ• khÄ«á¹‡apunabbhavÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

iti \Be 111/ \Ee 87/ bhagavÄ• sayaá¹ƒ vÄ«tarÄ• go vÄ«tarÄ• gehi vÄ«tadoso vÄ«tadosehi parivuto ativiya virocittha. atha satthÄ• mahÄ• nubhÄ• vÄ• naá¹ƒ khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ catÅ«hi satasahassehi parivuto marugaá¹‡aparivuto dasasatanayano viya brahmagaá¹‡apa viya ca aparimitasamayasamupacitakusalabalajanitÄ• ya anopamÄ• ya buddhalÄ«á¸·Ä• ya saradasamayarajanikaro viya ca gaganatalaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ alaá¹…katapaá¹-iyattaá¹ƒ p ``suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ya pabhÄ• ya dhÄ«ro, suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡e kira maggarukkhe.

suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡e kusume karonto, suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡o paá¹-ipajji maggaá¹ƒâ€™â€ sumedhatÄ• pasopi tena alaá¹…katapaá¹-iyattena maggena Ä• gacchantassa dÄ«paá¹…ka dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡apaá¹-imaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ asÄ«tiyÄ• anubyaÃ±janehi anura parikkhepaá¹ƒ sassirikaá¹ƒ indanÄ«lamaá¹‡isadisaá¹ƒ Ä• kÄ• se nÄ• nappakÄ• rÄ• vijjulat chabbaá¹‡á¹‡abuddharasmiyo vissajjentaá¹ƒ rÅ«pasobhaggappattaá¹ƒ attabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ akkh

--- ``ajja mayÄ• dasabalassa jÄ«vitapariccÄ• gaá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti, ``mÄ akkami, maá¹‡imayaphalakasetuá¹ƒ akkamanto viya saddhiá¹ƒ catÅ«hi khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savasat piá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ akkamanto gacchatu, taá¹ƒ me bhavissati dÄ«gharattaá¹ƒ hitÄ• ya sukhÄ• yÄ• ajinajaá¹-Ä• vÄ• kacÄ«rÄ• ni kÄ• á¸·avaá¹‡á¹‡e kalale pattharitvÄ• tattheva kalalapiá¹-á¹-h vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<40> á¹• 21 ``te me puá¹-á¹-hÄ• viyÄ• kaá¹ƒsu, buddho loke anuttaro.

dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma jino, uppajji lokanÄ• yako.

tassa sodhÄ«yati maggo, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaá¹ƒ ||

<41> á¹• 21 ``buddhoti vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na, pÄ«ti uppajji tÄ• vade.

buddho buddhoti kathayanto, somanassaá¹ƒ pavedayiá¹ƒ ||

<42> á¹• 21 ``tattha \Be 112/ \Ne 101/ á¹-hatvÄ• vicintesiá¹ƒ, tuá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• na

idha bÄ«jÄ• ni ropissaá¹ƒ, khaá¹‡o ve mÄ• upaccagÄ• ||

<43> á¹• 21 ``yadi buddhassa sodhetha, ekokÄ• saá¹ƒ dadÄ• tha me.

ahampi sodhayissÄ• mi, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaá¹ƒ ||

<44> á¹• 21 ``adaá¹ƒsu \Ee 88/ te mamokÄ• saá¹ƒ, sodhetuá¹ƒ aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

buddho buddhoti cintento, maggaá¹ƒ sodhemahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<45> á¹• 21 ``aniá¹-á¹-hite mamokÄ• se, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni.

catÅ«hi satasahassehi, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±ehi tÄ• dihi.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, paá¹-ipajji aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ jino ||

<46> á¹• 21 ``paccuggamanÄ• vattanti, vajjanti bheriyo bahÅ«.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, sÄ• dhukÄ• raá¹ƒ pavattayuá¹ƒ ||

<47> á¹• 21 ``devÄ• manusse passanti, manussÄ• pi ca devatÄ• .

ubhopi te paÃ±jalikÄ• , anuyanti tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<48> á¹• 21 ``devÄ• dibbehi turiyehi, manussÄ• mÄ• nusehi ca.

ubhopi te vajjayantÄ• , anuyanti tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<49> á¹• 21 ``dibbaá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ okiranti, Ä• kÄ• sanabhagatÄ• marÅ« ||

<50> á¹• 21 ``dibbaá¹ƒ candanacuá¹‡á¹‡aÃ±ca, varagandhaÃ±ca kevalaá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ okiranti, Ä• kÄ• sanabhagatÄ• marÅ« ||

<51> á¹• 21 ``campakaá¹ƒ saralaá¹ƒ nÄ«paá¹ƒ, nÄ• gapunnÄ• gaketalaá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ ukkhipanti, bhÅ«mitalagatÄ• narÄ• ||

<52> á¹• 21 ``kese \Ne 102/ muÃ±citvÄ• haá¹ƒ tattha, vÄ• kacÄ«raÃ±ca cammakaá¹ƒ.

kalale pattharitvÄ• na, avakujjo nipajjahaá¹ƒ ||

<53> á¹• 21 ``akkamitvÄ• na maá¹ƒ buddho, saha sissehi gacchatu.

mÄ• naá¹ƒ kalale akkamittha, hitÄ• ya me bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Be 113/ __viyÄ• kaá¹ƒsÅ«_ti byÄ• kariá¹ƒsu. ``dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma jino, tassa so tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __somanassaá¹ƒ pavedayi_nti somanassamanubhavinti attho. __tattha á¹-ha Ä• kÄ• sato otari, tattheva á¹-hatvÄ• . __saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso_ti pÄ«tivimhitamÄ• naso. __i dÄ«paá¹…kare puÃ±Ã±akkhette. __bÄ«jÄ• nÄ«_ti kusalabÄ«jÄ• ni. __ropissa_nti ropissÄ• aá¹-á¹-hakkhaá¹‡avirahito navamo khaá¹‡asannipÄ• to. atidullabho so mayÄ• paá¹-iladdho nipÄ• tamattaá¹ƒ. __mÄ• upaccagÄ• _ti so mÄ• accagamÄ• , mÄ• atikkamÄ«ti attho. __d __te_ti ye me puá¹-á¹-hÄ• manussÄ• , teti attho. __sodhemahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• _ti sodhemi ahaá __aniá¹-á¹-hite_ti apariyosite vippakate. __khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehÄ«_ti ettha cattÄ• ro Ä• savÄ• bhavÄ• savo, diá¹-á¹-hÄ• savo, avijjÄ• savoti (Nidd II jatukaá¹‡á¹‡imÄ• á¹‡avapucchÄ• nidd Ä• savÄ• yesaá¹ƒ khÄ«á¹‡Ä• pahÄ«nÄ• samucchinnÄ• paá¹-ippassaddhÄ• abhabbuppa te khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• , tehi khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi. khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savattÄ• yeva __vimalehi_.

__devÄ• manusse passantÄ«_ti ettha devÄ• naá¹ƒ manussadassane vattabbaá¹ƒ natthi, p yathÄ• manussÄ• idha á¹-hatvÄ• passanti, evaá¹ƒ devÄ• pi manusse passantÄ«ti attho. _
__ubhopÄ«_ti ubho devamanussÄ• . __paÃ±jalikÄ• _ti katapaÃ±jalikÄ• , ubhopi hatthe siras attho. __anuyanti tathÄ• gata_nti tathÄ• gatassa pacchato yanti, anuyoge sati sÄ• miatthe u hotÄ«ti lakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ``anuyanti tathÄ• gataâ€™â€™ nti. __vajjayantÄ• _ti v __mandÄ• rava_nti mandÄ• ravapupphaá¹ƒ. __disodisa_nti disato disato. __okirantÄ«_ti a __Ä• kÄ• sanabhagatÄ• _ti Ä• kÄ• sasaá¹…khÄ• te nabhasi gatÄ• . atha vÄ• Ä• kÄ• saá¹ƒ ti hi saggo vuccati. __marÅ«_ti amarÄ• . __sarala_nti saralatarukusumaá¹ƒ. __nÄ«pa_nti ka __nÄ• gapunnÄ• gaketaka_nti nÄ• gapunnÄ• gaketakapupphÄ• ni ca. __bhÅ«mitalagatÄ• _ __kese_ \Ne 103/ __muÃ±citvÄ• ha_nti ahaá¹ƒ kese baddhÄ• kalÄ• pakuá¹-ilajaá¹-Ä• mu attho. __tatthÄ• _ti mayhaá¹ƒ dinne okÄ• se. __cammaka_nti cammakkhaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ. __ka __avakujjo_ti adhomukho hutvÄ• . __nipajjaha_nti nipajjiá¹ƒ \Be 114/ ahaá¹ƒ. __mÄ• na_nt paá¹-isedhatthe nipÄ• to. __na_nti padapÅ«raá¹‡atthe nipÄ• to, buddho kalale mÄ• akkam me bhavissatÄ«_ti taá¹ƒ kalale anakkamanaá¹ƒ dÄ«gharattaá¹ƒ mama hitatthÄ• ya bhaviss bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho.

tato \Ee 90/ sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito kalalapiá¹-á¹-he nipanno evaá¹ƒ cintesi --- ``sacÄ• haá¹ƒ sabbakilese jhÄ• petvÄ• saá¹…ghanavako hutvÄ• rammanagaraá¹ƒ paviseyyaá¹ƒ, aÃ±Ã± jhÄ• petvÄ• nibbÄ• nappattiyÄ• kiccaá¹ƒ natthi, yaá¹ƒnÅ«nÄ• haá¹ƒ dÄ«paá¹…karadasab patvÄ• dhammanÄ• vaá¹ƒ Ä• ropetvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsÄ• rasÄ• garÄ• uttÄ• retvÄ idaá¹ƒ me patirÅ«paâ€™â€™ nti. tato aá¹-á¹-ha dhamme samodhÄ• netvÄ• buddhabhÄ• v nipajji. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<54> á¹• 21 ``pathaviyaá¹ƒ nipannassa, evaá¹ƒ me Ä• si cetaso.

icchamÄ• no ahaá¹ƒ ajja, kilese jhÄ• paye mama ||

<55> á¹• 21 ``kiá¹ƒ me aÃ±Ã±Ä• tavesena, dhammaá¹ƒ sacchikatenidha.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , buddho hessaá¹ƒ sadevake ||

<56> á¹• 21 ``kiá¹ƒ me ekena tiá¹‡á¹‡ena, purisena thÄ• madassinÄ• .

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , santÄ• ressaá¹ƒ sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<57> á¹• 21 ``iminÄ• me adhikÄ• rena, katena purisuttame.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , tÄ• remi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<58> á¹• 21 ``saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• , viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• tayo bhave.

dhammanÄ• vaá¹ƒ samÄ• ruyha, santÄ• ressaá¹ƒ sadevakaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __pathaviyaá¹ƒ nipannassÄ• _ti puthaviyÄ• nipannassa. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. _

parivitakko \Ne 104/ ahosÄ«ti attho. ``evaá¹ƒ me Ä• si cetanÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __i Ä• kaá¹…khamÄ• no. __kilese_ti kilissanti upatÄ• pentÄ«ti kilesÄ• , rÄ• gÄ• dayo dasa. __j mama kilese jhÄ• paye ahanti attho.

__ki_nti paá¹-ikkhepavacanaá¹ƒ. __aÃ±Ã±Ä• tavesenÄ• _ti apÄ• kaá¹-avesena, aviÃ±Ã±Ä pana bhikkhÅ« viya Ä• savakkhayaá¹ƒ katvÄ• kiá¹ƒ, buddhakare dhamme \Be 115/ pÅ«ret paá¹-isandhijÄ• tibodhidhammacakkappavattanesu mahÄ• pathavikampanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• bud tÄ• retÄ• , mutto mocetÄ• bhaveyyanti adhippÄ• yo. __sadevake_ti sadevake loke.

__thÄ• madassinÄ• _ti attano thÄ• mabalaá¹ƒ passamÄ• nena. __santÄ• ressa_nti santÄ• 91/ sadevakaá¹ƒ sattanikÄ• yaá¹ƒ, sadevakaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ vÄ• . __adhikÄ• renÄ• _ti adhivisiá buddhassa mama jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ pariccajitvÄ• kalalapiá¹-á¹-he sayanenÄ• dhikÄ• renÄ• ti attho __saá¹ƒsÄ• rasota_nti kammakilesavasena yonigativiÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹-á¹-hitinavasattÄ• vÄ• saá¹ƒsaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsÄ• ro. yathÄ• ha --- ``khandhÄ• naÃ±ca paá¹-ipÄ• á¹-i, dhÄ• tuÄ• yatanÄ• naÃ±ca.

abbocchinnaá¹ƒ vattamÄ• nÄ• , saá¹ƒsÄ• roti pavuccatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Vism II 619; Sv II 9 apasÄ• danÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Spk II 2.60; Mp II 4.199; Dhs-a nidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Vibh-a 226 s II 523; Ud-a 39; It-a 14, 58; Th-a I 67, 99; Nidd II-a 6; Paá¹-is-a II 1.117).

saá¹ƒsÄ• ro ca so sotaá¹ƒ ceti saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ. atha vÄ• sa __saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ, _ saá¹ƒsÄ• rakÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ taá¹‡hÄ• sotaá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• ti attho. __t kÄ• marÅ«pÄ• rÅ«pabhave. tibhavanibbattakakammakilesÄ• tayo bhavÄ• ti adhippetÄ• . _ aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gikaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ. so hi caturoghuttaraá¹‡aá¹-á¹-hena ``dhammanÄ• vÄ• â€™ __samÄ• ruyhÄ• _ti Ä• ruyha. __santÄ• ressa_nti santÄ• ressÄ• mi. yasmÄ• pana buddha <59> á¹• 21 ``manussattaá¹ƒ \Ne 105/ liá¹…gasampatti, hetu satthÄ• radassanaá¹ƒ.

pabbajjÄ• guá¹‡asampatti, adhikÄ• ro ca chandatÄ• .

aá¹-á¹-hadhammasamodhÄ• nÄ• , abhinÄ«hÄ• ro samijjhatiâ€™â€™ ||

tattha __manussatta_nti manussattabhÄ• veyeva á¹-hatvÄ• buddhattaá¹ƒ patthentassa pa nÄ• gajÄ• tiÄ• dÄ«su á¹-hitÄ• naá¹ƒ. kasmÄ• ti ce? ahetukabhÄ• vato.

__liá¹…gasampattÄ«_ti manussattabhÄ• ve vattamÄ• nassÄ• pi purisaliá¹…ge á¹-hitasseva itthiyÄ• vÄ• paá¹‡á¸• akanapuá¹ƒsakaubhatobyaÃ±janakÄ• naá¹ƒ vÄ• samijjhati \Be 116/ lakkhaá¹‡apÄ• ripÅ«riyÄ• abhÄ• vato. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ --- ``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• nametaá¹ƒ, bhikkhav itthÄ« arahaá¹ƒ assa sammÄ• sambuddhoâ€™â€™ ti (MN III 130; AN a I 279; Vibh 809) vit itthiliá¹…ge á¹-hitassa manussajÄ• tikassÄ• pi patthanÄ• na samijjhati.

__hetÅ«_ti purisassÄ• pi tasmiá¹ƒ attabhÄ• ve arahattappattiyÄ• hetusampannasseva pat itarassa.

__satthÄ• radassana_nti sace jÄ«vamÄ• nakabuddhasseva santike pattheti patthanÄ• sar bhagavati cetiyassa santike vÄ• bodhirukkhamÅ«le vÄ• paá¹-imÄ• ya vÄ• paccekabuddha santike patthanÄ• na samijjhati. kasmÄ• ? bhabbÄ• bhabbake Ã±atvÄ• kammavipÄ• kapa paricchinditvÄ• byÄ• kÄ• tuá¹ƒ asamatthattÄ• . tasmÄ• buddhassa santikeyeva patthanÄ• __pabbajjÄ• _ti buddhassa bhagavato santike patthentassÄ• pi kammakiriyavÄ• dÄ«su tÄ• pabbajitasseva patthanÄ• samijjhati, no gihiliá¹…ge á¹-hitassa. kasmÄ• ? pabbajitÄ• yeva h sambodhiá¹ƒ adhigacchanti, na gahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• . tasmÄ• Ä• dimhi paá¹‡idhÄ• nakÄ• lepi pa __guá¹‡asampattÄ«_ti pabbajitassÄ• pi aá¹-á¹-hasamÄ• pattilÄ• bhino paÃ±cÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±as imÄ• ya guá¹‡asampattiyÄ• virahitassa. kasmÄ• ? nigguá¹‡assa tadabhÄ• vato.

__adhikÄ• ro_ti \Ne 106/ guá¹‡asampannenÄ• pi yena attano jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ pa iminÄ• adhikÄ• rena sampannasseva samijjhati, na itarassa.

__chandatÄ• _ti abhinÄ«hÄ• rasampannassÄ• pi yassa buddhakÄ• rakadhammÄ• naá¹ƒ a ussÄ• ho ca pariyeá¹-á¹-hi ca, tasseva samijjhati, na itarassa. tatridaá¹ƒ chandamahantatÄ• sace hi evamassa, ``yo pana sakalacakkavÄ• á¸·agabbhaá¹ƒ ekodakÄ«bhÅ«taá¹ƒ attano bÄ pÄ• raá¹ƒ gantuá¹ƒ samattho, so buddhattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡Ä• ti. yo panimaá¹ƒ attano dukkara imaá¹ƒ uttaritvÄ• pÄ• raá¹ƒ gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ â€™ ti evaá¹ƒ mahatÄ• chandena us patthanÄ• samijjhati, na itarassa (Sn-a I khaggavisÄ• á¹‡asuttavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Ap-a I dÅ«re sumedhakathÄ• ; Cp-a pakiá¹‡á¹‡akakathÄ•).

sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito \Be 117/ pana ime aá¹-á¹-ha dhamme samodhÄ• netvÄ• va buddhabl nipajji. dÄ«paá¹…karopi bhagavÄ• Ä• gantvÄ• sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• itassa sÄ«sabhÄ• ge á¹-nipannaá¹ƒ sumedhatÄ• pasaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``ayaá¹ƒ tÄ• paso buddhattÄ• ya abhinÄ«hÄ• r ijjhissati nu kho etassa patthanÄ• , udÄ• hu noâ€™â€™ ti anÄ• gataá¹ƒsaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ pes ``ito kappasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• ni cattÄ• ri asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni atikkamitvÄ• gotamo nÄ• r ti Ã±atvÄ• á¹-hitakova parisamajjhe byÄ• kÄ• si --- ``passatha no, tumhe bhikkhave, imaá¹ƒ tÄ• pasaá¹ƒ kalalapiá¹-á¹-he nipannaâ€™â€™ nti. ``evaá¹ƒ, bhanteâ€™â€™ ti. ayaá¹ƒ bud katvÄ• nipanno, samijjhissati imassa tÄ• pasassa patthanÄ• , ayaÃ±hi ito kappasatasahass asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• naá¹ƒ matthake gotamo nÄ• ma buddho loke bhavissati. tasmiá¹ƒ panass nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ nivÄ• so bhavissati, mahÄ• mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma devÄ« mÄ• tÄ• , suddhoda kolito ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , Ä• nando nÄ• ma upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, khemÄ• ca uppalavaá¹‡a bhavissanti \Ee 93/. ayaá¹ƒ paripakkaÃ±Ä• á¹‡o hutvÄ• mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkham padahitvÄ• nigrodhamÅ«le sujÄ• tÄ• ya nÄ• ma kumÄ• riyÄ• dinnaá¹ƒ pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paá¹ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ Ä• ruyha assattharukkhamÅ«le abhisambujjhissatÄ«ti

<60> á¹• 21 ``dÄ«paá¹…karo lokavidÅ«, Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho.

ussÄ«sake maá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• na, idaá¹ƒ vacanamabravi ||

<61> á¹• 21 ``passatha \Ne 107/ imaá¹ƒ tÄ• pasaá¹ƒ, jaá¹-ilaá¹ƒ uggatÄ• panaá¹ƒ.

aparimeyyito kappe, buddho loke bhavissati ||

<62> á¹• 21 ``ahÅ« kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ ||

<63> á¹• 21 ``ajapÄ• larukkhamÅ«lasmiá¹ƒ, nisÄ«ditvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

tattha pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paggayha, neraÃ±jaramupehiti ||

<64> á¹• 21 ``neraÃ±jarÄ• ya tÄ«ramhi, pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ ada so jino.

paá¹-iyattavaramaggena, bodhimÅ«lamupehiti ||

<65> á¹• 21 ``tato \Be 118/ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ anuttaro.

assattharukkhamÅ«lamhi, bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<66> á¹• 21 ``imassa janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<67> á¹• 21 ``anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

kolito upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissatimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<68> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• ||

<69> á¹• 21 ``bodhi tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati.

citto ca hatthÄ• á¸·avako, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

uttarÄ• nandamÄ• tÄ• ca, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __lokavidÅ«_ti sabbathÄ• viditalokattÄ• pana lokavidÅ«. bhagavÄ• hi sabhÄ• vato nirodhato nirodhÅ«pÄ• yatoti sabbathÄ• pi lokaá¹ƒ \Ee 94/ avedi aÃ±Ã±Ä• si paá¹-ivijjhi. tas vuccati. yathÄ• ha ---

``tasmÄ• have lokavidÅ« sumedho, lokantagÅ« vÅ«sitabrahmacariyo.

lokassa antaá¹ƒ samitÄ• vi Ã±atvÄ• , nÄ• sÄ«satÄ« lokamimaá¹ƒ paraÃ±cÄ• â€™â€™ ti || api ca tayo lokÄ• --- saá¹…khÄ• raloko, sattaloko, okÄ• salokoti. tattha saá¹…khÄ• raloko paá¹-iccasamuppannÄ• pathaviÄ• dayo dhammÄ• . sattaloko nÄ• ma saÃ±Ã±ino asaÃ±Ã± sattÄ• . okÄ• saloko nÄ• ma sattÄ• naá¹ƒ nivÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ. ime pana tayopi lokÄ• b viditÄ• , tasmÄ• lokavidÅ«ti vuccati. __Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho_ti dÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-ig dakkhiá¹‡eyyattÄ• Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho. __ussÄ«sake maá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• nÄ• _ti man á¹-hatvÄ• . __idaá¹ƒ_ idÄ• ni vattabbaá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ abravÄ«ti attho. __jaá¹-ila_nti jaá¹-Ä• jaá¹-ilo, taá¹ƒ jaá¹-ilaá¹ƒ. __uggatÄ• pana_nti uggatÄ• pasaá¹ƒ. __ahÅ«_ti ahani, athÄ• ti at pÄ• á¹-ho. __kapilavhayÄ• _ti kapilaavhayÄ• abhidhÄ• nÄ• . __rammÄ• _ti ramaá¹‡Ä«yato __ehitÄ«_ti essati gamissati. sesagÄ• thÄ• su uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

tato sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito --- ``mayhaá¹ƒ kira patthanÄ• samijjhissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti saÃ±jÄ• mahÄ• jano dÄ«paá¹…karadasabalassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• --- ``sumedhatÄ• paso kira bud haá¹-á¹-hatuá¹-á¹-ho ahosi. evaÃ±cassa ahosi --- ``yathÄ• nÄ• ma puriso nadiá¹ƒ taranto u tarituá¹ƒ asakkonto heá¹-á¹-hÄ• titthena uttarati, evameva mayaá¹ƒ dÄ«paá¹…karadasabala maggaphalaá¹ƒ alabhamÄ• nÄ• anÄ• gate yadÄ• tvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi, tadÄ• tava s sacchikÄ• tuá¹ƒ samatthÄ• bhaveyyÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti patthanaá¹ƒ akaá¹ƒsu. dÄ«paá¹…k mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ pasaá¹ƒsitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hahi pupphamuá¹-á¹-hÄ«hi pÅ«jetvÄ• padakkhiá¹‡aá catusatasahassÄ• khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• bodhisattaá¹ƒ pupphehi ca gandhehi ca pÅ«jetvÄ• p pakkamiá¹ƒsu. devamanussÄ• pana tatheva pÅ«jetvÄ• vanditvÄ• pakkamiá¹ƒsu.

atha sabbalokamatidÄ«paá¹…karo dÄ«paá¹…karo bhagavÄ• catÅ«hi khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savasata rammanagaravÄ• sÄ«hi pÅ«jiyamÄ• no devatÄ• hi abhivandiyamÄ• no saÃ±jhÄ• ppabhÄ• viya jaá¹…gamamÄ• no anekesu pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyesu \Ee 95/ vattamÄ• nesu tena alaá¹…kat maggena gantvÄ• nÄ• nÄ• surabhikusumagandhavÄ• sitaá¹ƒ cuá¹‡á¹‡asammodagandhaá gandhÄ• nubaddhahadayehi bhamaragaá¹‡ehi gumbagumbÄ• yamÄ• naá¹ƒ dhÅ«pandhak abhirammaá¹ƒ rammanagaraá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• paÃ±Ã±atte mahÄ• rahe buddhÄ• sane yugan saradasamayarucirakararajanikaro timiranikaranidhanakaro kamalavanavikasanakaro divas dasabaladivasakaro nisÄ«di. bhikkhusaá¹…ghopi paá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iyÄ• attano attano pattÄ• sa rammanagaravÄ• sino pana upÄ• sakÄ• saddhÄ• diguá¹‡asampannÄ• nÄ• nÄ• vidhakhaj vaá¹‡á¹‡agandharasasampannaá¹ƒ asadisaá¹ƒ sukhanidÄ• naá¹ƒ dÄ• naá¹ƒ buddhappamu adaá¹ƒsu.

atha \Be 120/ kho bodhisatto dasabalassa byÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ sutvÄ• buddhabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ ka pamuditahadayo sabbesu paá¹-ikkantesu sayanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya --- ``pÄ• ramiyo viciniss puppharÄ• simatthake pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• nisÄ«di. evaá¹ƒ nisinne mahÄ• satte sakaladasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·adevatÄ• sÄ• dhukÄ• raá¹ƒ datvÄ• --- ``ayya sumedhatÄ• porÄ• á¹‡akabodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• --- `pÄ• ramiyo vicinissÄ• mÄ« pubbanimittÄ• ni nÄ• ma paÃ±Ã±Ä• yanti, tÄ• ni sabbÄ• nipi ajja pÄ• tubhÅ«tÄ• ni nissaá¹ƒ bhavissasi, mayametaá¹ƒ jÄ• nÄ• ma --- `yassetÄ• ni nimittÄ• ni paÃ±Ã±Ä• yanti, so ekante tasmÄ• tvaá¹ƒ attano vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• paggaá¹‡hÄ• â€™â€™ ti bodhisattaá¹ abhitthaviá¹ƒsu. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<70> á¹• 21 ``idaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na vacanaá¹ƒ, asamassa mahesino.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, buddhabÄ«jaá¹ƒ kira ayaá¹ƒ ||

<71> á¹• 21 ``ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddÄ• vattanti, apphoá¹-enti hasanti ca.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, dasasahassÄ« sadevakÄ• ||

<72> á¹• 21 ``yadimassa lokanÄ• thassa, virajjhissÄ• ma sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<73> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• manussÄ• nadiá¹ƒ tarantÄ• , paá¹-ititthaá¹ƒ virajjhiya.

heá¹-á¹-hÄ• titthe gahetvÄ• na, uttaranti mahÄ• nadiá¹ƒ ||

<74> á¹• 21 ``evameva mayaá¹ƒ sabbe, yadi muÃ±cÄ• mimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<75> á¹• 21 ``dÄ«paá¹…karo \Ne 110/ \Ee 96/ lokavidÅ«, Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho.

mama kammaá¹ƒ pakittetvÄ• , dakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ pÄ• damuddhari ||

<76> á¹• 21 ``ye tatthÄ• suá¹ƒ jinaputtÄ• , padakkhiá¹‡amakaá¹ƒsu maá¹ƒ.

devÄ• manussÄ• asurÄ• ca, abhivÄ• detvÄ• na pakkamuá¹ƒ ||

<77> á¹• 21 ``dassanaá¹ƒ me atikkante, sasaá¹…ghe lokanÄ• yake.

sayanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• na, pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujiá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<78> á¹• 21 ``sukhena \Be 121/ sukhito homi, pÄ• mojjena pamodito.

pÄ«tiyÄ• ca abhissanno, pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujiá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<79> á¹• 21 ``pallaá¹…kena nisÄ«ditvÄ• , evaá¹ƒ cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

vasÄ«bhÅ«to ahaá¹ƒ jhÄ• ne, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato ||

<80> á¹• 21 ``sahassiyamhi lokamhi, isayo natthi me samÄ• .

asamo iddhidhammesu, alabhiá¹ƒ Ä«disaá¹ƒ sukhaá¹ƒ ||

<81> á¹• 21 ``pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujane mayhaá¹ƒ, dasasahassÄ• dhivÄ• sino.

mahÄ• nÄ• daá¹ƒ pavattesuá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<82> á¹• 21 ``yÄ• pubbe bodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ, pallaá¹…kavaramÄ• bhuje.

nimittÄ• ni padissanti, tÄ• ni ajja padissare ||

<83> á¹• 21 ``sÄ«taá¹ƒ byapagataá¹ƒ hoti, uá¹‡haÃ±ca upasammati.

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<84> á¹• 21 ``dasasahassÄ« lokadhÄ• tu, nissaddÄ• honti nirÄ• kulÄ• .

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<85> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• vÄ• tÄ• \Ne 111/ na vÄ• yanti, na sandanti savantiyo.

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<86> á¹• 21 ``thalajÄ• dakajÄ• pupphÄ• , sabbe pupphanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja pupphitÄ• sabbe, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<87> á¹• 21 ``latÄ• vÄ• yadi vÄ• rukkhÄ• , phalabhÄ• rÄ• honti tÄ• vade.

tepajja phalitÄ• sabbe, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<88> á¹• 21 ``Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca bhÅ«maá¹-á¹-hÄ• , ratanÄ• jotanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja ratanÄ• jotanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<89> á¹• 21 ``mÄ• nussakÄ• ca dibbÄ• ca, turiyÄ• vajjanti tÄ• vade.

tepajjubho abhiravanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<90> á¹• 21 ``vicittapupphÄ• \Ee 97/ gaganÄ• , abhivassanti tÄ• vade.

tepi ajja pavassanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<91> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• samuddo \Be 122/ Ä• bhujati, dasasahassÄ« pakampati.

tepajjubho abhiravanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<92> á¹• 21 ``nirayepi dasasahasse, aggÄ« nibbanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja nibbutÄ• aggÄ«, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<93> á¹• 21 ``vimalo hoti sÅ«riyo, sabbÄ• dissanti tÄ• rakÄ• .

tepi ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<94> á¹• 21 ``anovaá¹-á¹-hena udakaá¹ƒ, mahiyÄ• ubbhijji tÄ• vade.

tampajjubbhijjate mahiyÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<95> á¹• 21 ``tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡Ä• \Ne 112/ virocanti, nakkhattÄ• gaganamaá¹‡á¸• ale.

visÄ• khÄ• candimÄ• yuttÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<96> á¹• 21 ``bilÄ• sayÄ• darÄ«sayÄ• , nikkhamanti sakÄ• sayÄ• .

tepajja Ä• sayÄ• chuddhÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<97> á¹• 21 ``na honti aratÄ« sattÄ• naá¹ƒ, santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• honti tÄ• vade.

tepajja sabbe santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<98> á¹• 21 ``rogÄ• tadupasammanti, jighacchÄ• ca vinassasi.

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<99> á¹• 21 ``rogÄ• tadÄ• tanu hoti, doso moho vinassasi.

tepajja vigatÄ• sabbe, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<100> á¹• 21 ``bhayaá¹ƒ tadÄ• na bhavati, ajjapetaá¹ƒ padissati.

tena liá¹…gena jÄ• nÄ• ma, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<101> á¹• 21 ``rajonuddhaá¹ƒsatÄ« uddhaá¹ƒ, ajjapetaá¹ƒ padissati.

tena liá¹…gena jÄ• nÄ• ma, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<102> á¹• 21 ``aniá¹-á¹-hagandho pakkamati, dibbagandho pavÄ• yati.

sopajja vÄ• yatÄ« gandho, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<103> á¹• 21 ``sabbe \Be 123/ devÄ• padissanti, á¹-hapayitvÄ• arÅ«pino.

tepajja sabbe dissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<104> á¹• 21 ``yÄ• vatÄ• nirayÄ• nÄ• ma, sabbe dissanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja sabbe dissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<105> á¹• 21 ``kuá¹-á¹-Ä• \Ne 113/ \Ee 98/ kavÄ• á¹-Ä• selÄ• ca, na hontÄ• varaá¹‡Ä• ta

Ä• kÄ• sabhÅ«tÄ• tepajja, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<106> á¹• 21 ``cutÄ« ca upapattÄ« ca, khaá¹‡e tasmiá¹ƒ na vijjati.

tÄ• nipajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<107> á¹• 21 ``daá¸·haá¹ƒ paggaá¹‡ha vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ, mÄ• nivatta abhikkama.

mayampetaá¹ƒ vijÄ• nÄ• ma, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __idaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na vacana_nti idaá¹ƒ dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato bodhisattassa b sutvÄ• . __asamassÄ• _ti samassa sadisassa abhÄ• vato asamassa. yathÄ• ha --- ``na me Ä• cariyo atthi, sadiso me na vijjati.

sadevakasmiá¹ƒ lokasmiá¹ƒ, natthi me paá¹-ipuggaloâ€™â€™ ti || (MN I 285; II 341; Vin I 1 5.11).

__mahesino_ti mahante sÄ«lasamÄ• dhipaÃ±Ã±Ä• kkhandhe esi gavesÄ«ti mahesÄ«, tass narÄ• ca amarÄ• ca, ukkaá¹-á¹-haniddeso panÄ• yaá¹ƒ sabbepi dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuy nÄ• gasupaá¹‡á¹‡ayakkhÄ• dayopi Ä• moditÄ• va. __buddhabÄ«jaá¹ƒ kira aya_nti ayaá¹ƒ k Ä• moditÄ• ti attho.

__ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddÄ• _ti unnÄ• dasaddÄ• vattanti. __apphoá¹-entÄ«_ti hatthehi bÄ• hÄ• __dasasahassÄ«_ti dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuyo. __sadevakÄ• _ti saha devehi sadevakÄ• d attho. __yadimassÄ• _ti yadi imassa, ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __virajjhissÄ• mÄ• _ti yadi n __anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne_ti anÄ• gate kÄ• le. __hessÄ• mÄ• _ti bhavissÄ• ma. __sammu __ima_nti imassa, sÄ• miatthe upayogavacanaá¹ƒ.

__nadiá¹ƒ_ \Be 124/ __tarantÄ• _ti nadÄ«taraá¹‡akÄ• , ``naditarantÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹ paá¹-imukhatitthaá¹ƒ. __virajjhiyÄ• _ti virajjhitvÄ• . __yadi muÃ±cÄ• mÄ• _ti yadi imaá¹ƒ bha akatakiccÄ• gamissÄ• mÄ• ti \Ne 114/ attho. __mama kammaá¹ƒ pakittetvÄ• _ti mama bhÄ __dakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ_ \Ee 99/ __pÄ• damuddharÄ«_ti dakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ pÄ• daá¹ƒ ukkhipi, ``katap pÄ• á¹-ho.

__jinaputtÄ• _ti dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno sÄ• vakÄ• . __devÄ• manussÄ• asurÄ• ca, a devÄ• dayo sabbepi ime maá¹ƒ tikkhattuá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• pupphÄ• dÄ«hi pÅ«je suppatiá¹-á¹-hitapaÃ±caá¹…gÄ• vanditvÄ• nivattitvÄ• punappunaá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• madhurat nÄ• nappakÄ• rÄ• hi thutÄ«hi vaá¹‡á¹‡entÄ• pakkamiá¹ƒsu. ``narÄ• nÄ• gÄ• ca gandhab pakkamuâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho.

__dassanaá¹ƒ me atikkante_ti mama dassanavisayaá¹ƒ bhagavati atikkante. ``jahite dassa pÄ• á¹-ho. __sasaá¹…ghe_ti saddhiá¹ƒ saá¹…ghena sasaá¹…gho, tasmiá¹ƒ sasaá¹…ghe. _ vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• nÄ• _ti nipannaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nato kalalato uá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• . __pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ A katapallaá¹…ko hutvÄ• puppharÄ• simhi nisÄ«dinti attho. ``haá¹-á¹-ho haá¹-á¹-hena cittena vuá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ tadÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, so uttÄ• natthova.

__pÄ«tiyÄ• ca abhissanno_ti pÄ«tiripphuá¹-o. __vasÄ«bhÅ«to_ti vasÄ«bhÄ• vappatto. _
rÅ«pÄ• vacarÄ• rÅ«pÄ• vacarajhÄ• nesu. __sahassiyamhÄ«_ti dasasahassiyaá¹ƒ. __lokam samÄ• _ti mayÄ• sadisÄ• . avisesena ``me samÄ• natthÄ«â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ• idÄ• ni tam iddhidhammesÅ«â€™â€™ _ti Ä• ha. tattha __iddhidhammesÅ«_ti paÃ±casu iddhidhammes paá¹-ilabhiá¹ƒ. __Ä«disaá¹ƒ sukha_nti Ä«disaá¹ƒ somanassaá¹ƒ.

atha sumedhatÄ• paso dasabalassa byÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ sutvÄ• buddhabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ karatala pamuditahadayo dasasu lokadhÄ• tusahassesu suddhÄ• vÄ• samahÄ• brahmÄ• no atÄ«ta niyatabodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ byÄ• karaá¹‡e uppajjamÄ• napÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyadassanena tathÄ• ga pakÄ• sento maá¹ƒ paritosayantÄ• imÄ• gÄ• thÄ• yo Ä• haá¹ƒsÅ«ti dassento bhagavÄ• _ mayhaâ€™â€™ _ntiÄ• dimÄ• ha.

tattha \Be 125/ __pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujane mayha_nti mama pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujane. ayameva v __dasasahassÄ• dhivÄ• sino_ti dasasahassivÄ• sino mahÄ• brahmÄ• no. __yÄ• pubbe_ti katvÄ• vuttanti veditabbaá¹ƒ. __pallaá¹…kavaramÄ• bhuje_ti varapallaá¹…kÄ• bhujane. __ nimittÄ• ni \Ne 115/ padissiá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. atÄ«tavacane vattabbe vattamÄ• navacanaá¹ƒ vu vuttaá¹ƒ, atÄ«tavasena attho gahetabbo. __tÄ• ni ajja padissare_ti pubbepi niyatabodhisattÄ pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujane \Ee 100/ yÄ• ni nimittÄ• ni uppajjiá¹ƒsu, tÄ• ni nimittÄ• ni ajja padissa dhuvameva buddho bhavissasÄ«ti attho. na pana tÄ• niyeva nimittÄ• ni uppajjiá¹ƒsu, taá¹ƒs padissareâ€™â€™ ti vuttanti veditabbaá¹ƒ.

__sÄ«ta_nti sÄ«tataá¹ƒ. __byapagata_nti gataá¹ƒ vigataá¹ƒ. __tÄ• nÄ«_ti sÄ«tavigamanau attho. __nissaddÄ• _ti asaddÄ• anigghosÄ• . __nirÄ• kulÄ• _ti anÄ• kulÄ• , ayameva vÄ• na vahanti nappavattanti. __savantiyo_ti nadiyo. __tÄ• nÄ«_ti avÄ• yanaasandanÄ• ni. __th pathavitalapabbatarukkhesu jÄ• tÄ• ni. __dakajÄ• _ti odakÄ• ni pupphÄ• ni. __pupphantÄ«_ pupphiá¹ƒsu, atÄ«tatthe vattamÄ• navacanaá¹ƒ heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttanayeneva veditabbaá¹ƒ. _

tÄ• ni pupphÄ• ni ajja pupphitÄ• nÄ«ti attho.

__phalabhÄ• rÄ• _ti phaladharÄ• . __tepajjÄ• _ti tepi ajja, pulliá¹…gavasena ``tepÄ«â€™â€ vÄ• rukkhÄ• vÄ• â€™â€™ ti vuttattÄ• . __phalitÄ• _ti saÃ±jÄ• taphalÄ• . __Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹ cÄ• _ti Ä• kÄ• sagatÄ• ca bhÅ«migatÄ• ca __ratanÄ• nÄ«_ti muttÄ• dÄ«ni ratanÄ• ni. __j __mÄ• nussakÄ• _ti manussÄ• naá¹ƒ santakÄ• mÄ• nussakÄ• . __dibbÄ• _ti devÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• tataá¹ƒ vitataá¹ƒ Ä• tatavitataá¹ƒ susiraá¹ƒ ghananti paÃ±ca turiyÄ• ni. tattha Ä• tataá¹ƒ cammapariyonaddhesu bheriÄ• dÄ«su ekatalaturiyaá¹ƒ. vitataá¹ƒ nÄ• ma ubhayatalaá¹ƒ. Ä sabbato pariyonaddhaá¹ƒ mahativallakiÄ• dikaá¹ƒ. susiraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma vaá¹ƒsÄ• dikaá¹ƒ. gha sammatÄ• á¸·Ä• dikaá¹ƒ. __vajjantÄ«_ti heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttanayena vajjiá¹ƒsu, atÄ«tatthe vat veditabbaá¹ƒ. esa nayo upari Ä«disesu vacanesupi. __abhiravantÄ«_ti tatra tatra kusalehi s suppatÄ• á¸·itÄ• suvÄ• ditÄ• viya abhiravanti, abhinadantÄ«ti attho.

__vicittapupphÄ• _ti \Be 126/ vicitrÄ• ni nÄ• nÄ• gandhavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni pupphÄ• ni. __abhiv abhivassiá¹ƒsu, nipatiá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. __tepÄ«_ti tÄ• nipi vicitrapupphÄ• ni abhivassantÄ• ni devabrahmagaá¹‡ehi okiriyamÄ• nÄ• nÄ«ti adhippÄ• yo. __Ä• bhujatÄ«_ti osakkati. __tepa ubho mahÄ• samuddadasasahassiyo. __abhiravantÄ«_ti abhinadanti. __niraye_ti nirayesu. anekadasasahassÄ• . __nibbantÄ«_ti sammanti, santiá¹ƒ upentÄ«ti attho. __tÄ• rakÄ• _ti n __tepi ajja padissantÄ«_ti tepi sÅ«riyassa vimalabhÄ• vÄ• tÄ• rakÄ• ajja divÄ• dissanti.

__anovaá¹-á¹-henÄ• _ti anovaá¹-á¹-he, bhummatthe karaá¹‡avacanaá¹ƒ. atha vÄ• __anov anabhivaá¹-á¹-hepi. __nÄ• _ti nipÄ• tamattaá¹ƒ ``sutvÄ• na dÅ«tavacanaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dÄ __tampajjubbhijjate_ti tampi udakaá¹ƒ ajja ubbhijjati, ubbhijjitvÄ• uá¹-á¹-hahatÄ«ti attho. __
pathaviyÄ• , nissakkavacanaá¹ƒ. __tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡Ä• _ti gahanakkhattÄ• dayo sabbe tÄ• rag nakkhattatÄ• rakÄ• ca. __gaganamaá¹‡á¸• ale_ti sakalagaganamaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ virocantÄ« bilÄ• sayÄ• ahinakulakumbhÄ«lagodhÄ• dayo. __darÄ«sayÄ• _ti jharÄ• sayÄ• . ayameva nikkhamiá¹ƒsu. __sakÄ• sayÄ• _ti attano attano Ä• sayato. ``tadÄ• sayÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• kÄ• le, Ä• sayato, bilatoti attho. __chuddhÄ• _ti suchuddhÄ• suvuddhÄ• ritÄ• , nikkhantÄ• __aratÄ«_ti ukkaá¹‡á¹-hÄ• . __santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• _ti paramena santuá¹-á¹-hena santuá¹-á¹-hÄ vigacchati. __rÄ• go_ti kÄ• marÄ• go. __tadÄ• tanu hotÄ«_ti oramattako hoti, iminÄ• pariy dÄ«peti. __vihatÄ• _ti vinaá¹-á¹-hÄ• . __tadÄ• _ti pubbe, bodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kÄ• bh bhavatÄ«_ti na hoti. __ajjapeta_nti ajja tava pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujanepi etaá¹ƒ bhayaá¹ƒ na hot liá¹…gena jÄ• nÄ• mÄ• _ti tena kÄ• raá¹‡ena sabbeva mayaá¹ƒ jÄ• nÄ• ma, yaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ b __anuddhaá¹ƒsatÄ«_ti na uggacchati. __aniá¹-á¹-hagandho_ti duggandho. __pakkamatÄ«_ __pavÄ• yatÄ«_ti pavÄ• yi. __sopajjÄ• _ti sopi dibbagandho ajja. __padissantÄ«_ti \Ee 102 __tepajjÄ• _ti tepi sabbe devÄ• ajja. __yÄ• vatÄ• _ti paricchedanatthe \Be 127/ nipÄ• to, ya __kuá¹-á¹-Ä• _ti pÄ• kÄ• rÄ• . __na hontÄ• varaá¹‡Ä• _ti Ä• varaá¹‡akarÄ• na ahesuá¹ƒ. _

__Ä• kÄ• sabhÅ«tÄ• _ti te kuá¹-á¹-akavÄ• á¹-apabbatÄ• Ä• varaá¹‡aá¹ƒ tirokaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ kÄ ajaá¹-Ä• kÄ• sabhÅ«tÄ• ti attho. __cutÄ«_ti maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ. __upapattÄ«_ti paá¹-isandhiggah pubbe bodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujanakkhaá¹‡e. __na vijjatÄ«_ti nÄ• hosi. __tÄ• ni cavanabhavanÄ• nÄ«ti attho. __mÄ• nivattÄ«_ti mÄ• paá¹-ikkami. __abhikkamÄ• _ti parak uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

tato sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito dÄ«paá¹…karassa dasabalassa ca dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·ad bhiyyosomattÄ• ya saÃ±jÄ• tussÄ• ho hutvÄ• cintesi --- ``buddhÄ• nÄ• ma amoghavacanÄ kathÄ• ya aÃ±Ã±athattaá¹ƒ. yathÄ• hi Ä• kÄ• se khittassa leá¸• á¸• ussa patanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá aruá¹‡e \Ne 117/ uggate sÅ«riyassa abbhuggamanaá¹ƒ, Ä• sayÄ• nikkhantassa sÄ«hassa garugabbhÄ• ya itthiyÄ• bhÄ• ramoropanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ avassambhÄ• vÄ«, evameva budd dhuvaá¹ƒ amoghaá¹ƒ, addhÄ• ahaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissÄ• mÄ«ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <108> á¹• 21 ``buddhassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , dasasahassÄ«nacÅ«bhayaá¹ƒ.

tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-ho pamudito, evaá¹ƒ cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<109> á¹• 21 ``advejjhavacanÄ• buddhÄ• , amoghavacanÄ• jinÄ• .

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<110> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• khittaá¹ƒ nabhe leá¸• á¸• u, dhuvaá¹ƒ patati bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<111> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi sabbasattÄ• naá¹ƒ, maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<112> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Ee 103/ rattikkhaye patte, sÅ«riyuggamanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<113> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Be 128/ nikkhantasayanassa, sÄ«hassa nadanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<114> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• Ä• pannasattÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhÄ• ramoropanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha \Ne 118/ __buddhassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , dasasahassÄ« na cÅ«bhaya_nti dÄ«paá¹ dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·adevatÄ• naÃ±ca vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• . __ubhaya_nti ubhayesaá¹ƒ ubhayavacanaá¹ƒ vÄ• . __evaá¹ƒ cintesaha_nti evaá¹ƒ cintesiá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ.

__advejjhavacanÄ• _ti dvedhÄ• appavattavacanÄ• , ekaá¹ƒsavacanÄ• ti attho. ``acchidda pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa niddosavacanÄ• ti attho. __amoghavacanÄ• _ti avitathavacanÄ• . __vitath natthÄ«ti attho. __dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• maha_nti ahaá¹ƒ ekaá¹ƒseneva buddho bhavis avassambhÄ• vivasena ca vattamÄ• navacanaá¹ƒ katanti veditabbaá¹ƒ.

__sÅ«riyuggamana_nti sÅ«riyassa udayanaá¹ƒ, ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __dhuvasassata sassataÃ±ca. __nikkhantasayanassÄ• _ti sayanato nikkhantassa. __Ä• pannasattÄ• na_nti gabbhinÄ«nanti attho. __bhÄ• ramoropana_nti bhÄ• raoropanaá¹ƒ, gabbhassa oropananti a padasandhikaro. sesametthÄ• pi uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

``svÄ• haá¹ƒ addhÄ• buddho bhavissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti evaá¹ƒ katasanniá¹-á¹-hÄ• no bu upadhÄ• retuá¹ƒ --- ``kahaá¹ƒ nu kho buddhakÄ• rakÄ• dhammÄ• â€™â€™ ti, uddhaá¹ƒ a anukkamena sakalaá¹ƒ dhammadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ vicinanto pubbe porÄ• á¹‡akehi bodhisattehi Ä• paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• evaá¹ƒ attÄ• naá¹ƒ ovadi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• i paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ pÅ«reyyÄ• si. yathÄ• hi nikujjito udakakumbho nissesaá vamatiyeva na paccÄ• harati, evameva dhanaá¹ƒ vÄ• yasaá¹ƒ vÄ• puttadÄ• raá¹ƒ \Ee 104 vÄ• anoloketvÄ• sabbattha yÄ• cakÄ• naá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ icchiticchitaá¹ƒ nissesaá¹ƒ katvÄ• nisÄ«ditvÄ• buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ

vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<115> á¹• 21 ``handa \Be 129/ buddhakare dhamme, vicinÄ• mi ito cito.

uddhaá¹ƒ adho dasa disÄ• , yÄ• vatÄ• dhammadhÄ• tuyÄ• ||

<116> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, anuciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ mahÄ• pathaá¹ƒ ||

<117> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ \Ne 119/ tvaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diy

dÄ• napÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<118> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi kumbho sampuá¹‡á¹‡o, yassa kassaci adho kato.

vamatevudakaá¹ƒ nissesaá¹ƒ, na tattha parirakkhati ||

<119> á¹• 21 ``tatheva yÄ• cake disvÄ• , hÄ«namukkaá¹-á¹-hamajjhime.

dadÄ• hi dÄ• naá¹ƒ nissesaá¹ƒ, kumbho viya adho katoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __handÄ• _ti vavassaggatthe nipÄ• to. __buddhakare dhamme_ti buddhattakare dha dhammÄ• dÄ• napÄ• ramitÄ• dayo dasa dhammÄ• . __vicinÄ• mÄ«_ti vicinissÄ• mi, vÄ«m attho. __ito cito_ti ito ito, ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. tattha tattha vicinÄ• mÄ«ti attho. uddhant __adho_ti manussaloke. __dasa disÄ• _ti dasasu disÄ• su; kattha nu kho te buddhakÄ• rak tiriyaá¹ƒ disÄ• su vidisÄ• sÅ«ti adhippÄ• yo. __yÄ• vatÄ• dhammadhÄ• tuyÄ• _ti ettha __y paricchedavacanaá¹ƒ. __dhammadhÄ• tuyÄ• _ti sabhÄ• vadhammassa, pavattanÄ«ti vacan vuttaá¹ƒ hoti? yÄ• vatikÄ• sabhÄ• vadhammÄ• naá¹ƒ kÄ• marÅ«pÄ• rÅ«padhammÄ• naá¹ vicinissÄ• mÄ«ti vuttaá¹ƒ hoti.

__vicinanto_ti vÄ«maá¹ƒsanto upaparikkhanto. __pubbakehÄ«_ti porÄ• á¹‡ehi bodhisatteh ajjhÄ• ciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ Ä• sevitaá¹ƒ. __samÄ• diyÄ• _ti samÄ• diyanaá¹ƒ karohi, ajja paá¹-á¹-h dÄ• napÄ• ramÄ« pÅ«retabbÄ• mayÄ• ti evaá¹ƒ samÄ• diyÄ• ti attho. __dÄ• napÄ• ramita gaccha, pÅ«rayÄ• ti attho. __yadi_ \Ee 105/ __bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasÄ«_ti bodhimÅ«lamup sammÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ pattuá¹ƒ icchasi ce. __yassa kassacÄ«_ti udakassa vÄ• khÄ«rassa sampuá¹‡á¹‡o. sampuá¹‡á¹‡asaddayoge sati sÄ• mivacanaá¹ƒ icchanti \Be 130/ saddavidÅ sÄ• mivacanaá¹ƒ, yena kenacÄ«ti attho. __adho kato_ti heá¹-á¹-hÄ• mukhÄ«kato. __na tatt tasmiá¹ƒ vamane na parirakkhati, nissesaá¹ƒ udakaá¹ƒ vamatevÄ• ti attho. __hÄ«namukkaá hÄ«namajjhimapaá¹‡Ä«te. __ma_-kÄ• ro padasandhikaro. __kumbho viya adho kato_ti heá kumbho. yÄ• cake upagate disvÄ• --- ``tvaá¹ƒ, sumedha, attano anavasesetvÄ• sabbadha dÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ, aá¹…gapariccÄ• gena upapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ, jÄ«vitapariccÄ• gena paramatth evaá¹ƒ attanÄ• va attÄ• naá¹ƒ ovadi.

athassa \Ne 120/ ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakehi dhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti utta dutiyaá¹ƒ sÄ«lapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹-pÅ«reyyÄ• si. yathÄ• camarÄ« migo nÄ• ma jÄ«vitampi anoloketvÄ• attano vÄ• lameva ra paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya jÄ«vitampi anoloketvÄ• sÄ«lameva rakkhanto buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<120> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<121> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, dutiyaá¹ƒ sÄ«lapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<122> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ dutiyaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

sÄ«lapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<123> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi camarÄ« vÄ• laá¹ƒ, kismiÃ±ci paá¹-ilaggitaá¹ƒ.

upeti maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tattha, na vikopeti vÄ• ladhiá¹ƒ ||

<124> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ catÅ«su bhÅ«mÄ«su, sÄ«lÄ• ni paripÅ«raya.

parirakkha sabbadÄ• sÄ«laá¹ƒ, camarÄ« viya vÄ• ladhiâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __na hete_ti na hi eteyeva. __bodhipÄ• canÄ• _ti maggaparipÄ• canÄ• sabbaÃ±Ã± vÄ• . __dutiyaá¹ƒ_ \Ee 106/ __sÄ«lapÄ• rami_nti sÄ«laá¹ƒ nÄ• ma sabbesaá¹ƒ kusaladham sÄ«le patiá¹-á¹-hito kusaladhammehi na parihÄ• yati, sabbepi \Be 131/ lokiyalokuttaraguá¹‡ tasmÄ• sÄ«lapÄ• ramÄ« pÅ«retabbÄ• ti dutiyaá¹ƒ sÄ«lapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ addakkhinti attho.

__Ä• sevitanisevita_nti bhÄ• vitaÃ±ceva bahulÄ«kataÃ±ca. __camarÄ«_ti camarÄ« migo. _

katthaci rukkhalatÄ• kaá¹‡á¹-akÄ• dÄ«su aÃ±Ã±atarasmiá¹ƒ. __paá¹-ilaggita_nti paá¹-ivilag yattha vilaggitaá¹ƒ, tattheva á¹-hatvÄ• maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ upagacchati. __na vikopetÄ«_ti na chin vÄ• laá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• na gacchati, tattheva maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ upetÄ«ti attho.

__catÅ«su_ \Ne 121/ __bhÅ«mÄ«su sÄ«lÄ• nÄ«_ti catÅ«su á¹-hÄ• nesu vibhattasÄ«lÄ• ni pÄ• timokkhasaá¹ƒvaraindriyasaá¹ƒvaraÄ• jÄ«vapÄ• risuddhipaccayasannissitavasenÄ• ti a dvÄ«suyeva bhÅ«mÄ«su pariyÄ• pannaá¹ƒ tampi catusÄ«lamevÄ• ti. __paripÅ«rayÄ• _ti khaá¹‡á¸• achiddasabalÄ• diabhÄ• vena paripÅ«raya. __sabbadÄ• _ti sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ. __c viya. sesametthÄ• pi uttÄ• natthamevÄ• ti.

athassa ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakehi dhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttarimpi up nekkhammapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• pÅ«reyyÄ• si. yathÄ• pi suciraá¹ƒ bandhanÄ• gÄ• re vasamÄ• no puriso na tattha sinehaá¹ ukkaá¹‡á¹-hito avasitukÄ• mo hoti, evameva tvampi sabbabhave bandhanÄ• gÄ• rasadise k ukkaá¹‡á¹-hito muccitukÄ• mo hutvÄ• nekkhammÄ• bhimukhova hoti, evaá¹ƒ buddho bhav nekkhammapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<125> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<126> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, tatiyaá¹ƒ nekkhammapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<127> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ tatiyaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

nekkhammapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<128> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• andughare puriso, ciravuá¹-á¹-ho dukhaá¹-á¹-ito.

na tattha rÄ• gaá¹ƒ janeti, muttiá¹ƒyeva gavesati ||

<129> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Be 132/ \Ee 107/ tvaá¹ƒ sabbabhave, passa andughare viya.

nekkhammÄ• bhimukho hoti, bhavato parimuttiyÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __andughare_ti bandhanÄ• gÄ• re. __ciravuá¹-á¹-ho_ti cirakÄ• laá¹ƒ vuá¹-á¹-ho. __d dukkhapÄ«á¸·ito. __na_ \Ne 122/ __tattha rÄ• gaá¹ƒ janetÄ«_ti tattha andughare rÄ• gaá¹ƒ uppÄ• deti. ``imaá¹ƒ andugharaá¹ƒ muÃ±citvÄ• nÄ• haá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±attha gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™ janeti, kintu muttiá¹ƒyeva mokkhameva gavesatÄ«ti adhippÄ• yo. __nekkhammÄ• bhimukho hoti. __bhavato_ti sabbabhavehi. __parimuttiyÄ• _ti parimocanatthÄ• ya. nekkhammÄ• bhim pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. sesamettha uttÄ• natthamevÄ• ti.

athassa ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttarimpi upad paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• pÅ«reyyÄ• si. hÄ«namajjhimukkaá¹-á¹-hesu kaÃ±ci avajjetvÄ• sabbepi paá¹‡á¸• ite upasaá puccheyyÄ• si. yathÄ• pi piá¹‡á¸• acÄ• riko bhikkhu hÄ«nÄ• dibhedesu kulesu kiÃ±ci kulaá paá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iyÄ• piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya caranto khippaá¹ƒ yÄ• panamattaá¹ƒ labhati, evameva tva upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• pucchanto buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti catutthaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<130> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<131> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, catutthaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<132> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ catutthaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<133> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• hi bhikkhu bhikkhanto, hÄ«namukkaá¹-á¹-hamajjhime.

kulÄ• ni na vivajjento, evaá¹ƒ labhati yÄ• panaá¹ƒ ||

<134> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Ee 108/ tvaá¹ƒ sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ, paripucchaá¹ƒ budhaá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Be 133/ __bhikkhanto_ti piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya caranto. __hÄ«namukkaá¹-á¹-hamajjhime_ti hÄ«namukkaá¹-á¹-hamajjhimÄ• ni kulÄ• nÄ«ti \Ne 123/ attho. liá¹…gavipariyÄ• so kato. __n pariharanto, gharapaá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iá¹ƒ muÃ±citvÄ• caranto vivajjeti nÄ• ma, evamakatvÄ• ti at yÄ• panamattaá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹‡adhÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ labhatÄ«ti attho. __paripuccha_nti kusalaá¹ƒ, kiá¹ƒ akusalaá¹ƒ; kiá¹ƒ sÄ• vajjaá¹ƒ, kiá¹ƒ anavajjaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dinÄ• (DN III tattha abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• te paá¹‡á¸• ite jane upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• paripucchantoti attho. __budhaá paá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ. ``budhe janeâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya pÄ• rami_nti ``paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. sesametthÄ• pi uttÄ• namevÄ•

athassa ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttarimpi upad vÄ«riyapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya v pÅ«reyyÄ• si. yathÄ• pi sÄ«ho migarÄ• jÄ• sabbairiyÄ• pathesu daá¸·havÄ«riyo hoti, evaá¹ sabbairiyÄ• pathesu daá¸·havÄ«riyo anolÄ«navÄ«riyo samÄ• no buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â vÄ«riyapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<135> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<136> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, paÃ±camaá¹ƒ vÄ«riyapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<137> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ paÃ±camaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

vÄ«riyapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<138> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi sÄ«ho migarÄ• jÄ• , nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

alÄ«navÄ«riyo hoti, paggahitamano sadÄ• ||

<139> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ sabbabhave, paggaá¹‡ha vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ.

vÄ«riyapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ne 124/ __alÄ«navÄ«riyo_ti anolÄ«navÄ«riyo. __sabbabhave_ti \Ee 109/ jÄ• tajÄ• t bhavesÅ«ti attho. Ä• raddhavÄ«riyo hutvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«tipi pÄ• á¹-ho.

uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

athassa \Be 134/ ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttari chaá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ khantipÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito khantipÄ• ramiá¹ƒ paripÅ«reyyÄ• si, sammÄ• nanepi avamÄ• nanepi khamova bhaveyyÄ• s sucimpi pakkhipanti asucimpi, na ca tena pathavÄ« sinehaá¹ƒ vÄ• paá¹-ighaá¹ƒ vÄ• karoti adhivÄ• setiyeva, evameva tvampi sabbesaá¹ƒ sammÄ• nanÄ• vamÄ• nanesu khamo sam chaá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ khantipÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<140> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<141> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, chaá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ khantipÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<142> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ chaá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tattha advejjhamÄ• naso, sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<143> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pathavÄ« nÄ• ma, sucimpi asucimpi ca.

sabbaá¹ƒ sahati nikkhepaá¹ƒ, na karoti paá¹-ighaá¹ƒ tayÄ• ||

<144> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvampi sabbesaá¹ƒ, sammÄ• nÄ• vamÄ• nakkhamo.

khantipÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tatthÄ• _ti tassaá¹ƒ khantipÄ• ramiyaá¹ƒ. advejjhamÄ• nasoti ekaá¹ƒsamÄ• naso.

candanakuá¹…kumagandhamÄ• lÄ• disucimpi. __asucimpÄ«_ti ahikukkuramanussakuá¹‡apagÅ«thamuttakheá¸·asiá¹…ghÄ• á¹‡ikÄ• diasucimpi. __sahatÄ __nikkhepa_nti nikkhittaá¹ƒ. __paá¹-igha_nti kodhaá¹ƒ. __tayÄ• _ti tÄ• ya vuttiyÄ• , tÄ• ya ``paá¹-ighaá¹ƒ dayaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa tena nikkhepena paá¹-ighÄ• nurodhaá¹ __sammÄ• nÄ• vamÄ• nakkhamo_ti sabbesaá¹ƒ \Ne 125/ sammÄ• nanÄ• vamÄ• nanasah ``tatheva tvampi sabbabhave, sammÄ• nanavimÄ• nakkhamoâ€™â€™ tipi paá¹-hanti. ``kha gantvÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassÄ• khantiyÄ• pÄ• ramipÅ«raá¹‡avasena gantvÄ• ti a uttÄ• namevÄ• ti. ito paraá¹ƒ ettakampi avatvÄ• yattha yattha viseso atthi, taá¹ƒ tameva va dassetvÄ• gamissÄ• mÄ• ti.

athassa \Be 135/ ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttari sattamaá¹ƒ saccapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-pÅ«reyyÄ• si, asaniyÄ• matthake patamÄ• nÄ• yapi dhanÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ atthÄ• ya chandÄ• sampajÄ• namusÄ• vÄ• daá¹ƒ nÄ• ma mÄ• bhÄ• si. yathÄ• pi osadhÄ«tÄ• rakÄ• nÄ• ma vijahitvÄ• aÃ±Ã±Ä• ya vÄ«thiyÄ• na gacchati, sakavÄ«thiyÄ• va gacchati, evameva tvamp musÄ• vÄ• daá¹ƒ nÄ• ma avadantoyeva buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti sattamaá¹ƒ sacca adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<145> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<146> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, sattamaá¹ƒ saccapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<147> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ sattamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tattha advejjhavacano, sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<148> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi osadhÄ« nÄ• ma, tulÄ• bhÅ«tÄ• sadevake.

samaye utuvasse vÄ• , na vokkamati vÄ«thito ||

<149> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvampi saccesu, mÄ• vokkama hi vÄ«thito.

saccapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tatthÄ• _ti saccapÄ• ramiyaá¹ƒ. __advejjhavacano_ti avitathavacano. __osadhÄ« osadhÄ«tÄ• rakÄ• , osadhagahaá¹‡e osadhÄ«tÄ• rakaá¹ƒ uditaá¹ƒ disvÄ• osadhaá¹ƒ gaá¹ ``osadhÄ«tÄ• rakÄ• â€™â€™ ti vuccati. __tulÄ• bhÅ«tÄ• _ti pamÄ• á¹‡abhÅ«tÄ• . __sadev __samaye_ti \Ne 126/ vassasamaye. __utuvasse_ti hemantagimhesu. ``samaye utuvaá¹-á¹-tassa __samaye_ti gimhe. __utuvaá¹-á¹-e_ti hemante ca vassÄ• ne cÄ• ti attho. __na_ \Ee vÄ«thito_ti taá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ utumhi attano gamanavÄ«thito na vokkamati na vigacchati, cha mÄ• gacchati, cha mÄ• se pubbaá¹ƒ disaá¹ƒ gacchatÄ«ti. atha vÄ• __osadhÄ« nÄ• mÄ• _ti siá¹…giverapipphalimaricÄ• dikaá¹ƒ osadhaá¹ƒ. __na vokkamatÄ«_ti yaá¹ƒ yaá¹ƒ phaladÄ• taá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ phaladÄ• naá¹ƒ okkamma attano \Be 136/ phalaá¹ƒ adatvÄ• na nivattati. __vÄ« pittaharo pittaá¹ƒ harateva, vÄ• taharo vÄ• taá¹ƒ harateva, semhaharo semhaá¹ƒ haratevÄ•

uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

athassa ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttarimpi upad adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramimpi pÅ«reyyÄ• si, yaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si, tasmiá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• n yathÄ• pabbato nÄ• ma sabbadisÄ• su vÄ• te paharantepi na kampati na calati, attano á¹-h evameva tvampi attano adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne niccalo hontova buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti a adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<150> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<151> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, aá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<152> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tattha tvaá¹ƒ acalo hutvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<153> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pabbato selo, acalo suppatiá¹-á¹-hito.

na kampati bhusavÄ• tehi, sakaá¹-á¹-hÄ• neva tiá¹-á¹-hati ||

<154> á¹• 21 ``tattheva tvampi adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne, sabbadÄ• acalo bhava.

adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ne 127/ __selo_ti silÄ• mayo. __acalo_ti niccalo __suppatiá¹-á¹-hito_ti acalattÄ• va s patiá¹-á¹-hito. ``yathÄ• pi pabbato acalo, nikhÄ• to suppatiá¹-á¹-hitoâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho.
balavavÄ• tehi. __sakaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nevÄ• _ti attano á¹-hÄ• neyeva, yathÄ• á¹-hitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne sesametthÄ• pi uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

athassa ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttarimpi upad mettÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi \Ee 112/ --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹ pÅ«reyyÄ• si, hitesupi ahitesupi ekacittova \Be 137/ bhaveyyÄ• si. yathÄ• pi udakaá¹ƒ nÄ• n kalyÄ• á¹‡ajanassapi sÄ«tabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ ekasadisaá¹ƒ katvÄ• pharati, evameva tvampi sabb ekacittova hutvÄ• buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti navamaá¹ƒ mettÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·ha
tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<155> á¹• 21 ``na hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<156> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, navamaá¹ƒ mettÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<157> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ navamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

mettÄ• ya asamo hoti, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<158> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi udakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma, kalyÄ• á¹‡e pÄ• pake jane.

samaá¹ƒ pharati sÄ«tena, pavÄ• heti rajomalaá¹ƒ ||

<159> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ hitÄ• hite, samaá¹ƒ mettÄ• ya bhÄ• vaya.

mettÄ• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __asamo hohÄ«_ti mettÄ• bhÄ• vanÄ• ya asadiso hohi. tattha ``tvaá¹ƒ samasamo ho so uttÄ• natthova. __sama_nti tulyaá¹ƒ. __pharatÄ«_ti phusati. __pavÄ• hetÄ«_ti visodheti.
Ä• gantukarajaá¹ƒ. __mala_nti sarÄ«re uá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ sedamalÄ• diá¹ƒ. ``rajamalaâ€™â€™ soyevattho. __hitÄ• hite_ti \Ne 128/ hite ca ahite ca, mitte ca amitte cÄ• ti attho. __mettÄ• y mettaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vaya vaá¸• á¸• hehi. sesametthÄ• pi uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

athassa ``na ettakeheva buddhakÄ• rakadhammehi bhavitabbaâ€™â€™ nti uttarimpi upad upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ disvÄ• etadahosi --- ``sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, tvaá¹ƒ ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• y paripÅ«reyyÄ• si, sukhepi dukkhepi majjhattova bhaveyyÄ• si. yathÄ• pi pathavÄ« nÄ• ma s pakkhipamÄ• ne majjhattÄ• va hoti, evameva tvampi sukhadukkhesu majjhattova honto buc \Ee 113/ dasamaá¹ƒ upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaâ <160> á¹• 21 ``na \Be 138/ hete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• ||

<161> á¹• 21 ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, dasamaá¹ƒ upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<162> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ dasamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tulÄ• bhÅ«to daá¸·ho hutvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<163> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pathavÄ« nÄ• ma, nikkhittaá¹ƒ asuciá¹ƒ suciá¹ƒ.

upekkhati ubhopete, kopÄ• nunayavajjitÄ• ||

<164> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ sukhadukkhe, tulÄ• bhÅ«to sadÄ• bhava.

upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tulÄ• bhÅ«to_ti majjhattabhÄ• ve á¹-hito yathÄ• tulÄ• ya daá¹‡á¸• o samaá¹ƒ tulito na namati na unnamati, evameva tvampi sukhadukkhesu tulÄ• sadiso hutvÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ __kopÄ• nunayavajjitÄ• _ti paá¹-ighÄ• nurodhavajjitÄ• . ``dayÄ• kopavivajjitÄ• â€™â€™ tip sesaá¹ƒ khantipÄ• ramiyaá¹ƒ vuttanayeneva veditabbaá¹ƒ.

tato sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito ime dasa pÄ• ramidhamme vicinitvÄ• tato paraá¹ƒ cintesi --- ``im bodhisattehi paripÅ«retabbÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• buddhattakarÄ• dhammÄ• ettakÄ• yeva, n pÄ• ramiyo uddhaá¹ƒ Ä• kÄ• sepi natthi, na heá¹-á¹-hÄ• pathaviyampi, na puratthimÄ• dÄ« mayhaá¹ƒyeva pana hadayamaá¹ƒsantareyeva patiá¹-á¹-hitÄ• â€™â€™ ti. evaá¹ƒ tÄ• saá¹ƒ patiá¹-á¹-hitabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ disvÄ• sabbÄ• pi tÄ• daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya punapp anulomapaá¹-ilomaá¹ƒ sammasi, pariyante gahetvÄ• Ä• dimhi pÄ• pesi, Ä• dimhi gahetvÄ• gahetvÄ• ubhato osÄ• pesi, ubhato koá¹-Ä«su gahetvÄ• majjhe osÄ• pesi. bÄ• hirabhaá¹‡ nÄ• ma, aá¹…gapariccÄ• go __upapÄ• ramiyo_ nÄ• ma, jÄ«vitapariccÄ• go __paramatthap pÄ• ramiyo dasa upapÄ• ramiyo dasa paramatthapÄ• ramiyoti samattiá¹ƒsa pÄ• ramiyo yan viya sammasi. tassa dasa pÄ• ramiyo sammasantassa dhammatejena \Be 139/catunahutÄ• dhikadviyojanasatasahassabahalÄ• vipulÄ• ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• pathavÄ« hatthinÄ uppÄ«á¸·iyamÄ• naá¹ƒ ucchuyantaá¹ƒ viya ca mahÄ• viravaá¹ƒ viravamÄ• nÄ• saá¹…kam kulÄ• lacakkaá¹ƒ \Ee 114/ viya telayantacakkaá¹ƒ viya ca paribbhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<165> á¹• 21 ``ettakÄ• yeva te loke, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• .

tatuddhaá¹ƒ natthi aÃ±Ã±atra, daá¸·haá¹ƒ tattha patiá¹-á¹-haha ||

<166> á¹• 21 ``ime dhamme sammasato, sabhÄ• vasarasalakkhaá¹‡e.

dhammatejena vasudhÄ• , dasasahassÄ« pakampatha ||

<167> á¹• 21 ``calatÄ« ravatÄ« pathavÄ«, ucchuyantaá¹ƒva pÄ«á¸·itaá¹ƒ.

telayante yathÄ• cakkaá¹ƒ, evaá¹ƒ kampati medanÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __ettakÄ• yevÄ• _ti niddiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ dasannaá¹ƒ pÄ• ramitÄ• naá¹ƒ anÅ«nÄ• dh vuttaá¹ƒ. __tatuddha_nti tato dasapÄ• ramÄ«hi uddhaá¹ƒ __natthi. aÃ±Ã±atrÄ• _ti aÃ±Ã±aá saddasatthato gahetabbaá¹ƒ. tato dasapÄ• ramito aÃ±Ã±o buddhakÄ• rakadhammo natthÄ dasasu pÄ• ramÄ«su. __patiá¹-á¹-hahÄ• _ti patiá¹-á¹-ha, paripÅ«rento tiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ti attho.

__ime dhamme_ti pÄ• ramidhamme. __sammasato_ti upaparikkhantassa, anÄ• daratthe sA daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. __sabhÄ• vasarasalakkhaá¹‡e_ti sabhÄ• vasaá¹…khÄ• tena sarasalakkh attho. __dhammatejenÄ• _ti pÄ• ramipavicayaÃ±Ä• á¹‡atejena. __vasudhÄ• _ti vasÅ«ti rata dhÄ• reti dhÄ«yati vÄ• etthÄ• ti vasudhÄ• \Ne 130/. kÄ• sÄ• ? medanÄ«. __pakampathÄ• sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ite pana pÄ• ramiyo vicinante tassa Ã±Ä• á¹‡atejena dasasahassÄ« paka __calatÄ«_ti chappakÄ• rÄ• kampi. __ravatÄ«_ti nadati vikÅ«jati. __ucchuyantaá¹ƒva pÄ« nippÄ«á¸·itaá¹ƒ ucchuyantaá¹ƒ viya. ``guá¸·ayantaá¹ƒva pÄ«á¸·itaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, __telayante_ti telapÄ«á¸·anayante. __yathÄ• cakka_nti cakkikÄ• naá¹ƒ mahÄ• cakkayanta telapÄ«á¸·anacakkayantaá¹ƒ paribbhamati kampati, evaá¹ƒ ayaá¹ƒ medanÄ« kampatÄ«ti at

uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

evaá¹ƒ \Be 140/ mahÄ• pathaviyÄ• kampamÄ• nÄ• ya rammanagaravÄ• sino manussÄ• l parivisayamÄ• nÄ• saá¹‡á¹-hÄ• tuá¹ƒ asakkontÄ• yugandharavÄ• tabbhÄ• hatÄ• mahÄ• ghaá¹-Ä• dÄ«ni kulÄ• labhaá¹‡á¸• Ä• ni pavaá¹-á¹-entÄ• ni aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ paharantÄ ahesuá¹ƒ. mahÄ• jano bhÄ«tatasito satthÄ• raá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho bha ayaá¹ƒ, bhÅ«tayakkhadevatÄ• su aÃ±Ã±atarÄ• vaá¹-á¹-o vÄ• â€™ ti na hi mayaá¹ƒ etaá¹ƒ j ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• jano bhayena upadduto, kiá¹ƒ nu kho imassa lokassa pÄ• pakaá¹ƒ bhavissat kathetha no etaá¹ƒ kÄ• raá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti pucchiá¹ƒsu.

atha satthÄ• tesaá¹ƒ kathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• --- ``tumhe mÄ• bhÄ• yittha, mÄ• kho cintayittha, n bhayaá¹ƒ, yo so mayÄ• ajja sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ito `anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhav idÄ• ni pÄ• ramiyo sammasati, tassa sammasantassa dhammatejena sakaladasasahassÄ« kampati ceva viravati cÄ• â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<168> á¹• 21 ``yÄ• vatÄ• parisÄ• Ä• si, buddhassa parivesane.

pavedhamÄ• nÄ• sÄ• tattha, mucchitÄ• seti bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ ||

<169> á¹• 21 ``ghaá¹-Ä• nekasahassÄ• ni, kumbhÄ«naÃ±ca satÄ• bahÅ«.

saÃ±cuá¹‡á¹‡amathitÄ• tattha, aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ paghaá¹-á¹-itÄ• ||

<170> á¹• 21 ``ubbiggÄ• tasitÄ• bhÄ«tÄ• , bhantÄ• byathitamÄ• nasÄ• .

mahÄ• janÄ• samÄ• gamma, dÄ«paá¹…karamupÄ• gamuá¹ƒ ||

<171> á¹• 21 ``kiá¹ƒ \Ne 131/ bhavissati lokassa, kalyÄ• á¹‡amatha pÄ• pakaá¹ƒ.

sabbo upadduto loko, taá¹ƒ vinodehi cakkhuma ||

<172> á¹• 21 ``tesaá¹ƒ tadÄ• saÃ±Ã±Ä• pesi, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni.

vissatthÄ• hotha mÄ• bhÄ• tha, imasmiá¹ƒ pathavikampane ||

<173> á¹• 21 ``yamahaá¹ƒ ajja byÄ• kÄ• siá¹ƒ, buddho loke bhavissati.

eso sammasatÄ« dhammaá¹ƒ, pubbakaá¹ƒ jinasevitaá¹ƒ ||

<174> á¹• 21 ``tassa \Be 141/ sammasato dhammaá¹ƒ, buddhabhÅ«miá¹ƒ asesato.

tenÄ• yaá¹ƒ kampitÄ• pathavÄ«, dasasahassÄ« sadevakeâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __yÄ• vatÄ• _ti yÄ• vatikÄ• . __Ä• sÄ«_ti \Ee 116/ ahosi. ``yÄ• tadÄ• parisÄ• Ä• s tassa yÄ• tattha parisÄ• á¹-hitÄ• Ä• sÄ«ti attho. __pavedhamÄ• nÄ• _ti kampamÄ• nÄ• . __tatthÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ parivesanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne. __setÄ«_ti sayittha.

__ghaá¹-Ä• _ti ghaá¹-Ä• naá¹ƒ, sÄ• miatthe paccattavacanaá¹ƒ, ghaá¹-Ä• naá¹ƒ nekasaha __saÃ±cuá¹‡á¹‡amathitÄ• _ti cuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ceva mathitÄ• ca, mathitasaÃ±cuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ti att paghaá¹-á¹-itÄ• _ti aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ pahaá¹-Ä• . __ubbiggÄ• _ti utrÄ• sahadayÄ• . __t __bhÄ«tÄ• _ti bhayabhÄ«tÄ• . __bhantÄ• _ti phandanamÄ• nasÄ• , vibbhantacittÄ• ti attho aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±avevacanÄ• ni. __samÄ• gammÄ• _ti samÄ• gantvÄ• . ayameva vÄ• pÄ• __upadduto_ti upahato. __taá¹ƒ vinodehÄ«_ti taá¹ƒ upaddutabhayaá¹ƒ vinodehi, vinÄ• say __cakkhumÄ• _ti paÃ±cahi cakkhÅ«hi cakkhuma. __tesaá¹ƒ tadÄ• _ti te jane tadÄ• , upayo __saÃ±Ã±Ä• pesÄ«_ti Ã±Ä• pesi bodhesi. __visatthÄ• _ti vissatthacittÄ• . __mÄ• bhÄ• thÄ __yamaha_nti yaá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ. __dhamma_nti pÄ• ramidhammaá¹ƒ.

__jinasevita_nti jinehi bodhisattakÄ• le sevitanti attho. __buddhabhÅ«mi_nti pÄ• ramidhamm sammasanakÄ• raá¹‡ena. __kampitÄ• _ti calitÄ• . __sadevake_ti sadevake loke.

tato mahÄ• jano tathÄ• gatassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• haá¹-á¹-hatuá¹-á¹-ho mÄ• lÄ• gandhavil rammanagarato \Ne 132/ nikkhamitvÄ• bodhisattaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• mÄ• lÄ• gandhÄ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• rammanagarameva pÄ• visi. atha kho bodhisatto dasa pÄ• ramiyo daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya nisinnÄ• sanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <175> á¹• 21 ``buddhassa \Ee 117/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , mano nibbÄ• yi tÄ• vade.

sabbe maá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamma, punÄ• pi maá¹ƒ abhivandisuá¹ƒ ||

<176> á¹• 21 ``samÄ• diyitvÄ• \Be 142/ buddhaguá¹‡aá¹ƒ, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• na mÄ• nas dÄ«paá¹…karaá¹ƒ namassitvÄ• , Ä• sanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __mano nibbÄ• yÄ«_ti mahÄ• janassa pathavikampane ubbiggahadayassa tattha kÄ nibbÄ• yi, santiá¹ƒ agamÄ• sÄ«ti attho. ``jano nibbÄ• yÄ«â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, so uttÄ• n sammÄ• Ä• diyitvÄ• , samÄ• dÄ• yÄ• ti attho. __buddhaguá¹‡a_nti pÄ• ramiyo. sesaá¹ƒ ut atha kho bodhisattaá¹ƒ dayitasabbasattaá¹ƒ Ä• sanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahantaá¹ƒ sakaladasasaha sannipatitvÄ• dibbehi mÄ• lÄ• gandhÄ• dÄ«hi pÅ«jetvÄ• --- ``ayya sumedhatÄ• pasa, tayÄ dÄ«paá¹…karadasabalassa pÄ• damÅ«le mahati patthanÄ• patthitÄ• , sÄ• te anantarÄ• y bhayaá¹ƒ vÄ• chambhitattaá¹ƒ vÄ• ahosi. sarÄ«re te appamattakopi rogo mÄ• uppajjatu, l pÅ«retvÄ• sammÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjha. yathÄ• pupphÅ«pagaphalÅ«pagÄ• rukkhÄ• ca, tatheva tvampi taá¹ƒ samayaá¹ƒ anatikkamitvÄ• khippaá¹ƒ sambodhiá¹ƒ phusassÅ«â€™ thutimaá¹…galÄ• ni payirudÄ• haá¹ƒsu, evaá¹ƒ payirudÄ• hitvÄ• bodhisattaá¹ƒ abhivÄ• det devaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nameva agamaá¹ƒsu. bodhisattopi devatÄ• hi abhitthuto --- ``ahaá¹ƒ dasa pÄ kappasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• naá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• naá¹ƒ matthake buddho bh daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya Ä• kÄ• samabbhuggantvÄ• isigaá¹‡avantaá¹ƒ himava

---

<177> á¹• 21 ``dibbaá¹ƒ mÄ• nusakaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, devÄ• mÄ• nusakÄ• ubho.

samokiranti pupphehi, vuá¹-á¹-hahantassa Ä• sanÄ• ||

<178> á¹• 21 ``vedayanti \Ne 133/ ca te sotthiá¹ƒ, devÄ• mÄ• nusakÄ• ubho.

mahantaá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ tuyhaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ labhassu yathicchitaá¹ƒ ||

<179> á¹• 21 ``sabbÄ«tiyo vivajjantu, soko rogo vinassatu.

mÄ• te bhavantvantarÄ• yÄ• , phusa khippaá¹ƒ bodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<180> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi samaye patte, pupphanti pupphino dumÄ• .

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡ehi pupphasu ||

<181> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Be 143/ \Ee 118/ ye keci sambuddhÄ• , pÅ«rayuá¹ƒ dasapÄ• ramÄ

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, pÅ«raya dasapÄ• ramÄ« ||

<182> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• ye keci sambuddhÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• amhi bujjhare.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, bujjhassu jinabodhiyaá¹ƒ ||

<183> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• ye keci sambuddhÄ• , dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayuá¹ƒ.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattaya ||

<184> á¹• 21 ``puá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ye yathÄ• cando, parisuddho virocati.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ puá¹‡á¹‡amano, viroca dasasahassiyaá¹ƒ ||

<185> á¹• 21 ``rÄ• humutto yathÄ• sÅ«riyo, tÄ• pena atirocati.

tatheva lokÄ• muccitvÄ• , viroca siriyÄ• tuvaá¹ƒ ||

<186> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• yÄ• kÄ• ci nadiyo, osaranti mahodadhiá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ sadevakÄ• lokÄ• , osarantu tavantike ||

<187> á¹• 21 ``tehi thutappasattho so, dasa dhamme samÄ• diya.

te dhamme paripÅ«rento, pavanaá¹ƒ pÄ• visÄ« tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ne 134/ __dibba_nti mandÄ• ravapÄ• ricchattakasantÄ• nakusesayÄ• dikaá¹ƒ dibba ca mÄ• nusapupphaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• ti attho. __samokirantÄ«_ti mamopari samokiriá¹ƒsÅ«ti at __vuá¹-á¹-hahantassÄ• _ti vuá¹-á¹-hahato. __vedayantÄ«_ti nivedayiá¹ƒsu saÃ±Ã±Ä• pesua sotthibhÄ• vaá¹ƒ. idÄ• ni vedayitÄ• kÄ• radassanatthaá¹ƒ __ ``mahantaá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ tuyha vuttaá¹ƒ. tayÄ• pana, sumedhapaá¹‡á¸• ita, mahantaá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ yat labhassÅ«ti attho.

__sabbÄ«tiyo_ti entÄ«ti Ä«tiyo, sabbÄ• Ä«tiyo sabbÄ«tiyo, upaddavÄ• . __vivajjantÅ«_ti m vinassatÅ«_ti socanasaá¹…khÄ• to soko rujanasaá¹…khÄ• to rogo ca vinassatu. __te_ti tav bhavantvantarÄ• yÄ• _ti mÄ• bhavantu antarÄ• yÄ• . __phusÄ• _ti adhigaccha pÄ• puá¹‡Ä arahattamaggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡ampi vaá¹-á¹-ati. __uttama_nti seá¹ sabbabuddhaguá¹‡adÄ• yakattÄ• arahattamaggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ``uttamaâ€™â€™ nti vuttaá __samaye_ti \Be 144/ tassa tassa rukkhassa pupphanasamaye sampatteti attho. __pupphi pupphanakÄ• . __buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡ehÄ«_ti aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahi buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡ehi. __puppha pÅ«rayiá¹ƒsu. __pÅ«rayÄ• _ti paripÅ«raya. __bujjhare_ti bujjhiá¹ƒsu. __jinabodhiya_nti jinÄ bodhiyÄ• , sabbaÃ±Ã±ubodhimÅ«leti attho. __puá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ye_ti puá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• siyaá¹ƒ. _ paripuá¹‡á¹‡amanoratho.

__rÄ• humutto_ti rÄ• hunÄ• sobbhÄ• nunÄ• mutto. __tÄ• penÄ• _ti patÄ• pena, Ä• lokena lokadhammehi alitto hutvÄ• ti attho. __virocÄ• _ti virÄ• ja. __siriyÄ• _ti buddhasiriyÄ• . __os mahÄ• samuddaá¹ƒ pavisanti. __osarantÅ«_ti upagacchantu. __tavantike_ti tava santikaá¹ƒ __thutappasattho_ti thuto ceva pasattho ca, thutehi vÄ• dÄ«paá¹…karÄ• dÄ«hi pasatthoti t dhamme_ti dasa pÄ• ramidhamme. __pavana_nti mahÄ• vanaá¹ƒ, dhammikapabbate mahÄ sesagÄ• thÄ• suuttÄ• nÄ• evÄ• ti.

iti madhuratthavilÄ• siniyÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsa-aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya sumedhapatthanÄ• kathÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

3. dÄ«paá¹…karabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• rammanagaravÄ• sinopi \Ne 135/ te upÄ• sakÄ• buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…ghas bhagavantaá¹ƒ bhuttÄ• viá¹ƒ onÄ«tapattapÄ• á¹‡iá¹ƒ mÄ• lÄ• gandhÄ• dÄ«hi pÅ«jetvÄ• va sotukÄ• mÄ• upanisÄ«diá¹ƒsu. atha satthÄ• tesaá¹ƒ paramamadhuraá¹ƒ hadayaá¹…gama ``dÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• ma sukhÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ, nidÄ• naá¹ƒ paramaá¹ƒ mataá¹ƒ.

nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ pana sopÄ• naá¹ƒ, patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ti pavuccati ||

``dÄ• naá¹ƒ tÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ manussÄ• naá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ bandhu parÄ• yanaá¹ƒ.

dÄ• naá¹ƒ dukkhÄ• dhipannÄ• naá¹ƒ, sattÄ• naá¹ƒ paramÄ• gati ||

``dukkhanittharaá¹‡aá¹-á¹-hena \Ee 120/, dÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• vÄ• ti dÄ«pitaá¹ƒ.

bhayarakkhaá¹‡ato dÄ• naá¹ƒ, nagaranti ca vaá¹‡á¹‡itaá¹ƒ ||

``dÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be 145/ durÄ• sadaá¹-á¹-hena, vuttamÄ• sivisoti ca.

dÄ• naá¹ƒ lobhamalÄ• dÄ«hi, padumaá¹ƒ anupalittato ||

``natthi dÄ• nasamo loke, purisassa avassayo.

paá¹-ipajjatha tasmÄ• taá¹ƒ, kiriyÄ• jjhÄ• sayena ca ||

``saggalokanidÄ• nÄ• ni, dÄ• nÄ• ni matimÄ• idha.

ko hi nÄ• ma naro loke, na dadeyya hite rato ||

``sutvÄ• devesu sampattiá¹ƒ, ko naro dÄ• nasambhavaá¹ƒ.

na dajjÄ• sukhappadaá¹ƒ dÄ• naá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ cittappamodanaá¹ƒ ||

``dÄ• nena \Ne 136/ paá¹-ipannena, accharÄ• parivÄ• rito.

ramate suciraá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹ƒ, nandane suranandane ||

``pÄ«timuá¸·Ä• raá¹ƒ vindati dÄ• tÄ• , gÄ• ravamasmiá¹ƒ gacchati loke.

kittimanantaá¹ƒ yÄ• ti ca dÄ• tÄ• , vissasanÄ«yo hoti ca dÄ• tÄ• || ``datvÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ yÄ• ti naro so, bhogasamiddhiá¹ƒ dÄ«ghaÃ±cÄ• yu.

sussaratampi ca vindati rÅ«paá¹ƒ, sagge saddhiá¹ƒ kÄ«á¸·ati devehi.

vimÄ• nesu á¹-hatvÄ• nÄ• nÄ• , mattamayÅ«rÄ• bhirutesu ||

``corÄ• rirÄ• jodakapÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhanaá¹ƒ asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡ameva dÄ• naá¹ƒ.

dadÄ• ti taá¹ƒ sÄ• vakaÃ±Ä• á¹‡abhÅ«miá¹ƒ, paccekabhÅ«miá¹ƒ pana buddhabhÅ«miâ€™ evamÄ• dinÄ• nayena dÄ• nÄ• numodanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• dÄ• nÄ• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ pakÄ• setvÄ• kathesi. sÄ«laá¹ƒ nÄ• metaá¹ƒ idhalokaparalokasampattÄ«naá¹ƒ mÅ«laá¹ƒ.

``sÄ«laá¹ƒ sukhÄ• naá¹ƒ paramaá¹ƒ nidÄ• naá¹ƒ, sÄ«lena sÄ«lÄ« tidivaá¹ƒ payÄ• ti.

sÄ«laÃ±hi saá¹ƒsÄ• ramupÄ• gatassa, tÄ• á¹‡aÃ±ca leá¹‡aÃ±ca parÄ• yanaÃ±ca ||

``avassayo \Be 146/ sÄ«lasamo janÄ• naá¹ƒ, kuto panaÃ±Ã±o idha vÄ• parattha.

sÄ«laá¹ƒ guá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ paramÄ• patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• , yathÄ• dharÄ• thÄ• varajaá¹…gamÄ• na ``sÄ«laá¹ƒ kireva kalyÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, sÄ«laá¹ƒ loke anuttaraá¹ƒ.

ariyavuttisamÄ• cÄ• ro, yena vuccati sÄ«lavÄ• â€™â€™ || (J I 3.118).

sÄ«lÄ• laá¹…kÄ• rasamo \Ee 121/ alaá¹…kÄ• ro natthi, sÄ«lagandhasamo gandho natthi, s kilesamalavisodhanaá¹ƒ natthi, sÄ«lasamaá¹ƒ pariá¸·Ä• hÅ«pasamaá¹ƒ natthi, sÄ«lasamaá sÄ«lasamaá¹ƒ saggÄ• rohaá¹‡asopÄ• naá¹ƒ natthi, nibbÄ• nanagarappavesane ca sÄ«lasa yathÄ• ha --- ``sobhantevaá¹ƒ \Ne 137/ na rÄ• jÄ• no, muttÄ• maá¹‡ivibhÅ«sitÄ• .

yathÄ• sobhanti yatino, sÄ«labhÅ«sanabhÅ«sitÄ• ||

``sÄ«lagandhasamo gandho, kuto nÄ• ma bhavissati.

yo samaá¹ƒ anuvÄ• te ca, paá¹-ivÄ• te ca vÄ• yati || (Vism I 9).

``na pupphagandho paá¹-ivÄ• tameti, na candanaá¹ƒ taggaramallikÄ• vÄ• .

sataÃ±ca gandho paá¹-ivÄ• tameti, sabbÄ• disÄ• sappuriso pavÄ• yati || ``candanaá¹ƒ tagaraá¹ƒ vÄ• pi, uppalaá¹ƒ atha vassikÄ«.

etesaá¹ƒ gandhajÄ• tÄ• naá¹ƒ, sÄ«lagandho anuttaro || (Dhp 54-55; Mil V 4.1).

``na gaá¹…gÄ• yamunÄ• cÄ• pi, sarabhÅ« vÄ• sarasvatÄ«.

ninnagÄ• vÄ• ciravatÄ«, mahÄ« vÄ• pi mahÄ• nadÄ« ||

``sakkuá¹‡anti visodhetuá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ malaá¹ƒ idha pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

visodhayati sattÄ• naá¹ƒ, yaá¹ƒ ve sÄ«lajalaá¹ƒ malaá¹ƒ ||

``na taá¹ƒ sajaladÄ• vÄ• tÄ• , na cÄ• pi haricandanaá¹ƒ.

neva hÄ• rÄ• na maá¹‡ayo, na candakiraá¹‡aá¹…kurÄ• ||

``samayantÄ«dha \Be 147/ sattÄ• naá¹ƒ, pariá¸·Ä• haá¹ƒ surakkhitaá¹ƒ.

yaá¹ƒ sameti idaá¹ƒ ariyaá¹ƒ, sÄ«laá¹ƒ accantasÄ«talaá¹ƒ ||

``attÄ• nuvÄ• dÄ• dibhayaá¹ƒ, viddhaá¹ƒsayati sabbadÄ• .

janeti kittihÄ• saÃ±ca, sÄ«laá¹ƒ sÄ«lavato sadÄ• ||

``saggÄ• rohaá¹‡asopÄ• naá¹ƒ, aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ sÄ«lasamaá¹ƒ kuto.

dvÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ• pana nibbÄ• na, nagarassa pavesane ||

``guá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ \Ne 138/ mÅ«labhÅ«tassa, dosÄ• naá¹ƒ balaghÄ• tino.

iti sÄ«lassa jÄ• nÄ• tha, Ä• nisaá¹ƒsamanuttaraâ€™â€™ nti || (Vism I 9).

evaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• sÄ«lÄ• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• --- ``idaá¹ƒ pana sÄ«laá¹ƒ nissÄ• ya ay ti dassanatthaá¹ƒ tadanantaraá¹ƒ saggakathaá¹ƒ kathesi. ayaá¹ƒ saggo nÄ• ma iá¹-á¹-ho ka niccamettha kÄ«á¸·Ä• niccaá¹ƒ sampattiyo labhanti. cÄ• tumahÄ• rÄ• jikÄ• devÄ• navutiv dibbasukhaá¹ƒ dibbasampattiá¹ƒ paá¹-ilabhanti. tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• tisso vassakoá¹-iyo saá¹-á¹-vassasatasahassÄ• nÄ«ti evamÄ• disaggaguá¹‡apaá¹-isaá¹ƒyuttakathaá¹ƒ kathesi. evaá¹ƒ palobhetvÄ• puna --- ``ayampi saggo anicco adhuvo na tattha chandarÄ• go kÄ• tabboâ€™ Ä• dÄ«navaá¹ƒ okÄ• raá¹ƒ saá¹ƒkilesaá¹ƒ nekkhamme Ä• nisaá¹ƒsaÃ±ca pakÄ• setvÄ• an kathesi. evaá¹ƒ tassa mahÄ• janassa dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• ekacce saraá¹‡esu ca ekacce sotÄ• pattiphale ca ekacce sakadÄ• gÄ• miphale ekacce anÄ• gÄ• miphale ekacce catÅ«su vijjÄ• su ekacce chasu abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su ekacce aá¹-á¹-hasu samÄ• pattÄ«su patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• p rammanagarato nikkhamitvÄ• sudassanamahÄ• vihÄ• rameva pÄ• visi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• te bhojayitvÄ• na, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

upagacchuá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassa, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``saraá¹‡Ä• gamane kaÃ±ci, niveseti tathÄ• gato.

kaÃ±ci paÃ±casu sÄ«lesu, sÄ«le dasavidhe paraá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``kassaci \Be 148/ deti sÄ• maÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, caturo phalamuttame.

kassaci asame dhamme, deti so paá¹-isambhidÄ• ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``kassaci varasamÄ• pattiyo, aá¹-á¹-ha deti narÄ• sabho.

tisso kassaci vijjÄ• yo, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pavecchati ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``tena yogena janakÄ• yaá¹ƒ, ovadati mahÄ• muni.

tena vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, lokanÄ• thassa sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• hanusabhakkhandho \Ne 139/, dÄ«paá¹…karasanÄ• mako.

bahÅ« jane tÄ• rayati, parimoceti duggatiá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``bodhaneyyaá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , satasahassepi yojane.

khaá¹‡ena upagantvÄ• na, bodheti taá¹ƒ mahÄ• munÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __te_ti rammanagaravÄ• sino upÄ• sakÄ• . __saraá¹‡a_nti ettha saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ saraá¹ gantÄ• ca veditabbÄ• . sarati hiá¹ƒsati vinÄ• setÄ«ti __saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ, _ kiá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ? ratanatta saraá¹‡agatÄ• naá¹ƒ teneva saraá¹‡agamanena bhayaá¹ƒ santÄ• saá¹ƒ dukkhaá¹ƒ duggati hiá¹ƒsati vinÄ• setÄ«ti saraá¹‡anti vuccatÄ«ti. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ --- ``ye keci buddhaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gatÄ• se, na te gamissanti apÄ• yabhÅ«miá¹ƒ.

pahÄ• ya mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ dehaá¹ƒ, devakÄ• yaá¹ƒ paripÅ«ressanti || (DN II 332; SN a I 37).

``ye \Ee 123/ keci dhammaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gatÄ• se, na te gamissanti apÄ• yabhÅ«miá¹ƒ.

pahÄ• ya mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ dehaá¹ƒ, devakÄ• yaá¹ƒ paripÅ«ressanti || (DN II 332; SN a I 37).

``ye keci saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gatÄ• se, na te gamissanti apÄ• yabhÅ«miá¹ƒ.

pahÄ• ya mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ dehaá¹ƒ, devakÄ• yaá¹ƒ paripÅ«ressantÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (DN II 332;

__saraá¹‡agamanaá¹ƒ_ \Be 149/ nÄ• ma ratanattayaparÄ• yanÄ• kÄ• rappavatto cittuppÄ• nÄ• ma taá¹ƒsamaá¹…gÄ«puggalo. evaá¹ƒ tÄ• va saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ saraá¹‡agamanaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡ tayaá¹ƒ veditabbaá¹ƒ.

__tassÄ• _ti taá¹ƒ dÄ«paá¹…karaá¹ƒ, upayogatthe sÄ• mivacanaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. ``u tatthÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __satthuno_ti satthÄ• raá¹ƒ. __saraá¹‡Ä• gamane kaÃ±cÄ« saraá¹‡agamane nivesetÄ«ti attho. kiÃ±cÄ• pi paccuppannavasena vuttaá¹ƒ, atÄ«takÄ• lav gahetabbo. esa nayo sesesupi. ``kassaci saraá¹‡Ä• gamaneâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassap paÃ±casu sÄ«lesÅ«ti \Ne 140/ kaÃ±ci puggalaá¹ƒ paÃ±casu viratisÄ«lesu nivesesÄ«ti attho sÄ«lesÅ«â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, soyevattho. __sÄ«le dasavidhe para_nti aparaá¹ƒ puggal nivesesÄ«ti attho. ``kassaci kusale dasÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa kaÃ±ci puggalaá¹ƒ samÄ• dapesÄ«ti attho. __kassaci deti sÄ• maÃ±Ã±a_nti ettha paramatthato sÄ• maÃ±Ã±a
---

``katamaÃ±ca, bhikkhave, sÄ• maÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ? ayameva ariyo aá¹-á¹-haá¹…giko maggo, sey sammÄ• diá¹-á¹-hi ... pe ... sammÄ• samÄ• dhi. idaá¹ƒ vuccati, bhikkhave, sÄ• maÃ±Ã±aâ€ __caturo phalamuttame_ti cattÄ• ri uttamÄ• ni phalÄ• nÄ«ti attho. __ma_-kÄ• ro padasand liá¹…gavipariyÄ• sena vuttaá¹ƒ. yathopanissayaá¹ƒ cattÄ• ro magge cattÄ• ri ca sÄ• maÃ±Ã adÄ• sÄ«ti attho. __kassaci asame dhamme_ti kassaci asadise cattÄ• ro paá¹-isambhidÄ• d __kassaci varasamÄ• pattiyo_ti kassaci pana nÄ«varaá¹‡avigamena padhÄ• nabhÅ«tÄ• a __tisso kassaci vijjÄ• yo_ti kassaci puggalassa upanissayavasena dibbacakkhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡apubbenivÄ• sÄ• nussatiÃ±Ä• á¹‡aÄ• savakkhayaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ __chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pavecchatÄ«_ti cha abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• yo kassaci adÄ• si.

__tena yogenÄ• _ti tena nayena tenÄ• nukkamena ca. __janakÄ• ya_nti janasamÅ«haá¹ƒ.
kÄ• lavipariyÄ• sena vuttanti veditabbaá¹ƒ. ito uparipi Ä«disesu vacanesu atÄ«takÄ• lavase \Be 150/. __tena vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• sÄ«_ti tena dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato ovÄ• dena an vitthataá¹ƒ visÄ• lÄ«bhÅ«taá¹ƒ sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ahosi.

__mahÄ• hanÅ«_ti \Ee 124/ mahÄ• purisÄ• naá¹ƒ kira dvepi hanÅ«ni paripuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni dv candasadisÄ• kÄ• rÄ• ni hontÄ«ti mahantÄ• ni hanÅ«ni yassa so mahÄ• hanu, sÄ«hahanÅ __usabhakkhandho_ti usabhasseva khandho yassa bhavati, so usabhakkhandho. suvaá¹-á¹-itasuvaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• liá¹…gasadisarucirakkhandho samavaá¹-á¹-acÄ• rukkhandhoti a __dÄ«paá¹…karasanÄ• mako_ti dÄ«paá¹…karasanÄ• mo \Ne 141/. __bahÅ« jane tÄ• raya tÄ• resi. __parimocetÄ«_ti parimocesi. __duggati_nti duggatito. nissakkatthe upayogavacan idÄ• ni tÄ• raá¹‡aparimocanakaraá¹‡Ä• kÄ• radassanatthaá¹ƒ __ ``bodhaneyyaá¹ƒ janaâ€ tattha __bodhaneyyaá¹ƒ jana_nti bodhaneyyaá¹ƒ pajaá¹ƒ, ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __disvÄ samantacakkhunÄ• vÄ• disvÄ• . __satasahassepi yojane_ti anekasatasahassepi yojane á dasasahassiyaá¹ƒyeva sandhÄ• ya vuttanti daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ.

dÄ«paá¹…karo kira satthÄ• buddhattaá¹ƒ patvÄ• bodhimÅ«le sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• mahÄ• brahmuno dhammajjhesanaá¹ƒ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±Ä• ya sunandÄ• rÄ• me dhammacakkaá¹ devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi. ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abhisamayo ahosi.

atha satthÄ• attano puttassa samavaá¹-á¹-akkhandhassa usabhakkhandhassa nÄ• ma Ã± taá¹ƒ atrajaá¹ƒ pamukhaá¹ƒ katvÄ• __rÄ• hulovÄ• dasadisaá¹ƒ_ dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• de dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi. ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi.

puna bhagavÄ• amaravatÄ«nagaradvÄ• re mahÄ• sirÄ«sarukkhamÅ«le yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ bandhanÄ• mokkhaá¹ƒ katvÄ• devagaá¹‡aparivuto divasakarÄ• tirekajutivisarabhavane tÄ• pÄ• ricchattakamÅ«le paramasÄ«tale paá¹‡á¸• ukambalasilÄ• tale nisÄ«ditvÄ• sabbadeva attano \Be 151/ jananiá¹ƒ sumedhÄ• deviá¹ƒ pamukhaá¹ƒ katvÄ• sabbalokaviditavisuddhid bhagavÄ• sabbasattahitakaraá¹ƒ paramÄ• tirekagambhÄ«rasukhumaá¹ƒ buddhivisadakara abhidhammapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• navutidevakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ
ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamaye buddho, koá¹-isatamabodhayi.

dutiyÄ• bhisamaye nÄ• tho, navutikoá¹-imabodhayi ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• ca devabhavanamhi, buddho dhammamadesayi.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

dÄ«paá¹…karassa \Ne 142/ \Ee 125/ pana bhagavato tayo sÄ• vakasannipÄ• tÄ• ahesuá¹ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

athÄ• parena samayena dasabalo catÅ«hi bhikkhusatasahassehi parivuto gÄ• manigaman mahÄ• janÄ• nuggahaá¹ƒ karonto cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• no anukkamena ekasmiá¹ƒ padese sabbalokavissutaá¹ƒ amanussapariggahitaá¹ƒ atibhayÄ• nakaá¹ƒ olambÄ• mbudharaparicu vividhasurabhitarukusumavÄ• sitakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ nÄ• nÄ• migagaá¹‡avicaritakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ __nÄ• paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yaá¹ƒ pabbataá¹ƒ sampÄ• puá¹‡i. so kira pabbato nÄ• radena nÄ• ma ya tattha pana tassa yakkhassa anusaá¹ƒvaccharaá¹ƒ mahÄ• jano manussabaliá¹ƒ upasaá¹ƒh atha dÄ«paá¹…karo kira bhagavÄ• tassa mahÄ• janassa upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ disvÄ• t cÄ• tuddisaá¹ƒ pesetvÄ• adutiyo asahÄ• yo mahÄ• karuá¹‡Ä• balavasaá¹…gatahadayo taÅ nÄ• radapabbataá¹ƒ abhiruhi. atha so manussabhakkho sakahitanirapekkho paravadhadakl asahamÄ• no kodhaparetamÄ• naso dasabalaá¹ƒ bhiá¹ƒsÄ• petvÄ• palÄ• petukÄ• mo taá¹ pabbato tena \Be 152/ cÄ• liyamÄ• no bhagavato Ä• nubhÄ• vena tasseva matthake patam tato so bhÄ«to --- ``handa naá¹ƒ agginÄ• jhÄ• pessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti mahantaá¹ƒ atibhÄ aggikkhandhaá¹ƒ nibbattesi. so aggikkhandho paá¹-ivÄ• te khitto viya attanova dukkhaá¹ƒ ja bhagavato cÄ«vare aá¹ƒsumattampi daá¸• á¸• huá¹ƒ samattho ahosi. yakkho pana ``samaá daá¸• á¸• hoâ€™â€™ ti olokento dasabalaá¹ƒ saradasamayavimalakaranikaraá¹ƒ sabbajan sÄ«talajalatalagatakamalakaá¹‡á¹‡ikÄ• ya nisinnaá¹ƒ viya bhagavantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• cintesi --- mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo, yaá¹ƒ yaá¹ƒ imassÄ• haá¹ƒ anatthaá¹ƒ karomi, so so mamÅ«pariyeva pa muÃ±citvÄ• aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ me paá¹-isaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ parÄ• yanaá¹ƒ natthi, pathaviyaá¹ƒ upakkha nissÄ• ya uá¹-á¹-hahanti, handÄ• haá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒyeva samaá¹‡aá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gamissÄ• m athevaá¹ƒ \Ne 143/ pana so cintetvÄ• bhagavato cakkÄ• laá¹…katatalesu pÄ• desu sirasÄ maá¹ƒ, bhante, accagamÄ• â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡amagamÄ• si. athas kathesi. so desanÄ• pariyosÄ• ne dasahi yakkhasahassehi saddhiá¹ƒ sotÄ• pattiphale patiá divase sakalajambudÄ«patalavÄ• sino manussÄ• \Ee 126/ tassa balikammatthaá¹ƒ ekekag Ä• hariá¹ƒsu. aÃ±Ã±aÃ±ca bahutilataá¹‡á¸• ulakulatthamuggamÄ• sÄ• diá¹ƒ sappinavanÄ« Ä• hariá¹ƒsu. atha so yakkho taá¹ƒ divasaá¹ƒ Ä• bhatataá¹‡á¸• ulÄ• dikaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ tesaá balikammatthÄ• ya Ä• nÄ«tamanusse dasabalassa niyyÄ• tesi.

atha satthÄ• te manusse ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbÄ• jetvÄ• antosattÄ• heyeva sabbe patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• petvÄ• mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya koá¹-isatabhikkhumajjhagato caturaá¹…ga pÄ• timokkhamuddisi. caturaá¹…gÄ• ni nÄ• ma sabbeva ehibhikkhÅ« honti, sabbe chaá¸·ab anÄ• mantitÄ• va Ä• gatÄ• , pannarasÅ«posathadivaso cÄ• ti imÄ• ni cattÄ• ri aá¹…gÄ• ni sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<11> á¹• 21 ``puna \Be 153/ nÄ• radakÅ«á¹-amhi, pavivekagate jine.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• vÄ«tamalÄ• , samiá¹ƒsu satakoá¹-iyoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __pavivekagate_ti gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya gate. __samiá¹ƒsÅ«_ti sannipatiá¹ƒsu.

yadÄ• pana dÄ«paá¹…karo lokanÄ• yako sudassananÄ• make pabbate vassÄ• vÄ• samu jambudÄ«pavÄ• sino manussÄ• anusaá¹ƒvaccharaá¹ƒ giraggasamajjaá¹ƒ karonti. tasmiá¹ƒ manussÄ• dasabalaá¹ƒ disvÄ• dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• tatra pasÄ«ditvÄ• pabbajiá¹ƒsu. satthÄ• tesaá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• sayÄ• nukÅ«laá¹ƒ vipassanÄ• kathaá¹ƒ kathesi. taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• te sab sammasitvÄ• vipassanÄ• nupubbena maggÄ• nupubbena ca arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu.
navutikoá¹-isahassehi saddhiá¹ƒ pavÄ• resi. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ

<12> á¹• 21 ``yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sudassanasiluccaye.

navutikoá¹-isahassehi, pavÄ• resi mahÄ• muni ||

``ahaá¹ƒ \Ne 144/ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo uggatÄ• pano.

antalikkhamhi caraá¹‡o, paÃ±cÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ragÅ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• naka ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• __aá¹-á¹-hasÄ• liniyÄ• _ dhammasaá¹…gahaá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya nidÄ• nav __dÄ«paá¹…karabuddhavaá¹ƒse_ likhitÄ• . imasmiá¹ƒ pana buddhavaá¹ƒse natthi. natthibh yuttataro. kasmÄ• ti ce? heá¹-á¹-hÄ• sumedhakathÄ• su kathitattÄ• ti.

dÄ«paá¹…kare kira bhagavati dhammaá¹ƒ desente dasasahassÄ• naÃ±ca vÄ«satisahassÄ ahosiyeva. ekassa pana dvinnaá¹ƒ tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ catunnanti ca Ä• divasena abhisamayÄ• na dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ bÄ• hujaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ ahosi. tena vu <13> á¹• 21 ``dasavÄ«sasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 127/, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu.

ekadvinnaá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __dasavÄ«sasahassÄ• na_nti dasasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ vÄ«satisahassÄ• naÃ±ca. __dha catusaccadhammappaá¹-ivedho. _}_ekadvinna_nti ekassa ceva dvinnaÃ±ca \Be 154/, tiá¹‡á ... dasannantiÄ• dinÄ• nayena asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ti attho. evaá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• bhisama mahantappattaá¹ƒ bahÅ«hi paá¹‡á¸• itehi devamanussehi niyyÄ• nikanti __jaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ_ jÄ• adhisÄ«lasikkhÄ• dÄ«hi __iddhaÃ±ca_ samÄ• dhiÄ• dÄ«hi __phÄ«taÃ±ca_ ahosi. tena vutt

<14> á¹• 21 ``vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ bÄ• hujaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, iddhaá¹ƒ phÄ«taá¹ƒ ahÅ« tadÄ• .

dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato, sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ suvisodhitaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __suvisodhita_nti suá¹-á¹-hu bhagavatÄ• sodhitaá¹ƒ visuddhaá¹ƒ kataá¹ƒ. dÄ«paá¹.
satthÄ• raá¹ƒ sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• naá¹ƒ mahiddhikÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ parivÄ• renti. tena ca samayena ye sekkhÄ• kÄ• lakiriyaá¹ƒ karonti, te garahitÄ• bhavanti, hutvÄ• va parinibbÄ• yantÄ«ti adhippÄ• yo. tasmÄ• hi tassa bhagavato sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ supup khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi bhikkhÅ«hi ativiya sobhittha. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <15> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• ri \Ne 145/ satasahassÄ• ni, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• mahiddhikÄ• .

dÄ«paá¹…karaá¹ƒ lokaviduá¹ƒ, parivÄ• renti sabbadÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``ye keci tena samayena, jahanti mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ bhavaá¹ƒ.

appattamÄ• nasÄ• sekhÄ• , garahitÄ• bhavanti te ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``supupphitaá¹ƒ pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, arahantehi tÄ• dihi.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, upasobhati sabbadÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __cattÄ• ri satasahassÄ• nÄ«_ti gaá¹‡anÄ• ya dassitÄ• evaá¹ƒ dassitagaá¹‡anÄ• i dassanatthaá¹ƒ __ ``chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• mahiddhikÄ• â€™â€™ _ti vuttanti evamattho gahe __chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• mahiddhikÄ• _ti chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• naá¹ƒ mahiddhikÄ• nanti sÄ• mia daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. __parivÄ• renti sabbadÄ• _ti niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ dasabalaá¹ƒ parivÄ• renti, b katthaci na gacchantÄ«ti adhippÄ• yo. __tena samayenÄ• _ti tasmiá¹ƒ samaye. ayaá¹ƒ pan samavÄ• yÄ• dÄ«su navasu atthesu dissati. yathÄ• ha --- ``samavÄ• ye \Be 155/ \Ee 128/ khaá¹‡e kÄ• le, samÅ«he hetudiá¹-á¹-hisu.

paá¹-ilÄ• bhe pahÄ• ne ca, paá¹-ivedhe ca dissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Sv I 1; Ps I mÅ«lapariyÄ•
Spk I 1.1; Mp I 1.1; Dhs-a 1 kÄ• mÄ• vacarakusalapadabhÄ• janÄ«ya; Khp-a maá¹ƒgalasut evamiccÄ• dipÄ• á¹-havaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Paá¹-is-a II 1.184).

idha so kÄ• le daá¹-á¹-habbo; tasmiá¹ƒ kÄ• leti attho. __mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ bhava_nti manussab __appattamÄ• nasÄ• _ti appattaá¹ƒ anadhigataá¹ƒ mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ yehi te appattamÄ• nasÄ• cittassa ca arahattassa ca adhivacanaá¹ƒ. ``antalikkhacaro pÄ• so, yvÄ• yaá¹ƒ carati mÄ• n 151; Vin I 33) hi ettha pana rÄ• go ``mÄ• nasoâ€™â€™ ti vutto. ``cittaá¹ƒ mano mÄ• nasaá paá¹‡á¸• araâ€™â€™ nti (Dhs 6; Vibh 184; Nidd I 1; Nidd II pÄ• rÄ• yanÄ• nugÄ«tigÄ• thÄ• cittaá¹ƒ. ``appattamÄ• naso sekho, kÄ• laá¹ƒ kayirÄ• janesutÄ• â€™â€™ ti \Ne 146/ (SN a idhÄ• pi arahattameva adhippetaá¹ƒ (Dhs-a 5 kÄ• mÄ• vacarakusalaniddesavÄ• rakathÄ• ; appattaarahattaphalÄ• ti attho. __sekhÄ• _ti kenaá¹-á¹-hena sekhÄ• ? sekhadhammapaá¹-i vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ --- ``kittÄ• vatÄ• nu kho, bhante, sekho hotÄ«ti? idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu s sammÄ• diá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• samannÄ• gato hoti ... pe ... sekhena sammÄ• samÄ• dhinÄ• sama bhikkhave, bhikkhu sekho hotÄ«â€™â€™ ti (SN c V 13). api ca sikkhantÄ«ti sekhÄ• . vuttaÃ ``sikkhati, sikkhatÄ«ti kho, bhikkhu, tasmÄ• sekhoti vuccati. kiÃ±ca sikkhati? adhisÄ«lampi adhicittampi adhipaÃ±Ã±ampi sikkhatÄ«ti kho, bhikkhu, tasmÄ• sekhoti vuccatÄ«â€™â€™ __supupphita_nti suá¹-á¹-hu vikasitaá¹ƒ. __pÄ• vacana_nti pasatthaá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ, vuddhip pavacanaá¹ƒ, pavacanameva pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, sÄ• sananti attho. __upasobhatÄ«_ti abhirÄ• __sabbadÄ• _ti sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ. ``upasobhati sadevakeâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho.

tassa dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato rammavatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, sudevo nÄ• ma devÄ« mÄ• tÄ• , sumaá¹…galo ca tisso cÄ• ti dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sÄ• gato nÄ• ma upaá¹-cÄ• ti dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , bodhi tassa bhagavato pipphalirukkho ahosi, asÄ«tihatthubbedho Ä• yÅ«ti. kiá¹ƒ panimesaá¹ƒ jÄ• tanagarÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ dassane payojananti ce? vuccate --- y jÄ• tanagaraá¹ƒ na pitÄ• na mÄ• tÄ• paÃ±Ã±Ä• yeyya, imassa pana neva jÄ• tanagaraá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• yati, devo vÄ• sakko vÄ• yakkho vÄ• mÄ• ro vÄ• brahmÄ• vÄ• esa maÃ±Ã± pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ anacchariyanti \Ee 129/ maÃ±Ã±amÄ• nÄ• na sotabbaá¹ƒ na saddahita abhisamayo na bhaveyya, asati abhisamaye niratthako buddhuppÄ• do bhaveyya, aniyyÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ jÄ• tanagarÄ• diko paricchedo dassetabbo. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<18> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ rammavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sudevo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sumedhÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``sumaá¹…galo ca tisso ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sÄ• gato nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``nandÄ• \Ne 147/ ceva sunandÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, pipphalÄ«ti pavuccati ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``asÄ«tihatthamubbedho, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni.

sobhati dÄ«parukkhova, sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va phullito ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``satasahassavassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``jotayitvÄ• na saddhammaá¹ƒ, santÄ• retvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• ca iddhi so ca yaso, tÄ• ni ca pÄ• desu cakkaratanÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __sudevo nÄ• ma khattiyo_ti sudevo nÄ• massa khattiyo pitÄ• ahosÄ«ti attho. __jan __pipphalÄ«_ti pilakkhakapÄ«tanarukkho bodhi. __asÄ«tihatthamubbedho_ti asÄ«tihatthaá __dÄ«parukkho vÄ• _ti sampajjalitadÄ«pamÄ• lÄ• kulo dÄ«parukkho viya Ä• rohapariá¹‡Ä• hasaá¹‡á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ripÅ«risampanno dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡Ä• nuby vipphuritaraá¹ƒsijÄ• lÄ• visaratÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡asamujjalamiva gaganatalaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• \Be 1 __sobhatÄ«_ti sobhittha. __sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va phullito_ti pupphito sabbaphÄ• liphullo sÄ• larÄ sabbaphÄ• liphullo yojanasatubbedho pÄ• ricchatto viya ca asÄ«tihatthubbedho bhagavÄ• __satasahassavassÄ• nÄ«_ti vassasatasahassÄ• ni tassa Ä• yÅ«ti attho. __tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-kÄ• laá¹ƒ tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no. __janata_nti \Ee 130/ janasamÅ«haá¹ƒ. __santÄ• retvÄ• mahÄ mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ. ``santÄ• retvÄ• sadevakaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa sadevakaá¹ƒ loka iddhÄ«_ti sÄ• ca sampatti Ä• nubhÄ• vo. __so ca yaso_ti so ca parivÄ• ro. __sabbaá¹ƒ tam sabbaá¹ƒ vuttappakÄ• raá¹ƒ sampattijÄ• taá¹ƒ antarahitaá¹ƒ apagatanti attho. __nanu rittÄ• sabbe pana saá¹…khatadhammÄ• nanu rittÄ• tucchÄ• , niccasÄ• rÄ• dirahitÄ• ti attho.

 ettha \Ne 148/ pana nagarÄ• dipariccheda pÄ• á¸·iyamÄ• gatova. sambahulavÄ• ro pana n dÄ«petabbo. seyyathidaá¹ƒ --- puttapariccheda, bhariyÄ• pariccheda, pÄ• sÄ• dapariccheda nÄ• á¹-akitthipariccheda, abhinikkhamanapariccheda, padhÄ• napariccheda, vihÄ• rapariccl upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kapariccheda. etesampi dÄ«pane kÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttameva. tas bhariyÄ• naá¹ƒ tisatasahassaá¹ƒ ahosi. tassa aggamahesÄ« padumÄ• nÄ• ma, tassa pana
tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

``bhariyÄ• padumÄ• nÄ• ma, vibuddhapadumÄ• nanÄ• .

atrajo usabhakkhandho, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

``haá¹ƒsÄ• koÃ±cÄ• mayÅ«rÄ• khyÄ• , pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• pi tayo matÄ• .

dasavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ avasÄ« kira ||

``hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhanto, nandÄ• rÄ• me jino vasÄ«.

nando nÄ• massupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, lokÄ• nandakaro kirÄ• â€™â€™ ti || sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ pana paÃ±ca vemattÄ• ni honti Ä• yuvemattaá¹ƒ pamÄ• á¹‡avemattaá¹ƒ padhÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ rasmivemattanti. tattha __Ä• yuvemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci dÄ«ghÄ• yu appÄ• yukÄ• . tathÄ• hi dÄ«paá¹…karassa pana bhagavato vassasatasahassaá¹ƒ Ä• yupp bhagavato vassasataá¹ƒ.

 __pamÄ• á¹‡avemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci dÄ«ghÄ• honti keci rassÄ• . tathÄ• hi dÄ«paá¹…
ahosi, amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ pana bhagavÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahatthappamÄ• á¹‡o.

 __kulavemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci khattiyakule nibbattanti keci brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule. tathÄ• hi c khattiyakule nibbattiá¹ƒsu, kakusandhakoá¹‡Ä• gamanÄ• dayo brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule.

 padhÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma kesaÃ±ci padhÄ• naá¹ƒ ittarameva hoti yathÄ• kassapassa addhaniyaá¹ƒ amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagavato viya.

__rasmivemattaá¹ƒ_ \Ne 149/ nÄ• ma maá¹…galassa bhagavato sarÄ«rasmi dasasahassil aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si, amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagavato byÄ• mamattaá¹ƒ. tatra rasmivemattaá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• saya yattakaá¹ƒ icchasi, tassa tattakaá¹ƒ sarÄ«rappabhÄ• pharati. maá¹…galassa pana ``dasas pharatÅ«â€™â€™ ti ajjhÄ• sayo ahosi. paá¹-ividdhaguá¹‡esu pana kassaci vemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• Ä• dayo).

tathÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ cattÄ• ri avijahitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ni nÄ• ma honti. __bodhipalla ekasmiá¹ƒyeva á¹-hÄ• ne hoti. __dhammacakkappavattanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ_ isipatane miga devorohaá¹‡akÄ• le saá¹…kassanagaradvÄ• re __paá¹-hamapÄ• dakkamo_ avijahitova hot cattÄ• ri __maÃ±capÄ• daá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ni_ avijahitÄ• neva honti. vihÄ• ropi avijahitova. so mahanto vÄ• hoti.

aparaá¹ƒ pana amhÄ• kaá¹ƒyeva bhagavato sahajÄ• tapariccheda Ã±ca nakkhattapariche sabbaÃ±Ã±ubodhisattena kira saddhiá¹ƒ rÄ• hulamÄ• tÄ• Ä• nandatthero channo kaá¹‡á¸• mahÄ• bodhirukkho kÄ• á¸·udÄ• yÄ«ti imÄ• ni __sata sahajÄ• tÄ• ni_. mahÄ• puriso kira ut mÄ• tukucchiá¹ƒ okkami, mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhami \Be 159/, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ p yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ akÄ• si. visÄ• khanakkhattena jÄ• to ca abhisambuddho ca pari mÄ• ghanakkhattena tassa sÄ• vakasannipÄ• to ceva Ä• yusaá¹…khÄ• ravosajjanaÃ±ca ab devorohaá¹‡anti ettakaá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• dÄ«petabbaá¹ƒ. ayaá¹ƒ sambahulavÄ• rapariccheda evÄ• ti.

iti bhagavÄ• dÄ«paá¹…karo yÄ• vatÄ• yukaá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• sabbabuddhakiccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• a nibbÄ• nadhÄ• tuyÄ• parinibbÄ• yi.

yasmiá¹ƒ kira kappe dÄ«paá¹…karadasabalo udapÄ• di, tasmiá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±epi taá¹‡haá¹…ka saraá¹‡aá¹…karoti tayo buddhÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tesaá¹ƒ santike bodhisattassa byÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ na dassitÄ• . __aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• yaá¹ƒ_ pana tamhÄ• kappÄ• Ä• dito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• yuppann dassetuá¹ƒ idaá¹ƒ vuttaá¹ƒ ---

``taá¹‡haá¹…karo medhaá¹…karo, athopi saraá¹‡aá¹…karo.

dÄ«paá¹…karo ca sambuddho, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o dvipaduttamo ||

``maá¹…galo \Ne 150/ ca sumano ca, revato sobhito muni.

anomadassÄ« padumo, nÄ• rado padumuttaro ||

``sumedho ca sujÄ• to ca, piyadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

atthadassÄ« dhammadassÄ«, siddhattho lokanÄ• yako ||

``tisso phusso ca sambuddho, vipassÄ« sikhi vessabhÅ«.

kakusandho koá¹‡Ä• gamano, kassapo cÄ• pi nÄ• yako ||

``ete \Ee 132/ ahesuá¹ƒ sambuddhÄ• , vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va uppannÄ• , mahÄ• tamavinodanÄ• .

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhÄ• va, nibbutÄ• te sasÄ• vakÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Ap-a I dÅ«renidÄ• naka Ja I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•).

ettÄ• vatÄ• nÄ• tisaá¹…khepavitthÄ• ravasena katÄ• ya madhuratthavilÄ• siniyÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsa-aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya dÄ«paá¹…karabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito paá¹-hamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

4. koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±abuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• dÄ«paá¹…kare \Be 160/ \Ne 151/ kira bhagavati parinibbute tassa sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ vassasatas atha buddhÄ• nubuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ antaradhÄ• nena sÄ• sanampissa antara ekamasaá¹…khyeyyamatikkamitvÄ• ekasmiá¹ƒ kappe __koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o_ nÄ• ma satthÄ soá¸·asaasaá¹…khyeyyaá¹ƒ kappÄ• naÃ±ca satasahassaá¹ƒ pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• bodhiÄ vessantarattabhÄ• vasadise attabhÄ• ve á¹-hatvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• ta á¹-hatvÄ• devatÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• tusitapurato cavitvÄ• rammavatÄ«nagare kule sujÄ• tÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. tassapi paá¹-isa dÄ«paá¹…karabuddhavaá¹ƒse vuttappakÄ• rÄ• ni dvattiá¹ƒsa pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni nibbattiá¹ katÄ• rakkhasaá¹ƒvidhÄ• no dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena mÄ• tukucchito nikkham uttarÄ• bhimukho sattapadavÄ«tihÄ• rena gantvÄ• sabbÄ• ca disÄ• viloketvÄ• Ä• sabhiá ``aggohamasmi lokassa, jeá¹-á¹-hohamasmi lokassa, seá¹-á¹-hohamasmi lokassa, ayamant punabbhavoâ€™â€™ ti (DN II 31; MN III 207).

tato kumÄ• rassa nÄ• makaraá¹‡adivase nÄ• maá¹ƒ karontÄ• ``koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±oâ€™â€™ bhagavÄ• koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±agotto ahosi. tassa kira tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ --- rÄ• ma, s paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yÄ• . tesu tÄ«á¹‡i satasahassÄ• ni nÄ• á¹-akitthÄ«naá¹ƒ naccagÄ«tavÄ• sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. tassa rucidevÄ« nÄ• ma \Ee 133/ aggamah nÄ• massa putto ahosi. so dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi.

so pana jiá¹‡á¹‡abyÄ• dhimatapabbajite disvÄ• Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena nikkhamitvÄ• pabbajit padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ cari. koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±akumÄ• raá¹ƒ pana pabbajantaá¹ƒ dasa janakoá¹-parivuto dasa mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya sunandagÄ yasodharÄ• ya nÄ• ma seá¹-á¹-hidhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ paramamadhuraá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• s phalapallavaá¹…kurasamalaá¹…kate \Ne 152/ sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya sunandakÄ• jÄ«vakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• tikkhattuá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• pubbadisÄ• bhÄ• gaá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• bodhirukkhaá¹ƒ pi aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• rattiyÄ• paá¹-hamayÄ pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nussatiÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ visodhetvÄ• majjhimayÄ• me dibbacakkhuá¹ƒ visodh paccayÄ• kÄ• raá¹ƒ sammasitvÄ• Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nacatutthajjhÄ• nato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya paÃ±ca udayabbayavasena samapaÃ±Ã±Ä• sa lakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni disvÄ• yÄ• va gotrabhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ cattÄ• ri maggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni cattÄ• ri ca phalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni catasso paá¹-isambhidÄ• ca paÃ±cagatiparicchedakaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ cha asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni sakale ca buddh paripuá¹‡á¹‡asaá¹…kappo bodhimÅ«le nisinnova ---

``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ, sandhÄ• vissaá¹ƒ anibbisaá¹ƒ.

gahakÄ• raá¹ƒ gavesanto, dukkhÄ• jÄ• ti punappunaá¹ƒ ||

``gahakÄ• raka diá¹-á¹-hosi, puna gehaá¹ƒ na kÄ• hasi.

sabbÄ• te phÄ• sukÄ• bhaggÄ• , gahakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ visaá¹…khataá¹ƒ.

visaá¹…khÄ• ragataá¹ƒ cittaá¹ƒ, taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• || (Dhp 153-154).

``ayoghanahatasseva, jalato jÄ• tavedaso.

anupubbÅ«pasantassa, yathÄ• na Ã±Ä• yate gati ||

``evaá¹ƒ sammÄ• vimuttÄ• naá¹ƒ, kÄ• mabandhoghatÄ• rinaá¹ƒ.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• petuá¹ƒ gatÄ« natthi, pattÄ• naá¹ƒ acalaá¹ƒ sukhaâ€™â€™ nti || (Ud 80) --- evaá¹ƒ udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ bodhimÅ«leyeva phalasamÄ• pattisukhe sattÄ• he brahmuno ajjhesanaá¹ƒ paá¹-icca --- ``kassa nu kho ahaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dhamm (MN I 284; II 341; Vin I 10) upadhÄ• rento attanÄ• saddhiá¹ƒ pabbajitÄ• dasa bhikkhukoá¹-kulaputtÄ• samupacitakusalamÅ«lÄ• maá¹ƒ pabbajantaá¹ƒ \Ee 134/ anupabbajitÄ• mayÄ• caritvÄ• maá¹ƒ upaá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu, handÄ• haá¹ƒ imesaá¹ƒ sabbapaá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dhammaa evaá¹ƒ upadhÄ• retvÄ• --- ``idÄ• ni pana te kattha vasantÄ«â€™â€™ ti olokento --- ``ito aá \Be 162/ arundhavatÄ«nagare devavane viharantÄ«â€™â€™ ti disvÄ• --- ``tesaá¹ƒ dhamm gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti pattacÄ«varamÄ• dÄ• ya seyyathÄ• pi nÄ• ma balavÄ• puriso s pasÄ• reyya, pasÄ• ritaá¹ƒ vÄ• bÄ• haá¹ƒ samiÃ±jeyya, evameva bodhimÅ«le antarahito d tasmiÃ±ca samaye tÄ• dasa bhikkhukoá¹-iyo arundhavatÄ«nagaraá¹ƒ upanissÄ• ya devav bhikkhÅ« dasabalaá¹ƒ dÅ«ratova Ä• gacchantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• pasannamÄ• nasÄ• paccuggan paá¹-iggahetvÄ• , buddhÄ• sanaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• petvÄ• , satthu gÄ• ravaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , bhagav parivÄ• retvÄ• ekamantaá¹ƒ nisÄ«diá¹ƒsu. tatra koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o dasabalo munigaá¹‡apar tidasagaá¹‡aparivuto dasasatanayano viya vimalagaganatalagato saradasamayarajanikaro puá¹‡á¹‡acando viya virocittha. atha satthÄ• tesaá¹ƒ sabbabuddhanisevitaá¹ƒ anuttaraá¹ƒ dvÄ• dasÄ• kÄ• raá¹ƒ __dhammacakkappavattanasuttantaá¹ƒ_ kathetvÄ• dasabhikkhukoá satasahassadevamanussakoá¹-iyo dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``dÄ«paá¹…karassa aparena, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

anantatejo amitayaso, appameyyo durÄ• sado ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``dharaá¹‡Å«pamo khamanena, sÄ«lena sÄ• garÅ«pamo.

samÄ• dhinÄ• merÅ«pamo, Ã±Ä• á¹‡ena gaganÅ«pamo ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``indriyabalabojjhaá¹…ga-maggasaccappakÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

pakÄ• sesi sadÄ• buddho hitÄ• ya sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±e lokanÄ• yake.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __dÄ«paá¹…karassa aparenÄ• _ti dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno aparabhÄ• geti attho attano gottavasena samadhigatanÄ• madheyyo. __nÄ• yako_ti vinÄ• yako. __anantatejo_ti sÄ«laguá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡apuÃ±Ã±atejena anantatejo. heá¹-á¹-hato avÄ«ci upari bhavaggaá¹ƒ t lokadhÄ• tuyo etthantare ekapuggalopi \Ee 135/ tassa \Be 163/ mukhaá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• á¹-hÄ• natthi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ \Ne 154/ ``anantatejoâ€™â€™ ti. __amitayaso_ti anantaparivÄ• ro. tas vassasatasahassÄ• ni yÄ• va parinibbÄ• nasamayaá¹ƒ etthantare bhikkhuparisÄ• ya gaá¹‡ tasmÄ• ``amitayasoâ€™â€™ ti vuccati. amitaguá¹‡akittipi ``amitayasoâ€™â€™ ti vuccati. _

guá¹‡agaá¹‡aparimÄ• á¹‡avasena nappameyyoti appameyyo. yathÄ• ha --- ``buddhopi buddhassa bhaá¹‡eyya vaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, kappampi ce aÃ±Ã±amabhÄ• samÄ• no.

khÄ«yetha kappo ciradÄ«ghamantare, vaá¹‡á¹‡o na khÄ«yetha tathÄ• gatassÄ• â€™â€™ t 425; Ud-a 53; Cp-a nidÄ• nakathÄ•).

tasmÄ• appameyyaguá¹‡agaá¹‡attÄ• ``appameyyoâ€™â€™ ti vuccati. __durÄ• sado_ti d ghaá¹-á¹-etvÄ• upasaá¹…kamitumasakkuá¹‡eyyabhÄ• vato durÄ• sado, durabhibhavanÄ« __dharaá¹‡Å«pamo_ti dharaá¹‡Ä«samo. __khamanenÄ• _ti khantiyÄ• , catunahutÄ• dhika mahÄ• pathavÄ« viya pakativÄ• tena lÄ• bhÄ• lÄ• bhaiá¹-á¹-hÄ• niá¹-á¹-hÄ• dÄ«hi akampa ``dharaá¹‡Å«pamoâ€™â€™ ti vuccati. __sÄ«lena sÄ• garÅ«pamo_ti sÄ«lasaá¹ƒvarena vel sÄ• garasamo. ``mahÄ• samuddo, bhikkhave, á¹-hitadhammo velaá¹ƒ nÄ• tivattatÄ«â€™â€ Mil VI 2.10) hi vuttaá¹ƒ.

__samÄ• dhinÄ• merÅ«pamo_ti samÄ• dhipaá¹-ipakkhabhÅ«tadhammajanitakampÄ• bhÄ sadisoti attho. merugirivaro viya thiratarasarÄ«roti vÄ• . __Ã±Ä• á¹‡ena gaganÅ«pamo_ti et Ã±Ä• á¹‡assa anantabhÄ• vena anantÄ• kÄ• sena upamÄ• katÄ• . cattÄ• ri anantÄ• ni vut ``sattakÄ• yo ca Ä• kÄ• so, cakkavÄ• á¸·Ä• canantakÄ• .

buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ appameyyaá¹ƒ, na sakkÄ• ete vijÄ• nituâ€™â€™ nti || (Bv I 64).

tasmÄ• anantassa Ã±Ä• á¹‡assa anantena Ä• kÄ• sena upamÄ• katÄ• ti.

__indriyabalabojjhaá¹…gamaggasaccappakÄ• sana_nti \Be 164/ etesaá¹ƒ indriyabalabojjha gahaá¹‡ena satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nasammappadhÄ• niddhipÄ• dÄ• pi gahitÄ• va honti. tasmÄ• catusaá¹…khepÄ• naá¹ƒ vasena sattattiá¹ƒsabodhipakkhiyadhammÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 155/ pakÄ desesÄ«ti attho. __hitÄ• yÄ• _ti hitatthaá¹ƒ. __dhammacakkaá¹ƒ_ \Ee 136/ __pavattente_ti pavattiyamÄ• ne.

tato aparabhÄ• ge mahÄ• maá¹…galasamÄ• game dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu devat imasmiÃ±Ã±eva cakkavÄ• á¸·e sannipatiá¹ƒsu. tattha kira aÃ±Ã±ataro devaputto koá¹‡á¸• a maá¹…galapaÃ±haá¹ƒ pucchi. tassa bhagavÄ• maá¹…galÄ• ni kathesi. tattha navutikoá¹-is pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. sotÄ• pannÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ gaá¹‡anapariccheda nÄ• ma nÄ• hosi. tena vutta

<5> á¹• 21 ``tato parampi desente, naramarÅ«naá¹ƒ samÄ• game.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __tato parampÄ«_ti tato aparabhÄ• gepi. __desente_ti bhagavati dhammaá¹ƒ desen narÄ• naÃ±ceva amarÄ• naÃ±ca, yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• gaganatale titthiyamÄ• namadda karonto dhammaá¹ƒ desesi tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tÄ patiá¹-á¹-hitÄ• gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ vÄ«tivattÄ• . tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``titthiye abhimaddanto, yadÄ• dhammamadesayi.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha tadÄ• -saddaá¹ƒ Ä• netvÄ• attho daá¹-á¹-habbo. yadÄ• bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ des asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«ti.

koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o kira satthÄ• abhisambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• paá¹-hamavassaá¹ƒ candavatÄ«n candÄ• rÄ• me vihÄ• si. tattha sucindharassa nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡amahÄ• sÄ• lassa putto yasodharabrÄ• hmaá¹‡assa putto subhaddamÄ• á¹‡avo ca koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa buddhass sutvÄ• pasannamÄ• nasÄ• dasahi mÄ• á¹‡avakasahassehi saddhiá¹ƒ tassa santike pabba pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu.

atha \Be 165/ koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o satthÄ• jeá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya subhaddather koá¹-isatasahassena parivuto pÄ• timokkhamuddisi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tato a koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±asatthuno putte vijitasene \Ne 156/ nÄ• ma arahattaá¹ƒ patte taá¹ƒpamukha majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. athÄ• parena samay janapadacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caranto udenarÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• ma navutikoá¹-ijanaparivÄ• raá¹ƒ pab parisÄ• ya. tasmiá¹ƒ pana arahattaá¹ƒ patte taá¹ƒpamukhehi navutiyÄ• arahantakoá¹-Ä«hi pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

dutiyo koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo navutikoá¹-inaâ€™â€™ nti || tadÄ• \Ee 137/ kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• ma cakkavattÄ« hutvÄ• canda so kira anekanaravaraparivuto salilanidhinivasanaá¹ƒ sameruyugandharaá¹ƒ aparimitavasu adaá¹‡á¸• ena asatthena dhammena paripÄ• leti. atha koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o buddhopi koá¹-isatasahassakhÄ«á¹‡Ä• savaparivuto janapadacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• no anupubbena c sampÄ• puá¹‡i.

so vijitÄ• vÄ« kira rÄ• jÄ• --- ``sammÄ• sambuddho kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ anuppatt paccuggantvÄ• bhagavato vasanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ saá¹ƒvidahitvÄ• svÄ• tanÄ• ya saddhiá nimantetvÄ• punadivase bhattavidhiá¹ƒ suá¹-á¹-hu paá¹-iyÄ• detvÄ• koá¹-isatasahassasaá buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ adÄ• si. bodhisatto bhagava anumodanÄ• vasÄ• ne --- ``bhante, temÄ• saá¹ƒ mahÄ• janasaá¹…gahaá¹ƒ karonto idheva tayo mÄ• se nirantaraá¹ƒ buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa asadisamahÄ• dÄ• n atha satthÄ• bodhisattaá¹ƒ --- ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ t desesi. so satthu dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• \Be 166/ rajjaá¹ƒ niyyÄ• tetvÄ• pabbajitvÄ• tÄ« uggahetvÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha samÄ• pattiyo paÃ±ca ca abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• yo uppÄ• detvÄ• aparihÄ«na

tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ \Ne 157/ tena samayena, vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• ma khattiyo.

samuddaá¹ƒ antamantena, issariyaá¹ƒ vattayÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinaá¹ƒ.

saha lokagganÄ• thena, paramannena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o lokanÄ• yako.

aparimeyyito kappe, buddho loke bhavissati ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

assatthamÅ«le sambuddho, bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``imassa janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``kolito upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissati taá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``citto ca hatthÄ• á¸·avako, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nandamÄ• tÄ• ca uttarÄ• , aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• .

Ä• yu vassasataá¹ƒ tassa, gotamassa yasassino ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``idaá¹ƒ \Ee 138/ sutvÄ• na vacanaá¹ƒ, asamassa mahesino.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, buddhabÄ«jaá¹ƒ kira ayaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddÄ• vattanti, apphoá¹-enti hasanti ca.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, dasasahassidevatÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``yadimassa \Be 167/ \Ne 158/ lokanÄ• thassa, virajjhissÄ• ma sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• manussÄ• nadiá¹ƒ tarantÄ• , paá¹-ititthaá¹ƒ virajjhiya.

heá¹-á¹-hÄ• titthe gahetvÄ• na, uttaranti mahÄ• nadiá¹ƒ ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``evameva mayaá¹ƒ sabbe, yadi muÃ±cÄ• mimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

tameva atthaá¹ƒ sÄ• dhento, mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ jine adaá¹ƒ.

mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ daditvÄ• na, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaá¹ƒ cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``tatthappamatto viharanto, nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __ahaá¹ƒ tena samayenÄ• _ti ahaá¹ƒ tasmiá¹ƒ samaye. __vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• mÄ• _ti ev cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• ahosiá¹ƒ. __samuddaá¹ƒ antamantenÄ• _ti ettha cakkavÄ• á¸·apabbataá katvÄ• á¹-hitaá¹ƒ samuddaá¹ƒ antaá¹ƒ katvÄ• issariyaá¹ƒ vattayÄ• mÄ«ti attho. ettÄ• vatÄ rÄ• jÄ• kira cakkavattÄ« cakkaratanÄ• nubhÄ• vena vÄ• mapassena sineruá¹ƒ katvÄ• sa aá¹-á¹-hayojanasahassappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ pubbavidehaá¹ƒ gacchati. tattha rÄ• jÄ• cakkavat hantabbo, adinnaá¹ƒ nÄ• dÄ• tabbaá¹ƒ, kÄ• mesumicchÄ• na caritabbÄ• , musÄ• na bhÄ pÄ• tabbaá¹ƒ, yathÄ• bhuttaÃ±ca bhuÃ±jathÄ• â€™â€™ ti (DN II 244; III 85; MN III 257) ov ovÄ• de dinne taá¹ƒ cakkaratanaá¹ƒ vehÄ• saá¹ƒ abbhuggantvÄ• puratthimaá¹ƒ samuddaá yathÄ• ca taá¹ƒ ajjhogÄ• hati, tathÄ• tathÄ• saá¹ƒkhittaÅ«mivipphÄ• raá¹ƒ hutvÄ• ogacc mahÄ• samuddasalilaá¹ƒ yojanamattaá¹ƒ oggantvÄ• antosamuddaá¹ƒ ubhosu \Ee 139/ pa \Ne 159/ viya paramadassanÄ«yaá¹ƒ hutvÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hati, evaá¹ƒ puratthimasÄ• garapariyan cakkaratanaá¹ƒ paá¹-inivattati. paá¹-inivattamÄ• ne ca tasmiá¹ƒ sÄ• \Be 168/ parisÄ• agga cakkavattÄ« ante cakkaratanaá¹ƒ hoti. tampi jalaá¹ƒ jalantena viyogaá¹ƒ asahamÄ• namiva nemimaá¹‡á¸• alapariyantaá¹ƒ abhihanantameva tÄ«ramupagacchati.

evaá¹ƒ rÄ• jÄ• cakkavattÄ« puratthimasamuddapariyantaá¹ƒ pubbavidehaá¹ƒ abhivijinitvÄ dakkhiá¹‡asamuddapariyantaá¹ƒ jambudÄ«paá¹ƒ vijetukÄ• mo cakkaratanadesitena magge gacchati. taá¹ƒ dasasahassayojanappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ jambudÄ«paá¹ƒ abhivijinitvÄ• dakkhiá sattayojanasahassappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ aparagoyÄ• naá¹ƒ vijetuá¹ƒ heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttanayenev sÄ• garapariyantaá¹ƒ abhivijinitvÄ• pacchimasamuddatopi uttaritvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hayojanasahas uttarakuruá¹ƒ vijetuá¹ƒ tatheva gantvÄ• taá¹ƒ samuddapariyantaá¹ƒ katvÄ• tatheva abhiviji paccuttarati. ettÄ• vatÄ• raÃ±Ã±Ä• cakkavattinÄ• sÄ• garapariyantÄ• ya pathaviyÄ• issa tena vuttaá¹ƒ __samuddaá¹ƒ antamantena, issariyaá¹ƒ vattayÄ• mahaâ€™â€™ _nti.

__koá¹-isatasahassÄ• na_nti koá¹-isatasahassÄ• ni. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __vimalÄ• n __saha lokagganÄ• thenÄ• _ti saddhiá¹ƒ dasabalena koá¹-isatasahassÄ• nanti attho. __par annena. __tappayi_nti tappesiá¹ƒ. __aparimeyyito kappe_ti ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya satasahassak asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni atikkamitvÄ• ekasmiá¹ƒ bhaddakappeti attho.

__padhÄ• na_nti vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ. __tameva atthaá¹ƒ sÄ• dhento_ti tameva buddhakÄ• rakamat pÅ«rento sÄ• dhento nipphÄ• dentoti attho. __mahÄ• rajja_nti cakkavattirajjaá¹ƒ. __jine_ti b sampadÄ• natthe vÄ• bhummaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. __ada_nti adÄ• siá¹ƒ. evamatthaá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-habbo. ``mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ jine dadiâ€™â€™ nti paá¹-hanti keci. __daditvÄ• nÄ• _ti ca suttantapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ. __vinaya_nti vinayapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ. __navaá¹…ga_nti suttageyyÄ• dinavaa jinasÄ• sana_nti Ä• gamÄ• dhigamehi lokiyehi samalaá¹…kariá¹ƒ. __tatthÄ• _ti tassa bhaga __appamatto_ti satisampanno. __brahmalokamagaÃ±chaha_nti \Ee 140/ brahmalokaá¹ƒ ag imassa pana __koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±abuddhassa_ rammavatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, sunan nÄ• ma devÄ« mÄ• tÄ• , bhaddo ca subhaddo ca dve \Be 169/ aggasÄ• vakÄ• , anuruddho upatissÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , sÄ• lakalyÄ• á¹‡irukkho bodhi, aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tihatthubbe 160/, vassasatasahassÄ• ni Ä• yuppamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi, tassa rucidevÄ« nÄ• ma aggamah nÄ• massa putto, cando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko rÄ• jÄ• . candÄ• rÄ• me kira vasÄ«ti. tena v

<25> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ rammavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sunando nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sujÄ• tÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``bhaddo ceva subhaddo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

anuruddho nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``tissÄ• ca upatissÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

sÄ• lakalyÄ• á¹‡iko bodhi, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``so aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«ti hatthÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

sobhate uá¸·urÄ• jÄ• va, sÅ«riyo majjhanhike yathÄ• ||

<34> á¹• 21 ``vassasatasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<35> á¹• 21 ``khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, vicittÄ• Ä• si medanÄ«.

yathÄ• hi gaganamuá¸·Å«bhi, evaá¹ƒ so upasobhatha ||

<36> á¹• 21 ``tepi nÄ• gÄ• appameyyÄ• , asaá¹…khobhÄ• durÄ• sadÄ• .

vijjupÄ• taá¹ƒva dassetvÄ• , nibbutÄ• te mahÄ• yasÄ• ||

<37> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• ca atuliyÄ• jinassa iddhi, Ã±Ä• á¹‡aparibhÄ• vito ca samÄ• dhi.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __sÄ• lakalyÄ• á¹‡iko_ti sÄ• lakalyÄ• á¹‡irukkho, so buddhakÄ• le ceva cakkavattikÄ nÄ• Ã±Ã±adÄ• . so ekÄ• heneva uá¹-á¹-hÄ• ti kira. __khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, vicittÄ• Ä medanÄ« khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi ekakÄ• sÄ• vapajjotÄ• vicittÄ• paramadassanÄ«yÄ• ahosi. _ opammatthe nipÄ• to. __uá¸·Å«bhÄ«_ti \Ee 141/ nakkhattehi, tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡ehi \Be 170/ gag khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vicittÄ• ayaá¹ƒ medanÄ« sobhitthÄ• ti attho.

__asaá¹…khobhÄ• _ti aá¹-á¹-hahi lokadhammehi akkhobhÄ• avikÄ• rÄ• . __vijjupÄ• taá¹ƒ viya dassayitvÄ• , ``vijjuppÄ• taá¹ƒvÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±abuddhassa parinibbÄ• yamÄ• nÄ• bhikkhÅ« sattatÄ• lappamÄ• á¹‡amÄ• kÄ• samabbhuggantvÄ• asit viya samantato vijjotamÄ• nÄ• tejodhÄ• tuá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• nirupÄ• dÄ• nÄ• dahanÄ• vuttaá¹ƒ ``vijjupÄ• taá¹ƒva dassetvÄ• â€™â€™ ti. __atuliyÄ• _ti atulyÄ• asadisÄ• . __Ã±Ä• Ã±Ä• á¹‡ena vaá¸• á¸• hito. sesagÄ• thÄ• heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttanayattÄ• uttÄ• nÄ• evÄ• ti.

``koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o nÄ• ma sambuddho, candÄ• rÄ• me manorame.

nibbÄ• yi cetiyo tassa, sattayojaniko kato ||

``na heva dhÄ• tuyo tassa, satthuno, vikiriá¹ƒsu tÄ• .

á¹-hitÄ• ekaghanÄ• hutvÄ• , suvaá¹‡á¹‡apaá¹-imÄ• viyaâ€™â€™ || sakalajambudÄ«pavÄ• sino manussÄ• samÄ• gantvÄ• sattayojanikaá¹ƒ sattaratanamaya mattikÄ• kiccaá¹ƒ telasappÄ«hi udakakiccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• niá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesunti.

koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±abuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito dutiyo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

5. maá¹…galabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±e \Ne 162/ kira satthari parinibbute tassa sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ vassasatasahassaá¹ buddhÄ• nubuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ antaradhÄ• nena sÄ• sanamassa antaradhÄ• aparabhÄ• ge ekamasaá¹…khyeyyamatikkamitvÄ• ekasmiá¹ƒyeva kappe cattÄ• ro buddhÄ sumano, revato, sobhito_ti. tattha __maá¹…galo_ pana lokanÄ• yako kappasatasahassÄ• d asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tattha yÄ• vatÄ• yukaá¹ƒ pubbanimittesu uppannesu buddhakolÄ• halaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma \Be 171/ udapÄ• di, tadÄ• dasasa ekasmiá¹ƒ cakkavÄ• á¸·e sannipatitvÄ• Ä• yÄ• canti --- ``kÄ• lo \Ee 142/ kho te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, uppajja mÄ• tukucchiyaá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tÄ• rayanto, bujjhassu amataá¹ƒ padaâ€™â€™ nti || (Bv I 67).

evaá¹ƒ devehi Ä• yÄ• cito katapaÃ±cavilokano tusitÄ• kÄ• yÄ• cavitvÄ• sabbanagaruttam uttarassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule uttarÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ g pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni pÄ• turahuá¹ƒ. tÄ• ni dÄ«paá¹…karabuddhavaá¹ƒse vuttanayeneva ved kira mahÄ• deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ sabbalokamaá¹…galassa maá¹…galassa mahÄ• sattass paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya sarÄ«rappabhÄ• rattindivaá¹ƒ asÄ«tihatthappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ padesaá¹ƒ pha candÄ• lokasÅ«riyÄ• lokehi anabhibhavanÄ«yÄ• hutvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. sÄ• ca aÃ±Ã±enÄ• sarÄ«rappabhÄ• samudayeneva andhakÄ• raá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hasaá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• dhÄ• vicarati.

sÄ• kira devatÄ• hi katÄ• rakkhÄ• dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena paramasurabhik kamalakuvalayasamalaá¹…kate ruru-sÄ«ha-byaggha-gaja-gavaya-mahiá¹ƒsapasadavividha paramaramaá¹‡Ä«ye uttaramadhuruyyÄ• ne nÄ• ma maá¹…galuyyÄ• ne maá¹…galamahÄ• jÄ• tamattova mahÄ• satto sabbÄ• disÄ• viloketvÄ• uttarÄ• bhimukho sattapadavÄ«tihÄ• vÄ• caá¹ƒ nicchÄ• resi. tasmiÃ±ca khaá¹‡e sakaladasasahassilokadhÄ• tÅ«su devatÄ• dis dibbamÄ• lÄ• dÄ«hi samalaá¹…katagattÄ• tattha tattha á¹-hatvÄ• jayamaá¹…galathutivaca pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni vuttanayÄ• neva. nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase panassa lakkhaá¹‡apÄ• á¹-h jÄ• toti ``maá¹…galakumÄ• roâ€™â€™ tveva nÄ• maá¹ƒ kariá¹ƒsu.

tassa kira yasavÄ• rucimÄ• sirimÄ• ti tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. yasavatÄ«devippamuk tiá¹ƒsanÄ• á¹-akitthisahassÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. tattha mahÄ• satto navavassasahassÄ• ni dibba anubhavitvÄ• yasavatiyÄ• aggamahesiyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ sÄ«lavaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma puttaá¹ƒ labl disvÄ• alaá¹…kataá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¸• araá¹ƒ nÄ• ma sundaraturaá¹…gavaramÄ• ruyha mahÄ• b 172/ pabbaji. taá¹ƒ pana pabbajantaá¹ƒ tisso manussakoá¹-iyo anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. tehi parivu aá¹-á¹-ha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyamacari.

tato visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya uttaragÄ• me uttaraseá¹-á¹-hino dhÄ«tÄ• ya uttarÄ• ya nÄ• pakkhittadibbojaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• surabhikusumÄ• laá¹…kate nÄ«l divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• uttarena nÄ• ma Ä• jÄ«vakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡a asitaÃ±janagirisaá¹…kÄ• saá¹ƒ akkantavarakanakajÄ• lakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒva sÄ«tacchÄ• yaá¹ƒ vividhamigagaá¹‡asampÄ• tavirahitaá¹ƒ mandamÄ• luteritÄ• ya ghanasÄ• khÄ• ya samalaá virocamÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• gabodhiá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• mattavaranÄ• gagÄ• mÄ« nÄ• gabod pubbuttarapasse á¹-hatvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ san pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• caturaá¹…gasamannÄ• gataá¹ƒ vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• pubbenivÄ• sadibbacakkhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni paá¹-ilabhitvÄ• paccayÄ• kÄ• n khandhesu aniccÄ• divasena abhinivisitvÄ• anukkamena anuttaraá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambodhiá¹

``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ, sandhÄ• vissaá¹ƒ anibbisaá¹ƒ.

gahakÄ• raá¹ƒ gavesanto, dukkhÄ• jÄ• ti punappunaá¹ƒ ||

``gahakÄ• raka diá¹-á¹-hosi, puna gehaá¹ƒ na kÄ• hasi.

sabbÄ• te phÄ• sukÄ• bhaggÄ• , gahakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ visaá¹…khataá¹ƒ.

visaá¹…khÄ• ragataá¹ƒ cittaá¹ƒ, taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Dhp 153-15

udÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 164/ udÄ• nesi.

maá¹…galassa pana sammÄ• sambuddhassa aÃ±Ã±ehi buddhehi adhikatarÄ• sarÄ«rappa aÃ±Ã±esaá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ samantÄ• asÄ«tihatthappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• vÄ• byÄ ahosi, na evaá¹ƒ tassa. tassa pana bhagavato sarÄ«rappabhÄ• niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ dasasahass aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tarugirigharapÄ• kÄ• raghaá¹-akavÄ• á¹-Ä• dayo suvaá¹‡á¹‡apaá¹-á¹-apariyo navutivassasatasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu tassa ahosi. ettakaá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹ƒ candasÅ«riyatÄ• rakÄ• rattindivaparicchedo na paÃ±Ã±Ä• yittha. divÄ• sÅ«riyÄ• lokena viya sattÄ• niccaá¹ƒ budd sabbakammÄ• ni \Be 173/ karontÄ• vicariá¹ƒsu. sÄ• yaá¹ƒ pupphanakakusumÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• ravanakasakuá¹‡Ä• dÄ«naÃ±ca vasena loko rattindivaparicchedaá¹ƒ sallakkhesi.

kiá¹ƒ pana aÃ±Ã±esaá¹ƒ buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ ayamÄ• nubhÄ• vo natthÄ«ti? no natthi. tepi hi Ä• dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ tato vÄ• bhiyyo Ä• bhÄ• ya phareyyuá¹ƒ. maá¹…galassa pana pubbapatthanÄ• vasena aÃ±Ã±esaá¹ƒ byÄ• mappabhÄ• viya sarÄ«rappabhÄ• niccameva pharitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. so kira bodhisattakÄ• le vessantarattabhÄ• vasadise attabhÄ• ve s vaá¹…kapabbatasadise pabbate vasi. atheko sabbajanaviheá¹-hako __kharadÄ• á¹-hiko_ n mahesakkho yakkho mahÄ• purisassa dÄ• najjhÄ• sayataá¹ƒ sutvÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡avaá¹‡á¹ mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ dve dÄ• rake yÄ• ci. mahÄ• satto ``dadÄ• mi brÄ• hmaá¹‡assa puttakeâ€™ udakapariyantaá¹ƒ pathaviá¹ƒ kampento dve dÄ• rake adÄ• si. atha kho yakkho tassa pass taá¹ƒ brÄ• hmaá¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya analajÄ• lapiá¹…galavirÅ«panayano visamavirÅ cipiá¹-akavirÅ«panÄ• so kapilapharusadÄ«ghakeso navadaá¸• á¸• hatÄ• lakkhandhasadisa muá¸·Ä• lakalÄ• paá¹ƒ viya gahetvÄ• khÄ• di. mahÄ• purisassa yakkhaá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• muk viya lohitadhÄ• raá¹ƒ uggirantaá¹ƒ tassa mukhaá¹ƒ disvÄ• pi kesaggamattampi domanassa ``sudinnaá¹ƒ vata me dÄ• naâ€™â€™ nti cintayato panassa sarÄ«re mahantaá¹ƒ pÄ«tisom ``imassa me nissandena anÄ• gate iminÄ• nÄ«hÄ• rena rasmiyo nikkhamantÅ«â€™â€™ ti patthanaá¹ƒ nissÄ• ya buddhabhÅ«tassa sarÄ«rato rasmiyo nikkhamitvÄ• ettakaá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• aparampi pubbacariyaá¹ƒ tassa atthi. ayaá¹ƒ kira bodhisattakÄ• le ekassa buddhassa cetiy ``imassa buddhassa mama \Ee 144/ jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ pariccajituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti daá¹‡á¸• adÄ«pikÄ• veá¹-hananiyÄ• mena sakalasarÄ«raá¹ƒ \Ne 165/ veá¹-hÄ• petvÄ• rat satasahassagghanikaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiá¹ƒ sugandhasappissa pÅ«rÄ• petvÄ• tattha sa taá¹ƒ sÄ«senÄ• dÄ• ya sakalasarÄ«raá¹ƒ jÄ• lÄ• petvÄ• jinacetiyaá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ kar vÄ«tinÄ• mesi. evaá¹ƒ yÄ• va aruá¹‡uggamanÄ• vÄ• yamantassa lomakÅ«pamattampi usu padumagabbhaá¹ƒ paviá¹-á¹-hakÄ• lo \Be 174/ viya ahosi. dhammo hi nÄ• mesa attÄ• naá¹ tenÄ• ha bhagavÄ• ---

``dhammo have rakkhati dhammacÄ• riá¹ƒ, dhammo suciá¹‡á¹‡o sukhamÄ• vahÄ• ti.

esÄ• nisaá¹ƒso dhamme suciá¹‡á¹‡e, na duggatiá¹ƒ gacchati dhammacÄ• rÄ«â€™â€™ ti || 15.385).

imassÄ• pi kammassa nissandena tassa sarÄ«robhÄ• so dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ phari nidÄ• nakathÄ•). tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa aparena, maá¹…galo nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

tamaá¹ƒ loke nihantvÄ• na, dhammokkamabhidhÄ• rayi ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``atulÄ• si pabhÄ• tassa, jinehaÃ±Ã±ehi uttariá¹ƒ.

candasÅ«riyappabhaá¹ƒ hantvÄ• , dasasahassÄ« virocatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tama_nti lokandhakÄ• raÃ±ca hadayatamaÃ±ca. __nihantvÄ• nÄ• _ti abhibhavitvÄ ayaá¹ƒ pana __ukkÄ• _-saddo suvaá¹‡á¹‡akÄ• ramÅ«sÄ• dÄ«su anekesu atthesu dissati. t jÄ• tarÅ«paá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• ukkÄ• mukhe pakkhipeyyÄ• â€™â€™ ti (MN III 360) Ä• gataá¹-á¹ mÅ«sÄ• ``ukkÄ• â€™â€™ ti veditabbÄ• . ``ukkaá¹ƒ bandheyya, ukkaá¹ƒ bandhitvÄ• ukkÄ Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne kammÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¹…gÄ• rakapallaá¹ƒ. ``kammÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ yathÄ• bahÄ«â€™â€™ ti (J II 22.649) Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne kammÄ• ruddhanaá¹ƒ. ``evaá¹ƒvipÄ• ko ti (DN I 24, 208) Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne vÄ• yuvego ``ukkÄ• â€™â€™ ti vuccati. ``ukkÄ• su dh (DN I 159) Ä• gataá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne dÄ«pikÄ• ``ukkÄ• â€™â€™ ti vuccati. idhÄ• pi dÄ«pikÄ• u Ä• dayo). tasmÄ• idha dhammamayaá¹ƒ ukkaá¹ƒ abhidhÄ• rayi, avijjandhakÄ• rapaá¹-iccha avijjandhakÄ• rÄ• bhibhÅ«tassa lokassa dhammamayaá¹ƒ ukkaá¹ƒ dhÄ• resÄ«ti attho.

__atulÄ• sÄ«_ti \Ne 166/ \Ee 145/ atulyÄ• Ä• si. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho, aÃ±Ã±ehi buddh attho. __jinehaÃ±Ã±ehÄ«_ti jinehi aÃ±Ã±ehi \Be 175/. __candasÅ«riyappabhaá¹ƒ hantvÄ• _ pabhaá¹ƒ abhihantvÄ• . __dasasahassÄ« virocatÄ«_ti candasÅ«riyÄ• lokaá¹ƒ vinÄ• buddh virocatÄ«ti attho.

maá¹…galasammÄ• sambuddho pana adhigatabodhiÃ±Ä• á¹‡o bodhimÅ«leyeva sattasattÄ dhammÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• --- ``kassa nu kho ahaá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ de 341; Vin I 10) upadhÄ• rento attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ tisso koá¹-iyo u addasa. athassa etadahosi --- ``ime kulaputtÄ• maá¹ƒ pabbajantaá¹ƒ anupabbajitÄ• upanis mayÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya vivekatthikena vissajjitÄ• sirivaá¸• á¸• hananagaraá¹ƒ u sirivanagahanaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• viharanti, handÄ• haá¹ƒ tattha gantvÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ tesaá¹ƒ de pattacÄ«varaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• haá¹ƒsarÄ• jÄ• viya gaganatalamabbhuggantvÄ• sirivanagaha bhikkhÅ« bhagavantaá¹ƒ vanditvÄ• antevÄ• sikavattaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ parivÄ tesaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• sabbabuddhanisevitaá¹ƒ __dhammacakkappavattanasuttantaá¹ƒ_ kathe bhikkhukoá¹-iyo arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• na
tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho pakÄ• sesi, caturo saccavaruttame.

te te saccarasaá¹ƒ pÄ«tvÄ• , vinodenti mahÄ• tamaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``patvÄ• na bodhimatulaá¹ƒ, paá¹-hame dhammadesane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __caturo_ti cattÄ• ri. __saccavaruttame_ti saccÄ• ni ca varÄ• ni ca saccavarÄ• ni, sa attho. ``cattÄ• ro saccavaruttameâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa cattÄ• ri saccavarÄ• ni uttar te_ti te te devamanussÄ• buddhena bhagavatÄ• vinÄ«tÄ• . __saccarasa_nti catusaccapaá pivitvÄ• . __vinodenti mahÄ• tama_nti tena tena maggena pahÄ• tabbaá¹ƒ mohatamaá¹ƒ vi attho. __patvÄ• nÄ• _ti paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• . __bodhi_nti ettha panÄ• yaá¹ƒ __bodhi_-saddo --- ``magge \Be 176/ \Ne 167/ phale ca nibbÄ• ne, rukkhe paÃ±Ã±attiyaá¹ƒ tathÄ• .

sabbaÃ±Ã±ute ca Ã±Ä• á¹‡asmiá¹ƒ, bodhisaddo panÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ || tathÄ• \Ee 146/ hi panesa --- ``bodhi vuccati catÅ«su maggesu Ã±Ä• á¹‡aâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• c khaggavisÄ• á¹‡asuttaniddesa 121) magge Ä• gato. ``upasamÄ• ya abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• ya sambo (MN I 33; III 323; Vin I 13; SN c V 1081; Paá¹-is II 30) ettha phale. ``patvÄ• na bodhiá¹ƒ ama asaá¹…khataâ€™â€™ nti ettha nibbÄ• ne. ``antarÄ• ca gayaá¹ƒ antarÄ• ca bodhiâ€™â€™ 11) ettha assattharukkhe. ``bodhi kho rÄ• jakumÄ• ro bhoto gotamassa pÄ• de sirasÄ• van II 324; Vin II 268) paÃ±Ã±attiyaá¹ƒ. ``pappoti bodhiá¹ƒ varabhÅ«rimedhasoâ€™â€™ ti (DN sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡e. idhÄ• pi sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡e daá¹-á¹-habbo. arahattam

I 13; Ud-a 1; Sp (to Vin III) I 11; Cp-a nidÄ• nakathÄ•). __atula_nti tularahitaá¹ƒ pamÄ• á¹‡ appamÄ• á¹‡anti attho. sambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desentassa tassa bhagavato paá gahetabbo.

yadÄ• pana cittaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ upanissÄ• ya viharanto campakarukkhamÅ«le kaá amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• viya titthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ mÄ• namaddanaá¹ƒ yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ surÄ• surayuvatiratisambhavane ruciranavakanakarajatamayavarabhavane tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabh pÄ• ricchattakarukkhamÅ«le paá¹‡á¸• ukambalasilÄ• tale nisÄ«ditvÄ• abhidhammaá¹ƒ kath koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi, ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo abhisa nÄ• ma cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• surabhinagare pÅ«ritacakkavattivatto hutvÄ• cakkaratanaá¹ƒ paá maá¹…galadasabale loke uppanne cakkaratanaá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• nÄ• osakkitaá¹ƒ disvÄ• sunand brÄ• hmaá¹‡e paripucchi --- ``imaá¹ƒ cakkaratanaá¹ƒ mama kusalena nibbattaá¹ƒ, kasmÄ• nti? tato te tassa raÃ±Ã±o osakkanakÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ byÄ• kariá¹ƒsu. ``cakkavattiraÃ±Ã±o Ä• y pabbajjÅ«pagamanena vÄ• buddhapÄ• tubhÄ• vena vÄ• cakkaratanaá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• nÄ• osak mahÄ• rÄ• ja, Ä• yukkhayo natthi, atidÄ«ghÄ• yuko tvaá¹ƒ, maá¹…galo pana sammÄ• sam cakkaratanaá¹ƒ osakkitaâ€™â€™ nti. taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• sunando cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• saparijano \ cakkaratanaá¹ƒ sirasÄ• vanditvÄ• Ä• yÄ• ci --- ``yÄ• vÄ• haá¹ƒ tavÄ• nubhÄ• vena maá¹…
tÄ• va tvaá¹ƒ mÄ• antaradhÄ• yassÅ«â€™â€™ ti. atha naá¹ƒ cakkaratanaá¹ƒ yathÄ• á¹-hÄ tato \Ne 168/ samupÄ• gatÄ• nando sunando cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• chattiá¹ƒsayojanaparimaá¹ parivuto sabbalokamaá¹…galaá¹ƒ maá¹…galadasabalaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• sasÄ• vaka mahÄ• dÄ• nena santappetvÄ• arahantÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ kÄ• sikavatthÄ sabbaparikkhÄ• re datvÄ• sakalalokavimhayakaraá¹ƒ bhagavato pÅ«jaá¹ƒ katvÄ• maá¹…g upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• dasanakhasamodhÄ• nasamujjalaá¹ƒ \Ee 147/ vimalakamalamakuá¸·a vanditvÄ• dhammassavanatthÄ• ya ekamantaá¹ƒ nisÄ«di. puttopi tassa anurÄ• jakumÄ• ro tadÄ• sunandacakkavattirÄ• jappamukhÄ• naá¹ƒ tesaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• anupubbikathaá¹ƒ ka saddhiá¹ƒ parisÄ• ya saha paá¹-isambhidÄ• hi arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡i. atha satthÄ• tesaá¹ iddhimayapattacÄ«varassa upanissayaá¹ƒ disvÄ• cakkajÄ• lasamalaá¹…kataá¹ƒ dakkhiá¹‡ ``etha, bhikkhavoâ€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. sabbe taá¹…khaá¹‡aá¹ƒyeva duvaá¹…gulakesÄ• iddhi vassasaá¹-á¹-hikattherÄ• viya Ä• kappasampannÄ• hutvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ parivÄ• rayiá¹ƒ

ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``surindadevabhavane, buddho dhammamadesayi.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• sunando cakkavattÄ«, sambuddhaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami.

tadÄ• Ä• hani sambuddho, dhammabheriá¹ƒ varuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``sunandassÄ• nucarÄ• janatÄ• , tadÄ• suá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-iyo.

sabbepi te niravasesÄ• , ahesuá¹ƒ ehibhikkhukÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __surindadevabhavane_ti puna devindabhavaneti attho. __dhamma_nti abhidhamma abhihani. __varuttama_nti varo bhagavÄ• uttamaá¹ƒ dhammabherinti attho. __anucarÄ• _ti __Ä• su_nti ahesuá¹ƒ. ``tadÄ• si navutikoá¹-iyoâ€™â€™ tipi \Be 178/ pÄ• á¹-ho. tassa janat kittakÄ• ti ce, navutikoá¹-iyoti attho.

atha maá¹…gale kira lokanÄ• the mekhale pure viharante tasmiá¹ƒyeva pure sudevo ca dh mÄ• á¹‡avakasahassaparivÄ• rÄ• tassa bhagavato santike ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbaj mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya dvÄ«su aggasÄ• vakesu saparivÄ• resu arahattaá¹ƒ pattesu sat koá¹-isatasahassabhikkhugaá¹‡amajjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo sannipÄ uttarÄ• rÄ• me nÄ• ma anuttare Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• n uddisi, ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. sunandacakkavattibhikkhugaá¹‡asamÄ• game navu bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ majjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹

<8> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• \Ee 148/ tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, maá¹…galassa mahesino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``dutiyo koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo navutikoá¹-inaá¹ƒ.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto surucibrÄ• hmaá¹‡agÄ• me suruci nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o h pÄ• ragÅ« sanighaá¹‡á¸• ukeá¹-ubhÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• kkharappabhedÄ• naá¹ƒ itihÄ• sapaÃ±ca lokÄ• yatamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡esu anavayo ahosi. so satthÄ• raá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• madhuradhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• bhagavati pasÄ«ditvÄ• saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gantvÄ• --- ``sve m gaá¹‡hathÄ• â€™â€™ ti sasÄ• vakasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ nimantesi. so bhagavatÄ bhikkhÅ«hi te atthoâ€™â€™ ti vutto --- ``kittakÄ• pana vo, bhante, parivÄ• rÄ• bhikkhÅ«â€ paá¹-hamasannipÄ• tova hoti, tasmÄ• ``koá¹-isatasahassaâ€™â€™ nti vutte --- ``yadi evaá saddhiá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ bhikkhaá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hathÄ• â€™â€™ ti nimantesi. satthÄ• adhivÄ• sesi.

brÄ• hmaá¹‡o bhagavantaá¹ƒ svÄ• tanÄ• ya nimantetvÄ• attano gharaá¹ƒ gacchanto cinte bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ yÄ• gubhattavatthÄ• dÄ«ni dÄ• tuá¹ƒ sakkomi, nisÄ«danaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ \E bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tassa kira sÄ• cintanÄ• caturÄ• sÄ«tiyojanasahassappamÄ• á¹‡e devarÄ• jassa dasasatanayanassa paá¹‡á¸• ukambalasilÄ• sanassa uá¹‡hÄ• kÄ• raá¹ƒ jan Ä• sanassa uá¹‡habhÄ• vaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``ko nu kho maá¹ƒ imamhÄ• á¹-hÄ• nÄ• cÄ• vetu samuppannaparivitakko dibbena cakkhunÄ• manussalokaá¹ƒ olokento mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ dis buddhappamukhaá¹ƒ bhikkhusaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ nimantetvÄ• tassa nisÄ«danatthÄ• ya cintesi, n 170/ puÃ±Ã±akoá¹-á¹-hÄ• saá¹ƒ gahetuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti vaá¸• á¸• hakÄ«vaá¹‡á vÄ• sipharasuhattho mahÄ• purisassa purato pÄ• turahosi. so ``atthi nu kho kassaci bhatiyÄ nti Ä• ha.

mahÄ• satto disvÄ• ``kiá¹ƒ kammaá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ sakkhissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. ``mama a yo yo yaá¹ƒ yaá¹ƒ icchati maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ vÄ• pÄ• sÄ• daá¹ƒ vÄ• aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ vÄ• kiÃ±ci tassa taá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ samatthomhÄ«â€™â€™ ti. ``tena hi mayhaá¹ƒ kammaá¹ƒ atthÄ ayyÄ• â€™â€™ ti? ``svÄ• tanÄ• ya mayÄ• koá¹-isatasahassabhikkhÅ« nimantitÄ• , tesaá¹ karissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti? ``ahaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma kareyyaá¹ƒ, sace me bhatiá¹ƒ dÄ• tuá¹ƒ sakkhissa ``sakkhissÄ• mi, tÄ• tÄ• â€™â€™ ti. ``yadi evaá¹ƒ, sÄ• dhu, karissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ so dvÄ• dasayojanappamÄ• á¹‡o padeso kasiá¹‡amaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ viya samatalo paramara ``ettake á¹-hÄ• ne sattaratanamayo daá¹-á¹-habbasÄ• ramaá¹‡á¸• o maá¹‡á¸• apo uá¹-á¹-ha cintetvÄ• olokesi. tato tÄ• vadeva maá¹‡á¸• apasadiso pathavitalaá¹ƒ bhinditvÄ• maá¹‡á¸• sovaá¹‡á¹‡amayesu thambhesu rajatamayÄ• ghaá¹-akÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ, rajatamayesu thambh ghaá¹-akÄ• , maá¹‡itthambhesu pavÄ• á¸·amayÄ• ghaá¹-akÄ• , pavÄ• á¸·amayesu thambh sattaratanamayesu thambhesu sattaratanamayÄ• ghaá¹-akÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ.

tato maá¹‡á¸• apassa antarantarÄ• pi kiá¹…kiá¹‡ikajÄ• lÄ• olambatÅ«â€™â€™ ti olokesi, kiá¹…kiá¹‡ikajÄ• lÄ• olambi, yassa mandavÄ• teritassa paÃ±caá¹…gikasseva turiyassa pa niccharati, dibbasaá¹…gÄ«tivattanakÄ• lo viya ahosi. ``antarantarÄ• dibbagandhadÄ• mapupphadÄ• mapattadÄ• masattaratanadÄ• mÄ• ni olambantÅ«â€™â€ olambiá¹ƒsu. ``koá¹-isatasahassasaá¹…khÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ Ä• sanÄ• ni ca \Be 180/kappiyamahagghapaccattharaá¹‡Ä• ni Ä• dhÄ• rakÄ• ni ca pathaviá¹ƒ bhinditvÄ• uá¹-á¹-ha tÄ• vadeva uá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu. ``koá¹‡e koá¹‡e ekekÄ• udakacÄ• á¹-i uá¹-á¹-hahatÅ«â€™â€ taá¹…khaá¹‡aá¹ƒyeva udakacÄ• á¹-iyo paramasÄ«talena madhurena suvisuddhasugandha kadalipaá¹‡á¹‡apihitamukhÄ• uá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu. so dasasatanayano ettakaá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• gantvÄ• --- ``ehi, ayya, tava maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ disvÄ• mayhaá¹ƒ bhatiá¹ƒ dehÄ«â€™â€™ t taá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ olokesi. tassa olokentasseva sakalasarÄ«raá¹ƒ paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• y phuá¹-aá¹ƒ ahosi.

athassa maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ olokayato etadahosi --- ``nÄ• yaá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• apo manussabhÅ« ajjhÄ• sayaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ guá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ä• gamma addhÄ• sakkassa devaraÃ±Ã±o bhavanaá \Ne 171/ devÄ• namindena ayaá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• apo nimmitoâ€™â€™ ti. ``na kho pana me yut ekadivasaá¹ƒyeva dÄ• naá¹ƒ dÄ• tuá¹ƒ, sattÄ• haá¹ƒ dassÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintesi. bÄ• h samÄ• naá¹ƒ bodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ hadayaá¹ƒ tuá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ na sakkoti, alaá¹…katas aÃ±jitÄ• ni vÄ• akkhÄ«ni uppÄ• á¹-etvÄ• hadayamaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ vÄ• ubbaá¹-á¹-etvÄ• dinnak cÄ• gaá¹ƒ nissÄ• ya tuá¹-á¹-hi nÄ• ma hoti. amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisattassa hi __sivijÄ• take_ ( devasikaá¹ƒ paÃ±cakahÄ• paá¹‡asatasahassÄ• ni vissajjetvÄ• catÅ«su nagaradvÄ• resu n á¹-hÄ• nesu dÄ• naá¹ƒ dentassa taá¹ƒ dÄ• naá¹ƒ cÄ• gatuá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ uppÄ• detuá¹ƒ nÄ• sa brÄ• hmaá¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡ena Ä• gantvÄ• sakko devarÄ• jÄ• akkhÄ«ni yÄ• ci, tadÄ• so tÄ• n adÄ• si, dadamÄ• nasseva hÄ• so uppajji, kesaggamattampi cittassa aÃ±Ã±athattaá¹ƒ nÄ• sabbaÃ±Ã±ubodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ bÄ• hiradÄ• naá¹ƒ nissÄ• ya titti nÄ• ma natthi. tasmÄ• sop koá¹-isatasahassasaá¹…khÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ dÄ• naá¹ƒ dÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â maá¹‡á¸• ape nisÄ«dÄ• petvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ gavapÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• ma dÄ• naá¹ƒ adÄ• si.

ettha __gavapÄ• na_nti \Ee 150/ mahante mahante kolambe khÄ«rassa pÅ«retvÄ• uddhar ghanapÄ• kapakke khÄ«re thokathoke taá¹‡á¸• ule pakkhipitvÄ• pakkamadhusakkharacuá abhisaá¹…khatabhojanaá¹ƒ vuccati. idameva __catumadhurabhojana_ntipi vuccati. manuss nÄ• sakkhiá¹ƒsu. devÄ• pi \Be 181/ ekantarikÄ• hutvÄ• parivisiá¹ƒsu. dvÄ• dasayojanappa á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ te bhikkhÅ« gaá¹‡hituá¹ƒ nappahosiyeva, te pana bhikkhÅ« attano attano anu pariyosÄ• nadivase sabbesaá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ patte dhovÄ• petvÄ• bhesajjatthÄ• ya sappinavanÄ«tamadhuphÄ• á¹‡itÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ pÅ«retvÄ• ticÄ«varehi saddhiá¹ƒ adÄ• si. ta laddhacÄ«varasÄ• á¹-akÄ• satasahassagghanikÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ.

atha satthÄ• anumodanaá¹ƒ karonto --- ``ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• puriso evarÅ«paá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ• n bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti upadhÄ• rento --- ``anÄ• gate kappasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• naá¹ƒ dv matthake gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti disvÄ• tato mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ Ä• n nÄ• ma kÄ• laá¹ƒ atikkamitvÄ• gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissasÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• s byÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pamuditahadayo --- ``ahaá¹ƒ kira buddho bhavissÄ• mi, na me gh pabbajissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintetvÄ• tathÄ• rÅ«paá¹ƒ sampattiá¹ƒ kheá¸·apiá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ v pabbajitvÄ• buddhavacanaá¹ƒ uggaá¹‡hitvÄ• abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• ca aá¹-á¹-ha samÄ• pattiyo ca aparihÄ«najjhÄ• no yÄ• vatÄ• yukaá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• Ä• yupariyosÄ• ne brahmaloke nibbatti. te <10> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ \Ne 172/ tena samayena, surucÄ« nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``tamahaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamma, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gantvÄ• na satthuno.

sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, gandhamÄ• lena pÅ«jayiá¹ƒ.

pÅ«jetvÄ• gandhamÄ• lena, gavapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, maá¹…galo dvipaduttamo.

aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaâ€™â€™ aá¹-á¹-ha gÄ• thÄ• vitthÄ• retabbÄ• .

<14> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• \Be 182/ \Ee 151/ pÄ«timanubrÅ«hanto, sambodhivarapattiyÄ• .

buddhe datvÄ• na maá¹ƒ gehaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaá¹ƒ cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tatthappamatto viharanto, brahmaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetva bhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __gandhamÄ• lenÄ• _ti gandhehi ceva mÄ• lehi ca. __gavapÄ• nenÄ• _ti idaá¹ƒ vutt ``ghatapÄ• nenÄ• â€™â€™ tipi keci paá¹-hanti. __tappayi_nti tappesiá¹ƒ. __uttariá¹ƒ vatam bhiyyopi vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ. __dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• _ti dasannaá¹ƒ pÄ• ramÄ«naá __pÄ«ti_nti hadayatuá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ. __anubrÅ«hanto_ti vaá¸• á¸• hento. __sambodhivarapattiy buddhattappattiyÄ• . __buddhe datvÄ• nÄ• _ti buddhassa pariccajitvÄ• \Ne 173/. __maá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ sÄ• pateyyaá¹ƒ catupaccayatthÄ• ya buddhassa bhagavato pariccajitvÄ• ti attho. buddhasÄ• sane. __brahma_nti brahmavihÄ• rabhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetvÄ• .

__maá¹…galassa_ pana bhagavato nagaraá¹ƒ uttaraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma ahosi, pitÄ• pissa uttaro n mÄ• tÄ• pi uttarÄ• nÄ• ma, sudevo ca dhammaseno ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , pÄ• lito nÄ• n asokÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , nÄ• garukkho bodhi, aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ sarÄ navutivassasahassaá¹ƒ Ä• yuparimÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, bhariyÄ• panassa yasavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sÄ«v nikkhami. uttarÄ• rÄ• me vasi. uttaro nÄ• ma upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, tasmiá¹ƒ pana navutivassasa parinibbute bhagavati ekappahÄ• reneva dasacakkavÄ• á¸·asahassÄ• ni ekandhakÄ• rÄ• n manussÄ• naá¹ƒ mahantaá¹ƒ Ä• rodanaparidevanaá¹ƒ ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <18> á¹• 21 ``uttaraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, uttaro nÄ• ma khattiyo.

uttarÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , maá¹…galassa mahesino ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``sudevo dhammaseno ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

pÄ• lito nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, maá¹…galassa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``sÄ«valÄ• \Be 183/ ca asokÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, nÄ• garukkhoti vuccati ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«ti \Ee 152/ ratanÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

tato niddhÄ• vatÄ« raá¹ƒsÄ«, anekasatasahassiyo ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi sÄ• gare Å«mÄ«, na sakkÄ• tÄ• gaá¹‡etuye.

tatheva sÄ• vakÄ• tassa, na sakkÄ• te gaá¹‡etuye ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``yÄ• va \Ne 174/ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si sambuddho, maá¹…galo lokanÄ• yako.

na tassa sÄ• sane atthi, sakilesamaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``dhammokkaá¹ƒ dhÄ• rayitvÄ• na, santÄ• retvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• dhumaketÅ«va, nibbuto so mahÄ• yaso ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ sabhÄ• vattaá¹ƒ, dassayitvÄ• sadevake.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, sÅ«riyo atthaá¹…gato yathÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tato_ti tassa maá¹…galassa sarÄ«rato. __niddhÄ• vatÄ«_ti niddhÄ• vanti, vacana daá¹-á¹-habbo. __raá¹ƒsÄ«_ti rasmiyo. __anekasatasahassiyo_ti anekasatasahassÄ• . __Å taraá¹…gÄ• . __gaá¹‡etuye_ti gaá¹‡etuá¹ƒ saá¹…khÄ• tuá¹ƒ. ettakÄ• sÄ• gare Å«miyoti ya evaá¹ƒ tassa bhagavato sÄ• vakÄ• pi na sakkÄ• gaá¹‡etuá¹ƒ, atha kho gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ __yÄ• vÄ• _ti yÄ• vatakaá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹ƒ. __sakilesamaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tadÄ• _ti saha kilesehi sakil maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ sakilesamaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ natthi. tadÄ• kira tassa bhagavato sÄ• sane sÄ• v patvÄ• yeva parinibbÄ• yiá¹ƒsu. puthujjanÄ• vÄ• sotÄ• pannÄ• dayo vÄ• hutvÄ• na kÄ• l ``sammohamÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti.

__dhammokka_nti dhammadÄ«pakaá¹ƒ. __dhÅ«maketÅ«_ti aggi vuccati, idha pana padÄ« padÄ«po viya jalitvÄ• nibbutoti attho. __mahÄ• yaso_ti mahÄ• parivÄ• ro \Be 184/. keci ``n sasÄ• vakoâ€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti. __saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• na_nti saá¹…khÄ• tadhammÄ• naá¹ƒ __sabhÄ• vatta_nti \Ee 153/ aniccÄ• disÄ• maÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ. __sÅ«riyo atthaá¹…ga sahassakiraá¹‡o divasakaro sabbaá¹ƒ tamagaá¹‡aá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• sabbaÃ±ca lokaá¹ƒ obh evaá¹ƒ maá¹…galadivasakaropi veneyyakamalavanavikasanakaro sabbaá¹ƒ ajjhattikabÄ• h attano sarÄ«rappabhÄ• ya jalitvÄ• atthaá¹…gatoti attho. sesagÄ• thÄ• sabbattha uttÄ• nÄ maá¹…galabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito tatiyo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

6. sumanabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•

evaá¹ƒ \Ne 175/ ekappahÄ• reneva dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ ekandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• parinibbute tassa aparabhÄ• ge navutivassasahassÄ• yukesu manussesu anukkamena par puna vaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• anukkamena asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• yukÄ• hutvÄ• puna parihÄ• yitvÄ• __sumano_ nÄ• ma bodhisatto pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule sirimÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. vuttanayÄ• neva.

so anukkamena vuddhippatto sirivaá¸• á¸• hanasomavaá¸• á¸• hanaiddhivaá¸• á¸• hananÄ• tesaá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• nÄ• á¹-akitthisatasahassehi paricÄ• riyamÄ• no surayuvatÄ«hi paricÄ• riya navavassasahassÄ• ni dibbasukhasadisaá¹ƒ visayasukhamanubhavamÄ• no vaá¹-aá¹ƒsikÄ nÄ• ma nirupamaá¹ƒ puttaá¹ƒ janetvÄ• cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• hatthiyÄ• nena nikkham pabbajantaá¹ƒ tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-iyo anupabbajiá¹ƒsu.

so tehi parivuto dasamÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya anor dhÄ«tÄ• ya anupamÄ• ya nÄ• ma dinnaá¹ƒ pakkhittadibbojaá¹ƒ \Be 185/ pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ par divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• anupamÄ• jÄ«vakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-h upagantvÄ• taá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hahi tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hÄ«hi tiá¹ƒsahatthavi tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ katvÄ• tattha pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• nisÄ«di. tato mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ \B sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti (Dhp 153-154) udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• nesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``maá¹…galassa aparena, sumano nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

sabbadhammehi asamo, sabbasattÄ• namuttamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ne 176/ __maá¹…galassa aparenÄ• _ti maá¹…galassa bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge. __ sabbehipi sÄ«lasamÄ• dhipaÃ±Ã±Ä• dhammehi asamo asadiso.

__sumano_ kira bhagavÄ• bodhisamÄ«peyeva sattasattÄ• hÄ• ni vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• dham brahmÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• --- ``kassa nu kho ahaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dhamma 72; MN I 284; II 341; Vin I 10) upadhÄ• rento attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-iyo kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• tikaá¹ƒ vemÄ• tikaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡akumÄ• raÃ±ca purohitaputtaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vitat upanissayasampanne disvÄ• --- ``etesaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ deseyyaâ€™â€™ n gaganapathena mekhaluyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• uyyÄ• napÄ• laá¹ƒ pesetvÄ• attano kaniá¹-á¹-ha saraá¹‡akumÄ• raÃ±ca purohitaputtaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vitattakumÄ• raÃ±ca pakkosÄ• petvÄ• tesaá sattatiá¹ƒsakoá¹-iyo attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-iyo ca aÃ±Ã±e ca bahÅ« devama evaá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassaá¹ƒ __dhammacakkappavattanena_ dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi.

<2> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• amatabheriá¹ƒ so, Ä• hanÄ« mekhale pure.

dhammasaá¹…khasamÄ• yuttaá¹ƒ, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __amatabheri_nti amatÄ• dhigamÄ• ya nibbÄ• nÄ• dhigamÄ• ya bheriá¹ƒ. __Ä• han desesÄ«ti attho. sÄ• yaá¹ƒ amatabherÄ« nÄ• ma amatapariyosÄ• naá¹ƒ navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ bu ``dhammasaá¹…khasamÄ• yuttaá¹ƒ, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaâ€™â€™ _nti. tattha __dh catusaccadhammakathÄ• saá¹…khavarasamÄ• yuttaá¹ƒ.

sumano \Be 186/ pana lokanÄ• yako abhisambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• paá¹-iÃ±Ã±Ä• nurÅ paá¹-ipajjamÄ• no mahÄ• janassa bhavabandhanamokkhatthÄ• ya kusalaratanassa kilesac parittÄ• natthaá¹ƒ sÄ«lavipulapÄ• kÄ• raá¹ƒ samÄ• dhiparikhÄ• parivÄ• ritaá¹ƒ vipassanÄ• satisampajaÃ±Ã±adaá¸·hakavÄ• á¹-aá¹ƒ samÄ• pattimaá¹‡á¸• apÄ• dipaá¹-imaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ amatavaranagaraá¹ƒ mÄ• pesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``nijjinitvÄ• \Ee 155/ kilese so, patvÄ• sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

mÄ• pesi nagaraá¹ƒ satthÄ• , saddhammapuravaruttamaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __nijjinitvÄ• _ti vijinitvÄ• abhibhuyya, kilesÄ• bhisaá¹…khÄ• radevaputtamÄ• re vido \Ne 177/. __so_ti so sumano bhagavÄ• . ``vijinitvÄ• kilese hÄ«â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. tatth padapÅ«raá¹‡amatte nipÄ• to. __patvÄ• _ti adhigantvÄ• . ``pattoâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __
nibbÄ• nanagaraá¹ƒ. __saddhammapuravaruttama_nti saddhammasaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ purav padhÄ• nabhÅ«taá¹ƒ. atha vÄ• saddhammamayesu puresu pavaresu uttamaá¹ƒ saddhamm atthavikappe ``nagaraâ€™â€™ nti tasseva vevacananti daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. paá¹-ividdhadha sekkhÄ• sekkhÄ• naá¹ƒ ariyapuggalÄ• naá¹ƒ patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ gocaranivÄ• saá¹-á¹-hena nti vuccati. tasmiá¹ƒ pana saddhammavaranagare so satthÄ• avicchinnaá¹ƒ akuá¹-ilaá¹ƒ uj vitthataÃ±ca satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• namayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«thiá¹ƒ mÄ• pesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``nirantaraá¹ƒ akuá¹-ilaá¹ƒ, ujuá¹ƒ vipulavitthataá¹ƒ.

mÄ• pesi so mahÄ• vÄ«thiá¹ƒ, satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• navaruttamaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __nirantara_nti kusalajavanasaÃ±caraá¹‡Ä• nantarabhÄ• vato nirantaraá¹ƒ. __akuá¹ kuá¹-ilabhÄ• vakaradosavirahitato akuá¹-ilaá¹ƒ. __uju_nti akuá¹-ilattÄ• va ujuá¹ƒ. purimapac atthadÄ«pakamidaá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ. __vipulavitthata_nti Ä• yÄ• mato ca vitthÄ• rato ca puthul puthulavitthatabhÄ• vo lokiyalokuttarasatipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• navasena daá¹-á¹-habbo. __mahÄ• vA __satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• navaruttama_nti satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naÃ±ca taá¹ƒ varesu uttamaÃ±cÄ• ti satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• navaruttamaá¹ƒ. atha vÄ• varaá¹ƒ satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• namayaá¹ƒ uttamavÄ«th idÄ• ni tassa nibbÄ• namahÄ• nagarassa tassaá¹ƒ satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• navÄ«thiyaá¹ƒ cattÄ• ri paá¹-isambhidÄ• cha abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• aá¹-á¹-ha samÄ• pattiyoti imÄ• ni \Be 187/ mahagghara dhammÄ• paá¹‡e pasÄ• resi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``phale cattÄ• ri sÄ• maÃ±Ã±e, catasso paá¹-isambhidÄ• .

chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹-á¹-hasamÄ• pattÄ«, pasÄ• resi tattha vÄ«thiyaâ€™â€™ nti ||

idÄ• ni \Ee 156/ bhagavÄ• imÄ• ni ratanabhaá¹‡á¸• Ä• ni ye pana appamattÄ• satimanto hiriottappavÄ«riyÄ• dÄ«hi samannÄ• gatÄ• , te Ä• dÄ«yantÄ«ti tesaá¹ƒ ratanÄ• naá¹ƒ haraa

<6> á¹• 21 ``ye appamattÄ• akhilÄ• , hirivÄ«riyehupÄ• gatÄ• .

te te ime guá¹‡avare, Ä• diyanti yathÄ• sukhaâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• ha.

tattha \Ne 178/ __ye_ti aniyamuddeso. __appamattÄ• _ti pamÄ• dassa paá¹-ipakkhabhÅ«t avippavÄ• salakkhaá¹‡ena appamÄ• dena samannÄ• gatÄ• . __akhilÄ• _ti paÃ±cacetokhila __hirivÄ«riyehupÄ• gatÄ• _ti kÄ• yaduccaritÄ• dÄ«hi hirÄ«yatÄ«ti hirÄ«, lajjÄ• yetaá¹ƒ adhi bhÄ• vo vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ ussÄ• halakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ. tehi hirivÄ«riyehi upÄ• gatÄ• samannÄ• __te_ti idaá¹ƒ pubbe aniyamuddesassa niyamuddeso. puna __te_ti vuttappakÄ• re guá¹‡ara Ä• diyanti paá¹-ilabhanti adhigacchantÄ«ti attho. sabbaá¹ƒ pana sumano bhagavÄ• katavid Ä• hanitvÄ• dhammanagaraá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• iminÄ• nayena paá¹-hamameva satasahassa
---

<7> á¹• 21 ``evametena yogena, uddharanto mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

bodhesi paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ satthÄ• , koá¹-isatasahassiyoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __uddharanto_ti saá¹ƒsÄ• rasÄ• garato ariyamagganÄ• vÄ• ya samuddharanto. __k satasahassakoá¹-iyoti attho. vipariyÄ• yena niddiá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ.

yadÄ• pana sumano lokanÄ• yako sunandavatÄ«nagare ambarukkhamÅ«le titthiyamadam yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ katvÄ• sattÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isahassaá¹ƒ dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ \Be 1 abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, ovadÄ« titthiye gaá¹‡e.

koá¹-isahassÄ• bhisamiá¹ƒsu, dutiye dhammadesaneâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __titthiye gaá¹‡e_ti titthiyabhÅ«te gaá¹‡e, titthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ gaá¹‡e vÄ• ``titthiye abhim dhammamadesayÄ«â€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti keci.

yadÄ• pana dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu devatÄ• imasmiá¹ƒ cakkavÄ• á¸·e sannipati nirodhakathaá¹ƒ samuá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesuá¹ƒ --- ``kathaá¹ƒ nirodhaá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjanti, kathaá¹ƒ honti, kathaá¹ƒ \Ee 157/ nirodhÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahantÄ«â€™â€™ ti? evaá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjanaadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• navuá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• dÄ«su vinicchayaá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ asakkontÄ• kÄ• mÄ• vacaradevalokesu devÄ• ca navasu brahmalokesu brahmÄ• no ca dveá¸·hakajÄ• narasundarena arindamena nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±Ä• saddhiá¹ƒ sÄ• yanhasamaye sumanadasab upasaá¹…kamiá¹ƒsu; upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• arindamo rÄ• jÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ nirodhapaÃ±ha nirodhapaÃ±he vissajjite navutipÄ• á¹‡akoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi.
ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• devÄ• manussÄ• ca, samaggÄ• ekamÄ• nasÄ• .

nirodhapaÃ±haá¹ƒ pucchiá¹ƒsu, saá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ cÄ• pi mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• pi dhammadesane, nirodhaparidÄ«pane.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tassa pana sumanassa bhagavato tayo sÄ• vakasannipÄ• tÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tattha paá¹-hama upanissÄ• ya vassaá¹ƒ vasitvÄ• paá¹-hamapavÄ• raá¹‡Ä• ya arahantÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isahas pabbajitena saddhiá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• pavÄ• resi, ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. athÄ• p saá¹…kassanagarassÄ• vidÅ«re arindamarÄ• jakusalabalanibbatte yojanappamÄ• á¹‡e kar saradasamayarucirakaranikaro divasakaro viya yugandharapabbate munivaradivasakaro ar parivÄ• retvÄ• \Be 189/ Ä• gatÄ• naá¹ƒ purisÄ• naá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni dametvÄ• s pabbÄ• jetvÄ• tasmiá¹ƒyeva divase arahattaá¹ƒ pattehi bhikkhÅ«hi parivuto caturaá¹…gasa pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. yadÄ• pana sakko devarÄ• jÄ• s upasaá¹…kami, tadÄ• sumano bhagavÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• arahantakoá¹-isahassehi parivuto pÄ•

tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<11> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sumanassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``vassaá¹ƒvuá¹-á¹-hassa bhagavato, abhighuá¹-á¹-he pavÄ• raá¹‡e.

koá¹-isatasahassehi, pavÄ• resi tathÄ• gato ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``tato paraá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te, vimale kaÃ±canapabbate.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• \Ne 180/ sakko devarÄ• jÄ• , buddhadassanupÄ• gami.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ee 158/ __abhighuá¹-á¹-he pavÄ• raá¹‡e_ti liá¹…gavipallÄ• so daá¹-á¹-habbo, abhig pavÄ• raá¹‡Ä• yÄ• ti attho. __tatopara_nti tato aparabhÄ• ge. __kaÃ±canapabbate_ti kanak __buddhadassanupÄ• gamÄ«_ti buddhadassanatthamupÄ• gami. tadÄ• kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• ahosi mahiddhiko mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo. so ``loke buddho uppannoâ€™â€™ ti s sakabhavanÄ• nikkhamitvÄ• koá¹-isatasahassabhikkhuparivÄ• rassa sumanassa bhagava upahÄ• raá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ pavattetvÄ• paccekadussayugÄ• ni datvÄ• sa naá¹ƒ satthÄ• ``anÄ• gate buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<15> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• mahiddhiko.

atulo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, ussannakusalasaÃ±cayo ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• haá¹ƒ nÄ• gabhavanÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• saÃ±Ä• tibhi.

nÄ• gÄ• naá¹ƒ dibbaturiyehi, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ jinamupaá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be 190/, annapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ.

paccekadussayugaá¹ƒ datvÄ• , saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tamupÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, sumano lokanÄ• yako.

aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒâ€™â€ yathÄ• koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±abuddhavaá¹ƒse, evaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-ha gÄ• thÄ• vitthÄ• retabbÄ• ti.

<20> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tassa \Ne 181/ pana __sumanassa_ bhagavato mekhalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, suda sirimÄ• nÄ• ma devÄ« mÄ• tÄ• , saraá¹‡o ca bhÄ• vitatto ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , udeno n upasoá¹‡Ä• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , nÄ• garukkho bodhi, navutihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ sarÄ«raá vassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yuppamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi, vaá¹-aá¹ƒsikÄ• nÄ• massa mahesÄ« devÄ hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami. upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko aá¹…garÄ• jÄ• . aá¹…gÄ• rÄ• me vasÄ«ti. tena v <21> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ \Ee 159/ mekhalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma, sudatto nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sirimÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sumanassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``navavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

cando sucando vaá¹-aá¹ƒso ca, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``tesaá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

vaá¹-aá¹ƒsikÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, anÅ«pamo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``nimitte caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nadasamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, sumano lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, mekhale puramuttame ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``saraá¹‡o bhÄ• vitatto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

udeno nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sumanassa mahesino ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``soá¹‡Ä• \Be 191/ ca upasoá¹‡Ä• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

sopi buddho amitayaso, nÄ• gamÅ«le abujjhatha ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``varuá¹‡o ceva saraá¹‡o ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

cÄ• lÄ• ca upacÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``uccattanena \Ne 182/ so buddho, navutihatthamuggato.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``tÄ• raá¹‡Ä«ye tÄ• rayitvÄ• , bodhanÄ«ye ca bodhayi.

parinibbÄ• yi sambuddho, uá¸urÄ• jÄ• va atthami ||

<32> á¹• 21 ``te ca khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• bhikkhÅ«, so ca buddho asÄ• diso.

atulappabhaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• , nibbutÄ• te mahÄ• yasÄ• ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``taÃ±ca Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ atuliyaá¹ƒ, tÄ• ni ca atulÄ• ni ratanÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<34> á¹• 21 ``sumano yasadharo buddho, aá¹…gÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tattheva tassa jinathÅ«po, catuyojanamuggatoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ee 160/ __kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so_ti vividharatanavicittakaÃ±canamayagghik __dasasahassÄ« virocatÄ«_ti tassa pabhÄ• ya dasasahassÄ«pi lokadhÄ• tu virocatÄ«ti atth tÄ• rayitabbe, tÄ• rayituá¹ƒ vutte sabbe buddhaveneyyeti attho. __uá¸urÄ• jÄ• vÄ• _ti cand atthaá¹…gato. keci ``atthaá¹ƒ gatoâ€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti. __asÄ• diso_ti asadiso. __mahÄ• mahÄ• kittisaddÄ• mahÄ• parivÄ• rÄ• ca. __taÃ±ca Ã±Ä• á¹‡a_nti taá¹ƒ sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ± atulyaá¹ƒ asadisaá¹ƒ. sesaá¹ƒ sabbattha uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

sumanabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito catuttho buddhavaá¹ƒso.

7. revatabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• sumanassa \Be 192/ \Ne 183/ pana bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge sÄ• sane cassa antarahite na manussÄ• anukkamena parihÄ• yitvÄ• dasavassÄ• yukÄ• hutvÄ• puna anukkamena vaá hutvÄ• puna parihÄ• yamÄ• nÄ• saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tadÄ• __reva sopi pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• anekaratanasamujjalitabhavane tusitabhavane nibbattitvÄ• tato sabbadhanadhaÃ±Ã±avatisudhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ«nagare sabbÄ• laá¹…kÄ• rasamalaá¹…kataam sirivibhavasamudayenÄ• kulassa sabbasamiddhivipulassa vipulassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule sabbajananayanÄ• lipÄ• lisamÄ• kulÄ• ya samphullanayanakuvalayasassirikasiniddhavadanakamalÄ• karasobhÄ• samujjalÄ• ya suruciramanoharaguá¹‡agaá¹‡avipulÄ• ya vipulÄ• ya nÄ• ma aggamahesiyÄ• kucchismiá¹ dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena cittakÅ«á¹-apabbatato suvaá¹‡á¹‡ahaá¹ƒsarÄ• jÄ• v tassa paá¹-isandhiyaá¹ƒ jÄ• tiyaÃ±ca pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni pubbe vuttanayÄ• neva ahesuá¹ƒ sudassanaratanagghiÄ• veá¸anÄ• makÄ• tayo cassa pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. sudassanÄ• itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. tÄ• hi parivuto so surayuvatÄ«hi parivuto d chabbassasahassÄ• ni visayasukhamanubhavamÄ• no agÄ• raá¹ƒ \Ee 161/ ajjhÄ• vasi. so varuá¹‡e nÄ• ma tanaye jÄ• te cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• nÄ• nÄ• virÄ• gatanuvaravasana Ä• mukkamuttÄ• hÄ• ramaá¹‡ikuá¹‡á¸• alo varakeyÅ«ramakuá¹-akaá¹-akadharo paramasur paramarucirakaranikaro saradasamayarajanikaro viya tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡aparivuto viya cando tid dasasatanayano brahmagaá¹‡aparivuto viya ca hÄ• ritamahÄ• brahmÄ• caturaá¹…giniyÄ• Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni omuÃ±c hatthe datvÄ• jalajÄ• malÄ• vikalanÄ«lakuvalayadalasadisenÄ• tinisitenÄ• titikhiá¹‡enÄ• si chinditvÄ• Ä• kÄ• se khipi. taá¹ƒ sakko devarÄ• jÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡acaá¹…koá¹-akena \Be 193 tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavanaá¹ƒ netvÄ• sinerumuddhani sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ cetiyaá¹ƒ akÄ• si.

mahÄ• puriso \Ne 184/ pana devadattÄ• ni kÄ• sÄ• yÄ• ni paridahitvÄ• pabbaji, ekÄ• ca n anupabbaji. so tehi parivuto sattamÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡an sÄ• dhudeviyÄ• nÄ• ma seá¹-á¹-hidhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitv vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye aÃ±Ã±atarenÄ• jÄ«vakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amu mattavaranÄ• gagÄ• mÄ« nÄ• gabodhiá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• tepaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahattha santharitvÄ• caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya nisÄ«ditvÄ• mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhami sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti (Dhp 153-154) udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• nesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``sumanassa aparena, revato nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

anupamo asadiso, atulo uttamo jinoâ€™â€™ ti || revato kira satthÄ• bodhisamÄ«peyeva sattasattÄ• hÄ• ni vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• dhammadesa sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• --- ``kassa nu kho ahaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ deseyyaâ€™â€™ 341; Vin I 10) upadhÄ• rento attanÄ• saha pabbajitabhikkhukoá¹-iyo aÃ±Ã±e ca bahÅ« dev upanissayasampanne disvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• varuá¹‡Ä• rÄ• me otaritvÄ• tehi parivu tiparivaá¹-á¹-aá¹ƒ appaá¹-ivattiyaá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±ena anuttaraá¹ƒ dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattetvÄ• arahatte patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesi. tÄ«su maggaphalesu patiá¹-á¹-hitÄ• naá¹ƒ gaá¹‡anapariccheda

---

<2> á¹• 21 ``sopi dhammaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sesi, brahmunÄ• abhiyÄ• cito.

khandhadhÄ• tuvavatthÄ• naá¹ƒ, appavattaá¹ƒ bhavÄ• bhaveâ€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ee 162/ __khandhadhÄ• tuvavatthÄ• na_nti paÃ±cannaá¹ƒ khandhÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-nÄ• marÅ«pavavatthÄ• nÄ• divasena vibhÄ• gakaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ. sabhÄ• valakkhaá¹‡asÄ• maÃ rÅ«pÄ• rÅ«padhammapariggaho khandhadhÄ• tuvavatthÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• ma. atha vÄ• pheá¹ parimaddanÄ• sahanato chiddÄ• vachiddÄ• dibhÄ• vato ca udakapubbuá¸·akaá¹ƒ viya \Be muhuttaramaá¹‡Ä«yabhÄ• vato, marÄ«cikÄ• viya saÃ±Ã±Ä• vippalambhanato, kadalikkha asÄ• rakato, mÄ• yÄ• viya viÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ vaÃ±canakatoâ€™â€™ ti evamÄ• dinÄ• pi n khandhadhÄ• tuvavatthÄ• naá¹ƒ veditabbaá¹ƒ (Vibh-a 26 kamÄ• divinicchayakathÄ•). __ap ettha bhavoti vaá¸• á¸• hi, abhavoti hÄ• ni. bhavoti sassatadiá¹-á¹-hi \Ne 185/, abhavoti ucch bhavoti khuddakabhavo, abhavoti mahÄ• bhavo. bhavoti kÄ• mabhavo, abhavoti rÅ«pÄ• rÅ bhavÄ• bhavÄ• naá¹ƒ attho veditabbo (Ps II 223; Spk III 5.1080; Ud-a 20). tesaá¹ƒ bhavÄ• b appavattihetubhÅ«taá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sesÄ«ti attho. atha vÄ• bhavati anenÄ• ti bhav uppattinimittaá¹ƒ kammÄ• dikaá¹ƒ. upapattibhavo abhavo nÄ• ma. ubhayattha nikantiyÄ• p dhammaá¹ƒ desesÄ«ti attho. tassa pana revatabuddhassa tayova abhisamayÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ.

gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ vÄ«tivatto. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• bhisamayÄ• tÄ«á¹‡i, ahesuá¹ƒ dhammadesane.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __tÄ«á¹‡Ä«_ti tayo, liá¹…gavipallÄ• so kato, ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abhisamayo ahosi.

athÄ• parena samayena nagaruttare uttare nagare sabbÄ• rindamo arindamo nÄ• ma rÄ• j bhagavantaá¹ƒ attano nagaramanuppattaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• tÄ«hi janakoá¹-Ä«hi parivuto bhagavat svÄ• tanÄ• ya nimantetvÄ• buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa sattÄ• haá¹ƒ mahÄ tigÄ• vutavitthataá¹ƒ dÄ«papÅ«jaá¹ƒ katvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• nisÄ«di. a manonukÅ«laá¹ƒ vicittanayaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ desesi. tattha devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isaha
ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• arindamaá¹ƒ rÄ• jaá¹ƒ, vinesi revato muni.

tadÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo abhisamayo.

athÄ• parena \Be 195/ \Ee 163/ samayena revato satthÄ• uttaranigamaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma upanis nirodhasamÄ• pattiá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• nisÄ«di. tadÄ• kira uttaranigamavÄ• sino manussÄ yÄ• gubhattakhajjakabhesajjapÄ• nakÄ• dÄ«ni Ä• haritvÄ• bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa mahÄ• dÄ paripucchiá¹ƒsu --- ``kuhiá¹ƒ, bhante, bhagavÄ• â€™â€™ ti? tato tesaá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ« Ä• haá¹ Ä• vuso, nirodhasamÄ• pattiá¹ƒ samÄ• pannoâ€™â€™ ti. athÄ• tÄ«te tasmiá¹ƒ sattÄ• he b nirodhasamÄ• pattito vuá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ \Ne 186/ saradasamaye sÅ«riyo viya attano anÅ«pam virocamÄ• naá¹ƒ disvÄ• nirodhasamÄ• pattiyÄ• guá¹‡Ä• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ pucchiá¹ƒsu. bhaga nirodhasamÄ• pattiyÄ• guá¹‡Ä• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ kathesi. tadÄ• devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-is patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``sattÄ• haá¹ƒ paá¹-isallÄ• nÄ• , vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• narÄ• sabho.

koá¹-isataá¹ƒ naramarÅ«naá¹ƒ, vinesi uttame phaleâ€™â€™ ti || sudhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ«nagare paá¹-hamamahÄ• pÄ• timokkhuddese ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya p gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ vÄ«tivattÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. mekhalanagare koá¹-isa ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ arahantÄ• naá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. revatas dhammacakkÄ• nuvattako varuá¹‡o nÄ• ma aggasÄ• vako paÃ±Ã±avantÄ• naá¹ƒ aggo Ä• gilÄ• napucchanatthÄ• ya sampattamahÄ• janassa lakkhaá¹‡attayaparidÄ«pakaá¹ƒ dhamm koá¹-isatasahassaá¹ƒ purisÄ• naá¹ƒ ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbÄ• jetvÄ• arahatte patiá¹-caturaá¹…ginike sannipÄ• te pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena <6> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, revatassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, suvimuttÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``atikkantÄ• gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ ye samÄ• gatÄ• .

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``yopi paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya asamo, tassa cakkÄ• nuvattako.

so tadÄ• byÄ• dhito Ä• si, patto jÄ«vitasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``tassa \Be 196/ gilÄ• napucchÄ• ya, ye tadÄ• upagatÄ• munÄ«.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• arahanto, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __cakkÄ• nuvattako_ti dhammacakkÄ• nuvattako. __patto jÄ«vitasaá¹ƒsaya_nti ettha jÄ«vitasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ, jÄ«vitakkhayaá¹ƒ \Ee 164/ pÄ• puá¹‡Ä• ti vÄ• , na vÄ• pÄ• puá¹‡Ä• t jÄ«vitasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ patto, byÄ• dhitassa \Ne 187/ balavabhÄ• vena marati, na maratÄ«ti jÄ pattoti attho. __ye tadÄ• upagatÄ• munÄ«_ti iti dÄ«ghabhÄ• ve sati bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ upari h saddhiá¹ƒ varuá¹‡assa upari hoti.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto rammavatÄ«nagare atidevo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o hutvÄ• revataá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambuddhaá¹ƒ disvÄ• tassa dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• saraá¹‡esu patiá dasabalaá¹ƒ kittetvÄ• sahassagghanikena uttarÄ• saá¹…gena bhagavantaá¹ƒ pÅ«jesi. sop --- ``ito kappasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• naá¹ƒ dvinnaá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• naá¹ƒ matthake gota bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, atidevo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

upagantvÄ• revataá¹ƒ buddhaá¹ƒ, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassa gaÃ±chahaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``tassa sÄ«laá¹ƒ samÄ• dhiÃ±ca, paÃ±Ã±Ä• guá¹‡amanuttamaá¹ƒ.

thomayitvÄ• yathÄ• thÄ• maá¹ƒ, uttarÄ«yamadÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, revato lokanÄ• yako.

aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 `padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaâ€™â€™ â aá¹-á¹-ha gÄ• thÄ• vitthÄ• retabbÄ• .

<14> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• pi taá¹ƒ buddhadhammaá¹ƒ, saritvÄ• anubrÅ«hayiá¹ƒ.

Ä• harissÄ• mi taá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, yaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ abhipatthitaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha \Be 197/ __saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassa gaÃ±chaha_nti taá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ agaÃ±chiá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ sÄ• mivacanaá¹ƒ. __paÃ±Ã±Ä• guá¹‡a_nti \Ne 188/ paÃ±Ã±Ä• sampattiá¹ƒ. __anuttama_n ``paÃ±Ã±Ä• vimuttiguá¹‡amuttamaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, so uttÄ• nova. __thomayitvÄ• _ yathÄ• thÄ• manti yathÄ• balaá¹ƒ. __uttarÄ«ya_nti \Ee 165/ uttarÄ• saá¹…gaá¹ƒ. __adÄ• s __buddhadhamma_nti buddhabhÄ• vakaraá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, pÄ• ramÄ«dhammanti attho. __

__anubrÅ«hayi_nti abhivaá¸• á¸• hesiá¹ƒ. __Ä• harissÄ• mÄ«_ti Ä• nayissÄ• mi. __taá¹ƒ dh __yaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ abhipatthita_nti yaá¹ƒ mayÄ• abhipatthitaá¹ƒ buddhattaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ Ä• ha tassa pana __revatassa_ bhagavato nagaraá¹ƒ sudhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma ahosi, pitÄ• vip vipulÄ• nÄ• ma, varuá¹‡o ca brahmadevo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sambhavo nÄ• ma upaá ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , nÄ• garukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ asÄ«tihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, Ä• y saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• ni, sudassanÄ• nÄ• ma aggamahesÄ«, varuá¹‡o nÄ• ma putto, Ä ``tassa dehÄ• bhinikkhantaá¹ƒ, pabhÄ• jÄ• lamanuttaraá¹ƒ.

divÄ• ceva tadÄ• rattiá¹ƒ, niccaá¹ƒ pharati yojanaá¹ƒ ||

``dhÄ• tuyo mama sabbÄ• pi, vikirantÅ«ti so jino.

adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sabbasattÄ• nukampako ||

``mahÄ• nÄ• gavanuyyÄ• ne, mahato nagarassa so.

pÅ«jito naramarÅ«hi, parinibbÄ• yi revatoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<16> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ sudhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma, vipulo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

vipulÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , revatassa mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``varuá¹‡o brahmadevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sambhavo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, revatassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``bhaddÄ• \Be 198/ ceva subhaddÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

sopi buddho asamasamo, nÄ• gamÅ«le abujjhatha ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``padumo \Ne 189/ kuÃ±jaro ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

sirimÄ• ceva yasavatÄ«, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``uccattanena so buddho, asÄ«tihatthamuggato.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , indaketuva uggato ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``tassa sarÄ«re nibbattÄ• , pabhÄ• mÄ• lÄ• anuttarÄ• .

divÄ• vÄ• yadi vÄ• rattiá¹ƒ, samantÄ• pharati yojanaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• ni \Ee 166/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• diá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``dassayitvÄ• buddhabalaá¹ƒ amataá¹ƒ loke pakÄ• sayaá¹ƒ.

nibbÄ• yi anupÄ• dÄ• no, yathaggupÄ• dÄ• nasaá¹…khayÄ• ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``so ca kÄ• yo ratananibho, so ca dhammo asÄ• diso.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __obhÄ• setÄ«_ti pakÄ• sayati. __uggato_ti ussito. __pabhÄ• mÄ• lÄ• _ti pabhÄ• ve viya. __upÄ• dÄ• nasaá¹…khayÄ• _ti indhanakkhayÄ• . __so ca kÄ• yo ratananibho_ti so c suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡o. ``taÃ±ca kÄ• yaá¹ƒ ratananibhaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, liá¹…gavip panassattho. sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

revatabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito paÃ±camo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

8. sobhitabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• tassa \Ne 190/ \Be 199/ pana aparabhÄ• ge tassa sÄ• sanepi antarahite __sobhito_ nÄ• m kappasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• ni cattÄ• ri asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapur yÄ• vatÄ• yukaá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• devehi Ä• yÄ• cito tusitapurato cavitvÄ• sudhammanagare su sudhammÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. so dasannaá¹ƒ m sudhammuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito parisuddhavirÄ• jitaghanameghapaá¹-alato puá¹‡á¹‡aca paá¹-isandhiyaá¹ƒ jÄ• tiyaÃ±ca pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni pubbe vuttappakÄ• rÄ• ni.

so dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasitvÄ• sattattiá¹ƒsanÄ• á¹-akitthisahassÄ• n makhiladeviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ sÄ«hakumÄ• re nÄ• ma putte uppanne cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni d pÄ• sÄ• deyeva pabbajitvÄ• tattheva Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nassatisamÄ• dhiá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetvÄ• cattÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ tattheva padhÄ• nacariyamacari. tato makhilamahÄ• deviyÄ• dinnaá¹ƒ param paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• abhinikkhamanatthÄ• ya cittamuppÄ• desi --- ``ayaá¹ƒ pÄ• sÄ• do alaá¹…k passantasseva \Ee 167/ Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• bodhirukkhaá¹ƒ majjhekatvÄ• pathaviyaá¹ƒ mayi bodhimÅ«le nisinne avuttÄ• sayameva pÄ• sÄ• dato nikkhamantÅ«â€™â€™ ti. sahac sudhammarÄ• jabhavanato uppatitvÄ• asitaÃ±janasaá¹…kÄ• samÄ• kÄ• samabbhuggaÃ± samosaritasurabhikusumadÄ• masamalaá¹…katapÄ• sÄ• datalo sakalampi gaganatalaá¹ƒ s kanakarasadhÄ• rÄ• sadisarucirakaranikaro divasakaro viya ca saradasamayarajanikaro viy vilambamÄ• navividhavicittakiá¹…kiá¹‡ikajÄ• lo yassa kira vÄ• teritassa sukusalajanavÄ• di turiyassa viya saddo vaggu ca rajanÄ«yo ca kamanÄ«yo ca ahosi.

dÅ«rato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya suyyamÄ• nena madhurena sarena sattÄ• naá¹ƒ sotÄ• ni odahamÄ gharacaccaracatukkavÄ«thiÄ• dÄ«su á¹-hatvÄ• pavattitakathÄ• sallÄ• pesu manussesu nÄ taruvaravanamatthakÄ• vidÅ«renÄ• kÄ• sena palobhayamÄ• no \Be 200/ viya taruvarasÄ• khÄ• nÄ• nÄ• ratanajutivisarasamujjalena vaá¹‡á¹‡ena \Ne 191/ jananayanÄ• n puÃ±Ã±Ä• nubhÄ• vaá¹ƒ samugghosayanto viya ca gaganatalaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajji. tattha nÄ• á¹ paÃ±caá¹…gikassa varaturiyassa madhurena sarena upagÄ• yiá¹ƒsu ceva vilapiá¹ƒsu ca. c senÄ• pi alaá¹…kÄ• ra-kÄ• yÄ• bharaá¹‡a-juti-samudaya-samujjotanÄ• nÄ• virÄ• ga-surabl amaravarasenÄ• viya paramaruciradassanÄ• dharaá¹‡Ä« viya gaganatalena pÄ• sÄ• daá tato pÄ• sÄ• do gantvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ujuvipulavaá¹-á¹-akkhandhaá¹ƒ kusumapallavamakulasamalaá¹…kataá¹ƒ nÄ• garukkhaá¹ƒ majjhekatvÄ• otaritvÄ• bhÅ«m nÄ• á¹-akitthiyo ca kenaci avuttÄ• va tato pÄ• sÄ• dato otaritvÄ• pakkamiá¹ƒsu. anekaguá¹ mahÄ• puriso mahÄ• janakataparivÄ• royeva rattiyÄ• tÄ«su yÄ• mesu tisso vijjÄ• yo uppÄ• dhammatÄ• baleneva yathÄ• gatamagamÄ• si. pÄ• sÄ• do pana tattheva aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. sob sambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagA udÄ• netvÄ• bodhisamÄ«peyeva sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• brahmuno dhammajjh ``kassa nu kho paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ deseyyaâ€™â€™ nti buddhacakkhunÄ• olokent kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• tike asamakumÄ• raÃ±ca sunettakumÄ• raÃ±ca disvÄ• --- ``ime dve kum gambhÄ«raá¹ƒ nipuá¹‡aá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhituá¹ƒ samatthÄ• , handÄ• haá¹ƒ imesaá nti Ä• kÄ• senÄ• gantvÄ• sudhammuyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• dvepi kumÄ• re uyyÄ• napÄ• lena parivuto mahÄ• janamajjhe dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``revatassa aparena, sobhito nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

samÄ• hito santacitto, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``so \Ee 168/ jino sakagehamhi, mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ vinivattayi.

patvÄ• na kevalaá¹ƒ bodhiá¹ƒ, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``yÄ• va heá¹-á¹-hÄ• avÄ«cito, bhavaggÄ• cÄ• pi uddhato.

etthantare ekaparisÄ• , ahosi dhammadesane ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``tÄ• ya \Be 201/ parisÄ• ya sambuddho, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ne 192/ __sakagehamhÄ«_ti attano bhavaneyeva, antopÄ• sÄ• dataleyevÄ• ti attho vinivattayÄ«_ti cittaá¹ƒ parivattesi, sakagehe á¹-hatvÄ• sattadivasabbhantareyeva puthujjan vinivattetvÄ• buddhattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡Ä«ti attho. __heá¹-á¹-hÄ• _ti heá¹-á¹-hato. __bhavagg akaniá¹-á¹-habhavanato. __tÄ• ya parisÄ• yÄ• _ti tassÄ• parisÄ• ya majjhe. __gaá¹‡anÄ• y gaá¹‡anapathamatÄ«tÄ• ti attho. __paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo_ti paá¹-hamo dhammÄ• bhisam vattabbÄ• parisÄ• ahosÄ«ti attho. ``paá¹-hame abhisamiá¹ƒsuyevÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-h paá¹-hamadhammadesane abhisamiá¹ƒsu ye janÄ• , te gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbÄ• ti attho.

athÄ• parena samayena sudassananagaradvÄ• re cittapÄ• á¹-aliyÄ• mÅ«le yamakapÄ• á¹ navakanakamaá¹‡imayabhavane tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane pÄ• ricchattakamÅ«le paá¹‡á¸• uka abhidhammaá¹ƒ desesi. desanÄ• pariyosÄ• ne navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisa abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``tato parampi desente, marÅ«naÃ±ca samÄ• game.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

athÄ• parena samayena sudassananagare jayaseno nÄ• ma rÄ• jakumÄ• ro yojanappamÄ asokassakaá¹‡á¹‡acampakanÄ• gapunnÄ• gavakulasurabhicÅ«tapanasÄ• sanasÄ• lakund sahakÄ• rakaravÄ«rÄ• ditaruvaranirantaraá¹ƒ Ä• rÄ• maá¹ƒ ropetvÄ• buddhappamukhassa dÄ• nÄ• numodanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• yÄ• gaá¹ƒ vaá¹‡á¹‡etvÄ• bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desesi. ta koá¹-isatasahassasattanikÄ• yassa dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyÄ• bhisamayo a <6> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ rÄ• japutto, jayaseno nÄ• ma khattiyo.

Ä• rÄ• maá¹ƒ ropayitvÄ• na, buddhe niyyÄ• tayÄ« tadÄ• ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``tassa \Be 202/ \Ee 169/ yÄ• gaá¹ƒ pakittento, dhammaá¹ƒ desesi cakkhumÄ•

tadÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

puna uggato nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• sunandanagare sunandaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma vihÄ• raá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa adÄ• si. tasmiá¹ƒ dÄ• ne ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ ko sannipÄ• to \Ne 193/, tesaá¹ƒ majjhe sobhito bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. ayaá¹ƒ pa puna mekhalÄ• nagare dhammagaá¹‡o dhammagaá¹‡Ä• rÄ• maá¹ƒ nÄ• ma pavarÄ• rÄ• m buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa datvÄ• saha sabbaparikkhÄ• rehi dÄ• naá¹ƒ a ehibhikkhubhÄ• vena pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ navutiyÄ• arahantakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te pÄ• ti dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• dasasatanayanapure vassaá¹ƒ vasitvÄ• suravaraparivuto otari, tadÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• arahantakoá¹-Ä«hi saddhiá¹ƒ caturaá¹…gike sanni tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sobhitassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``uggato nÄ• ma so rÄ• jÄ• , dÄ• naá¹ƒ deti naruttame.

tamhi dÄ• ne samÄ• gaÃ±chuá¹ƒ, arahantÄ• satakoá¹-iyo ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ puragaá¹‡o, deti dÄ• naá¹ƒ naruttame.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``devaloke vasitvÄ• na, yadÄ• orohatÄ« jino.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto rammavatÄ«nagare ubhato sujÄ• to `sujÄ• toâ€™ nÄ• sobhitassa bhagavato dhammadesanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• saraá¹‡esu patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya buddhappan temÄ• saá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ• namadÄ• si. sopi naá¹ƒ ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavi vuttaá¹ƒ --- <12> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ \Be 203/ tena samayena, sujÄ• to nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

tadÄ• sasÄ• vakaá¹ƒ buddhaá¹ƒ, annapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, sobhito lokanÄ• yako.

aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 194/ \Ee 170/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukh

<15> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

tamevatthamanuppattiyÄ• , uggaá¹ƒ dhitimakÄ• sahaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __tamevatthamanuppattiyÄ• _ti tassa buddhattassa anuppattiatthaá¹ƒ, tassa pana so ``anÄ• gate ayaá¹ƒ gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• ``av ti buddhattappattiatthanti attho. __ugga_nti tibbaá¹ƒ ghoraá¹ƒ. __dhiti_nti vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ. __akÄ akÄ• siá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ.

tassa pana __sobhitassa_ bhagavato sudhammaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, pitÄ• sudha sudhammÄ• nÄ• ma devÄ«, asamo ca sunetto ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , anomo nÄ• mupaá dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , nÄ• garukkho bodhi, aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthubbedhaá¹ƒ sarÄ«ra navutivassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yuppamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, makhilÄ• nÄ• massa mahÄ• devÄ«, sÄ«ha nÄ• á¹-akitthÄ«naá¹ƒ sattattiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vas jayaseno nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko. setÄ• rÄ• me kira vasÄ«ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<16> á¹• 21 ``sudhammaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sudhammo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sudhammÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sobhitassa mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``asamo ca sunetto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

anomo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sobhitassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``nakulÄ• ca sujÄ• tÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bujjhamÄ• no ca so buddho, nÄ• gamÅ«le abujjhatha ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ \Be 204/, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va uggato ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``tathÄ• \Ne 195/ suphullaá¹ƒ pavanaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• gandhehi dhÅ«pitaá¹ƒ.

tatheva tassa pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, sÄ«lagandhehi dhÅ«pitaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi sÄ• garo nÄ• ma, dassanena atappiyo.

tatheva tassa pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, savanena atappiyaá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni \Ee 171/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``ovÄ• daá¹ƒ anusiá¹-á¹-hiÃ±ca, datvÄ• na sesake jane.

hutÄ• sanova tÄ• petvÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``so ca buddho asamasamo, tepi sÄ• vakÄ• balappattÄ• .

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __sataraá¹ƒsÄ«vÄ• _tiÄ• dicco viya, sabbÄ• disÄ• obhÄ• setÄ«ti attho. __pavana_ __dhÅ«pita_nti vÄ• sitaá¹ƒ gandhitaá¹ƒ. __atappiyo_ti atittikaro, atittijanano vÄ• . __tÄ• vad kÄ• le, tÄ• vatakaá¹ƒ kÄ• lanti attho. __tÄ• resÄ«_ti tÄ• rayÄ«. __ovÄ• da_nti sakiá¹ƒ vÄ• d __anusiá¹-á¹-hi_nti punappunaá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ anusiá¹-á¹-hi nÄ• ma. __sesake jane_ti sacca appattassa sesajanassa, sÄ• miatthe bhummavacanaá¹ƒ. __hutÄ• sanova tÄ• petvÄ• _ti ag vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho, upÄ• dÄ• nakkhayÄ• bhagavÄ• parinibbutoti attho. sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabba sobhitabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito chaá¹-á¹-ho buddhavaá¹ƒso.

9. anomadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• sobhitabuddhe \Be 205/ \Ne 196/ pana parinibbute tassa aparabhÄ• ge ekamasaá¹…khyey ahosi. atÄ«te pana tasmiá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyye ekasmiá¹ƒ kappe tayo buddhÄ• nibbattiá¹ƒsu nÄ• rado_ti. tattha __anomadassÄ«_ bhagavÄ• soá¸·asa asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni kappasatasa tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• devehi abhiyÄ• cito tato cavitvÄ• candavatiyaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma rÄ• jadhÄ nÄ• massa raÃ±Ã±o kule samussitacÄ• rupayodharÄ• ya yasodharÄ• ya nÄ• ma aggamah aggahesi. anomadassikumÄ• re kira yasodharÄ• ya deviyÄ• kucchigate tassa puÃ±Ã±appa asÄ«tihatthappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ \Ee 172/ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ pharitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. candasÅ«riyap anabhibhavanÄ«yÄ• va ahosi. sÄ• dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena bodhisattaá¹ƒ su pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttanayÄ• neva. nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase panassa nÄ• maá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hantÄ• , yasmÄ• jÄ• tiyaá¹ƒ Ä• kÄ• sa tasmÄ• anomÄ• naá¹ƒ ratanÄ• naá¹ƒ uppattihetubhÅ«tattÄ• ``anomadassÄ«â€™â€™ ti n vuddhippatto dibbehi kÄ• maguá¹‡ehi paricÄ• riyamÄ• no dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ upasiri sirivaá¸• á¸• hoti tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. sirimÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni tevÄ«sati it paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. so sirimÄ• ya deviyÄ• upavÄ• á¹‡e nÄ• ma putte jÄ• te ca sivikÄ• yÄ• nena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ tisso janakoá¹-iyo tehi parivuto mahÄ• puriso dasa mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ cari. tato visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡a anupamabrÄ• hmaá¹‡agÄ• me piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya caritvÄ• anupamaseá¹-á¹-hidhÄ«tÄ• ya dinn paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• anomanÄ• mÄ• jÄ«vakena tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• ajjunarukkhabodhiá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hattiá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• tÄ«su yÄ• mesu tisso vijjÄ• uppÄ• detvÄ• \Ne 197/ --- ``a pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• nesi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``sobhitassa \Be 206/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

anomadassÄ« amitayaso, tejassÄ« duratikkamo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``so chetvÄ• bandhanaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• tayo bhave.

anivattigamanaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, desesi devamÄ• nuse ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• garova asaá¹…khobho, pabbatova durÄ• sado.

Ä• kÄ• sova ananto so, sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va phullito ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``dassanenapi taá¹ƒ buddhaá¹ƒ, tositÄ• honti pÄ• á¹‡ino.

byÄ• harantaá¹ƒ giraá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , amataá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡anti teâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __anomadassÄ«_ti anupamadassano, amitadassano vÄ• . __amitayaso_ti amitapari __tejassÄ«_ti sÄ«lasamÄ• dhipaÃ±Ã±Ä• tejena samannÄ• gato. __duratikkamo_ti duppadh mÄ• rena vÄ• kenaci vÄ• atikkamituá¹ƒ asakkuá¹‡eyyoti attho. __so_ \Ee 173/ __chetvÄ• sabbaá¹ƒ dasavidhaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒyojanaá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• . __viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• tayo bhave_ti tibha kammakkhayakaraÃ±Ä• á¹‡ena viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• , abhÄ• vaá¹ƒ katvÄ• ti attho. __anivattiga pavattiyÄ• paá¹-ipakkhabhÅ«taá¹ƒ nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ anivattÄ«ti vuccati, taá¹ƒ anivattiá¹ƒ gacch anivattigamano. taá¹ƒ anivattigamanaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gikaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ desesÄ«ti attho. ` pÄ• á¹-ho, soyevattho. __devamÄ• nuse_ti devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ, sÄ• miatthe upayogavaca __asaá¹…khobho_ti khobhetuá¹ƒ cÄ• letuá¹ƒ asakkuá¹‡eyyoti akkhobhiyo. yathÄ• hi samu caturÄ• sÄ«tiyojanasahassagambhÄ«ro anekayojanasahassabhÅ«tÄ• vÄ• so akkhobhiyo, e __Ä• kÄ• sova ananto_ti yathÄ• pana Ä• kÄ• sassa anto natthi, atha kho ananto appameyy buddhaguá¹‡ehi ananto appameyyo apÄ• ro. __so_ti so bhagavÄ• . __sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va phu sabbalakkhaá¹‡Ä• nubyaÃ±janasamalaá¹…katasarÄ«rattÄ• suphullitasÄ• larÄ• jÄ• viya so taá¹ƒ buddha_nti tassa buddhassa dassanenÄ• pÄ«ti attho. Ä«disesupi \Ne 198/ sÄ• mivac saddasatthavidÅ«. __tositÄ• _ti paritositÄ• pÄ«á¹‡itÄ• . __byÄ• haranta_nti byÄ• harantass upayogavacanaá¹ƒ. __amata_nti nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ. __pÄ• puá¹‡antÄ«_ti adhigacchanti. __te_ti dhammadesanaá¹ƒ suá¹‡anti, te amataá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡antÄ«ti attho.

bhagavÄ• pana bodhimÅ«le sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• brahmunÄ• Ä• yÄ• cito c lokaá¹ƒ olokento attanÄ• saha pabbajite tikoá¹-isaá¹…khe jane upanissayasampanne disvÄ etarahi viharantÄ«â€™â€™ ti upadhÄ• rento subhavatÄ«nagare sudassanuyyÄ• ne viharan sudassanuyyÄ• ne otari. so tehi parivuto sadevamanussÄ• ya parisÄ• ya majjhe dhammaca koá¹-isatÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``dhammÄ• bhisamayo tassa, iddho phÄ«to tadÄ• ahu.

koá¹-isatÄ• ni abhisamiá¹ƒsu, paá¹-hame dhammadesaneâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __phÄ«to_ti phÄ• tippatto bÄ• hujaÃ±Ã±avasena. __koá¹-isatÄ• nÄ«_ti koá¹-Ä«naá¹ ``koá¹-isatayoâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa satakoá¹-iyoti attho.

athÄ• parena \Ee 174/ samayena osadhÄ«nagaradvÄ• re asanarukkhamÅ«le yamakapÄ• a durabhibhavane tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane paá¹‡á¸• ukambalasilÄ• yaá¹ƒ nisinno temÄ• saá¹ƒ a vassÄ• payi. tadÄ• asÄ«tidevatÄ• koá¹-iyo abhisamiá¹ƒsu. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``tato paraá¹ƒ abhisamaye, vassante dhammavuá¹-á¹-hiyo.

asÄ«tikoá¹-iyobhisamiá¹ƒsu, dutiye dhammadesaneâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __vassante_ti buddhamahÄ• meghe vassante. __dhammavuá¹-á¹-hiyo_ti dhammaka tato aparena samayena maá¹…galapaÃ±hÄ• niddese aá¹-á¹-hasattati koá¹-iyo abhisamiá¹ƒ

ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``tato \Be 208/ \Ne 199/ parampi vassante, tappayante ca pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

aá¹-á¹-hasattatikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __vassante_ti dhammakathÄ• saliladhÄ• raá¹ƒ vassante. __tappayante_ti dhammÄ• tappanaá¹ƒ karonte bhagavatÄ«ti attho.

anomadassissapi bhagavato tayo sÄ• vakasannipÄ• tÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tattha soreyyanagare is desiyamÄ• ne pasÄ«ditvÄ• ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hannaá¹ƒ arah pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. rÄ• dhavatÄ«nagare sundari dhamme desiyamÄ• ne ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ sattannaá¹ƒ arahantasata pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna soreyyanagareyeva soreyya ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ channaá¹ƒ arahantasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe p tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tassÄ• pi ca mahesino.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ, pupphitÄ• naá¹ƒ vimuttiyÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, sannipÄ• to tadÄ• ahu.

pahÄ«namadamohÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``sattasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anaá¹…gaá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ virajÄ• naá¹ƒ, upasantÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``channaá¹ƒ satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ, nibbutÄ• naá¹ƒ tapassinaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha \Ee 175/ __tassÄ• pi ca mahesino_ti tassa mahesino anomadassissÄ• pi. ``tassÄ• pi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassapi dvipaduttamassÄ• ti attho. lakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ saddasatthato gahetabbaá¹ƒ.

__abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• na_nti abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• naá¹ƒ balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ, ciá¹‡á¹‡avasitÄ• y abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su \Ne 200/ thirabhÄ• vappattÄ• nanti attho. __pupphitÄ• na_nti sabbaphÄ• lip sobhaggappattÄ• naá¹ƒ. __vimuttiyÄ• _ti arahattaphalavimuttiyÄ• .

__anaá¹…gaá¹‡Ä• na_nti \Be 209/ ettha ayaá¹ƒ __aá¹…gaá¹‡a_-saddo katthaci kilesesu d ``tattha katamÄ• ni tÄ«á¹‡i aá¹…gaá¹‡Ä• ni? rÄ• go aá¹…gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ doso aá¹…gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ r (Vibh 924). ``pÄ• pakÄ• naá¹ƒ kho etaá¹ƒ, Ä• vuso, akusalÄ• naá¹ƒ icchÄ• vacarÄ• naá¹ƒ a aá¹…gaá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti (MN I 60). katthaci kismiÃ±ci male? yathÄ• ha --- ``tasseva rajassa pahÄ• nÄ• ya vÄ• yamatÄ«â€™â€™ ti (MN I 184). katthaci tathÄ• rÅ«pe bhÅ«mibhÄ• ge `` bodhiyaá¹…gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ rÄ• jaá¹…gaá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti. idha pana kilesesu daá¹-á¹-habbo. tas (Ps I 57). __virajÄ• na_nti tasseva vevacanaá¹ƒ. __tapassina_nti kilesakkhayakaro ariyama yesaá¹ƒ atthi te tapassino, tesaá¹ƒ tapassÄ«naá¹ƒ, khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• nanti attho.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto eko mahesakkho yakkhasenÄ• pati ahosi mahiddhiko mah anekakoá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ yakkhÄ• naá¹ƒ adhipati. so ``buddho loke uppannoâ€™â€ paramaruciradassanaá¹ƒ sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ abhirucirarajanikaramaá¹‡á¸• alasadisaá¹ƒ m tattha sattÄ• haá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ buddhappamukhassa saá¹…ghassa adÄ• si. atha naá bhattÄ• numodanasamaye ``anÄ• gate kappasatasahassÄ• dhike ekasmiá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyey bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<12> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, yakkho Ä• siá¹ƒ mahiddhiko.

nekÄ• naá¹ƒ yakkhakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, vasavattimhi issaro ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• pi taá¹ƒ buddhavaraá¹ƒ, upagantvÄ• mahesinaá¹ƒ.

annapÄ• nena tappesiá¹ƒ, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ tadÄ• byÄ• kÄ• si, visuddhanayano muni.

aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 201/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá

<16> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi \Ee 176/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Be 210/ __uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si_nti pÄ• ramipÅ«raá¹‡atthÄ• ya bhiyyopi d parakkamamakÄ• sÄ«ti attho.

tassa pana __anomadassissa_ bhagavato candavatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, yasavÄ• yasodharÄ• nÄ• ma mÄ• tÄ• , nisabho ca anomo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , varuá¹‡o nÄ• mu sumanÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , ajjunarukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sah vassasatasahassaá¹ƒ Ä• yu, sirimÄ• nÄ• ma aggamahesÄ«, upavÄ• á¹‡o nÄ• massa putto ajjhÄ• vasi. so sivikÄ• yÄ• nena nikkhami. sivikÄ• yÄ• nena gamanaá¹ƒ pana sobhitabuddh pÄ• sÄ• dagamane vuttanayeneva veditabbaá¹ƒ. dhammako nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• vihÄ• sÄ«ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<17> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ candavatÄ« nÄ• ma, yasavÄ• nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• yasodharÄ• nÄ• ma, anomadassissa satthuno ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``nisabho ca anomo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

varuá¹‡o nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, anomadassissa satthuno ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``sundarÄ« ca sumanÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, ajjunoti pavuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vatÄ« tassa, sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va uggato ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``vassasatasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``supupphitaá¹ƒ \Ne 202/ pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, arahantehi tÄ• dihi.

vÄ«tarÄ• gehi vimalehi, sobhittha jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``so ca satthÄ• amitayaso, yugÄ• ni tÄ• ni atuliyÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Be 211/ __pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vatÄ«_ti tassa sarÄ«rato pabhÄ• nikkhamati. sarÄ«rap niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ dvÄ• dasayojanappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ padesaá¹ƒ pharitvÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hati. __yugÄ• aggasÄ• vakayugÄ• dÄ«ni yugaá¸·Ä• ni. __sabbaá¹ƒ_ \Ee 177/ __tamantarahita_nti vuttapp aniccamukhaá¹ƒ paviá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ vinaá¹-á¹-hanti attho. ``nanu rittakameva saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â tassa nanu rittakÄ• tucchakÄ• yeva sabbe saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ti attho. __ma_-kÄ• ro padasanc sabbattha uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

imassa pana anomadassissa bhagavato santike sÄ• riputto ca mahÄ• moggallÄ• no cÄ• ti aggasÄ• vakabhÄ• vatthÄ• ya paá¹‡idhÄ• namakaá¹ƒsu. imesaá¹ƒ pana therÄ• naá¹ƒ vatth ganthavitthÄ• rabhayena na uddhaá¹-anti.

anomadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito sattamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

10. padumabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• anomadassissa \Ne 203/ pana bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge vassasatasahassÄ• yukÄ• manus dasavassÄ• yukÄ• hutvÄ• puna anukkamena vaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• yukÄ• hu vassasatasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tathÄ• __padumo_ nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke uppajji. sop tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• campakanagare asamassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule rÅ«p nÄ• ma aggamahesiyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. so dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• n mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. jÄ• te pana kumÄ• re Ä• kÄ• sato sakalajambudÄ«pe samuddapa tenassa nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase nÄ• maá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hantÄ• nemittakÄ• ca Ã±Ä• takÄ• ca ` nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu. so dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. nanduttara-vasuttarapÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. uttarÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni tettiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-atha \Be 212/ mahÄ• satto uttarÄ• ya nÄ• ma mahÄ• deviyÄ• rammakumÄ• re nÄ• ma up Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhami. taá¹ƒ pabbajantaá¹ƒ ekÄ• purisak parivuto aá¹-á¹-ha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya dhaÃ±Ã sudhaÃ±Ã±aseá¹-á¹-hissa dhÄ«tÄ• ya dhaÃ±Ã±avatiyÄ• nÄ• ma dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• s mahÄ• sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye titthakÄ• jÄ«vake tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• mahÄ• soá¹‡abodhiá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hattiá¹ƒsah tiá¹‡asantharakaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±apetvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ \Ee 178/ vidhamitvÄ• tÄ«su yÄ• mesu tisso vijjÄ• sacchikatvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• n taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti (Dhp 153-154) udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattas vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• brahmuno Ä• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ adhivÄ• setvÄ• dhammadesanÄ• ya bhÄ• jan attanÄ• saha pabbajite koá¹-isaá¹…khe bhikkhÅ« disvÄ• taá¹…khaá¹‡eyeva anilapathena dhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ«nagarasamÄ«pe dhanaÃ±jayuyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• tehi parivuto tesaá¹ƒ majjh tadÄ• koá¹-isatÄ• naá¹ƒ abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``anomadassissa \Ne 204/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

padumo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi asamaá¹ƒ sÄ«laá¹ƒ, samÄ• dhipi anantako.

asaá¹…khyeyyaá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• á¹‡avaraá¹ƒ, vimuttipi anÅ«pamÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, dhammacakkappavattane.

abhisamayÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, mahÄ• tamapavÄ• hanÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __asamaá¹ƒ sÄ«la_nti aÃ±Ã±esaá¹ƒ sÄ«lena asadisaá¹ƒ, uttamaá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-hanti at anantako_ti samÄ• dhipi appameyyo, tassa anantabhÄ• vo lokavivaraá¹‡ayamakapÄ• á¹-ih __Ã±Ä• á¹‡avara_nti sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ, asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni vÄ• . arahattaphalavimuttipi bhagavato. __anÅ«pamÄ• _ti upamÄ• virahitÄ• . __atulatejassÄ• _ti ``atulaÃ±Ä• á¹‡atejÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. tassa ``tayo abhisamayÄ• â€™â€™ ti iminÄ sambandho daá¹-á¹-habbo. __mahÄ• tamapavÄ• hanÄ• _ti mahÄ• mohavinÄ• sakÄ• , moh athÄ• parena samayena padumo bhagavÄ• attano kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• taraá¹ƒ sÄ• lakumÄ• Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game saparivÄ• re pabbÄ• jetvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ desento navuti koá¹-i yadÄ• pana rammattherassa dhammaá¹ƒ desesi, tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisar

---

<4> á¹• 21 ``paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamaye buddho, koá¹-isatamabodhayi.

dutiyÄ• bhisamaye dhÄ«ro, navutikoá¹-imabodhayi ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• ca padumo buddho, ovadÄ« sakamatrajaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• \Ee 179/ pana subhÄ• vitatto nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• padumassa buddhassa buddhapadun koá¹-isatasahassaparivÄ• ro ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajito, tasmiá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te bhaga uddisi, so pana paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi.

athÄ• parena \Ne 205/ samayena mahÄ• padumo munivasabho usabhasamagatÄ« usabha vassaá¹ƒ upagaÃ±chi. nagaravÄ• sino manussÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ dassanakÄ• mÄ• upasa dhammaá¹ƒ desesi. tattha ca bahavo manussÄ• pasannacittÄ• pabbajiá¹ƒsu. tato dasabal tÄ«hi bhikkhusatasahassehi saddhiá¹ƒ visuddhipavÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ pavÄ• resi. so dutiyo sanni tattha na pabbajiá¹ƒsu, te kathinÄ• nisaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pÄ• á¹-ipade paÃ±casu mÄ• sesu kathinacÄ«varamadaá¹ƒsu. tato taá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ« dhammasenÄ• patiá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakaá¹ƒ vis kathinatthÄ• ratthaá¹ƒ yÄ• citvÄ• kathinacÄ«varaá¹ƒ tassÄ• daá¹ƒsu. therassa kathinacÄ«v sibbane sahÄ• yakÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. padumo pana sammÄ• sambuddho sÅ«cicchidde suttÄ• n pana cÄ«vare bhagavÄ• tÄ«hi bhikkhusatasahassehi cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ pakkÄ• mi.

athÄ• parena \Be 214/ samayena sÄ«havikkantagÄ• mÄ« purisasÄ«ho viya buddhasÄ«ho paramasurabhikusumaphalabhÄ• ravinamitasÄ• khÄ• viá¹-ape vimalakamalakuvalayasama sisiramadhuravÄ• rivÄ• hena paripÅ«rite ruru-camara-sÄ«ha-byaggha-aja-haya-gavaya-ma vividhamigagaá¹‡avicarite surabhikusumagandhÄ• vabaddhahadayÄ• hi bhamaramadhuka samantato gumbagumbÄ• yamÄ• ne phalarasapamuditahadayÄ• hi kÄ• kalisadisamadhura upagÄ«yamÄ• ne paramaramaá¹‡Ä«ye vivitte vijane yogÄ• nukÅ«le pavane vassÄ• vÄ• sa viharantaá¹ƒ saparivÄ• rakaá¹ƒ dasabalaá¹ƒ tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ dhammarÄ• jaá¹ƒ buddhasiriyÄ manussÄ• tassa dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pasÄ«ditvÄ• ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajiá¹ƒsu. t bhikkhusatasahassehi parivuto pavÄ• resi. so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, padumassa mahesino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``kathinatthÄ• rasamaye, uppanne kathinacÄ«vare.

dhammasenÄ• patitthÄ• ya, bhikkhÅ« sibbiá¹ƒsu cÄ«varaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• te vimalÄ• bhikkhÅ«, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• mahiddhikÄ• .

tÄ«á¹‡i satasahassÄ• ni, samiá¹ƒsu aparÄ• jitÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ \Ne 206/ \Ee 180/ so narÄ• sabho, pavane vÄ• saá¹ƒ upÄ• gar tadÄ• samÄ• gamo Ä• si, dvinnaá¹ƒ satasahassinaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __kathinatthÄ• rasamaye_ti kathinacÄ«varattharaá¹‡asamaye. __dhammasenÄ• pat dhammasenÄ• patisÄ• lattheratthaá¹ƒ. __aparÄ• jitÄ• _ti na parÄ• jitÄ• , vibhattilopo daá¹-á mahÄ• padumo. __pavane_ti mahÄ• vane. __vÄ• sa_nti vassÄ• vÄ• saá¹ƒ. __upÄ• gamÄ« satasahassina_nti dvinnaá¹ƒ satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ. ``tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ tipi bhaveyya.

tadÄ• tathÄ• gate tasmiá¹ƒ vanasaá¹‡á¸• e vasante amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto sÄ«ho hutvÄ nirodhasamÄ• pattiá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• nisinnaá¹ƒ disvÄ• pasannacitto \Be 215/ hutvÄ• pa saÃ±jÄ• tapÄ«tisomanasso tikkhattuá¹ƒ sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ naditvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ buddhÄ• ra avijahitvÄ• pÄ«tisukheneva gocarÄ• ya apakkamitvÄ• jÄ«vitapariccÄ• gaá¹ƒ katvÄ• payiru atha satthÄ• tassa sattÄ• hassa accayena nirodhasamÄ• pattito vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya narasÄ«ho ``bhikkhusaá¹…ghepissa cittappasÄ• do hotÅ«ti saá¹…gho Ä• gacchatÅ«â€™â€™ ti cintes tÄ• vadeva Ä• gaÃ±chiá¹ƒsu. sÄ«ho saá¹…ghepi cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• desi. atha satthÄ• tassa ci ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sÄ«ho Ä• siá¹ƒ migÄ• dhibhÅ«.

pavivekamanubrÅ«hantaá¹ƒ, pavane addasaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``vanditvÄ• sirasÄ• pÄ• de, katvÄ• na taá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

tikkhattuá¹ƒ abhinÄ• ditvÄ• , sattÄ• haá¹ƒ jinamupaá¹-á¹-hahaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sattÄ• haá¹ƒ varasamÄ• pattiyÄ• , vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

manasÄ• cintayitvÄ• na, koá¹-ibhikkhÅ« samÄ• nayi ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• pi so mahÄ• vÄ«ro, tesaá¹ƒ majjhe viyÄ• kari.

aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 207/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá

<15> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ee 181/ __pavivekamanubrÅ«hanta_nti nirodhasamÄ• pattiá¹ƒ samÄ• pannanti atth tikkhattuá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• . __abhinÄ• ditvÄ• _ti tikkhattuá¹ƒ sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ na __upaá¹-á¹-haha_nti upaá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __varasamÄ• pattiyÄ• _ti r vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• . __manasÄ• cintayitvÄ• nÄ• _ti ``sabbepi bhikkhÅ« idha Ä• gacchantÅ«â cintetvÄ• . __samÄ• nayÄ«_ti samÄ• hari.

tassa pana __padumassa bhagavato_ campakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. asamo nÄ• m tassa asamÄ• nÄ• ma, sÄ• lo \Be 216/ ca upasÄ• lo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , varuá¹‡o nÄ• surÄ• dhÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , mahÄ• soá¹‡arukkho bodhi, aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saha vassasatasahassaá¹ƒ ahosi, rÅ«pÄ• dÄ«hi guá¹‡ehi anuttarÄ• uttarÄ• nÄ• massa aggama atirammo tanayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<16> á¹• 21 ``campakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, asamo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

asamÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , padumassa mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• lo ca upasÄ• lo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

varuá¹‡o nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, padumassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``rÄ• dhÄ• ceva surÄ• dhÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• soá¹‡oti vuccati ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vatÄ« tassa, asamÄ• sabbato disÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``candappabhÄ• sÅ«riyappabhÄ• , ratanaggimaá¹‡ippabhÄ• .

sabbÄ• pi tÄ• hatÄ• honti, patvÄ• jinapabhuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``vassasatasahassÄ• ni \Ne 208/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``paripakkamÄ• nase satte, bodhayitvÄ• asesato.

sesake anusÄ• sitvÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``uragova tacaá¹ƒ jiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, vaddhapattaá¹ƒva pÄ• dapo.

jahitvÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• re, nibbuto so yathÄ• sikhÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ee 182/ __ratanaggimaá¹‡ippabhÄ• _ti ratanappabhÄ• ca aggippabhÄ• ca maá¹‡ip abhibhÅ«tÄ• . __jinapabhuttama_nti jinassa sarÄ«rappabhaá¹ƒ uttamaá¹ƒ patvÄ• hatÄ• ti a __paripakkamÄ• nase_ti paripakkindriye veneyyasatte. __vaddhapatta_nti purÄ• á¹‡apattaá pÄ• dapo viya. __sabbasaá¹…khÄ• re_ti sabbepi \Be 217/ ajjhattikabÄ• hire saá¹…khÄ• re.

sabbasaá¹…khÄ• raâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, soyevattho. __yathÄ• sikhÄ«_ti aggi viya niru gatoti. sesamettha gÄ• thÄ• su heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttanayattÄ• uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

padumabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito aá¹-á¹-hamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

11. nÄ• radabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• padumabuddhe \Ne 209/ pana parinibbute tassa sÄ• sane ca antarahite vassasatasahassÄ parihÄ• yamÄ• nÄ• dasavassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. puna vaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• navutivassasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tadÄ• dasabaladharo tevijjo catuvesÄ• rajjavisÄ• ra __nÄ• rado_ nÄ• ma narasattuttamo satthÄ• loke udapÄ• di. so cattÄ• ri asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitabhavane nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• dhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma n sakavÄ«riyavijitavÄ• sudevassa sudevassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule aggamahesiyÄ• nirÅ«pa kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. so dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena dhanaÃ±j nikkhami. nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase pana nÄ• makaraá¹‡e kayiramÄ• ne sakalajambudÄ«pe anurÅ«pÄ• ni Ä• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni Ä• kÄ• sato kapparukkhÄ• dÄ«hi patiá¹ƒsu. tenassa narÄ• r adÄ• sÄ«ti ``nÄ• radoâ€™â€™ ti nÄ• maá¹ƒ akaá¹ƒsu.

so navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• ramajjhe vasi. vijito vijitÄ• vÄ« vijitÄ• bhirÄ• moti tiá¹‡á¹‡aá anucchavikÄ• tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tassa nÄ• radakumÄ• rassa kulasÄ«lÄ• cÄ• ra vijitasenaá¹ƒ \Ee 183/ nÄ• ma ativiya dhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ khattiyakaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ aggamahesiá¹ƒ ak katvÄ• vÄ«satisahassÄ• dhikaá¹ƒ itthÄ«naá¹ƒ satasahassaá¹ƒ ahosi. tassÄ• vijitasenÄ• ya sabbalokÄ• nandakare nanduttarakumÄ• re nÄ• ma jÄ• te so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• ca senÄ• ya parivuto nÄ• nÄ• virÄ• gatanuvaravasananivasano \Be 218/ Ä• mukkamuttÄ• hÄ• varakeyÅ«ramakuá¹-akaá¹-akadharo paramasurabhigandhakusumasamalaá¹…kato padasÄ sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni omuÃ±citvÄ• bhaá¹‡á¸• Ä• gÄ• rikassa hatthe datvÄ• sayameva vimalanÄ«lakuvalayadalasadisenÄ• tinisitenÄ• sinÄ• paramaruciraratanavicittaá¹ƒ sakesan gaganatale khipi. taá¹ƒ sakko devarÄ• jÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡acaá¹…koá¹-akena paá¹-iggahetvÄ• netvÄ• tiyojanubbedhaá¹ƒ sinerumuddhani sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ cetiyaá¹ƒ akÄ• si.

mahÄ• puriso \Ne 210/ pana devadattÄ• ni kÄ• sÄ• yÄ• ni vatthÄ• ni paridahitvÄ• tattheva purisasatasahassÄ• ca taá¹ƒ anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. so sattÄ• haá¹ƒ tattheva padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya vijitasenÄ• ya aggamahesiyÄ• dinnaá¹ƒ pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhu divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• sudassanuyyÄ• napÄ• lena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santha mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• tÄ«su yÄ• mesu tisso vijjÄ• uppÄ• detvÄ• sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ sattasattÄ• hÄ• ni vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• brahmuno yÄ• cito paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• dhanaÃ±ja pabbajitehi satasahassabhikkhÅ«hi parivuto tattha dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ• koá¹-dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``padumassa aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

nÄ• rado nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``so buddho cakkavattissa, jeá¹-á¹-ho dayitaoraso.

Ä• mukkamÄ• lÄ• bharaá¹‡o, uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``tatthÄ• si rukkho yasavipulo, abhirÅ«po brahmÄ• suci.

tamajjhappatvÄ• upanisÄ«di, mahÄ• soá¹‡assa heá¹-á¹-hato ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``tattha Ã±Ä• á¹‡avaruppajji, anantaá¹ƒ vajirÅ«pamaá¹ƒ.

tena vicini saá¹…khÄ• re, ukkujjamavakujjakaá¹ƒ ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``tattha \Be 219/ \Ee 184/ sabbakilesÄ• ni, asesamabhivÄ• hayi.

pÄ• puá¹‡Ä« kevalaá¹ƒ bodhiá¹ƒ, buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡e ca cuddasa ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na sambodhiá¹ƒ, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __cakkavattissÄ• _ti cakkavattiraÃ±Ã±o. __jeá¹-á¹-ho_ti pubbajo. __dayitaoraso_ti da oraso putto, dayito orasi gahetvÄ• lÄ• lito putto dayitaoraso nÄ• ma. __Ä• mukkamÄ• lÄ• b Ä• mukkamuttÄ• hÄ• rakeyÅ«rakaá¹-akamakuá¹-akuá¹‡á¸• alamÄ• lo. __uyyÄ• na_nti bahi nÄ• mÄ• rÄ• maá¹ƒ agamÄ• si.

__tatthÄ• si rukkho_ti tasmiá¹ƒ uyyÄ• ne eko kira rukkho rattasoá¹‡o nÄ• ma ahosi. so kira samavaá¹-á¹-akkhandho sampannavividhaviá¹-apasÄ• kho nÄ«labahalavipulapalÄ• so sanc devatÄ• dhivuá¹-á¹-hattÄ• vigatavividhavihagagaá¹‡asaÃ±cÄ• ro dharaá¹‡Ä«talatilakabhÅ« kurumÄ• no paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yadassano rattakusumasamalaá¹…katasabbasÄ• kho devar __yasavipulo_ti vipulayaso, sabbalokavikhyÄ• to attano sampattiyÄ• sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-o ``tatthÄ• si rukkho vipuloâ€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti. __brahÄ• _ti mahanto, devÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• ric __tamajjhappatvÄ• _ti taá¹ƒ soá¹‡arukkhaá¹ƒ patvÄ• adhipatvÄ• upagammÄ• ti attho. __h rukkhassa heá¹-á¹-hÄ• .

__Ã±Ä• á¹‡avaruppajjÄ«_ti Ã±Ä• á¹‡avaraá¹ƒ udapÄ• di. __ananta_nti appameyyaá¹ƒ app __vajirÅ«pama_nti vajirasadisaá¹ƒ tikhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ, aniccÄ• nupassanÄ• dikassa vipassanÄ• Ã adhivacanaá¹ƒ. __tena vicini saá¹…khÄ• re_ti tena vipassanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡ena rÅ«pÄ• dike sa __ukkujjamavakujjaka_nti saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ udayaÃ±ca vayaÃ±ca vicinÄ«ti attho. tasm sammasitvÄ• Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nacatutthajjhÄ• nato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya paÃ±casu khandhesu abhini samapaÃ±Ã±Ä• sa lakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni disvÄ• yÄ• va gotrabhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ vipassanaá¹ƒ vaá sakale buddhaguá¹‡e paá¹-ilabhÄ«ti attho.

__tatthÄ• _ti \Be 220/ \Ee 185/ soá¹‡arukkhe. __sabbakilesÄ• nÄ«_ti sabbepi kilese, liá¹…g
katvÄ• vuttaá¹ƒ. keci ``tattha sabbakilesehÄ«â€™â€™ ti paá¹-hanti. __asesa_nti niravases __abhivÄ• hayÄ«_ti maggodhinÄ• ca kilesodhinÄ• ca sabbe kilese abhivÄ• hayi, vinÄ• sar __bodhÄ«_ti arahattamaggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ. __buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡e ca cuddasÄ• _ti buddhaÃ± katamÄ• nÄ«ti? maggaphalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni aá¹-á¹-ha, cha asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• nÄ buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni nÄ• ma, __ca_-saddo sampiá¹‡á¸• anattho, tena aparÄ• nipi catasso catuvesÄ• rajjaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni catuyoniparicchedakaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni paÃ±cagatiparicchedaka dasabalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni sakale ca buddhaguá¹‡e pÄ• puá¹‡Ä«ti attho.

evaá¹ƒ buddhattaá¹ƒ patvÄ• brahmÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ adhivÄ• setvÄ• dhanaÃ±jayuyyÄ• ne satasahassabhikkhÅ« sammukhe katvÄ• dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ• koá¹-isatasah \Ne 212/ ahosi. tadÄ• kira mahÄ• doá¹‡anagare doá¹‡o nÄ• ma nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• gaá¹…gÄ• mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo mahÄ• janena sakkato garukato mÄ• nito pÅ«jito. so yasmiá¹ƒ visaye jar balikammaá¹ƒ na karonti, tesaá¹ƒ visayaá¹ƒ avassena vÄ• ativassena vÄ• sakkharavasser atha tÄ«radassano nÄ• rado satthÄ• doá¹‡assa nÄ• garÄ• jassa vinayane bahÅ«naá¹ƒ pÄ disvÄ• mahatÄ• bhikkhusaá¹…ghena parivÄ• rito tassa nÄ• garÄ• jassa nivÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• manussÄ• disvÄ• evamÄ• haá¹ƒsu --- ``bhagavÄ• , ettha ghoraviso uggatejo mahiddhiko n paá¹-ivasati, so taá¹ƒ mÄ• viheá¹-hessati na gantabbaâ€™â€™ nti. bhagavÄ• pana tesaá¹ viya agamÄ• si. gantvÄ• ca tatthassa nÄ• garÄ• jassa sakkÄ• ratthÄ• ya kate paramasurab nisÄ«di. mahÄ• jano kira ``nÄ• radassa ca munirÄ• jassa doá¹‡assa ca nÄ• garÄ• jassa dvi passissÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti sannipati.

atha ahinÄ• go muninÄ• gaá¹ƒ tathÄ• nisinnaá¹ƒ disvÄ• makkhaá¹ƒ asahamÄ• no sandiss padhÅ«pÄ• yi. dasabalopi padhÅ«pÄ• yi. puna nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• pajjali \Be 221/. munirÄ• jÄ• nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• dasabalassa sarÄ«rato nikkhantÄ• hi dhÅ«majÄ• lÄ• hi ativiya kilantasarÄ«r ``visavegena naá¹ƒ mÄ• ressÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti visaá¹ƒ vissajjesi. visassa vegena sakalopi taá¹ƒ pana visaá¹ƒ dasabalassa sarÄ«re ekalomampi kampetuá¹ƒ nÄ• sakkhi. atha so nÄ• g samaá¹‡assa pavattÄ«â€™â€™ ti olokento saradasamaye sÅ«riyaá¹ƒ viya candaá¹ƒ viya c chabbaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• hi buddharasmÄ«hi virocamÄ• naá¹ƒ vippasannavadanasobhaá¹ƒ bhagava mahiddhiko vatÄ• yaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡o, mayÄ• pana attano balaá¹ƒ ajÄ• nantena aparaddhaâ€ gavesÄ« bhagavantaá¹ƒyeva \Ee 186/ saraá¹‡amupagaÃ±chi. atha nÄ• rado munirÄ• jÄ• t tattha sannipatitassa mahÄ• janassa cittappasÄ• danatthaá¹ƒ yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ al navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni arahatte patiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu. so dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vutt

<7> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• doá¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• garÄ• jaá¹ƒ, vinayanto mahÄ• muni.

pÄ• á¹-iheraá¹ƒ tadÄ• kÄ• si, dassayanto sadevake ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• \Ne 213/ devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ, tamhi dhammappakÄ• sane.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni, tariá¹ƒsu sabbasaá¹ƒsayaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __pÄ• á¹-iheraá¹ƒ tadÄ• kÄ• sÄ«_ti akÄ• si yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyanti attho. ayamev devamanussÄ• vÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. tattha __devamanussÄ• na_nti sÄ• miatthe pa manussÄ• naÃ±ca navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• nÄ«ti attho. __tariá¹ƒsÅ«_ti atikkamiá¹ƒsu.

yadÄ• pana attano puttaá¹ƒ nanduttarakumÄ• raá¹ƒ ovadi, tadÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• koá¹-isahass
ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, ovadÄ« sakamatrajaá¹ƒ.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana thullakoá¹-á¹-hitanagare bhaddasÄ• lo ca vijitamitto ca dve brÄ• hmaá¹‡asahÄ gavesamÄ• nÄ• parisati nisinnaá¹ƒ ativisÄ• radaá¹ƒ nÄ• radasammÄ• sambuddhaá¹ƒ adda dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni \Be 222/ disvÄ• --- ``ayaá¹ƒ loke vivaá¹-acchado sa niá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ gantvÄ• bhagavati saÃ±jÄ• tasaddhÄ• saparivÄ• rÄ• bhagavato santike pab arahattaá¹ƒ pattesu bhagavÄ• bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassamajjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ u sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, nÄ• radassa mahesino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

yasmiá¹ƒ samaye nÄ• rado sammÄ• sambuddho Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game attano paá¹‡idhÄ• n kathesi, tadÄ• navutikoá¹-ibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ -

<11> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho buddhaguá¹‡aá¹ƒ, sanidÄ• naá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayi.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni, samiá¹ƒsu vimalÄ• tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ee 187/ __vimalÄ• _ti vigatamalÄ• , khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• ti attho.

yadÄ• \Ne 214/ pana mahÄ• doá¹‡anÄ• garÄ• jassa vinayane pasanno verocano nÄ• ma tigÄ• vutappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ nimminitvÄ• saparivÄ• ra nisÄ«dÄ• petvÄ• saparivÄ• ro sajanapade attano dÄ• naggadassanatthÄ• ya nimantetvÄ• tÄ• á¸·Ä• vacare vividhavesÄ• laá¹…kÄ• radhare sannipÄ• tetvÄ• mahÄ• sakkÄ• rena bha mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ adÄ• si. bhojanÄ• vasÄ• ne bhagavÄ• mahÄ• gaá¹…gaá¹ƒ otÄ• rento vi bhattÄ• numodane dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pasannÄ• naá¹ƒ ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitÄ• asÄ«tibhikkhusatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to aho

<12> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• verocano nÄ• go, dÄ• naá¹ƒ dadÄ• ti satthuno.

tadÄ• samiá¹ƒsu jinaputtÄ• , asÄ«tisatasahassiyoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __asÄ«tisatasahassiyo_ti satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ asÄ«tiyo.

tadÄ• \Be 223/ amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto isipabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbajitvÄ• himavantapasse assar abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su aá¹-á¹-hasu samÄ• pattÄ«su ca ciá¹‡á¹‡avasÄ« hutvÄ• paá¹-ivasati. atha t nÄ• rado bhagavÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• arahantakoá¹-Ä«hi dasahi ca anÄ• gÄ• miphalaá¹-á¹-hehi u taá¹ƒ assamapadaá¹ƒ agamÄ• si. tÄ• paso bhagavantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• va pamuditahadayo sapa nivÄ• satthÄ• ya assamaá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• sakalarattiá¹ƒ satthuguá¹‡aá¹ƒ kittetvÄ• bhagava punadivase uttarakuruá¹ƒ gantvÄ• tato Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• saparivÄ• rassa buddhas evaá¹ƒ sattÄ• haá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• himavantato anagghaá¹ƒ lohitacandanaá¹ƒ Ä lohitacandanena bhagavantaá¹ƒ pÅ«jesi. tadÄ• naá¹ƒ dasabalo amaranaraparivuto dhamm ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<13> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo uggatÄ• pano.

antalikkhacaro Ä• siá¹ƒ, paÃ±cÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``tadÄ• pÄ• haá¹ƒ asamasamaá¹ƒ, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ saparijjanaá¹ƒ.

annapÄ• nena tappetvÄ• , candanenÄ• bhipÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``sopi \Ne 215/ maá¹ƒ tadÄ• byÄ• kÄ• si, nÄ• rado lokanÄ• yako.

aparimeyyito kappe, buddho loke bhavissati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi \Ee 188/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo hÄ• setva mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ.

adhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ vataá¹ƒ uggaá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tadÄ• pÄ• ha_nti tadÄ• pi ahaá¹ƒ. __asamasama_nti asamÄ• nÄ• ma atÄ«tÄ• bu tulyaá¹ƒ asamasamaá¹ƒ. atha vÄ• asamÄ• visamÄ• , samÄ• avisamÄ• sÄ• dhavo, tesu a ``asamasamasamoâ€™â€™ ti vattabbe ekassa samasaddassa lopaá¹ƒ katvÄ• vuttanti ved asamÄ• visamasamanti attho. __saparijjana_nti saupÄ• sakajanaá¹ƒ. ``sopi maá¹ƒ tadÄ• n byÄ• kÄ• si cakkhumÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho \Be 224/, so uttÄ• natthova. __bhiyyo hÄ• s hÄ• setvÄ• tosetvÄ• hadayaá¹ƒ. __adhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ vataá¹ƒ ugga_nti uggaá¹ƒ vataá¹ƒ ad ``uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho.

tassa pana bhagavato nÄ• radassa dhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, sudevo nÄ• nÄ• ma mÄ• tÄ• , bhaddasÄ• lo ca jitamitto ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , vÄ• seá¹-á¹-ho nÄ• ma phaggunÄ« ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , mahÄ• soá¹‡arukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ« sarÄ«rappabhÄ• niccaá¹ƒ yojanaá¹ƒ pharati, navutivassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu, tassa pana viji aggamahesÄ«, nanduttarakumÄ• ro nÄ• massa putto ahosi, vijito vijitÄ• vÄ« vijitÄ• bhirÄ• m ahesuá¹ƒ. so navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. so padasÄ• va mahÄ• bhinikkh
vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<18> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ dhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma, sudevo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

anomÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , nÄ• radassa mahesino ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``bhaddasÄ• lo jitamitto, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

vÄ• seá¹-á¹-ho nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, nÄ• radassa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``uttarÄ• \Ne 216/ phaggunÄ« ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• soá¹‡oti vuccati ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tiratanÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``tassa byÄ• mappabhÄ• kÄ• yÄ• , niddhÄ• vati disodisaá¹ƒ.

nirantaraá¹ƒ divÄ• rattiá¹ƒ, yojanaá¹ƒ pharate sadÄ• ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``na \Ee 189/ keci tena samayena, samantÄ• yojane janÄ• .

ukkÄ• padÄ«pe ujjÄ• lenti, buddharaá¹ƒsÄ«hi otthaá¹-Ä• ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Be 225/ uá¸·Å«hi gaganaá¹ƒ, vicittaá¹ƒ upasobhati.

tatheva sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ tassa, arahantehi sobhati ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ taraá¹‡Ä• ya, sesake paá¹-ipannake.

dhammasetuá¹ƒ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• , nibbuto so narÄ• sabho ||

<32> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho asamasamo, tepi khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• atulatejÄ• .

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so_ti vividharatanavicittakaÃ±canamayagghikasadisarÅ virocatÄ«_ti tassa pabhÄ• ya dasasahassÄ«pi lokadhÄ• tu virocati, virÄ• jatÄ«ti attho. tame bhagavÄ• __ ``tassa byÄ• mappabhÄ• kÄ• yÄ• , niddhÄ• vati disodisaâ€™â€™ _nti Ä• ha kÄ• yÄ• _ti byÄ• mappabhÄ• viyÄ• ti byÄ• mappabhÄ• , amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagavato byÄ• ma __na kecÄ«_ti ettha __na_-kÄ• ro paá¹-isedhattho, tassa ujjÄ• lenti-saddena sambandho d \Ne 217/ daá¹‡á¸• adÄ«pikÄ• . ukkÄ• vÄ• padÄ«pe vÄ• kecipi janÄ• __na ujjÄ• lenti_ na buddhasarÄ«rappabhÄ• ya obhÄ• sitattÄ• . __buddharaá¹ƒsÄ«hÄ«_ti buddharasmÄ«hi. __

__uá¸·Å«hÄ«_ti tÄ• rÄ• hi, yathÄ• tÄ• rÄ• hi gaganatalaá¹ƒ vicittaá¹ƒ sobhati, tatheva tass arahantehi vicittaá¹ƒ upasobhatÄ«ti attho. __saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ taraá¹‡Ä• yÄ• _ti saá¹ƒsÄ• taraá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ. __sesake paá¹-ipannake_ti arahante á¹-hapetvÄ• kalyÄ• á¹‡aputhujjanehi sekkhapuggaleti attho. __dhammasetu_nti maggasetuá¹ƒ, sesapuggale saá¹ƒsÄ• rato tÄ• r á¹-hapetvÄ• katasabbakicco hutvÄ• parinibbÄ• yÄ«ti attho. sesaá¹ƒ heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttattÄ•

uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

nÄ• radabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito navamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

12. padumuttarabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• nÄ• radabuddhassa \Be 226/ \Ne 218/ \Ee 190/ sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ navutivassasahassÄ• ni pavat kappo vinassittha. tato paraá¹ƒ kappÄ• naá¹ƒ asaá¹…khyeyyaá¹ƒ buddhÄ• loke na uppajjiá vigatabuddhÄ• loko ahosi. tato kappesu ca asaá¹…khyeyyesu vÄ«tivattesu ito kappasatasa kappe eko vijitamÄ• ro ohitabhÄ• ro merusÄ• ro asaá¹ƒsÄ• ro sattasÄ• ro sabbalokuttaro __ loke udapÄ• di. sopi pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• haá¹ƒsava sabbajanÄ• nandakarassÄ• nandassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• uditoditakule jÄ• t kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. sÄ• devatÄ• hi katÄ• rakkhÄ• dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ haá¹ƒsavatuyyÄ• ne padumuttarakumÄ• raá¹ƒ vijÄ• yi. paá¹-isandhiyaÃ±cassa jÄ• tiyaÃ±ca vuttappakÄ• rÄ• ni pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

tassa kira jÄ• tiyaá¹ƒ padumavassaá¹ƒ vassi. tenassa nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase Ã±Ä• takÄ• tveva nÄ• maá¹ƒ akaá¹ƒsu. so dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi.
naravÄ• hana-yasavÄ• hana-vasavattinÄ• makÄ• tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ utÅ«naá¹ƒ anucchavikÄ• ta vasudattÄ• devippamukhÄ• naá¹ƒ itthÄ«naá¹ƒ satasahassÄ• ni vÄ«satisahassÄ• ni ca pacc vasudattÄ• ya deviyÄ• putte sabbaguá¹‡Ä• nuttare uttarakumÄ• re nÄ• ma uppanne cattÄ• ``mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintesi. tassa cintitamatteva vasa kumbhakÄ• racakkaá¹ƒ viya Ä• kÄ• saá¹ƒ abbhuggantvÄ• devavimÄ• namiva puá¹‡á¹‡aca bodhirukkhaá¹ƒ majjhekaronto sobhitabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ya Ä• gatapÄ• sÄ• do v mahÄ• puriso kira tato pÄ• sÄ• dato otaritvÄ• arahattaddhajabhÅ«tÄ• ni kÄ• sÄ• yÄ• ni va pÄ• rupitvÄ• tattheva pabbaji. pÄ• sÄ• do panÄ• gantvÄ• sakaá¹-á¹-hÄ• neyeva aá¹-á¹-hÄ parisÄ• ya á¹-hapetvÄ• itthiyo sabbe pabbajiá¹ƒsu. mahÄ• puriso tehi saha sattÄ• haá¹ƒ pa visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya ujjeninigame \Be 227/ rucÄ• nandaseá¹-á¹-hidhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye sumittÄ• jÄ«vaken tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• salalabodhiá¹ƒ upagantvÄ• taá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hattiá¹ƒsahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya samÄ• raá¹ƒ mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• paá¹-ha anussaritvÄ• dutiye yÄ• me dibbacakkhuá¹ƒ visodhetvÄ• tatiye yÄ• me paccayÄ• kÄ• raá¹ Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nacatutthajjhÄ• nato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya paÃ±casu khandhesu abhinivisitvÄ• udaya lakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni disvÄ• yÄ• va gotrabhuÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ vipassanaá¹ƒ vaá¸• á¸• hetvÄ• ariyan 191/ paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• ciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• nesi. tadÄ• kira dasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·ab alaá¹…karontaá¹ƒ viya padumavassaá¹ƒ vassi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``nÄ• radassa aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

padumuttaro nÄ• ma jino, akkhobho sÄ• garÅ«pamo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``maá¹‡á¸• akappo vÄ• so Ä• si, yamhi buddho ajÄ• yatha.

ussannakusalÄ• janatÄ• , tamhi kappe ajÄ• yathÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __sÄ• garÅ«pamo_ti sÄ• garasadisagambhÄ«rabhÄ• vo. __maá¹‡á¸• akappo vÄ• s dve sammÄ• sambuddhÄ• uppajjanti, ayaá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• akappo nÄ• ma. duvidho hi kappo s cÄ• ti. tattha suÃ±Ã±akappe buddhapaccekabuddhacakkavattino na uppajjanti. tasmÄ• guá __ ``suÃ±Ã±akappoâ€™â€™ _ti vuccati.

asuÃ±Ã±akappo paÃ±cavidho --- sÄ• rakappo maá¹‡á¸• akappo varakappo sÄ• ramaá¹‡á¸• guá¹‡asÄ• rarahite kappe guá¹‡asÄ• ruppÄ• dakassa guá¹‡asÄ• rajananassa ekassa samm ``sÄ• rakappoâ€™â€™ _ti vuccati. yasmiá¹ƒ pana kappe dve lokanÄ• yakÄ• uppajjanti, so _ti vuccati. yasmiá¹ƒ kappe tayo buddhÄ• uppajjanti, tesu paá¹-hamo dutiyaá¹ƒ byÄ• karoti tattha manussÄ• pamuditahadayÄ• attanÄ• patthitapaá¹‡idhÄ• navasena varayanti. tasm vuccati. yattha pana kappe \Be 228/ cattÄ• ro buddhÄ• uppajjanti, so purimakappato visiá¹-sÄ• ratarattÄ• __ ``sÄ• ramaá¹‡á¸• akappoâ€™â€™ _ti vuccati. yasmiá¹ƒ kappe paÃ±ca b ``bhaddakappoâ€™â€™ ti vuccati. so pana atidullabho. tasmiá¹ƒ pana kappe yebhuyyena s kalyÄ• á¹‡asukhabahulÄ• honti. yebhuyyena tihetukÄ• kilesakkhayaá¹ƒ karonti, duhetukÄ• honti, ahetukÄ• hetuá¹ƒ paá¹-ilabhanti. tasmÄ• so kappo ``bhaddakappoâ€™â€™ ti vucca ``asuÃ±Ã±akappo paÃ±cavidhoâ€™â€™ tiÄ• di. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ porÄ• á¹‡ehi ---

``eko buddho sÄ• rakappe, maá¹‡á¸• akappe jinÄ• duve.

varakappe tayo buddhÄ• , sÄ• ramaá¹‡á¸• e caturo buddhÄ• .

paÃ±ca buddhÄ• bhaddakappe, tato natthÄ• dhikÄ• jinÄ• â€™â€™ ti || yasmiá¹ƒ pana kappe padumuttaradasabalo uppajji, so sÄ• rakappopi samÄ• no guá¹‡asan maá¹‡á¸• akappasadisattÄ• __ ``maá¹‡á¸• akappoâ€™â€™ _ti vutto. opammatthe __vÄ• _ __ussannakusalÄ• _ti upacitapuÃ±Ã±Ä• . __janatÄ• _ti janasamÅ«ho.

padumuttaro pana parisuttaro bhagavÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ bodhipallaá¹…ke vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• - nikkhipissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti dakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ \Ee 192/ pÄ• daá¹ƒ abhinÄ«hari. atha pathaviá vimalakomalakesarakaá¹‡á¹‡ikÄ• ni jalajÄ• malÄ• vikalavipulapalÄ• sÄ• ni thalajÄ• ni jalajÄ tesaá¹ƒ kira dhurapattÄ• ni navutihatthÄ• ni kesarÄ• ni tiá¹ƒsahatthÄ• ni kaá¹‡á¹‡ikÄ• dvÄ• navaghaá¹-appamÄ• á¹‡Ä• reá¹‡avo ahesuá¹ƒ. satthÄ• pana ubbedhato aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹ ubhinnaá¹ƒ bÄ• hÄ• namantaraá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahatthaá¹ƒ nalÄ• á¹-aá¹ƒ paÃ±cahatthaá¹ ekÄ• dasahatthÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tassa ekÄ• dasahatthena pÄ• dena dvÄ• dasahatthÄ• ya kaá navaghaá¹-appamÄ• á¹‡Ä• reá¹‡avo uá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthaá¹ƒ sa manosilÄ• cuá¹‡á¹‡avicuá¹‡á¹‡itaá¹ƒ viya katvÄ• paccottharanti. tadupÄ• dÄ• ya satthÄ• p paÃ±Ã±Ä• yitthÄ• ti __saá¹ƒyuttabhÄ• á¹‡akÄ• _ vadanti.

atha sabbalokuttaro padumuttaro bhagavÄ• brahmÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• dha satte olokento mithilanagare devalaá¹ƒ \Be 229/ sujÄ• taÃ±cÄ• ti dve rÄ• japutte upanissaya taá¹…khaá¹‡aÃ±Ã±eva anilapathena gantvÄ• mithiluyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• uyyÄ• napÄ• lena c pakkosÄ• pesi. tepi ca ``amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ pitucchÄ• putto padumuttarakumÄ• ro pabbajitvÄ• sa pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ sampatto, handa naá¹ƒ mayaá¹ƒ dassanÄ• ya upa saparivÄ• rÄ• padumuttaraá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• parivÄ• retvÄ• nisÄ«di parivuto tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡aparivuto puá¹‡á¹‡acando viya virocamÄ• no tattha dhammacakkaá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``padumuttarassa \Ne 221/ bhagavato, paá¹-hame dhammadesane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

athÄ• parena samayena saradatÄ• pasasamÄ• game mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ nirayasantÄ• pena sa sattatiá¹ƒsasatasahassasaá¹…khe sattakÄ• ye dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi, so dutiyo dham
vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``tato parampi vassante, tappayante ca pÄ• á¹‡ino.

sattattiá¹ƒsasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana Ä• nandamahÄ• rÄ• jÄ• vÄ«satiyÄ• purisasahassehi vÄ«satiyÄ• amaccehi c sammÄ• sambuddhassa santike mithilanagare pÄ• turahosi. padumuttaro ca bhagavÄ• te s pabbÄ• jetvÄ• tehi parivuto gantvÄ• pitusaá¹…gahaá¹ƒ kurumÄ• no \Ee 193/ haá¹ƒsavatiy tattha so amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• viya kapilapure gaganatale ratanacaá¹…kame caá¹…kam kathesi, tadÄ• paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ tatiyo dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vu

<5> á¹• 21 ``yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, Ä• nandaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami.

pitusantikaá¹ƒ upagantvÄ• , Ä• hanÄ« amatadundubhiá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``Ä• hate \Be 230/ amatabherimhi, vassante dhammavuá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• .

paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __Ä• nandaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamÄ«_ti pitaraá¹ƒ Ä• nandarÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ sandhÄ• ya vut __Ä• hate_ti Ä• hatÄ• ya. __amatabherimhÄ«_ti amatabheriyÄ• , liá¹…gavipallÄ• so daá¹-á tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa Ä• sevitÄ• yÄ• ti attho. __vassante dhammavuá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• _ti dhammav idÄ• ni abhisamayakaraá¹‡Å«pÄ• yaá¹ƒ dassento ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``ovÄ• dako viÃ±Ã±Ä• pako, tÄ• rako sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

desanÄ• kusalo buddho, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• ha.

tattha \Ne 222/ __ovÄ• dako_ti saraá¹‡asÄ«ladhutaá¹…gasamÄ• dÄ• naguá¹‡Ä• nisaá¹ƒsa ovÄ• dako. __viÃ±Ã±Ä• pako_ti catusaccaá¹ƒ viÃ±Ã±Ä• petÄ«ti viÃ±Ã±Ä• pako, bodhako. _

yadÄ• pana satthÄ• mithilanagare mithiluyyÄ• ne koá¹-isatasahassabhikkhugaá¹‡amajjhe puá¹‡á¹‡acandasadisavadano pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. ten

<8> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, padumuttarassa satthuno.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• vebhÄ• rapabbatakÅ«á¹-e vassÄ• vÄ• saá¹ƒ vasitvÄ• pabbatasan mahÄ• janassa dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni ehibhikkhubhÄ• vena pabbÄ pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho asamasamo, vasi vebhÄ• rapabbate.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti || puna \Ee 194/ bhagavati guá¹‡avati tilokanÄ• the mahÄ• janassa bandhanamokkhaá¹ƒ kur caramÄ• ne asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``puna cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ pakkante, gÄ• manigamaraá¹-á¹-hato.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Be 231/ __gÄ• manigamaraá¹-á¹-hato_ti gÄ• manigamaraá¹-á¹-hehi. ayameva vÄ• gÄ• manigamaraá¹-á¹-hehi nikkhamitvÄ• pabbajitÄ• nanti attho.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto anekadhanakoá¹-iko jaá¹-ilo nÄ• ma mahÄ• raá¹-á¹-hiko hu saá¹…ghassa sacÄ«varaá¹ƒ varadÄ• namadÄ• si. sopi taá¹ƒ bhattÄ• numodanÄ• vasÄ• ne kappasatasahassamatthake gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. te <11> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ \Ne 223/ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo nÄ• ma raá¹-á¹-hiko.

sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, sabhattaá¹ƒ dussamadÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

satasahasse ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 22 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ.

akÄ• siá¹ƒ uggadaá¸·haá¹ƒ dhitiá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…gha_nti buddhappamukhassa saá¹…ghassa, sÄ• __sabhattaá¹ƒ dussamadÄ• saha_nti sacÄ«varaá¹ƒ bhattaá¹ƒ adÄ• siá¹ƒ ahanti attho. __ug atidaá¸·haá¹ƒ. __dhiti_nti vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ akÄ• sinti attho.

padumuttarassa pana bhagavato kÄ• le titthiyÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• hesuá¹ƒ. sabbe devamanuss saraá¹‡amagamaá¹ƒsu. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<15> á¹• 21 ``byÄ• hatÄ• titthiyÄ• sabbe, vimanÄ• dummanÄ• tadÄ• .

na tesaá¹ƒ keci paricaranti, raá¹-á¹-hato nicchubhanti te ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``sabbe \Ee 195/ tattha samÄ• gantvÄ• , upagaÃ±chuá¹ƒ buddhasantike.

tuvaá¹ƒ nÄ• tho mahÄ• vÄ«ra, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ hohi cakkhuma ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``anukampako kÄ• ruá¹‡iko, hitesÄ« sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

sampatte titthiye sabbe, paÃ±casÄ«le patiá¹-á¹-hahi ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ \Be 232/ nirÄ• kulaá¹ƒ Ä• si, suÃ±Ã±akaá¹ƒ titthiyehi taá¹ƒ.

vicittaá¹ƒ arahantehi, vasÄ«bhÅ«tehi tÄ• dihÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ne 224/ __byÄ• hatÄ• _ti vihatamÄ• nadappÄ• . __titthiyÄ• _ti ettha titthaá¹ƒ veditab veditabbo, titthiyÄ• veditabbÄ• . tattha sassatÄ• didiá¹-á¹-hivasena taranti etthÄ• ti __titthaá tassÄ• laddhiyÄ• uppÄ• dako __titthakaro, _ titthe bhavÄ• __titthiyÄ• _ti. padumuttarassa titthiyÄ• nÄ• hesuá¹ƒ. ye pana santi, tepi Ä«disÄ• ahesunti dassanatthaá¹ƒ ``byÄ• hatÄ• t vuttanti veditabbaá¹ƒ. __vimanÄ• _ti virÅ«pamÄ• nasÄ• . __dummanÄ• _ti tasseva vevacan paricarantÄ«_ti tesaá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±atitthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ kecipi purisÄ• parikammaá¹ƒ na karonti, na sakkaronti, na garuá¹ƒ karonti, na mÄ• nenti, na pÅ«jenti, na Ä• sanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahanti, na karontÄ«ti attho. __raá¹-á¹-hato_ti sakalaraá¹-á¹-hatopi. __nicchubhantÄ«_ti nÄ«haranti, uss nivÄ• saá¹ƒ na dentÄ«ti attho. __te_ti titthiyÄ• .

__upagaÃ±chuá¹ƒ buddhasantike_ti evaá¹ƒ tehi raá¹-á¹-havÄ• sÄ«hi manussehi ussÄ• diya aÃ±Ã±atitthiyÄ• samÄ• gantvÄ• padumuttaradasabalameva saraá¹‡amagamaá¹ƒsu. ``tvaa gati parÄ• yanaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aâ€™â€™ nti evaá¹ƒ vatvÄ• saraá¹‡amagamaá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. an karuá¹‡Ä• ya caratÄ«ti __kÄ• ruá¹‡iko_. __sampatte_ti samÄ• gate saraá¹‡amupagate titth patiá¹-á¹-hahÄ«_ti paÃ±casu sÄ«lesu patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesÄ«ti attho. __nirÄ• kula_nti anÄ• kula laddhikehi asammissanti attho. __suÃ±Ã±aka_nti suÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ rittaá¹ƒ tehi titthiyehi. __ta_nt sÄ• sananti vacanaseso daá¹-á¹-habbo. __vicitta_nti vicittavicittaá¹ƒ. __vasÄ«bhÅ«tehÄ«_ti tassa \Ee 196/ pana padumuttarassa bhagavato haá¹ƒsavatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. pi khattiyo, mÄ• tÄ• sujÄ• tÄ• nÄ• ma devÄ«, devalo ca sujÄ• to ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sur amitÄ• ca asamÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , salalarukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡a ahosi, sarÄ«rappabhÄ• cassa samantÄ• dvÄ• dasa yojanÄ• ni \Be 233/ gaá¹‡hi, vassasata vasudattÄ• nÄ• ma aggamahesÄ«, uttaro nÄ• ma putto ahosi. padumuttaro pana bhagavÄ kira parinibbuto. dhÄ• tuyo panassa na vikiriá¹ƒsu. sakalajambudÄ«pavÄ• sino manussÄ• s dvÄ• dasayojanubbedhaá¹ƒ sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ cetiyamakaá¹ƒsu. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<19> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ haá¹ƒsavatÄ« nÄ• ma, Ä• nando nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sujÄ• tÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , padumuttarassa satthuno ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``devalo \Ne 225/ ca sujÄ• to ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sumano nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, padumuttarassa mahesino ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``amitÄ• ca asamÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, salaloti pavuccati ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``kuá¹-á¹-Ä• kavÄ• á¹-Ä• bhittÄ« ca, rukkhÄ• nagasiluccayÄ• .

na tassÄ• varaá¹‡aá¹ƒ atthi, samantÄ• dvÄ• dasayojane ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``vassasatasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``santÄ• retvÄ• bahujanaá¹ƒ, chinditvÄ• sabbasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vakoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __nagasiluccayÄ• _ti nagasaá¹…khÄ• tÄ• siluccayÄ• . __Ä• varaá¹‡a_nti paá¹-icchA __dvÄ• dasayojane_ti samantato dvÄ• dasayojane á¹-hÄ• ne bhagavato sarÄ«rappabhÄ• p tiá¹-á¹-hatÄ«ti attho. sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya pÄ• ramipÅ«raá¹‡Ä• dipunappunÄ• gatamatthaá¹ƒ saá¹…khipitvÄ• vise yadi \Ee 197/ pana vuttameva punappunaá¹ƒ vakkhÄ• ma, kadÄ• antaá¹ƒ gamissati ayaá¹ƒ padumuttarabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito dasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

13. sumedhabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• padumuttare \Be 234/ \Ne 226/ pana sammÄ• sambuddhe parinibbute sÄ• sanepissa antar buddhÄ• nuppajjiá¹ƒsu, buddhasuÃ±Ã±Ä• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya tiá¹ƒsakappasah ekasmiá¹ƒ kappe __sumedho sujÄ• to_ cÄ• ti dve sammÄ• sambuddhÄ• nibbattiá¹ƒsu. tatt nÄ• ma bodhisatto pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• sudassanar raÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• sudattÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gahe accayena sudassanuyyÄ• ne taruá¹‡adivasakaro viya saliladharavivaragato mÄ• tukucchito navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. tassa kira sucandana-kaÃ±cana-sirivaá¸• á¸• pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. sumanamahÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni aá¹-á¹-hacattÄ• lÄ«saitthisahass ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• sumanadeviyÄ• punabbasumitte nÄ• ma putte jÄ• te hatthiy mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. manussÄ• naÃ±ca koá¹-isatamanupabbaj aá¸• á¸• hamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya nakulaniga dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• met dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• nÄ«pabodhimÅ«le vÄ«satihatthavitthataá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• samÄ• raá¹ƒ mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• abhisambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• `` pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hame sattÄ• he brahmuno dhammadesanÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ sampaá attano kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• tikaá¹ƒ saraá¹‡akumÄ• raÃ±ca sabbakÄ• mikumÄ• raÃ±ca attanÄ• bhikkhÅ«naÃ±ca koá¹-isataá¹ƒ catusaccadhammapaá¹-ivedhasamatthe \Ee 198/ disvÄ• Ä• sudassananagarasamÄ«pe sudassanuyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• uyyÄ• napÄ• lena attano bhÄ• tik parivÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe __dhammacakkaá¹ƒ_ pavattesi. tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abhisamayo. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``padumuttarassa \Be 235/ \Ne 227/ aparena, sumedho nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

durÄ• sado uggatejo, sabbalokuttamo muni ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``pasannanetto sumukho, brahÄ• uju patÄ• pavÄ• .

hitesÄ« sabbasattÄ• naá¹ƒ, bahÅ« mocesi bandhanÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , kevalaá¹ƒ bodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

sudassanamhi nagare, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• bhisamayÄ• tÄ«á¹‡i, ahesuá¹ƒ dhammadesane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __uggatejo_ti uggatatejo. __pasannanetto_ti suá¹-á¹-hu pasannanayano, dhovitvÄ• á¹-hapitamaá¹‡iguá¸·ikÄ• viya pasannÄ• ni nettÄ• ni honti. tasmÄ• so ``pasannanettoâ€™ mudusiniddhanÄ«lavimalasukhumapakhumÄ• citasuppasannanayanoti attho. ``suppasanna vattuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-ati. __sumukho_ti paripuá¹‡á¹‡asaradasamayacandasadisavadano. __brah aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tihatthappamÄ• á¹‡asarÄ«rattÄ• brahÄ• mahanto, aÃ±Ã±ehi asÄ• dhÄ• raá __ujÅ«_ti brahmujugatto ujumeva uggatasarÄ«ro devanagare samussitasuvaá¹‡á¹‡atoraá¹‡ attho. __patÄ• pavÄ• _ti vijjotamÄ• nasarÄ«ro. __hitesÄ«_ti hitagavesÄ«. __abhisamayÄ• tayo, liá¹…gavipallÄ• so katoti.

yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• kumbhakaá¹‡á¹‡asadisÄ• nubhÄ• vaá¹ƒ kumbhakaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• mahÄ• aá¹-avimukhe sandissamÄ• naghorasarÄ«raá¹ƒ vattaniaá¹-avisaÃ±cÄ• raá¹ƒ pacchi paccÅ«sasamaye mahÄ• karuá¹‡Ä• samÄ• pattiá¹ƒ samÄ• pajjitvÄ• tato vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya lo asahÄ• yo tassa yakkhassa bhavanaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• anto pavisitvÄ• paÃ±Ã±atte sirisayane ni makkhaá¹ƒ asahamÄ• no daá¹‡á¸• Ä• hato ghoraviso Ä• siviso viya saá¹ƒkuddho dasabala attabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ ghorataraá¹ƒ katvÄ• pabbatasadisaá¹ƒ \Ee 199/ sÄ«saá¹ƒ katvÄ• sÅ«riyan 236/ akkhÄ«ni nimminitvÄ• naá¹…galasÄ«sasadisÄ• tidÄ«ghavipulatikhiá¹‡adÄ• á¹-hÄ• yo olambanÄ«lavipulavisamodaro tÄ• lakkhandhasadisabÄ• hucipiá¹-akavirÅ«pavaá¹…kanÄ• pabbatabilasadisavipularattamukho thÅ«lapiá¹…galakharapharusakeso atibhayÄ• nakadass sumedhassa bhagavato \Ne 228/ purato á¹-hatvÄ• padhÅ«pÄ• yanto pajjalanto pÄ• sÄ• á¹‡apabbataggijÄ• la-salila-kaddama-chÄ• rikÄ• yudhaá¹…gÄ• ra-vÄ• lukappakÄ• vassavuá¹-á¹-hiyo_ vassetvÄ• pi bhagavato lomaggamattampi cÄ• letuá¹ƒ asakkonto ``bhag pucchitvÄ• mÄ• ressÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• á¸·avako viya paÃ±haá¹ƒ pucchi. ayaá¹ƒ bhaga yakkhaá¹ƒ vinayamupanesi. tato dutiyadivase kirassa raá¹-á¹-havÄ• sino manussÄ• sakaá¹ rÄ• jakumÄ• raá¹ƒ Ä• haritvÄ• yakkhassa adaá¹ƒsu. atha yakkho rÄ• jakumÄ• raá¹ƒ buddh á¹-hitamanussÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamiá¹ƒsu. tadÄ• tasmiá¹ƒ samÄ• game dasab dhammaá¹ƒ desento. navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹‡Ä«naá¹ƒ dhammacakkhuá¹ƒ uppÄ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ kumbhakaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, yakkhaá¹ƒ so damayÄ« jino.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana upakÄ• rinagare sirinandanuyyÄ• ne cattÄ• ri saccÄ• ni pakÄ• sayi, tadÄ• as tatiyo dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ amitayaso, catusaccaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayi.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

sumedhassÄ• pi bhagavato tayo sÄ• vakasannipÄ• tÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. paá¹-hamasannipÄ• te s koá¹-isatakhÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. puna devakÅ«á¹-e pabbate kathinatthate dutiye navu bhagavati cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• ne asÄ«tikoá¹-iyo ahesuá¹ƒ. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sumedhassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``sudassanaá¹ƒ \Be 237/ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, upagaÃ±chi jino yadÄ• .

tadÄ• khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• bhikkhÅ«, samiá¹ƒsu satakoá¹-iyo ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ devakÅ«á¹-e, bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ kathinatthate.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ \Ne 229/ \Ee 200/ dasabalo, yadÄ• carati cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto uttaro nÄ• ma sabbajanuttaro mÄ• á¹‡avo hutvÄ• nidahitv asÄ«tikoá¹-idhanaá¹ƒ vissajjetvÄ• buddhappamukhassa saá¹…ghassa mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ d dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• saraá¹‡esu patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. sopi naá¹ƒ satthÄ• karonto --- ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vu

<11> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, uttaro nÄ• ma mÄ• á¹‡avo.

asÄ«tikoá¹-iyo mayhaá¹ƒ, ghare sannicitaá¹ƒ dhanaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``kevalaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, sasaá¹…ghe lokanÄ• yake.

saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassÅ«pagaÃ±chiá¹ƒ, pabbajjaÃ±cÄ• bhirocayiá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, karonto anumodanaá¹ƒ.

tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhi, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒâ€™â€ byÄ• karaá¹‡agÄ• thÄ• vitthÄ• retabbÄ• .

<15> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaá¹ƒ cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tatthappamatto viharanto, nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha \Be 238/ \Ne 230/ __sannicita_nti nidahitaá¹ƒ nidhÄ• navasena. __kevala_nti sakalan __sabba_nti asesato datvÄ• . __sasaá¹…ghe_ti sasaá¹…ghassa. __tassÅ«pagaÃ±chi_nti ta upayogatthe sÄ• mivacanaá¹ƒ. __abhirocayi_nti pabbajiá¹ƒ. __tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhÄ«_ atikkantesÅ«ti attho.

tassa \Ee 201/ pana sumedhassa bhagavato sudassanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, suda mÄ• tÄ• sudattÄ• nÄ• ma, saraá¹‡o ca sabbakÄ• mo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sÄ• garo nÄ surÄ• mÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , mahÄ• nÄ«parukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«t navutivassasahassÄ• ni, navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi, sumanÄ• nÄ• mas nÄ• ma putto, hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami. sesaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• su dissati. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<18> á¹• 21 ``sudassanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sudatto nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sudattÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sumedhassa mahesino ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``saraá¹‡o sabbakÄ• mo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sÄ• garo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sumedhassa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``rÄ• mÄ• ceva surÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• nÄ«poti vuccati ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tiratanÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , cando tÄ• ragaá¹‡e yathÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``cakkavattimaá¹‡Ä« nÄ• ma, yathÄ• tapati yojanaá¹ƒ.

tatheva tassa ratanaá¹ƒ, samantÄ• pharati yojanaá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``tevijjachaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±ehi \Ne 231/, balappattehi tÄ• dihi.

samÄ• kulamidaá¹ƒ Ä• si, arahantehi sÄ• dhuhi ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``tepi sabbe amitayasÄ• , vippamuttÄ• nirÅ«padhÄ«.

Ã±Ä• á¹‡Ä• lokaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• , nibbutÄ• te mahÄ• yasÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Be 239/ __cando tÄ• ragaá¹‡e yathÄ• _ti yathÄ• nÄ• ma gagane paripuá¹‡á¹‡acan pakÄ• seti, evameva sabbÄ• pi disÄ• obhÄ• setÄ«ti attho. keci ``cando pannaraso yathÄ• â uttÄ• natthova.

__cakkavattimaá¹‡Ä« nÄ• mÄ• _ti yathÄ• nÄ• ma cakkavattiraÃ±Ã±o maá¹‡iratanaá¹ƒ cat sakaá¹-anÄ• bhisamapariá¹‡Ä• haá¹ƒ caturÄ• sÄ«timaá¹‡isahassaparivÄ• raá¹ƒ tÄ• rÄ• ga saradasamayaparipuá¹‡á¹‡arajanikarassa sirisamudayasobhaá¹ƒ avhayantamiva vepullapa paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yadassanaá¹ƒ \Ee 202/ maá¹‡iratanamÄ• gacchati, tassevaá¹ƒ Ä• gacch yojanappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ okÄ• saá¹ƒ Ä• bhÄ• pharati, evameva tassa sumedhassÄ• pi bhag samantato yojanaá¹ƒ pharatÄ«ti attho.

__tevijjachaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±ehÄ«_ti tevijjehi chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±ehi cÄ• ti attho. __balappattehÄ«_ __tÄ• dihÄ«_ti tÄ• dibhÄ• vappattehi. __samÄ• kula_nti saá¹…kiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ ekakÄ• sÄ• vap sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ sandhÄ• yÄ• ha, mahÄ«talaá¹ƒ vÄ• . __amitayasÄ• _ti amitaparivÄ• rÄ• , atula __nirÅ«padhÄ«_ti caturÅ«padhivirahitÄ• . sesamettha gÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-ame sumedhabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito ekÄ• dasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

14. sujÄ• tabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• tato \Ne 232/ tassÄ• parabhÄ• ge tasmiá¹ƒyeva maá¹‡á¸• akappe anupubbena aparimitÄ• parihÄ• yitvÄ• navutivassasahassÄ• yukesu jÄ• tesu sujÄ• tarÅ«pakÄ• yo parisuddhajÄ• to loke udapÄ• di. sopi pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• sumaá¹…

nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule pabhÄ• vatiyÄ• nÄ• ma aggamahesiyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase cassa nÄ• ma sakalajambudÄ«pe sabbasattÄ• naá¹ƒ sukhaá¹ƒ janayanto jÄ• toti ``sujÄ• toâ€™â€™ tveva navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. sirÄ« upasirÄ« sirinando cÄ• ti tassa tayo pÄ sirÄ«nandÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni tevÄ«sati itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• sirÄ«nandÄ• deviyÄ• upasene nÄ• ma putte uppanne haá¹ƒ varaturaá¹…gamÄ• ruyha mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ pana pab koá¹-i anupabbaji. atha so tehi parivuto nava mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• kh sirÄ«nandananagare sirÄ«nandanaseá¹-á¹-hissa dhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ paramamadhuraá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye sunandA tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• veá¸·ubodhiá¹ƒ \Ee 203/ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• tettiá¹ƒsahatthav tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• sÅ«riye dharamÄ• neyeva samÄ• raá¹ƒ mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidh paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• nuciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• brahmunÄ• Ä• yÄ• cito attano kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• tikaá¹ƒ sudassanakumÄ devakumÄ• raÃ±ca catusaccadhammapaá¹-ivedhasamatthe disvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• sumaá¹…galuyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• uyyÄ• napÄ• lena attano bhÄ• tikaá¹ƒ sudassanakumÄ• ra devakumÄ• raÃ±ca pakkosÄ• petvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ saparivÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe nisinno dhamma asÄ«tiyÄ• koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahosi yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• sudassanuyyÄ• nadvÄ• re mahÄ• sÄ• lamÅ«le yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsesu vassÄ• vÄ• saá¹ƒ upÄ• gami, tadÄ• sattattiá¹ƒsasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dham dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi. yadÄ• pana sujÄ• to dasabalo pitusantikaá¹ƒ agamÄ• si, tadÄ• saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi

<1> á¹• 21 ``tattheva \Ne 233/ maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, sujÄ• to nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

sÄ«hahanusabhakkhandho, appameyyo durÄ• sado ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``candova \Be 241/ vimalo buddho, sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va patÄ• pavÄ• .

evaá¹ƒ sobhati sambuddho, jalanto siriyÄ• sadÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na sambuddho, kevalaá¹ƒ bodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

sumaá¹…galamhi nagare, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``desente pavaraá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, sujÄ• te lokanÄ• yake.

asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä« abhisamiá¹ƒsu, paá¹-hame dhammadesane ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• sujÄ• to amitayaso, deve vassaá¹ƒ upÄ• gami.

sattattiá¹ƒsasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• sujÄ• to asamasamo, upagacchi pitusantikaá¹ƒ.

saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __tattheva maá¹‡á¸• akappamhÄ«_ti yasmiá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• akappe sumedho bhagavÄ• sujÄ• topi bhagavÄ• uppannoti attho. __sÄ«hahanÅ«_ti \Ee 204/ sÄ«hassa viya hanu assÄ pana heá¹-á¹-himahanumeva puá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ hoti, na uparimaá¹ƒ. assa pana mahÄ• purisass viya dvepi paripuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni dvÄ• dasiyaá¹ƒ pakkhassa candasadisÄ• ni honti. tena vuttaá¹ __usabhakkhandho_ti usabhasseva samappavaá¹-á¹-akkhandho, suvaá¹-á¹-itasuvaá¹‡á¹‡Ä attho. __sataraá¹ƒsÄ«vÄ• _ti divasakaro viya. __siriyÄ• _ti buddhasiriyÄ• . __bodhimuttama sambodhiá¹ƒ.

sudhammavatÄ«nagare sudhammuyyÄ• ne Ä• gatÄ• naá¹ƒ manussÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ ehibhikkhubhÄ• vena pabbÄ• jetvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ majjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo paraá¹ƒ tidivorohaá¹‡e bhagavato paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to aho bhagavato santike pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pattoâ€™â€™ ti sutvÄ• ``mayampi pabbajissÄ cattÄ• ri purisasatasahassÄ• ni gahetvÄ• sudassanatthero sujÄ• taá¹ƒ narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ \Ne bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbÄ• jetvÄ• caturaá¹…gasam

pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• \Be 242/ tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sujÄ• tassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ, appattÄ• naá¹ƒ bhavÄ• bhave.

saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• ni, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ sannipatiá¹ƒsu te ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te, tidivorohaá¹‡e jine.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``upasaá¹…kamanto narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ, sudassano aggasÄ• vako.

catÅ«hi satasahassehi, sambuddhaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __appattÄ• na_nti bhavÄ• bhave asampattÄ• nanti attho. ``appavattÄ• bhavÄ• bhav soyevattho. __tidivorohaá¹‡e_ti saggalokato otarante kattukÄ• rake daá¹-á¹-habbo. kÄ• raka atha vÄ• __tidivorohaá¹‡e_ti tidivato otaraá¹‡e. __jine_ti jinassa, sÄ• miatthe bhummaá¹ƒ c tadÄ• kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• hutvÄ• ``buddho loke uppannoâ€™â upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa catumahÄ• dÄ«parajjaá¹ƒ datvÄ• satthu santike pabbaji. sakaladÄ«pavÄ• sino \Ee 205/ jar gahetvÄ• Ä• rÄ• mikakiccaá¹ƒ sÄ• dhetvÄ• buddhappamukhassa saá¹…ghassa niccaá¹ƒ satthÄ• --- ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena v

<11> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, catudÄ«pamhi issaro.

antalikkhacaro Ä• siá¹ƒ, cakkavattÄ« mahabbalo ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``catudÄ«pe mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ ratane satta uttame.

buddhe niyyÄ• tayitvÄ• na, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``Ä• rÄ• mikÄ• \Ne 235/ janapade, uá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-ipiá¹‡á¸• iya.

upanenti bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa, paccayaá¹ƒ sayanÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``sopi \Be 243/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, dasasahassimhi issaro.

tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhi, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi cavanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo hÄ• saá¹ƒ janesahaá¹ƒ.

adhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ vataá¹ƒ uggaá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``tatthappamatto viharanto, brahmaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetva bhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tattha __catudÄ«pamhÄ«_ti saparivÄ• radÄ«pÄ• naá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ«pÄ• nanti a cakkaratanaá¹ƒ purakkhatvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sacaro. __ratane sattÄ• _ti hatthiratanÄ• dÄ«ni satta uttamÄ• ni. atha vÄ• uttame buddheti attho daá¹-á¹-habbo. __niyyÄ• tayitvÄ• nÄ• _ti datvÄ raá¹-á¹-huppÄ• daá¹ƒ, Ä• yanti attho. __paá¹-ipiá¹‡á¸• iyÄ• _ti rÄ• siá¹ƒ katvÄ• saá¹ƒkaá¸• \Ee 206/ cÄ«varÄ• divividhaá¹ƒ paccayaá¹ƒ. __dasasahassimhi issaro_ti dasasahassilokad tadetaá¹ƒ jÄ• tikkhettaá¹ƒ sandhÄ• ya vuttanti veditabbaá¹ƒ. anantÄ• naá¹ƒ lokadhÄ• tÅ«na __tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhÄ«_ti ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya tiá¹ƒsakappasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ matthaketi tassa pana sujÄ• tassa bhagavato sumaá¹…galaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, uggato nÄ• nÄ• ma mÄ• tÄ• , sudassano ca sudevo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , nÄ• rado nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-h dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , mahÄ• veá¸·urukkho bodhi, so kira mandacchiddo ghanakkhandho par veá¸·uriyamaá¹‡ivaá¹‡á¹‡ehi vimalehi pattehi saÃ±channavipulasÄ• kho mayÅ«rapiÃ±chak tassa pana bhagavato sarÄ«raá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, Ä• yu \Ne 236/ na sirÄ«nandÄ• nÄ• massa aggamahesÄ«, upaseno nÄ• ma putto. turaá¹…gavarayÄ• nena n silÄ• rÄ• me parinibbÄ• yi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<20> á¹• 21 ``sumaá¹…galaá¹ƒ \Be 244/ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, uggato nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• pabhÄ• vatÄ« nÄ• ma, sujÄ• tassa mahesino ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``sudassano sudevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

nÄ• rado nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sujÄ• tassa mahesino ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``nÄ• go ca nÄ• gasamÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• veá¸·Å«ti vuccati ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``so ca rukkho ghanakkhandho, acchiddo hoti pattiko.

uju vaá¹ƒso brahÄ• hoti, dassanÄ«yo manoramo ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``ekakkhandho pavaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• , tato sÄ• khÄ• pabhijjati.

yathÄ• subaddho morahattho, evaá¹ƒ sobhati so dumo ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``na tassa kaá¹‡á¹-akÄ• honti, nÄ• pi chiddaá¹ƒ mahÄ• ahu.

vitthiá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• kho aviralo, sandacchÄ• yo manoramo ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``paÃ±Ã±Ä• saratano Ä• si, uccattanena so jino.

sabbÄ• kÄ• ravarÅ«peto, sabbaguá¹‡amupÄ• gato ||

<32> á¹• 21 ``tassa \Ee 207/ pabhÄ• asamasamÄ• , niddhÄ• vati samantato.

appamÄ• á¹‡o atuliyo, opammehi anÅ«pamo ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<34> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi \Ne 237/ sÄ• gare Å«mÄ«, gagane tÄ• rakÄ• yathÄ• .

evaá¹ƒ tadÄ• pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, arahantehi cittitaá¹ƒ ||

<35> á¹• 21 ``so ca buddho asamasamo, guá¹‡Ä• ni ca tÄ• ni atuliyÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __acchiddo_ti appacchiddo. ``anudarÄ• kaÃ±Ã±Ä• â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«su viya daá¹-á hoti parittakaâ€™â€™ nti paá¹-hanti. __pattiko_ti bahupatto, kÄ• camaá¹‡ivaá¹‡á¹‡ehi \Be 2 saÃ±channoti attho. __ujÅ«_ti avaá¹…ko akuá¹-ilo. __vaá¹ƒso_ti veá¸·u. __brahÄ• _ti sama __ekakkhandho_ti avaniruho eko adutiyo cÄ• ti attho. __pavaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• _ti vaá¸• á¸• hitv pabhijjatÄ«_ti tato vaá¹ƒsaggato paÃ±cavidhÄ• sÄ• khÄ• nikkhamitvÄ• pabhijjittha. ``tato pabhijjathÄ• â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __subaddho_ti suá¹-á¹-hu paÃ±cabandhanÄ• kÄ• rena Ä• tapasannivÄ• raá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ kato baddho morapiÃ±chakalÄ• po vuccati.

__na tassa kaá¹‡á¹-akÄ• hontÄ«_ti tassa vaá¹ƒsassa kaá¹‡á¹-akinopi rukkhassa kaá¹‡á¹-a __aviralo_ti aviralasÄ• khÄ• saÃ±channo. __sandacchÄ• yo_ti ghanacchÄ• yo, aviralattÄ• v __paÃ±Ã±Ä• saratano Ä• sÄ«_ti paÃ±Ã±Ä• sahattho ahosi. __sabbÄ• kÄ• ravarÅ«peto_ti s upeto sabbÄ• kÄ• ravarÅ«peto nÄ• ma. __sabbaguá¹‡amupÄ• gato_ti anantarapadasseva __appamÄ• á¹‡o_ti pamÄ• á¹‡arahito, pamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ gahetuá¹ƒ asakkuá¹‡eyyattÄ• vÄ• atulo, kenaci asadisoti attho. __opammehÄ«_ti upamitabbehi. __anÅ«pamo_ti upamÄ• rahit sadisoâ€™â€™ ti vattuá¹ƒ asakkuá¹‡eyyabhÄ• vato anÅ«pamoti attho. __guá¹‡Ä• ni_ \Ee 2 ca te, sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡Ä• dayo guá¹‡Ä• ti attho. liá¹…gavipallÄ• sena vuttaá¹ƒ. se uttÄ• natthamevÄ• ti.

sujÄ• tabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito dvÄ• dasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

15. piyadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• sujÄ• tassa \Ne 238/ pana aparabhÄ• ge ito aá¹-á¹-hakappasatÄ• dhikasahassakappamatth __piyadassÄ«, atthadassÄ«, dhammadassÄ«_ti tayo buddhÄ• nibbattiá¹ƒsu. tattha __piyad pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• sudhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ«nagare suda aggamahesiyÄ• \Be 246/ candasadisavadanÄ• ya candÄ• deviyÄ• nÄ• ma kucchismiá¹ƒ p dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena varuá¹‡uyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. tassa par piyÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyavisesÄ• naá¹ƒ dassitattÄ• ``piyadassÄ«â€™â€™ tveva nÄ• ma navavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. tassa kira sunimmalavimalagiribrahÄ• nÄ• m ahesuá¹ƒ. vimalÄ• mahÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni tettiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• vimalÄ• deviyÄ• kaÃ±canaveá¸·e nÄ• ma putte uppanne Ä• mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. ekÄ• ca naá¹ƒ purisakoá¹-i anupabbaji. s mahÄ• puriso cha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya varuá¹ vasabhabrÄ• hmaá¹‡assa dhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• sÄ• vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sujÄ• tÄ• jÄ«vakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• kaku tepaÃ±Ã±Ä• sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raâ€™â€™ nti udÄ• n sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ ariyadhammapaá¹-ived Ä• kÄ• sena tattha gantvÄ• usabhavatÄ«nagarasamÄ«pe usabhavatuyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• bh dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi.

puna \Ee 209/ usabhavatiyÄ• nÄ• ma nagarassa avidÅ«re sudassanapabbate sudassano paá¹-ivasati. so micchÄ• diá¹-á¹-hiko ahosi. sakalajambudÄ«pe pana manussÄ• tassa anus satasahassagghanikaá¹ƒ baliá¹ƒ upasaá¹ƒharanti. so sudassano devarÄ• jÄ• nararÄ• jena nisÄ«ditvÄ• baliá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchati. atha piyadassÄ« bhagavÄ• ``tassa sudassanassa dev diá¹-á¹-higataá¹ƒ \Ne 239/ vinodessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti tasmiá¹ƒ devarÄ• je yakkhasamÄ• g pavisitvÄ• sirisayanaá¹ƒ Ä• ruhitvÄ• chabbaá¹‡á¹‡araá¹ƒsiyo muÃ±canto yugandharapabb viya nisÄ«di. tassa parivÄ• raparicÄ• rikÄ• devatÄ• yo mÄ• lÄ• gandhavilepanÄ• dÄ«hi das parivÄ• retvÄ• aá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒsu.

sudassanopi \Be 247/ devarÄ• jÄ• yakkhasamÄ• gamato Ä• gacchanto attano bhavanato niccharante disvÄ• cintesi --- ``aÃ±Ã±esu pana divasesu mama bhavanassa edisÄ« anekaraá¹ƒsijÄ• lasamujjalavibhÅ«ti na diá¹-á¹-hapubbÄ• . ko nu kho idha paviá¹-á¹-ho devo ti olokento udayagirisikharamatthake saradasamayadivasakaramiva chabbaá¹‡á¹‡araá¹ƒsij nisinnaá¹ƒ bhagavantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• cintesi --- ``ayaá¹ƒ muá¹‡á¸• akasamaá¹‡o mama parivÄ varasayane nisinnoâ€™â€™ ti kodhÄ• bhibhÅ«tamÄ• naso --- ``handÄ• haá¹ƒ imassa attan ti cintetvÄ• sakalaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ pabbataá¹ƒ ekajÄ• lamakÄ• si. ``iminÄ• aggijÄ• lena chÄ• rikÄ muá¹‡á¸• akasamaá¹‡oâ€™â€™ ti olokento anekaraá¹ƒsijÄ• lavisaravipphuritavarasarÄ«ra pasannavadanavaá¹‡á¹‡asobhaá¹ƒ vippasannacchavirÄ• gaá¹ƒ dasabalamabhijjalantaá¹ƒ d samaá¹‡o aggidÄ• haá¹ƒ sahati, handÄ• haá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡aá¹ƒ udakoghena osÄ• detv atigambhÄ«raá¹ƒ udakoghaá¹ƒ vimÄ• nÄ• bhimukhaá¹ƒ pavattesi.

tato udakoghena puá¹‡á¹‡e tasmiá¹ƒ vimÄ• ne nisinnassa tassa bhagavato cÄ«vare aá¹ƒsu lomamattaá¹ƒ vÄ• na temittha. tato sudassano devarÄ• jÄ• --- ``iminÄ• samaá¹‡o nirassÄ bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti mantvÄ• udakaá¹ƒ saá¹…khipitvÄ• olokento bhagavantaá¹ƒ asitaj saradasamayarajanikaramiva vividharaá¹ƒsijÄ• lavisarena virocamÄ• naá¹ƒ sakaparisapariv attano makkhaá¹ƒ asahamÄ• no --- ``handa mÄ• ressÄ• mi naâ€™â€™ nti kodhena navavi athassa bhagavato Ä• nubhÄ• vena sabbÄ• vudhÄ• ni nÄ• nÄ• vidhaparamaruciradassanÄ dasabalassa pÄ• damÅ«le nipatiá¹ƒsu.

tato taá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• sudassano devarÄ• jÄ• paramakupitamÄ• naso bhagavant gahetvÄ• attano bhavanato nÄ«haritukÄ• mo ukkhipitvÄ• mahÄ• samuddaá¹ƒ atikkamitvÄ gantvÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho samaá¹‡o jÄ«vati vÄ• mato vÄ• â€™â€™ ti olokento tasmiá¹ƒye disvÄ• --- ``aho mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo ayaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡o, nÄ• haá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡aá¹ƒ ito \N sakkomi. yadi \Be 248/ hi maá¹ƒ koci jÄ• nissati, anappako me ayaso bhavissati. yÄ• vimaá passati, tÄ• va naá¹ƒ vissajjetvÄ• gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintesi.

atha dasabalo tassa cittÄ• cÄ• raá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• tathÄ• adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si, yathÄ• naá¹ƒ sabb tasmiÃ±ca divase sakalajambudÄ«pe ekasatarÄ• jÄ• no tasseva upahÄ• radÄ• natthÄ• ya s pÄ• de gahetvÄ• nisinnaá¹ƒ sudassanaá¹ƒ devarÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ nararÄ• jÄ• no disvÄ• --- ``a munirÄ• jassa piyadassissa satthuno pÄ• daparicariyaá¹ƒ karoti, aho buddhÄ• nÄ• ma acc visiá¹-á¹-hÄ• â€™â€™ ti bhagavati, pasannacittÄ• sabbe bhagavantaá¹ƒ namassamÄ• nÄ aá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒsu. tattha piyadassÄ« bhagavÄ• taá¹ƒ sudassanaá¹ƒ devarÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ pamu desesi. tadÄ• devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu.

yadÄ• pana navayojanappamÄ• á¹‡e kumudanagare buddhapaccatthiko devadatto viya s mahÄ• padumakumÄ• rena saddhiá¹ƒ mantetvÄ• tassa pitaraá¹ƒ ghÄ• tetvÄ• puna piyada nÄ• nappakÄ• raá¹ƒ payogaá¹ƒ katvÄ• pi ghÄ• tetuá¹ƒ asakkonto so doá¹‡amukhanÄ• garÄ taá¹ƒ palobhetvÄ• tamatthaá¹ƒ Ä• rocesi --- ``yadÄ• panÄ• yaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡o piyadassÄ« in piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya pavisati, tadÄ• doá¹‡amukhaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma gajavaraá¹ƒ vissajjetvÄ• piyadass mÄ• rehÄ«â€™â€™ ti.

atha so Ä• roho hitÄ• hitavicÄ• raá¹‡arahito rÄ• javallabho --- ``ayaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡o á¹-hÄ• na cÄ• veyyÄ• â€™â€™ ti mantvÄ• ``sÄ• dhÅ«â€™â€™ ti sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• dutiyadivase da nagarappavesanasamayaá¹ƒ sallakkhetvÄ• sujÄ• tamatthakapiá¹‡á¸• akumbhanalÄ• á¹-aá dhanusadisadÄ«ghasuá¹‡á¸• ataá¹-aá¹ƒ suvipulamudukaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ madhupiá¹…galanayan anuvaá¹-á¹-aghanajaghanaá¹ƒ nicitagÅ«á¸·hajÄ• á¹‡uantaraá¹ƒ Ä«sÄ• sadisaruciradantaá¹ apacitamecakaá¹ƒ sabbalakkhaá¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ asitajaladharasadisacÄ• rudassanaá¹ƒ s jaá¹…gamamiva dharÄ• dharaá¹ƒ sattappatiá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ sattadhÄ• pabhinnaá¹ƒ sabbaso vi viggahavantamiva antakaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• piá¹‡á¸• akabaá¸·aÃ±janadhÅ«palepÄ• d mattappamattaá¹ƒ katvÄ• arivÄ• raá¹‡avÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ erÄ• vaá¹‡avÄ• raá¹‡amiva arijanav mÄ• raá¹‡atthÄ• ya pesesi. atha \Be 249/ so dviradavaro muttamattova gajamahiá¹ƒsaturaá hatarudhirapariraÃ±jitasadantakarasarÄ«ro antajÄ• lapariyonaddhanayano sakaá¹-akavÄ• á¹-akÅ«á¹-Ä• gÄ• radvÄ• ratoraá¹‡Ä• dÄ«ni bhaÃ±jitvÄ• kÄ• ka-kulala-gijjh hatamahiá¹ƒsanaraturaá¹…gadiradÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ aá¹…gÄ• ni Ä• lumpitvÄ• manussabhakkh bhakkhayanto dÅ«ratova dasabalaá¹ƒ sissagaá¹‡aparivutaá¹ƒ Ä• gacchantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• anil bhagavantamabhigaÃ±chi.

atha puravÄ• sino pana janÄ• bhayasantÄ• paparipÅ«ritamÄ• nasÄ• pÄ• sÄ• dapÄ• kÄ• tathÄ• gatÄ• bhimukhamabhidhÄ• vantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• hÄ• hÄ• kÄ• rasaddamakaá¹ƒsu. keci \ nÄ• nappakÄ• rehi nayehi nivÄ• rayitumÄ• rabhiá¹ƒsu. atha so buddhanÄ• go hatthinÄ• gar karuá¹‡Ä• vipphÄ• rasÄ«talahadayo mettÄ• ya taá¹ƒ phari. tato so hatthinÄ• go mettÄ• pha mudukatahadayasantÄ• no attano dosÄ• parÄ• dhaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• lajjÄ• ya bhagavato purato pathaviyaá¹ƒ pavisanto viya sirasÄ• bhagavato pÄ• desu nipati. evaá¹ƒ nipanno pana so tir saÃ±chÄ• ppabhÄ• nuraÃ±jitavarakanakagirisikharasamÄ«pamupagato asitasaliladharanika athevaá¹ƒ munirÄ• japÄ• damÅ«le karirÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ sirasÄ• nipatantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• nÄ• gara paramapÄ«tipÅ«ritahadayÄ• sÄ• dhukÄ• rasÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddaá¹ƒ pavattay surabhikusumamÄ• lÄ• candanagandhacuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• laá¹…kÄ• rÄ• dÄ«hi taá¹ƒ anekappakÄ celukkhepÄ• pavattiá¹ƒsu. gaganatale suradundubhiyo abhinadiá¹ƒsu. atha bhagavÄ• tam pÄ• damÅ«le nipannaá¹ƒ diradavaraá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• aá¹…kusadhajajÄ• lasaá¹…khacakkÄ• l gajavaramatthakaá¹ƒ parÄ• masitvÄ• tassa cittÄ• cÄ• rÄ• nukÅ«lÄ• ya dhammadesanÄ• y ``gajavara vadato suá¹‡ohi vÄ• caá¹ƒ, mama hitamatthayutaÃ±ca taá¹ƒ bhajÄ• hi.

tava vadhanirataá¹ƒ paduá¹-á¹-habhÄ• vaá¹ƒ, apanaya santamupehi cÄ• rudanti ||

``lobhena \Be 250/ dosena ca mohato vÄ• , yo pÄ• á¹‡ino hiá¹ƒsati vÄ• raá¹‡inda.

so pÄ• á¹‡aghÄ• tÄ« sucirampi kÄ• laá¹ƒ, dukkhaá¹ƒ sughoraá¹ƒ narakenubhoti ||

``mÄ• kÄ• si mÄ• taá¹…ga punevarÅ«paá¹ƒ, kammaá¹ƒ pamÄ• dena madena vÄ• pi.

avÄ«ciyaá¹ƒ dukkhamasayha kappaá¹ƒ, pappoti pÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ atipÄ• tayanto ||

``dukkhaá¹ƒ sughoraá¹ƒ narakenubhotvÄ• , manussalokaá¹ƒ yadi yÄ• ti bhiyyo.

appÄ• yuko hoti virÅ«parÅ«po, vihiá¹ƒsako dukkhavisesabhÄ• gÄ« ||

``yathÄ• \Ne 242/ ca pÄ• á¹‡Ä• paramaá¹ƒ piyÄ• te, mahÄ• jane kuÃ±jara mandanÄ• ga.

tathÄ• parassÄ• pi piyÄ• ti Ã±atvÄ• , pÄ• á¹‡Ä• tipÄ• to parivajjanÄ«yo || ``dose \Ee 212/ ca hiá¹ƒsÄ• nirate viditvÄ• , pÄ• á¹‡Ä• tipÄ• tÄ• virate guá¹‡e ca.

pÄ• á¹‡Ä• tipÄ• taá¹ƒ parivajjaya tvaá¹ƒ, sagge sukhaá¹ƒ icchasi ce parattha ||

``pÄ• á¹‡Ä• tipÄ• tÄ• virato sudanto, piyo manÄ• po bhavatÄ«dha loke.

kÄ• yassa bhedÄ• ca paraá¹ƒ panassa, saggÄ• dhivÄ• saá¹ƒ kathayanti buddhÄ• ||

``dukkhÄ• gamaá¹ƒ nicchati koci loke, sabbopi jÄ• to sukhamesateva.

tasmÄ• mahÄ• nÄ• ga vihÄ• ya hiá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ, bhÄ• vehi mettaá¹ƒ karuá¹‡aÃ±ca kÄ• leâ€™â athevaá¹ƒ \Be 251/ dasabalenÄ• nusÄ• siyamÄ• no dantivaro saÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ paá¹-ilabhitvÄ• vinayÄ• cÄ• rasampanno sisso viya ahosi. evaá¹ƒ so piyadassÄ« bhagavÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ s doá¹‡amukhaá¹ƒ karivaraá¹ƒ damitvÄ• tattha mahÄ• janasamÄ• game dhammaá¹ƒ desesi. asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. t

<1> á¹• 21 ``sujÄ• tassa aparena, sayambhÅ« lokanÄ• yako.

durÄ• sado asamasamo, piyadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho amitayaso, Ä• diccova virocati.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamaá¹ƒ nihantvÄ• na, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, ahesuá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• tayo.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``sudassano devarÄ• jÄ• , micchÄ• diá¹-á¹-himarocayi.

tassa diá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ vinodento, satthÄ• dhammamadesayi ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``janasannipÄ• to \Ne 243/ atulo, mahÄ• sannipatÄ« tadÄ• .

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• doá¹‡amukhaá¹ƒ hatthiá¹ƒ, vinesi narasÄ• rathi.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

sumaá¹…galanagare pÄ• lito nÄ• ma rÄ• japutto ca purohitaputto sabbadassikumÄ• ro cÄ• te piyadassimhi sammÄ• sambuddhe cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ carante ``attano nagaraá¹ƒ sampattoâ€™ koá¹-isatasahassaparivÄ• rÄ• paccuggamanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• tassa dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• sattÄ• datvÄ• sattame divase bhagavato bhattÄ• numodanÄ• vasÄ• ne koá¹-isatasahassehi sadd pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ pana majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo sa samayena sudassanadevarÄ• jassa samÄ• game navutikoá¹-iyo arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒ pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, ayaá¹ƒ dutiyo \Be 252/ sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna doá¹‡amukhavinay pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddis sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tassÄ• pi piyadassino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``tato paraá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-Ä«, samiá¹ƒsu ekato munÄ«.

tatiye sannipÄ• tamhi, asÄ«tikoá¹-iyo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto kassapo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡amÄ• á¹‡avo itihÄ• sapaÃ±c pÄ• ragÅ« hutvÄ• satthu dhammadesanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• koá¹-isatasahassapariccÄ• gena para kÄ• retvÄ• saraá¹‡esu ca paÃ±casÄ«lesu ca patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. atha naá¹ƒ satthÄ• --- ``ito aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasakappasataccayena gotamo nÄ• ma buddho loke bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti by <9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, kassapo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``tassa \Ne 244/ dhammaá¹ƒ suá¹‡itvÄ• na, pasÄ• daá¹ƒ janayiá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ.

koá¹-isatasahassehi, saá¹…ghÄ• rÄ• maá¹ƒ amÄ• payiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``tassa datvÄ• na Ä• rÄ• maá¹ƒ, haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

saraá¹‡e paÃ±casÄ«le ca, daá¸·ahaá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diyiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Be 253/ __saraá¹‡e paÃ±casÄ«le cÄ• _ti tÄ«á¹‡i saraá¹‡Ä• ni paÃ±ca sÄ«lÄ• ni cÄ __aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate_ti ito aá¹-á¹-hasatÄ• dhikassa kappasahassassa accayenÄ• ti tassa \Ee 214/ pana bhagavato sudhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. pitÄ• sudatto nÄ sucandÄ• nÄ• ma devÄ«, pÄ• lito ca sabbadassÄ« ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sobhito nÄ• mu dhammadinnÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , kakudharukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ asÄ«tihatthubbe navutivassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu, vimalÄ• nÄ• massa aggamahesÄ« ahosi, kaÃ±canÄ• veá¸· Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena nikkhamÄ«ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<15> á¹• 21 ``sudhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sudatto nÄ• ma khattiyo.

candÄ• nÄ• mÄ• si janikÄ• , piyadassissa satthuno ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``pÄ• lito sabbadassÄ« ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sobhito nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, piyadassissa satthuno ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``sujÄ• tÄ• \Ne 245/ dhammadinnÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, kakudhoti pavuccati ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho amitayaso, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o.

asÄ«tihatthamubbedho, sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va dissati ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``aggicandasÅ«riyÄ• naá¹ƒ, natthi tÄ• disikÄ• pabhÄ• .

yathÄ• ahu pabhÄ• tassa, asamassa mahesino ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi devadevassa, Ä• yu tÄ• vatakaá¹ƒ ahu.

navutivassasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho asamasamo, yugÄ• nipi tÄ• ni atuliyÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• vÄ• _ti sabbaphÄ• liphullo paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yadassano samavaá¹-dissati. __yugÄ• nipi tÄ• nÄ«_ti aggasÄ• vakayugÄ• dÄ«ni yugaá¸·Ä• ni. sesagÄ• thÄ• su s piyadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito terasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

16. atthadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• piyadassimhi \Be 254/ \Ne 246/ \Ee 215/ sammÄ• sambuddhe parinibbute tassa sÄ• sane vaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• aparimitÄ• yukesu manussesu anukkamena parihÄ• yitvÄ• vassasatasah paramatthadassÄ« __atthadassÄ«_ nÄ• ma buddho loke uppajji. so pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• cavitvÄ• paramasobhane sobhane nÄ• ma nagare sÄ• garassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o kule agga kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• dasa mÄ• se gabbhe vasitvÄ• sucindhanuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito mahÄ• purise nikkhantamatte sucirakÄ• lanihitÄ• ni kulaparamparÄ• gatÄ• dhanasÄ• mikÄ• paá¹-ilabhiá¹ƒsÅ«ti tassa nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase ``atthadassÄ«â€™â€™ dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. amaragiri-suragiri-girivÄ• hananÄ• makÄ• p cassa pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. visÄ• khÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni tettiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni ahe so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• visÄ• khÄ• deviyÄ• selakumÄ• re nÄ• ma putte uppanne su assarÄ• jaá¹ƒ abhiruhitvÄ• mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ nava ma anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. tehi parivuto so mahÄ• puriso aá¹-á¹-ha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ carit visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya sucindharanÄ• giyÄ• upahÄ• ratthÄ• ya Ä• nÄ«taá¹ƒ madhupÄ sandissamÄ• nasabbasarÄ«rÄ• ya nÄ• giyÄ• saha suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiyÄ• dinnaá¹ƒ madhu taruá¹‡atarusatasamalaá¹…kate taruá¹‡asÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sÄ mahÄ• rucinÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• garÄ• jena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha kusatiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• tepaÃ±Ã±Ä• sahatthÄ• yÄ• mavitthataá¹ƒ kusatiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santh Ä• bhujitvÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ patvÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• ciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• ra khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ bodhisamÄ«peyev dhammadesanÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• attanÄ• saha pabbajitanavabhikkhukoá¹ ariyadhammapaá¹-ivedhasamatthe disvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• anomanagarasamÄ«pe an \Be 255/ tattha dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo dh puna \Ne 247/ bhagavati lokanÄ• yake devalokacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• tattha dhammaá¹ƒ de koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi. yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• atthadassÄ« a kapilavatthupuraá¹ƒ sobhanapuraá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desesi, tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahas dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``tattheva \Ee 216/ maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, atthadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

mahÄ• tamaá¹ƒ nihantvÄ• na, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi.

amatena tappayÄ« lokaá¹ƒ, dasasahassÄ« sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi lokanÄ• thassa, ahesuá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• tayo.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho atthadassÄ«, carati devacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ yadÄ• buddho, desesi pitusantike.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __tatthevÄ• _ti tasmiÃ±Ã±eva kappeti attho. ettha pana varakappo ``maá¹‡á¸• akapp ``yasmiá¹ƒ kappe tayo buddhÄ• nibbattanti, so kappo varakappoâ€™â€™ ti heá¹-á¹-hÄ• padumuttarabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• yaá¹ƒ vutto. tasmÄ• varakappo idha ``maá¹‡á¸• __nihantvÄ• nÄ• _ti nihanitvÄ• . ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __santo_ti samÄ• no. __amatenÄ maggaphalÄ• dhigamÄ• matapÄ• nena. __tappayÄ«_ti atappayi, pÄ«á¹‡esÄ«ti attho. __das dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ. __devacÄ• rika_nti devÄ• naá¹ƒ vinayanatthaá¹ƒ devalokacÄ• sucandakanagare kira santo ca rÄ• japutto upasanto ca purohitaputto tÄ«su vedesu sabbas sÄ• ramadisvÄ• nagarassa catÅ«su dvÄ• resu \Be 256/ cattÄ• ro paá¹‡á¸• ite visÄ• rade ca ``yaá¹ƒ pana tumhe paá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ samaá¹‡aá¹ƒ vÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡aá¹ƒ vÄ• passatha suá Ä• gantvÄ• \Ne 248/ Ä• rocethÄ• â€™â€™ ti. tena ca samayena atthadassÄ« lokanÄ• tho sampÄ• puá¹‡i. atha tehi niveditÄ• purisÄ• gantvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ dasabalassa tatthÄ• gamanaá te santopasantÄ• tathÄ• gatÄ• gamanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pahaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• sahassaparivÄ paccuggantvÄ• abhivÄ• detvÄ• nimantetvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ buddhappamukhassa saá¹…gh datvÄ• sattame divase sakalanagaravÄ• sÄ«hi manussehi saddhiá¹ƒ dhammakathaá¹ƒ suá divase aá¹-á¹-hanavutisahassÄ• ni ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• pu majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi.

yadÄ• pana bhagavÄ• attano puttassa selattherassa \Ee 217/ dhammaá¹ƒ desento aá¹-á¹ pasÄ• detvÄ• ehibhikkhubhÄ• vena pabbÄ• jetvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• petvÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá ahosi. puna mahÄ• maá¹…galasamÄ• game mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ devamanussÄ• aá¹-á¹-hasattatisahassÄ• ni arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• petvÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sanni
vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tassÄ• pi ca mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hanavutisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hasattatisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anupÄ• dÄ• vimuttÄ• naá¹ƒ, vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tadÄ• kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto campakanagare susÄ«mo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡amahÄ sabbavibhavajÄ• taá¹ƒ dÄ«nÄ• nÄ• thakapaá¹‡addhikÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ vissajjetvÄ• himavanta tÄ• pasapabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbajitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha samÄ• pattiyo paÃ±ca abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• yo ca nibba mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo hutvÄ• mahÄ• janassa kusalÄ• kusalÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• naá¹ƒ anavajja buddhuppÄ• daá¹ƒ Ä• gamayamÄ• no aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si.

athÄ• parena samayena atthadassimhi lokanÄ• yake loke uppajjitvÄ• sudassanamahÄ• na parisÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe dhammÄ• matavassaá¹ƒ vassente tassa dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• saggalo mandÄ• ravapadumapÄ• ricchattakÄ• dÄ«ni pupphÄ• ni devalokato Ä• haritvÄ• attano Ä• n dissamÄ• nasarÄ«ro catÅ«su disÄ• su catuddÄ«pikamahÄ• megho viya pupphavassaá¹ƒ va pupphamaá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ pupphamayagghitoraá¹‡ahemajÄ• lÄ• dÄ«ni pupphamayÄ• ni katv dasabalaá¹ƒ pÅ«jesi. sopi naá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• --- ``anÄ• gate gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhaviss
tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo uggatÄ• pano.

susÄ«mo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, mahiyÄ• seá¹-á¹-hasammato ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``dibbaá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• ricchattakaá¹ƒ.

devalokÄ• haritvÄ• na, sambuddhamabhipÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``sopi \Ee 218/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, atthadassÄ« mahÄ• muni.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __jaá¹-ilo_ti jaá¹-Ä• assa atthÄ«ti jaá¹-ilo. __mahiyÄ• seá¹-á¹-hasammato_ti sakalen seá¹-á¹-ho uttamo pavaroti evaá¹ƒ sammato sambhÄ• vitoti attho.

tassa pana bhagavato sobhanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. sÄ• garo nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• pitÄ santo upasanto ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , abhayo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, dhammÄ• ca sudh campakarukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ asÄ«tihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi. sarÄ«rappabhÄ• \Be 258 yojanamattaá¹ƒ pharitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si, Ä• yu vassasatasahassaá¹ƒ, visÄ• khÄ• nÄ• mass putto, assayÄ• nena nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<14> á¹• 21 ``sobhanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sÄ• garo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sudassanÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , atthadassissa satthuno ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``santo \Ne 250/ ca upasanto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

abhayo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, atthadassissa satthuno ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``dhammÄ• ceva sudhammÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, campakoti pavuccati ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho asamasamo, asÄ«tihatthamuggato.

sobhate sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va, uá¸·urÄ• jÄ• va pÅ«rito ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``tassa pÄ• katikÄ• raá¹ƒsÄ«, anekasatakoá¹-iyo.

uddhaá¹ƒ adho dasa disÄ• , pharanti yojanaá¹ƒ sadÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho narÄ• sabho, sabbasattuttamo muni.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``atulaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• obhÄ• saá¹ƒ, virocetvÄ• sadevake.

sopi aniccataá¹ƒ patto, yathaggupÄ• dÄ• nasaá¹…khayÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __uá¸·urÄ• jÄ• va pÅ«rito_ti saradasamayaparipuá¹‡á¹‡avimalasakalamaá¹‡á¸• alo t attho. __pÄ• katikÄ• _ti \Ee 219/ pakativasena uppajjamÄ• nÄ• , na adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• navasena tadÄ• anekakoá¹-isatasahassepi cakkavÄ• á¸·e Ä• bhÄ• ya phareyya. __raá¹ƒsÄ«_ti rasmi __upÄ• dÄ• nasaá¹…khayÄ• _ti upÄ• dÄ• nakkhayÄ• indhanakkhayÄ• aggi viya. sopi bha khayena anupÄ• disesÄ• ya nibbÄ• nadhÄ• tuyÄ• anupamanagare anomÄ• rÄ• me parinib adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nena vikiriá¹ƒsu. sesamettha gÄ• thÄ• su uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

atthadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito cuddasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

17. dhammadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• atthadassimhi \Be 259/ \Ne 251/ sammÄ• sambuddhe parinibbute antarakappe ca vÄ«tivatt sattesu anupubbena parihÄ• yitvÄ• vassasatasahassÄ• yukesu jÄ• tesu __dhammadassÄ« lobhÄ• dilokamalavinayakaro lokekanÄ• yako loke udapÄ• di. sopi bhagavÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pA nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• saraá¹‡anagare sabbalokasaraá¹‡assa saraá¹‡assa nÄ• ma raÃ sunandÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. so dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• saraá¹‡uyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito pÄ• vussakÄ• le saliladharavivaragato puá¹‡á¹‡acando viy pana mÄ• tukucchito nikkhantamatteyeva adhikaraá¹‡avohÄ• rasatthapotthakesu adhammi antaradhÄ• yiá¹ƒsu. dhammikavohÄ• rÄ• yeva aá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒsu. tenassa nÄ• maggahaá¹‡ad nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu. so aá¹-á¹-havassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. tassa kira araja-v tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. vicikoá¸·ideviyÄ• naá¹ƒ itthÄ«naá¹ƒ vÄ«satisahassÄ• ahosi.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• vicikoá¸·ideviyÄ• puÃ±Ã±avaá¸• á¸• hane nÄ• ma putte upp ativiya sukhumÄ• lo devasampattimiva sampattimanubhavamÄ• no majjhimayÄ• me vuá¹-á niddopagatÄ• naá¹ƒ itthÄ«naá¹ƒ vippakÄ• raá¹ƒ disvÄ• saÃ±jÄ• tasaá¹ƒvego mahÄ• bhinik uppÄ• desi. cittuppÄ• dasamanantaramevassa sudassanapÄ• sÄ• do gaganatalamabbhugg parivuto dutiyo divasakaro viya dibbavimÄ• naá¹ƒ viya ca gantvÄ• \Ee 220/ rattakuravakata otaritvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. mahÄ• puriso kira brahmunÄ• upanÄ«tÄ• ni kÄ• sÄ• yÄ• ni gahetv otaritvÄ• avidÅ«re aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. pÄ• sÄ• do puna Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• bodhirukkhaá¹ƒ an patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. itthiyopi saparivÄ• rÄ• pÄ• sÄ• dato otaritvÄ• aá¸• á¸• hagÄ• vutamattaá¹ tattha itthiyo ca tÄ• saá¹ƒ paricÄ• rikÄ• ceá¹-ikÄ• yo ca á¹-hapetvÄ• sabbe manussÄ• taá bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassaá¹ƒ ahosi.

atha dhammadassÄ« bodhisatto sattÄ• haá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• vicikoá¸·ideviyÄ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ \Ne 252/ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• badaravane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• sÄ• y sirivaá¸• á¸• hanena nÄ• ma yavapÄ• lakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• upagantvÄ• tepaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• tattha sabba paá¹-ivijjhitvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™ udÄ• netvÄ• va bodhisamÄ«pe sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• katabrahmayÄ• cano at bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassassa saddhammappaá¹-ivedhasamatthataá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• aá¹ ekÄ• heneva isipatanaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• tehi parivuto tattha dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi, tadÄ• k paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``tattheva maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, dhammadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

tamandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• , atirocati sadevake ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, dhammacakkappavattane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __tamandhakÄ• ra_nti tamasaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ mohandhakÄ• ranti attho.

yadÄ• pana tagaranÄ• make nagare saÃ±jayo nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• kÄ• mesu Ä• dÄ«navaá¹ƒ isipabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbaji. taá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-iyo anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. te sabbeyeva paÃ±cÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• aá¹-á¹-hasamÄ• pattilÄ• bhino ahesuá¹ƒ. atha satthÄ• dhammadassÄ disvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• saÃ±jayassa tÄ• pasassa assamapadaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• Ä• kÄ• s ajjhÄ• sayÄ• nurÅ«paá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• dhammacakkhuá¹ƒ uppÄ• desi, so dutiyo a
---

<3> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho dhammadassÄ«, vinesi saÃ±jayaá¹ƒ isiá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana sakko devÄ• namindo dasabalassa dhammaá¹ƒ sotukÄ• mo taá¹ƒ upasaá¹…k koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• \Ne 253/ \Ee 221/ sakko upagaÃ±chi, sapariso vinÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• \Be 261/ pana saraá¹‡anagare vemÄ• tikabhÄ• tikaá¹ƒ padumakumÄ• raá¹ƒ phussa pabbÄ• jesi, tasmiá¹ƒ antovasse pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ visuddhipavÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ pavÄ• resi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna bhagavato dev satakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. yadÄ• pana sudassanÄ• rÄ• me terasannaá¹ƒ Ä• nisaá¹ƒse pakÄ• setvÄ• hÄ• ritaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma mahÄ• sÄ• vakaá¹ƒ etadagge á¹-hapesi, ta majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi devadevassa, sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo ahuá¹ƒ.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho dhammadassÄ«, saraá¹‡e vassaá¹ƒ upÄ• gami.

tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ yadÄ• buddho, devato eti mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• pi satakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ yadÄ• buddho, pakÄ• sesi dhute guá¹‡e.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto sakko devarÄ• jÄ• hutvÄ• dvÄ«su devalokesu devehi pari gandhapupphÄ• dÄ«hi dibbaturiyehi ca tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ pÅ«jesi. sopi naá¹ƒ satthÄ• --- ``anÄ buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sakko Ä• siá¹ƒ purindado.

dibbena gandhamÄ• lena, turiyenÄ• bhipÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``sopi \Ne 254/ maá¹ƒ tadÄ• byÄ• kÄ• si, devamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi \Be 262/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tassa \Ee 222/ pana bhagavato saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. saraá¹‡o nÄ• ma rÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , padumo ca phussadevo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sunetto nÄ• ma upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko aggasÄ• vikÄ• , bimbijÄ• larukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ panassa asÄ«tihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahos vassasatasahassaá¹ƒ, vicikoá¸·idevÄ« nÄ• massa aggamahesÄ«, puÃ±Ã±avaá¸• á¸• hano nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<13> á¹• 21 ``saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, saraá¹‡o nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sunandÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , dhammadassissa satthuno ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``padumo phussadevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sunetto nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, dhammadassissa satthuno ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• ca sabbanÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, bimbijÄ• loti vuccati ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho asamasamo, asÄ«tihatthamuggato.

atirocati tejena, dasasahassimhi dhÄ• tuyÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``suphullo sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va, vijjÅ«va gagane yathÄ• .

majjhanhikeva sÅ«riyo, evaá¹ƒ so upasobhatha ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi \Ne 255/ atulatejassa, samakaá¹ƒ Ä• si jÄ«vikaá¹ƒ.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``obhÄ• saá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• na, vimalaá¹ƒ katvÄ• na sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

cavi candova gagane, nibbuto so sasÄ• vakoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __bimbijÄ• lo_ti rattakuravakarukkho. __dasasahassimhi dhÄ• tuyÄ• _ti dasasahassi __vijjÅ«vÄ• _ti vijjulatÄ• viya. __upasobhathÄ• _ti yathÄ• gagane vijju ca majjanhike sÅ«ri evaá¹ƒ so bhagavÄ• upasobhitthÄ• ti attho. __samaka_nti sabbehi narasattehi samameva __cavÄ«_ti cuto. __candovÄ• _ti \Be 263/ \Ee 223/ gaganato candimÄ• viya cavÄ«ti attho.

bhagavÄ• sÄ• lavatÄ«nagare kesÄ• rÄ• me parinibbÄ• yi sesamettha gÄ• thÄ• su pÄ• kaá dhammadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito pannarasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

18. siddhatthabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• dhammadassimhi \Ne 256/ bhagavati parinibbute antarahite cassa sÄ• sane tasmiá¹ƒ kapp sattasu kappasatesu ca chasu kappesu ca atikkantesu ito catunavutikappamatthake ekasmi lokatthacaro adhigataparamattho __siddhattho_ nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke pÄ• turahosi. tena vu

<1> á¹• 21 ``dhammadassissa aparena, siddhattho lokanÄ• yako.

nihanitvÄ• tamaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, sÅ«riyo abbhuggato yathÄ• â€™â€™ ti || siddhattho bodhisattopi pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitabhavane nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• ve nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• suphassÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandh mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena vÄ«riyuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. jÄ• te pana mahÄ• puri ca icchitÄ• ca atthÄ• siddhimagamaá¹ƒsu. tasmÄ• panassa Ã±Ä• takÄ• ``siddhatthoâ€™ dasavassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• ramajjhe vasi. tassa kokÄ• -suppala-padumanÄ• makÄ• tayo somanassÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni aá¹-á¹-hacattÄ• lÄ«sa itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• n so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• somanassÄ• deviyÄ• putte anupamakumÄ• re uppanne Ä• suvaá¹‡á¹‡asivikÄ• ya nikkhamitvÄ• vÄ«riyuyyÄ• naá¹ƒ gantvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ koá¹-isatas anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. mahÄ• puriso kira tehi saddhiá¹ƒ dasa mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritv visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ asadisabrÄ• hmaá¹‡agÄ• me sunettÄ• ya nÄ• ma brÄ• hma 264/ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• badaravane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• nÄ• ma yavapÄ• lena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• kaá¹‡ikÄ• rabodhiá¹ƒ cattÄ• lÄ«sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• s pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• \Ne 257/ attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ catusaccapaá¹-ivedhasamatthataá¹ƒ disvÄ• anilapathena gantvÄ tesaá¹ƒ dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi, tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abhisama

<2> á¹• 21 ``sopi patvÄ• na sambodhiá¹ƒ, santÄ• rento sadevakaá¹ƒ.

abhivassi dhammameghena, nibbÄ• pento sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, ahesuá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• tayo.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __sadevaka_nti sadevakaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ. __dhammameghenÄ• _ti dhammakathÄ• meg bhÄ«marathanagare bhÄ«marathena nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±Ä• nimantito nagaramajjhe kate santh karavÄ«karutamaÃ±junÄ• savanasukhena paramamadhurena paá¹‡á¸• itajanahadayaá¹… brahmassarena dasa disÄ• paripÅ«rento dhammÄ• matadundubhimÄ• hani, tadÄ• navutik
ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ bhÄ«marathe, yadÄ• Ä• hani dundubhiá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana vebhÄ• ranagare Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ desento navutikoá¹-uppÄ• desi, so tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• buddho dhammaá¹ƒ desesi, vebhÄ• re so puruttame.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || amararuciradassane amaranagare nÄ• ma sambalo ca sumitto ca dve bhÄ• taro rajjaá¹ƒ kA satthÄ• tesaá¹ƒ rÄ• jÅ«naá¹ƒ upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ \Be 265/ disvÄ• gaganatalena gantvA otaritvÄ• cakkÄ• laá¹…katatalehi caraá¹‡ehi pathavitalaá¹ƒ maddanto viya padacetiyÄ• ni \ amaruyyÄ• naá¹ƒ gantvÄ• paramaramaá¹‡Ä«ye attano karuá¹‡Ä• sÄ«tale silÄ• tale nisÄ«d bhÄ• tikarÄ• jÄ• no dasabalassa padacetiyÄ• ni disvÄ• padÄ• ni anugantvÄ• siddhatthaá¹ satthÄ• raá¹ƒ \Ne 258/ sabbalokanetÄ• raá¹ƒ saparivÄ• raá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• abhivÄ• parivÄ• retvÄ• nisÄ«diá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• ajjhÄ• sayÄ• nurÅ«paá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ des sutvÄ• saÃ±jÄ• tasaddhÄ• hutvÄ• sabbeva pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tes khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ majjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, s sudassanavihÄ• re sannipatitÄ• naá¹ƒ asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ majjhe pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tasmimpi dvipaduttame.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``koá¹-isatÄ• naá¹ƒ navutÄ«naá¹ƒ, asÄ«tiyÄ• pi ca koá¹-inaá¹ƒ.

ete Ä• suá¹ƒ tayo á¹-hÄ• nÄ• , vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ samÄ• gameâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __navutÄ«naá¹ƒ, asÄ«tiyÄ• pi ca koá¹-ina_nti navutÄ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ asÄ«tiyÄ• sannipÄ• tÄ• ahesunti attho. __ete Ä• suá¹ƒ tayo á¹-hÄ• nÄ• _ti etÄ• ni tÄ«á¹‡i sannipÄ• ta attho. ``á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ne tÄ• ni tÄ«á¹‡i ahesuâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto surasenanagare maá¹…galo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o hutvÄ• gantvÄ• anekakoá¹-isaá¹…khaá¹ƒ dhanasannicayaá¹ƒ dÄ«nÄ• nÄ• thÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ paricca tÄ• pasapabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbajitvÄ• jhÄ• nÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• yo nibbattetvÄ• viharanto --- ``siddh uppannoâ€™â€™ ti sutvÄ• taá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• vanditvÄ• tassa dhammakathaá¹ƒ s jambudÄ«po paÃ±Ã±Ä• yati, iddhiyÄ• taá¹ƒ jambuá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• tato phalaá¹ƒ Ä• navutikoá¹-ibhikkhuparivÄ• raá¹ƒ siddhatthaá¹ƒ satthÄ• raá¹ƒ surasenavihÄ• re nisÄ«dÄ• pe santappesi sampavÄ• resi \Be 266/. atha satthÄ• taá¹ƒ phalaá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• --- ``ito catunavutikappamatthake gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena

<8> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, maá¹…galo nÄ• ma tÄ• paso.

uggatejo duppasaho, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balasamÄ• hito ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``jambuto phalamÄ• netvÄ• , siddhatthassa adÄ• sahaá¹ƒ.

paá¹-iggahetvÄ• sambuddho, idaá¹ƒ vacanamabravi ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``passatha \Ne 259/ imaá¹ƒ tÄ• pasaá¹ƒ, jaá¹-ilaá¹ƒ uggatÄ• panaá¹ƒ.

catunavutito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 226/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá

<12> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __duppasaho_ti durÄ• sado. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. tassa pana bhagavato nagara ahosi. udeno nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• pitÄ• , jayasenotipi tasseva nÄ• maá¹ƒ, suphassÄ• nÄ• ma m dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , revato nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sÄ«valÄ• ca surÄ• mÄ• ca dve aggas bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ saá¹-á¹-hihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi. vassasatasahassaá¹ƒ Ä• yu, somanass ahosi, anupamo nÄ• ma putto, suvaá¹‡á¹‡asivikÄ• ya nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<13> á¹• 21 ``vebhÄ• raá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, udeno nÄ• ma khattiyo.

suphassÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , siddhitthassa mahesino ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``sambalo ca sumitto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

revato nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, siddhatthassa mahesino ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``sÄ«valÄ• ca surÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, kaá¹‡ikÄ• roti vuccati ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``so \Be 267/ buddho saá¹-á¹-hiratanaá¹ƒ, ahosi nabhamuggato.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``sopi buddho asamasamo, atulo appaá¹-ipuggalo.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``vipulaá¹ƒ \Ne 260/ pabhaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• , pupphÄ• petvÄ• na sÄ• vake.

vilÄ• setvÄ• samÄ• patyÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vakoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __saá¹-á¹-hiratana_nti saá¹-á¹-hiratanappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ nabhaá¹ƒ uggatoti attho. __kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so_ti nÄ• nÄ• ratanavicittakanakamayaagghiyasadisadassan virocatÄ«_ti dasasahassiyaá¹ƒ virocati. __vipula_nti uá¸·Ä• raá¹ƒ obhÄ• saá¹ƒ. __pupphÄ• jhÄ• nÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• maggaphalasamÄ• pattipupphehi pupphite paramasobhaggappatte ka vilÄ• sayitvÄ• kÄ«á¸·itvÄ• . __samÄ• patyÄ• _ti lokiyalokuttarÄ• hi samÄ• pattÄ«hi abhiÃ± anupÄ• dÄ• parinibbÄ• nena nibbuto.

siddhattho kira satthÄ• kaÃ±canaveá¸·unagare anomuyyÄ• ne parinibbÄ• yi. tatthevassa r catuyojanubbedhaá¹ƒ cetiyamakaá¹ƒsÅ«ti. sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

siddhatthabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito soá¸·asamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

19. tissabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• tassa \Ne 261/ pana siddhatthassa bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge eko kappo buddhasuÃ±Ã±o a dvÄ• navutikappamatthake __tisso, phusso_ti ekasmiá¹ƒ kappe dve buddhÄ• nibbattiá¹ƒsu mahÄ• puriso pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• khemakanagare raÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• padumadalasadisanayanÄ• ya padumÄ• nÄ• mÄ• ya deviyÄ• ku dasannaá¹ƒ \Be 268/ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena anomuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. sa ajjhÄ• vasi. tassa guhÄ• sela-nÄ• risaya-nisabhanÄ• makÄ• tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. s tettiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• subhaddÄ• deviyÄ• putte Ä• nandakumÄ• re uppanne sonu turaá¹…gavaramÄ• ruyha mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ manussÄ tehi parivuto aá¹-á¹-ha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya vÄ dhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• salalavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ vijitasaá¹…gÄ• makena nÄ• ma yavapÄ• lena upanÄ«tÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gah upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• cattÄ• lÄ«sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• tattha pa samÄ• raá¹ƒ mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• adhigatasabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡o --- ``anekajÄ taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ bo yasavatÄ« nagare brahmadevaá¹ƒ udayaÃ±ca dve rÄ• japutte saparivÄ• re upanissayasam yasavatÄ«migadÄ• ye \Ee 228/ otaritvÄ• uyyÄ• napÄ• lena rÄ• japutte pakkosÄ• petvÄ• te avisÄ• rinÄ• byÄ• pinÄ• madhurena brahmassarena dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ viÃ±Ã±Ä pavattesi, tadÄ• koá¹-isatÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``siddhatthassa aparena, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo.

anantatejo amitayaso, tisso lokagganÄ• yako ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``tamandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ \Ne 262/ vidhamitvÄ• , obhÄ• setvÄ• sadevakaá¹ƒ.

anukampako mahÄ• vÄ«ro, loke uppajji cakkhumÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi atulÄ• iddhi, atulaá¹ƒ sÄ«laá¹ƒ samÄ• dhi ca.

sabbattha pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``so \Be 269/ buddho dasasahassimhi, viÃ±Ã±Ä• pesi giraá¹ƒ suciá¹ƒ.

koá¹-isatÄ• ni abhisamiá¹ƒsu, paá¹-hame dhammadesaneâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __sabbatthÄ• _ti sabbesu dhammesu pÄ• raá¹ƒ gantvÄ• . __dasasahassimhÄ«_ti da samayena tissena satthÄ• rÄ• saddhiá¹ƒ pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-i mahÄ• pu pahÄ• ya bodhimÅ«lamupagamanasamaye aÃ±Ã±atra gatÄ• . sÄ• tissena sammÄ• sambu pavattitaâ€™â€™ nti sutvÄ• yasavatÄ«migadÄ• yaá¹ƒ Ä• gantvÄ• dasabalamabhivÄ• det tesaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desesi, tadÄ• navutiyÄ• koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ dutiyÄ• bhisamayo mahÄ• maá¹…galasamÄ• game maá¹…galapariyosÄ• ne saá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ tatiy
---

<5> á¹• 21 ``dutiyo navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo saá¹-á¹-hikoá¹-iyo.

bandhanÄ• to pamocesi, satte naramarÅ« tadÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __dutiyo navutikoá¹-Ä«na_nti dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi navutikoá¹-ipÄ• á¹‡Ä«nanti at bandhanato, dasahi saá¹ƒyojanehi parimocesÄ«ti attho. idÄ• ni parimocite satte sarÅ«pato ``naramarÅ«â€™â€™ _ti Ä• ha. __naramarÅ«_ti narÄ• mare.

yasavatÄ«nagare kira antovassaá¹ƒ pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ arahantÄ• naá¹ƒ satasahassehi pariv paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. ubhato sujÄ• tassa \Ee 229/ sujÄ• tassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o nÄ nÄ• rivÄ• hananagaraá¹ƒ anuppatte bhagavati lokanÄ• the saparivÄ• ro paccuggantvÄ• da sabhikkhusaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ nimantetvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ asadisadÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• attano rajjaá¹ saparivÄ• ro sabbalokÄ• dhipatissa tissasammÄ• sambuddhassa santike ehibhikkhupabbaj pabbajjÄ• sabbadisÄ• su pÄ• kaá¹-Ä• ahosi. tasmÄ• tato tato Ä• gantvÄ• nÄ• rivÄ• hana anupabbaji. tadÄ• tathÄ• gato navutiyÄ• bhikkhusatasahassassa majjhagato pÄ• timokkha dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna khemavatÄ«nagare \Be 270/ Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game buddhava asÄ«tisatasahassÄ• ni tassa santike pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu, tehi parivut uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tisse lokagganÄ• yake.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

navutisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``asÄ«tisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, pupphitÄ• naá¹ƒ vimuttiyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto yasavatÄ«nagare sujÄ• to nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• hutvÄ• iddhaá¹ anekakoá¹-idhanasannicayaá¹ƒ anurÄ• gamupagatahadayaÃ±ca parijanaá¹ƒ tiá¹‡anaá¸·am jÄ• tiÄ• dÄ«su saá¹ƒviggahadayo nikkhamitvÄ• tÄ• pasapabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbajitvÄ• mahiddhi ``buddho loke uppannoâ€™â€™ ti sutvÄ• paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ya pÄ«tiyÄ• phuá¹-asarÄ«ro bhagavantaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• vanditvÄ• cintesi --- ``handÄ• haá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravapÄ• n dibbakusumehi bhagavantaá¹ƒ pÅ«jessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti. atha so evaá¹ƒ cintetvÄ• iddhiy cittalatÄ• vanaá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• padumapÄ• ricchattakamandÄ• ravÄ• dÄ«hi dibbakusumehi r gÄ• vutappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ pÅ«retvÄ• gahetvÄ• gaganatalena Ä• gantvÄ• dibbehi surabhik ekaÃ±ca maá¹‡idaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡amayakaá¹‡á¹‡ikaá¹ƒ padumarÄ• gamaá¹‡ima sugandhakesaracchattaá¹ƒ viya padumacchattaá¹ƒ bhagavato sirasi dhÄ• rayanto catupari atha bhagavÄ• naá¹ƒ --- ``ito dvenavute kappe gotamo nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€

vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ \Ee 230/ tena samayena, sujÄ• to nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mahÄ• bhogaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• , pabbajiá¹ƒ isipabbajaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``mayi \Be 271/ pabbajite sante, uppajji lokanÄ• yako.

buddhoti saddaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na, pÄ«ti me upapajjatha ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``dibbaá¹ƒ \Ne 264/ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹

ubho hatthehi paggayha, dhunamÄ• no upÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``cÄ• tuvaá¹‡á¹‡aparivutaá¹ƒ, tissaá¹ƒ lokagganÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

tamahaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• , matthake dhÄ• rayiá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, janamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

dvenavute ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __mayi pabbajite_ti mayi pabbajitabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ upagate. ``mama pabbajitaá¹ƒ santaâ likhanti, so pamÄ• dalekhoti veditabbo. __upapajjathÄ• _ti uppajjittha. __ubho hatthehÄ«_ti __paggayhÄ• _ti gahetvÄ• na. __dhunamÄ• no_ti vÄ• kacÄ«rÄ• ni vidhunamÄ• nova. __cÄ catuparisaparivutaá¹ƒ, khattiyabrÄ• hmaá¹‡agahapatisamaá¹‡aparivutanti attho. ``catuvaá¹ nti paá¹-hanti keci.

tassa pana bhagavato khemaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. janasandho nÄ• ma khattiyo pit brahmadevo ca udayo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , samaá¹…go nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, phussÄ aggasÄ• vikÄ• , asanarukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ saá¹-á¹-hihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, vassasat subhaddÄ• nÄ• ma aggamahesÄ«, Ä• nando nÄ• ma putto, turaá¹…gayÄ• nena nikkhami.

<16> á¹• 21 ``khemakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, janasandho nÄ• ma khattiyo.

padumÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , tissassa ca mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``brahmadevo \Be 272/ \Ee 231/ ca udayo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

samaá¹…go nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, tissassa ca mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``phussÄ• \Ne 265/ ceva sudattÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, asanoti pavuccati ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``so buddho saá¹-á¹-hiratano, ahu uccattane jino.

anÅ«pamo asadiso, himavÄ• viya dissati ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, Ä• yu Ä• si anuttaro.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``uttamaá¹ƒ pavaraá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, anubhotvÄ• mahÄ• yasaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``valÄ• hakova anilena, sÅ«riyena viya ussavo.

andhakÄ• rova padÄ«pena, nibbuto so sasÄ• vakoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __uccattane_ti uccabhÄ• vena. __himavÄ• viya dissatÄ«_ti himavÄ• va padissati. a yathÄ• yojanÄ• naá¹ƒ satÄ• nucco himavÄ• paÃ±capabbato sudÅ«re á¹-hitÄ• nampi uccal atiramaá¹‡Ä«yo hutvÄ• dissati, evaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• pi dissatÄ«ti attho. __anuttaro_ti nÄ• tidÄ vassasatasahassanti attho. __uttamaá¹ƒ pavaraá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-ha_nti aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±avevaca himabindu valÄ• hakaussavaandhakÄ• rÄ• viya anilasÅ«riyadÄ«pehi aniccatÄ• nilasÅ«riya sasÄ• vako bhagavÄ• ti attho.

tisso kira bhagavÄ• sunandavatÄ«nagare sunandÄ• rÄ• me parinibbÄ• yi. sesamettha gÄ• tissabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito sattarasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

20. phussabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• tassa \Be 273/ \Ne 266/ \Ee 232/ tissassa bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge anukkamena parihÄ• y aparimitÄ• yukÄ• hutvÄ• anupubbena hÄ• yitvÄ• navutivassasahassÄ• yukesu jÄ• tesu ta nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke uppajji. sopi bhagavÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• kÄ• sikanagare jayasenaraÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• sirimÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena sirimuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. so navavass ajjhÄ• vasi. tassa kira garuá¸·apakkha-haá¹ƒsa-suvaá¹‡á¹‡abhÄ• rÄ• ti tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• a kisÄ• gotamippamukhÄ• ni tiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• kisÄ• gotamiyÄ• anupame nÄ• ma putte uppanne alaá¹…ka mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ pabbajitaá¹ƒ janakoá¹-i anupabbaji.
mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• tato gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya sattÄ• haá¹ƒ ekacariyaá¹ƒ a visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya aÃ±Ã±atare nagare aÃ±Ã±atarassa seá¹-á¹-hino dhÄ«tÄ• ya sir madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• siá¹ƒsapÄ• vane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• nÄ• ma upÄ• sakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• Ä• malakabodhiá¹ƒ up mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ patvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ bo attanÄ• saddhiá¹ƒ pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ dhammapaá¹-ivedhasam gantvÄ• saá¹…kassanagare isipatane migadÄ• ye otaritvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ majjhe dhammacakka koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``tattheva maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, ahu satthÄ• anuttaro.

anÅ«pamo asamasamo, phusso lokagganÄ• yako ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``sopi sabbaá¹ƒ tamaá¹ƒ hantvÄ• , vijaá¹-etvÄ• mahÄ• jaá¹-aá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tappayanto, abhivassi amatambunÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ \Be 274/ \Ne 267/ pavattente, phusse nakkhattamaá¹…gale

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ee 233/ __tattheva maá¹‡á¸• akappamhÄ«_ti yasmiá¹ƒ kappe dve buddhÄ• uppajjan ``maá¹‡á¸• akappoâ€™â€™ ti heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vutto. __vijaá¹-etvÄ• _ti paá¹-ivissajjetvÄ• . __m jaá¹-Ä• ti taá¹‡hÄ• yetaá¹ƒ adhivacanaá¹ƒ. sÄ• hi rÅ«pÄ• dÄ«su Ä• rammaá¹‡esu heá¹-á¹-uppajjanato saá¹ƒsibbanato suttagumbajÄ• lapÅ«vasaá¹…khÄ• tÄ• jaá¹-Ä• viyÄ• ti jaá¹-Ä• mahÄ• jaá¹-aá¹ƒ. __sadevaka_nti sadevakaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ. __abhivassÄ«_ti pÄ• vassi. __ama amatasaá¹…khÄ• tena dhammakathÄ• salilena tappayanto pÄ• vassÄ«ti attho.

yadÄ• pana bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asÄ«nagare sirivaá¸• á¸• ho nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• mahantaá¹ƒ bhogakk tÄ• pasapabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbaji. tena saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ tÄ• pasÄ• naá¹ƒ navutisatasahass bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desesi. tadÄ• navutiyÄ• satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dutiyÄ• bhisamayo a puttassa anupamakumÄ• rassa dhammaá¹ƒ desesi, tadÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ
vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``navutisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu.

asÄ«tisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tato aparena samayena kaá¹‡á¹‡akujjanagare surakkhito rÄ• japutto ca purohitaputto dham sammÄ• sambuddhe attano nagaraá¹ƒ sampatte saá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• purisasatasahassehi saddh nimantetvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• dasabalassa dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• saparivÄ• rÄ• pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ saá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• bhikkhusat bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna kÄ• sinagare jay saá¹-á¹-himattÄ• naá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• tÄ«naá¹ƒ samÄ• game buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ desesi, taá¹ƒ sutvÄ ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ majjhagato bhag uddisi, so dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna mahÄ• maá¹…galasamÄ• game maá¹…galakatha cattÄ• lÄ«sapurisasatasahassÄ• ni pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ majjh
pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• \Ne 268/ tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, phussassapi mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 234/, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• lÄ«sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anupÄ• dÄ• vimuttÄ• naá¹ƒ, vocchinnapaá¹-isandhinaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto arindamanagare vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• ma khattiyo hutvÄ• tassa pasÄ«ditvÄ• tassa mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya bhagavato santike p uggahetvÄ• tepiá¹-akadharo mahÄ• janassa dhammakathaá¹ƒ kathesi, sÄ«lapÄ• ramiÃ±ca bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• ma khattiyo.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, phusso lokagganÄ• yako.

dvenavute ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``tatthappamatto viharanto, brahmaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetva bhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaâ€™â€™ nti ||

tassa pana bhagavato kÄ• sikaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. jayaseno nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• pitÄ surakkhito ca dhammaseno ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , sabhiyo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, cÄ• lÄ aggasÄ• vikÄ• , Ä• malakarukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthubbedhaá navutivassasahassÄ• ni, kisÄ• gotamÄ« nÄ• ma aggamahesÄ«, anupamo nÄ• massa putto
vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<14> á¹• 21 ``kÄ• sikaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, jayaseno nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sirimÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , phussassÄ• pi mahesino ... pe0 \Ee 235/ ....

bodhi tassa bhagavato, Ä• maá¹‡á¸• oti pavuccati ... pe ... ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, sopi accuggato muni.

sobhate sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va, uá¸·urÄ• jÄ• va pÅ«rito ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``ovaditvÄ• bahÅ« satte, santÄ• retvÄ• bahÅ« jane.

sopi satthÄ• atulayaso, nibbuto so sasÄ• vakoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __Ä• maá¹‡á¸• o_ti Ä• malakarukkho. __ovaditvÄ• _ti ovÄ• daá¹ƒ datvÄ• , anusÄ• s atulayaso_ti sopi satthÄ• amitayasoti attho. ``so jahitvÄ• amitayasoâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho vuttappakÄ• raá¹ƒ visesaá¹ƒ hitvÄ• ti attho.

phusso kira sammÄ• sambuddho kusinÄ• rÄ• yaá¹ƒ senÄ• rÄ• me parinibbÄ• yi. dhÄ• tuyo sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

phussabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasamo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

21. vipassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• phussassa \Ne 270/ \Be 277/ buddhassa aparabhÄ• ge sÄ• ntarakappe tasmiÃ±ca kappe v vijitasabbakappo parahitaniratasaá¹…kappo sabbattha vipassÄ« __vipassÄ«_ nÄ• ma satth pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• anekaratanamaá¹‡ivisarasamujjotitabhavane tusitabhavane nibbattit bandhumatÄ«nagare anekabandhumato bandhumato raÃ±Ã±o bandhumatiyÄ• nÄ• ma agg paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. so dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena kheme migadÄ• ye mÄ puá¹‡á¹‡acando viya nikkhami. nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase panassa lakkhaá¹‡apÄ• á¹-hakÄ• ca rattiÃ±ca antarantarÄ• nimmisasaÃ±janitandhakÄ• ravirahena visuddhaá¹ƒ passanti, viv passatÄ«ti ``vipassÄ«â€™â€™ ti nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu. ``viceyya viceyya passatÄ«ti vipassÄ« aá¹-á¹-havassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. nanda-sunanda-sirimÄ• nÄ• makÄ• tay sudassanÄ• devippamukhÄ• naá¹ƒ itthÄ«naá¹ƒ satasahassaá¹ƒ vÄ«sati ca sahassÄ• ni ah sudassanÄ• vuccati. so aá¹-á¹-havassasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ samavaá¹-á¹-akkhandhe nÄ• ma tanaye jÄ• te Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ purisÄ• naá¹ƒ caturÄ• sÄ«tisatasahassÄ• ni anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. so tehi parivuto mahÄ• puriso padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya sudassanaseá¹-á¹-hidhÄ«tÄ• ya o paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• kusumasamalaá¹…kate sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• sujÄ• tena nÄ aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• pÄ• á¹-alibodhiá¹ƒ samalaá¹…kataá¹ƒ disvÄ• dakkh upÄ• gami.

tassÄ• pana pÄ• á¹-aliyÄ• samavaá¹-á¹-akkhandho taá¹ƒ divasaá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratano paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanÄ• ubbedhena ratanasataá¹ƒ ahosi. taá¹ƒdivasameva sÄ• pÄ• á¹-alÄ« pupphehi paramasurabhigandhehi mÅ«lato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya sabbasaÃ±channÄ• ahosi. dibb tadÄ• ayameva pupphito, dasasahassi cakkavÄ• á¸·esu sabbe \Be 278/ pÄ• á¹-aliyo pupph 271/ pÄ• á¹-aliyova, dasasahassicakkavÄ• á¸·esu sabbarukkhagumbalatÄ• yopi pupphiá¹ƒs paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ehi padumehi kuvalayuppalakumudehi saÃ±channo sÄ«talamadhurasalilo a dasasahassi cakkavÄ• á¸·abbhantaraá¹ƒ dhajamÄ• lÄ• kulaá¹ƒ ahosi. tattha tattha paá¹-imÄ nÄ• nÄ• surabhikusumasajjitadharaá¹‡Ä«talaá¹ƒ dhÅ«pacuá¹‡á¹‡andhakÄ• raá¹ƒ ahosi. taa tepaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• caturaá¹…gasamannÄ• g adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya --- ``yÄ• va buddho na homi, tÄ• va ito na uá¹-á¹-hahÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti pa nisÄ«di. evaá¹ƒ nisÄ«ditvÄ• samÄ• raá¹ƒ mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• maggÄ• nukkamena maggÄ• nantaraá¹ƒ cattÄ• ri phalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni catasso paá¹-isambhidÄ• catuyoniparicch paÃ±cagatiparicchedakaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ catuvesÄ• rajjaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni cha asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡a buddhaguá¹‡e hatthagate katvÄ• paripuá¹‡á¹‡asaá¹…kappo bodhipallaá¹…ke nisinnova --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• || (Dhp 153-154).

``ayoghanahatasseva, jalato jÄ• tavedaso.

anupubbÅ«pasantassa, yathÄ• na Ã±Ä• yate gati ||

``evaá¹ƒ sammÄ• vimuttÄ• naá¹ƒ, kÄ• mabandhoghatÄ• rinaá¹ƒ.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• petuá¹ƒ gatÄ« natthi, pattÄ• naá¹ƒ acalaá¹ƒ sukhaâ€™â€™ nti || (Ud 80) --- evaá¹ƒ \Ee 237/ udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• bodhisamÄ«peyeva sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• n sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• attano vemÄ• tikassa bhÄ• tikassa khaá¹‡á¸• akumÄ• rassa ca purohita upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sena gantvÄ• kheme migadÄ• ye otaritvÄ• ubho pakkosÄ• petvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ parivÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ• apa

dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``phussassa ca aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

vipassÄ« nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, loke uppajji cakkhumÄ• ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``avijjaá¹ƒ \Be 279/ sabbaá¹ƒ padÄ• letvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattetuá¹ƒ, pakkÄ• mi bandhumatÄ«puraá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ \Ne 272/ pavattetvÄ• , ubho bodhesi nÄ• yako.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __padÄ• letvÄ• _ti bhinditvÄ• , avijjandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ bhinditvÄ• ti attho. ``vattetvÄ• ca tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa __Ä• rÄ• me_ti kheme migadÄ• yeti attho. __ubho bodhesÄ«_ti attano khaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ rÄ• japuttaá¹ƒ tissaÃ±ca purohitaputtanti ubho bodhesi. __gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na abhisamayavasena gaá¹‡anapariccheda natthÄ«ti attho.

athÄ• parena samayena khaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ rÄ• japuttaá¹ƒ tissaÃ±ca purohitaputtaá¹ƒ anupabb caturÄ• sÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• ni dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi. so dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi.

<4> á¹• 21 ``punÄ• paraá¹ƒ amitayaso, tattha saccaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayi.

caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __tatthÄ• _ti kheme migadÄ• yeti attho. ``caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• ni, sambuddhaman ete pana caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassasaá¹…khÄ• tÄ• purisÄ• vipassissa kumÄ• rassa upaá¹-á¹-h vipassikumÄ• rassa upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• gantvÄ• kumÄ• ramadisvÄ• pÄ• tarÄ• satthÄ• ``kuhiá¹ƒ kumÄ• roâ€™â€™ ti pucchitvÄ• tato ``uyyÄ• nabhÅ«miá¹ƒ gatoâ€™â€™ ti sutvÄ dakkhissÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti nikkhantÄ• nivattamÄ• naá¹ƒ tassa sÄ• rathiá¹ƒ disvÄ• ``kum sutaá¹-á¹-hÄ• neyeva sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni muÃ±citvÄ• antarÄ• paá¹‡ato \Ee 238/ kÄ• sÄ kesamassuá¹ƒ ohÄ• retvÄ• pabbajiá¹ƒsu. pabbajitvÄ• ca te gantvÄ• mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ par tato vipassÄ« bodhisatto ``padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caranto Ä• kiá¹‡á¹‡o viharÄ• mi, na kho par yatheva maá¹ƒ ime gihibhÅ«tÄ• pubbe parivÄ• retvÄ• caranti, idÄ• nipi tatheva kiá¹ƒ iminÄ gaá¹‡asaá¹…gaá¹‡ikÄ• ya ukkaá¹‡á¹-hitvÄ• ``ajjeva gacchÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintetvÄ• pu panÄ• haá¹ƒ \Be 280/ ajja gamissÄ• mi, sabbepime jÄ• nissanti, sveva gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â taá¹ƒdivasaÃ±ca uruvelagÄ• masadise ekasmiá¹ƒ gÄ• me gÄ• mavÄ• sino manussÄ• svÄ• mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ nimantayiá¹ƒsu. te tesaá¹ƒ caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ mahÄ• purisassa paá¹-iyÄ• dayiá¹ƒsu. atha vipassÄ« mahÄ• puriso punadivase visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya ta pabbajitajanehi saddhiá¹ƒ bhattakiccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• vasanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nameva agamÄ• si. tatra mahÄ• purisassa vattaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• attano attano rattiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nadivÄ• á¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ni bodhisattopi paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• laá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• nisinno cintesi --- ``ayaá¹ƒ kÄ• lo nikkhamituâ€ nikkhamitvÄ• paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• ladvÄ• raá¹ƒ pidahitvÄ• bodhimaá¹‡á¸• Ä• bhimukho pÄ• yÄ• bodhisattassa upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ gantvÄ• paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• laá¹ƒ parivÄ• retvÄ• nisinnÄ• --- upadhÄ• rethÄ• â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ• paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• ladvÄ• raá¹ƒ vivaritvÄ• taá¹ƒ apassantÄ mahÄ• purisoâ€™â€™ ti nÄ• nubandhiá¹ƒsu. ``gaá¹‡avÄ• se nibbinno eko viharitukÄ• mo buddhabhÅ«taá¹ƒyeva taá¹ƒ passissÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti antojambudÄ«pÄ• bhimukhÄ• cÄ• ``vipassinÄ• kira buddhattaá¹ƒ patvÄ• dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattitaâ€™â€™ nti sutvÄ• anu bandhumatiyÄ• rÄ• jadhÄ• niyÄ• kheme migadÄ• ye sannipatiá¹ƒsu. tato tesaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ caturÄ• sÄ«tiyÄ• bhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. so tatiyo abhisamay

<5> á¹• 21 ``caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• ni, sambuddhaá¹ƒ anupabbajuá¹ƒ.

tesamÄ• rÄ• mapattÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammaá¹ƒ desesi cakkhumÄ• ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``sabbÄ• kÄ• rena bhÄ• sato, sutvÄ• upanisÄ• dino.

tepi dhammavaraá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha __caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• ni, sambuddhaá¹ƒ anupabbaju_nti ettha anunÄ• yogato sa upayogavacanaá¹ƒ katanti veditabbaá¹ƒ, sambuddhassa pacchÄ• pabbajiá¹ƒsÅ«ti attho. la gahetabbaá¹ƒ. ``tattha Ä• rÄ• mapattÄ• naâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __bhÄ• sato_ti vadato.

gantvÄ• upanissÄ• ya dhammadÄ• naá¹ƒ dadatoti attho. __tepÄ«_ti te caturÄ• sÄ«tisahass pabbajitÄ• vipassissa upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kabhÅ«tÄ• . __gantvÄ• _ti tassa dhammaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• .
abhisamayo ahosi. kheme migadÄ• ye vipassÄ«sammÄ• sambuddhaá¹ƒ dve ca aggasÄ• va bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hasaá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe nisinno vipassÄ« bhagavÄ• ``khantÄ«paramaá¹ƒ tapo titikkhÄ• , nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ paramaá¹ƒ vadanti buddhÄ• .

na hi pabbajito parÅ«paghÄ• tÄ«, na samaá¹‡o hoti paraá¹ƒ viheá¹-hayanto ||

``sabbapÄ• passa \Ne 274/ akaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ, kusalassa upasampadÄ• .

sacittapariyodapanaá¹ƒ, etaá¹ƒ buddhÄ• na sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

``anÅ«pavÄ• do anÅ«paghÄ• to, pÄ• timokkhe ca saá¹ƒvaro.

mattaÃ±Ã±utÄ• ca bhattasmiá¹ƒ, pantaÃ±ca sayanÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

adhicitte ca Ä• yogo, etaá¹ƒ buddhÄ• na sÄ• sanaâ€™â€™ nti || (DN II 90; Dhp 183, 184, 1

imaá¹ƒ pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. imÄ• pana sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• timokkhuddesagÄ• th paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi. puna yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ bh satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dutiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. yadÄ• pana vipassissa vemÄ• tikÄ• tayo bh vÅ«pasametvÄ• bhagavato upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nakiriyÄ• ya laddhavarÄ• hutvÄ• attano nagaraá tassa dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pabbajiá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ asÄ«tisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe nisÄ«dit migadÄ• ye pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, vipassissa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-hasaá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

bhikkhusatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``asÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

tattha bhikkhugaá¹‡amajjhe, sambuddho atirocatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Be 282/ __aá¹-á¹-hasaá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• na_nti aá¹-á¹-hasaá¹-á¹-hisahassÄ• dhi satasahassabhikkhÅ«nanti attho. __tatthÄ• _ti \Ee 240/ tattha kheme migadÄ• ye. __bhikkh bhikkhugaá¹‡assa majjhe. ``tassa bhikkhugaá¹‡amajjheâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa bhikk attho.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto mahiddhiko mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo atulo nÄ• ma nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• anekanÄ• gakoá¹-isatasahassaparivÄ• ro hutvÄ• saparivÄ• rassa dasabalassa asamabala karuá¹‡Ä• sÄ«talahadayassa \Ne 275/ sakkÄ• rakaraá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ cand daá¹-á¹-habbasÄ• ramaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• apaá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• tattha nisÄ«dÄ• petvÄ• s dibbavibhavÄ• nurÅ«paá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• sattaratanakhacitaá¹ƒ mahÄ• rahaá¹ƒ nÄ• nÄ• maá¹‡ijutivisarasamujjalaá¹ƒ pÄ«á¹-haá¹ƒ bhagavato adÄ• si. tadÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ«á¹-ayaá¹ƒ ekanavutikappe buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• mahiddhiko.

atulo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, puÃ±Ã±avanto jutindharo ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``nekÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• gakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, parivÄ• retvÄ• nahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

vajjanto dibbaturiyehi, lokajeá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ upÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• sambuddhaá¹ƒ, vipassiá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

maá¹‡imuttaratanakhacitaá¹ƒ, sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡abhÅ«sitaá¹ƒ.

nimantetvÄ• dhammarÄ• jassa, suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ«á¹-hamadÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

ekanavutito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``ajapÄ• larukkhamÅ«lasmiá¹ƒ, nisÄ«ditvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

tattha pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paggayha, neraÃ±jaramupehiti ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``neraÃ±jarÄ• ya tÄ«ramhi, pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ ada so jino.

paá¹-iyattavaramaggena, bodhimÅ«lamupehiti ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tato \Be 283/ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ anuttaro.

assatthamÅ«le sambodhiá¹ƒ, bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``imassa janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``anÄ• savÄ• \Ne 276/ \Ee 241/ vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

kolito upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissatimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati ... pe ... ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __puÃ±Ã±avanto_ti puÃ±Ã±avÄ• , samupacitapuÃ±Ã±asaÃ±cayoti attho. __jutindhar __nekÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• gakoá¹-Ä«na_nti anekÄ• hi nÄ• gakoá¹-Ä«hi, karaá¹‡atthe sÄ• mivacan __parivÄ• retvÄ• nÄ• _ti bhagavantaá¹ƒ parivÄ• retvÄ• . __aha_nti attÄ• naá¹ƒ niddisati. __
tÄ• á¸·ento. __maá¹‡imuttaratanakhacita_nti maá¹‡imuttÄ• dÄ«hi vividhehi ratanehi khacita __sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡abhÅ«sita_nti sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡ehi vÄ• á¸·arÅ«pÄ• dÄ«hi ratanamayehi __suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ«á¹-ha_nti suvaá¹‡á¹‡amayaá¹ƒ pÄ«á¹-haá¹ƒ. __adÄ• saha_nti adÄ• siá¹ tassa pana vipassissa bhagavato bandhumatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. bandhumÄ• nÄ• nÄ• ma mÄ• tÄ• , khaá¹‡á¸• o ca tisso ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , asoko nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• k aggasÄ• vikÄ• , pÄ• á¹-alirukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ asÄ«tihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, sarÄ«rap satta yojanÄ• ni pharitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si asÄ«tivassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu, sutanu nÄ• massa samavaá¹-á¹-akkhandho nÄ• massa putto, Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <24> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ \Be 284/ bandhumatÄ« nÄ• ma, bandhumÄ• nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• bandhumatÄ« nÄ• ma, vipassissa mahesino ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``khaá¹‡á¸• o \Ee 242/ ca tissanÄ• mo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

asoko nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, vipassissa mahesino ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``candÄ• \Ne 277/ ca candamittÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, pÄ• á¹-alÄ«ti pavuccati ||

<32> á¹• 21 ``asÄ«tihatthamubbedho, vipassÄ« lokanÄ• yako.

pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vatÄ« tassa, samantÄ• sattayojane ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``asÄ«tivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu buddhassa tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<34> á¹• 21 ``bahudevamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ, bandhanÄ• parimocayi.

maggÄ• maggaÃ±ca Ä• cikkhi, avasesaputhujjane ||

<35> á¹• 21 ``Ä• lokaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• na, desetvÄ• amataá¹ƒ padaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<36> á¹• 21 ``iddhivaraá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±avaraá¹ƒ, lakkhaá¹‡aÃ±ca kusumitaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __bandhanÄ• _ti devamanusse kÄ• marÄ• gasaá¹ƒyojanÄ• dibandhanÄ• mocesi, vi __maggÄ• maggaÃ±ca Ä• cikkhÄ«_ti ``amatÄ• dhigamÄ• ya ayaá¹ƒ maggo ucchedasassat paá¹-ipadÄ• maggo kÄ• yakilamathÄ• diko nÄ• yaá¹ƒ maggoâ€™â€™ ti sesaputhujjane Ä• dassayitvÄ• nÄ• _ti maggaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• lokaá¹ƒ vipassanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡Ä• lokaÃ±ca dassayitv cittalakkhaá¹‡Ä• dÄ«hi phullitaá¹ƒ maá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒ bhagavato sarÄ«ranti attho. sesaá¹ƒ sab uttÄ• namevÄ• ti.

vipassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito ekÅ«navÄ«satimo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

22. sikhÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• vipassissa \Be 285/ \Ne 278/ \Ee 243/ aparabhÄ• ge antarahite ca tasmiá¹ƒ kappe tato para ekÅ«nasaá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• kappesu buddhÄ• loke na uppajjiá¹ƒsu. apagatabuddhÄ• loko ahosi. ekarajjaá¹ƒ apagatakaá¹‡á¹-akaá¹ƒ ahosi. ito pana ekattiá¹ƒsakappe siniddhasukkhasÄ• rac pahÅ«tasappisitto nidhÅ«mo sikhÄ« viya __sikhÄ«_ ca __vessabhÅ«_ cÄ• ti dve sammÄ• s tattha __sikhÄ«_ pana bhagavÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitv aruá¹‡avatÄ«nagare paramaguá¹‡avato aruá¹‡avato nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• rattakanakapaá¹-ibimbarucirappabhÄ• ya pabhÄ• vatiyÄ• nÄ• ma deviyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ pa mÄ• se vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• nisabhuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. nemittikÄ• panassa nÄ sikhÄ• viya uggatattÄ• ``sikhÄ«â€™â€™ ti nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu. so sattavassasahassÄ• ni sucandakasirÄ«giriyasanÄ• rivasabha nÄ• makÄ• tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. sabbakÄ• n itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• sabbakÄ• mÄ• deviyÄ• guá¹‡agaá¹‡Ä• tule atule nÄ• ma pu hatthikkhandhavaragato mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ sattatipurisa anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. so tehi parivuto aá¹-á¹-hamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• k gaá¹‡asaá¹…gaá¹‡ikaá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya sudassananigame piyadassÄ«seá¹-á¹-hino dhÄ«tuyÄ• paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• taruá¹‡akhadiravane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• anomadassinÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha kusatiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«kabodhiá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami. tassÄ puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«kabodhiyÄ• pi pÄ• á¹-aliyÄ• pamÄ• á¹‡ameva pamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi. taá¹ƒdiv paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanakkhandho hutvÄ• abbhuggato, sÄ• khÄ• pissa paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanam pupphehi saÃ±channo ahosi. na kevalaá¹ƒ puppheheva, phalehipi saÃ±channo ahosi. tassa phalÄ• ni ekato majjhimÄ• ni ekato nÄ• tipakkÄ• ni ekato pakkhittadibbojÄ• ni viya surasÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡agandharasasampannÄ• ni tato tato olambanti. yathÄ• ca so \Be 286/, evaá¹ƒ das pupphÅ«pagÄ• rukkhÄ• pupphehi phalÅ«pagÄ• rukkhÄ• phalehi paá¹-imaá¹‡á¸• itÄ• ahe so \Ne 279/ tattha catuvÄ«satihatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…ka caturaá¹…gavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya nisÄ«di. evaá¹ƒ nisÄ«ditvÄ• chattiá¹ƒsa yojanavit mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• bodhisamÄ«peyeva sattasattÄ• haá¹ brahmÄ• yÄ• canaá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ sattatiyÄ• bhikkh upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ disvÄ• surapathena gantvÄ• vividhÄ• varaá¹‡avatiyÄ• aruá¹‡avat migÄ• jinuyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• tehi munigaá¹‡ehi parivuto tesaá¹ƒ majjhe dhammacakkaá¹ƒ p koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``vipassissa \Ee 244/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

sikhivhayo Ä• si jino, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``mÄ• rasenaá¹ƒ pamadditvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi, anukampÄ• ya pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, sikhimhi jinapuá¹…gave.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

punapi aruá¹‡avatiyÄ• rÄ• jadhÄ• niyÄ• samÄ«peyeva abhibhÅ«rÄ• japuttassa ca sambh dvinnaá¹ƒ saparivÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni dhammÄ• m abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``aparampi dhammaá¹ƒ desente, gaá¹‡aseá¹-á¹-he naruttame.

navuttikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

yadÄ• pana sÅ«riyavatÄ«nagaradvÄ• re campakarukkhamÅ«le titthiyamadamÄ• nabhaÃ± sabbajanabandhanamokkhatthaÃ±ca yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ karonto bhagavÄ• dhamm asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaÃ±ca \Ne 280/, dassayante sadevake.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

abhibhunÄ• ca sambhavena ca rÄ• japuttena saddhiá¹ƒ pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ arahantÄ• naá¹ƒ nisÄ«ditvÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so paá¹-hamo sannipÄ• to ahosi, aruá¹‡avatÄ«nagare pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ asÄ«tiyÄ• bhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe nisÄ«ditvÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ u ahosi. dhanaÃ±jayanagare dhanapÄ• lakanÄ• gavinayanasamaye pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ sattatiy majjhe bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sikhissÄ• pi mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``bhikkhusatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

asÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``sattatibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 245/, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anupalitto padumaá¹ƒva, toyamhi sampavaá¸• á¸• hitaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __anupalitto padumaá¹ƒvÄ• _ti toye jÄ• taá¹ƒ toyeva vaá¸• á¸• hitaá¹ƒ padumaá¹ƒ vi sopi bhikkhusannipÄ• to loke jÄ• topi lokadhammehi anupalitto ahosÄ«ti attho.

tadÄ• kira amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto katthaci asaá¹ƒsaá¹-á¹-ho paribhuttanagare arindamo r sikhimhi satthari paribhuttanagaramanuppatte saparivÄ• ro rÄ• jÄ• bhagavato paccuggantv pasÄ• davaá¸• á¸• hitahadayanayanasoto dasabalassa amalacaraá¹‡akamalayugaá¸·esu sa abhivanditvÄ• dasabalaá¹ƒ nimantetvÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ issariyakulavibhavasaddhÄ• nurÅ«p dussabhaá¹‡á¸• Ä• gÄ• radvÄ• rÄ• ni vivarÄ• petvÄ• buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaá¹…g vatthÄ• ni adÄ• si. attano ca balarÅ«palakkhaá¹‡ajavasampannahemajÄ• lamÄ• lÄ• samala navakanakaruciradaá¹‡á¸• akosacÄ• marayugavirÄ• jitaá¹ƒ vipulamudukaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ canda erÄ• vaá¹‡avÄ• raá¹‡amiva arivÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ varavÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ datvÄ• vÄ• raá¹‡appamÄ• kappiyabhaá¹‡á¸• aÃ±ca adÄ• si. sopi naá¹ƒ satthÄ• --- ``ito ekattiá¹ƒsakappe buddho bhav byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, arindamo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, annapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``bahuá¹ƒ dussavaraá¹ƒ datvÄ• , dussakoá¹-iá¹ƒ anappakaá¹ƒ.

alaá¹…kataá¹ƒ hatthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ, sambuddhassa adÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``hatthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ nimminitvÄ• , kappiyaá¹ƒ upanÄ• mayiá¹ƒ.

pÅ«rayiá¹ƒ mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ, niccaá¹ƒ daá¸·hamupaá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, sikhÄ« lokagganÄ• yako.

ekattiá¹ƒse ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __nimminitvÄ• _ti tassa hatthino pamÄ• á¹‡ena tulayitvÄ• . __kappiya_nti kappiyabh bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ yaá¹ƒ bhaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ kappati gahetuá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ kappiyabhaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ nÄ• n mayha_nti mama cittaá¹ƒ dÄ• napÄ«tiyÄ• pÅ«rayiá¹ƒ, mayhaá¹ƒ hÄ• suppÄ• danasamatth __niccaá¹ƒ daá¸·hamupaá¹-á¹-hita_nti niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ dÄ• naá¹ƒ dassÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti dÄ upaá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ cittanti attho.

tassa pana bhagavato nagaraá¹ƒ aruá¹‡avatÄ« nÄ• ma ahosi. aruá¹‡avÄ• nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , abhibhÅ« ca sambhavo ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , khemaá¹…karo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-h aggasÄ• vikÄ• , puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«karukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raÃ±cassa sattatihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ aho niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ yojanattayaá¹ƒ pharitvÄ• \Ee 246/ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. sattativassasahassÄ• ni Ä• nÄ• massa aggamahesÄ«, atulo nÄ• massa putto, hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ - <15> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ \Ne 282/ aruá¹‡avatÄ« nÄ• ma, aruá¹‡o nÄ• ma khattiyo.

pabhÄ• vatÄ« nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sikhissÄ• pi mahesino ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``abhibhÅ« sambhavo ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

khemaá¹…karo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sikhissÄ• pi mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``sakhilÄ• ca padumÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«koti vuccati ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``sirivaá¸• á¸• ho ca nando ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

cittÄ• ceva suguttÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``uccattanena so buddho, sattatihatthamuggato.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi byÄ• mappabhÄ• kÄ• yÄ• , divÄ• rattiá¹ƒ nirantaraá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ niccharanti, tÄ«á¹‡i yojanaso pabhÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``sattativassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``dhammameghaá¹ƒ pavassetvÄ• , temayitvÄ• sadevake.

khemantaá¹ƒ pÄ• payitvÄ• na, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``anubyaÃ±janasampannaá¹ƒ, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«ko_ti \Ee 247/ setambarukkho. __tÄ«á¹‡i yojanaso pabhÄ• _ti tÄ«á¹ niccharantÄ«ti attho. __dhammamegha_nti dhammavassaá¹ƒ, dhammavassanako buddhan dhammakathÄ• salilena temetvÄ• , siÃ±citvÄ• ti attho. __sadevake_ti sadevake satte. __kh nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be 290/ \Ne 283/. __anubyaÃ±janasampanna_nti tambanakhatuá¹…ganÄ• sa asÄ«tiyÄ• anubyaÃ±janehi sampannaá¹ƒ, dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡apaá¹-imaá¹‡a sarÄ«ranti attho. sikhÄ« kira sammÄ• sambuddho sÄ«lavatÄ«nagare assÄ• rÄ• me parinibb ``sikhÄ«va loke tapasÄ• jalitvÄ• , sikhÄ«va meghÄ• gamane naditvÄ• .

sikhÄ« mahesindhanavippahÄ«no, sikhÄ«va santiá¹ƒ sugato gato soâ€™â€™ || sikhissa kira bhagavato dhÄ• tuyo ekagghanÄ• va hutvÄ• aá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒsu na vippakiriá¹ƒsu sakalajambudÄ«pavÄ• sino pana manussÄ• tiyojanubbedhaá¹ƒ sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ himag thÅ«pamakaá¹ƒsu. sesamettha gÄ• thÄ• su pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

sikhÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito vÄ«satimo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

23. vessabhÅ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• sikhissa \Ne 284/ pana sammÄ• sambuddhassa aparabhÄ• ge antarahite tassa sÄ• sane s manussÄ• anukkamena parihÄ• yitvÄ• dasavassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. puna vaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ anukkamena parihÄ• yitvÄ• saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. tadÄ• vijitamanob sayambhÅ« __vessabhÅ«_ nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke udapÄ• di. so pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusit cavitvÄ• anomanagare suppatÄ«tassa suppatÄ«tassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o aggamahesiyÄ• s kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. so dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena anupamu nikkhami. jÄ• yamÄ• nova janaá¹ƒ tosento vasabhanÄ• daá¹ƒ nadi. tasmÄ• vasabhanÄ• da nÄ• maggahaá¹‡adivase ``vessabhÅ«â€™â€™ ti nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu \Ee 248/. so chabbass ajjhÄ• vasi. ruci-suruci-rativaá¸• á¸• hananÄ• makÄ• tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• tassa \Be 291/ ahes sucittÄ• devippamukhÄ• ni tiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• sucittÄ• ya nÄ• ma deviyÄ• suppabuddhe nÄ• ma kumÄ• re uyyÄ• nadassanatthÄ• ya gantvÄ• devadattÄ• ni kÄ• sÄ• yÄ• ni gahetvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ s anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. atha so tehi parivuto cha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khap sucittanigame sandissamÄ• nasarÄ«rÄ• ya sirivaá¸• á¸• hanÄ• ya nÄ• ma dinnaá¹ƒ madhup sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye narindanÄ• garÄ• jena d tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• sÄ• labodhiá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡ato upÄ• gami. tassÄ• pi sÄ• lassa pamÄ• á¹‡ameva pamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi. tatheva pupphaphalasirivibhavo veditabbo. so sÄ• cattÄ• lÄ«sahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• v sabbakÄ• mamadÄ• varaá¹‡aá¹ƒ anÄ• varaá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ paá¹-ilabhitvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ tat kaniá¹-á¹-habhÄ• tikassa soá¹‡akumÄ• rassa uttarakumÄ• rassa ca upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ anomanagarasamÄ«pe aruá¹‡uyyÄ• ne otaritvÄ• uyyÄ• napÄ• lena kumÄ• re pakkosÄ• pe majjhe dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo abh puna \Ne 285/ janapadacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caranto bhagavÄ• tattha tattha dhammaá¹ƒ desento sa koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi, so dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi. anomanaga bhindanto titthiyamÄ• naddhajaá¹ƒ pÄ• tento mÄ• namadaá¹ƒ viddhaá¹ƒsento dhammaddha navutiyojanavitthatÄ• ya manussaparisÄ• ya parimÄ• á¹‡arahitÄ• ya devaparisÄ• ya yamak devamanusse pasÄ• detvÄ• saá¹-á¹-hikoá¹-iyo dhammÄ• matena tappesi, so tatiyo abhisam

---

<1> á¹• 21 ``tattheva maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo.

vessabhÅ« nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, loke uppajji nÄ• yako ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``Ä• dittaá¹ƒ \Be 292/ vata rÄ• gaggi, taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ vijitaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

nÄ• gova bandhanaá¹ƒ chetvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, vessabhÅ«lokanÄ• yake.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``pakkante \Ee 249/ cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ raá¹-á¹-he, lokajeá¹-á¹-he narÄ• sabhe.

sattatikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• diá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ vinodento, pÄ• á¹-iheraá¹ƒ karoti so.

samÄ• gatÄ• naramarÅ«, dasasahassÄ« sadevake ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• acchariyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , abbhutaá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

devÄ• ceva manussÄ• ca, bujjhare saá¹-á¹-hikoá¹-iyoâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __Ä• ditta_nti sakalamidaá¹ƒ lokattayaá¹ƒ sampadittaá¹ƒ. __rÄ• gaggÄ«_ti rÄ• gena. vijita_nti taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ vijitaá¹ƒ raá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ vasavattiá¹-á¹-hÄ• nanti evaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• ti at bandhanaá¹ƒ chetvÄ• _ti hatthÄ« viya pÅ«tilatÄ• bandhanaá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ pat __dasasahassÄ«_ti dasasahassiyaá¹ƒ. __sadevake_ti sadevake loke. __bujjhare_ti bujjhiá¹ soá¹‡uttarÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 286/ pana dvinnaá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ samÄ• game pabbajitÄ arahantasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so p yadÄ• pana vessabhunÄ• sabbalokÄ• bhibhunÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• sattattiá¹ƒsasahassasa ohÄ«nasamaye pakkantÄ• , te vessabhussa sammÄ• sambuddhassa dhammacakkappavat nagaraá¹ƒ Ä• gantvÄ• bhagavantaá¹ƒ addasaá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• dhammaá¹ƒ desetv ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbÄ• jetvÄ• caturaá¹…gasamannÄ• gatÄ• ya parisÄ• ya pÄ• tim sannipÄ• to ahosi.

yadÄ• pana nÄ• rivÄ• hananagare upasanto nÄ• ma rÄ• japutto rajjaá¹ƒ kÄ• resi, tassÄ• n agamÄ• si, sopi bhagavato Ä• gamanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• saparivÄ• ro bhagavato paccuggamanaá mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• tassa dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pasannahadayo pabbaji. taá¹ƒ saá¹-á¹ \Be 293/ anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. te tena saddhiá¹ƒ arahattaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. so tehi parivuto v pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi, so tatiyo sannipÄ• to ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, vessabhussa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``asÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

sattatibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``saá¹-á¹-hibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 250/, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

jarÄ• dibhayatÄ«tÄ• naá¹ƒ, orasÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto sarabhavatÄ«nagare paramapiyadassano sudassano nÄ• m lokanÄ• yake sarabhanagaramupagate tassa dhammaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pasannahadayo dasanak jalajÄ• malÄ• vikalakamalamakulasadisamaÃ±jaliá¹ƒ sirasi katvÄ• buddhappamukhassa sa mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• tattheva bhagavato nivÄ• satthÄ• ya gandhakuá¹-iá¹ƒ katvÄ• taá vihÄ• rasahassaá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• sabbaÃ±ca vibhavajÄ• taá¹ƒ bhagavato sÄ• sane pariccajit pabbajitvÄ• Ä• cÄ• raguá¹‡asampanno terasadhutaguá¹‡esu nirato bodhisambhÄ• rapariyo buddhasÄ• sanÄ• bhirato vihÄ• si. sopi taá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• byÄ• kÄ• si --- ``anÄ• gate ito ekat nÄ• ma buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<10> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sudassano nÄ• ma khattiyo.

nimantetvÄ• mahÄ• vÄ«raá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• mahÄ• rahaá¹ƒ.

annapÄ• nena vatthena, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ jinapÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``tassa buddhassa asamassa, cakkaá¹ƒ vattitamuttamaá¹ƒ.

sutvÄ• na paá¹‡itaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, pabbajjamabhirocayiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ pavattetvÄ• , rattindivamatandito.

pabbajjaá¹ƒ guá¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ jinasantike ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``Ä• cÄ• raguá¹‡asampanno, vattasÄ«lasamÄ• hito.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ gavesanto, ramÄ• mi jinasÄ• sane ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``saddhÄ• pÄ«tiá¹ƒ \Be 294/ upagantvÄ• , buddhaá¹ƒ vandÄ• mi sattharaá¹ƒ.

pÄ«ti uppajjati mayhaá¹ƒ, bodhiyÄ• yeva kÄ• raá¹‡Ä• ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``anivattamÄ• nasaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• , sambuddho etadabravi.

ekattiá¹ƒse ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhaá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __cakkaá¹ƒ vattita_nti dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattitaá¹ƒ. __paá¹‡Ä«taá¹ƒ dhamma_nti u __pabbajjaá¹ƒ guá¹‡asampanna_nti Ã±atvÄ• pabbajinti attho. __vattasÄ«lasamÄ• hito_ti va samÄ• hito. tesaá¹ƒ tesaá¹ƒ pÅ«raá¹‡e samÄ• hitoti attho. __ramÄ• mÄ«_ti abhiramiá¹ƒ. __
saddhaÃ±ca pÄ«tiÃ±ca upagantvÄ• . __vandÄ• mÄ«_ti abhivandiá¹ƒ, atÄ«tatthe vattamÄ• n __satthara_nti satthÄ• raá¹ƒ. __anivattamÄ• nasa_nti anosakkiyamÄ• namÄ• nasaá¹ƒ.

tassa \Ne 288/ \Ee 251/ pana bhagavato anomaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. suppatÄ«to n yasavatÄ« nÄ• ma mÄ• tÄ• , soá¹‡o ca uttaro ca dve aggasÄ• vakÄ• , upasanto nÄ• mupaá ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , sÄ• larukkho bodhi, sarÄ«raá¹ƒ saá¹-á¹-hihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi. sa Ä• yu, sucittÄ• nÄ• massa bhariyÄ• , suppabuddho nÄ• massa putto, suvaá¹‡á¹‡asivikÄ• y

<18> á¹• 21 ``anomaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, suppatÄ«to nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• yasavatÄ« nÄ• ma, vessabhussa mahesino ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``soá¹‡o ca uttaro ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

upasanto nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, vessabhussa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``rÄ• mÄ• ceva samÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• sÄ• loti vuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``sotthiko \Be 295/ ceva rammo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

gotamÄ« sirimÄ• ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``saá¹-á¹-hiratanamubbedho, hemayÅ«pasamÅ«pamo.

kÄ• yÄ• niccharatÄ« rasmi, rattiá¹ƒva pabbate sikhÄ« ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi, janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``dhammaá¹ƒ vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , vibhajitvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

dhammanÄ• vaá¹ƒ á¹-hapetvÄ• na, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``dassaneyyaá¹ƒ sabbajanaá¹ƒ, vihÄ• raá¹ƒ iriyÄ• pathaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha \Ne 289/ __hemayÅ«pasamÅ«pamo_ti \Ee 252/ suvaá¹‡á¹‡atthambhasadisoti attho.
ca sandhÄ• vati. __rasmÄ«_ti pabhÄ• rasmi. __rattiá¹ƒva pabbate sikhÄ«_ti rattiyaá¹ƒ pabb raá¹ƒsivijjotÄ• tassa kÄ• yeti attho. __vibhajitvÄ• _ti vibhÄ• gaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , ugghaá¹-itÄ• div sotÄ• pannÄ• divasena cÄ• ti attho. __dhammanÄ• va_nti aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gamaggasaá¹…khÄ caturoghanittharaá¹‡atthÄ• ya á¹-hapetvÄ• ti attho. __dassaneyya_nti dassanÄ«yo. __sabb sasÄ• vakasaá¹…gho sammÄ• sambuddhoti attho. __vihÄ• ra_nti vihÄ• ro, sabbattha pacc daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ.

vessabhÅ« kira bhagavÄ• usabhavatÄ«nagare kheme migadÄ• ye parinibbÄ• yi. dhÄ• tuy ``usabhavatipure puruttame, jinavasabho bhagavÄ• hi vessabhÅ«.

upavanavihare manorame, nirupadhisesamupÄ• gato kirÄ• â€™â€™ ti || sesaá¹ƒ sabbattha gÄ• thÄ• su pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

vessabhÅ«buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito ekavÄ«satimo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

24. kakusandhabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• vessabhumhi \Be 296/ \Ne 290/ sayambhumhi parinibbute tasmiá¹ƒ pana kappe atikkante e jinadivasakarÄ• nuppajjiá¹ƒsu. imasmiá¹ƒ pana bhaddakappe cattÄ• ro buddhÄ• nibbattiá¹ __kakusandho koá¹‡Ä• gamano kassapo amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ buddho_ti. __metteyyo_ pana bhaga kappo paÃ±cahi buddhuppÄ• dehi paá¹-imaá¹‡á¸• itattÄ• bhaddakappoti bhagavatÄ• vaá¹ nÄ• ma bhagavÄ• pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• \Ee 253/ tato cavitvÄ• kh khemaá¹…karassa nÄ• ma raÃ±Ã±o atthadhammÄ• nusÄ• sakassa aggidattassa nÄ• ma p visÄ• khÄ• ya nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ aggahesi. yadÄ• pa sakkaronti garukaronti mÄ• nenti pÅ«jenti, tadÄ• bodhisattÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule nibbattant yadÄ• pana brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• khattiye sakkaronti garukaronti mÄ• nenti pÅ«jenti, tadÄ• kha tadÄ• kira brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• khattiyehi sakkarÄ«yanti garukarÄ«yanti, tasmÄ• saccasandho vibhavasirisamudayenÄ• kule anÄ• kule brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuá¹ƒ unn heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttappakÄ• rÄ• ni pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyÄ• ni nibbattiá¹ƒsu. tato dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ khemavatuyyÄ• ne mÄ• tukucchito suvaá¹‡á¹‡alatÄ• to aggijÄ• lo viya nikkhami. so cattÄ• r agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. tassa kira kÄ• makÄ• mavaá¹‡á¹‡akÄ• masuddhinÄ• makÄ• tayo p rocinÄ«brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä«pamukhÄ• ni tiá¹ƒsa itthisahassÄ• ni paccupaá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• rociniyÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• anuttare uttare nÄ• ma kumÄ• re Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. taá¹ƒ cattÄ• lÄ«sasah tehi parivuto aá¹-á¹-ha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya su vajirindhabrÄ• hmaá¹‡assa dhÄ«tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• kha katvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye subhaddena nÄ• ma yavapÄ• lakena upanÄ«tÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡ sirÄ«sabodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-aliyÄ• \Be 297/ \Ne 291/ vuttappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ dibbagandhaá¹ƒ upa catuttiá¹ƒsahatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• sa ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ cattÄ• lÄ«sÄ• ya bhikkh saccappaá¹-ivedhasamatthataá¹ƒ disvÄ• ekÄ• heneva makilanagarasamÄ«pe sambhÅ«taá migadÄ• yaá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ majjhagato bhagavÄ• dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi. tadÄ koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamo dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi.

puna kaá¹‡á¹‡akujjanagaradvÄ• re mahÄ• sÄ• larukkhamÅ«le yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammacakkhuá¹ƒ uppÄ• desi, so dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi. y khemavatÄ«nagarassÄ• vidÅ«re aÃ±Ã±atarasmiá¹ƒ devÄ• yatane abhimatanaradevo narad dissamÄ• namanussasarÄ«ro hutvÄ• kantÄ• ramajjhe ekassa kamalakuvalayuppalasamala paramamadhurasisiravÄ• rino sabbajanasurabhiramassa sarassa samÄ«pe á¹-hatvÄ• kam satte upalÄ• petvÄ• manusse khÄ• dati \Ee 254/. tasmiá¹ƒ magge pacchinne janasampÄ• t pavisitvÄ• tattha sampatte satte khÄ• dati. so lokavissuto mahÄ• kantÄ• ramaggo ahosi. ub mahÄ• janakÄ• yo sannipatitvÄ• kantÄ• ranittharaá¹‡atthÄ• ya aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. atha vigatabh satthÄ• ekadivasaá¹ƒ paccÅ«sasamaye mahÄ• karuá¹‡Ä• samÄ• pattito vuá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya lok Ã±Ä• á¹‡ajÄ• lassa antogataá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ mahesakkhaá¹ƒ naradevayakkhaá¹ƒ taÃ±ca janasam gaganatalena gantvÄ• tassa janakÄ• yassa passantasseva bhagavÄ• anekavihitaá¹ƒ pÄ• naradevayakkhassa bhavane otaritvÄ• tassa maá¹…galapallaá¹…ke nisÄ«di.

atha kho so manussabhakkho yakkho chabbaá¹‡á¹‡arasmiyo vissajjentaá¹ƒ indadhanupari munidivasakaraá¹ƒ pavanapathenÄ• gacchantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``dasabalo mamÄ• nukampÄ pasannahadayo attano parivÄ• rayakkhehi saddhiá¹ƒ anekamigagaá¹‡avantaá¹ƒ himavanta nÄ• nÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡agandhÄ• ni jalajathalajÄ• ni kusumÄ• ni paramamanoramÄ• ni sugandha 298/ pallaá¹…ke nisinnaá¹ƒ vigatarandhaá¹ƒ kakusandhaá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ mÄ• lÄ• gand thutisaá¹…gÄ«tÄ• ni pavattento sirasi aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ katvÄ• namassamÄ• no aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tato pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• pasannahadayÄ• samÄ• gamma bhagavantaá¹ƒ parivÄ• retvÄ• atha appaá¹-isandho kakusandho bhagavÄ• abhipÅ«jitanaradevayakkhaá¹ƒ naradevayakkh kammaphalasambandhadassanena samuttejetvÄ• nirayakathÄ• ya santÄ• setvÄ• catusac aparimitÄ• naá¹ƒ sattÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi, ayaá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi

<1> á¹• 21 ``vessabhussa \Ne 292/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

kakusandho nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, appameyyo durÄ• sado ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``ugghÄ• á¹-etvÄ• sabbabhavaá¹ƒ, cariyÄ• ya pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato.

sÄ«hova paÃ±jaraá¹ƒ bhetvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, kakusandhe lokanÄ• yake.

cattÄ• lÄ«sakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``antalikkhamhi Ä• kÄ• se, yamakaá¹ƒ katvÄ• vikubbanaá¹ƒ.

tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, bodhesi devamÄ• nuse ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``naradevassa \Ee 255/ yakkhassa, catusaccappakÄ• sane.

dhammÄ• bhisamayo tassa, gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __ugghÄ• á¹-etvÄ• _ti samÅ«hanitvÄ• . __sabbabhava_nti sabbaá¹ƒ navavidhaá¹ƒ b bhavuppattinimittaá¹ƒ kammanti attho. __cariyÄ• ya pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato_ti sabbapÄ• ramÄ«na pÄ• raá¹ƒ gato. __sÄ«hova paÃ±jaraá¹ƒ bhetvÄ• _ti sÄ«ho viya paÃ±jaraá¹ƒ munikuÃ±jaro vinÄ• setvÄ• ti attho. kakusandhassa viddhastabhavabandhanassa ekova sÄ• vakasannipÄ kaá¹‡á¹‡akujjanagare isipatane migadÄ• ye attanÄ• saha pabbajitehi cattÄ• lÄ«sÄ• ya aral mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- <6> á¹• 21 ``kakusandhassa \Be 299/ bhagavato, eko Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• lÄ«sasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

dantabhÅ«mimanuppattÄ• naá¹ƒ, Ä• savÄ• rigaá¹‡akkhayÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto khemo nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• hutvÄ• buddhappamukhassa saá¹ mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• aÃ±janÄ• dÄ«ni sabbabhesajjÄ• ni ca adÄ• si. aÃ±Ã±aÃ±ca sam \Ne 293/ dhammadesanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• pasannahadayo hutvÄ• bhagavato santike pabbaji. so imasmiá¹ƒyeva kappe buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti byÄ• kÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<8> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, khemo nÄ• mÄ• si khattiyo.

tathÄ• gate jinaputte, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• anappakaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``pattaÃ±ca cÄ«varaá¹ƒ datvÄ• , aÃ±janaá¹ƒ madhulaá¹-á¹-hikaá¹ƒ.

imetaá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, paá¹-iyÄ• demi varaá¹ƒ varaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, kakusandho vinÄ• yako.

imamhi bhaddake kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ khemavatÄ« nÄ• ma, khemo nÄ• mÄ• sahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ gavesanto, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santikeâ€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ee 256/ __aÃ±janaá¹ƒ_ pÄ• kaá¹-ameva. __madhulaá¹-á¹-hika_nti yaá¹-á¹-himadhuk etaá¹ƒ. __patthita_nti icchitaá¹ƒ. __paá¹-iyÄ• demÄ«_ti dajjÄ• mi, adÄ• sinti attho. __varaá¹ seá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-hanti attho. ``yadetaá¹ƒ patthitaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, tassa yaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ adÄ• sinti attho. ayaá¹ƒ sundarataro.

tassa pana adandhassa kakusandhassa bhagavato khemaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi. ag pitÄ• , visÄ• khÄ• nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä« mÄ• tÄ• , vidhuro ca saÃ±jÄ«vo ca dve aggasÄ• nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sÄ• mÄ• ca campÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , mahÄ• sirÄ«sarukkho cattÄ• lÄ«sahatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, samantÄ• dasayojanÄ• ni sarÄ«rappabhÄ• niccharati cattÄ• lÄ«savassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu, bhariyÄ• panassa rocinÄ« nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä«, u Ä• jaÃ±Ã±arathena nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<14> á¹• 21 ``brÄ• hmaá¹‡o aggidatto ca, Ä• si buddhassa so pitÄ• .

visÄ• khÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , kakusandhassa satthuno ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``vasate \Ne 294/ tattha kheme pure, sambuddhassa mahÄ• kulaá¹ƒ.

narÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaraá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, jÄ• timantaá¹ƒ mahÄ• yasaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``vidhuro ca saÃ±jÄ«vo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

buddhijo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, kakusandhassa satthuno ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• mÄ• ca campÄ• nÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, sirÄ«soti pavuccati ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• lÄ«saratanÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

kanakappabhÄ• niccharati, samantÄ• dasayojanaá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• lÄ«savassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``dhammÄ• paá¹‡aá¹ƒ \Ee 257/ pasÄ• retvÄ• , naranÄ• rÄ«naá¹ƒ sadevake.

naditvÄ• sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒva, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gavacanasampanno, acchiddÄ• ni nirantaraá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __vasate tattha kheme pure_ti ayaá¹ƒ gÄ• thÄ• kakusandhassa jÄ• tanagarasandas veditabbÄ• . __mahÄ• kula_nti uditoditaá¹ƒ bhagavato pitukulaá¹ƒ. __narÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaraá¹ jÄ• tivasena sabbamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaraá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-hanti attho. __jÄ• timanta_nti abhijÄ• uttamÄ• bhijÄ• taá¹ƒ. __mahÄ• yasa_nti mahÄ• parivÄ• raá¹ƒ, kiá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ buddhassa mahÄ kheme pure vasatetipadena sambandho daá¹-á¹-habbo.

__samantÄ• dasayojana_nti samantato dasa yojanÄ• ni pharitvÄ• niccakÄ• laá¹ƒ sarÄ«ra suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• pabhÄ• niccharatÄ«ti attho. __dhammÄ• paá¹‡a_nti \Be 301/ dha Ä• paá¹‡aá¹ƒ. __pasÄ• retvÄ• _ti bhaá¹‡á¸• avikkiá¹‡anatthaá¹ƒ nÄ• nÄ• bhaá¹‡á¸• asamic dhammÄ• paá¹‡aá¹ƒ pasÄ• retvÄ• ti attho. __naranÄ• rÄ«na_nti \Ne 295/ veneyyanaranÄ• jhÄ• nasamÄ• pattimaggaphalaratanavisesÄ• dhigamatthÄ• ya. __sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ vÄ• _ti abhayanÄ• daá¹ƒ naditvÄ• . __aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gavacanasampanno_ti aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gasamann __acchiddÄ• nÄ«_ti chiddÄ• dibhÄ• varahitÄ• ni sÄ«lÄ• ni acchiddÄ• ni asabalÄ• ni akamm avivarÄ• ni sÄ• vakayugaá¸·Ä• dÄ«ni. __nirantara_nti satataá¹ƒ sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ. __sabbaá¹ satthÄ• ca sÄ• vakayugaá¸·Ä• dÄ«ni ca taá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ munibhÄ• vamupagantvÄ• adassa ``apetabandho kakusandhabuddho, adandhapaÃ±Ã±o gatasabbarandho.

tilokasandho kira saccasandho, kheme pane vÄ• samakappayitthaâ€™â€™ ||

sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

kakusandhabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito bÄ• vÄ«satimo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

25. koá¹‡Ä• gamanabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• kakusandhassa \Ne 296/ \Ee 258/ pana bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge tassa sÄ• sane ca antara tiá¹ƒsavassasahassÄ• yukesu jÄ• tesu parahitakoá¹‡Ä• gamano __koá¹‡Ä• gamano_ nÄ• n vÄ• kanakÄ• gamanato koá¹‡Ä• gamano nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke udapÄ• di. tattha ka-kÄ• ras na-kÄ• rassa á¹‡Ä• desaá¹ƒ katvÄ• ekassa ka-kÄ• rassa lopaá¹ƒ katvÄ• niruttinayena kan kanakÄ• diÄ• bharaá¹‡assa Ä• gamanaá¹ƒ pavassanaá¹ƒ yassa bhagavato uppannakÄ• le pana Ä• yu anupubbena parihÄ«nasadisaá¹ƒ kataá¹ƒ, na evaá¹ƒ parihÄ«naá¹ƒ, puna vaá¸• veditabbaá¹ƒ. kathaá¹ƒ? imasmiá¹ƒyeva kappe kakusandho bhagavÄ• cattÄ• lÄ«savassasa taá¹ƒ \Be 302/ pana Ä• yu parihÄ• yamÄ• naá¹ƒ dasavassakÄ• laá¹ƒ patvÄ• puna asaá¹… parihÄ• yamÄ• naá¹ƒ tiá¹ƒsavassasahassÄ• yukakÄ• le á¹-hitaá¹ƒ, tadÄ• koá¹‡Ä• gamano veditabbo.

sopi pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«retvÄ• tusitapure nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• sobhavatÄ«nagare yaÃ±Ä brÄ• hmaá¹‡assa bhariyÄ• ya rÅ«pÄ• dÄ«hi guá¹‡ehi anuttarÄ• ya uttarÄ• ya nÄ• ma brÄ• paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena subhavatÄ«uyyÄ• ne mÄ• pana tasmiá¹ƒ sakalajambudÄ«pe devo kanakavassaá¹ƒ vassi. tenassa kanakÄ• gamanakÄ ``kanakÄ• gamanoâ€™â€™ ti nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu. taá¹ƒ panassa nÄ• maá¹ƒ anukkamena p koá¹‡Ä• gamanoâ€™â€™ ti jÄ• taá¹ƒ. so pana tÄ«á¹‡i vassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• tusita-santusita-santuá¹-á¹-hanÄ• makÄ• panassa tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. rucigattÄ• l soá¸·asa itthisahassÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ.

so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• rucigattÄ• ya brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• satthavÄ• he nÄ• ma putte u hatthikkhandhavaragato hatthiyÄ• nena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• pabbaji. ta anupabbajiá¹ƒsu. so tehi parivuto cha mÄ• se padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡ aggisonabrÄ• hmaá¹‡assa dhÄ«tÄ• ya aggisonabrÄ• hmaá¹‡akumÄ• riyÄ• dinnaá¹ƒ madh khadiravane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye jaá¹-Ä• tindukena nÄ• ma yavapÄ tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• udumbarabodhiá¹ƒ puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«ke vuttappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ pha dakkhiá¹‡ato upagantvÄ• vÄ«satihatthavitthataá¹ƒ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• pallaá¹…
mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• dasabalaÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• ni paá¹-ilabhitvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ pabbajitÄ• naá¹ƒ tiá¹ƒsabhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ disvÄ• gaganapath sudassananagarasamÄ«pe isipatane migadÄ• ye otaritvÄ• tesaá¹ƒ majjhagato dhammacak tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahosi.

puna sundaranagaradvÄ• re mahÄ• sÄ• larukkhamÅ«le yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ katvÄ• dhammÄ• mataá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi, so dutiyo abhisamayo ahosi. attano mÄ• taraá¹ƒ \Ee 259/ uttar dasasu cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassesu \Be 303/ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ samÄ• gatÄ• naá¹ƒ abhidhammap dasannaá¹ƒ koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``kakusandhassa aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

koá¹‡Ä• gamano nÄ• ma jino, lokajeá¹-á¹-ho narÄ• sabho ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``dasa dhamme pÅ«rayitvÄ• na, kantÄ• raá¹ƒ samatikkami.

pavÄ• hiya malaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, koá¹‡Ä• gamananÄ• yake.

tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ karonte ca, paravÄ• dappamaddane.

vÄ«satikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``tato vikubbanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , jino devapuraá¹ƒ gato.

vasate tattha sambuddho, silÄ• ya paá¹‡á¸• ukambale ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``pakaraá¹‡e satta desento, vassaá¹ƒ vasati so muni.

dasakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Ne 298/ __dasa dhamme pÅ«rayitvÄ• nÄ• _ti dasa pÄ• ramidhamme pÅ«rayitvÄ• . _

jÄ• tikantÄ• raá¹ƒ samatikkami. __pavÄ• hiyÄ• _ti pavÄ• hetvÄ• . __malaá¹ƒ sabba_nti rÄ• __pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ karonte ca, paravÄ• dappamaddane_ti paravÄ• divÄ• dappamaddane, karonteti attho. __vikubbana_nti vikubbaniddhiá¹ƒ, sundaranagaradvÄ• re yamakapÄ• á¹-ih devapuraá¹ƒ gato tattha paá¹‡á¸• ukambalasilÄ• yaá¹ƒ vasi. kathaá¹ƒ vasÄ«ti? __pakaraá¹‡ tattha devÄ• naá¹ƒ sattappakaraá¹‡asaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ abhidhammapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ desento va abhidhammaá¹ƒ desente bhagavati dasakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ devÄ• naá¹ƒ abhisamayo ah parisuddhapÄ• ramipÅ«raá¹‡Ä• gamanassa koá¹‡Ä• gamanassapi eko sÄ• vakasannipÄ• surindavatuyyÄ• ne viharanto bhiyyasassa \Be 304/ rÄ• japuttassa ca uttarassa ca rÄ• japu tiá¹ƒsasahassaparivÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ desetvÄ• sabbeva te ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• y tesaá¹ƒ majjhagato mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi devadevassa, eko Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``tiá¹ƒsabhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

oghÄ• namatikkantÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhijjitÄ• naÃ±ca maccuyÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __oghÄ• na_nti kÄ• moghÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ, catunnamoghÄ• nametaá¹ƒ adhivacanaá¹ƒ.

taá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-asmiá¹ƒ ohananti osÄ«dÄ• pentÄ«ti oghÄ• , tesaá¹ƒ oghÄ• naá¹ƒ, upayogatth daá¹-á¹-habbaá¹ƒ. catubbidhe oghe atikkantÄ• nanti attho. __bhijjitÄ• na_nti etthÄ• pi eseva maccuno.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto mithilanagare pabbato nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• ahosi, tadÄ• ``saraá¹‡agatasabbapÄ• á¹‡Ä• gamanaá¹ƒ koá¹‡Ä• gamanaá¹ƒ mithilanagaramanuppattaâ rÄ• jÄ• paccuggantvÄ• vanditvÄ• dasabalaá¹ƒ nimantetvÄ• mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• tat vassÄ• vÄ• satthÄ• ya yÄ• citvÄ• temÄ• saá¹ƒ sasÄ• vakasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ satthÄ• raá¹ƒ upa pattuá¹‡á¹‡acÄ«napaá¹-á¹-akambalakoseyyadukÅ«lakappÄ• sikÄ• dÄ«ni mahagghÄ• ni cev suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• dukÄ• ceva aÃ±Ã±aÃ±ca bahuparikkhÄ• ramadÄ• si. sopi naá¹ƒ bhagavÄ bhaddakappe ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti \Ne 299/. atha so mahÄ• puriso tassa sutvÄ• mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ pariccajitvÄ• tasseva bhagavato santike pabbaji. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<9> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, pabbato nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mittÄ• maccehi sampanno, anantabalavÄ• hano ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``sambuddhadassanaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sutvÄ• dhammamanuttaraá¹ƒ.

nimantetvÄ• sajinasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• yadicchakaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``pattuá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ cÄ«napaá¹-á¹-aÃ±ca, koseyyaá¹ƒ kambalampi ca.

suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• dukaÃ±ceva, adÄ• siá¹ƒ satthusÄ• vake ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``sopi \Be 305/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

imamhi bhaddake kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi \Ee 261/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ gavesanto, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• naruttame.

ohÄ• yÄ• haá¹ƒ mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ jinasantikeâ€™â€™ ti || tattha __anantabalavÄ• hano_ti bahukaá¹ƒ anantaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ balaá¹ƒ assahatthiÄ• dika __sambuddhadassana_nti sambuddhadassanatthÄ• ya. __yadicchaka_nti yÄ• vadicchakaá saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ catubbidhena Ä• hÄ• rena ``alamalaâ€™â€™ nti pavÄ• rÄ• petvÄ• , hatthena __satthusÄ• vake_ti satthuno ceva sÄ• vakÄ• naÃ±ca adÄ• siá¹ƒ. __naruttame_ti naruttam pariccajitvÄ• .

tassa pana koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa bhagavato sobhavatÄ« nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ ahosi, yaÃ±Ã±a 300/ pitÄ• , uttarÄ• nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä« mÄ• tÄ• , bhiyyaso ca uttaro cÄ• ti dve aggasÄ nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, samuddÄ• ca uttarÄ• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• , udumbararukkho bod tiá¹ƒsahatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, tiá¹ƒsavassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu, bhariyÄ• panassa rucigattÄ satthavÄ• ho nÄ• ma putto, hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<16> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ sobhavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sobho nÄ• mÄ• si khattiyo.

vasate tattha nagare, sambuddhassa mahÄ• kulaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``brÄ• hmaá¹‡o yaÃ±Ã±adatto ca, Ä• si buddhassa so pitÄ• .

uttarÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa satthuno.

<22> á¹• 21 ``bhiyyaso uttaro nÄ• ma, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sotthijo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa satthuno ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``samuddÄ• \Be 306/ uttarÄ• ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, udumbaroti pavuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``uccattanena \Ee 262/ so buddho, tiá¹ƒsahatthasamuggato.

ukkÄ• mukhe yathÄ• kambu, evaá¹ƒ raá¹ƒsÄ«hi maá¹‡á¸• ito ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``tiá¹ƒsavassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu buddhassa tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``dhammacetiá¹ƒ samussetvÄ• , dhammadussavibhÅ«sitaá¹ƒ.

dhammapupphaguá¸·aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``mahÄ• vilÄ• so tassa jano, siridhammappakÄ• sano.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __ukkÄ• mukhe_ti kammÄ• ruddhane. yathÄ• __kambÅ«_ti suvaá¹‡á¹‡anikkhaá¹ƒ v maá¹‡á¸• ito_ti \Ne 301/ evaá¹ƒ rasmÄ«hi paá¹-imaá¹‡á¸• ito samalaá¹…kato. __dhammace sattattiá¹ƒsabodhipakkhiyadhammamayaá¹ƒ cetiyaá¹ƒ patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• petvÄ• . __dhammadus catusaccadhammapaá¹-Ä• kavibhÅ«sitaá¹ƒ. __dhammapupphaguá¸·aá¹ƒ katvÄ• _ti dhamm katvÄ• . mahÄ• janassa vipassanÄ• cetiyaá¹…gaá¹‡e á¹-hitassa namassanatthÄ• ya dham sasÄ• vakasaá¹…gho satthÄ• parinibbÄ• yÄ«ti attho. __mahÄ• vilÄ• so_ti mahÄ• iddhivilÄ bhagavato. __jano_ti sÄ• vakajano. __siridhammappakÄ• sano_ti lokuttaradhammappakÄ• tamantarahitanti attho.

``sukhena koá¹‡Ä• gamano gatÄ• savo, vikÄ• mapÄ• á¹‡Ä• gamano mahesÄ«.

vane viveke sirinÄ• madheyye, visuddhavaá¹ƒsÄ• gamano vasitthaâ€™â€™ ||

sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

koá¹‡Ä• gamanabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito tevÄ«satimo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

26. kassapabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa \Be 307/ \Ne 302/ \Ee 263/ pana bhagavato aparabhÄ• ge tassa sÄ• s tiá¹ƒsavassasahassÄ• yukÄ• sattÄ• anupubbena parihÄ• yitvÄ• dasavassÄ• yukÄ• hutvÄ aparimitÄ• yukÄ• hutvÄ• puna anupubbena parihÄ• yitvÄ• vÄ«sativassasahassÄ• yukesu __kassapo_ nÄ• ma satthÄ• loke udapÄ• di (Sn-a Ä• makagandhasuttavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ•). so nibbattitvÄ• tato cavitvÄ• bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asÄ«nagare brahmadattassa nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡as dhanavatiyÄ• nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• dasannaá isipatane migadÄ• ye mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. gottavasena panassa ``kassapakumÄ• roâ€ dve vassasahassÄ• ni agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasi. haá¹ƒsavÄ• yasavÄ• sirinandoti tassa tayo sunandÄ• nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡ippamukhÄ• ni aá¹-á¹-hacattÄ• lÄ«sa itthisahassÄ• ni paccu so cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• sunandÄ• ya brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• vijitasene nÄ• ma putte uppa ``mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintesi. athassa parivitakkasama kulÄ• lacakkamiva bhamitvÄ• gaganatalamabbhuggantvÄ• paramarucirakaranikaro sarada tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡aparivuto anekanarasataparivuto gaganatalamalaá¹…karonto viya puÃ±Ã±Ä• jananayanahadayÄ• ni Ä• kaá¸• á¸• hento viya rukkhaggÄ• ni paraá¹ƒ sobhayamÄ• no viya majjhekatvÄ• bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ patiá¹-á¹-hahi. atha bodhisatto mahÄ• satto pathaviyaá¹ƒ patiá¹ devadattaá¹ƒ arahattaddhajamÄ• dÄ• ya pabbaji. tassa nÄ• á¹-akitthiyo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• otarit maggaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• saparivÄ• rÄ• senÄ• sannivesaá¹ƒ katvÄ• nisÄ«diá¹ƒsu. tato itthiparic sahÄ• gatÄ• sabbe pabbajiá¹ƒsu.

mahÄ• puriso kira sattÄ• haá¹ƒ tehi parivuto padhÄ• nacariyaá¹ƒ caritvÄ• visÄ• khapuá¹‡á brÄ• hmaá¹‡iyÄ• dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• khadiravane divÄ• vihÄ• somena nÄ• ma yavapÄ• lakena upanÄ«tÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• nigrod 303/ paÃ±cadasahatthÄ• yÄ• mavitthataá¹ƒ \Be 308/ tiá¹‡asantharaá¹ƒ santharitvÄ• tattha abhisambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• --- ``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ ... pe ... taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ kh udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• netvÄ• sattasattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• attanÄ• saha pabbajitÄ• naá upanissayasampattiá¹ƒ disvÄ• gaganatalena gantvÄ• bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiyaá¹ƒ isipatane migad parivuto tattha dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi \Ee 264/. tadÄ• vÄ«satiyÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá
dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahosi. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

kassapo nÄ• ma gottena, dhammarÄ• jÄ• pabhaá¹…karo ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``saÃ±chaá¸• á¸• itaá¹ƒ kulamÅ«laá¹ƒ, bahvannapÄ• nabhojanaá¹ƒ.

datvÄ• na yÄ• cake dÄ• naá¹ƒ, pÅ«rayitvÄ• na mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ.

usabhova Ä• á¸·akaá¹ƒ bhetvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, kassape lokanÄ• yake.

vÄ«sakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __saÃ±chaá¸• á¸• ita_nti chaá¸• á¸• itaá¹ƒ ujjhitaá¹ƒ pariccattaá¹ƒ. __kulamÅ«la_nti k aparimitabhogakkhandhaá¹ƒ anekakoá¹-isahassadhanasaÃ±cayaá¹ƒ dasasatanayanabhava tiá¹‡amiva chaá¸• á¸• itanti attho. __yÄ• cake_ti yÄ• cakÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• . __Ä• á¸·aka_nti g usabho goá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ bhinditvÄ• yathÄ• sukhaá¹ƒ icchitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡Ä• ti, ev gehabandhanaá¹ƒ bhinditvÄ• abhisambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡Ä«ti attho.

puna catumÄ• saá¹ƒ janapadacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• ne satthari dasakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ c yadÄ• pana sundaranagaradvÄ• re asanarukkhamÅ«le yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ karonto paÃ±cannaá¹ƒ koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ tatiyo abhisamayo ahosi. puna yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riya suraripudurabhibhavane tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane sudhammÄ• nÄ• ma devasabhÄ• atthi, tatt mÄ• taraá¹ƒ dhanavatÄ«deviá¹ƒ pamukhaá¹ƒ katvÄ• dasasahassilokadhÄ• tuyÄ• devatÄ• sattappakaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ abhidhammapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ desento tÄ«á¹‡i devatÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• ni d vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``catumÄ• saá¹ƒ \Be 309/ \Ne 304/ yadÄ• buddho, loke carati cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

dasakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``yamakaá¹ƒ vikubbanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , Ã±Ä• á¹‡adhÄ• tuá¹ƒ pakittayi.

paÃ±cakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 ``sudhammÄ• devapure ramme, tattha dhammaá¹ƒ pakittayi.

tÄ«á¹‡ikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, devÄ• naá¹ƒ bodhayÄ« jino ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``naradevassa \Ee 265/ yakkhassa, apare dhammadesane.

etesÄ• naá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __catumÄ• sa_nti cÄ• tumÄ• se. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho. __caratÄ«_ti acari. __yam katvÄ• _ti yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ katvÄ• . __Ã±Ä• á¹‡adhÄ• tu_nti sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã± ``sabbaÃ±Ä• á¹‡adhÄ• tuâ€™â€™ ntipi vadanti. __pakittayÄ«_ti mahÄ• janassa pakÄ• ses tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane sudhammÄ• nÄ• ma sabhÄ• atthi, tattha nisÄ«ditvÄ• ti attho. __dha tadÄ• kira Ä• nubhÄ• vavijitanaradevo naradevo nÄ• ma mahesakkho heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vuttana yakkho ahosi. so jambudÄ«pe ekasmiá¹ƒ nagare raÃ±Ã±o yÄ• disaá¹ƒ rÅ«paá¹ƒ, tÄ• disaá¹ sarakuttiá¹ƒ nimminitvÄ• taá¹ƒ rÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ mÄ• retvÄ• khÄ• ditvÄ• sahaantepuraá¹ƒ raj aparimitamaá¹ƒsabhojano ahosi. so kira itthidhutto ca ahosi. yadÄ• pana taá¹ƒ kusalÄ• che ``nÄ• yaá¹ƒ amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ rÄ• jÄ• , amanusso esoâ€™â€™ ti jÄ• nanti, tadÄ• so lajjito hutv aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajjati. evameva so naradevayakkho manusse bhakkhayanto y agamÄ• si, tadÄ• taá¹ƒ disvÄ• nagaravÄ• sino manussÄ• maraá¹‡abhayatajjitasantÄ• sÄ tato tato palÄ• yiá¹ƒsu. atha te manusse palÄ• yamÄ• ne disvÄ• kassapadasabalo tassa na aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. naradevo evaá¹ƒ devadevaá¹ƒ á¹-hitaá¹ƒ disvÄ• vissaraá¹ƒ ghoraá¹ƒ nÄ• daa bhayaá¹ƒ uppÄ• detuá¹ƒ asakkonto taá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gantvÄ• paÃ±haá¹ƒ pucchi. paÃ±ha dametvÄ• dhamme desiyamÄ• ne sampattÄ• naá¹ƒ naramarÄ• naá¹ƒ gaá¹‡anapathÄ• tÄ« tena vuttaá¹ƒ --- __ ``naradevassa yakkhassÄ• â€™â€™ _tiÄ• di \Ne 305/. tattha __apare c aparasmiá¹ƒ dhammadesane. __etesÄ• na_nti etesaá¹ƒ. ayameva vÄ• pÄ• á¹-ho.

tassa pana kassapabhagavato ekova sÄ• vakasannipÄ• to ahosi. bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asÄ«nagare p ahosi. so kassapassa bodhisattassa sarÄ«re lakkhaá¹‡asampattiá¹ƒ disvÄ• pituno bhÄ• sa ``nissaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ eso mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamitvÄ• buddho bhavissati, etassÄ• saá¹ƒsÄ• radukkhato muccissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintetvÄ• suddhamunigaá¹‡avantaá¹ƒ hin tÄ• pasapabbajjaá¹ƒ pabbaji. tassa parivÄ• rabhÅ«tÄ• ni vÄ«satitÄ• pasasahassÄ• ni ahesu aparabhÄ• ge ``kassapakumÄ• ro nikkhamitvÄ• abhisambodhiá¹ƒ anuppattoâ€™â€™ ti su kassapassa bhagavato santike saparivÄ• ro ehibhikkhupabbajjÄ• ya pabbajitvÄ• arahattaá samÄ• game kassapo bhagavÄ• mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• yaá¹ƒ pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi. ter

<8> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi devadevassa, eko Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``vÄ«sabhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

atikkantabhavantÄ• naá¹ƒ, hirisÄ«lena tÄ• dinaâ€™â€™ nti || tattha __atikkantabhavantÄ• na_nti atikkantaputhujjanasotÄ• pannÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ, sabbesaá attho. __hirisÄ«lena tÄ• dina_nti hiriyÄ• ca sÄ«lena ca sadisÄ• naá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto jotipÄ• lo nÄ• ma mÄ• á¹‡avo tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• antalikkhe ca pÄ• kaá¹-o ghaá¹-ikÄ• rassa kumbhakÄ• rassa sahÄ• yo ahosi. so tena saddh upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• tassa dhammakathaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• tassa santike pabbaji. so Ä• raddhavÄ• uggahetvÄ• vattapaá¹-ipattiyÄ• buddhasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ sobhesi. sopi taá¹ƒ satthÄ• byÄ• kÄ•

<10> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• mÄ• á¹‡avako, jotipÄ• loti vissuto.

ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``lakkhaá¹‡e \Be 311/ \Ne 306/ itihÄ• se ca, sadhamme pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato.

bhÅ«mantalikkhakusalo, katavijjo anavayo ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``kassapassa bhagavato, ghaá¹-ikÄ• ro nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hako.

sagÄ• ravo sappatisso, nibbuto tatiye phale ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``Ä• dÄ• ya maá¹ƒ ghaá¹-Ä«kÄ• ro, upagaÃ±chi kassapaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

tassa dhammaá¹ƒ suá¹‡itvÄ• na, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``Ä• raddhavÄ«riyo hutvÄ• , vattÄ• vattesu kovido.

na kvaci parihÄ• yÄ• mi, pÅ«resiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``yÄ• vatÄ• \Ee 267/ buddhabhaá¹‡itaá¹ƒ, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``mama acchariyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , sopi buddho viyÄ• kari.

imamhi bhaddake kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 ``tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<31> á¹• 21 ``evamahaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsaritvÄ• , parivajjento anÄ• caraá¹ƒ.

dukkaraÃ±ca kataá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ, bodhiyÄ• yeva kÄ• raá¹‡Ä• â€™â€™ ti || tattha __bhÅ«mantalikkhakusalo_ti bhÅ«misikkhÄ• su ca antalikkhesu ca joticakkÄ• cÄ• re attho. __upaá¹-á¹-hako_ti upaá¹-á¹-hÄ• yako. __sappatisso_ti sappatissayo. __nibbuto_ti vi __tatiye phale_ti nimittasattamÄ«, tatiyaphalÄ• dhigamahetu nibbutoti attho. __Ä• dÄ• yÄ• _ __vattÄ• vattesÅ«_ti khuddakavattamahÄ• vattesu. __kovido_ti tesaá¹ƒ \Ne 307/ pÅ«raá¹‡e parihÄ• yÄ• mÄ«_ti kvacipi sÄ«lesu vÄ• samÄ• dhisamÄ• pattiÄ• dÄ«su vÄ• katthaci kuto me parihÄ• ni nÄ• ma na vijjatÄ«ti dÄ«peti. ``na koci parihÄ• yÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-__yÄ• vatÄ• _ti \Be 312/ paricchedavacanametaá¹ƒ, yÄ• vatakanti attho. __buddhabhaá¹‡i __sobhayi_nti sobhesiá¹ƒ pakÄ• sesiá¹ƒ. __mama acchariya_nti mama sammÄ• paá¹-ipatti asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ abbhutaá¹ƒ kassapo bhagavÄ• disvÄ• ti attho. __saá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsaritvÄ• . __anÄ• cara_nti anÄ• cÄ• raá¹ƒ akattabbaá¹ƒ, akaraá¹‡Ä«yanti attho.

tassa pana kassapassa bhagavato jÄ• tanagaraá¹ƒ bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asÄ« nÄ• ma ahosi, brahma pitÄ• , paramaguá¹‡avatÄ« dhanavatÄ« nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä« mÄ• tÄ• , tisso ca bhÄ• ra sabbamitto \Ee 268/ nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, anuá¸·Ä• ca uruveá¸·Ä• ca dve aggasÄ• vikÄ• sarÄ«raá¹ƒ vÄ«satihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ ahosi, vÄ«sativassasahassÄ• ni Ä• yu, sunandÄ• nÄ• vijitaseno nÄ• ma putto, pÄ• sÄ• dayÄ• nena nikkhami. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<32> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asÄ« nÄ• ma, kikÄ« nÄ• mÄ• si khattiyo.

vasate tattha nagare, sambuddhassa mahÄ• kulaá¹ƒ ||

<33> á¹• 21 ``brÄ• hmaá¹‡o brahmadattova, Ä• si buddhassa so pitÄ• .

dhanavatÄ« nÄ• ma janikÄ• , kassapassa mahesino ||

<38> á¹• 21 ``tisso ca bhÄ• radvÄ• jo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sabbamitto nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, kassapassa mahesino ||

<39> á¹• 21 ``anuá¸·Ä• uruveá¸·Ä• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, nigrodhoti pavuccati ||

<41> á¹• 21 ``uccattanena so buddho, vÄ«satiratanuggato.

vijjulaá¹-á¹-hÄ«va Ä• kÄ• se, candova gahapÅ«rito ||

<42> á¹• 21 ``vÄ«sativassasahassÄ• ni \Ne 308/, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<43> á¹• 21 ``dhammataá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ mÄ• payitvÄ• , sÄ«laá¹ƒ datvÄ• vilepanaá¹ƒ.

dhammadussaá¹ƒ nivÄ• setvÄ• , dhammamÄ• laá¹ƒ vibhajjiya ||

<44> á¹• 21 ``dhammavimalamÄ• dÄ• saá¹ƒ \Be 313/, á¹-hapayitvÄ• mahÄ• jane.

keci nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ patthentÄ• , passantu me alaá¹…karaá¹ƒ ||

<45> á¹• 21 ``sÄ«lakaÃ±cukaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, jhÄ• nakavacavammitaá¹ƒ.

dhammacammaá¹ƒ pÄ• rupitvÄ• , datvÄ• sannÄ• hamuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<46> á¹• 21 ``satiphalakaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, tikhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• á¹‡akuntimaá¹ƒ.

dhammakhaggavaraá¹ƒ datvÄ• , sÄ«lasaá¹ƒsaggamaddanaá¹ƒ ||

<47> á¹• 21 ``tevijjÄ• bhÅ«sanaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, Ä• veá¸·aá¹ƒ caturo phale.

chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• bharaá¹‡aá¹ƒ datvÄ• , dhammapupphapiá¸·andhanaá¹ƒ ||

<48> á¹• 21 ``saddhammapaá¹‡á¸• aracchattaá¹ƒ \Ee 269/, datvÄ• pÄ• panivÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ

mÄ• payitvÄ• bhayaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<49> á¹• 21 ``eso hi sammÄ• sambuddho, appameyyo durÄ• sado.

eso hi dhammaratano, svÄ• kkhÄ• to ehipassiko ||

<50> á¹• 21 ``eso hi saá¹…gharatano, suppaá¹-ipanno anuttaro.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• â€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __vijjulaá¹-á¹-hÄ«vÄ• _ti ghanabhÄ• vena saá¹‡á¹-hitÄ• vijjulatÄ• viya. __candova parivesagahaparikkhito puá¹‡á¹‡acando viya. __dhammataá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ mÄ• payitvÄ• _ti pa mÄ• payitvÄ• . __sÄ«laá¹ƒ datvÄ• vilepana_nti catupÄ• risuddhisÄ«lasaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ citt vilepanaá¹ƒ datvÄ• \Ne 309/. __dhammadussaá¹ƒ nivÄ• setvÄ• _ti hirottappadhammasaá¹ nivÄ• setvÄ• . __dhammamÄ• laá¹ƒ vibhajjiyÄ• _ti sattattiá¹ƒsabodhipakkhiyadhammakusu vidahitvÄ• ti attho.

__dhammavimalamÄ• dÄ• sa_nti vimalaá¹ƒ sotÄ• pattimaggasaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ Ä• dÄ• saá sÄ• vajjÄ• navajjakusalÄ• kusaladhammasallakkhaá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ mahÄ• janassa dhammataá á¹-hapetvÄ• ti attho. __mahÄ• jane_ti mahÄ• janassa. __kecÄ«_ti ye keci. __nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ sabbÄ• kusalamalavilayakaraá¹ƒ amatamasaá¹…khatamanÄ«tikaá¹ƒ paramasantaá¹ƒ accu patthentÄ• vicaranti. te imaá¹ƒ alaá¹…kÄ• raá¹ƒ vuttappakÄ• raá¹ƒ \Be 314/ mayÄ• dassita ``nibbÄ• namabhipatthentÄ• , passantu maá¹ƒ alaá¹…karaâ€™â€™ ntipi pÄ• á¹-ho, soyeva katvÄ• vuttaá¹ƒ.

__sÄ«lakaÃ±cukaá¹ƒ datvÄ• nÄ• _ti paÃ±casÄ«ladasasÄ«lacatupÄ• risuddhisÄ«lamayaá¹ __jhÄ• nakavacavammita_nti catukkapaÃ±cakajjhÄ• nakavacabandhaá¹ƒ bandhitvÄ• . __dh satisampajaÃ±Ã±asaá¹…khÄ• tadhammacammaá¹ƒ pÄ• rupitvÄ• . __datvÄ• sannÄ• hamu caturaá¹…gasamannÄ• gataá¹ƒ vÄ«riyasannÄ• haá¹ƒ datvÄ• ti attho. __satiphalakaá¹ƒ datv rÄ• gÄ• didosÄ• ripÄ• panivÄ• raá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ catusatipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naphalakanivÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ Ã±Ä• á¹‡akuntima_nti paá¹-ivedhasamatthaá¹ƒ tikhiá¹‡avipassanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡akuntavantaá¹ vipassanÄ• Ã±Ä• á¹‡anisitakuntavaranti attho, kilesabalanidhanakarasamatthaá¹ƒ vÄ• yog á¹-hapetvÄ• ti attho. __dhammakhaggavaraá¹ƒ_ \Ee 270/ __datvÄ• _ti tassa yogÄ• vacaras vÄ«riyupalatalanisitadhÄ• raá¹ƒ maggapaÃ±Ã±Ä• varakhaggaá¹ƒ datvÄ• . __sÄ«lasaá¹ƒsag lokuttarasÄ«laá¹ƒ kilesasaá¹ƒsaggamaddanatthÄ• ya, kilesanighÄ• tanatthÄ• yÄ• ti attho.

__tevijjÄ• bhÅ«sanaá¹ƒ datvÄ• _ti tevijjÄ• mayaá¹ƒ vibhÅ«sanaá¹ƒ datvÄ• . __Ä• veá¸·aá¹ phalÄ• ni vaá¹-aá¹ƒsakaá¹ƒ katvÄ• . __chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• bharaá¹‡a_nti Ä• bharaá¹‡atthÄ• alaá¹…kÄ• rakaraá¹‡atthÄ• ya cha abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• yo datvÄ• . __dhammapupphapiá¸·andhana navalokuttaradhammasaá¹…khÄ• taá¹ƒ kusumamÄ• laá¹ƒ katvÄ• . __saddhammapaá¹‡á¸• pÄ• panivÄ• raá¹‡a_nti accantavisuddhaá¹ƒ vimuttisetacchattaá¹ƒ sabbÄ• kusalÄ• tapanivÄ __mÄ• payitvÄ• bhayaá¹ƒ puppha_nti abhayapuragÄ• minaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gikamaggaá¹ƒ kassapo kira bhagavÄ• kÄ• siraá¹-á¹-he setabyanagare setabyuyyÄ• ne parinibbÄ• yi. dhÄ vikiriá¹ƒsu. sakalajambudÄ«pavÄ• sino manussÄ• sannipatitvÄ• ekekaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡iá¹-á koá¹-iagghanakaá¹ƒ \Ne 310/ ratanavicittaá¹ƒ bahicinanatthaá¹ƒ ekekaá¹ƒ aá¸• á¸• hakoá¹-i abbhantarapÅ«raá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ manosilÄ• ya mattikÄ• kiccaá¹ƒ telena udakakiccaá¹ƒ karonto thÅ«pamakaá¹ƒsu.

``kassapopi \Be 315/ bhagavÄ• katakicco, sabbasattahitameva karonto.

kÄ• sirÄ• janagare migadÄ• ye, lokanandanakaro nivasÄ«â€™â€™ ti ||

sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabbattha pÄ• kaá¹-amevÄ• ti.

iti madhuratthavilÄ• siniyÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsa-aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya kassapabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

ettÄ• vatÄ• catuvÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• sabbÄ• kÄ• rena niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

27. gotamabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•

``idÄ• ni \Ne 311/ yasmÄ• amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ, buddhavaá¹ƒsassa vaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• .

anukkamena sampattÄ• , tasmÄ• yaá¹ƒ tassa vaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• â€™â€™ || tattha amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto dÄ«paá¹…karÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ catuvÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ kappasatasahassÄ• dhikÄ• ni cattÄ• ri asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni Ä• gato. kassapassa \Ee 271/ p á¹-hapetvÄ• imaá¹ƒ sammÄ• sambuddhaá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±o buddho nÄ• ma natthi. iti __dÄ«paá¹.

buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ_ santike laddhabyÄ• karaá¹‡o pana bodhisatto yenena --- ``manussattaá¹ƒ liá¹…gasampatti, hetu satthÄ• radassanaá¹ƒ.

pabbajjÄ• guá¹‡asampatti, adhikÄ• ro ca chandatÄ• .

aá¹-á¹-hadhammasamodhÄ• nÄ• , abhinÄ«hÄ• ro samijjhatÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Bv II 59) --- ime aá¹-á¹-ha dhamme samodhÄ• netvÄ• dÄ«paá¹…karapÄ• damÅ«le katÄ• bhinÄ«hÄ• re vicinÄ• mi ito citoâ€™â€™ ti ussÄ• haá¹ƒ katvÄ• ``vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamaá¹ dÄ• napÄ• ramitÄ• dayo buddhakÄ• rakadhammÄ• \Be 316/ diá¹-á¹-hÄ• , te pÅ«rento yÄ• Ä• gacchanto ca ye te katÄ• bhinÄ«hÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ bodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• nisaá¹ƒsÄ• saá¹ƒv ``evaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹…gasampannÄ• , bodhiyÄ• niyatÄ• narÄ• .

saá¹ƒsaraá¹ƒ dÄ«ghamaddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, kappakoá¹-isatehipi ||

``avÄ«cimhi \Ne 312/ nuppajjanti, tathÄ• lokantaresu ca.

nijjhÄ• mataá¹‡hÄ• khuppipÄ• sÄ• , na honti kÄ• á¸·akaÃ±jikÄ• ||

``na honti khuddakÄ• pÄ• á¹‡Ä• , uppajjantÄ• pi duggatiá¹ƒ.

jÄ• yamÄ• nÄ• manussesu, jaccandhÄ• na bhavanti te ||

``sotavekallatÄ• natthi, na bhavanti mÅ«gapakkhikÄ• .

itthibhÄ• vaá¹ƒ na gacchanti, ubhatobyaÃ±janapaá¹‡á¸• akÄ• ||

``na bhavanti pariyÄ• pannÄ• , bodhiyÄ• niyatÄ• narÄ• .

muttÄ• Ä• nantarikehi, sabbattha suddhagocarÄ• ||

``micchÄ• diá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ na sevanti, kammakiriyadassanÄ• .

vasamÄ• nÄ• pi saggesu, asaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ nÅ«papajjare ||

``suddhÄ• vÄ• sesu devesu, hetu nÄ• ma na vijjati.

nekkhammaninnÄ• sappurisÄ• , visaá¹ƒyuttÄ• bhavÄ• bhave.

caranti lokatthacariyÄ• yo, pÅ«renti sabbapÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ja I dÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Cp-a pakiá¹‡á¹‡akakathÄ•).

te \Ee 272/ Ä• nisaá¹ƒse adhigantvÄ• va Ä• gato. evaá¹ƒ Ä• gacchanto vessantarattabhÄ• ``acetanÄ• yaá¹ƒ pathavÄ«, aviÃ±Ã±Ä• ya sukhaá¹ƒ dukhaá¹ƒ.

sÄ• pi dÄ• nabalÄ• mayhaá¹ƒ, sattakkhattuá¹ƒ pakampathÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Cp 1.124) --- evaá¹ƒ mahÄ• pathavikampanÄ• dÄ«ni mahÄ• puÃ±Ã±Ä• ni katvÄ• Ä• yupariyosÄ• ne tato

avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•

tusitapure \Be 317/ \Ne 313/ vasamÄ• neyeva pana bodhisatte buddhakolÄ• halaá¹ƒ nÄ• m__tÄ«á¹‡i kolÄ• halÄ• ni_ uppajjanti. seyyathidaá¹ƒ --- kappakolÄ• halaá¹ƒ, buddhakolÄ• ha cakkavattikolÄ• halanti. tattha ``vassasatasahassassa accayena kappuá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ bhav lokabyÅ«hÄ• nÄ• ma kÄ• mÄ• vacaradevÄ• muttasirÄ• vikiá¹‡á¹‡akesÄ• rudamukhÄ• a rattavatthanivatthÄ• ativiya virÅ«pavesadhÄ• rino hutvÄ• manussapathe vicarantÄ• evaá¹ ``mÄ• risÄ• , mÄ• risÄ• , ito vassasatasahassassa accayena kappuá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ bhaviss vinassissati, mahÄ• samuddopi ussussissati, ayaÃ±ca mahÄ• pathavÄ« sineru ca pabbatar vinassissanti, yÄ• va brahmalokÄ• lokavinÄ• so bhavissati, mettaá¹ƒ, mÄ• risÄ• , bhÄ• vetl upekkhaá¹ƒ, mÄ• risÄ• , bhÄ• vetha, mÄ• taraá¹ƒ pitaraá¹ƒ upaá¹-á¹-hahatha, kule jeá¹-á¹-h ti. idaá¹ƒ __kappakolÄ• halaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma.

``vassasahassassa accayena pana sabbaÃ±Ã±ubuddho loke upajjissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti lokap mÄ• risÄ• , vassasahassassa accayena buddho loke uppajjissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti ugghosentiy __buddhakolÄ• halaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma.

``vassasatassa accayena cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• uppajjissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti devatÄ• --- ``ito, mÄ• accayena cakkavattirÄ• jÄ• uppajjissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti ugghosentiyo Ä• hiá¹‡á¸• anti. idaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma (Khp-a V maá¹…galapaÃ±hasamuá¹-á¹-hÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ap-a I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakat avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•).

tesu buddhakolÄ• halasaddaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• sakaladasasahassacakkavÄ• á¸·adevatÄ• ekato s nÄ• ma satto buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ã±atvÄ• upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• Ä• yÄ• canti, Ä pubbanimittesu uppannesu Ä• yÄ• canti. tadÄ• pana sabbÄ• pi tÄ• ekekacakkavÄ• á¸·e catumahÄ• rÄ• ja-sakka-suyÄ• ma-santusita-sunimmita-vasavatti-mahÄ• brahmehi saddhiá sannipatitvÄ• tusitabhavane uppannacutinimittassa bodhisattassa santikaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• --- `` pÄ• ramiyo pÅ«ritÄ• , pÅ«rentehi \Be 318/ ca na sakkabrahmasampattiÄ• dikaá¹ƒ sampattiá lokanittharaá¹‡atthÄ• ya pana vo sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ patthentehi paripÅ«ritÄ• buddhattÄ• ya ``kÄ• lo \Ne 314/ \Ee 273/ kho te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, uppajja mÄ• tukucchiyaá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tÄ• rayanto, bujjhassu amataá¹ƒ padaâ€™â€™ nti || (Bv I 67) --- yÄ• ciá¹ƒsu.

atha mahÄ• satto devatÄ• hi evaá¹ƒ Ä• yÄ• ciyamÄ• no devatÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ ada kÄ• la-dÄ«pa-desa-kula-janettiÄ• yuparicchedavasena __paÃ±ca mahÄ• vilokanÄ• ni_ vilok na kÄ• loâ€™â€™ ti paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹ƒ vilokesi. tattha vassasatasahassato uddhaá¹ƒ kÄ• lo nÄ• ma na hoti. kasmÄ• ? tadÄ• hi sattÄ• naá¹ƒ jÄ• tijarÄ• maraá¹‡Ä• ni na paÃ±Ã± dhammadesanÄ• tilakkhaá¹‡amuttÄ• nÄ• ma natthi, tesaá¹ƒ ``aniccaá¹ƒ dukkhamanattÄ• ``kiá¹ƒ nÄ• metaá¹ƒ kathentÄ«â€™â€™ ti neva sotabbaá¹ƒ na saddhÄ• tabbaá¹ƒ maÃ±Ã±a tasmiá¹ƒ asati aniyyÄ• nikaá¹ƒ sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ hoti. tasmÄ• so akÄ• lo. vassasatato Å«naÄ• y kasmÄ• ? tadÄ• sattÄ• ussannakilesÄ• honti, ussannakilesÄ• naÃ±ca dinnovÄ• do ovÄ• c udake daá¹‡á¸• arÄ• ji viya khippaá¹ƒ vigacchati. tasmÄ• sopi akÄ• lo. vassasatasahassato heá¹-á¹-hÄ• vassasatato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya uddhaá¹ƒ Ä• yukÄ• lo kÄ• lo nÄ• ma. tadÄ• pana mahÄ• satto ``nibbattitabbakÄ• loâ€™â€™ ti __kÄ• laá¹ƒ_ passi.

tato dÄ«paá¹ƒ olokento saparivÄ• re cattÄ• ro mahÄ• dÄ«pe oloketvÄ• --- ``tÄ«su dÄ«pes jambudÄ«peyeva nibbattantÄ«â€™â€™ ti __dÄ«paá¹ƒ_ passi.

tato ``jambudÄ«po nÄ• ma mahÄ• , dasayojanasahassaparimÄ• á¹‡o. katarasmiá¹ƒ nu kho nibbattantÄ«â€™â€™ ti okÄ• saá¹ƒ olokento majjhima__desaá¹ƒ_ passi. ``kapilavatthu nÄ• mayÄ• nibbattitabbaâ€™â€™ nti niá¹-á¹-hamagamÄ• si.

tato \Be 319/ kulaá¹ƒ vilokento --- ``buddhÄ• nÄ• ma vessakule vÄ• suddakule vÄ• na nib pana khattiyakule vÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule vÄ• nibbattanti, etarahi khattiyakulaá¹ƒ lokasamm nibbattissÄ• mi suddhodano nÄ• ma rÄ• jÄ• pitÄ• me bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti __kulaá¹ƒ_ tato mÄ• taraá¹ƒ vilokento --- ``buddhamÄ• tÄ• nÄ• ma lolÄ• surÄ• dhuttÄ• na hoti, kappa 315/ pÅ«ritapÄ• ramÄ« jÄ• tito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya akhaá¹‡á¸• apaÃ±casÄ«lÄ• yeva hoti. ayaÃ± edisÄ«, ayaá¹ƒ me mÄ• tÄ• bhavissati, kittakaá¹ƒ panassÄ• __Ä• yÅ«_ti, dasannaá¹ƒ mÄ• divasÄ• nÄ«â€™â€™ ti passi.

iti imaá¹ƒ paÃ±cavidhaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vilokanaá¹ƒ viloketvÄ• --- ``kÄ• lo me, mÄ• risÄ• , buddh devÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• --- ``gacchatha tumheâ€™â€™ ti tÄ• devatÄ• uyyoje parivuto tusitapure nandanavanaá¹ƒ pÄ• visi. sabbadevalokesu hi nandanavanaá¹ƒ atthiyev
--- ``ito cuto sugatiá¹ƒ gacchÄ• â€™â€™ ti pubbe katakusalakammokÄ• saá¹ƒ \Ee 274/ sÄ• evaá¹ƒ tÄ• hi devatÄ• hi kusalaá¹ƒ sÄ• rayamÄ• nÄ• hi parivuto tatra vicarantova cavitvÄ• kucchismiá¹ƒ uttarÄ• sÄ• á¸·hanakkhattena paá¹-isandhiá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hi. mahÄ• purisassa pana paá¹-isandhiggaá¹‡hanakkhaá¹‡e ekappahÄ• reneva sakaladasasahassilokadhÄ• tu saá¹…
pubbanimittÄ• ni pÄ• turahesuá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ gahitapaá¹-isandhikassa bodhisattassa ceva bodhisattamÄ• tuyÄ• ca upaddavaniv khaggahatthÄ• cattÄ• ro devaputtÄ• Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hiá¹ƒsu. bodhisattassa mÄ• tu pu nuppajji, lÄ• bhaggayasaggappattÄ• ca sÄ• ahosi sukhinÄ« akilantakÄ• yÄ• . bodhisattaÃ± vippasanne maá¹‡iratane Ä• vutapaá¹‡á¸• usuttaá¹ƒ viya passati. yasmÄ• bodhisattena va cetiyagabbhasadisÄ• hoti, na sakkÄ• aÃ±Ã±ena sattena Ä• vasituá¹ƒ vÄ• paribhuÃ±jituá¹ bodhisattamÄ• tÄ• sattÄ• hajÄ• te bodhisatte kÄ• laá¹ƒ katvÄ• tusitapure nibbatti. yathÄ• dasa mÄ• se appatvÄ• pi atikkamitvÄ• pi nisinnÄ• pi nipannÄ• pi vijÄ• yanti, na evaá¹ƒ bodh bodhisattamÄ• tÄ• pana bodhisattaá¹ƒ dasa mÄ• se kucchinÄ• pariharitvÄ• á¹-hitÄ• va vij __bodhisattamÄ• tu dhammatÄ• _.

mahÄ• mÄ• yÄ• pi \Be 320/ devÄ« dasa mÄ• se kucchinÄ• bodhisattaá¹ƒ pariharitvÄ• par Ã±Ä• tigharaá¹ƒ gantukÄ• mÄ• suddhodanamahÄ• rÄ• jassa Ä• rocesi --- ``icchÄ• mahaá¹ gantuâ€™â€™ nti. rÄ• jÄ• ``sÄ• dhÅ«â€™â€™ ti sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• kapilavatthuto yÄ• va samaá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• kadalipuá¹‡á¹‡aghaá¹-akamukadhajapaá¹-Ä• kÄ• dÄ«hi alaá¹…kÄ• rÄ nisÄ«dÄ• petvÄ• mahatiyÄ• vibhÅ«tiyÄ• mahatÄ• parivÄ• rena pesesi. dvinnaá¹ƒ pana n ubhayanagaravÄ• sÄ«naá¹ƒ paribhogÄ• rahaá¹ƒ lumbinÄ«vanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma maá¹…galasÄ• samaye mÅ«lato yÄ• va aggasÄ• khÄ• sabbaá¹ƒ ekaphÄ• liphullaá¹ƒ ahosi. sÄ• khantareh paramaratikaramadhuramanoramavirutÄ• hi \Ne 316/ madamuditÄ• hi anubhuttapaÃ±carÄ• upagÄ«yamÄ• nasuranandananandanavanasadisasobhaá¹ƒ vanaá¹ƒ disvÄ• deviyÄ• sÄ• l cittamuppajji (Ap-a I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ja I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•).

``vibhÅ«sitÄ• bÄ• lajanÄ• ticÄ• linÄ«, vibhÅ«sitaá¹…gÄ« vaniteva mÄ• linÄ«.

sadÄ• janÄ• naá¹ƒ nayanÄ• limÄ• linÄ«, vilumpinÄ«vÄ• tiviroci lumbinÄ«â€™â€™ || amaccÄ• raÃ±Ã±o Ä• rocetvÄ• deviá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• taá¹ƒ lumbinÄ«vanaá¹ƒ pavisiá¹ƒsu. sÄ gantvÄ• tassa ujusamavaá¹-á¹-akkhandhassa \Ee 275/ pupphaphalapallavasamalaá¹…kata gaá¹‡hitukÄ• mÄ• ahosi, sÄ• sÄ• lasÄ• khÄ• abalÄ• janahadayalolÄ• sayameva vilamba karatalasmiá¹ƒ samupagatÄ• . atha sÄ• taá¹ƒ sÄ• lasÄ• khaá¹ƒ tambatuá¹…ganakhujjalena kamaladalavattivaá¹-á¹-aá¹…gulinÄ• navakanakakaá¹-avalayasobhinÄ• dakkhiá¹‡ena para aggahesi. sÄ• taá¹ƒ sÄ• lasÄ• khaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• á¹-hitÄ• asitajaladharavivaragatÄ• bÄ• la aciraá¹-á¹-hitikÄ• accipabhÄ• viya ca nandanavanajÄ• tÄ• devÄ« viya ca devÄ« virocittha kammajavÄ• tÄ• caliá¹ƒsu. athassÄ• sÄ• á¹‡ipÄ• kÄ• raá¹ƒ parikkhipitvÄ• mahÄ• jano pa gahetvÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nÄ• ya eva tassÄ• gabbhavuá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ ahosi.

taá¹…khaá¹‡aá¹ƒyeva \Be 321/ cattÄ• ro visuddhacittÄ• mahÄ• brahmÄ• no suvaá¹‡á¹‡aj tena suvaá¹‡á¹‡ajÄ• lena bodhisattaá¹ƒ sampaá¹-icchitvÄ• mÄ• tu purato á¹-hapetvÄ• --- ` mahesakkho te putto uppannoâ€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. yathÄ• pana aÃ±Ã±e sattÄ• mÄ• tu paá¹-ikkÅ«lena asucinÄ• makkhitÄ• nikkhamanti, na evaá¹ƒ bodhisatto. bodhisatto pana d pasÄ• retvÄ• á¹-hitakova mÄ• tukucchisambhavena kenaci asucinÄ• amakkhitova suddho nikkhittamaá¹‡iratanaá¹ƒ viya virocamÄ• no mÄ• tukucchito nikkhami. evaá¹ƒ santepi bodhi bodhisattamÄ• tuyÄ• ca sakkÄ• ratthaá¹ƒ Ä• kÄ• sato dve udakadhÄ• rÄ• nikkhamitvÄ• b sarÄ«re utuá¹ƒ gÄ• hÄ• pesuá¹ƒ.

atha naá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡ajÄ• lena paá¹-iggahetvÄ• á¹-hitÄ• naá¹ƒ brahmÄ• naá¹ƒ hatthato c maá¹…galasammatÄ• ya sukhasamphassÄ• ya ajinappaveá¹‡iyÄ• gaá¹‡hiá¹ƒsu, tesaá¹ƒ h dukÅ«lacumbaá¹-akena gaá¹‡hiá¹ƒsu, manussÄ• naá¹ƒ hatthato muccitvÄ• pathaviyaá¹ƒ p disaá¹ƒ olokesi, anekÄ• ni cakkavÄ• á¸·asahassÄ• ni ekaá¹…gaá¹‡Ä• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. tattha d gandhapupphamÄ• lÄ• dÄ«hi \Ne 317/ pÅ«jayamÄ• nÄ• --- ``mahÄ• purisa, tumhehi sadis uttaritaroâ€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. evaá¹ƒ dasa disÄ• anuviloketvÄ• attanÄ• sadisaá¹ƒ adis sattapadavÄ«tihÄ• rena agamÄ• si. gacchanto ca pathaviyÄ• eva gato, nÄ• kÄ• sena. acel daharova gato, na soá¸·asavassuddesiko. mahÄ• janassa pana Ä• kÄ• sena gacchanto viya ca soá¸·asavassuddesiko viya ca ahosi. tato sattame pade á¹-hatvÄ• ``aggohamasmi lokas (DN II 31; MN III 207) Ä• sabhiá¹ƒ vÄ• caá¹ƒ nicchÄ• rento sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ nadi.

bodhisatto hi tÄ«su attabhÄ• vesu mÄ• tukucchito nikkhantamattova vÄ• caá¹ƒ nicchÄ• res vessantarattabhÄ• ve, imasmiá¹ƒ attabhÄ• veti. mahosadhattabhÄ• ve kirassa mÄ• tukucch sakko devarÄ• jÄ• Ä• gantvÄ• candanasÄ• raá¹ƒ hatthe á¹-hapetvÄ• gato, taá¹ƒ muá¹-á¹-atha naá¹ƒ mÄ• tÄ• --- ``tÄ• ta, tvaá¹ƒ kiá¹ƒ \Be 322/ gahetvÄ• Ä• gatosÄ«â€™â€™ ti puc ammÄ• â€™â€™ ti. iti osadhaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• Ä• gatattÄ• ``osadhakumÄ• roâ€™â€™ tveva vessantarattabhÄ• ve pana mÄ• tukucchito nikkhantamattova dakkhiá¹‡ahatthaá¹ƒ pasÄ• r amma, kiÃ±ci gehasmiá¹ƒ dhanaá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ dassÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti vadanto nikkhami.

kule nibbattosi, tÄ• tÄ• â€™â€™ ti puttassa hatthaá¹ƒ attano hatthatale katvÄ• sahassattha imasmiá¹ƒ pana attabhÄ• ve imaá¹ƒ sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒ nadÄ«ti evaá¹ƒ bodhisatto tÄ«su atta nikkhantamattova vÄ• caá¹ƒ nicchÄ• resi. jÄ• takkhaá¹‡epissa dvattiá¹ƒsa pubbanimittÄ• ni pana samaye amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bodhisatto lumbinÄ«vane jÄ• to tasmiá¹ƒyeva samaye __rÄ• hu channo kÄ• á¸·udÄ• yÄ«_ amacco __kaá¹‡á¸• ako_ assarÄ• jÄ• __mahÄ• bodhirukkho_ ca tattha eko gÄ• vutappamÄ• á¹‡o eko aá¸• á¸• hayojanappamÄ• á¹‡o eko tigÄ• vutappamÄ• ime __satta sahajÄ• tÄ• _ nÄ• ma honti.

ubhayanagaravÄ• sino mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• kapilavatthupurameva agamaá¹ƒsu. taá ``kapilavatthunagare suddhodanamahÄ• rÄ• jassa putto bodhimÅ«le nisÄ«ditvÄ• buddho b tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane haá¹-á¹-hatuá¹-á¹-hÄ• devasaá¹…ghÄ• celukkhepÄ• dÄ«ni pavatten samaye suddhodanamahÄ• rÄ• jassa kulÅ«pako aá¹-á¹-hasamÄ• pattilÄ• bhÄ« __kÄ• á¸·a bhattakiccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• divÄ• vihÄ• ratthÄ• ya \Ne 318/ tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavanaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• ta nisinno tÄ• devatÄ• tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• kÄ«á¸·antiyo disvÄ• ``kiá¹ƒkÄ• raá¹‡Ä• tuá¹-á¹ pamuditahadayÄ• kÄ«á¸·atha, mayhaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ kÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ kathethÄ• â€™â€™ ti pucch ``mÄ• risa, suddhodanaraÃ±Ã±o putto jÄ• to, so bodhimaá¹‡á¸• e nisÄ«ditvÄ• buddho hutv pavattessati, tassa `anantarÅ«paá¹ƒ buddhalÄ«á¸·aá¹ƒ passituá¹ƒ labhissÄ• mÄ• â€™ ti im tuá¹-á¹-hamhÄ• â€™â€™ ti.

atha tÄ• paso tÄ• saá¹ƒ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• paramadassanÄ«yaratanÄ• valo narapatinivesanaá¹ƒ pavisitvÄ• paÃ±Ã±atte \Be 323/ Ä• sane nisÄ«di. tato katapaá¹-isanth ``putto kira te, mahÄ• rÄ• ja, jÄ• to, taá¹ƒ passissÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. rÄ• jÄ• alaá¹…
tanayaá¹ƒ Ä• harÄ• petvÄ• devalatÄ• pasaá¹ƒ vandÄ• petuá¹ƒ abhihari. mahÄ• purisassa vijjulatÄ• viya asitajaladharakÅ«á¹-esu tÄ• pasassa jaá¹-Ä• su patiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu. bodhisa tenattabhÄ• vena vanditabbo nÄ• ma aÃ±Ã±o natthi. tato tÄ• paso uá¹-á¹-hÄ• yÄ• sanÄ• b paggahesi. rÄ• jÄ• taá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• attano puttaá¹ƒ vandi. tÄ• paso bodhisattass disvÄ• --- ``bhavissati nu kho buddho, udÄ• hu na bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• vajjetvÄ• up ``nissaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti anÄ• gataá¹ƒsaÃ±Ä• á¹‡ena Ã±atvÄ• -- nti sitaá¹ƒ akÄ• si.

tato ``ahaá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ buddhabhÅ«taá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-huá¹ƒ labhissÄ• mi nu kho, noâ€™â€™ ti up labhissÄ• mi, antarÄ• yeva kÄ• laá¹ƒ katvÄ• buddhasatenapi buddhasahassenapi gantvÄ• arÅ«pabhave nibbattissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti disvÄ• --- ``evarÅ«paá¹ƒ nÄ• ma acchariyapuris buddhabhÅ«taá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-huá¹ƒ na labhissÄ• mi, mahatÄ« vata me jÄ• ni bhavissatÄ«â€™ disvÄ• --- ``amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ ayyo idÄ• neva hasitvÄ• puna roditumÄ• rabhi, kiá¹ƒ nu kho, bha ayyaputtassa koci antarÄ• yo bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti pucchiá¹ƒsu. tÄ• paso Ä• ha --- ``natt nissaá¹ƒsayena buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti. ``atha kasmÄ• tumhe paroditthÄ• â€™â€ acchariyapurisaá¹ƒ buddhabhÅ«taá¹ƒ daá¹-á¹-huá¹ƒ na labhissÄ• mi, mahatÄ« vata me jÄ• attÄ• naá¹ƒ anusocanto rodÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha.

tato bodhisattaá¹ƒ paÃ±came divase sÄ«saá¹ƒ nhÄ• petvÄ• --- ``nÄ• maá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hissÄ• m catujjÄ• tikagandhena upalimpitvÄ• lÄ• japaÃ±camÄ• ni kusumÄ• ni vikiritvÄ• asambhinna tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• raá¹…gate aá¹-á¹-hasate brÄ• hmaá¹‡e nimantetvÄ• rÄ• jab madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ bhojetvÄ• sakkÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ nu kho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€ pariggÄ• hÄ• pesuá¹ƒ. tesu rÄ• mÄ• dayo aá¹-á¹-ha brÄ• hmaá¹‡apaá¹‡á¸• itÄ• lakkhaá¹‡ satta janÄ• dve aá¹…guliyo ukkhipitvÄ• \Ne 319/ dvedhÄ• byÄ• kariá¹ƒsu --- ``imehi lakkh agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhÄ• vasanto rÄ• jÄ• hoti cakkavattÄ«, pabbajamÄ• no buddhoâ€™â€™ ti. te gottena \Be 324/ koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o bodhisattassa lakkhaá¹‡avarasan agÄ• ramajjhe á¹-hÄ• nakÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ natthi, ekanteneva vivaá¹-acchado buddho bhavissa aá¹…guliá¹ƒ ukkhipitvÄ• ekaá¹ƒsabyÄ• karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ byÄ• kÄ• si. athassa nÄ• maá¹ƒ gaá¹‡ sabbalokatthasiddhikarattÄ• __siddhattho_ti nÄ• mamakaá¹ƒsu.

atha te brÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• attano gharÄ• ni gantvÄ• putte Ä• mantetvÄ• evamÄ• haá¹ƒsu --- suddhodanamahÄ• rÄ• jassa puttaá¹ƒ sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pattaá¹ƒ sambhÄ• veyyÄ• ma vÄ• pabbajitvÄ• sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ patte tassa sÄ• sane pabbajathÄ• â€™â€™ ti. tato sattapi ja á¹-hatvÄ• yathÄ• kammaá¹ƒ gatÄ• . koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±amÄ• á¹‡avo arogo ahosi. tadÄ• pana sutvÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ disvÄ• mama putto pabbajissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti te pucchi. ``cattÄ• ri pubba

ti. ``kataraÃ±ca kataraÃ±cÄ• â€™â€™ ti? ``jiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ byÄ• dhitaá¹ƒ mataá¹ƒ pabbajitaâ€ paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya evarÅ«pÄ• naá¹ƒ mama puttassa santikaá¹ƒ Ä• gamituá¹ƒ mÄ• adatthÄ• â€ cakkhupathe jiá¹‡á¹‡apurisÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ Ä• gamananivÄ• raá¹‡atthaá¹ƒ catÅ«su disÄ• su g Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ á¹-hapesi. taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒ maá¹…galaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne sannipatitesu asÄ«tiyÄ• Ã ekamekaá¹ƒ puttaá¹ƒ paá¹-ijÄ• ni --- ``ayaá¹ƒ buddho vÄ• hotu rÄ• jÄ• vÄ• , mayaá¹ƒ ekan sace buddho bhavissati, khattiyasamaá¹‡eheva parivuto vicarissati. sace rÄ• jÄ• cakkavatt khattiyakumÄ• reheva parivuto vicarissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti. atha rÄ• jÄ• mahÄ• purisassa para vigatasabbadosÄ• catusaá¹-á¹-hi dhÄ• tiyo adÄ• si. bodhisatto anantena parivÄ• rena mah vaá¸• á¸• hi.

athekadivasaá¹ƒ raÃ±Ã±o __vappamaá¹…galaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma ahosi. taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒ \Ee 278/mahatÄ• parivÄ• rena nagarato nikkhamanto puttampi gahetvÄ• va agamÄ• si. kasikamma paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yo ghanasandacchÄ• yo ahosi. tassa heá¹-á¹-hÄ• kumÄ• rassa sayanaá varakanakatÄ• rÄ• khacitaá¹ƒ rattacelavitÄ• naá¹ƒ bandhitvÄ• sÄ• á¹‡ipÄ• kÄ• rena parikk á¹-hapetvÄ• rÄ• jÄ• sabbÄ• laá¹…kÄ• raá¹ƒ alaá¹…karitvÄ• amaccagaá¹‡aparivuto naá¹…galakaraá¹‡aá¹-á¹-hÄ• namagamÄ• si. tattha rÄ• jÄ• paramamaá¹…galaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡ gaá¹‡hÄ• ti, amaccÄ• dayo rajatanaá¹…galÄ• dÄ«ni gaá¹‡hanti. taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒ naá¹…gala bodhisattaá¹ƒ parivÄ• retvÄ• nisinnÄ• dhÄ• tiyo --- ``raÃ±Ã±o sampattiá¹ƒ passissÄ• mÄ• bahi nikkhantÄ• .

atha \Ne 320/ bodhisatto ito cito ca olokento kiÃ±ci adisvÄ• sahasÄ• uá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya pallaá¹ Ä• nÄ• pÄ• ne pariggahetvÄ• paá¹-hamajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ nibbattesi. dhÄ• tiyo khajjabhojjantare cirÄ• yiá¹ƒsu. sesarukkhÄ• naá¹ƒ chÄ• yÄ• nivattÄ• , tassa pana jamburukkhassa chÄ• yÄ tattheva aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. dhÄ• tito panassa ``ayyaputto ekakovÄ• â€™â€™ ti vegena sÄ• á¹‡i pariyesantiyo sirisayane pallaá¹…kena nisinnaá¹ƒ taÃ±ca pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• gantv raÃ±Ã±o Ä• rocesuá¹ƒ. rÄ• jÄ• vegena Ä• gantvÄ• taá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``a dutiyavandanÄ• â€™â€™ ti puttaá¹ƒ vandi.

atha mahÄ• puriso anukkamena soá¸·asavassuddesiko ahosi. rÄ• jÄ• bodhisattassa tiá¹‡á anucchavike ramma-suramma-subhanÄ• make tayo pÄ• sÄ• de kÄ• resi. ekaá¹ƒ navabhÅ« ekaá¹ƒ paÃ±cabhÅ«mikaá¹ƒ. tayopi pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• ubbedhena samappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• ahesuá¹
ahosi.

atha rÄ• jÄ• cintesi --- ``putto me vayappatto chattamassa ussÄ• petvÄ• rajjasiriá¹ƒ passis sÄ• kiyÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ni pahiá¹‡i ``putto me vayappatto, rajje naá¹ƒ patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• pes gehesu vayappattÄ• dÄ• rikÄ• imaá¹ƒ gehaá¹ƒ pesentÅ«â€™â€™ ti. te raÃ±Ã±o sÄ• sana kevalaá¹ƒ rÅ«pasampanno, na kiÃ±ci sippaá¹ƒ jÄ• nÄ• ti, dÄ• rabharaá¹‡aá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ na dhÄ«taro dassÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. rÄ• jÄ• taá¹ƒ pavattiá¹ƒ sutvÄ• puttassa sa

Ä• rocesi. bodhisatto --- ``kiá¹ƒ sippaá¹ƒ dassetuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. ``sahas Ä• ropetuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-ati, tÄ• tÄ• â€™â€™ ti. ``tena hi Ä• harÄ• pethÄ• â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. r taá¹ƒ dhanuá¹ƒ purisasahassaá¹ƒ Ä• ropeti, purisasahassaá¹ƒ oropeti. mahÄ• puriso taá¹ƒ Ä• harÄ• petvÄ• pallaá¹…kena nisinnova jiyaá¹ƒ pÄ• daá¹…guá¹-á¹-hake veá¹-hÄ• petvÄ• pÄ• daá¹…guá¹-á¹-hakeneva dhanuá¹ƒ Ä• ropetvÄ• vÄ• mena hatthena daá¹‡á¸• e gahetv kaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• jiyaá¹ƒ ropesi. sakalanagaraá¹ƒ uppattanÄ• kÄ• rappattaá¹ƒ ahosi \Be 326 saddoâ€™â€™ ti ca vutte ``devo gajjatÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. athaÃ±Ã±e ``tumhe na jÄ aá¹…gÄ«rasassa kumÄ• rassa sahassatthÄ• maá¹ƒ dhanuá¹ƒ Ä• ropetvÄ• jiyaá¹ƒ poá¹-he esoâ€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. sÄ• kiyÄ• taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• tÄ• vatakeneva Ä• raddhacittÄ• tuá¹-á atha mahÄ• puriso --- ``kiá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gulaba kaá¹‡á¸• ena vijjhituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«ti \Ee 279/. taá¹ƒ vijjhitvÄ• --- ``aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ kiá¹ƒ kÄ• tu vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. caturaá¹…gulabahalaá¹ƒ asanaphalakaá¹ƒ \Ne 321/ vijjhituá vijjhitvÄ• --- ``aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ kiá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. vidatthibahalaá¹ƒ vijjhituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«ti. tampi vijjhitvÄ• aÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ kiá¹ƒ kÄ• tuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«ti. tato ``vÄ• lukasakaá¹-Ä• nÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. mahÄ• satto vÄ• lukasakaá¹-ampi palÄ• la udake ekÅ«sabhappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ kaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ pesesi thale aá¹-á¹-hausabhappamÄ• á¹‡ ``vÄ• tiá¹…gaá¹‡asaÃ±Ã±Ä• ya vÄ• laá¹ƒ vijjhituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• haá¹ƒsu. ``t vÄ• tiá¹…gaá¹‡aá¹ƒ bandhÄ• pethÄ• â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ• yojanamattake vÄ• tiá¹…gaá¹‡asa rattandhakÄ• re meghapaá¹-alehi channÄ• su disÄ• su kaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ khipi. taá¹ƒ gantvÄ• y phÄ• letvÄ• pathaviá¹ƒ pÄ• visi. na kevalaá¹ƒ ettakameva, taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒ mahÄ• puriso lo sabbameva dassesi.

atha sÄ• kiyÄ• attano dhÄ«taro alaá¹…karitvÄ• pesayiá¹ƒsu. cattÄ• lÄ«sasahassÄ• nÄ• a rÄ• hulamÄ• tÄ• pana devÄ« aggamahesÄ« ahosi. mahÄ• puriso devakumÄ• ro viya suray parivuto nippurisehi turiyehi paricÄ• riyamÄ• no mahÄ• sampattiá¹ƒ anubhavamÄ• no utuvÄ pÄ• sÄ• desu viharati. athekadivasaá¹ƒ bodhisatto uyyÄ• nabhÅ«miá¹ƒ gantukÄ• mo sÄ• ra ``rathaá¹ƒ yojehi uyyÄ• nabhÅ«miá¹ƒ passissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. so ``sÄ• dhÅ«â€™â mahÄ• rahaá¹ƒ vararucirathirakubbaravarattaá¹ƒ thirataraneminÄ• bhiá¹ƒ varakanakarajatamaá¹‡iratanakhacitaÄ«sÄ• mukhaá¹ƒ navakanakarajatatÄ• rakakhacitane samosaritavividhasurabhikusumadÄ• masassirikaá¹ƒ ravirathasadisadassanÄ«yaá¹ƒ varara sasikumudasadisavaá¹‡á¹‡e anilagaruá¸·ajave Ä• jÄ• nÄ«ye cattÄ• ro maá¹…galasindhave bodhisattassa paá¹-ivedesi. bodhisatto devavimÄ• nasadisaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ rathavaramÄ• ruyha u atha devatÄ• ``siddhatthakumÄ• rassa abhisambujjhanakÄ• lo Ä• sanno, pubbanimittamas ekaá¹ƒ devaputtaá¹ƒ jarÄ• jajjarasarÄ«raá¹ƒ khaá¹‡á¸• adantaá¹ƒ palitakesaá¹ƒ vaá¹…kaga pavedhamÄ• naá¹ƒ katvÄ• dassesuá¹ƒ. taá¹ƒ bodhisatto ceva sÄ• rathi ca passanti. tato bo ko nÄ• mesa puriso kesÄ• pissa na yathÄ• aÃ±Ã±esaâ€™â€™ nti __mahÄ• padÄ• nasutte Ä• gatanayeneva pucchitvÄ• tassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• --- ``dhiratthu vata, bho, jÄ• ti, yatra jarÄ• paÃ±Ã±Ä• yissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti (DN II 45, 47) saá¹ƒviggahadayo tatova paá¹-inivattitv abhiruhi.

rÄ• jÄ• ``kiá¹ƒkÄ• raá¹‡Ä• mama putto paá¹-inivattÄ«â€™â€™ ti pucchi. ``jiá¹‡á¹‡apurisa ti. tato kampamÄ• namÄ• naso rÄ• jÄ• aá¸• á¸• hayojane Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ \Ee 280/ á¹-hapesi.
\Ne 322/ uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ gacchanto tÄ• hi eva devatÄ• hi nimmitaá¹ƒ byÄ• dhitaÃ±ca purisaá¹ pucchitvÄ• saá¹ƒviggahadayo nivattitvÄ• pÄ• sÄ• dameva abhiruhi. rÄ• jÄ• pucchitvÄ• n ``pabbajjÄ• ya mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ assa bhinnaá¹ƒ karissaâ€™â€™ nti Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ vaá¸• á¸• he tigÄ• vutappamÄ• á¹‡e padese Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ á¹-hapesi.

punapi bodhisatto ekadivasaá¹ƒ uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ gacchanto tatheva devatÄ• hi nimmitaá¹ƒ kÄ• purimanayeneva pucchitvÄ• saá¹ƒviggahadayo nivattitvÄ• pÄ• sÄ• damabhiruhi. rÄ• jÄ• n pucchitvÄ• puna Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ vaá¸• á¸• hetvÄ• yojanappamÄ• á¹‡e padese Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ punapi bodhisatto ekadivasaá¹ƒ uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ gacchanto tatheva devatÄ• hi nimmitaá¹ƒ sun pabbajitaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``ko nÄ• meso, samma, sÄ• rathÄ«â€™â€™ ti sÄ• rathiá¹ƒ pucchi.

buddhuppÄ• dassa abhÄ• vÄ• pabbajitaá¹ƒ vÄ• pabbajitaguá¹‡e vÄ• na jÄ• nÄ• ti, devatÄ nÄ• mÄ• yaá¹ƒ devÄ• â€™â€™ ti vatvÄ• pabbajjÄ• ya guá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassa vaá¹‡á¹‡esi.

tato bodhisatto pabbajjÄ• ya ruciá¹ƒ uppÄ• detvÄ• taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒ uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ agamÄ• si vassasate vassasate atikkante jiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• dÄ«su \Be 328/ ekekaá¹ƒ addasaá¹ƒsu. amhÄ• ka appÄ• yukakÄ• le uppannattÄ• catunnaá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ mÄ• sÄ• naá¹ƒ accayena uyyÄ• na addasa. dÄ«ghabhÄ• á¹‡akÄ• panÄ• hu --- ``cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni ekadivaseneva disvÄ• ag divasabhÄ• gaá¹ƒ kÄ«á¸·itvÄ• uyyÄ• narasamanubhavitvÄ• maá¹…galapokkharaá¹‡iyaá¹ƒ maá¹…galasilÄ• tale nisÄ«di attÄ• naá¹ƒ alaá¹…kÄ• rÄ• petukÄ• mo. athassa cittÄ• cÄ• ran devÄ• namindena Ä• á¹‡atto vissakammo nÄ• ma devaputto Ä• gantvÄ• tasseva kappakas alaá¹…kÄ• rehi alaá¹…kari. athassa sabbÄ• laá¹…kÄ• rasamalaá¹…katassa sabbatÄ• lÄ• v paá¹-ibhÄ• nÄ• ni dassayantesu brÄ• hmaá¹‡esu ca ``jaya nandÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• divacaneh nÄ• nappakÄ• rehi maá¹…galavacanatthutighosehi sambhÄ• ventesu sabbÄ• laá¹…kÄ• ras abhiruhi. tasmiá¹ƒ samaye --- ``rÄ• hulamÄ• tÄ• puttaá¹ƒ vijÄ• tÄ• â€™â€™ ti sutvÄ• sudd ``puttassa me tuá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ nivedethÄ• â€™â€™ ti sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ pahiá¹‡i. bodhisatto taá¹ƒ s jÄ• to, bandhanaá¹ƒ jÄ• taâ€™â€™ nti Ä• ha. rÄ• jÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ me putto avacÄ• â€™â€™ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• ``ito paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya me nattÄ• `rÄ• hulakumÄ• roâ€™ tveva nÄ• maá¹ƒ bodhisattopi taá¹ƒ rathavaramÄ• ruyha mahatÄ• parivÄ• rena atimanoramena sirisobhagg tasmiá¹ƒ samaye rÅ«pasiriyÄ• guá¹‡asampattiyÄ• ca akisÄ• kisÄ• gotamÄ« nÄ• ma khatt uparipÄ• sÄ• davaratalagatÄ• nagaraá¹ƒ pavisantassa bodhisattassa rÅ«pasiriá¹ƒ disvÄ• s hutvÄ• ---

``nibbutÄ• nÅ«na sÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , nibbuto nÅ«na so pitÄ• .

nibbutÄ• nÅ«na sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, yassÄ• yaá¹ƒ Ä«diso patÄ«â€™â€™ ti || (Dhs-a nidÄ• nakat sÄ• riputtattheravatthu; Ap-a I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ja I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•) --- imaá¹ƒ \Ee 281/ udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• nesi.

bodhisatto taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• cintesi --- ``ayaá¹ƒ me sussavanaá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sÄ• vesi, ahaÃ±h vicarÄ• mi, ajjeva mayÄ• gharÄ• vÄ• saá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• nikkhamma \Be 329/ pabbajit vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti. ``ayaá¹ƒ imissÄ• Ä• cariyabhÄ• go hotÅ«â€™â€™ ti muttÄ• hÄ• r kisÄ• gotamiyÄ• satasahassagghanikaá¹ƒ paramaratikaraá¹ƒ muttÄ• hÄ• raá¹ƒ pesesi. sÄ• paá¹-ibaddhahadayo hutvÄ• paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• kÄ• raá¹ƒ pesesÄ«â€™â€™ ti somanassajÄ• tÄ• bodhisattopi mahatÄ• sirisamudayena paramaramaá¹‡Ä«yaá¹ƒ pÄ• sÄ• daá¹ƒ abhiruhitvÄ• tÄ• vadeva naá¹ƒ paripuá¹‡á¹‡arajanikarasadisaruciravaravadanÄ• bimbaphalasadisadasa sitavimalasamasaá¹ƒhitÄ• viraá¸·avaradasanÄ• asitanayanakesapÄ• sÄ• sujÄ• taÃ±janÄ• sujÄ• tahaá¹ƒsasamasaá¹ƒhitapayodharÄ• ratikaranavakanakarajataviracitavaramaá¹‡imel parigatavipulaghanajaghanataá¹-Ä• karikarasannibhoruyugalÄ• naccagÄ«tavÄ• ditesu kus surayuvatisadisarÅ«pasobhÄ• varayuvatiyo madhuraravÄ• ni turiyÄ• ni gahetvÄ• mahÄ• p ramÄ• payantiyo naccagÄ«tavÄ• ditÄ• ni payojayiá¹ƒsu. bodhisatto pana kilesesu virattacitt anabhirato muhuttaá¹ƒ niddaá¹ƒ okkami.

tÄ• taá¹ƒ disvÄ• ``yassatthÄ• ya naccÄ• dÄ«ni mayaá¹ƒ payojema, so niddaá¹ƒ upagato, kilamÄ• mÄ• â€™â€™ ti gahitÄ• ni turiyÄ• ni ajjhottharitvÄ• nipajjiá¹ƒsu, gandhatelappadÄ bodhisatto pabujjhitvÄ• sayanapiá¹-á¹-he pallaá¹…kena nisinno addasa tÄ• itthiyo turiyabh avattharitvÄ• niddÄ• yantiyo paggharitalÄ• lÄ• kilinnakapolagattÄ• , ekaccÄ• dante khÄ• d kÄ• kacchantiyo, ekaccÄ• vippalapantiyo, ekaccÄ• vivaá¹-amukhÄ• , ekaccÄ• apagatavas pÄ• kaá¹-abÄ«bhacchasambÄ• dhaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• , ekaccÄ• vimuttÄ• kulasiroruhÄ• susÄ• sayiá¹ƒsu. mahÄ• satto tÄ• saá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ vippakÄ• raá¹ƒ disvÄ• bhiyyosomattÄ• ya kÄ• mes pana alaá¹…katapaá¹-iyattaá¹ƒ dasasatanayanabhavanasadisaá¹ƒ rucirasobhampi pÄ• sÄ• apaviddhamatasarÄ«rakuá¹‡apabharitaá¹ƒ Ä• makasusÄ• namiva paramapaá¹-ikkÅ«laá¹ƒ u Ä• dittabhavanasadisÄ• hutvÄ• upaá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒsu. ``upaddutaá¹ƒ vata, bho, upassaá¹-á¹ ca vÄ• caá¹ƒ pavattesi. ativiya pabbajjÄ• ya cittaá¹ƒ nami.

so \Be 330/ ``ajjeva mayÄ• mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamituá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ uá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya dvÄ• rasamÄ«paá¹ƒ gantvÄ• --- ``ko etthÄ• â€™â€™ ti Ä• ha. ummÄ• re sÄ Ä• ha --- ``ahaá¹ƒ, ayyaputta, channoâ€™â€™ ti. atha mahÄ• puriso --- ``ahaá¹ƒ ajja mahÄ nikkhamitukÄ• mo, na kaÃ±ci paá¹-iveditvÄ• sÄ«ghamekaá¹ƒ atijayaá¹ƒ sindhavaá¹ƒ kappe devÄ• â€™â€™ ti assabhaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• assasÄ• laá¹ƒ gantvÄ• gandhatelappa sumanapaá¹-á¹-avitÄ• nassa heá¹-á¹-hÄ• paramaramaá¹‡Ä«ye \Ee 282/ bhÅ«mibhÄ• ge á kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ turaá¹…gavaraá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``ajja mayÄ• ayyaputtassa nikkhamanatthÄ• maá¹…galahayaá¹ƒ kappetuá¹ƒ vaá¹-á¹-atÄ«â€™â€™ ti kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ kappesi. so kappi ``ayaá¹ƒ kappanÄ• atigÄ• á¸·hÄ• , aÃ±Ã±esu divasesu uyyÄ• nakÄ«á¸·aá¹ƒ gamanakÄ• le nissaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ ajjeva ayyaputto mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tat mahÄ• hasitaá¹ƒ hasi. so nÄ• do taá¹ƒ sakalakapilavatthupuraá¹ƒ unnÄ• daá¹ƒ kareyya, de na kassaci sotuá¹ƒ adaá¹ƒsu.

bodhisatto ``puttaá¹ƒ tÄ• va passissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintetvÄ• á¹-hitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nato uá¹ vasanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ gantvÄ• gabbhadvÄ• raá¹ƒ vivari. tasmiá¹ƒ khaá¹‡e antogabbhe ga rÄ• hulamÄ• tÄ• sumanamallikÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ ambaá¹‡amattena attippakiá¹‡á¹‡e varasayan á¹-hapetvÄ• niddÄ• yati. bodhisatto ummÄ• re pÄ• daá¹ƒ á¹-hapetvÄ• á¹-hitakova oloketvÄ hatthaá¹ƒ apanetvÄ• mama puttaá¹ƒ gaá¹‡hissÄ• mi, devÄ« pabujjhissati, evaá¹ƒ me abhi bhavissati. buddho hutvÄ• va Ä• gantvÄ• puttaá¹ƒ passissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti cintetvÄ• pÄ assassa samÄ«paá¹ƒ gantvÄ• evamÄ• ha --- ``tÄ• ta kaá¹‡á¸• aka, tvaá¹ƒ ajja ekarattiá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ nissÄ• ya buddho hutvÄ• sadevakaá¹ƒ lokaá¹ƒ tÄ• ressÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti. tato ullaá piá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ abhiruhi. kaá¹‡á¸• ako gÄ«vato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya Ä• yÄ• mato aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasaha ubbedhena samannÄ• gato rÅ«paggajavabalasampanno sabbaseto dhotasaá¹…khasadisa 325/ bodhisatto varaturaá¹…gapiá¹-á¹-higato channaá¹ƒ assassa vÄ• ladhiá¹ƒ gÄ• hÄ• petv nagarassa mahÄ• dvÄ• raá¹ƒ sampatto.

tadÄ• \Be 331/ pana rÄ• jÄ• pubbeva bodhisattassa gamanapaá¹-isedhanatthÄ• ya dvÄ«s purisasahassena vivaritabbaá¹ƒ kÄ• retvÄ• tattha bahupurise Ä• rakkhaá¹ƒ á¹-hapesi. bodh purisagaá¹‡anÄ• ya koá¹-isatasahassassa balaá¹ƒ dhÄ• resi, hatthigaá¹‡anÄ• ya koá¹-isaha
--- ``yadi dvÄ• raá¹ƒ na vivarÄ«yati, ajja kaá¹‡á¸• akassa piá¹-á¹-he nisinno channaá¹ƒ vÄ• l tena saddhiá¹ƒyeva kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ Å«rÅ«hi nippÄ«á¸·etvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahatthaá¹ƒ pÄ• atikkameyyaâ€™â€™ nti. channo cintesi --- ``sace dvÄ• raá¹ƒ na ugghÄ• payati, ahaá¹ƒ ay kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ dakkhiá¹‡ahatthena parikkhipanto upakacchake katvÄ• uppatitvÄ• pÄ• kÄ atikkamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti. kaá¹‡á¸• ako cintesi --- ``ahaá¹ƒ dvÄ• re avivariyamÄ• ne ya ayyaputtaá¹ƒ gahitavÄ• ladhinÄ• channena saddhiá¹ƒ uppatitvÄ• pÄ• kÄ• rassa purato pa ti. evameva tayo purisÄ• cintayiá¹ƒsu. dvÄ• re adhivatthÄ• devatÄ• mahÄ• dvÄ• raá¹ƒ viv tasmiá¹ƒ khaá¹‡e mÄ• ro pÄ• pimÄ• ``mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ nivattessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• gan

---

``mÄ• nikkhama mahÄ• vÄ«ra, ito te sattame dine.

dibbaá¹ƒ tu cakkaratanaá¹ƒ, addhÄ• pÄ• tu bhavissati || --- dvisahassaparittadÄ«paparivÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ mahÄ• dÄ«pÄ• naá¹ƒ rajjaá¹ƒ kÄ• re ti. mahÄ• puriso Ä• ha ``kosi tvaâ€™â€™ nti. ahaá¹ƒ vasavattÄ«ti.

``jÄ• nÄ• mahaá¹ƒ \Ee 283/ mahÄ• rÄ• ja, mayhaá¹ƒ cakkassa sambhavaá¹ƒ.

anatthikohaá¹ƒ rajjena, gaccha tvaá¹ƒ mÄ• ra mÄ• idha ||

``sakalaá¹ƒ dasasahassampi, lokadhÄ• tumahaá¹ƒ pana.

unnÄ• detvÄ• bhavissÄ• mi, buddho loke vinÄ• yakoâ€™â€™ ti || ---

Ä• ha. so tatthevantaradhÄ• yi.

mahÄ• satto \Ne 326/ ekÅ«nattiá¹ƒsavassakÄ• le hatthagataá¹ƒ cakkavattirajjaá¹ƒ kheá¸·ap anapekkho chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• cakkavattisirinivÄ• sabhÅ«tÄ• rÄ• jabhavanÄ• nikkhamitvÄ• uttarÄ• sÄ• á¸·hanakkhatte vattamÄ• ne nagarato nikkhamitvÄ• nagaraá¹ƒ \Be 332/ apalok vitakkasamanantarameva cassa kulÄ• lacakkaá¹ƒ viya so bhÅ«mippadeso parivatti. yathÄ• kapilavatthupuraá¹ƒ disvÄ• tassiá¹ƒ bhÅ«mippadese kaá¹‡á¸• akanivattanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma ceti gantabbamagÄ• bhimukhaá¹ƒyeva kaá¹‡á¸• akaá¹ƒ katvÄ• pÄ• yÄ• si mahatÄ• sakkÄ• re tadÄ• mahÄ• satte gacchante tassa purato devatÄ• saá¹-á¹-hi ukkÄ• satasahassÄ• ni dhÄ saá¹-á¹-hi dakkhiá¹‡ato saá¹-á¹-hi ukkÄ• satasahassÄ• ni, tathÄ• vÄ• mapassato. aparÄ• surabhikusumamÄ• lÄ• dÄ• macandanacuá¹‡á¹‡acÄ• maradhajapaá¹-Ä• kÄ• hi sakkaronti dibbÄ• ni saá¹…gÄ«tÄ• ni anekÄ• ni ca turiyÄ• ni vajjiá¹ƒsu.

iminÄ• sirisamudayena gacchanto bodhisatto ekaratteneva tÄ«á¹‡i rajjÄ• ni atikkamma tiá¹ gantvÄ• anomÄ• nadÄ«tÄ«raá¹ƒ sampÄ• puá¹‡i. atha bodhisatto nadÄ«tÄ«re á¹-hatvÄ• ch nÄ• mÄ• yaá¹ƒ nadÄ«â€™â€™ ti? ``anomÄ• nÄ• ma, devÄ• â€™â€™ ti. ``amhÄ• kampi p paá¹‡hiyÄ• assaá¹ƒ ghaá¹-á¹-ento assassa saÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ adÄ• si. asso ullaá¹…ghitvÄ• aá¹-nadiyÄ• pÄ• rimatÄ«re aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. bodhisatto assapiá¹-á¹-hito oruyha muttarÄ• sisadise á¹-hatvÄ• channaá¹ƒ Ä• mantesi --- ``samma channa, tvaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ Ä• bharaá¹‡Ä• ni c gaccha, ahaá¹ƒ pabbajissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti. channo, ``ahampi, deva, pabbajissÄ• mÄ«â€ ``na labbhÄ• tayÄ• pabbajituá¹ƒ, gaccheva tvaâ€™â€™ nti tikkhattuá¹ƒ nivÄ• retvÄ• Ä• b kaá¹‡á¸• akaÃ±ca paá¹-icchÄ• petvÄ• cintesi --- ``ime mayhaá¹ƒ kesÄ• samaá¹‡asÄ• rupp chindissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti dakkhiá¹‡ena hatthena paramanisitamasivaraá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• vÄ• saddhiá¹ƒ cÅ«á¸·aá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• chindi, kesÄ• dvaá¹…gulamattÄ• hutvÄ• dakkhiá¹‡ato Ä• allÄ«yiá¹ƒsu. tesaá¹ƒ pana kesÄ• naá¹ƒ yÄ• vajÄ«vaá¹ƒ tadeva pamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi, mass kesamassuohÄ• raá¹‡akiccampissa nÄ• hosi. bodhisatto saha moá¸·iyÄ• cÅ«á¸·aá¹ƒ gahet bhavissÄ• mi, Ä• kÄ• se tiá¹-á¹-hatu, no ce, bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ patatÅ«â€™â€™ ti \Ee 284/ Ä• kÄ cÅ«á¸·Ä• maá¹‡ibandhanaá¹ƒ yojanappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ gantvÄ• Ä• kÄ• se aá¹ atha \Be 333/ sakko devarÄ• jÄ• dibbena cakkhunÄ• olokento yojanikena ratanacaá¹…koá paá¹-iggahetvÄ• tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane tiyojanaá¹ƒ sattaratanamayaá¹ƒ __cÅ«á¸·Ä• maá¹‡i patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• pesi. yathÄ• ha ---

``chetvÄ• na \Ne 327/ moá¸·iá¹ƒ varagandhavÄ• sitaá¹ƒ, vehÄ• yasaá¹ƒ ukkhipi aggapugga sahassanetto sirasÄ• paá¹-iggahi, suvaá¹‡á¹‡acaá¹…koá¹-avarena vÄ• savoâ€™â€™ ti || ( Ap-a I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ja I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ•).

puna bodhisatto cintesi --- ``imÄ• ni kÄ• sikavatthÄ• ni mahagghÄ• ni, na mayhaá¹ƒ samaá athassa kassapabuddhakÄ• le purÄ• á¹‡asahÄ• yako ghaá¹-ikÄ• ramahÄ• brahmÄ• ekaá¹ vinÄ• sabhÄ• vÄ• ppattena mittabhÄ• vena cintesi --- ``ajja me sahÄ• yako mahÄ• bhinikkh samaá¹‡aparikkhÄ• ramassa gahetvÄ• gacchissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti.

``ticÄ«varaÃ±ca patto ca, vÄ• si sÅ«ci ca bandhanaá¹ƒ.

parissÄ• vanaÃ±ca aá¹-á¹-hete, yuttayogassa bhikkhunoâ€™â€™ ti || (Sv I 215; Ps I 294; II
(to Vin III) I 45 padabhÄ• janÄ«yavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• ; Ap-a I avidÅ«renidÄ• nakathÄ• ; Ja I avid I-a 206) --- ime aá¹-á¹-ha samaá¹‡aparikkhÄ• re Ä• haritvÄ• adÄ• si. mahÄ• puriso arahaddhajaá¹ƒ niv pabbajjÄ• vesaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• sÄ• á¹-akayugalaá¹ƒ Ä• kÄ• se khipi. taá¹ƒ mahÄ• brahmÄ• p dvÄ• dasayojanikaá¹ƒ sabbaratanamayaá¹ƒ cetiyaá¹ƒ katvÄ• taá¹ƒ anto pakkhipitvÄ• á¹-ha mahÄ• satto --- ``channa, mama vacanena mÄ• tÄ• pitÅ«naá¹ƒ Ä• rogyaá¹ƒ vadehÄ«â€™â channo mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ vanditvÄ• padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• pakkÄ• mi. kaá¹‡á¸• ako pana mantayamÄ• nassa bodhisattassa vacanaá¹ƒ suá¹‡anto á¹-hatvÄ• --- ``natthi dÄ• ni mayha dassanaâ€™â€™ nti cakkhupathamassa vijahanto viyogadukkhamadhivÄ• setuá¹ƒ asakkon katvÄ• suraripudurabhibhavane tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsabhavane kaá¹‡á¸• ako nÄ• ma devaputto hutv vimalatthavilÄ• siniyÄ• vimÄ• navatthuá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya gahetabbÄ• . channassa paá¹-han \Be 334/ kaá¹‡á¸• akassa kÄ• lakiriyÄ• ya dutiyena sokena pÄ«á¸·iyamÄ• no rodanto paride bodhisattopi pabbajitvÄ• tasmiá¹ƒyeva padese anupiyaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma ambavanaá¹ƒ atthi, tatt pabbajjÄ• sukhena vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• tato pacchÄ• saÃ±jhÄ• ppabhÄ• nuraÃ±jitasaliladhar paripuá¹‡á¹‡arajanikaro viya kÄ• sÄ• vavarasaá¹ƒvuto ekakopi anekajanaparivuto viya viroc vanavÄ• simigapakkhÄ«naá¹ƒ nayanÄ• matapÄ• namiva karonto ekacaro sÄ«ho viya naras mattamÄ• taá¹…gavilÄ• sagÄ• mÄ« samassÄ• sento viya vasundharaá¹ƒ pÄ• datalehi ekac maggaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• uttuá¹…gataraá¹…gabhaá¹…gaá¹ƒ asaá¹…gaá¹ƒ \Ee 285/ gaá¹…gaá¹ƒ ratanajutivisaravirÄ• jitavararucirarÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ pÄ• visi. p sapadÄ• naá¹ƒ piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya cari. sakalaá¹ƒ pana taá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ bodhisattassa rÅ«pada paviá¹-á¹-he taá¹ƒ nagaraá¹ƒ viya asurinde paviá¹-á¹-he devanagaraá¹ƒ viya saá¹…khobhar carante mahÄ• purise nagaravÄ• sino manussÄ• mahÄ• sattassa rÅ«padassanena saÃ±jÄ bodhisattassa rÅ«padassanÄ• vajjitahadayÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ.

tesaá¹ƒ manussÄ• naá¹ƒ aÃ±Ã±ataro aÃ±Ã±ataramevamÄ• ha --- ``kinnu yaá¹ƒ, bho, rÄ• h nigÅ«á¸·hakiraá¹‡ajÄ• lo puá¹‡á¹‡acando manussalokamÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti. tamaÃ±Ã±o si ``kiá¹ƒ kathesi, samma, kadÄ• nÄ• ma tayÄ• puá¹‡á¹‡acando manussalokamÄ• gato diá¹-kusumaketukÄ• madevo vesantaramÄ• dÄ• ya amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ mahÄ• rÄ• jassa nÄ• garÄ• na kÄ«á¸·itumÄ• gatoâ€™â€™ ti. tamaÃ±Ã±o sitaá¹ƒ katvÄ• evamÄ• ha --- ``kiá¹ƒ, bho, tvaá¹ issarakodhahutÄ• sanaparidaá¸• á¸• hasarÄ«ro surapatidasasatanayano eso amarapurasaÄ tamaÃ±Ã±o Ä«sakaá¹ƒ hasitvÄ• --- ``kiá¹ƒ vadesi, bho, te pubbÄ• paravirodhaá¹ƒ, kuto par kuto vajiraá¹ƒ, kuto erÄ• vaá¹‡o. addhÄ• brahmÄ• esa brÄ• hmaá¹‡ajanaá¹ƒ pamattaá¹ƒ Ä niyojanatthÄ• ya Ä• gatoâ€™â€™ ti. te sabbepi apasÄ• detvÄ• aÃ±Ã±o paá¹‡á¸• itajÄ• tiko puá¹‡á¹‡acando \Be 335/, na ca kÄ• madevo, nÄ• pi dasasatanayano, na cÄ• pi brahmÄ• , acchariyamanussoâ€™â€™ ti.

evaá¹ƒ sallapantesu eva nÄ• garesu rÄ• japurisÄ• gantvÄ• taá¹ƒ pavattiá¹ƒ raÃ±Ã±o bimb ``deva, devo vÄ• gandhabbo vÄ• udÄ• hu nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• vÄ• yakkho vÄ• ko nu vÄ• amh caratÄ«â€™â€™ ti. rÄ• jÄ• taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• uparipÄ• sÄ• datale á¹-hatvÄ• mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ acchariyabbhutacittajÄ• to rÄ• japurise Ä• á¹‡Ä• pesi --- ``gacchatha, bhaá¹‡e, taá¹ƒ vÄ«ma bhavissati, nagarÄ• nikkhamitvÄ• antaradhÄ• yissati, sace devatÄ• bhavissati, Ä• kÄ• ser nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• bhavissati, pathaviyaá¹ƒ nimujjitvÄ• gamissati, sace manusso bhavissati, ya bhikkhaá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti.

mahÄ• purisopi santindriyo santamÄ• naso rÅ«pasobhÄ• ya mahÄ• janassa nayanÄ• ni Ä• yugamattaá¹ƒ pekkhamÄ• no missakabhattaá¹ƒ yÄ• panamattaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒharitvÄ• paviá¹-á¹-nikkhamitvÄ• paá¹‡á¸• avapabbatacchÄ• yÄ• ya puratthÄ• bhimukho nisÄ«ditvÄ• Ä• hÄ• n paribhuÃ±ji. tato rÄ• japurisÄ• gantvÄ• taá¹ƒ pavattiá¹ƒ raÃ±Ã±o Ä• rocesuá¹ƒ. tato dÅ«tav magadhÄ• dhipati rÄ• jÄ• bÄ• lajanehi duranusÄ• ro merumandÄ• rasÄ• ro sattasÄ• ro bim guá¹‡assavaneneva saÃ±jÄ• tadassanakutÅ«halo vegena nagarato nikkhamitvÄ• \Ee 286/gantvÄ• yÄ• nÄ• oruyha bodhisattassa santikaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• tena katÄ• nuÃ±Ã±o bandhuja nisÄ«ditvÄ• bodhisattassa iriyÄ• pathe pasÄ«ditvÄ• katapaá¹-isanthÄ• ro nÄ• magottÄ• dÄ bodhisattassa sabbaá¹ƒ issariyaá¹ƒ niyyÄ• tesi. bodhisatto --- ``mayhaá¹ƒ, mahÄ• rÄ• ja, va kilesakÄ• mehi vÄ• attho natthi. ahaÃ±hi paramÄ• bhisambodhiá¹ƒ patthayanto nikkhantoâ anekappakÄ• rena yÄ• cantopi tassa cittaá¹ƒ alabhitvÄ• --- ``addhÄ• buddho bhavissati, bu paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ mama vijitaá¹ƒ Ä• gantabbaâ€™â€™ nti vatvÄ• nagaraá¹ƒ paviá¹-á¹-ho.

``atha rÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ vararÄ• jagahaá¹ƒ, nararÄ• javare nagaraá¹ƒ tu gate.

girirÄ• javaro munirÄ• javaro, migarÄ• jagato sugatopi gatoâ€™â€™ || atha \Be 336/ bodhisatto anupubbena cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ caramÄ• no Ä• á¸·Ä• raÃ±ca kÄ• lÄ• ma upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha samÄ• pattiyo nibbattetvÄ• --- ``nÄ• yaá¹ƒ maggo bodhiyÄ• samÄ• pattibhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ analaá¹…karitvÄ• mahÄ• padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitukÄ• mo uruvela vatÄ• yaá¹ƒ bhÅ«mibhÄ• goâ€™â€™ ti tattheva vÄ• saá¹ƒ upagantvÄ• mahÄ• padhÄ• naá lakkhaá¹‡apariggÄ• hakabrÄ• hmaá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ cattÄ• ro puttÄ• koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o brÄ• hma paá¹-hamaá¹ƒyeva pabbajitÄ• gÄ• manigamarÄ• jadhÄ• nÄ«su bhikkhÄ• cariyaá¹ƒ carantÄ sampÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒsu. atha naá¹ƒ chabbassÄ• ni mahÄ• padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahantaá¹ƒ --- ``id idÄ• ni buddho bhavissatÄ«â€™â€™ ti pariveá¹‡asammajjanÄ• dikÄ• ya vattapaá¹-ipattiyÄ• santikÄ• vacarÄ• vassa ahesuá¹ƒ. bodhisattopi --- ``koá¹-ippattaá¹ƒ dukkaraá¹ƒ karissÄ• mÄ ekatilataá¹‡á¸• ulÄ• dÄ«hi vÄ«tinÄ• mesi. sabbasopi Ä• hÄ• rupacchedaá¹ƒ akÄ• si. devatÄ upahÄ• rayamÄ• nÄ• pakkhipiá¹ƒsu.

athassa tÄ• ya nirÄ• hÄ• ratÄ• ya paramakisabhÄ• vappattakÄ• yassa suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á ahosi, dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalakkhaá¹‡Ä• ni paá¹-icchannÄ• ni ahesuá¹ƒ. atha bodhisatto antaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• --- ``nÄ• yaá¹ƒ maggo bodhiyÄ• â€™â€™ ti oá¸·Ä• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ Ä piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya \Ne 330/ caritvÄ• Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ Ä• hari. athassa dvattiá¹ƒsamahÄ• purisalak ahesuá¹ƒ, kÄ• yo suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡o ahosi. atha paÃ±cavaggiyÄ• bhikkhÅ« taá¹ƒ disvÄ chabbassÄ• ni dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ karontopi sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhituá¹ƒ nÄ• sakkhi, gÄ• manigamarÄ• jadhÄ• nÄ«su piá¹‡á¸• Ä• ya caritvÄ• oá¸·Ä• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ Ä• ha bÄ• hulliko esa padhÄ• navibbhanto, kiá¹ƒ no iminÄ• â€™â€™ ti mahÄ• purisaá¹ƒ pahÄ• ya isipatanaá¹ƒ agamaá¹ƒsu.

atha mahÄ• puriso visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya uruvelÄ• yaá¹ƒ senÄ• nigame senÄ• kuá¹-u nÄ• ma dÄ• rikÄ• ahosi \Ee 287/. tÄ• ya sampasÄ• danajÄ• tÄ• ya dinnaá¹ƒ pakkhittadibbo paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• tiá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• neraÃ±jarÄ• ya paá¹-isotaá¹ƒ khipitvÄ• kÄ supantaá¹ƒ bodhesi. atha bodhisatto neraÃ±jarÄ• tÄ«re surabhikusumasamalaá¹…kate nÄ« divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• sÄ• yanhasamaye \Be 337/ devatÄ• hi alaá¹…katena maggena bo devanÄ• gayakkhasiddhÄ• dayo dibbehi mÄ• lÄ• gandhavilepanehi pÅ«jayiá¹ƒsu. tasmiá¹ƒ tiá¹‡ahÄ• rako tiá¹‡aá¹ƒ Ä• dÄ• ya paá¹-ipathe Ä• gacchanto mahÄ• purisassa Ä• kÄ• raá¹ tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo adÄ• si. bodhisatto tiá¹‡aá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• asitaÃ±janagirisaá¹…kÄ• saá¹ƒ Ä dinakarajÄ• laá¹ƒ sakahadayamiva karuá¹‡Ä• sÄ«talaá¹ƒ sÄ«tacchÄ• yaá¹ƒ vividhavihagag mandamÄ• ruteritÄ• ya ghanasÄ• khÄ• ya samalaá¹…kataá¹ƒ naccantamiva pÄ«tiyÄ• raÃ± virocamÄ• navijayatarumassatthabodhirukkhamÅ«lamupagantvÄ• assatthadumarÄ• jaá¹ƒ t katvÄ• pubbuttaradisÄ• bhÄ• ge á¹-hito tÄ• ni tiá¹‡Ä• ni agge gahetvÄ• cÄ• lesi. tÄ• vadev ahosi. tÄ• ni ca tiá¹‡Ä• ni cittakÄ• rena lekhÄ• gahitÄ• ni viya ahesuá¹ƒ. bodhisatto tattha cu tiá¹‡asanthare tisandhipallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujitvÄ• caturaá¹…gasamannÄ• gatavÄ«riyaá¹ƒ suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ«á¹-he á¹-hapitarajatakkhandhaá¹ƒ viya ca paÃ±Ã±Ä• sahatthaá¹ƒ bodhikkha katvÄ• upari maá¹‡ichattena viya bodhisÄ• khÄ• hi dhÄ• riyamÄ• no nisÄ«di. suvaá¹‡á¹‡av bodhiaá¹…kurÄ• patamÄ• nÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡apaá¹-á¹-e pavÄ• á¸·Ä• viya nikkhittÄ• virocayi bodhisatte pana tattha nisinneyeva vasavattimÄ• ro devaputto --- ``siddhatthakumÄ• ro ma visayamatikkamitukÄ• mo, na dÄ• nÄ• hamatikkamitumassa dassÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti mÄ• r mÄ• rabalamÄ• dÄ• ya nikkhami. sÄ• kira mÄ• rasenÄ• mÄ• rassa purato dvÄ• dasayojan vÄ• mapassato ca, pacchato pana cakkavÄ• á¸·apariyantaá¹ƒ katvÄ• á¹-hitÄ• , uddhaá¹ƒ n yassÄ• pana unnadantiyÄ• saddo navayojanasahassato paá¹-á¹-hÄ• ya pathaviundriyanas samaye sakko devarÄ• jÄ• vijayuttaraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma saá¹…khaá¹ƒ \Ne 331/ dhamamÄ• no aá vÄ«sahatthasatiko ahosi. paÃ±casikho gandhabbadevaputto tigÄ• vutÄ• yataá¹ƒ beá¸·uvapa vÄ• dayamÄ• no maá¹…galayuttÄ• ni gÄ«tÄ• ni gÄ• yamÄ• no aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. suyÄ• mo dev saradasamayarajanikarasassirikaá¹ƒ dibbacÄ• maraá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• mandaá¹ƒ mandaá¹ƒ bÄ« brahmÄ• ca sahampati tiyojanavitthataá¹ƒ dutiyamiva puá¹‡á¹‡acandaá¹ƒ setacchattaá¹ƒ b uddhaá¹ƒ dhÄ• retvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. mahÄ• kÄ• á¸·opi nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• asÄ«tiyÄ• nÄ• ganÄ thutisaá¹…gÄ«tÄ• ni pavattento mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ namassamÄ• no aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. dasasu cak nÄ• nÄ• vidhehi surabhikusumadÄ• madhÅ«pacuá¹‡á¹‡Ä• dÄ«hi pÅ«jayamÄ• nÄ• sÄ• dhu aá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒsu.

atha mÄ• ro devaputto \Ee 288/ diyaá¸• á¸• hayojanasatikaá¹ƒ himagirisikharasadisaá¹ƒ pa girimekhalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma ratanakhacitavaravÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ arivÄ• raá¹‡avÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ abhiruh mÄ• petvÄ• aggahitaggahaá¹‡ena nÄ• nÄ• vudhÄ• ni aggahÄ• pesi. mÄ• raparisÄ• pi asip samussitadhanumusala-phÄ• la-saá¹…ku-kunta-tomara-upala-laguá¸·a-valaya-kaá¹‡aya-ka ruru- sÄ«ha-khagga-sarabha-varÄ• ha-byaggha-vÄ• naroraga-majjÄ• rolÅ«kavadanÄ• mahiá¹ƒsa-pasada-turaá¹…ga-diradÄ• divadanÄ• ca nÄ• nÄ• bhÄ«mavirÅ«pabÄ«bhaccha manussayakkhapisÄ• casadisakÄ• yÄ• ca mahÄ• sattaá¹ƒ bodhisattaá¹ƒ bodhimÅ«le nisin gantvÄ• parivÄ• rayitvÄ• mÄ• rassa sandesaá¹ƒ samudikkhamÄ• nÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si.

tato mÄ• rabale bodhimaá¹‡á¸• amupasaá¹…kamanteyeva tesaá¹ƒ sakkÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ ekop sammukhasammukhaá¹-á¹-hÄ• neneva palÄ• yiá¹ƒsu. sakko pana devarÄ• jÄ• taá¹ƒ vijayu piá¹-á¹-hiyaá¹ƒ katvÄ• palÄ• yitvÄ• cakkavÄ• á¸·amukhavaá¹-á¹-iyaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. mahÄ cakkavÄ• á¸·akoá¹-iyaá¹ƒ á¹-hapetvÄ• brahmalokameva agamÄ• si. kÄ• á¸·o nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• pathaviyaá¹ƒ nimujjitvÄ• paÃ±cayojanasatikaá¹ƒ maÃ±jerikanÄ• gabhava mukhaá¹ƒ pidahitvÄ• nipajji. ekadevatÄ• pi tattha á¹-hÄ• tuá¹ƒ samatthÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• hos suÃ±Ã±avimÄ• ne mahÄ• brahmÄ• viya ekakova nisÄ«di. ``idÄ• ni mÄ• ro Ä• gamissatÄ«â anekarÅ«pÄ• ni aniá¹-á¹-hÄ• ni dunnimittÄ• ni pÄ• turahesuá¹ƒ.

``pamattabandhussa ca yuddhakÄ• le, tilokabandhussa ca vattamÄ• ne.

ukkÄ• samantÄ• nipatiá¹ƒsu ghorÄ• , dhÅ«mandhakÄ• rÄ• ca disÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ ||

``acetanÄ• yampi \Be 339/ \Ne 332/ sacetanÄ• yathÄ• , gatÄ• viyogaá¹ƒ patineva kÄ• min

lateva vÄ• tÄ• bhihatÄ• sasÄ• garÄ• , pakampi nÄ• nÄ• sadharÄ• dharÄ• mahÄ« ||

``ahesumuddhÅ«tajalÄ• samuddÄ• , vahiá¹ƒsu najjo paá¹-ilomameva.

kÅ«á¹-Ä• ni nÄ• nÄ• tarusaá¹…ghaá¹-Ä• ni, bhetvÄ• girÄ«naá¹ƒ pathaviá¹ƒ bhajiá¹ƒsu ||

``pavÄ• yi vÄ• to pharuso samantÄ• , nighaá¹-á¹-asaddo tumulo ahosi.

bhajittha ghoraá¹ƒ ravirandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ, kabandharÅ«paá¹ƒ gagane carittha ||

``evaá¹ƒpakÄ• raá¹ƒ asivaá¹ƒ aniá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, Ä• kÄ• sagaá¹ƒ bhÅ«migataÃ±ca ghoraá¹ƒ.

anekarÅ«paá¹ƒ kira dunnimittaá¹ƒ, ahosi mÄ• rÄ• gamane samantÄ• ||

``taá¹ƒ \Ee 289/ devadevaá¹ƒ abhihantukÄ• maá¹ƒ, kÄ• maá¹ƒ tu disvÄ• pana devasaá¹…g

hÄ• hÄ• ti saddaá¹ƒ anukampamÄ• nÄ• , akaá¹ƒsu saddhiá¹ƒ amaraá¹…ganÄ• hi ||

``pacchÄ• pi passiá¹ƒsu sudantarÅ«paá¹ƒ, disÄ• vidisÄ• su palÄ• yamÄ• naá¹ƒ.

saantakaá¹ƒ taá¹ƒ sabalaá¹ƒ anekaá¹ƒ, hatthe ca tharÅ« ca pÄ• tÄ• tayiá¹ƒsu ||

``vihaá¹…gamÄ• naá¹ƒ garuá¸·ova majjhe, majjhe migÄ• naá¹ƒ paramova sÄ«ho.

mahÄ• yaso mÄ• rabalassa majjhe, visÄ• rado vÄ«tabhayo nisÄ«diâ€™â€™ || atha \Be 340/ mÄ• ro --- ``siddhatthaá¹ƒ bhiá¹ƒsÄ• petvÄ• palÄ• pessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti v paharaá¹‡avassaá¹ƒ pÄ• sÄ• á¹‡avassaá¹ƒ puna aá¹…gÄ• rakukkuá¸·avÄ• lukakalalandha mÄ• raiddhÄ«hi bodhisattaá¹ƒ palÄ• petuá¹ƒ asakkonto kuddhamÄ• naso --- ``kiá¹ƒ, bhaá¹‡ siddhatthamasiddhatthaá¹ƒ karotha, gaá¹‡hatha hanatha chindatha bandhatha na muÃ±cat mÄ• raparisaá¹ƒ Ä• á¹‡Ä• petvÄ• sayaÃ±ca girimekhalassa khandhe nisÄ«ditvÄ• ekena k bodhisattaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• --- ``bho siddhattha, uá¹-á¹-haha pallaá¹…kÄ• â€™â€™ mahÄ• sattassa atighoraá¹ƒ pÄ«á¸·amakÄ• si. atha mahÄ• puriso --- ``kadÄ• te pÅ«ritÄ• , pÄ• ramÄ«â€™â€™ tiÄ• dÄ«ni vacanÄ• ni vatvÄ• dakkhiá¹‡ahatthaá¹ƒ pathaviá¹ƒ ninnÄ• cuddasasahassÄ• dhikÄ• ni dasasatasahassayojanabahalÄ• ni pathavisandhÄ• rakÄ• ni vÄ kampetvÄ• tadantaraá¹ƒ catunahutÄ• dhikadviyojanasatasahassabahalÄ• ayaá¹ƒ mahÄ• p upari Ä• kÄ• se anekasahassÄ• ni \Ne 333/ vijjulatÄ• ca asanÄ« ca phaliá¹ƒsu. atha girime jaá¹‡á¹‡ukena pati. mÄ• ro girimekhalakkhandhe nisinno bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ pati. mÄ• raparisÄ• bhusamuá¹-á¹-hi viya vikiriá¹ƒsu.

atha mahÄ• purisopi taá¹ƒ samÄ• raá¹ƒ mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ khantimettÄ• vÄ«riyapaÃ±Ã±Ä• dÄ pÄ• ramÄ«namÄ• nubhÄ• vena viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• paá¹-hamayÄ• me pubbenivÄ• saá¹ƒ anu dibbacakkhuá¹ƒ visodhetvÄ• paccÅ«sasamaye sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• ciá¹‡á¹‡e paccayÄ Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nacatutthajjhÄ• naá¹ƒ nibbattetvÄ• tameva pÄ• dakaá¹ƒ katvÄ• vipassanaá¹ƒ maggapaá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iyÄ• adhigatena catutthamaggena sabbakilese khepetvÄ• sabbabuddh sabbabuddhÄ• ciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ ---

``anekajÄ• tisaá¹ƒsÄ• raá¹ƒ, sandhÄ• vissaá¹ƒ anibbisaá¹ƒ.

gahakÄ• raá¹ƒ gavesanto, dukkhÄ• jÄ• ti punappunaá¹ƒ ||

``gahakÄ• raka diá¹-á¹-hosi, puna gehaá¹ƒ na kÄ• hasi.

sabbÄ• te phÄ• sukÄ• bhaggÄ• , gahakÅ«á¹-aá¹ƒ visaá¹…khataá¹ƒ.

visaá¹…khÄ• ragataá¹ƒ cittaá¹ƒ, taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ khayamajjhagÄ• â€™â€™ ti || (Dhp 153-15

udÄ• naá¹ƒ udÄ• nesi.

santikenidÄ• nakathÄ•

udÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be 341/ udÄ• netvÄ• nisinnassa bhagavato etadahosi --- ``ahaá¹ƒ kappasatas asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni imassa pallaá¹…kassa kÄ• raá¹‡Ä• sandhÄ• viá¹ƒ, ayaá¹ƒ me pallaá¹…

maá¹…galapallaá¹…ko, ettha me nisinnassa yÄ• va saá¹…kappo na paripuá¹‡á¹‡o, na tÄ• v vuá¹-á¹-hahissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti anekakoá¹-isatasahassasaá¹…khÄ• samÄ• pattiyo samÄ nisÄ«di. yaá¹ƒ sandhÄ• ya vuttaá¹ƒ --- ``atha kho bhagavÄ• sattÄ• haá¹ƒ ekapallaá¹…kena vimuttisukhapaá¹-isaá¹ƒvedÄ«â€™â€™ ti (Vin I 1).

athekaccÄ• naá¹ƒ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ --- ``ajjÄ• pi tÄ• va nÅ«na siddhatthassa kattabbakiccaá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kasmiÃ±hi Ä• layaá¹ƒ na vijahatÄ«â€™â€™ ti parivitakko udapÄ• di. atha satthÄ• Ã±atvÄ• tÄ• saá¹ƒ vitakkÅ«pasamanatthaá¹ƒ vehÄ• saá¹ƒ abbhuggantvÄ• yamakapÄ• á¹-iminÄ• pÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyena \Ne 334/ devatÄ• naá¹ƒ vitakkaá¹ƒ vÅ«pasametvÄ• pallaá¹…kat uttaradisÄ• bhÄ• ge á¹-hatvÄ• --- ``imasmiá¹ƒ vata me pallaá¹…ke sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• a nti cattÄ• ri asaá¹…khyeyyÄ• ni kappasatasahassaÃ±ca \Ee 290/ pÅ«ritÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• ramÄ phalÄ• dhigamanaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kaÃ±ca bodhirukkhaÃ±ca animisehi akkhÄ«hi o vÄ«tinÄ• mesi, taá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ __animisacetiyaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma jÄ• taá¹ƒ.

atha pallaá¹…kassa ca á¹-hitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nassa ca antarÄ• caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• petvÄ• pur ratanacaá¹…kame caá¹…kamanto sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• mesi, taá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ __ratana jÄ• taá¹ƒ.

catutthe pana sattÄ• he bodhito pacchimuttaradisÄ• bhÄ• ge devatÄ• ratanagharaá¹ƒ mÄ• pallaá¹…kena nisÄ«ditvÄ• abhidhammapiá¹-akaá¹ƒ vicinanto sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• mesi, t __ratanagharacetiyaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma jÄ• taá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• bodhisamÄ«peyeva cattÄ• ri sattÄ• hÄ• ni vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• paÃ±came __ajapÄ• lanigrodho_ tenupasaá¹…kami. tatrÄ• pi dhammaá¹ƒ vicinanto vimuttisukhaÃ±ca satthÄ• tattha sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• __mucalinda_mÅ«laá¹ƒ agamÄ• si. tattha sa uppannÄ• ya sÄ«tÄ• dipaá¹-ibÄ• hanatthaá¹ƒ mucalindena nÄ• garÄ• jena sattakkhattuá¹ƒ asambÄ• dhÄ• ya gandhakuá¹-iyÄ• viharanto viya \Be 342/ vimuttisukhaá¹ƒ paá¹-isaá¹ƒved sattÄ• haá¹ƒ vÄ«tinÄ• metvÄ• rÄ• jÄ• yatanamÅ«laá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami. tatthapi vimuttisukh paá¹-isaá¹ƒvediyamÄ• nova sattÄ• haá¹ƒ nisÄ«di. ettÄ• vatÄ• satta sattÄ• hÄ• ni paripuá¹‡ bhagavato neva mukhadhovanaá¹ƒ na sarÄ«rapaá¹-ijagganaá¹ƒ nÄ• hÄ• rakiccaá¹ƒ ahosi, atha sattasattÄ• hamatthake ekÅ«napaÃ±Ã±Ä• satime divase sakkena devÄ• namindena u nÄ• galatÄ• dantakaá¹-á¹-hena ca anotattadahodakena ca mukhaá¹ƒ dhovitvÄ• tattheva __ tasmiá¹ƒ samaye __tapussabhallikÄ• _ nÄ• ma dve vÄ• á¹‡ijÄ• Ã±Ä• tisÄ• lohitÄ• ya deva ussÄ• hitÄ• manthaÃ±ca madhupiá¹‡á¸• ikaÃ±ca Ä• dÄ• ya --- ``paá¹-iggaá¹‡hÄ• tu bhaga anukampaá¹ƒ upÄ• dÄ• yÄ• â€™â€™ ti satthÄ• raá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒsu.

pÄ• yÄ• sapaá¹-iggahaá¹‡adivaseyeva devadattiyassa pattassa antarahitattÄ• --- ``na kho Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaá¹‡hanti, kimhi nu kho ahaá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaá¹‡heyyaâ€™â€™ n bhagavato ajjhÄ• sayaá¹ƒ viditvÄ• catÅ«hi \Ne 335/ disÄ• hi cattÄ• ro mahÄ• rÄ• jÄ• no in patte upanÄ• mesuá¹ƒ. bhagavÄ• te paá¹-ikkhipi. puna muggavaá¹‡á¹‡e silÄ• maye cattÄ• bhagavÄ• tesaá¹ƒ catunnampi devaputtÄ• naá¹ƒ anukampaá¹ƒ upÄ• dÄ• ya paá¹-iggahetv tasmiá¹ƒ paccagghe selamaye patte Ä• hÄ• raá¹ƒ paá¹-iggahetvÄ• paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• anum vÄ• á¹‡ijÄ• buddhaÃ±ca dhammaÃ±ca saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gantvÄ• dvevÄ• cikÄ• upÄ• sakÄ• a atha satthÄ• puna ajapÄ• lanigrodhameva gantvÄ• nigrodhamÅ«le nisÄ«di. athassa tatth adhigatassa dhammassa gambhÄ«rataá¹ƒ paccavekkhantassa \Ee 291/ sabbabuddhÄ• naá kho myÄ• yaá¹ƒ dhammoâ€™â€™ tiÄ• dinÄ• (DN II 64; MN I 281; II 337; SN a I 172; Vin I adesetukÄ• matÄ• kÄ• rappatto parivitakko udapÄ• di. atha __brahmÄ• sahampati_ ``nass vata bho lokoâ€™â€™ ti (DN II 66; MN I 282; II 338; SN a I 172; Vin I 8) dasasu cakkavÄ• â sakkasuyÄ• masantusitanimmÄ• naratiparanimmitavasavattimahÄ• brahmÄ• no ca gahetvÄ --- ``desetu, bhante, bhagavÄ• dhammaâ€™â€™ ntiÄ• dinÄ• (DN II 66; MN I 282; II 338; S nayena dhammadesanaá¹ƒ Ä• yÄ• ci.

atha \Be 343/ satthÄ• tassa paá¹-iÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ datvÄ• --- ``kassa nu kho ahaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaâ deseyyaâ€™â€™ nti cintento Ä• á¸·Ä• rudakÄ• naá¹ƒ kÄ• laá¹…katabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• - paÃ±cavaggiyÄ• bhikkhÅ«â€™â€™ ti paÃ±cavaggiye Ä• rabbha manasikÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ• viharantÄ«â€™â€™ ti Ä• vajjento --- ``bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiyaá¹ƒ isipatane migadÄ• yeâ€™â€™ t gantvÄ• dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattessÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti katipÄ• haá¹ƒ bodhimaá¹‡á¸• asÄ viharitvÄ• Ä• sÄ• á¸·hipuá¹‡á¹‡amiyaá¹ƒ bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiá¹ƒ gamissÄ• mÄ«â€™â€™ ti patta aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasayojanamaggaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajji. antarÄ• magge haá¹-á¹-hatupagaá¹ƒ __upakaá disvÄ• tassa attano buddhabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ Ä• cikkhitvÄ• taá¹ƒdivasaá¹ƒyeva sÄ• yanhasama paÃ±cavaggiyÄ• pana tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ dÅ«ratova Ä• gacchantaá¹ƒ disvÄ• --- ``ayaá¹ƒ, Ä• paccayabÄ• hullÄ• ya Ä• vatto paripuá¹‡á¹‡akÄ• yo pÄ«á¹‡indriyo suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡o h abhivÄ• danÄ• dÄ«ni na karissÄ• ma, Ä• sanamattaá¹ƒ pana paÃ±Ã±Ä• peyyÄ• mÄ• â€™â tesaá¹ƒ cittÄ• cÄ• raá¹ƒ Ã±atvÄ• sabbasattesu anodhissakavasena pharaá¹‡asamatthaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒkhipitvÄ• odhissakavasena mettacittena phari. te bhagavato mettacittena phuá¹-á¹-hÄ upasaá¹…kamante sakÄ• ya katikÄ• ya saá¹‡á¹-hÄ• tuá¹ƒ asakkontÄ• abhivÄ• danÄ• dÄ« vitthÄ• rakathÄ• __vinayamahÄ• vaggÄ• _dÄ«su vuttanayeneva veditabbÄ• .

atha bhagavÄ• attano buddhabhÄ• vaá¹ƒ te Ã±Ä• petvÄ• paÃ±Ã±attavarabuddhÄ• sane uttarÄ• sÄ• á¸·hanakkhattayoge vattamÄ• ne aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahi brahmakoá¹-Ä«hi parivuto p

Ä• mantetvÄ• __dhammacakkappavattanasuttantaá¹ƒ_ desesi. tesu aÃ±Ã±Ä• sikoá¹‡á¸• a Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ pesento suttapariyosÄ• ne aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasahi brahmakoá¹-Ä«hi saddhiá¹ƒ sot patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<1> á¹• 21 ``ahametarahi sambuddho, gotamo sakyavaá¸• á¸• hano.

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<2> á¹• 21 ``brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayiá¹ƒ.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasannaá¹ƒ koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || tattha \Be 344/ __aha_nti attÄ• naá¹ƒ niddisati. __etarahÄ«_ti asmiá¹ƒ kÄ• le. __sakyavaá¸ sÄ• kiyakulavaá¸• á¸• hano. ``sakyapuá¹…gavoâ€™â€™ tipi pÄ• á¹-ho. __padhÄ• na_nti v __padahitvÄ• nÄ• _ti ghaá¹-etvÄ• vÄ• yamitvÄ• , dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ katvÄ• ti attho. __aá¹ koá¹-Ä«na_nti bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiyaá¹ƒ isipatane migadÄ• ye dhammacakkappavattanasuttanta aÃ±Ã±Ä• sikoá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±attherappamukhÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasannaá¹ƒ brahmakoá¹-Ä« ahosÄ«ti attho.

idÄ• ni bhagavÄ• atÄ«taá¹ƒ kathetvÄ• anÄ• gataá¹ƒ abhisamayaá¹ƒ kathento ---

<3> á¹• 21 ``tato paraÃ±ca desente, naradevasamÄ• game.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

tattha __naradevasamÄ• game_ti tato aparena samayena mahÄ• maá¹…galasamÄ• game devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ majjhe __maá¹…galasutta_pariyosÄ• ne (Khp 5.1 Ä• dayo; Sn 261 Ä vÄ«tivattÄ• naá¹ƒ naradevÄ• naá¹ƒ. __dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«_ti hessatÄ«ti attho. anÄ• g sotapatitattÄ• ``ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti atÄ«tavacanaá¹ƒ vuttaá¹ƒ, kÄ• lavipariyÄ• yavasena \Ne 3 paresu Ä«disesu vacanesu ca. puna __rÄ• hulovÄ• dasuttanta_desanÄ• ya (MN III 416 Ä• satte abhisamayÄ• matapÄ• naá¹ƒ pÄ• yesi. ayaá¹ƒ tatiyÄ• bhisamayo. tena vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<4> á¹• 21 ``idhevÄ• haá¹ƒ etarahi, ovadiá¹ƒ mama atrajaá¹ƒ.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahÅ«â€™â€™ ti || bhagavato kira ekova sÄ• vakasannipÄ• to ahosi. uruvelakassapÄ• dÄ«naá¹ƒ jaá¹-ilÄ• naá aggasÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¸• á¸• hattiyasatÄ• nÄ«ti imesaá¹ƒ aá¸• á¸• hateá¸·asasatÄ• naá¹ƒ

vuttaá¹ƒ ---

<5> á¹• 21 ``ekosi sannipÄ• to me, sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinaá¹ƒ.

aá¸• á¸• hateá¸·asasatÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhikkhÅ«nÄ• si samÄ• gamoâ€™â€™ ti ||

tattha __ekosÄ«_ti ekova Ä• si. __aá¸• á¸• hateá¸·asasatÄ• na_nti mama sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ dvÄ• dasasatÄ• naá¹ƒ. __bhikkhÅ«nÄ• sÄ«_ti bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ Ä• si \Be 345/. tesaá¹ƒ pana caturaá¹…gasannipÄ• te pÄ• timokkhaá¹ƒ uddisi.

atha bhagavÄ• attano pavattiá¹ƒ dassento ---

<6> á¹• 21 ``virocamÄ• no vimalo, bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa majjhago.

dadÄ• mi patthitaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, maá¹‡Ä«va sabbakÄ• madoâ€™â€™ ti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

tattha \Ee 293/ __virocamÄ• no_ti anantabuddhasiriyÄ• virocamÄ• no. __vimalo_ti vigatar __maá¹‡Ä«va sabbakÄ• mado_ti cintÄ• maá¹‡i viya sabbakÄ• madado ahampi icchitaá¹ƒ p lokiyalokuttarasukhavisesaá¹ƒ demÄ«ti attho.

idÄ• ni patthitapatthanaá¹ƒ dassento ---

<7> á¹• 21 ``phalamÄ• kaá¹…khamÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhavacchandajahesinaá¹ƒ.

catusaccaá¹ƒ pakÄ• semi, anukampÄ• ya pÄ• á¹‡inaâ€™â€™ nti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

tattha \Ne 338/ __phala_nti sotÄ• pattiphalÄ• dikaá¹ƒ catubbidhaá¹ƒ phalaá¹ƒ. __bhavacch bhavataá¹‡hÄ• pahÄ• yinaá¹ƒ, bhavataá¹‡haá¹ƒ pajahitukÄ• mÄ• naá¹ƒ. __anukampÄ• yÄ•

<8> idÄ• ni catusaccappakÄ• sane, abhisamayaá¹ƒ dassento __ ``dasavÄ«sasahassÄ• na

tattha __dasavÄ«sasahassÄ• na_nti dasasahassÄ• naÃ±ca vÄ«satisahassÄ• naÃ±ca. __e attho. navamadasamagÄ• thÄ• uttÄ• natthÄ• va.

11-12__._ ekÄ• dasamadvÄ• dasamagÄ• thÄ• su __idÄ• netarahÄ«_ti ubhopi ekatthÄ• , ve vuttÄ• . atha vÄ• __idÄ• nÄ«_ti mayi uppanne. __etarahÄ«_ti mayi dhammaá¹ƒ desente. __ appattaarahattaphalÄ• . __ariyaÃ±jasa_nti ariyaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gikaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ. __thon pasaá¹ƒsantÄ• . __bujjhissantÄ«_ti anÄ• gate catusaccadhammaá¹ƒ paá¹-ivijjhissantÄ«ti att __saá¹ƒsÄ• rasarita_nti saá¹ƒsÄ• rasÄ• garaá¹ƒ.

idÄ• ni \Be 346/ attano jÄ• tanagarÄ• diá¹ƒ dassento ---

<13> á¹• 21 ``nagaraá¹ƒ kapilavatthu me, rÄ• jÄ• suddhodano pitÄ• .

mayhaá¹ƒ janettikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• devÄ«ti vuccati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``ekÅ«natiá¹ƒsavassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhahaá¹ƒ vasiá¹ƒ.

rammo surammo subhako, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• lÄ«sasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

bhaddakaÃ±canÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, rÄ• hulo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``nimitte \Ee 294/ caturo disvÄ• , assayÄ• nena nikkhamiá¹ƒ.

chabbassaá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acariá¹ƒ dukkaraá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiyaá¹ƒ isipatane, cakkaá¹ƒ pavattitaá¹ƒ mayÄ• .

ahaá¹ƒ gotamasambuddho, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``kolito \Ne 339/ upatisso ca, dve bhikkhÅ« aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, santikÄ• vacaro mama.

khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, bhikkhunÄ« aggasÄ• vikÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``citto hatthÄ• á¸·avako ca, aggupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kupÄ• sakÄ• .

nandamÄ• tÄ• ca uttarÄ• , aggupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kupÄ• sikÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``ahaá¹ƒ assatthamÅ«lamhi, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

byÄ• mappabhÄ• sadÄ• mayhaá¹ƒ, soá¸·asahatthamuggatÄ• ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``appaá¹ƒ vassasataá¹ƒ Ä• yu, idÄ• netarahi vijjati.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nohaá¹ƒ, tÄ• remi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``á¹-hapayitvÄ• na dhammukkaá¹ƒ, pacchimaá¹ƒ janabodhanaá¹ƒ.

ahampi na cirasseva, saddhiá¹ƒ sÄ• vakasaá¹…ghato.

idheva parinibbissaá¹ƒ, aggÄ«vÄ• hÄ• rasaá¹…khayÄ• â€™â€™ ti || --- Ä• dimÄ• ha.

mama pana rammasurammasubhanÄ• makÄ• tayo pÄ• sÄ• dÄ• navabhÅ«mikasattabhÅ« cattÄ• lÄ«sasahassÄ• nÄ• á¹-akitthiyo, yasodharÄ• nÄ• ma mama aggamahesÄ« \Be 347 disvÄ• assayÄ• nena mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkhamiá¹ƒ. tato chabbassÄ• ni padhÄ• n visÄ• khapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya uruvelÄ• yaá¹ƒ senÄ• nigame senÄ• kuá¹-umbikassa dhÄ«tÄ• y nÄ• ma dinnaá¹ƒ madhupÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jitvÄ• sÄ• lavane divÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ katvÄ nÄ• ma tiá¹‡ahÄ• rakena dinnÄ• aá¹-á¹-ha tiá¹‡amuá¹-á¹-hiyo gahetvÄ• assatthabodhirukk tattha mÄ• rabalaá¹ƒ viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• sambodhiá¹ƒ pattosmÄ«ti sabbaá¹ƒ byÄ• kÄ• si.

tattha __saddhiá¹ƒ sÄ• vakasaá¹…ghato_ti saddhiá¹ƒ sÄ• vakasaá¹…ghena. __parinibbiss __aggÄ«vÄ• hÄ• rasaá¹…khayÄ• _ti aggi viya indhanakkhayena yathÄ• aggi nirupÄ• dÄ• n ahampi nirupÄ• dÄ• no parinibbÄ• yissÄ• mÄ«ti attho.

23-4__._ á¹• 04__ tÄ• ni ca atulatejÄ• nÄ«_ti aggasÄ• vakayugÄ• dÄ«ni tÄ• ni asadisatejÄ• __dasabalÄ• nÄ«_ti etÄ• ni ca sÄ• rÄ«radasabalÄ• ni __guá¹‡adhÄ• raá¹‡o deho_ti chaasÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• diguá¹‡adharo ayaá¹ƒ deho ca. __tamantarahissantÄ«_ti vuttappakÄ• rÄ• ni antaradhÄ• yissanti vinassissanti. __nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• _ anumatiatthe nipÄ• to. __rittÄ• _ti niccasÄ• radhuvasÄ• rarahitattÄ• tucchÄ• , sabbameva khayadhammaá¹ƒ vayadhammaá¹ƒ virÄ• gadhammaá¹ƒ nirodhadhammaá¹ƒ hutvÄ• abhÄ• uppÄ• dÄ• dipaá¹-ipÄ«á¸·itattÄ• dukkhaá¹ƒ, avasavattanato anattÄ• . tasmÄ• saá¹…khÄ• Ä• ropetvÄ• vipassanaá¹ƒ vaá¸• á¸• hetvÄ• amatamasaá¹…khataá¹ƒ accutaá¹ƒ nibbÄ• na amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ anusÄ• sanÄ« idaá¹ƒ amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ appamÄ• dena sampÄ• deth devatÄ• naá¹ƒ koá¹-isatasahassassa anupÄ• dÄ• ya Ä• savehi cittÄ• ni vimucciá¹ƒsu. sesa pana gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ vÄ«tivattÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ bhagavÄ• kappanÄ• majÄ• tiÄ• divavatthitaá¹ƒ sakalampi buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹ƒ Ä• kA caá¹…kamantova kathetvÄ• Ã±Ä• tijanaá¹ƒ vandÄ• petvÄ• Ä• kÄ• sato otaritvÄ• paÃ±Ã± evaá¹ƒ nisinne pana bhagavati lokanÄ• the sikhÄ• ppatto Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• gamo ahosi. sabbe \Be 348/. tato mahÄ• megho pokkharavassaá¹ƒ vassi. taá¹…khaá¹‡e udakaá¹ƒ heá¹-á¹-hÄ• temetukÄ• mova temeti, atemitukÄ• massa sarÄ«re ekabindumattampi na patati. taá¹ƒ disv acchariyabbhutacittajÄ• tÄ• hutvÄ• --- ``aho acchariyaá¹ƒ, aho abbhutaâ€™â€™ nti katha taá¹ƒ sutvÄ• satthÄ• --- ``na idÄ• neva mayhaá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game pokkharavassaá¹ƒ ti imissÄ• aá¹-á¹-huppattiyÄ• __vessantarajÄ• takaá¹ƒ_ (J II 22.1655 Ä• dayo) kathesi. sÄ• sÄ• tthikÄ• jÄ• tÄ• . tato bhagavÄ• uá¹-á¹-hÄ• yÄ• sanÄ• vihÄ• raá¹ƒ pÄ• visi.

iti madhuratthavilÄ• siniyÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsaá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• ya gotamabuddhavaá¹ƒsavaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

niá¹-á¹-hito paÃ±cavÄ«satimo buddhavaá¹ƒso.

28. buddhapakiá¹‡á¹‡akakathÄ•

1-18__._ á¹• 04 ``aparimeyyito \Ne 341/ kappe, caturo Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• â€™â€™ tiÄ• saá¹…gÄ«tikÄ• rakehi á¹-hapitÄ• nigamanagÄ• thÄ• ti veditabbÄ• . sesagÄ• thÄ• su sabba vemattakathÄ•

imasmiá¹ƒ \Ee 296/ pana sakalepi buddhavaá¹ƒse niddiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ paÃ±cavÄ«satiyÄ• vemattÄ• ni_ veditabbÄ• ni. katamÄ• ni aá¹-á¹-ha? Ä• yuvemattaá¹ƒ, pamÄ• á¹‡avemattaá¹ padhÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ, rasmivemattaá¹ƒ, yÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ, bodhivemattaá¹ƒ, pallaá¹…kav tattha __Ä• yuvemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci dÄ«ghÄ• yukÄ• honti keci appÄ• yukÄ• . tathÄ• h anomadassÄ« padumo padumuttaro atthadassÄ« dhammadassÄ« siddhattho tissoti ime na vassasatasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. maá¹…galo sumano sobhito nÄ• rado \Be 349/ sume ime aá¹-á¹-ha buddhÄ• navutivassasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. revato vessabhÅ« cÄ• ti im saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• yukÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. vipassÄ« bhagavÄ• asÄ«tivassasahassÄ• yuk koá¹‡Ä• gamano kassapoti ime cattÄ• ro buddhÄ• yathÄ• kkamena sattaticattÄ• lÄ«satiá¹ƒ ahesuá¹ƒ. amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ pana bhagavato vassasataá¹ƒ Ä• yuppamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi. upacita dÄ«ghÄ• yukasaá¹ƒvattaniyakammasamupetÄ• nampi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ yugavasena Ä• yupp ayaá¹ƒ paÃ±cavÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ Ä• yuvemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__pamÄ• á¹‡avemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci dÄ«ghÄ• honti keci rassÄ• . tathÄ• hi dÄ«paá¹…kara-revata-piyadassÄ«-atthadassÄ«-dhammadassÄ«-vipassÄ«buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ a sarÄ«rappamÄ• á¹‡aá¹ƒ ahosi. koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±a-maá¹…gala-nÄ• rada-sumedhÄ• naá¹ƒ aá ahosi. sumanassa navutihatthubbedhaá¹ƒ sarÄ«raá¹ƒ ahosi. sobhita-anomadassÄ«-paduma-padumuttara-phussabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• s sarÄ«raá¹ƒ ahosi. sujÄ• to paá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthubbedhasarÄ«ro ahosi. siddhattha-tissa-vess saá¹-á¹-hihatthubbedhÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. sikhÄ« sattatihatthubbedho ahosi. kakusandha-koá¹‡Ä yathÄ• kkamena cattÄ• lÄ«satiá¹ƒsavÄ«satihatthubbedhÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ. amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhagav ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ paÃ±cavÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ pamÄ• á¹‡avemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__kulavemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci khattiyakule nibbattiá¹ƒsu keci brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule. tathÄ• h kakusandhakoá¹‡Ä• gamanakassapasammÄ• sambuddhÄ• brÄ• hmaá¹‡akule nibbattiá¹ƒs dÄ«paá¹…karÄ• digotamabuddhapariyantÄ• dvÄ• vÄ«sati buddhÄ• khattiyakuleyeva nibba paÃ±cavÄ«satiyÄ• buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ kulavemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__padhÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma dÄ«paá¹…kara-koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±a-sumana-anomadassÄ« dasamÄ• sikÄ• padhÄ• nacariyÄ• . maá¹…gala-sumedhatissa sikhÄ«naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hamÄ• s sobhitassa cattÄ• ro mÄ• sÄ• . padumaatthadassÄ« vipassÄ«naá¹ƒ aá¸• á¸• hamÄ• sikÄ• .
nÄ• rada-padumuttara-dhammadassÄ«-kassapÄ• naá¹ƒ sattÄ• hÄ• ni \Ee 297/. piyadassÄ« koá¹‡Ä• gamanÄ• naá¹ƒ chamÄ• sikÄ• . amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ buddhassa chabbassÄ• ni padhÄ• n padhÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__rasmivemattaá¹ƒ_ \Be 350/ nÄ• ma maá¹…galassa kira sammÄ• sambuddhassa sarÄ«ra pharitvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si. padumuttarabuddhassa dvÄ• dasayojanikÄ• ahosi. vipassissa bha ahosi. sikhissa tiyojanappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• . kakusandhassa dasayojanikÄ• . amhÄ• kaá¹ƒ bhaga byÄ• mappamÄ• á¹‡Ä• . sesÄ• naá¹ƒ aniyatÄ• ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ rasmivemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma ajjh yattakaá¹ƒ icchati, tassa sarÄ«rappabhÄ• tattakaá¹ƒ pharati, paá¹-ividdhaguá¹‡e pana kass natthi. ayaá¹ƒ rasmivemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__yÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma keci hatthiyÄ• nena keci assayÄ• nena keci rathapada-pÄ• s aÃ±Ã±atarena nikkhamanti. tathÄ• hi dÄ«paá¹…kara-sumana-sumedha-phussa-sikhÄ«-koa nikkhamiá¹ƒsu. koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±a-revata-paduma-piyadassÄ«-vipassÄ«-kakusandhÄ• ratha maá¹…gala-sujÄ• ta-atthadassÄ«-tissa-gotamÄ• assayÄ• nena. anomadassÄ«siddhatthave nÄ• rado padasÄ• nikkhami. sobhita-padumuttara-dhammadassÄ«-kassapÄ• pÄ• sÄ• den yÄ• navemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__bodhivemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato kapÄ«tanarukkho bodhi; koá¹‡Ä sÄ• lakalyÄ• á¹‡irukkho \Ne 343/, maá¹…gala-sumana-revata-sobhitÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• garukkho padumanÄ• radÄ• naá¹ƒ mahÄ• soá¹‡arukkho, padumuttarassa salalarukkho, sumedhassa piyadassino kakudho, atthadassissa campakarukkho, dhammadassissa rattakuravakarukkh kaá¹‡ikÄ• rarukkho, tissassa asanarukkho, phussassa Ä• malakarukkho, vipassissa pÄ• á¹-puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«karukkho, vessabhussa sÄ• larukkho, kakusandhassa sirÄ«sarukkho, koá¹‡Ä kassapassa nigrodho, gotamassa assatthoti ayaá¹ƒ bodhivemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma.

__pallaá¹…kavemattaá¹ƒ_ nÄ• ma dÄ«paá¹…kara-revata-piyadassÄ«-atthadassÄ«-dhamm tepaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthapallaá¹…kÄ• ahesuá¹ƒ; koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±a-maá¹…gala-nÄ• rada-sum sattapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• sahatthÄ• ; sumanassa saá¹-á¹-hihattho pallaá¹…ko ahosi; sobhita-anomadassÄ«-paduma-padumuttara-phussÄ• naá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hattiá¹ƒsahatthÄ• , sujÄ siddhattha-tissa-vessabhÅ«naá¹ƒ cattÄ• lÄ«sahatthÄ• , sikhissa dvattiá¹ƒsahattho \Be 351/chabbÄ«satihattho, koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa vÄ«satihattho, kassapassa pannarasahattho, gotam pallaá¹…ko ahosi. ayaá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kavemattaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma. imÄ• ni __aá¹-á¹-ha vemattÄ• ni_ avijahitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nakathÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ pana __cattÄ• ri avijahitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ni_ nÄ• ma honti. sabbabudd bodhipallaá¹…ko avijahito ekasmiá¹ƒyeva á¹-hÄ• ne hoti. dhammacakkappavattanaá¹ƒ isipa avijahitameva hoti. devorohaá¹‡akÄ• le saá¹…kassanagaradvÄ• re paá¹-hamakkapÄ• daá¹-hoti. jetavane gandhakuá¹-iyÄ• cattÄ• ri maÃ±capÄ• daá¹-á¹-hÄ• nÄ• ni avijahitÄ• neva hon khuddakopi mahantopi hoti. vihÄ• ro na vijahatiyeva, nagaraá¹ƒ pana vijahati.

sahajÄ• tapariccheda-nakkhattaparicchedakathÄ• aparaá¹ƒ pana amhÄ• kaá¹ƒyeva bhagavato sahajÄ• taparicchedaÃ±ca nakkhattaparicche sabbaÃ±Ã±ubodhisattena kira saddhiá¹ƒ rÄ• hulamÄ• tÄ• Ä• nandatthero channo kaá¹‡á¸• mahÄ• bodhi kÄ• á¸·udÄ• yÄ«ti imÄ• ni satta sahajÄ• tÄ• ni. ayaá¹ƒ __sahajÄ• taparicched uttarÄ• sÄ• á¸·hanakkhatteneva mÄ• tukucchiá¹ƒ okkami, mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ nikkha yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaá¹ƒ akÄ• si. visÄ• khanakkhattena jÄ• to ca abhisambuddho ca pari mÄ• ghanakkhattena tassa sÄ• vakasannipÄ• to ca Ä• yusaá¹…khÄ• ravosajjanaÃ±ca ahos devorohaá¹‡aá¹ƒ. ayaá¹ƒ __nakkhattaparicchedo_ti.

sadhammatÄ• kathÄ•

idÄ• ni pana sabbesaá¹ƒ buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ sÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡adhammataá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayissÄ• ma samattiá¹ƒsavidhÄ• dhammatÄ• _. seyyathidaá¹ƒ --- pacchimabhavikabodhisattassa sampa mÄ• tukucchiokkamanaá¹ƒ, mÄ• tukucchiyaá¹ƒ pallaá¹…kena nisÄ«ditvÄ• bahimukholokan bodhisattamÄ• tuyÄ• vijÄ• yanaá¹ƒ, araÃ±Ã±eyeva mÄ• tukucchito nikkhamanaá¹ƒ, kaÃ±ca patiá¹-á¹-hitapÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ uttarÄ• bhimukhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be 352/ sattapadavÄ«tihÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ oloketvÄ• sÄ«hanÄ• danadanaá¹ƒ, cattÄ• ri nimittÄ• ni disvÄ• jÄ• tamattaputtÄ• naá¹ƒ ma mahÄ• bhinikkhamanaá¹ƒ, arahaddhajamÄ• dÄ• ya pabbajitvÄ• sabbaheá¹-á¹-himena pari padhÄ• nacariyÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡anadivase pÄ• yÄ• sabhojanaá¹ƒ, tiá¹‡asanthar sabbaÃ±Ã±utaÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹‡Ä• dhigamo, Ä• nÄ• pÄ• nassatikammaá¹-á¹-hÄ• naparikammaá bodhipallaá¹…keyeva tisso vijjÄ• Ä• diá¹ƒ katvÄ• asÄ• dhÄ• raá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡Ä• diguá¹‡apa bodhisamÄ«peyeva vÄ«tinÄ• manaá¹ƒ, mahÄ• brahmuno dhammadesanatthÄ• ya Ä• yÄ• d dhammacakkappavattanaá¹ƒ, mÄ• ghapuá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ya caturaá¹…gikasannipÄ• te pÄ• tim nibaddhavÄ• so, sÄ• vatthinagaradvÄ• re yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyakaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ, tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsa saá¹…kassanagaradvÄ• re devalokato otaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ satataá¹ƒ phalasamÄ• pattisamÄ• pajja veneyyajanÄ• valokanaá¹ƒ, uppanne vatthumhi sikkhÄ• padapaÃ±Ã±Ä• panaá¹ƒ uppannÄ• jÄ• takakathanaá¹ƒ, Ã±Ä• tisamÄ• game buddhavaá¹ƒsakathanaá¹ƒ, Ä• gantukehi bhikkhÅ« nimantitÄ• naá¹ƒ vuá¹-á¹-havassÄ• naá¹ƒ anÄ• pucchÄ• agamanaá¹ƒ, divase divase purebhattapacchÄ• bhattapaá¹-hamamajjhimapacchimayÄ• makiccakaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ, parinibbÄ maá¹ƒsarasabhojanaá¹ƒ, catuvÄ«satikoá¹-isatasahassasamÄ• pattiyo samÄ• pajjitvÄ• pari samattiá¹ƒsa sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammatÄ• ti.

anantarÄ• yikadhammakathÄ• sabbabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne 345/ __cattÄ• ro anantarÄ• yikÄ• dhammÄ• _. katame cattÄ• ro abhihaá¹-Ä• naá¹ƒ catunnaá¹ƒ paccayÄ• naá¹ƒ na sakkÄ• kenaci antarÄ• yo kÄ• tuá¹ƒ. bu kenaci antarÄ• yo kÄ• tuá¹ƒ. vuttaÃ±hetaá¹ƒ --- ``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• nametaá¹ƒ anavakÄ• so, yaá¹ƒ tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ jÄ«vitÄ• voropeyyÄ• â€™â€™ ti (Vin II 342). buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ dvattiá¹ƒsamal asÄ«tiyÄ• anubyaÃ±janÄ• naÃ±ca na sakkÄ• kenaci antarÄ• yo kÄ• tuá¹ƒ. buddharaá¹ƒsÄ antarÄ• yo kÄ• tunti. ime cattÄ• ro anantarÄ• yikÄ• dhammÄ• nÄ• mÄ• ti.

nigamanakathÄ•

ettÄ• vatÄ• \Be 353/ gatÄ• siddhiá¹ƒ, buddhavaá¹ƒsassa vaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• .

suvaá¹‡á¹‡apadaviÃ±Ã±Ä• tavicittanayasobhitÄ• || porÄ• á¹‡aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• maggaá¹ƒ, pÄ• á¸·iatthappakÄ• sakaá¹ƒ.

Ä• dÄ• yeva katÄ• __buddha-vaá¹ƒsassaá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• _ mayÄ• ||

papaÃ±catthaá¹ƒ vivajjetvÄ• , madhuratthassa sabbaso.

sampakÄ• sanato tasmÄ• , __madhuratthappakÄ• sinÄ«_ ||

kÄ• vÄ«rajalasampÄ• ta-paripÅ«tamahÄ«tale.

kÄ• vÄ«rapaá¹-á¹-ane ramme, nÄ• nÄ• nÄ• rinarÄ• kule ||

kÄ• rite kaá¹‡hadÄ• sena, saá¹‡havÄ• cena sÄ• dhunÄ• .

vihÄ• re vividhÄ• kÄ• ra-cÄ• rupÄ• kÄ• ragopure ||

chÄ• yÄ• salilasampanne, dassanÄ«ye manorame.

hatadujjanasambÄ• dhe, pavivekasukhe sive || tattha \Ne 346/ pÄ• cÄ«napÄ• sÄ• da-tale paramasÄ«tale.

vasatÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsassa, mayÄ• saá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• katÄ• ||

yathÄ• buddhavaá¹ƒsassa saá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• yaá¹ƒ, gatÄ• sÄ• dhu siddhiá¹ƒ vinÄ• anta tathÄ• dhammayuttÄ• janÄ• naá¹ƒ vitakkÄ• , vinÄ• vantarÄ• yena siddhiá¹ƒ vajantu || imaá¹ƒ buddhavaá¹ƒsassa saá¹ƒvaá¹‡á¹‡anaá¹ƒ me, karontena yaá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±a sadÄ• tassa devÄ• nubhÄ• vena loko, dhuvaá¹ƒ santamaccantamatthaá¹ƒ payÄ• taá¹ƒ || vinassantu \Be 354/ rogÄ• manussesu sabbe, pavassantu devÄ• pi vassantakÄ• le.

sukhaá¹ƒ hotu niccaá¹ƒ varaá¹ƒ nÄ• rakÄ• pi, pisÄ• cÄ• payÄ• tÄ• pipÄ• sÄ• bhavantu || surÄ• accharÄ• naá¹ƒ gaá¹‡Ä• dÄ«hi saddhiá¹ƒ, ciraá¹ƒ devaloke sukhaá¹ƒ cÄ• nubhontu.

ciraá¹ƒ á¹-hÄ• tu dhammo munindassa loke, sukhaá¹ƒ lokapÄ• lÄ• mahiá¹ƒ pÄ• layantu || garÅ«hi gÄ«tanÄ• mena, buddhadattoti vissuto.

thero katvÄ• aá¹-á¹-hakathaá¹ƒ, madhuratthavilÄ• siniá¹ƒ || potthakaá¹ƒ \Ee 300/ á¹-hapayitvemaá¹ƒ, parampare hitÄ• vahaá¹ƒ.

aciraá¹-á¹-hitabhÄ• vena, aho maccuvasaá¹ƒ gato ||

iti bhÄ• á¹‡avÄ• ravasena chabbÄ«satibhÄ• á¹‡avÄ• rÄ• , ganthavasena paÃ±casatÄ• dhi akkharavasena tisahassÄ• dhikÄ• ni dvesatasahassakkharÄ• ni. antarÄ• yaá¹ƒ vinÄ• esÄ• , yathÄ• niá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ upÄ• gatÄ• .

tathÄ• sijjhantu saá¹…kappÄ• , sattÄ• naá¹ƒ dhammanissitÄ• ti ||

iti madhuratthavilÄ• sinÄ« nÄ• ma buddhavaá¹ƒsa-aá¹-á¹-hakathÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

|| namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammÄ• sambuddhassa ||

khuddakanikÄ• ye

buddhavaá¹ƒsapÄ• á¸·i

1. ratanacaá¹…kamanakaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ

<1> á¹• 21 brahmÄ• \Se II 405/ \Be II 299/ \Ne II 287/ \Ee 1/ ca lokÄ• dhipatÄ« sahampatÄ }, kataÃ±jalÄ« anadhivaraá¹ƒ ayÄ• catha.

``santÄ«dha sattÄ• pparajakkhajÄ• tikÄ• , desehi dhammaá¹ƒ anukampimaá¹ƒ pajaá¹ƒâ€™

<2> á¹• 21 sampannavijjÄ• caraá¹‡assa tÄ• dino, jutindharassantimadehadhÄ• rino.

tathÄ• gatassappaá¹-ipuggalassa, uppajji kÄ• ruÃ±Ã±atÄ• sabbasatte ||

<3> á¹• 21 ``na hete jÄ• nanti sadevamÄ• nusÄ• , buddho ayaá¹ƒ kÄ«disako naruttamo.

iddhibalaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• balaÃ±ca kÄ«disaá¹ƒ, buddhabalaá¹ƒ lokahitassa kÄ«disaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 ``na \Se II 406/ hete jÄ• nanti sadevamÄ• nusÄ• , buddho ayaá¹ƒ edisako narut

iddhibalaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• balaÃ±ca edisaá¹ƒ, buddhabalaá¹ƒ lokahitassa edisaá¹ƒ ||

<5> á¹• 21 ``handÄ• haá¹ƒ \Be II 300/ \Ne II 288/ dassayissÄ• mi, buddhabalamanuttaraá¹ƒ

caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payissÄ• mi, nabhe ratanamaá¹‡á¸• itaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<6> á¹• 21 bhummÄ• mahÄ• rÄ• jikÄ• tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• , yÄ• mÄ• ca devÄ• tusitÄ• ca nim paranimmitÄ• yepi ca brahmakÄ• yikÄ• , Ä• nanditÄ• vipulamakaá¹ƒsu ghosaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 obhÄ• sitÄ• \Ee 2/ ca pathavÄ« sadevakÄ• , puthÅ« ca lokantarikÄ• asaá¹ƒvut

tamo ca tibbo vihato tadÄ• ahu, disvÄ• na accherakaá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 sadevagandhabbamanussarakkhase, Ä• bhÄ• uá¸·Ä• rÄ• vipulÄ• ajÄ• yatha.

imasmiá¹ƒ \Se II 407/ loke parasmiÃ±cobhayasmiá¹ƒ {parasmiá¹ƒ cÅ«bhaye (Se Ke) }, adho vitthataá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 sattuttamo anadhivaro vinÄ• yako, satthÄ• ahÅ« devamanussapÅ«jito.

mahÄ• nubhÄ• vo satapuÃ±Ã±alakkhaá¹‡o, dassesi accherakaá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 so yÄ• cito devavarena cakkhumÄ• , atthaá¹ƒ samekkhitvÄ• tadÄ• naruttamo caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ {caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ tattha (Ce) } mÄ• payi lokanÄ• yako, suniá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ sabb

<11> á¹• 21 iddhÄ« ca Ä• desanÄ• nusÄ• sanÄ«, tipÄ• á¹-ihÄ«re bhagavÄ• vasÄ« ahu.

caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payi lokanÄ• yako, suniá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ sabbaratananimmitaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• , sinerupabbatuttame.

thambheva dassesi paá¹-ipÄ• á¹-iyÄ• , caá¹…kame ratanÄ• maye ||

<13> á¹• 21 dasasahassÄ« \Se II 408/ atikkamma, caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ mÄ• payÄ« jino.

sabbasoá¹‡á¹‡amayÄ• passe, caá¹…kame ratanÄ• maye ||

<14> á¹• 21 tulÄ• saá¹…ghÄ• á¹-Ä• nuvaggÄ• \Be II 301/, sovaá¹‡á¹‡aphalakatthatÄ• .

vedikÄ• sabbasovaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• , dubhato passesu nimmitÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 maá¹‡imuttÄ• vÄ• lukÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡Ä• , nimmito ratanÄ• mayo.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va uggato ||

<16> á¹• 21 tasmiá¹ƒ caá¹…kamane dhÄ«ro, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o.

virocamÄ• no sambuddho, caá¹…kame caá¹…kamÄ« jino ||

<17> á¹• 21 dibbaá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹ƒ.

caá¹…kamane okiranti, sabbe devÄ• samÄ• gatÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 passanti taá¹ƒ devasaá¹…ghÄ• , dasasahassÄ« pamoditÄ• .

namassamÄ• nÄ• nipatanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 tÄ• vatiá¹ƒsÄ• \Ne II 289/ ca yÄ• mÄ• ca, tusitÄ• cÄ• pi devatÄ• .

nimmÄ• naratino devÄ• , ye devÄ• vasavattino.

udaggacittÄ• sumanÄ• , passanti lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 sadevagandhabbamanussarakkhasÄ• , nÄ• gÄ• supaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• atha vÄ• pi ki passanti \Ee 3/ taá¹ƒ lokahitÄ• nukampakaá¹ƒ, nabheva accuggatacandamaá¹‡á¸• alaá¹ƒ ||

<21> á¹• 21 Ä• bhassarÄ• \Se II 409/ subhakiá¹‡hÄ• , vehapphalÄ• akaniá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca de

susuddhasukkavatthavasanÄ• , tiá¹-á¹-hanti paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 muÃ±canti pupphaá¹ƒ pana paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikaá¹ƒ, mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ candana bhamenti celÄ• ni ca ambare tadÄ• , ``aho jino lokahitÄ• nukampako ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``tuvaá¹ƒ satthÄ• ca ketÅ« ca, dhajo yÅ«po ca pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

parÄ• yano patiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca, dÄ«po ca dvipaduttamo {dipaduttamo (Ce Se) } ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tuyÄ• , devatÄ• yo mahiddhikÄ• .

parivÄ• retvÄ• namassanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``devatÄ• devakaÃ±Ã±Ä• ca, pasannÄ• tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• .

paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikapupphehi, pÅ«jayanti narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``passanti \Be II 302/ taá¹ƒ devasaá¹…ghÄ• , pasannÄ• tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ•

paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikapupphehi, pÅ«jayanti narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``aho acchariyaá¹ƒ loke, abbhutaá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

na medisaá¹ƒ bhÅ«tapubbaá¹ƒ, accheraá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<28> á¹• 21 sakasakamhi bhavane, nisÄ«ditvÄ• na devatÄ• .

hasanti tÄ• mahÄ• hasitaá¹ƒ, disvÄ• naccherakaá¹ƒ nabhe ||

<29> á¹• 21 Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca bhÅ«maá¹-á¹-hÄ• , tiá¹‡apanthanivÄ• sino.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• ||

<30> á¹• 21 yepi \Se II 410/ dÄ«ghÄ• yukÄ• nÄ• gÄ• , puÃ±Ã±avanto mahiddhikÄ• .

pamoditÄ• namassanti, pÅ«jayanti naruttamaá¹ƒ ||

<31> á¹• 21 saá¹…gÄ«tiyo pavattenti, ambare anilaÃ±jase.

cammanaddhÄ• ni vÄ• denti, disvÄ• naccherakaá¹ƒ nabhe ||

<32> á¹• 21 saá¹…khÄ• ca paá¹‡avÄ• ceva, athopi á¸• iá¹‡á¸• imÄ• {á¸• eá¹‡á¸• imÄ• (C

antalikkhasmiá¹ƒ vajjanti, disvÄ• naccherakaá¹ƒ nabhe ||

<33> á¹• 21 abbhuto \Ne II 290/ vata no ajja, uppajji lomahaá¹ƒsano.

dhuvamatthasiddhiá¹ƒ labhÄ• ma, khaá¹‡o no paá¹-ipÄ• dito ||

<34> á¹• 21 buddhoti tesaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na, pÄ«ti uppajji tÄ• vade.

buddho buddhoti kathayantÄ• , tiá¹-á¹-hanti paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• ||

<35> á¹• 21 hiá¹…kÄ• rÄ• sÄ• dhukÄ• rÄ• ca {hiá¹…kÄ• raá¹ƒ sÄ• dhukÄ• raÃ±ca (Ce Se sampahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ {sampasÄ• danaá¹ƒ (Ce), sampanÄ• danaá¹ƒ (Se) }.

pajÄ• ca vividhÄ• gagane, vattenti paÃ±jalÄ«katÄ• ||

<36> á¹• 21 gÄ• yanti seá¸·enti ca vÄ• dayanti ca, bhujÄ• ni pothenti ca naccayanti ca.

muÃ±canti pupphaá¹ƒ pana paÃ±cavaá¹‡á¹‡ikaá¹ƒ, mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ candanacuá¹‡á¹‡amis

<37> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Ee 4/ tuyhaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, pÄ• desu cakkalakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

dhajavajirapaá¹-Ä• kÄ• , vaá¸• á¸• hamÄ• naá¹…kusÄ• citaá¹ƒ ||

<38> á¹• 21 ``rÅ«pe \Be II 303/ sÄ«le samÄ• dhimhi, paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya ca asÄ• diso.

vimuttiyÄ• asamasamo, dhammacakkappavattane ||

<39> á¹• 21 ``dasanÄ• gabalaá¹ƒ \Se II 411/ kÄ• ye, tuyhaá¹ƒ pÄ• katikaá¹ƒ balaá¹ƒ.

iddhibalena asamo, dhammacakkappavattane ||

<40> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ sabbaguá¹‡Å«petaá¹ƒ, sabbaá¹…gasamupÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

mahÄ• muniá¹ƒ kÄ• ruá¹‡ikaá¹ƒ, lokanÄ• thaá¹ƒ namassatha ||

<41> á¹• 21 ``abhivÄ• danaá¹ƒ thomanaÃ±ca, vandanaÃ±ca pasaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

namassanaÃ±ca pÅ«jaÃ±ca, sabbaá¹ƒ arahasÄ« tuvaá¹ƒ ||

<42> á¹• 21 ``ye keci loke vandaneyyÄ• , vandanaá¹ƒ arahanti ye.

sabbaseá¹-á¹-ho mahÄ• vÄ«ra, sadiso te na vijjati ||

<43> á¹• 21 ``sÄ• riputto mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovido.

gijjhakÅ«á¹-e á¹-hitoyeva, passati lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<44> á¹• 21 ``suphullaá¹ƒ sÄ• larÄ• jaá¹ƒva, candaá¹ƒva gagane yathÄ• .

majjhanhikeva {majjhantikeva (sabbattha) } sÅ«riyaá¹ƒ, olokesi narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ ||

<45> á¹• 21 ``jalantaá¹ƒ dÄ«parukkhaá¹ƒva, taruá¹‡asÅ«riyaá¹ƒva uggataá¹ƒ.

byÄ• mappabhÄ• nuraÃ±jitaá¹ƒ, dhÄ«raá¹ƒ passati lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<46> á¹• 21 ``paÃ±cannaá¹ƒ bhikkhusatÄ• naá¹ƒ, katakiccÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, khaá¹‡ena sannipÄ• tayi ||

<47> á¹• 21 ``lokappasÄ• danaá¹ƒ \Ne II 291/ nÄ• ma, pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ nidassayi.

amhepi tattha gantvÄ• na, vandissÄ• ma mayaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<48> á¹• 21 ``etha sabbe gamissÄ• ma, pucchissÄ• ma mayaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

kaá¹…khaá¹ƒ vinodayissÄ• ma, passitvÄ• lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<49> á¹• 21 sÄ• dhÅ«ti \Se II 412/ te paá¹-issutvÄ• , nipakÄ• saá¹ƒvutindriyÄ• .

pattacÄ«varamÄ• dÄ• ya, taramÄ• nÄ• upÄ• gamuá¹ƒ ||

<50> á¹• 21 khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, dantehi uttame dame.

sÄ• riputto mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, iddhiyÄ• upasaá¹…kami ||

<51> á¹• 21 tehi \Be II 304/ bhikkhÅ«hi parivuto, sÄ• riputto mahÄ• gaá¹‡Ä«.

laá¸·anto devova gagane, iddhiyÄ• upasaá¹…kami ||

<52> á¹• 21 ukkÄ• sitaÃ±ca khipitaá¹ƒ {ukkÄ• sitaÃ±ca khipitaÃ±ca (Se-a) }, ajjhupekkhiya

sagÄ• ravÄ• sappatissÄ• , sambuddhaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamuá¹ƒ ||

<53> á¹• 21 upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• passanti, sayambhuá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

nabhe accuggataá¹ƒ dhÄ«raá¹ƒ, candaá¹ƒva gagane yathÄ• ||

<54> á¹• 21 jalantaá¹ƒ dÄ«parukkhaá¹ƒva, vijjuá¹ƒva gagane yathÄ• .

majjhanhikeva sÅ«riyaá¹ƒ, passanti lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<55> á¹• 21 paÃ±cabhikkhusatÄ• sabbe, passanti lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

rahadamiva vippasannaá¹ƒ, suphullaá¹ƒ padumaá¹ƒ yathÄ• ||

<56> á¹• 21 aÃ±jaliá¹ƒ \Ee 5/ paggahetvÄ• na, tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-hÄ• pamoditÄ• .

namassamÄ• nÄ• nipatanti, satthuno cakkalakkhaá¹‡e ||

<57> á¹• 21 sÄ• riputto mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, koraá¹‡á¸• asamasÄ• diso.

samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakusalo, vandate lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<58> á¹• 21 gajjitÄ• kÄ• lameghova, nÄ«luppalasamasÄ• diso.

iddhibalena asamo, moggallÄ• no mahiddhiko ||

<59> á¹• 21 mahÄ• kassapopi \Se II 413/ ca thero, uttattakanakasannibho.

dhutaguá¹‡e agganikkhitto, thomito satthuvaá¹‡á¹‡ito ||

<60> á¹• 21 dibbacakkhÅ«naá¹ƒ yo aggo, anuruddho mahÄ• gaá¹‡Ä«.

Ã±Ä• tiseá¹-á¹-ho bhagavato, avidÅ«reva tiá¹-á¹-hati ||

<61> á¹• 21 Ä• pattianÄ• pattiyÄ• \Ne II 292/, satekicchÄ• ya kovido.

vinaye agganikkhitto, upÄ• li satthuvaá¹‡á¹‡ito ||

<62> á¹• 21 sukhumanipuá¹‡atthapaá¹-ividdho, kathikÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaro gaá¹‡Ä«.

isi mantÄ• niyÄ• putto, puá¹‡á¹‡o nÄ• mÄ• ti vissuto ||

<63> á¹• 21 etesaá¹ƒ cittamaÃ±Ã±Ä• ya, opammakusalo muni.

kaá¹…khacchedo mahÄ• vÄ«ro, kathesi attano guá¹‡aá¹ƒ ||

<64> á¹• 21 ``cattÄ• ro \Be II 305/ te asaá¹…kheyyÄ• , koá¹-i yesaá¹ƒ na nÄ• yati.

sattakÄ• yo ca Ä• kÄ• so, cakkavÄ• á¸·Ä• canantakÄ• .

buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ appameyyaá¹ƒ, na sakkÄ• ete vijÄ• nituá¹ƒ ||

<65> á¹• 21 ``kimetaá¹ƒ acchariyaá¹ƒ loke, yaá¹ƒ me iddhivikubbanaá¹ƒ.

aÃ±Ã±e bahÅ« acchariyÄ• , abbhutÄ• lomahaá¹ƒsanÄ• ||

<66> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• haá¹ƒ tusite kÄ• ye, santusito nÄ• mahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

dasasahassÄ« samÄ• gamma, yÄ• canti paÃ±jalÄ« mamaá¹ƒ ||

<67> á¹• 21 `` `kÄ• lo kho te {kÄ• lo deva (Ce), kÄ• loyaá¹ƒ te (Se Katthaci) } mahÄ• vÄ«ra mÄ• tukucchiyaá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tÄ• rayanto, bujjhassu amataá¹ƒ padaá¹ƒâ€™ ||

<68> á¹• 21 ``tusitÄ• \Se II 414/ kÄ• yÄ• cavitvÄ• na, yadÄ• okkami kucchiyaá¹ƒ.

dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tu, kampittha dharaá¹‡Ä« tadÄ• ||

<69> á¹• 21 ``yadÄ• haá¹ƒ mÄ• tukucchito, sampajÄ• nova nikkhamiá¹ƒ.

sÄ• dhukÄ• raá¹ƒ pavattenti, dasasahassÄ« pakampatha ||

<70> á¹• 21 ``okkantiá¹ƒ me samo natthi, jÄ• tito abhinikkhame.

sambodhiyaá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-ho, dhammacakkappavattane ||

<71> á¹• 21 ``aho acchariyaá¹ƒ loke, buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ guá¹‡amahantatÄ• .

dasasahassÄ«lokadhÄ• tu, chappakÄ• raá¹ƒ pakampatha.

obhÄ• so ca mahÄ• Ä• si, accheraá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<72> á¹• 21 bhagavÄ• tamhi {bhagavÄ• ca tamhi (Ce Se Katthaci) } samaye, lokajeá¹-á¹-h sadevakaá¹ƒ dassayanto, iddhiyÄ• caá¹…kamÄ« jino ||

<73> á¹• 21 caá¹…kame caá¹…kamantova, kathesi lokanÄ• yako.

antarÄ• na nivatteti, catuhatthe caá¹…kame yathÄ• ||

<74> á¹• 21 sÄ• riputto \Ne II 293/ \Ee 6/ mahÄ• paÃ±Ã±o, samÄ• dhijjhÄ• nakovido.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya pÄ• ramippatto, pucchati lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<75> á¹• 21 ``kÄ«diso te mahÄ• vÄ«ra, abhinÄ«hÄ• ro naruttama.

kamhi kÄ• le tayÄ• dhÄ«ra, patthitÄ• bodhimuttamÄ• ||

<76> á¹• 21 ``dÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 306/ sÄ«laÃ±ca nekkhammaá¹ƒ, paÃ±Ã±Ä• vÄ«riyaÃ±ca kÄ

khantisaccamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, mettupekkhÄ• ca kÄ«disÄ• ||

<77> á¹• 21 ``dasa \Se II 415/ pÄ• ramÄ« tayÄ• dhÄ«ra, kÄ«disÄ« lokanÄ• yaka.

kathaá¹ƒ upapÄ• ramÄ« puá¹‡á¹‡Ä• , paramatthapÄ• ramÄ« kathaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<78> á¹• 21 tassa puá¹-á¹-ho viyÄ• kÄ• si, karavÄ«kamadhuragiro.

nibbÄ• payanto hadayaá¹ƒ, hÄ• sayanto sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<79> á¹• 21 atÄ«tabuddhÄ• naá¹ƒ jinÄ• naá¹ƒ desitaá¹ƒ, nikÄ«litaá¹ƒ {nikÄ«á¸·itaá¹ƒ (Katth buddhaparamparÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

pubbenivÄ• sÄ• nugatÄ• ya buddhiyÄ• , pakÄ• sayÄ« lokahitaá¹ƒ sadevake ||

<80> á¹• 21 ``pÄ«tipÄ• mojjajananaá¹ƒ, sokasallavinodanaá¹ƒ. sabbasampattipaá¹-ilÄ• bhaá¹ƒ, cittÄ«katvÄ• suá¹‡Ä• tha me ||

<81> á¹• 21 ``madanimmadanaá¹ƒ sokanudaá¹ƒ, saá¹ƒsÄ• raparimocanaá¹ƒ.

sabbadukkhakkhayaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, sakkaccaá¹ƒ paá¹-ipajjathÄ• â€™â€™ ti || ratanacaá¹…kamanakaá¹‡á¸• o niá¹-á¹-hito.

2. sumedhapatthanÄ• kathÄ•

<1> á¹• 21 kappe \Se II 416/ ca satasahasse, caturo ca asaá¹…khiye.

amaraá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, dassaneyyaá¹ƒ manoramaá¹ƒ ||

<2> á¹• 21 dasahi saddehi avivittaá¹ƒ, annapÄ• nasamÄ• yutaá¹ƒ.

hatthisaddaá¹ƒ assasaddaá¹ƒ, bherisaá¹…kharathÄ• ni ca.

khÄ• datha pivatha ceva, annapÄ• nena ghositaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ \Ne II 294/ sabbaá¹…gasampannaá¹ƒ, sabbakammamupÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

sattaratanasampannaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• janasamÄ• kulaá¹ƒ.

samiddhaá¹ƒ devanagaraá¹ƒva, Ä• vÄ• saá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±akamminaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 nagare amaravatiyÄ• , sumedho nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

anekakoá¹-isannicayo, pahÅ«tadhanadhaÃ±Ã±avÄ• ||

<5> á¹• 21 ajjhÄ• yako \Be II 307/ \Ee 7/ mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ«.

lakkhaá¹‡e itihÄ• se ca, sadhamme pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato ||

<6> á¹• 21 rahogato nisÄ«ditvÄ• , evaá¹ƒ cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

``dukkho punabbhavo nÄ• ma, sarÄ«rassa ca bhedanaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 ``jÄ• tidhammo jarÄ• dhammo, byÄ• dhidhammo sahaá¹ƒ {cahaá¹ƒ (Ce Se) } ta ajaraá¹ƒ amataá¹ƒ khemaá¹ƒ, pariyesissÄ• mi nibbutiá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ``yaá¹ƒnÅ«nimaá¹ƒ pÅ«tikÄ• yaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apapÅ«ritaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gaccheyyaá¹ƒ, anapekkho anatthiko ||

<9> á¹• 21 ``atthi hehiti so maggo, na so sakkÄ• na hetuye.

pariyesissÄ• mi taá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, bhavato parimuttiyÄ• ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi dukkhe vijjante, sukhaá¹ƒ nÄ• mapi vijjati.

evaá¹ƒ bhave vijjamÄ• ne, vibhavopi icchitabbako ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi uá¹‡he vijjante, aparaá¹ƒ vijjati sÄ«talaá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ tividhaggi vijjante, nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ icchitabbakaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pÄ• pe vijjante, kalyÄ• á¹‡amapi vijjati.

evameva jÄ• ti vijjante, ajÄ• tipicchitabbakaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• gÅ«thagato puriso, taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ disvÄ• na pÅ«ritaá¹ƒ.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ, na doso taá¸·Ä• kassa so ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ kilesamaladhova, vijjante amatantaá¸·e.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ taá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ, na doso amatantaá¸·e ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• arÄ«hi pariruddho, vijjante gamanampathe.

na palÄ• yati so puriso, na doso aÃ±jasassa so ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ \Se II 418/ kilesapariruddho, vijjamÄ• ne sive pathe.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, na doso sivamaÃ±jase ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi \Ne II 295/ byÄ• dhito puriso, vijjamÄ• ne tikicchake.

na tikicchÄ• peti taá¹ƒ byÄ• dhiá¹ƒ, na doso so tikicchake ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``evaá¹ƒ \Be II 308/ kilesabyÄ• dhÄ«hi, dukkhito paripÄ«á¸·ito.

na gavesati taá¹ƒ Ä• cariyaá¹ƒ, na doso so vinÄ• yake ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi kuá¹‡apaá¹ƒ puriso, kaá¹‡á¹-he bandhaá¹ƒ jigucchiya.

mocayitvÄ• na gaccheyya, sukhÄ« serÄ« sayaá¹ƒvasÄ« ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``tathevimaá¹ƒ pÅ«tikÄ• yaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apasaÃ±cayaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gaccheyyaá¹ƒ, anapekkho anatthiko ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• uccÄ• raá¹-á¹-hÄ• namhi, karÄ«saá¹ƒ naranÄ• riyo.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchanti, anapekkhÄ• anatthikÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``evamevÄ• haá¹ƒ imaá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• kuá¹‡apapÅ«ritaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchissaá¹ƒ, vaccaá¹ƒ katvÄ• yathÄ• kuá¹-iá¹ƒ ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi jajjaraá¹ƒ nÄ• vaá¹ƒ, paluggaá¹ƒ udagÄ• hiniá¹ƒ {udakagÄ• hiá¹‡iá (Se) }.

sÄ• mÄ« chaá¸• á¸• etvÄ• gacchanti, anapekkhÄ• anatthikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``evamevÄ• haá¹ƒ \Ee 8/ imaá¹ƒ kÄ• yaá¹ƒ, navacchiddaá¹ƒ dhuvassavaá¹ƒ.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchissaá¹ƒ, jiá¹‡á¹‡anÄ• vaá¹ƒva sÄ• mikÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi puriso corehi, gacchanto bhaá¹‡á¸• amÄ• diya.

bhaá¹‡á¸• acchedabhayaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• na gacchati ||

<26> á¹• 21 ``evameva ayaá¹ƒ kÄ• yo, mahÄ• corasamo viya.

pahÄ• yimaá¹ƒ gamissÄ• mi, kusalacchedanÄ• bhayÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<27> á¹• 21 evÄ• haá¹ƒ \Se II 419/ cintayitvÄ• na, nekakoá¹-isataá¹ƒ dhanaá¹ƒ.

nÄ• thÄ• nÄ• thÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, himavantamupÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 himavantassÄ• vidÅ«re, dhammiko nÄ• ma pabbato.

assamo sukato mayhaá¹ƒ, paá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• lÄ• sumÄ• pitÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 21 caá¹…kamaá¹ƒ tattha mÄ• pesiá¹ƒ, paÃ±cadosavivajjitaá¹ƒ.

aá¹-á¹-haguá¹‡asamÅ«petaá¹ƒ, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balamÄ• hariá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 sÄ• á¹-akaá¹ƒ pajahiá¹ƒ tattha, navadosamupÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

vÄ• kacÄ«raá¹ƒ nivÄ• sesiá¹ƒ, dvÄ• dasaguá¹‡amupÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<31> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hadosasamÄ• kiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ \Be II 309/ \Ne II 296/, pajahiá¹ƒ paá¹‡á¹‡as

upÄ• gamiá¹ƒ rukkhamÅ«laá¹ƒ, guá¹‡e dasahupÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<32> á¹• 21 vÄ• pitaá¹ƒ ropitaá¹ƒ dhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, pajahiá¹ƒ niravasesato.

anekaguá¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ, pavattaphalamÄ• diyiá¹ƒ ||

<33> á¹• 21 tatthappadhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahiá¹ƒ, nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

abbhantaramhi sattÄ• he, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balapÄ• puá¹‡iá¹ƒ ||

<34> á¹• 21 evaá¹ƒ me siddhippattassa, vasÄ«bhÅ«tassa sÄ• sane.

dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma jino, uppajji lokanÄ• yako ||

<35> á¹• 21 uppajjante ca jÄ• yante, bujjhante dhammadesane.

caturo nimitte nÄ• ddasaá¹ƒ, jhÄ• naratisamappito ||

<36> á¹• 21 paccantadesavisaye, nimantetvÄ• tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ.

tassa Ä• gamanaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, sodhenti tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• ||

<37> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ \Se II 420/ tena samayena, nikkhamitvÄ• sakassamÄ• .

dhunanto vÄ• kacÄ«rÄ• ni, gacchÄ• mi ambare tadÄ• ||

<38> á¹• 21 vedajÄ• taá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ pamoditaá¹ƒ.

orohitvÄ• na gaganÄ• , manusse pucchi tÄ• vade ||

<39> á¹• 21 ``tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-ho pamudito, vedajÄ• to mahÄ• jano.

kassa sodhÄ«yati maggo, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<40> á¹• 21 te me puá¹-á¹-hÄ• viyÄ• kaá¹ƒsu, ``buddho loke anuttaro.

dÄ«paá¹…karo nÄ• ma jino, uppajji lokanÄ• yako.

tassa sodhÄ«yati maggo, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<41> á¹• 21 buddhotivacanaá¹ƒ {buddhoti mama (Ce Se Katthaci) } sutvÄ• na, pÄ«ti uppajj

buddho buddhoti kathayanto, somanassaá¹ƒ pavedayiá¹ƒ ||

<42> á¹• 21 tattha á¹-hatvÄ• vicintesiá¹ƒ, tuá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

``idha \Ee 9/ bÄ«jÄ• ni ropissaá¹ƒ, khaá¹‡o ve mÄ• upaccagÄ• ||

<43> á¹• 21 ``yadi buddhassa sodhetha, ekokÄ• saá¹ƒ dadÄ• tha me.

ahampi sodhayissÄ• mi, aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ vaá¹-umÄ• yanaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<44> á¹• 21 adaá¹ƒsu \Be II 310/ te mamokÄ• saá¹ƒ, sodhetuá¹ƒ aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

buddho buddhoti cintento, maggaá¹ƒ sodhemahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<45> á¹• 21 aniá¹-á¹-hite \Ne II 297/ mamokÄ• se, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni.

catÅ«hi satasahassehi, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±ehi tÄ• dihi.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, paá¹-ipajji aÃ±jasaá¹ƒ jino ||

<46> á¹• 21 paccuggamanÄ• \Se II 421/ vattanti, vajjanti bheriyo bahÅ«.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, sÄ• dhukÄ• raá¹ƒ pavattayuá¹ƒ ||

<47> á¹• 21 devÄ• manusse passanti, manussÄ• pi ca devatÄ• .

ubhopi te paÃ±jalikÄ• , anuyanti tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<48> á¹• 21 devÄ• dibbehi turiyehi, manussÄ• mÄ• nusehi ca {mÄ• nussakehi ca mÄ• nu

ubhopi te vajjayantÄ• , anuyanti tathÄ• gataá¹ƒ ||

<49> á¹• 21 dibbaá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ okiranti, Ä• kÄ• sanabhagatÄ• marÅ« ||

<50> á¹• 21 dibbaá¹ƒ candanacuá¹‡á¹‡aÃ±ca, varagandhaÃ±ca kevalaá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ okiranti, Ä• kÄ• sanabhagatÄ• {Ä• kÄ• se nabhagÄ• (Se) } marÅ« ||

<51> á¹• 21 campakaá¹ƒ saralaá¹ƒ nÄ«paá¹ƒ, nÄ• gapunnÄ• gaketakaá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ ukkhipanti, bhÅ«mitalagatÄ• narÄ• ||

<52> á¹• 21 kese muÃ±citvÄ• haá¹ƒ tattha, vÄ• kacÄ«raÃ±ca cammakaá¹ƒ.

kalale pattharitvÄ• na, avakujjo nipajjahaá¹ƒ ||

<53> á¹• 21 ``akkamitvÄ• na maá¹ƒ buddho, saha sissehi gacchatu.

mÄ• naá¹ƒ kalale akkamittha, hitÄ• ya me bhavissatiâ€™â€™ ||

<54> á¹• 21 pathaviyaá¹ƒ nipannassa, evaá¹ƒ me Ä• si cetaso.

``icchamÄ• no ahaá¹ƒ ajja, kilese jhÄ• paye mama ||

<55> á¹• 21 ``kiá¹ƒ me aÃ±Ã±Ä• tavesena, dhammaá¹ƒ sacchikatenidha.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , buddho hessaá¹ƒ sadevake ||

<56> á¹• 21 ``kiá¹ƒ \Se II 422/ me ekena tiá¹‡á¹‡ena, purisena thÄ• madassinÄ• .

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , santÄ• ressaá¹ƒ sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<57> á¹• 21 ``iminÄ• \Be II 311/ me adhikÄ• rena, katena purisuttame.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , tÄ• remi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<58> á¹• 21 ``saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ chinditvÄ• , viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• tayo bhave.

dhammanÄ• vaá¹ƒ samÄ• ruyha, santÄ• ressaá¹ƒ sadevakaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<59> á¹• 21 manussattaá¹ƒ \Ne II 298/ liá¹…gasampatti, hetu satthÄ• radassanaá¹ƒ.

pabbajjÄ• guá¹‡asampatti, adhikÄ• ro ca chandatÄ• .

aá¹-á¹-hadhammasamodhÄ• nÄ• , abhinÄ«hÄ• ro samijjhati ||

<60> á¹• 21 dÄ«paá¹…karo lokavidÅ«, Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho.

ussÄ«sake maá¹ƒ á¹-hatvÄ• na, idaá¹ƒ vacanamabravi ||

<61> á¹• 21 ``passatha imaá¹ƒ tÄ• pasaá¹ƒ, jaá¹-ilaá¹ƒ uggatÄ• panaá¹ƒ.

aparimeyyito \Ee 10/ kappe, buddho loke bhavissati ||

<62> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ ||

<63> á¹• 21 ``ajapÄ• larukkhamÅ«lasmiá¹ƒ, nisÄ«ditvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

tattha pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paggayha, neraÃ±jaramupehiti ||

<64> á¹• 21 ``neraÃ±jarÄ• ya tÄ«ramhi, pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ ada so jino.

paá¹-iyattavaramaggena, bodhimÅ«lamupehiti ||

<65> á¹• 21 ``tato padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ anuttaro {anuttaraá¹ƒ (Se

assattharukkhamÅ«lamhi, bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<66> á¹• 21 ``imassa janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<67> á¹• 21 ``anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

kolito \Se II 423/ upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissatimaá¹ƒ {upaá¹-á¹-hissati taá¹ƒ (Ce) } jinaá¹

<68> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati ||

<69> á¹• 21 ``citto \Be II 312/ ca hatthÄ• á¸·avako {hatthÄ• lavako (Ce) }, aggÄ• hessantu uttarÄ• nandamÄ• tÄ• ca, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<70> á¹• 21 idaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na vacanaá¹ƒ, asamassa mahesino.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, buddhabÄ«jaá¹ƒ kira {buddhabÄ«jaá¹…kuro (Ce Se) } ayaá¹ƒ ||

<71> á¹• 21 ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddÄ• vattanti, apphoá¹-enti {apphoá¹-henti (Ce) } hasanti ca.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, dasasahassÄ« sadevakÄ• ||

<72> á¹• 21 ``yadimassa \Ne II 299/ lokanÄ• thassa, virajjhissÄ• ma sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<73> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• manussÄ• nadiá¹ƒ tarantÄ• , paá¹-ititthaá¹ƒ virajjhiya.

heá¹-á¹-hÄ• titthe gahetvÄ• na, uttaranti mahÄ• nadiá¹ƒ ||

<74> á¹• 21 ``evameva mayaá¹ƒ sabbe, yadi muÃ±cÄ• mimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<75> á¹• 21 dÄ«paá¹…karo \Se II 424/ lokavidÅ«, Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho.

mama kammaá¹ƒ pakittetvÄ• , dakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ pÄ• damuddhari ||

<76> á¹• 21 ye tatthÄ• suá¹ƒ jinaputtÄ• , padakkhiá¹‡amakaá¹ƒsu {sabbe padakkhiá¹‡ama maá¹ƒ.

devÄ• manussÄ• asurÄ• ca, abhivÄ• detvÄ• na pakkamuá¹ƒ ||

<77> á¹• 21 dassanaá¹ƒ me atikkante, sasaá¹…ghe lokanÄ• yake.

sayanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• na, pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujiá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<78> á¹• 21 sukhena sukhito homi, pÄ• mojjena pamodito.

pÄ«tiyÄ• ca abhissanno, pallaá¹…kaá¹ƒ Ä• bhujiá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<79> á¹• 21 pallaá¹…kena nisÄ«ditvÄ• , evaá¹ƒ cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

``vasÄ«bhÅ«to \Ee 11/ ahaá¹ƒ jhÄ• ne, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ramiá¹ƒgato {abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• r

<80> á¹• 21 ``sahassiyamhi lokamhi, isayo natthi me samÄ• .

asamo iddhidhammesu, alabhiá¹ƒ Ä«disaá¹ƒ sukhaá¹ƒ ||

<81> á¹• 21 ``pallaá¹…kÄ• bhujane mayhaá¹ƒ, dasasahassÄ• dhivÄ• sino.

mahÄ• nÄ• daá¹ƒ pavattesuá¹ƒ, `dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<82> á¹• 21 `` `yÄ• \Be II 313/ pubbe bodhisattÄ• naá¹ƒ, pallaá¹…kavaramÄ• bhuje.

nimittÄ• ni padissanti, tÄ• ni ajja padissare ||

<83> á¹• 21 `` `sÄ«taá¹ƒ byapagataá¹ƒ hoti, uá¹‡haÃ±ca upasammati.

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<84> á¹• 21 `` `dasasahassÄ« lokadhÄ• tÅ«, nissaddÄ• honti nirÄ• kulÄ• .

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<85> á¹• 21 `` `mahÄ• vÄ• tÄ• \Se II 425/ na vÄ• yanti, na sandanti savantiyo.

tÄ• ni ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<86> á¹• 21 `` `thalajÄ• \Ne II 300/ dakajÄ• pupphÄ• , sabbe pupphanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja pupphitÄ• {pupphitÄ• ni (-a) } sabbe, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<87> á¹• 21 `` `latÄ• vÄ• yadi vÄ• rukkhÄ• , phalabhÄ• rÄ• honti tÄ• vade.

tepajja phalitÄ• sabbe, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<88> á¹• 21 `` `Ä• kÄ• saá¹-á¹-hÄ• ca bhÅ«maá¹-á¹-hÄ• , ratanÄ• jotanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja ratanÄ• jotanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<89> á¹• 21 `` `mÄ• nussakÄ• ca dibbÄ• ca, turiyÄ• vajjanti tÄ• vade.

tepajjubho abhiravanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<90> á¹• 21 `` `vicitrapupphÄ• gaganÄ• , abhivassanti tÄ• vade.

tepi ajja pavassanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<91> á¹• 21 `` `mahÄ• samuddo Ä• bhujati, dasasahassÄ« pakampati.

tepajjubho abhiravanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<92> á¹• 21 `` `nirayepi dasasahasse, aggÄ« nibbanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja nibbutÄ• aggÄ«, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<93> á¹• 21 `` `vimalo hoti sÅ«riyo, sabbÄ• dissanti tÄ• rakÄ• .

tepi ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<94> á¹• 21 `` `anovaá¹-á¹-hena {anovuá¹-á¹-hena (Se Katthaci) } udakaá¹ƒ, mahiyÄ• ubbh

tampajjubbhijjate mahiyÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<95> á¹• 21 `` `tÄ• rÄ• gaá¹‡Ä• \Se II 426/ \Be II 314/ virocanti, nakkhattÄ• gaganamaá¹‡

visÄ• khÄ• candimÄ• yuttÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<96> á¹• 21 `` `bilÄ• sayÄ• darÄ«sayÄ• , nikkhamanti sakÄ• sayÄ• .

tepajja Ä• sayÄ• chuddhÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<97> á¹• 21 `` `na honti aratÄ« sattÄ• naá¹ƒ, santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• honti tÄ• vade.

tepajja sabbe santuá¹-á¹-hÄ• , dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<98> á¹• 21 `` `rogÄ• tadupasammanti, jighacchÄ• ca vinassati.

tÄ• ni \Ee 12/ ajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<99> á¹• 21 `` `rÄ• go tadÄ• tanu hoti, doso moho vinassati.

tepajja vigatÄ• sabbe, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<100> á¹• 21 `` `bhayaá¹ƒ \Ne II 301/ tadÄ• na bhavati, ajjapetaá¹ƒ padissati.

tena liá¹…gena jÄ• nÄ• ma, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<101> á¹• 21 `` `rajonuddhaá¹ƒsati uddhaá¹ƒ, ajjapetaá¹ƒ padissati.

tena liá¹…gena jÄ• nÄ• ma, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<102> á¹• 21 `` `aniá¹-á¹-hagandho pakkamati, dibbagandho pavÄ• yati.

sopajja vÄ• yati gandho, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<103> á¹• 21 `` `sabbe devÄ• padissanti, á¹-hapayitvÄ• arÅ«pino.

tepajja sabbe dissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<104> á¹• 21 `` `yÄ• vatÄ• nirayÄ• nÄ• ma, sabbe dissanti tÄ• vade.

tepajja sabbe dissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<105> á¹• 21 `` `kuá¹-á¹-Ä• \Se II 427/ {kuá¸• á¸• Ä• (Ce) } kavÄ• á¹-Ä• selÄ• ca, na hon

Ä• kÄ• sabhÅ«tÄ• tepajja, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<106> á¹• 21 `` `cutÄ« ca upapatti ca, khaá¹‡e tasmiá¹ƒ na vijjati.

tÄ• nipajja padissanti, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasi ||

<107> á¹• 21 `` `daá¸·haá¹ƒ paggaá¹‡ha vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ, mÄ• nivatta abhikkama.

mayampetaá¹ƒ vijÄ• nÄ• ma, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissasiâ€™â€™ â€™ ||

<108> á¹• 21 buddhassa \Be II 315/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , dasasahassÄ«nacÅ«bhayaá¹ƒ.

tuá¹-á¹-hahaá¹-á¹-ho pamodito, evaá¹ƒ cintesahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<109> á¹• 21 ``advejjhavacanÄ• buddhÄ• , amoghavacanÄ• jinÄ• .

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<110> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• khittaá¹ƒ nabhe leá¸• á¸• u, dhuvaá¹ƒ patati bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<111> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi sabbasattÄ• naá¹ƒ, maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<112> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• rattikkhaye patte, sÅ«riyuggamanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<113> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Ne II 302/ nikkhantasayanassa, sÄ«hassa nadanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ.

tatheva buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<114> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Se II 428/ Ä• pannasattÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhÄ• ramoropanaá¹ƒ dhuvaá¹ƒ.

tatheva \Ee 13/ buddhaseá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ, vacanaá¹ƒ dhuvasassataá¹ƒ.

vitathaá¹ƒ natthi buddhÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhuvaá¹ƒ buddho bhavÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<115> á¹• 21 ``handa buddhakare dhamme, vicinÄ• mi ito cito.

uddhaá¹ƒ adho dasa disÄ• , yÄ• vatÄ• dhammadhÄ• tuyÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<116> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ dÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, anuciá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ mahÄ• pathaá¹ƒ ||

<117> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

dÄ• napÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<118> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi kumbho sampuá¹‡á¹‡o, yassa kassaci adho kato.

vamate vudakaá¹ƒ nissesaá¹ƒ, na tattha parirakkhati ||

<119> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Be II 316/ yÄ• cake disvÄ• , hÄ«namukkaá¹-á¹-hamajjhime.

dadÄ• hi dÄ• naá¹ƒ nissesaá¹ƒ, kumbho viya adho kato ||

<120> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<121> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, dutiyaá¹ƒ sÄ«lapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<122> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ dutiyaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

sÄ«lapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<123> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi camarÄ« vÄ• laá¹ƒ, kismiÃ±ci paá¹-ilaggitaá¹ƒ.

upeti maraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tattha, na vikopeti vÄ• ladhiá¹ƒ ||

<124> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Se II 429/ tvaá¹ƒ catÅ«su bhÅ«mÄ«su, sÄ«lÄ• ni paripÅ«raya.

parirakkha sabbadÄ• sÄ«laá¹ƒ, camarÄ« viya vÄ• ladhiá¹ƒ ||

<125> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<126> á¹• 21 vicinanto \Ne II 303/ tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, tatiyaá¹ƒ nekkhammapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<127> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ tatiyaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

nekkhammapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<128> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• andughare puriso, ciravuttho dukhaá¹-á¹-ito.

na tattha rÄ• gaá¹ƒ janesi, muttiá¹ƒyeva gavesati ||

<129> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ sabbabhave, passa andughare viya.

nekkhammÄ• bhimukho hohi, bhavato parimuttiyÄ• ||

<130> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<131> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, catutthaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<132> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ catutthaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ \Ee 14/ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<133> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi \Be II 317/ bhikkhu bhikkhanto, hÄ«namukkaá¹-á¹-hamajjhime.

kulÄ• ni na vivajjento, evaá¹ƒ labhati yÄ• panaá¹ƒ ||

<134> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Se II 430/ tvaá¹ƒ sabbakÄ• laá¹ƒ, paripucchaá¹ƒ budhaá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ paÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<135> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<136> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, paÃ±camaá¹ƒ vÄ«riyapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<137> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ paÃ±camaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

vÄ«riyapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gaccha, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<138> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi sÄ«ho migarÄ• jÄ• , nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

alÄ«navÄ«riyo hoti, paggahitamano sadÄ• ||

<139> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ {tvaá¹ƒpi (Ce) } sabbabhave, paggaá¹‡ha vÄ«riyaá¹ƒ daá¸·ha

vÄ«riyapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<140> á¹• 21 ``nahete \Ne II 304/ ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<141> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, chaá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ khantipÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<142> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ chaá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tattha advejjhamÄ• naso, sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<143> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pathavÄ« nÄ• ma, sucimpi asucimpi ca.

sabbaá¹ƒ sahati nikkhepaá¹ƒ, na karoti paá¹-ighaá¹ƒ tayÄ• ||

<144> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Se II 431/ tvampi sabbesaá¹ƒ, sammÄ• nÄ• vamÄ• nakkhamo.

khantipÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<145> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<146> á¹• 21 vicinanto \Be II 318/ tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, sattamaá¹ƒ saccapÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<147> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ sattamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tattha advejjhavacano, sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<148> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi osadhÄ« nÄ• ma, tulÄ• bhÅ«tÄ• sadevake.

samaye utuvasse vÄ• , na vokkamati vÄ«thito ||

<149> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvampi saccesu, mÄ• vokkama hi vÄ«thito.

saccapÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<150> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<151> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, aá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi \Ee 15/ mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<152> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ aá¹-á¹-hamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tattha tvaá¹ƒ acalo hutvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<153> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pabbato selo, acalo suppatiá¹-á¹-hito.

na kampati bhusavÄ• tehi, sakaá¹-á¹-hÄ• neva tiá¹-á¹-hati ||

<154> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Se II 432/ \Ne II 305/ tvampi adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne, sabbadÄ• acalo bha

adhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• napÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<155> á¹• 21 ``nahete ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<156> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, navamaá¹ƒ mettÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<157> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ navamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

mettÄ• ya asamo hohi, yadi bodhiá¹ƒ pattumicchasi ||

<158> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi udakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma, kalyÄ• á¹‡e pÄ• pake jane.

samaá¹ƒ pharati sÄ«tena, pavÄ• heti rajomalaá¹ƒ ||

<159> á¹• 21 ``tatheva tvaá¹ƒ hitÄ• hite, samaá¹ƒ mettÄ• ya bhÄ• vaya.

mettÄ• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<160> á¹• 21 ``nahete \Be II 319/ ettakÄ• yeva, buddhadhammÄ• bhavissare.

aÃ±Ã±epi vicinissÄ• mi, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<161> á¹• 21 vicinanto tadÄ• dakkhiá¹ƒ, dasamaá¹ƒ upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ.

pubbakehi mahesÄ«hi, Ä• sevitanisevitaá¹ƒ ||

<162> á¹• 21 ``imaá¹ƒ tvaá¹ƒ dasamaá¹ƒ tÄ• va, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ• diya.

tulÄ• bhÅ«to daá¸·ho hutvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<163> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi pathavÄ« nÄ• ma, nikkhittaá¹ƒ asuciá¹ƒ suciá¹ƒ.

upekkhati ubhopete, kopÄ• nunayavajjitÄ• ||

<164> á¹• 21 ``tatheva \Se II 433/ tvaá¹ƒ sukhadukkhe, tulÄ• bhÅ«to sadÄ• bhava.

upekkhÄ• pÄ• ramitaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sambodhiá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡issasi ||

<165> á¹• 21 ``ettakÄ• yeva te loke, ye dhammÄ• bodhipÄ• canÄ• .

tatuddhaá¹ƒ natthi aÃ±Ã±atra, daá¸·haá¹ƒ tattha patiá¹-á¹-hahaâ€™â€™ ||

<166> á¹• 21 ime dhamme sammasato, sabhÄ• vasarasalakkhaá¹‡e.

dhammatejena vasudhÄ• , dasasahassÄ« pakampatha ||

<167> á¹• 21 calatÄ« ravatÄ« pathavÄ«, ucchuyantaá¹ƒva pÄ«á¸·itaá¹ƒ.

telayante yathÄ• cakkaá¹ƒ, evaá¹ƒ kampati medanÄ« ||

<168> á¹• 21 yÄ• vatÄ• parisÄ• Ä• si, buddhassa parivesane.

pavedhamÄ• nÄ• sÄ• tattha, mucchitÄ• seti bhÅ«miyaá¹ƒ ||

<169> á¹• 21 ghaá¹-Ä• nekasahassÄ• ni, kumbhÄ«naÃ±ca satÄ• bahÅ«.

saÃ±cuá¹‡á¹‡amathitÄ• tattha, aÃ±Ã±amaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ paghaá¹-á¹-itÄ• ||

<170> á¹• 21 ubbiggÄ• \Ne II 306/ tasitÄ• bhÄ«tÄ• , bhantÄ• byÄ• thitamÄ• nasÄ• .

mahÄ• janÄ• \Ee 16/ samÄ• gamma, dÄ«paá¹…karamupÄ• gamuá¹ƒ ||

<171> á¹• 21 ``kiá¹ƒ bhavissati lokassa, kalyÄ• á¹‡amatha pÄ• pakaá¹ƒ.

sabbo upadduto loko, taá¹ƒ vinodehi cakkhumaâ€™â€™ ||

<172> á¹• 21 tesaá¹ƒ tadÄ• saÃ±Ã±apesi, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni.

``visaá¹-á¹-hÄ• hotha mÄ• bhetha {bhÄ• tha (sabbattha) }, imasmiá¹ƒ pathavikampane ||

<173> á¹• 21 ``yamahaá¹ƒ \Be II 320/ ajja byÄ• kÄ• siá¹ƒ, buddho loke bhavissati.

eso sammasati dhammaá¹ƒ, pubbakaá¹ƒ jinasevitaá¹ƒ ||

<174> á¹• 21 ``tassa \Se II 434/ sammasato dhammaá¹ƒ, buddhabhÅ«miá¹ƒ asesato.

tenÄ• yaá¹ƒ kampitÄ• pathavÄ«, dasasahassÄ« sadevakeâ€™â€™ ||

<175> á¹• 21 buddhassa vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , mano nibbÄ• yi tÄ• vade.

sabbe maá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kamma, punÄ• pi abhivandisuá¹ƒ ||

<176> á¹• 21 samÄ• diyitvÄ• buddhaguá¹‡aá¹ƒ, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• na mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ.

dÄ«paá¹…karaá¹ƒ namassitvÄ• , Ä• sanÄ• vuá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<177> á¹• 21 dibbaá¹ƒ mÄ• nusakaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, devÄ• mÄ• nusakÄ• ubho.

samokiranti pupphehi, vuá¹-á¹-hahantassa Ä• sanÄ• ||

<178> á¹• 21 vedayanti ca te sotthiá¹ƒ, devÄ• mÄ• nusakÄ• ubho.

``mahantaá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ tuyhaá¹ƒ, taá¹ƒ labhassu yathicchitaá¹ƒ ||

<179> á¹• 21 ``sabbÄ«tiyo vivajjantu, soko rogo vinassatu.

mÄ• te bhavantvantarÄ• yÄ• {bhavatvantarÄ• yo (Ce Se) }, phusa khippaá¹ƒ bodhimuttam

<180> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• pi samaye patte, pupphanti pupphino dumÄ• .

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡ena pupphasi ||

<181> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• ye keci sambuddhÄ• , pÅ«rayuá¹ƒ dasa pÄ• ramÄ«.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, pÅ«raya dasa pÄ• ramÄ« ||

<182> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• ye keci sambuddhÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• amhi bujjhare.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, bujjhassu jinabodhiyaá¹ƒ ||

<183> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• ye keci sambuddhÄ• , dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayuá¹ƒ.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ra, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattaya ||

<184> á¹• 21 ``puá¹‡á¹‡amÄ• ye \Se II 435/ \Ne II 307/ yathÄ• cando, parisuddho virocati.

tatheva tvaá¹ƒ puá¹‡á¹‡amano, viroca dasasahassiyaá¹ƒ ||

<185> á¹• 21 ``rÄ• humutto yathÄ• sÅ«riyo, tÄ• pena atirocati.

tatheva lokÄ• muÃ±citvÄ• , viroca siriyÄ• tuvaá¹ƒ ||

<186> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• \Be II 321/ yÄ• kÄ• ci nadiyo, osaranti mahodadhiá¹ƒ.

evaá¹ƒ sadevakÄ• lokÄ• , osarantu tavantikeâ€™â€™ ||

<187> á¹• 21 tehi thutappasattho so, dasa dhamme samÄ• diya.

te dhamme paripÅ«rento, pavanaá¹ƒ pÄ• visÄ« tadÄ• ti || sumedhapatthanÄ• kathÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

3. dÄ«paá¹…karabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 tadÄ• \Ee 17/ te bhojayitvÄ• na, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

upagacchuá¹ƒ saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassa, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<2> á¹• 21 saraá¹‡Ä• gamane kaÃ±ci, nivesesi tathÄ• gato.

kaÃ±ci paÃ±casu sÄ«lesu, sÄ«le dasavidhe paraá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 kassaci deti sÄ• maÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, caturo phalamuttame.

kassaci asame dhamme, deti so paá¹-isambhidÄ• ||

<4> á¹• 21 kassaci varasamÄ• pattiyo, aá¹-á¹-ha deti narÄ• sabho.

tisso kassaci vijjÄ• yo, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pavecchati ||

<5> á¹• 21 tena yogena janakÄ• yaá¹ƒ, ovadati mahÄ• muni.

tena vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, lokanÄ• thassa sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 mahÄ• hanusabhakkhandho \Se II 436/, dÄ«paá¹…karassa nÄ• mako.

bahÅ« jane tÄ• rayati, parimoceti duggatiá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 bodhaneyyaá¹ƒ janaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , satasahassepi yojane.

khaá¹‡ena upagantvÄ• na, bodheti taá¹ƒ mahÄ• muni ||

<8> á¹• 21 paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamaye \Ne II 308/ buddho, koá¹-isatamabodhayi.

dutiyÄ• bhisamaye nÄ• tho, navutikoá¹-imabodhayi ||

<9> á¹• 21 yadÄ• ca devabhavanamhi, buddho dhammamadesayi.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<10> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<11> á¹• 21 puna \Be II 322/ nÄ• radakÅ«á¹-amhi, pavivekagate jine.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• vÄ«tamalÄ• , samiá¹ƒsu satakoá¹-iyo ||

<12> á¹• 21 yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sudassanasiluccaye.

navakoá¹-isahassehi, pavÄ• resi mahÄ• muni ||

<13> á¹• 21 dasavÄ«sasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu.

ekadvinnaá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• ||

<14> á¹• 21 vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ bÄ• hujaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, iddhaá¹ƒ phÄ«taá¹ƒ ahÅ« tadÄ• .

dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato, sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ suvisodhitaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 cattÄ• ri \Se II 437/ satasahassÄ• ni, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• mahiddhikÄ• .

dÄ«paá¹…karaá¹ƒ lokaviduá¹ƒ, parivÄ• renti sabbadÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 ye keci tena samayena, jahanti mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ bhavaá¹ƒ.

apattamÄ• nasÄ• sekhÄ• , garahitÄ• bhavanti te ||

<17> á¹• 21 supupphitaá¹ƒ pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, arahantehi tÄ• dihi.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi vimalehi, upasobhati sabbadÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ rammavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sudevo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sumedhÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<19> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni \Ee 18/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi {ajjhÄ• vasÄ« jino (Se haá¹ƒsÄ• koÃ±cÄ• mayÅ«rÄ• ca, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 tÄ«á¹‡isatasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

padumÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, usabhakkhandho atrajo ||

<21> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nadasamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• ne padahÄ« jino ||

<22> á¹• 21 padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ \Ne II 309/ caritvÄ• na, abujjhi mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ muni.

brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni ||

<23> á¹• 21 vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, nandÄ• rÄ• me sirÄ«ghare {sirÄ«dhare (Ce) }.

nisinno sirÄ«samÅ«lamhi, akÄ• titthiyamaddanaá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 sumaá¹…galo \Be II 323/ ca tisso ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sÄ• gato {sobhito (Katthaci) } nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<25> á¹• 21 nandÄ• \Se II 438/ ceva sunandÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, pipphalÄ«ti pavuccati ||

<26> á¹• 21 tapussabhallikÄ• {tapassubhallikÄ• (Ce) } nÄ• ma, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hal sirimÄ• koá¹‡Ä• upaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• , dÄ«paá¹…karassa satthuno ||

<27> á¹• 21 asÄ«tihatthamubbedho, dÄ«paá¹…karo mahÄ• muni.

sobhati dÄ«parukkhova, sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va phullito ||

<28> á¹• 21 satasahassavassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<29> á¹• 21 jotayitvÄ• na saddhammaá¹ƒ, santÄ• retvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<30> á¹• 21 sÄ• ca iddhi so ca yaso, tÄ• ni ca pÄ• desu cakkaratanÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ {samantarahitaá¹ƒ (Ce Se Katthaci) }, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…k
{sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ti (sabbattha) } ||

<31> á¹• 21 dÄ«paá¹…karo jino satthÄ• , nandÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa jinathÅ«po, chattiá¹ƒsubbedhayojanoti ||

dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso paá¹-hamo.

4. koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±abuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 dÄ«paá¹…karassa \Se II 439/ \Ee 19/ aparena, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o nÄ• ma nÄ• y

anantatejo amitayaso, appameyyo durÄ• sado ||

<2> á¹• 21 dharaá¹‡Å«pamo \Ne II 310/ khamanena, sÄ«lena sÄ• garÅ«pamo.

samÄ• dhinÄ• merÅ«pamo, Ã±Ä• á¹‡ena gaganÅ«pamo ||

<3> á¹• 21 indriyabalabojjhaá¹…ga-maggasaccappakÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

pakÄ• sesi sadÄ• buddho, hitÄ• ya sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ \Be II 324/ pavattente, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±e lokanÄ• yake.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 tato parampi desente, naramarÅ«naá¹ƒ samÄ• game.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 titthiye abhimaddanto, yadÄ• dhammamadesayi.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

dutiyo koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo navutikoá¹-inaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• ma khattiyo.

samuddaá¹ƒ antamantena, issariyaá¹ƒ vattayÄ• mahaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 440/, vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinaá¹ƒ.

saha lokagganÄ• thena, paramannena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o lokanÄ• yako.

``aparimeyyito kappe, buddho loke bhavissati ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

assatthamÅ«le sambuddho, bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``imassa janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``kolito upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissatimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi \Se II 441/ tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``citto \Ne II 311/ ca hatthÄ• á¸·avako, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nandamÄ• tÄ• ca uttarÄ• , aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• .

Ä• yu \Ee 20/ vassasataá¹ƒ tassa, gotamassa yasassinoâ€™â€™ ||

<17> á¹• 21 idaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na vacanaá¹ƒ, asamassa mahesino.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, buddhabÄ«jaá¹ƒ kira ayaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddÄ• \Be II 325/ vattanti, apphoá¹-enti hasanti ca.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, dasasahassidevatÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``yadimassa lokanÄ• thassa, virajjhissÄ• ma sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• manussÄ• nadiá¹ƒ tarantÄ• , paá¹-ititthaá¹ƒ virajjhiya.

heá¹-á¹-hÄ• titthe gahetvÄ• na, uttaranti mahÄ• nadiá¹ƒ ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``evameva mayaá¹ƒ sabbe, yadi muÃ±cÄ• mimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<22> á¹• 21 tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

tameva atthaá¹ƒ sÄ• dhento, mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ jine adaá¹ƒ.

mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ daditvÄ• na {cajitvÄ• (Ce) }, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<23> á¹• 21 suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 tatthappamatto \Se II 442/ viharanto, nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaá¹ƒ ||

<25> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ rammavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sunando nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sujÄ• tÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino ||

<26> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi {agÄ• ramajjhe ca so vasi (Se

suci suruci subho ca, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 tÄ«á¹‡isatasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

rucidevÄ« nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, vijitaseno atrajo ||

<28> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , rathayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nadasamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<29> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Ne II 312/ yÄ• cito santo, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o dvipaduttamo.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, devÄ• naá¹ƒ nagaruttame ||

<30> á¹• 21 bhaddo ceva subhaddo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

anuruddho nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino ||

<31> á¹• 21 tissÄ• \Be II 326/ ca upatissÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

sÄ• lakalyÄ• á¹‡iko bodhi, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa mahesino ||

<32> á¹• 21 soá¹‡o ca upasoá¹‡o ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nandÄ• ceva sirÄ«mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<33> á¹• 21 so aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«ti hatthÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

sobhate uá¸·urÄ• jÄ• va sÅ«riyo majjhanhike yathÄ• ||

<34> á¹• 21 vassasatasahassÄ• ni \Se II 443/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<35> á¹• 21 khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savehi \Ee 21/ vimalehi, vicittÄ• Ä• si medanÄ«.

yathÄ• gaganamuá¸·Å«hi, evaá¹ƒ so upasobhatha ||

<36> á¹• 21 tepi nÄ• gÄ• appameyyÄ• , asaá¹…khobhÄ• durÄ• sadÄ• .

vijjupÄ• taá¹ƒva dassetvÄ• , nibbutÄ• te mahÄ• yasÄ• ||

<37> á¹• 21 sÄ• ca atuliyÄ• jinassa iddhi, Ã±Ä• á¹‡aparibhÄ• vito ca samÄ• dhi.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<38> á¹• 21 koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o pavaro buddho, candÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tattheva cetiyo citto, satta yojanamussitoti ||

koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso dutiyo.

5. maá¹…galabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa aparena, maá¹…galo nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

tamaá¹ƒ loke nihantvÄ• na, dhammokkamabhidhÄ• rayi ||

<2> á¹• 21 atulÄ• si \Ne II 313/ pabhÄ• tassa, jinehaÃ±Ã±ehi uttariá¹ƒ.

candasÅ«riyapabhaá¹ƒ hantvÄ• , dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<3> á¹• 21 sopi buddho pakÄ• sesi, caturo saccavaruttame.

te te saccarasaá¹ƒ pÄ«tvÄ• , vinodenti mahÄ• tamaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 patvÄ• na \Se II 444/ bodhimatulaá¹ƒ, paá¹-hame dhammadesane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 surindadevabhavane \Be II 327/, buddho dhammamadesayi.

tadÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ {navakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ (Ce) }, dutiyo samayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 yadÄ• sunando cakkavattÄ«, sambuddhaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami.

tadÄ• Ä• hani sambuddho, dhammabheriá¹ƒ varuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 sunandassÄ• nucarÄ• janatÄ• , tadÄ• suá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-iyo.

sabbepi te niravasesÄ• , ahesuá¹ƒ ehi bhikkhukÄ• ||

<8> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, maá¹…galassa mahesino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 dutiyo koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo navutikoá¹-inaá¹ƒ.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, surucÄ« nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<11> á¹• 21 tamahaá¹ƒ \Ee 22/ upasaá¹…kamma, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ gantvÄ• na satthuno.

sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, gandhamÄ• lena pÅ«jayiá¹ƒ.

pÅ«jetvÄ• gandhamÄ• lena, gavapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, maá¹…galo dvipaduttamo.

``aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 445/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 446/ hessÄ• ma samm

<14> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasa pÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 tadÄ• pÄ«timanubrÅ«hanto, sambodhivarapattiyÄ• .

buddhe datvÄ• na maá¹ƒ gehaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<16> á¹• 21 suttantaá¹ƒ \Ne II 314/ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 tatthappamatto viharanto, brahmaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetva bhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagacchahaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 uttaraá¹ƒ \Be II 328/ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, uttaro nÄ• ma khattiyo.

uttarÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , maá¹…galassa mahesino ||

<19> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 447/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

yasavÄ• sucimÄ• sirÄ«mÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 samatiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

yasavatÄ« nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, sÄ«valo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<21> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , assayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«naaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<22> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, maá¹…galo nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, vane sirÄ«varuttame ||

<23> á¹• 21 sudevo dhammaseno ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

pÄ• lito nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, maá¹…galassa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 sÄ«valÄ• ca asokÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, nÄ• garukkhoti vuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 nando ceva visÄ• kho ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

anulÄ• ceva sutanÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«ti ratanÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

tato niddhÄ• vatÄ« raá¹ƒsÄ«, anekasatasahassiyo ||

<27> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 yathÄ• pi sÄ• gare Å«mÄ«, na sakkÄ• tÄ• gaá¹‡etuye.

tatheva sÄ• vakÄ• tassa, na sakkÄ• te gaá¹‡etuye ||

<29> á¹• 21 yÄ• va \Se II 448/ aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si sambuddho, maá¹…galo lokanÄ• yako.

na \Ee 23/ tassa sÄ• sane atthi, sakilesamaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ {saá¹ƒkilesamaraá¹‡aá¹ƒ (Ce) } tadÄ•

<30> á¹• 21 dhammokkaá¹ƒ \Ne II 315/ dhÄ• rayitvÄ• na, santÄ• retvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• dhÅ«maketÅ«va, nibbuto so mahÄ• yaso ||

<31> á¹• 21 saá¹…khÄ• rÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 329/ sabhÄ• vatthaá¹ƒ, dassayitvÄ• sadevake.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, sÅ«riyo atthaá¹…gato yathÄ• ||

<32> á¹• 21 uyyÄ• ne vassare nÄ• ma, buddho nibbÄ• yi maá¹…galo.

tatthevassa jinathÅ«po, tiá¹ƒsayojanamuggatoti ||

maá¹…galassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso tatiyo.

6. sumanabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 maá¹…galassa aparena, sumano nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

sabbadhammehi asamo, sabbasattÄ• namuttamo ||

<2> á¹• 21 tadÄ• amatabheriá¹ƒ so, Ä• hanÄ« mekhale pure.

dhammasaá¹…khasamÄ• yuttaá¹ƒ, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 nijjinitvÄ• kilese so, patvÄ• sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

mÄ• pesi nagaraá¹ƒ satthÄ• , saddhammapuravaruttamaá¹ƒ ||

<4> á¹• 21 nirantaraá¹ƒ akuá¹-ilaá¹ƒ, ujuá¹ƒ vipulavitthataá¹ƒ.

mÄ• pesi so mahÄ• vÄ«thiá¹ƒ, satipaá¹-á¹-hÄ• navaruttamaá¹ƒ ||

<5> á¹• 21 phale \Se II 449/ cattÄ• ri sÄ• maÃ±Ã±e, catasso paá¹-isambhidÄ• .

chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• á¹-á¹-hasamÄ• pattÄ«, pasÄ• resi tattha vÄ«thiyaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 ye appamattÄ• akhilÄ• , hirivÄ«riyehupÄ• gatÄ• .

te te ime guá¹‡avare, Ä• diyanti yathÄ• sukhaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 evametena yogena, uddharanto mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

bodhesi paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ satthÄ• , koá¹-isatasahassiyo ||

<8> á¹• 21 yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, ovadÄ« titthiye gaá¹‡e.

koá¹-isahassÄ• bhisamiá¹ƒsu {koá¹-isatasahassÄ• ni (Se Ke), koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ (K dhammadesane ||

<9> á¹• 21 yadÄ• devÄ• manussÄ• ca, samaggÄ• ekamÄ• nasÄ• .

nirodhapaÃ±haá¹ƒ pucchiá¹ƒsu, saá¹ƒsayaÃ±cÄ• pi mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 tadÄ• pi \Be II 330/ \Ne II 316/ dhammadesane, nirodhaparidÄ«pane.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<11> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sumanassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 vassaá¹ƒvutthassa \Ee 24/ bhagavato, abhighuá¹-á¹-he pavÄ• raá¹‡e.

koá¹-isatasahassehi, pavÄ• resi tathÄ• gato ||

<13> á¹• 21 tatoparaá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te, vimale kaÃ±canapabbate.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<14> á¹• 21 yadÄ• sakko devarÄ• jÄ• , buddhadassanupÄ• gami.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<15> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ \Se II 450/ tena samayena, nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• mahiddhiko.

atulo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, ussannakusalasaÃ±cayo ||

<16> á¹• 21 tadÄ• haá¹ƒ nÄ• gabhÄ• vanÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• saÃ±Ä• tibhi.

nÄ• gÄ• naá¹ƒ dibbaturiyehi, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ jinamupaá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, annapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ.

paccekadussayugaá¹ƒ datvÄ• , saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tamupÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, sumano lokanÄ• yako.

``aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 451/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<20> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<21> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ mekhalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma {mekhalaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ (Ce Se) }, suda

sirimÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sumanassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 452/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

cando sucando vaá¹-aá¹ƒso ca, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 tesaá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

vaá¹-aá¹ƒsikÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, anÅ«pamo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<24> á¹• 21 nimitte \Be II 331/ caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nadasamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<25> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Ne II 317/ yÄ• cito santo, sumano lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, mekhale puramuttame ||

<26> á¹• 21 saraá¹‡o bhÄ• vitatto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

udeno nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sumanassa mahesino ||

<27> á¹• 21 soá¹‡Ä• ca upasoá¹‡Ä• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

sopi buddho amitayaso, nÄ• gamÅ«le abujjhatha ||

<28> á¹• 21 varuá¹‡o ceva saraá¹‡o ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

cÄ• lÄ• ca upacÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 21 uccattanena {uccatarena (Katthaci) } so buddho, navutihatthamuggato.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<30> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<31> á¹• 21 tÄ• raá¹‡Ä«ye \Ee 25/ tÄ• rayitvÄ• , bodhanÄ«ye ca bodhayi.

parinibbÄ• yi sambuddho, uá¸urÄ• jÄ• va atthami ||

<32> á¹• 21 te \Se II 453/ ca khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• bhikkhÅ«, so ca buddho asÄ• diso.

atulappabhaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• , nibbutÄ• ye mahÄ• yasÄ• ||

<33> á¹• 21 taÃ±ca Ã±Ä• á¹‡aá¹ƒ atuliyaá¹ƒ, tÄ• ni ca atulÄ• ni ratanÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<34> á¹• 21 sumano yasadharo buddho, aá¹…gÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tattheva tassa jinathÅ«po, catuyojanamuggatoti ||

sumanassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso catuttho.

7. revatabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 sumanassa aparena, revato nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

anÅ«pamo asadiso, atulo uttamo jino ||

<2> á¹• 21 sopi dhammaá¹ƒ \Be II 332/ \Ne II 318/ pakÄ• sesi, brahmunÄ• abhiyÄ• cito.

khandhadhÄ• tuvavatthÄ• naá¹ƒ, appavattaá¹ƒ bhavÄ• bhave ||

<3> á¹• 21 tassÄ• bhisamayÄ• tÄ«á¹‡i, ahesuá¹ƒ dhammadesane.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 yadÄ• arindamaá¹ƒ rÄ• jaá¹ƒ {rÄ• jÄ• naá¹ƒ (Katthaci) }, vinesi revato muni.

tadÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 sattÄ• haá¹ƒ paá¹-isallÄ• nÄ• , vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• narÄ• sabho.

koá¹-isataá¹ƒ naramarÅ«naá¹ƒ, vinesi uttame phale ||

<6> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• \Se II 454/ tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, revatassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, suvimuttÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 atikkantÄ• gaá¹‡anapathaá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ ye samÄ• gatÄ• .

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 yopi {yo so (Se Ke Katthaci) } paÃ±Ã±Ä• ya asamo, tassa cakkÄ• nuvattako.

so tadÄ• byÄ• dhito Ä• si, patto jÄ«vitasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 tassa gilÄ• napucchÄ• ya, ye tadÄ• upagatÄ• munÄ«.

koá¹-isahassÄ• arahanto, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, atidevo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

upagantvÄ• revataá¹ƒ buddhaá¹ƒ, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassa gaÃ±chahaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 tassa sÄ«laá¹ƒ samÄ• dhiÃ±ca, paÃ±Ã±Ä• guá¹‡amanuttamaá¹ƒ.

thomayitvÄ• yathÄ• thÄ• maá¹ƒ, uttarÄ«yamadÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 sopi \Ee 26/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, revato lokanÄ• yako.

``aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 455/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<14> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 tadÄ• pi taá¹ƒ buddhadhammaá¹ƒ, saritvÄ• anubrÅ«hayiá¹ƒ.

Ä• harissÄ• mi taá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, yaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ abhipatthitaá¹ƒ ||

<16> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ \Be II 333/ sudhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma {sudhammakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma (C }, vipulo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

vipulÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , revatassa mahesino ||

<17> á¹• 21 cha \Ne II 319/ ca vassasahassÄ• ni {chabbassasahassÄ• ni (Ce Se) }, agÄ• r sudassano ratanagghi, Ä• veá¸·o ca vibhÅ«sito.

puÃ±Ã±akammÄ• bhinibbattÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 tettiá¹ƒsa ca sahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sudassanÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, varuá¹‡o nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<19> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , rathayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nasattamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<20> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, revato lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, varuá¹‡Ä• rÄ• me sirÄ«ghare ||

<21> á¹• 21 varuá¹‡o \Se II 457/ brahmadevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sambhavo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, revatassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 bhaddÄ• ceva subhaddÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

sopi buddho asamasamo, nÄ• gamÅ«le abujjhatha ||

<23> á¹• 21 padumo kuÃ±jaro ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• .

sirÄ«mÄ• ceva yasavatÄ«, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 uccattanena so buddho, asÄ«tihatthamuggato.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , indaketuva uggato ||

<25> á¹• 21 tassa sarÄ«re nibbattÄ• , pabhÄ• mÄ• lÄ• anuttarÄ• .

divÄ• vÄ• yadi vÄ• rattiá¹ƒ, samantÄ• pharati yojanaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 dassayitvÄ• buddhabalaá¹ƒ, amataá¹ƒ loke pakÄ• sayaá¹ƒ.

nibbÄ• yi anupÄ• dÄ• no, yathaggupÄ• dÄ• nasaá¹…khayÄ• ||

<28> á¹• 21 so ca kÄ• yo ratananibho, so ca dhammo asÄ• diso.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 21 revato \Be II 334/ yasadharo buddho, nibbuto so mahÄ• pure.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

revatassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso paÃ±camo.

8. sobhitabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 revatassa \Se II 458/ \Ne II 320/ \Ee 27/ aparena, sobhito nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

samÄ• hito santacitto, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 so jino sakagehamhi, mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ vinivattayi.

patvÄ• na kevalaá¹ƒ bodhiá¹ƒ, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<3> á¹• 21 yÄ• va heá¹-á¹-hÄ• avÄ«cito, bhavaggÄ• cÄ• pi uddhato.

etthantare ekaparisÄ• , ahosi dhammadesane ||

<4> á¹• 21 tÄ• ya parisÄ• ya sambuddho, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 tato parampi desente, marÅ«naÃ±ca samÄ• game.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ rÄ• japutto, jayaseno nÄ• ma khattiyo.

Ä• rÄ• maá¹ƒ ropayitvÄ• na, buddhe niyyÄ• dayÄ« tadÄ• ||

<7> á¹• 21 tassa yÄ• gaá¹ƒ pakittento, dhammaá¹ƒ desesi cakkhumÄ• .

tadÄ• koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<8> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sobhitassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 uggato nÄ• ma so rÄ• jÄ• , dÄ• naá¹ƒ deti naruttame.

tamhi dÄ• ne samÄ• gaÃ±chuá¹ƒ, arahantÄ• {arahataá¹ƒ (Katthaci) } satakoá¹-iyo ||

<10> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ \Se II 459/ puragaá¹‡o {pugagaá¹‡o (Katthaci) }, deti dÄ• naá¹ƒ

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<11> á¹• 21 devaloke \Be II 335/ vasitvÄ• na, yadÄ• orohatÄ« jino.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<12> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sujÄ• to nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o.

tadÄ• sasÄ• vakaá¹ƒ buddhaá¹ƒ, annapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, sobhito lokanÄ• yako.

``aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne II 321/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 460/ hessÄ• ma samm

<15> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

tamevatthamanuppattiyÄ• , uggaá¹ƒ dhitimakÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<16> á¹• 21 sudhammaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sudhammo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sudhammÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sobhitassa mahesino ||

<17> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 461/ \Ee 28/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

kumudo nÄ• á¸·ino padumo, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 sattatiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

maá¹‡ilÄ• {makhilÄ• (-a), samaá¹…gÄ« (Ce), makilÄ• (Se Ke) } nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, sÄ

<19> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , pÄ• sÄ• denÄ• bhinikkhami.

sattÄ• haá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, caritvÄ• purisuttamo ||

<20> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, sobhito lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sudhammuyyÄ• namuttame ||

<21> á¹• 21 asamo ca sunetto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

anomo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sobhitassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 nakulÄ• ca sujÄ• tÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bujjhamÄ• no ca so buddho, nÄ• gamÅ«le abujjhatha ||

<23> á¹• 21 rammo ceva sudatto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nakulÄ• ceva cittÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va uggato ||

<25> á¹• 21 yathÄ• \Be II 336/ suphullaá¹ƒ pavanaá¹ƒ, nÄ• nÄ• gandhehi dhÅ«pitaá¹ƒ.

tatheva tassa pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, sÄ«lagandhehi dhÅ«pitaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 yathÄ• pi sÄ• garo nÄ• ma, dassanena atappiyo.

tatheva tassa pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, savaá¹‡ena atappiyaá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 462/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ovÄ• daá¹ƒ anusiá¹-á¹-hiÃ±ca, datvÄ• na sesake jane.

hutÄ• sanova tÄ• petvÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<29> á¹• 21 so \Ne II 322/ ca buddho asamasamo, tepi sÄ• vakÄ• balappattÄ• .

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<30> á¹• 21 sobhito varasambuddho, sÄ«hÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

sobhitassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso chaá¹-á¹-ho.

9. anomadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 sobhitassa \Ee 29/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

anomadassÄ« amitayaso, tejassÄ« duratikkamo ||

<2> á¹• 21 so chetvÄ• bandhanaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, viddhaá¹ƒsetvÄ• tayo bhave.

anivattigamanaá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, desesi devamÄ• nuse ||

<3> á¹• 21 sÄ• garova asaá¹…khobho, pabbatova durÄ• sado.

Ä• kÄ• sova ananto so, sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va phullito ||

<4> á¹• 21 dassanenapi taá¹ƒ buddhaá¹ƒ, tositÄ• honti pÄ• á¹‡ino.

byÄ• harantaá¹ƒ giraá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , amataá¹ƒ pÄ• puá¹‡anti te ||

<5> á¹• 21 dhammÄ• bhisamayo \Se II 463/ tassa, iddho phÄ«to tadÄ• ahu.

koá¹-isatÄ• ni abhisamiá¹ƒsu, paá¹-hame dhammadesane ||

<6> á¹• 21 tato paraá¹ƒ abhisamaye, vassante dhammavuá¹-á¹-hiyo.

asÄ«tikoá¹-iyobhisamiá¹ƒsu, dutiye dhammadesane ||

<7> á¹• 21 tatoparaÃ±hi \Be II 337/ vassante, tappayante ca pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

aá¹-á¹-hasattatikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<8> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tassÄ• pi ca mahesino.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ, pupphitÄ• naá¹ƒ vimuttiyÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, sannipÄ• to tadÄ• ahu.

pahÄ«namadamohÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 sattasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne II 323/, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anaá¹…gaá¹‡Ä• naá¹ƒ virajÄ• naá¹ƒ, upasantÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 channaá¹ƒ satasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ, nibbutÄ• naá¹ƒ tapassinaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, yakkho Ä• siá¹ƒ mahiddhiko.

nekÄ• naá¹ƒ yakkhakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, vasavattimhi issaro ||

<13> á¹• 21 tadÄ• pi taá¹ƒ buddhavaraá¹ƒ, upagantvÄ• mahesinaá¹ƒ.

annapÄ• nena tappesiá¹ƒ, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ tadÄ• byÄ• kÄ• si, visuddhanayano muni.

``aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 464/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 465/ hessÄ• ma samm

<16> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<17> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ \Ee 30/ candavatÄ« nÄ• ma, yasavÄ• nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• yasodharÄ• nÄ• ma, anomadassissa satthuno ||

<18> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

sirÄ« upasirÄ« vaá¸• á¸• ho, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 tevÄ«satisahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sirimÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, upavÄ• á¹‡o nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<20> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , sivikÄ• yÄ• bhinikkhami.

anÅ«nadasamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<21> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Se II 466/ \Be II 338/ yÄ• cito santo, anomadassÄ« mahÄ• muni.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, uyyÄ• ne so sudassane {sudassanuyyÄ• namuttame (Se Ke) }

<22> á¹• 21 nisabho ca anomo ca {asoko ca (Ce) }, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

varuá¹‡o nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, anomadassissa satthuno ||

<23> á¹• 21 sundarÄ« ca sumanÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, ajjunoti pavuccati ||

<24> á¹• 21 nandivaá¸• á¸• ho sirivaá¸• á¸• ho, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

uppalÄ• ceva padumÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ \Ne II 324/, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vatÄ« tassa, sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va uggato ||

<26> á¹• 21 vassasatasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 supupphitaá¹ƒ pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, arahantehi tÄ• dihi.

vÄ«tarÄ• gehi vimalehi, sobhittha jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 so ca satthÄ• amitayaso, yugÄ• ni tÄ• ni atuliyÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 21 anomadassÄ« jino satthÄ• , dhammÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa jinathÅ«po, ubbedho paÃ±cavÄ«satÄ«ti || anomadassissa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso sattamo.

10. padumabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 anomadassissa \Se II 467/ \Ee 31/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

padumo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi asamaá¹ƒ sÄ«laá¹ƒ, samÄ• dhipi anantako.

asaá¹…kheyyaá¹ƒ Ã±Ä• á¹‡avaraá¹ƒ, vimuttipi anÅ«pamÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi \Be II 339/ atulatejassa, dhammacakkappavattane.

abhisamayÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, mahÄ• tamapavÄ• hanÄ• ||

<4> á¹• 21 paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamaye buddho, koá¹-isatamabodhayi.

dutiyÄ• bhisamaye dhÄ«ro, navutikoá¹-imabodhayi ||

<5> á¹• 21 yadÄ• ca padumo buddho, ovadÄ« sakamatrajaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, padumassa mahesino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<7> á¹• 21 kathinatthÄ• rasamaye \Ne II 325/, uppanne kathinacÄ«vare.

dhammasenÄ• patitthÄ• ya, bhikkhÅ« sibbiá¹ƒsu {yÄ• ciá¹ƒsu (Katthaci) } cÄ«varaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 tadÄ• te vimalÄ• bhikkhÅ«, chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• mahiddhikÄ• .

tÄ«á¹‡i satasahassÄ• ni, samiá¹ƒsu aparÄ• jitÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ so narÄ• sabho {naravusabho (Se Ke) }, pavane vÄ• saá¹ƒ upÄ•

tadÄ• samÄ• gamo Ä• si, dvinnaá¹ƒ satasahassinaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sÄ«ho Ä• siá¹ƒ migÄ• dhibhÅ«.

vivekamanubrÅ«hantaá¹ƒ \Se II 468/, pavane addasaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 vanditvÄ• sirasÄ• pÄ• de, katvÄ• na taá¹ƒ padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

tikkhattuá¹ƒ abhinÄ• ditvÄ• , sattÄ• haá¹ƒ jinamupaá¹-á¹-hahaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 sattÄ• haá¹ƒ varasamÄ• pattiyÄ• , vuá¹-á¹-hahitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

manasÄ• cintayitvÄ• na, koá¹-ibhikkhÅ« samÄ• nayi ||

<13> á¹• 21 tadÄ• pi so mahÄ• vÄ«ro, tesaá¹ƒ majjhe viyÄ• kari.

``aparimeyyito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 469/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<15> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 campakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, asamo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

asamÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , padumassa mahesino ||

<17> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni \Be II 340/ \Ee 32/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

nandÄ• vasuyasuttarÄ• \Se II 470/, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 tettiá¹ƒsa ca sahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

uttarÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, rammo nÄ• mÄ• si atrajo ||

<19> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , rathayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«naaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<20> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, padumo lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, dhanaÃ±cuyyÄ• namuttame ||

<21> á¹• 21 sÄ• lo ca upasÄ• lo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

varuá¹‡o nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, padumassa mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 rÄ• dhÄ• \Ne II 326/ ceva surÄ• dhÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• soá¹‡oti vuccati ||

<23> á¹• 21 bhiyyo ceva asamo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

rucÄ« ca nandarÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vatÄ« tassa, asamÄ• sabbaso disÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 candappabhÄ• sÅ«riyappabhÄ• , ratanaggimaá¹‡ippabhÄ• .

sabbÄ• pi tÄ• hatÄ• honti, patvÄ• jinapabhuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 vassasatasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 paripakkamÄ• nase \Se II 471/ satte, bodhayitvÄ• asesato.

sesake anusÄ• sitvÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<28> á¹• 21 uragova tacaá¹ƒ jiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, vaddhapattaá¹ƒva pÄ• dapo.

jahitvÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• re, nibbuto so yathÄ• sikhÄ« ||

<29> á¹• 21 padumo jinavaro satthÄ• , dhammÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

padumassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso aá¹-á¹-hamo.

11. nÄ• radabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 padumassa \Be II 341/ \Ee 33/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

nÄ• rado nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 so buddho cakkavattissa, jeá¹-á¹-ho dayitaoraso.

Ä• mukkamÄ• lÄ• bharaá¹‡o, uyyÄ• naá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami ||

<3> á¹• 21 tatthÄ• si rukkho yasavipulo, abhirÅ«po brahÄ• suci.

tamajjhapatvÄ• upanisÄ«di, mahÄ• soá¹‡assa heá¹-á¹-hato ||

<4> á¹• 21 tattha \Ne II 327/ Ã±Ä• á¹‡avaruppajji, anantaá¹ƒ vajirÅ«pamaá¹ƒ.

tena vicini saá¹…khÄ• re, ukkujjamavakujjakaá¹ƒ {kujjataá¹ƒ (Se Ke) } ||

<5> á¹• 21 tattha sabbakilesÄ• ni, asesamabhivÄ• hayi.

pÄ• puá¹‡Ä« kevalaá¹ƒ bodhiá¹ƒ, buddhaÃ±Ä• á¹‡e ca cuddasa ||

<6> á¹• 21 pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na \Se II 472/ sambodhiá¹ƒ, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 mahÄ• doá¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• garÄ• jaá¹ƒ, vinayanto mahÄ• muni.

pÄ• á¹-iheraá¹ƒ tadÄ• kÄ• si, dassayanto sadevake ||

<8> á¹• 21 tadÄ• devamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ, tamhi dhammappakÄ• sane.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni, tariá¹ƒsu sabbasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 yamhi kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, ovadÄ« sakamatrajaá¹ƒ.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<10> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, nÄ• radassa mahesino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<11> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho buddhaguá¹‡aá¹ƒ, sanidÄ• naá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayi.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• ni, samiá¹ƒsu vimalÄ• tadÄ• ||

<12> á¹• 21 yadÄ• verocano nÄ• go, dÄ• naá¹ƒ dadÄ• ti satthuno.

tadÄ• samiá¹ƒsu jinaputtÄ• , asÄ«tisatasahassiyo ||

<13> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ \Be II 342/ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo uggatÄ• pano.

antalikkhacaro Ä• siá¹ƒ, paÃ±cÄ• bhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<14> á¹• 21 tadÄ• pÄ• haá¹ƒ asamasamaá¹ƒ, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ saparijjanaá¹ƒ.

annapÄ• nena tappetvÄ• , candanenÄ• bhipÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ tadÄ• byÄ• kÄ• si, nÄ• rado lokanÄ• yako.

``aparimeyyito \Se II 473/ kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 474/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<17> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi \Ee 34/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo hÄ• setva mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ.

adhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ vataá¹ƒ uggaá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ dhaÃ±Ã±avatÄ« nÄ• ma, sudevo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

anomÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , nÄ• radassa mahesino ||

<19> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni \Ne II 328/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

jito vijitÄ• bhirÄ• mo, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 ticattÄ• rÄ«sasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

vijitasenÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, nanduttaro nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<21> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , padasÄ• gamanena nikkhami.

sattÄ• haá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo {lokanÄ• yako (Ce Katthaci) } ||

<22> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Se II 475/ yÄ• cito santo, nÄ• rado lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, dhanaÃ±cuyyÄ• namuttame ||

<23> á¹• 21 bhaddasÄ• lo jitamitto, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

vÄ• seá¹-á¹-ho nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, nÄ• radassa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 uttarÄ• phaggunÄ« ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• soá¹‡oti vuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 uggarindo vasabho ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

indÄ• varÄ« ca vaá¹‡á¸• Ä« {undÄ« (Ce), gaá¹‡á¸• Ä« (Se Ke) } ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-

<26> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tiratanÄ• ni \Be II 343/, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<27> á¹• 21 tassa byÄ• mappabhÄ• kÄ• yÄ• , niddhÄ• vati disodisaá¹ƒ.

nirantaraá¹ƒ divÄ• rattiá¹ƒ, yojanaá¹ƒ pharate sadÄ• ||

<28> á¹• 21 na keci tena samayena, samantÄ• yojane janÄ• .

ukkÄ• padÄ«pe ujjÄ• lenti, buddharaá¹ƒsÄ«hi otthaá¹-Ä• ||

<29> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 yathÄ• uá¸·Å«hi gaganaá¹ƒ, vicittaá¹ƒ upasobhati.

tatheva sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ tassa, arahantehi sobhati ||

<31> á¹• 21 saá¹ƒsÄ• rasotaá¹ƒ taraá¹‡Ä• ya, sesake paá¹-ipannake.

dhammasetuá¹ƒ \Se II 476/ daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• , nibbuto so narÄ• sabho ||

<32> á¹• 21 sopi buddho asamasamo, tepi khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• atulatejÄ• .

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<33> á¹• 21 nÄ• rado jinavasabho, nibbuto sudassane pure.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, catuyojanamuggatoti ||

nÄ• radassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso navamo.

12. padumuttarabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 nÄ• radassa \Ne II 329/ \Ee 35/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

padumuttaro nÄ• ma jino, akkhobho sÄ• garÅ«pamo ||

<2> á¹• 21 maá¹‡á¸• akappova so Ä• si, yamhi buddho ajÄ• yatha.

ussannakusalÄ• janatÄ• , tamhi kappe ajÄ• yatha ||

<3> á¹• 21 padumuttarassa bhagavato, paá¹-hame dhammadesane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 tato parampi vassante, tappayante ca pÄ• á¹‡ine.

sattatiá¹ƒsasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 yamhi \Be II 344/ kÄ• le mahÄ• vÄ«ro, Ä• nandaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami.

pitusantikaá¹ƒ upagantvÄ• , Ä• hanÄ« amatadundubhiá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 Ä• hate amatabherimhi, vassante dhammavuá¹-á¹-hiyÄ• .

paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 ovÄ• dako \Se II 477/ viÃ±Ã±Ä• pako, tÄ• rako sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

desanÄ• kusalo buddho, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, padumuttarassa satthuno.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho asamasamo, vasi vebhÄ• rapabbate.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 puna cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ pakkante, gÄ• manigamaraá¹-á¹-hato.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<11> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo nÄ• ma raá¹-á¹-hiko.

sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, sabhattaá¹ƒ dussamadÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

``satasahassito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne II 330/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 478/ hessÄ• ma samn

<14> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ.

akÄ• siá¹ƒ uggadaá¸·haá¹ƒ dhitiá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 byÄ• hatÄ• titthiyÄ• sabbe, vimanÄ• dummanÄ• tadÄ• .

na tesaá¹ƒ keci paricaranti, raá¹-á¹-hato nicchubhanti te ||

<16> á¹• 21 sabbe \Ee 36/ tattha samÄ• gantvÄ• , upagacchuá¹ƒ buddhasantike.

tuvaá¹ƒ nÄ• tho mahÄ• vÄ«ra, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ hohi cakkhuma ||

<17> á¹• 21 anukampako kÄ• ruá¹‡iko, hitesÄ« sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ.

sampatte titthiye sabbe, paÃ±casÄ«le patiá¹-á¹-hapi ||

<18> á¹• 21 evaá¹ƒ nirÄ• kulaá¹ƒ Ä• si, suÃ±Ã±ataá¹ƒ titthiyehi taá¹ƒ.

vicittaá¹ƒ arahantehi, vasÄ«bhÅ«tehi tÄ• dihi ||

<19> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ \Be II 345/ haá¹ƒsavatÄ« nÄ• ma, Ä• nando nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sujÄ• tÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , padumuttarassa satthuno ||

<20> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

naravÄ• hano yaso vasavattÄ« {nÄ• rivÄ• hano yasavatÄ« (Se Ke) }, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damutta

<21> á¹• 21 ticattÄ• rÄ«sasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

vasudattÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, uttamo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<22> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , pÄ• sÄ• denÄ• bhinikkhami.

sattÄ• haá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<23> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Se II 480/ yÄ• cito santo, padumuttaro vinÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, mithiluyyÄ• namuttame ||

<24> á¹• 21 devalo ca sujÄ• to ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sumano nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, padumuttarassa mahesino ||

<25> á¹• 21 amitÄ• ca asamÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, salaloti pavuccati ||

<26> á¹• 21 vitiá¹‡á¹‡o ceva {amito ceva (Se) } tisso ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

haá¹-á¹-hÄ• ceva vicittÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o ||

<28> á¹• 21 kuá¹-á¹-Ä• \Ne II 331/ kavÄ• á¹-Ä• bhittÄ« ca, rukkhÄ• nagasiluccayÄ• .

na tassÄ• varaá¹‡aá¹ƒ atthi, samantÄ• dvÄ• dasayojane ||

<29> á¹• 21 vassasatasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<30> á¹• 21 santÄ• retvÄ• bahujanaá¹ƒ, chinditvÄ• sabbasaá¹ƒsayaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<31> á¹• 21 padumuttaro jino buddho, nandÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, dvÄ• dasubbedhayojanoti || padumuttarassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso dasamo.

13. sumedhabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 padumuttarassa \Se II 481/ \Be II 346/ \Ee 37/ aparena, sumedho nÄ• ma nÄ• y

durÄ• sado uggatejo, sabbalokuttamo muni ||

<2> á¹• 21 pasannanetto sumukho, brahÄ• uju patÄ• pavÄ• .

hitesÄ« sabbasattÄ• naá¹ƒ, bahÅ« mocesi bandhanÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , kevalaá¹ƒ bodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

sudassanamhi nagare, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<4> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi abhisamayÄ• tÄ«á¹‡i, ahesuá¹ƒ dhammadesane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ kumbhakaá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ, yakkhaá¹ƒ so damayÄ« jino.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ amitayaso, catusaccaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayi.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sumedhassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 sudassanaá¹ƒ \Ne II 332/ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, upagaÃ±chi jino yadÄ• .

tadÄ• khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• bhikkhÅ«, samiá¹ƒsu satakoá¹-iyo ||

<9> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ devakÅ«á¹-e, bhikkhÅ«naá¹ƒ kathinatthate.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ \Se II 482/ dasabalo, yadÄ• carati cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<11> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, uttaro nÄ• ma mÄ• á¹‡avo.

asÄ«tikoá¹-iyo mayhaá¹ƒ, ghare sannicitaá¹ƒ dhanaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 kevalaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, sasaá¹…ghe lokanÄ• yake.

saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ tassupagaÃ±chiá¹ƒ, pabbajjaÃ±cÄ• bhirocayiá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, karonto anumodanaá¹ƒ.

``tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhi, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 347/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 483/ hessÄ• ma samm

<15> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 suttantaá¹ƒ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 tatthappamatto \Se II 484/ \Ee 38/ viharanto, nisajjaá¹-á¹-hÄ• nacaá¹…kame.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 sudassanaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sudatto nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sudattÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sumedhassa mahesino ||

<19> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

sucandakaÃ±canasirivaá¸• á¸• hÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 tisoá¸·asasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sumanÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, punabbasu nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<21> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nakaá¹ƒ aá¸• á¸• hamÄ• saá¹ƒ, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<22> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, sumedho lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sudassanuyyÄ• namuttame ||

<23> á¹• 21 saraá¹‡o \Ne II 333/ sabbakÄ• mo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sÄ• garo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sumedhassa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 rÄ• mÄ• ceva surÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• nÄ«poti vuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 uruvelÄ• yasavÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

yasodharÄ• sirimÄ• ca {yasÄ• nÄ• ma sirimÄ• ca (Se Ke) }, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ•

<26> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tiratanÄ• ni, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

obhÄ• seti disÄ• sabbÄ• , cando tÄ• ragaá¹‡e yathÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 cakkavattimaá¹‡Ä« \Se II 485/ nÄ• ma, yathÄ• tapati yojanaá¹ƒ.

tatheva tassa ratanaá¹ƒ, samantÄ• pharati yojanaá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni \Be II 348/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<29> á¹• 21 tevijjachaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±ehi, balappattehi tÄ• dihi.

samÄ• kulamidaá¹ƒ Ä• si, arahantehi sÄ• dhuhi ||

<30> á¹• 21 tepi sabbe amitayasÄ• , vippamuttÄ• nirÅ«padhÄ«.

Ã±Ä• á¹‡Ä• lokaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• , nibbutÄ• te mahÄ• yasÄ• ||

<31> á¹• 21 sumedho jinavaro buddho, medhÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

sumedhassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso ekÄ• dasamo.

14. sujÄ• tabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 tattheva \Ee 39/ maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, sujÄ• to nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

sÄ«hahanusabhakkhandho, appameyyo durÄ• sado ||

<2> á¹• 21 candova vimalo suddho, sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va patÄ• pavÄ• .

evaá¹ƒ sobhati sambuddho, jalanto siriyÄ• sadÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 pÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na \Ne II 334/ sambuddho, kevalaá¹ƒ bodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

sumaá¹…galamhi nagare, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<4> á¹• 21 desente \Se II 486/ {desento (Se Ke) } pavaraá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, sujÄ• te lokanÄ• lokanÄ• yako (Se Ke) }.

asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä« abhisamiá¹ƒsu, paá¹-hame dhammadesane ||

<5> á¹• 21 yadÄ• sujÄ• to amitayaso, deve vassaá¹ƒ upÄ• gami.

sattatiá¹ƒsasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 yadÄ• sujÄ• to asamasamo, upagacchi pitusantikaá¹ƒ.

saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ {sattatiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ (Ce) }, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sujÄ• tassa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balappattÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 349/, appattÄ• naá¹ƒ bhavÄ• bhave.

saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• ni, paá¹-hamaá¹ƒ sannipatiá¹ƒsu te ||

<9> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ sannipÄ• te, tidivorohaá¹‡e jine.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<10> á¹• 21 upasaá¹…kamanto narÄ• sabhaá¹ƒ, tassa yo aggasÄ• vako.

catÅ«hi satasahassehi, sambuddhaá¹ƒ upasaá¹…kami ||

<11> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, catudÄ«pamhi issaro.

antalikkhacaro Ä• siá¹ƒ, cakkavattÄ« mahabbalo ||

<12> á¹• 21 loke acchariyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , abbhutaá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

upagantvÄ• na vandiá¹ƒ so, sujÄ• taá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 catudÄ«pe mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ, ratane satta uttame.

buddhe niyyÄ• dayitvÄ• na, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<14> á¹• 21 Ä• rÄ• mikÄ• janapade, uá¹-á¹-hÄ• naá¹ƒ paá¹-ipiá¹‡á¸• iya.

upanenti \Se II 487/ bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa, paccayaá¹ƒ sayanÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho {tadÄ• (Se Ke) } byÄ• kÄ• si, dasasahassimhi issaro.

``tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhi, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 40/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹

<17> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo hÄ• saá¹ƒ janesahaá¹ƒ.

adhiá¹-á¹-hahiá¹ƒ vataá¹ƒ uggaá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 suttantaá¹ƒ \Ne II 335/ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<19> á¹• 21 tatthappamatto viharanto, brahmaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetva bhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 sumaá¹…galaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, uggato nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• pabhÄ• vatÄ« nÄ• ma, sujÄ• tassa mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 489/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

sirÄ« upasirÄ« nando, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 tevÄ«satisahassÄ• ni \Be II 350/, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sirinandÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, upaseno nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<23> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , assayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«nanavamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<24> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, sujÄ• to lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sumaá¹…galuyyÄ• namuttame ||

<25> á¹• 21 sudassano sudevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

nÄ• rado nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sujÄ• tassa mahesino ||

<26> á¹• 21 nÄ• gÄ• ca nÄ• gasamÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• veá¸·Å«ti vuccati ||

<27> á¹• 21 so ca rukkho ghanakkhandho {ghanaruciro (Ce Katthaci) }, acchiddo hoti pattik

uju vaá¹ƒso brahÄ• hoti, dassanÄ«yo manoramo ||

<28> á¹• 21 ekakkhandho pavaá¸• á¸• hitvÄ• , tato sÄ• khÄ• pabhijjati.

yathÄ• subaddho morahattho, evaá¹ƒ sobhati so dumo ||

<29> á¹• 21 na tassa kaá¹‡á¹-akÄ• honti, nÄ• pi chiddaá¹ƒ mahÄ• ahu.

vitthiá¹‡á¹‡asÄ• kho aviralo, sandacchÄ• yo manoramo ||

<30> á¹• 21 sudatto ceva citto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

subhaddÄ• ca padumÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<31> á¹• 21 paÃ±Ã±Ä• saratano \Se II 490/ Ä• si, uccattanena so jino.

sabbÄ• kÄ• ravarÅ«peto, sabbaguá¹‡amupÄ• gato ||

<32> á¹• 21 tassa pabhÄ• asamasamÄ• , niddhÄ• vati samantato.

appamÄ• á¹‡o atuliyo, opammehi anÅ«pamo ||

<33> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni \Ne II 336/, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<34> á¹• 21 yathÄ• pi sÄ• gare Å«mÄ«, gagane tÄ• rakÄ• yathÄ• .

evaá¹ƒ tadÄ• pÄ• vacanaá¹ƒ, arahantehi cittitaá¹ƒ {cittakaá¹ƒ (Se Ke) } ||

<35> á¹• 21 so \Be II 351/ \Ee 41/ ca buddho asamasamo, guá¹‡Ä• ni ca tÄ• ni atuliyÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<36> á¹• 21 sujÄ• to jinavaro buddho, silÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tattheva tassa cetiyo {tattheva cetiyo satthu (Se Ke) }, tÄ«á¹‡igÄ• vutamuggatoti || sujÄ• tassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso dvÄ• dasamo.

15. piyadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 sujÄ• tassa aparena, sayambhÅ« lokanÄ• yako.

durÄ• sado asamasamo, piyadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso ||

<2> á¹• 21 sopi \Se II 491/ buddho amitayaso, Ä• diccova virocati.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamaá¹ƒ nihantvÄ• na, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<3> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, ahesuá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• tayo.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 sudassano devarÄ• jÄ• , micchÄ• diá¹-á¹-himarocayi.

tassa diá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ vinodento, satthÄ• dhammamadesayi ||

<5> á¹• 21 janasannipÄ• to atulo, mahÄ• sannipatÄ« tadÄ• .

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 yadÄ• doá¹‡amukhaá¹ƒ hatthiá¹ƒ, vinesi narasÄ• rathi.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tassÄ• pi piyadassino.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 tato \Ne II 337/ paraá¹ƒ navutikoá¹-Ä«, samiá¹ƒsu ekato munÄ«.

tatiye sannipÄ• tamhi, asÄ«tikoá¹-iyo ahÅ« ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, kassapo nÄ• ma brÄ• hmaá¹‡o {mÄ• navo (Se Ke) }.

ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<10> á¹• 21 tassa \Be II 352/ dhammaá¹ƒ suá¹‡itvÄ• na, pasÄ• daá¹ƒ janayiá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ.

koá¹-isatasahassehi, saá¹…ghÄ• rÄ• maá¹ƒ amÄ• payiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 tassa datvÄ• na Ä• rÄ• maá¹ƒ, haá¹-á¹-ho saá¹ƒviggamÄ• naso.

saraá¹‡e paÃ±ca sÄ«le ca {saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ paÃ±casÄ«laÃ±ca (Ce) }, daá¸·haá¹ƒ katvÄ• samÄ <12> á¹• 21 sopi \Se II 492/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ee 42/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 493/ hessÄ• ma sammuk

<14> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 sudhaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sudatto nÄ• ma khattiyo.

candÄ• nÄ• mÄ• si janikÄ• , piyadassissa satthuno ||

<16> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

sunimmalavimalagiriguhÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<17> á¹• 21 tettiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni ca, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

vimalÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ« ca, kaÃ±canÄ• veá¸·o nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<18> á¹• 21 nimitte \Se II 494/ caturo disvÄ• , rathayÄ• nena nikkhami.

chamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<19> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, piyadassÄ« mahÄ• muni.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, usabhuyyÄ• ne manorame ||

<20> á¹• 21 pÄ• lito sabbadassÄ« ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sobhito nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, piyadassissa satthuno ||

<21> á¹• 21 sujÄ• tÄ• dhammadinnÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, kakudhoti pavuccati ||

<22> á¹• 21 sandhako dhammako ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

visÄ• khÄ• dhammadinnÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 sopi \Be II 353/ \Ne II 338/ buddho amitayaso, dvattiá¹ƒ savaralakkhaá¹‡o.

asÄ«tihatthamubbedho, sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va dissati ||

<24> á¹• 21 aggicandasÅ«riyÄ• naá¹ƒ, natthi tÄ• disikÄ• pabhÄ• .

yathÄ• ahu pabhÄ• tassa, asamassa mahesino ||

<25> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi devadevassa, Ä• yu tÄ• vatakaá¹ƒ ahu.

navutivassasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 sopi buddho asamasamo, yugÄ• nipi tÄ• ni atuliyÄ• ni.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 piyadassÄ« munivaro, assatthÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa jinathÅ«po, tÄ«á¹‡iyojanamuggatoti ||

piyadassissa bhagavato vaá¹ƒ so terasamo.

16. atthadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒ so

<1> á¹• 21 tattheva \Se II 495/ \Ee 43/ maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, atthadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

mahÄ• tamaá¹ƒ nihantvÄ• na, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<2> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi.

amatena tappayÄ« lokaá¹ƒ, dasasahassisadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi lokanÄ• thassa, ahesuá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• tayo.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho atthadassÄ«, carate devacÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ yadÄ• buddho, desesi pitusantike.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tassÄ• pi ca mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hanavutisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne II 339/, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hasattatisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 354/, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anupÄ• dÄ• vimuttÄ• naá¹ƒ, vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, jaá¹-ilo uggatÄ• pano.

susÄ«mo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, mahiyÄ• seá¹-á¹-hasammato ||

<10> á¹• 21 dibbaá¹ƒ \Se II 496/ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹

devalokÄ• haritvÄ• na, sambuddhamabhipÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, atthadassÄ« mahÄ• muni.

``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<12> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒâ€™â€

<13> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , haá¹-á¹-ho {tuá¹-á¹-ho (Se Ke) } saá¹ƒviggamÄ• n

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<14> á¹• 21 sobhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, sÄ• garo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sudassanÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , atthadassissa satthuno ||

<15> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

amaragiri sugiri vÄ• hanÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 tettiá¹ƒsaÃ±ca \Se II 498/ sahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

visÄ• khÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ« ca, selo nÄ• mÄ• si atrajo ||

<17> á¹• 21 nimitte \Ee 44/ caturo disvÄ• , assayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«naaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<18> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, atthadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, anomuyyÄ• ne narÄ• sabho ||

<19> á¹• 21 santo ca upasanto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

abhayo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, atthadassissa satthuno ||

<20> á¹• 21 dhammÄ• ceva sudhammÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, campakoti pavuccati ||

<21> á¹• 21 nakulo ca nisabho ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

makilÄ• ca sunandÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 sopi \Be II 355/ \Ne II 340/ buddho asamasamo, asÄ«tihatthamuggato.

sobhate sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va, uá¸·urÄ• jÄ• va pÅ«rito ||

<23> á¹• 21 tassa pÄ• katikÄ• raá¹ƒsÄ«, anekasatakoá¹-iyo.

uddhaá¹ƒ adho dasa disÄ• , pharanti yojanaá¹ƒ sadÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 sopi buddho narÄ• sabho, sabbasattuttamo muni.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 atulaá¹ƒ dassetvÄ• obhÄ• saá¹ƒ, virocetvÄ• sadevake {atulaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• (Ce Katthaci) }.

sopi aniccataá¹ƒ patto, yathaggupÄ• dÄ• nasaá¹…khayÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 atthadassÄ« \Se II 499/ jinavaro, anomÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

atthadassissa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso cuddasamo.

17. dhammadassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 tattheva \Ee 45/ maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, dhammadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

tamandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• , atirocati sadevake ||

<2> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, dhammacakkappavattane.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<3> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho dhammadassÄ«, vinesi saÃ±jayaá¹ƒ isiá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 yadÄ• sakko upÄ• gaÃ±chi, sapariso vinÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi devadevassa, sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo ahuá¹ƒ {Ä• suá¹ƒ (Ce Se) }.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho dhammadassÄ«, saraá¹‡e vassaá¹ƒ upÄ• gami.

tadÄ• koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ {koá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ (Ce Se Ke) }, paá¹-hamo Ä• si sam

<7> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ \Ne II 341/ yadÄ• buddho, devato eti mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ.

tadÄ• pi satakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ \Se II 500/ \Be II 356/ yadÄ• buddho, pakÄ• sesi dhute guá¹‡e.

tadÄ• asÄ«tikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sakko Ä• siá¹ƒ purindado.

dibbena gandhamÄ• lena, turiyenÄ• bhipÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, devamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

``aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 501/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<12> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<13> á¹• 21 saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, saraá¹‡o nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sunandÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , dhammadassissa satthuno ||

<14> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-havassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 502/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

arajo virajo sudassano, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 ticattÄ• rÄ«sasahassÄ• ni {cattÄ• lÄ«sasahassÄ• ni (Se Ke) }, nÄ• riyo samala

vicikoá¸·i nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, atrajo puÃ±Ã±avaá¸• á¸• hano ||

<16> á¹• 21 nimitte \Ee 46/ caturo disvÄ• , pÄ• sÄ• denÄ• bhinikkhami.

sattÄ• haá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<17> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, dhammadassÄ« narÄ• sabho.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<18> á¹• 21 padumo phussadevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sunetto {sudatto (Se Ke) } nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, dhammadassissa satthuno ||

<19> á¹• 21 khemÄ• ca saccanÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, bimbijÄ• loti vuccati ||

<20> á¹• 21 subhaddo kaá¹-issaho ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

sÄ• á¸·iyÄ• {sÄ• lisÄ• (Se Ke) } ca kaá¸·iyÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<21> á¹• 21 sopi \Be II 357/ buddho asamasamo, asÄ«tihatthamuggato.

atirocati tejena, dasasahassimhi dhÄ• tuyÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 suphullo \Ne II 342/ sÄ• larÄ• jÄ• va, vijjÅ«va gagane yathÄ• .

majjhanhikeva sÅ«riyo, evaá¹ƒ so upasobhatha ||

<23> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, samakaá¹ƒ Ä• si jÄ«vitaá¹ƒ.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 obhÄ• saá¹ƒ \Se II 503/ dassayitvÄ• na, vimalaá¹ƒ katvÄ• na sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

cavi candova gagane, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<25> á¹• 21 dhammadassÄ« mahÄ• vÄ«ro, sÄ• lÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, tÄ«á¹‡iyojanamuggatoti ||

dhammadassissa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso pannarasamo.

18. siddhatthabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 dhammadassissa \Ee 47/ aparena, siddhattho nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

nihanitvÄ• tamaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, sÅ«riyo abbhuggato yathÄ• ||

<2> á¹• 21 sopi patvÄ• na sambodhiá¹ƒ, santÄ• rento sadevakaá¹ƒ.

abhivassi dhammameghena, nibbÄ• pento sadevakaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, ahesuá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• tayo.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ bhÄ«marathe {himaraá¹-á¹-he (Katthaci) }, yadÄ• Ä• hani dundu

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 yadÄ• buddho dhammaá¹ƒ desesi, vebhÄ• re so puruttame.

tadÄ• navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tasmimpi dvipaduttame.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 koá¹-isatÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 504/ \Be II 358/ navutÄ«naá¹ƒ {navutiyÄ• (Se Ke) }, as koá¹-inaá¹ƒ.

ete Ä• suá¹ƒ tayo á¹-hÄ• nÄ• , vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ samÄ• game ||

<8> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ \Ne II 343/ tena samayena, maá¹…galo nÄ• ma tÄ• paso.

uggatejo duppasaho, abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• balasamÄ• hito ||

<9> á¹• 21 jambuto phalamÄ• netvÄ• {phalamÄ• hatvÄ• (Ce Se) } siddhatthassa adÄ• sa

paá¹-iggahetvÄ• sambuddho, idaá¹ƒ vacanamabravi ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``passatha imaá¹ƒ tÄ• pasaá¹ƒ, jaá¹-ilaá¹ƒ uggatÄ• panaá¹ƒ.

catunnavutito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 505/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• im

<12> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<13> á¹• 21 vebhÄ• raá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, udeno nÄ• ma khattiyo.

suphassÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , siddhatthassa mahesino ||

<14> á¹• 21 dasavassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 506/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

kokÄ• suppalakokanadÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 tisoá¸·asasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

somanassÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, anupamo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<16> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , sivikÄ• yÄ• bhinikkhami.

anÅ«nadasamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<17> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, siddhattho lokanÄ• yako.

vatti \Ee 48/ cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<18> á¹• 21 sambalo ca sumitto ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

revato nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, siddhatthassa mahesino ||

<19> á¹• 21 sÄ«valÄ• ca surÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, kaá¹‡ikÄ• roti vuccati ||

<20> á¹• 21 suppiyo ca samuddo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

rammÄ• ceva surammÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<21> á¹• 21 so \Be II 359/ buddho saá¹-á¹-hiratanaá¹ƒ, ahosi nabhamuggato.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dasasahassÄ« virocati ||

<22> á¹• 21 sopi buddho asamasamo, atulo appaá¹-ipuggalo.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 vipulaá¹ƒ \Ne II 344/ pabhaá¹ƒ dassayitvÄ• , pupphÄ• petvÄ• na sÄ• vake.

vilÄ• setvÄ• samÄ• patyÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<24> á¹• 21 siddhattho \Se II 507/ munivaro buddho, anomÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, catuyojanamuggatoti ||

siddhatthassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso soá¸·asamo.

19. tissabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 siddhatthassa aparena, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo.

anantatejo amitayaso, tisso lokagganÄ• yako ||

<2> á¹• 21 tamandhakÄ• raá¹ƒ vidhamitvÄ• , obhÄ• setvÄ• sadevakaá¹ƒ.

anukampako mahÄ• vÄ«ro, loke uppajji cakkhumÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi atulÄ• iddhi, atulaá¹ƒ sÄ«laá¹ƒ samÄ• dhi ca.

sabbattha pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayi ||

<4> á¹• 21 so buddho dasasahassimhi, viÃ±Ã±Ä• pesi giraá¹ƒ suciá¹ƒ.

koá¹-isatÄ• ni abhisamiá¹ƒsu, paá¹-hame dhammadesane ||

<5> á¹• 21 dutiyo navutikoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, tatiyo saá¹-á¹-hikoá¹-iyo.

bandhanÄ• to pamocesi, satte {sampatte (Katthaci) } naramarÅ« tadÄ• ||

<6> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, tisse lokagganÄ• yake.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

navutisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 asÄ«tisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 508/ \Be II 360/ \Ee 49/, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gar

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, pupphitÄ• naá¹ƒ vimuttiyÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sujÄ• to nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mahÄ• bhogaá¹ƒ chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• , pabbajiá¹ƒ isipabbajaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 mayi \Ne II 345/ pabbajite sante, uppajji lokanÄ• yako.

buddhoti saddaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na, pÄ«ti me upapajjatha ||

<11> á¹• 21 dibbaá¹ƒ mandÄ• ravaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, padumaá¹ƒ pÄ• richattakaá¹ƒ.

ubho hatthehi paggayha, dhunamÄ• no upÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 catuvaá¹‡á¹‡aparivutaá¹ƒ, tissaá¹ƒ lokagganÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

tamahaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ gahetvÄ• , matthake dhÄ• rayiá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, janamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

``dvenavute ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 509/ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<15> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 khemakaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, janasandho nÄ• ma khattiyo.

padumÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , tissassa ca mahesino ||

<17> á¹• 21 sattavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

guhÄ• sela nÄ• risaya nisabhÄ• {kumudo nÄ• á¸·iyo padumo (Katthaci) }, tayo pÄ• sÄ• dan

<18> á¹• 21 samatiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

subhaddÄ• nÄ• mikÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, Ä• nando nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<19> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , assayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«naaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<20> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, tisso lokagganÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, yasavatiyamuttame ||

<21> á¹• 21 brahmadevo udayo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

samaá¹…go nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, tissassa ca mahesino ||

<22> á¹• 21 phussÄ• \Be II 361/ ceva sudattÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, asanoti pavuccati ||

<23> á¹• 21 sambalo ca sirimÄ• ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

kisÄ• gotamÄ« upasenÄ• , ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 so \Se II 511/ buddho saá¹-á¹-hiratano, ahu uccattane jino.

anÅ«pamo asadiso, himavÄ• viya dissati ||

<25> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi atulatejassa, Ä• yu Ä• si anuttaro.

vassasatasahassÄ• ni, loke aá¹-á¹-hÄ• si cakkhumÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 uttamaá¹ƒ \Ne II 346/ pavaraá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, anubhotvÄ• mahÄ• yasaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<27> á¹• 21 valÄ• hakova \Ee 50/ anilena, sÅ«riyena viya ussavo.

andhakÄ• rova padÄ«pena, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<28> á¹• 21 tisso jinavaro buddho, nandÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa jinathÅ«po, tÄ«á¹‡iyojanamuggatoti ||

tissassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso sattarasamo.

20. phussabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 tattheva maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, ahu satthÄ• anuttaro.

anupamo asamasamo, phusso lokagganÄ• yako ||

<2> á¹• 21 sopi sabbaá¹ƒ tamaá¹ƒ hantvÄ• , vijaá¹-etvÄ• mahÄ• jaá¹-aá¹ƒ.

sadevakaá¹ƒ tappayanto, abhivassi amatambunÄ• ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, phusse nakkhattamaá¹…gale.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 navutisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 512/, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu.

asÄ«tisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, phussassÄ• pi mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<6> á¹• 21 saá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 362/, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

paÃ±Ã±Ä• sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<7> á¹• 21 cattÄ• rÄ«sasatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anupÄ• dÄ• vimuttÄ• naá¹ƒ, vocchinnapaá¹-isandhinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, vijitÄ• vÄ« nÄ• ma khattiyo.

chaá¸• á¸• ayitvÄ• mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<9> á¹• 21 sopi \Ne II 347/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, phusso lokagganÄ• yako.

``dvenavute ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<10> á¹• 21 ``padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na ... pe ... \Se II 513/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<11> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<12> á¹• 21 suttantaá¹ƒ \Se II 514/ vinayaÃ±cÄ• pi, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ satthusÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• , sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 tatthappamatto \Ee 51/ viharanto, brahmaá¹ƒ bhÄ• vetva bhÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• su pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , brahmalokamagaÃ±chahaá¹ƒ ||

<14> á¹• 21 kÄ• sikaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, jayaseno nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sirimÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , phussassÄ• pi mahesino ||

<15> á¹• 21 navavassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

garuá¸·apakkha haá¹ƒsa suvaá¹‡á¹‡abhÄ• rÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 tiá¹ƒsaitthisahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

kisÄ• gotamÄ« nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, anÅ«pamo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<17> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

chamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<18> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, phusso lokagganÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<19> á¹• 21 surakkhito dhammaseno, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sabhiyo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, phussassÄ• pi mahesino ||

<20> á¹• 21 cÄ• lÄ• \Be II 363/ ca upacÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, Ä• maá¹‡á¸• oti pavuccati ||

<21> á¹• 21 dhanaÃ±cayo visÄ• kho ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

padumÄ• ceva nÄ• gÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<22> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hapaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• saratanaá¹ƒ \Se II 515/, sopi accuggato muni.

sobhate sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va, uá¸urÄ• jÄ• va pÅ«rito ||

<23> á¹• 21 navutivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu vijjati tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 ovaditvÄ• \Ne II 348/ bahÅ« satte, santÄ• retvÄ• bahÅ« jane.

sopi satthÄ• atulayaso, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<25> á¹• 21 phusso jinavaro satthÄ• , senÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

phussassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasamo.

21. vipassÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 phussassa \Ee 52/ ca aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

vipassÄ« nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, loke uppajji cakkhumÄ• ||

<2> á¹• 21 avijjaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ padÄ• letvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattetuá¹ƒ, pakkÄ• mi bandhumatÄ«puraá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattetvÄ• , ubho bodhesi nÄ• yako.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 punÄ• paraá¹ƒ amitayaso, tattha saccaá¹ƒ pakÄ• sayi.

caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 caturÄ• sÄ«tisahassÄ• ni \Se II 516/, sambuddhaá¹ƒ anupabbajuá¹ƒ.

tesamÄ• rÄ• mapattÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammaá¹ƒ desesi cakkhumÄ• ||

<6> á¹• 21 sabbÄ• kÄ• rena \Be II 364/ bhÄ• sato, sutvÄ• upanisÄ• dino {upanissÄ• jino (

tepi dhammavaraá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, vipassissa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hasaá¹-á¹-hisatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

bhikkhusatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 asÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

tattha bhikkhugaá¹‡amajjhe, sambuddho atirocati ||

<10> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ \Ne II 349/ tena samayena, nÄ• garÄ• jÄ• mahiddhiko.

atulo nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, puÃ±Ã±avanto jutindharo ||

<11> á¹• 21 nekÄ• naá¹ƒ nÄ• gakoá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, parivÄ• retvÄ• nahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

vajjanto dibbaturiyehi, lokajeá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ upÄ• gamiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 upasaá¹…kamitvÄ• sambuddhaá¹ƒ, vipassiá¹ƒ lokanÄ• yakaá¹ƒ.

maá¹‡imuttaratanakhacitaá¹ƒ, sabbÄ• bharaá¹‡avibhÅ«sitaá¹ƒ.

nimantetvÄ• dhammarÄ• jassa, suvaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ«á¹-hamadÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<13> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

``ekanavutito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ``ahu \Se II 517/ kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 ``ajapÄ• larukkhamÅ«lasmiá¹ƒ \Ee 53/, nisÄ«ditvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

tattha pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paggayha, neraÃ±jaramupehiti ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``neraÃ±jarÄ• ya tÄ«ramhi, pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ ada so jino.

paá¹-iyattavaramaggena, bodhimÅ«lamupehiti ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``tato padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ anuttaro.

assatthamÅ«le sambodhiá¹ƒ, bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``imassa janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``anÄ• savÄ• \Be II 365/ vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

kolito upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissatimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``citto ca hatthÄ• á¸·avako, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nandamÄ• tÄ• ca uttarÄ• , aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• .

Ä• yu vassasataá¹ƒ tassa, gotamassa yasassino ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``idaá¹ƒ \Se II 518/ \Ne II 350/ sutvÄ• na vacanaá¹ƒ ... pe ... hessÄ• ma samm

<23> á¹• 21 tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<24> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ bandhumatÄ« nÄ• ma, bandhumÄ• nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• bandhumatÄ« nÄ• ma, vipassissa mahesino ||

<25> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-havassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

nando sunando sirimÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 ticattÄ• rÄ«sasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sudassanÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, samavattakkhandho nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<27> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , rathayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«naaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<28> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Se II 519/ yÄ• cito santo, vipassÄ« lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<29> á¹• 21 khaá¹‡á¸• o ca tissanÄ• mo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

asoko nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, vipassissa mahesino ||

<30> á¹• 21 candÄ• ca candamittÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, pÄ• á¹-alÄ«ti pavuccati ||

<31> á¹• 21 punabbasumitto nÄ• go ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

sirimÄ• uttarÄ• ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<32> á¹• 21 asÄ«tihatthamubbedho \Be II 366/, vipassÄ« lokanÄ• yako.

pabhÄ• niddhÄ• vati tassa, samantÄ• sattayojane ||

<33> á¹• 21 asÄ«tivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu buddhassa tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<34> á¹• 21 bahudevamanussÄ• naá¹ƒ, bandhanÄ• parimocayi.

maggÄ• maggaÃ±ca Ä• cikkhi, avasesaputhujjane ||

<35> á¹• 21 Ä• lokaá¹ƒ \Ee 54/ dassayitvÄ• na, desetvÄ• amataá¹ƒ padaá¹ƒ.

jalitvÄ• aggikkhandhova, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<36> á¹• 21 iddhivaraá¹ƒ puÃ±Ã±avaraá¹ƒ, lakkhaá¹‡aÃ±ca kusumitaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<37> á¹• 21 vipassÄ« \Ne II 351/ jinavaro buddho, sumittÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, sattayojanamussitoti ||

vipassissa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso ekÅ«navÄ«satimo.

22. sikhÄ«buddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 vipassissa \Se II 520/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

sikhivhayo Ä• si jino, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo ||

<2> á¹• 21 mÄ• rasenaá¹ƒ pamadditvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattesi, anukampÄ• ya pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, sikhimhi jinapuá¹…gave {munipuá¹…gave (Ce) }.

koá¹-isatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 aparampi dhammaá¹ƒ desente, gaá¹‡aseá¹-á¹-he naruttame.

navutikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 yamakapÄ• á¹-ihÄ• riyaÃ±ca {yamakaá¹ƒ pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raÃ±ca (Ce) }, dassayante

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• \Be II 367/ tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, sikhissÄ• pi mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 bhikkhusatasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

asÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<8> á¹• 21 sattatibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

anupalitto padumaá¹ƒva, toyamhi sampavaá¸• á¸• hitaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, arindamo nÄ• ma khattiyo.

sambuddhappamukhaá¹ƒ saá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, annapÄ• nena tappayiá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 bahuá¹ƒ \Se II 521/ dussavaraá¹ƒ datvÄ• , dussakoá¹-iá¹ƒ anappakaá¹ƒ.

alaá¹…kataá¹ƒ hatthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ, sambuddhassa adÄ• sahaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 hatthiyÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne II 352/ nimminitvÄ• , kappiyaá¹ƒ upanÄ• mayiá¹ƒ.

pÅ«rayiá¹ƒ mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ, niccaá¹ƒ daá¸·hamupaá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 sopi \Ee 55/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, sikhÄ« lokagganÄ• yako.

``ekatiá¹ƒse ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... \Se II 522/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<14> á¹• 21 tassÄ• haá¹ƒ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ aruá¹‡avatÄ« nÄ• ma, aruá¹‡o nÄ• ma khattiyo.

pabhÄ• vatÄ« nÄ• ma janikÄ• , sikhissÄ• pi mahesino ||

<16> á¹• 21 sattavassasahassÄ• ni \Se II 523/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

sucandako giri vasabho {sucando girivahano (Ce) }, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<17> á¹• 21 catuvÄ«sasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sabbakÄ• mÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, atulo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<18> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

aá¹-á¹-hamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<19> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Be II 368/ yÄ• cito santo, sikhÄ« lokagganÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<20> á¹• 21 abhibhÅ« sambhavo ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

khemaá¹…karo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, sikhissÄ• pi mahesino ||

<21> á¹• 21 sakhilÄ• ca padumÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, puá¹‡á¸• arÄ«koti vuccati ||

<22> á¹• 21 sirivaá¸• á¸• ho ca nando ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

cittÄ• ceva suguttÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 uccattanena so buddho, sattatihatthamuggato.

kaÃ±canagghiyasaá¹…kÄ• so, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡o ||

<24> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi byÄ• mappabhÄ• kÄ• yÄ• , divÄ• rattiá¹ƒ nirantaraá¹ƒ.

disodisaá¹ƒ niccharanti, tÄ«á¹‡iyojanaso pabhÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 sattativassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 dhammameghaá¹ƒ \Se II 524/ \Ne II 353/ pavassetvÄ• , temayitvÄ• sadevake

khemantaá¹ƒ pÄ• payitvÄ• na, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<27> á¹• 21 anubyaÃ±janasampannaá¹ƒ, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<28> á¹• 21 sikhÄ« munivaro buddho, assÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, tÄ«á¹‡iyojanamuggatoti ||

sikhissa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso vÄ«satimo.

23. vessabhÅ«buddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 tattheva \Ee 56/ maá¹‡á¸• akappamhi, asamo appaá¹-ipuggalo.

vessabhÅ« nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, loke uppajji nÄ• yako {so jino (Se Ke Katthaci) } ||

<2> á¹• 21 Ä• dittaá¹ƒ \Be II 369/ vata rÄ• gaggi, taá¹‡hÄ• naá¹ƒ vijitaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

nÄ• gova bandhanaá¹ƒ chetvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, vessabhÅ«lokanÄ• yake.

asÄ«tikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 pakkante cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ raá¹-á¹-he, lokajeá¹-á¹-he narÄ• sabhe.

sattatikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 mahÄ• diá¹-á¹-hiá¹ƒ vinodento, pÄ• á¹-iheraá¹ƒ karoti so.

samÄ• gatÄ• naramarÅ«, dasasahassÄ« sadevake ||

<6> á¹• 21 mahÄ• acchariyaá¹ƒ \Se II 525/ disvÄ• , abbhutaá¹ƒ lomahaá¹ƒsanaá¹ƒ.

devÄ• ceva manussÄ• ca, bujjhare saá¹-á¹-hikoá¹-iyo ||

<7> á¹• 21 sannipÄ• tÄ• tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ, vessabhussa mahesino.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 asÄ«tibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

sattatibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo ||

<9> á¹• 21 saá¹-á¹-hibhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Ne II 354/, tatiyo Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

jarÄ• dibhayabhÄ«tÄ• naá¹ƒ, orasÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesino ||

<10> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, sudassano nÄ• ma khattiyo.

nimantetvÄ• mahÄ• vÄ«raá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• mahÄ• rahaá¹ƒ.

annapÄ• nena vatthena, sasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ jina pÅ«jayiá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 tassa buddhassa asamassa, cakkaá¹ƒ vattitamuttamaá¹ƒ.

sutvÄ• na paá¹‡itaá¹ƒ dhammaá¹ƒ, pabbajjamabhirocayiá¹ƒ ||

<12> á¹• 21 mahÄ• dÄ• naá¹ƒ pavattetvÄ• , rattindivamatandito.

pabbajjaá¹ƒ guá¹‡asampannaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ jinasantike ||

<13> á¹• 21 Ä• cÄ• raguá¹‡asampanno, vattasÄ«lasamÄ• hito.

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ gavesanto, ramÄ• mi jinasÄ• sane ||

<14> á¹• 21 saddhÄ• pÄ«tiá¹ƒ upagantvÄ• , buddhaá¹ƒ vandÄ• mi sattharaá¹ƒ.

pÄ«ti uppajjati mayhaá¹ƒ, bodhiyÄ• yeva kÄ• raá¹‡Ä• ||

<15> á¹• 21 anivattamÄ• nasaá¹ƒ \Be II 370/ Ã±atvÄ• , sambuddho etadabravi.

``ekatiá¹ƒse ito kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<16> á¹• 21 ``ahu \Se II 526/ kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<17> á¹• 21 tassÄ• haá¹ƒ \Ee 57/ vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 anomaá¹ƒ nÄ• ma nagaraá¹ƒ, suppatÄ«to nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mÄ• tÄ• yasavatÄ« nÄ• ma, vessabhussa mahesino ||

<19> á¹• 21 cha ca vassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

ruci suruci rativaá¸• á¸• hano, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 anÅ«natiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sucittÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, suppabuddho nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<21> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , sivikÄ• yÄ• bhinikkhami.

chamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<22> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Se II 528/ yÄ• cito santo, vessabhÅ«lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, aruá¹‡Ä• rÄ• me naruttamo ||

<23> á¹• 21 soá¹‡o \Ne II 355/ ca uttaro ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

upasanto nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, vessabhussa mahesino ||

<24> á¹• 21 rÄ• mÄ• {dÄ• mÄ• (Ce) } ceva samÄ• lÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, mahÄ• sÄ• loti vuccati ||

<25> á¹• 21 sotthiko ceva rambho ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

gotamÄ« sirimÄ• ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<26> á¹• 21 saá¹-á¹-hiratanamubbedho, hemayÅ«pasamÅ«pamo.

kÄ• yÄ• niccharati rasmi, rattiá¹ƒva pabbate sikhÄ« ||

<27> á¹• 21 saá¹-á¹-hivassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 dhammaá¹ƒ \Be II 371/ vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , vibhajitvÄ• mahÄ• janaá¹ƒ.

dhammanÄ• vaá¹ƒ á¹-hapetvÄ• na, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<29> á¹• 21 dassaneyyaá¹ƒ sabbajanaá¹ƒ, vihÄ• raá¹ƒ iriyÄ• pathaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<30> á¹• 21 vessabhÅ« jinavaro satthÄ• , khemÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

vessabhussa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso ekavÄ«satimo.

24. kakusandhabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 vessabhussa \Se II 529/ \Ee 58/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

kakusandho nÄ• ma nÄ• mena, appameyyo durÄ• sado ||

<2> á¹• 21 ugghÄ• á¹-etvÄ• sabbabhavaá¹ƒ, cariyÄ• ya pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato.

sÄ«hova paÃ±jaraá¹ƒ bhetvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattente, kakusandhe lokanÄ• yake.

cattÄ• rÄ«sakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 antalikkhamhi \Ne II 356/ Ä• kÄ• se, yamakaá¹ƒ katvÄ• vikubbanaá¹ƒ.

tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, bodhesi devamÄ• nuse ||

<5> á¹• 21 naradevassa yakkhassa, catusaccappakÄ• sane.

dhammÄ• bhisamayo tassa, gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyo ||

<6> á¹• 21 kakusandhassa bhagavato, eko Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<7> á¹• 21 cattÄ• lÄ«sasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

dantabhÅ«mimanuppattÄ• naá¹ƒ, Ä• savÄ• rigaá¹‡akkhayÄ• ||

<8> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, khemo nÄ• mÄ• si khattiyo.

tathÄ• gate jinaputte, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• anappakaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 pattaÃ±ca cÄ«varaá¹ƒ datvÄ• , aÃ±janaá¹ƒ madhulaá¹-á¹-hikaá¹ƒ.

imetaá¹ƒ patthitaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, paá¹-iyÄ• demi varaá¹ƒ varaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 sopi \Se II 530/ \Be II 372/ maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, kakusandho vinÄ• yako

``imamhi bhaddake kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<11> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... \Se II 531/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<12> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<13> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ khemÄ• vatÄ« nÄ• ma, khemo nÄ• mÄ• sahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• .

sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ gavesanto, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<14> á¹• 21 brÄ• hmaá¹‡o aggidatto ca, Ä• si buddhassa so pitÄ• .

visÄ• khÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , kakusandhassa satthuno ||

<15> á¹• 21 vasate tattha kheme pure, sambuddhassa mahÄ• kulaá¹ƒ.

narÄ• naá¹ƒ pavaraá¹ƒ seá¹-á¹-haá¹ƒ, jÄ• timantaá¹ƒ mahÄ• yasaá¹ƒ ||

<16> á¹• 21 catuvassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

kÄ• ma \Se II 532/ -kÄ• mavaá¹‡á¹‡a-kÄ• masuddhinÄ• mÄ• {suci suruci rativaddhananÄ•
pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<17> á¹• 21 samatiá¹ƒsasahassÄ• ni \Ee 59/, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

rocinÄ« nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, uttaro nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<18> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , rathayÄ• nena nikkhami.

anÅ«naaá¹-á¹-hamÄ• sÄ• ni, padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahÄ« jino ||

<19> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Ne II 357/ yÄ• cito santo, kakusandho vinÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<20> á¹• 21 vidhuro ca saÃ±jÄ«vo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

buddhijo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, kakusandhassa satthuno ||

<21> á¹• 21 sÄ• mÄ• ca campÄ• nÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, sirÄ«soti pavuccati ||

<22> á¹• 21 accuto ca sumano ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nandÄ• ceva sunandÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 cattÄ• lÄ«saratanÄ• ni \Be II 373/, accuggato mahÄ• muni.

kanakappabhÄ• niccharati, samantÄ• dasayojanaá¹ƒ ||

<24> á¹• 21 cattÄ• lÄ«savassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<25> á¹• 21 dhammÄ• paá¹‡aá¹ƒ pasÄ• retvÄ• , naranÄ• rÄ«naá¹ƒ sadevake.

naditvÄ• \Se II 533/ sÄ«hanÄ• daá¹ƒva, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<26> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-haá¹…gavacanasampanno, acchiddÄ• ni nirantaraá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 kakusandho jinavaro, khemÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa thÅ«pavaro, gÄ• vutaá¹ƒ nabhamuggatoti || kakusandhassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso dvÄ• vÄ«satimo.

25. koá¹‡Ä• gamanabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 kakusandhassa \Ee 60/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

koá¹‡Ä• gamano nÄ• ma jino, lokajeá¹-á¹-ho narÄ• sabho ||

<2> á¹• 21 dasadhamme pÅ«rayitvÄ• na, kantÄ• raá¹ƒ samatikkami.

pavÄ• hiya malaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ \Ne II 358/ pavattente, koá¹‡Ä• gamananÄ• yake.

tiá¹ƒsakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 pÄ• á¹-ihÄ«raá¹ƒ karonte ca, paravÄ• dappamaddane.

vÄ«satikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 tato vikubbanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , jino devapuraá¹ƒ gato.

vasate tattha sambuddho, silÄ• ya paá¹‡á¸• ukambale ||

<6> á¹• 21 pakaraá¹‡e satta desento, vassaá¹ƒ vasati so muni.

dasakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<7> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi \Se II 534/ devadevassa, eko Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 tiá¹ƒsabhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ \Be II 374/, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

oghÄ• namatikkantÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhijjitÄ• naÃ±ca maccuyÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tena samayena, pabbato nÄ• ma khattiyo.

mittÄ• maccehi sampanno, anantabalavÄ• hano ||

<10> á¹• 21 sambuddhadassanaá¹ƒ gantvÄ• , sutvÄ• dhammamanuttaraá¹ƒ.

nimantetvÄ• sajinasaá¹…ghaá¹ƒ, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• yadicchakaá¹ƒ ||

<11> á¹• 21 paá¹-á¹-uá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ cÄ«napaá¹-á¹-aÃ±ca, koseyyaá¹ƒ kambalampi ca.

sovaá¹‡á¹‡apÄ• dukaÃ±ceva, adÄ• siá¹ƒ satthusÄ• vake ||

<12> á¹• 21 sopi maá¹ƒ buddho byÄ• kÄ• si, saá¹…ghamajjhe nisÄ«diya.

``imamhi bhaddake kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<13> á¹• 21 ``ahu kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• ... pe ... \Se II 535/ hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• ima

<14> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 sabbaÃ±Ã±utaá¹ƒ gavesanto, dÄ• naá¹ƒ datvÄ• naruttame.

ohÄ• yÄ• haá¹ƒ mahÄ• rajjaá¹ƒ, pabbajiá¹ƒ jinasantike {tassa santike (Ce) } ||

<16> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ sobhavatÄ« nÄ• ma, sobho nÄ• mÄ• si khattiyo.

vasate tattha nagare, sambuddhassa mahÄ• kulaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 brÄ• hmaá¹‡o \Ee 61/ yaÃ±Ã±adatto ca, Ä• si buddhassa so pitÄ• .

uttarÄ• nÄ• ma janikÄ• , koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa satthuno ||

<18> á¹• 21 tÄ«á¹‡i \Ne II 359/ vassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

tusitasantusitasantuá¹-á¹-hÄ• , tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 anÅ«nasoá¸·asasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

rucigattÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, satthavÄ• ho nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<20> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , hatthiyÄ• nena nikkhami.

chamÄ• saá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<21> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Be II 375/ yÄ• cito santo, koá¹‡Ä• gamananÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<22> á¹• 21 bhiyyaso uttaro nÄ• ma, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sotthijo nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa satthuno ||

<23> á¹• 21 samuddÄ• \Se II 537/ uttarÄ• ceva, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, udumbaroti pavuccati ||

<24> á¹• 21 uggo ca somadevo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

sÄ«valÄ• ceva sÄ• mÄ• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<25> á¹• 21 uccattanena so buddho, tiá¹ƒsahatthasamuggato.

ukkÄ• mukhe yathÄ• kambu, evaá¹ƒ raá¹ƒsÄ«hi maá¹‡á¸• ito ||

<26> á¹• 21 tiá¹ƒsavassasahassÄ• ni, Ä• yu buddhassa tÄ• vade.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<27> á¹• 21 dhammacetiá¹ƒ samussetvÄ• , dhammadussavibhÅ«sitaá¹ƒ.

dhammapupphaguá¸·aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<28> á¹• 21 mahÄ• vilÄ• so tassa jano, siridhammappakÄ• sano.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<29> á¹• 21 koá¹‡Ä• gamano sambuddho, pabbatÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesatoti ||

koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso tevÄ«satimo.

26. kassapabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 koá¹‡Ä• gamanassa \Ne II 360/ \Ee 62/ aparena, sambuddho dvipaduttamo.

kassapo nÄ• ma gottena, dhammarÄ• jÄ• pabhaá¹…karo ||

<2> á¹• 21 saÃ±chaá¸• á¸• itaá¹ƒ \Se II 538/ kulamÅ«laá¹ƒ, bahvannapÄ• nabhojanaá¹ƒ.

datvÄ• na yÄ• cake dÄ• naá¹ƒ, pÅ«rayitvÄ• na mÄ• nasaá¹ƒ.

usabhova Ä• á¸·akaá¹ƒ bhetvÄ• , patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dhammacakkaá¹ƒ \Be II 376/ pavattente, kassape lokanÄ• yake.

vÄ«sakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 catumÄ• saá¹ƒ yadÄ• buddho, loke carati cÄ• rikaá¹ƒ.

dasakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 yamakaá¹ƒ vikubbanaá¹ƒ katvÄ• , Ã±Ä• á¹‡adhÄ• tuá¹ƒ pakittayi.

paÃ±cakoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<6> á¹• 21 sudhammÄ• devapure ramme, tattha dhammaá¹ƒ pakittayi.

tÄ«á¹‡ikoá¹-isahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, devÄ• naá¹ƒ bodhayÄ« jino ||

<7> á¹• 21 naradevassa yakkhassa, apare dhammadesane.

etesÄ• naá¹ƒ abhisamayÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• ||

<8> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi devadevassa, eko Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

khÄ«á¹‡Ä• savÄ• naá¹ƒ vimalÄ• naá¹ƒ, santacittÄ• na tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 vÄ«sabhikkhusahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, tadÄ• Ä• si samÄ• gamo.

atikkantabhavantÄ• naá¹ƒ, hirisÄ«lena tÄ• dinaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ tadÄ• mÄ• á¹‡avako, jotipÄ• loti vissuto.

ajjhÄ• yako mantadharo, tiá¹‡á¹‡aá¹ƒ vedÄ• na pÄ• ragÅ« ||

<11> á¹• 21 lakkhaá¹‡e \Se II 539/ itihÄ• se ca, sadhamme pÄ• ramiá¹ƒ gato.

bhÅ«mantalikkhakusalo, katavijjo anÄ• vayo ||

<12> á¹• 21 kassapassa bhagavato, ghaá¹-ikÄ• ro nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko.

sagÄ• ravo sappatisso, nibbuto tatiye phale ||

<13> á¹• 21 Ä• dÄ• ya \Ne II 361/ maá¹ƒ ghaá¹-Ä«kÄ• ro, upagaÃ±chi kassapaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ.

tassa dhammaá¹ƒ suá¹‡itvÄ• na, pabbajiá¹ƒ tassa santike ||

<14> á¹• 21 Ä• raddhavÄ«riyo hutvÄ• , vattÄ• vattesu kovido.

na kvaci parihÄ• yÄ• mi, pÅ«resiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<15> á¹• 21 yÄ• vatÄ• buddhabhaá¹‡itaá¹ƒ, navaá¹…gaá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

sabbaá¹ƒ pariyÄ• puá¹‡itvÄ• na, sobhayiá¹ƒ jinasÄ• sanaá¹ƒ ||

<16> á¹• 21 mama acchariyaá¹ƒ disvÄ• , sopi buddho viyÄ• kari.

``imamhi bhaddake kappe, ayaá¹ƒ buddho bhavissati ||

<17> á¹• 21 ``ahu \Be II 377/ \Ee 63/ kapilavhayÄ• rammÄ• , nikkhamitvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, katvÄ• dukkarakÄ• rikaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 ``ajapÄ• larukkhamÅ«le, nisÄ«ditvÄ• tathÄ• gato.

tattha pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paggayha, neraÃ±jaramupehiti ||

<19> á¹• 21 ``neraÃ±jarÄ• ya tÄ«ramhi, pÄ• yÄ• saá¹ƒ paribhuÃ±jiya.

paá¹-iyattavaramaggena, bodhimÅ«lamupehiti ||

<20> á¹• 21 ``tato padakkhiá¹‡aá¹ƒ katvÄ• , bodhimaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ anuttaro.

aparÄ• jitaá¹-á¹-hÄ• namhi {aparÄ• jitanisabhaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ne (Katthaci) }, bodhipallaá¹…kamu pallaá¹…kena nisÄ«ditvÄ• , bujjhissati mahÄ• yaso ||

<21> á¹• 21 ``imassa \Se II 540/ janikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• nÄ• ma bhavissati.

pitÄ• suddhodano nÄ• ma, ayaá¹ƒ hessati gotamo ||

<22> á¹• 21 ``anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

kolito upatisso ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, upaá¹-á¹-hissatimaá¹ƒ jinaá¹ƒ ||

<23> á¹• 21 ``khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, aggÄ• hessanti sÄ• vikÄ• .

anÄ• savÄ• santacittÄ• , vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, assatthoti pavuccati ||

<24> á¹• 21 ``citto hatthÄ• á¸·avako ca, aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

nandamÄ• tÄ• ca uttarÄ• , aggÄ• hessantupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• â€™â€™ ||

<25> á¹• 21 idaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• na vacanaá¹ƒ, assamassa mahesino.

Ä• moditÄ• naramarÅ«, buddhabÄ«jaá¹ƒ kira ayaá¹ƒ ||

<26> á¹• 21 ukkuá¹-á¹-hisaddÄ• \Ne II 362/ pavattanti, apphoá¹-enti hasanti ca.

kataÃ±jalÄ« namassanti, dasasahassÄ« sadevakÄ• ||

<27> á¹• 21 ``yadimassa lokanÄ• thassa, virajjhissÄ• ma sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ.

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒ ||

<28> á¹• 21 ``yathÄ• manussÄ• nadiá¹ƒ tarantÄ• , paá¹-ititthaá¹ƒ virajjhiya.

heá¹-á¹-hÄ• titthe gahetvÄ• na, uttaranti mahÄ• nadiá¹ƒ ||

<29> á¹• 21 ``evameva \Se II 541/ \Be II 378/ mayaá¹ƒ sabbe, yadi muÃ±cÄ• mimaá¹ƒ jinaá

anÄ• gatamhi addhÄ• ne, hessÄ• ma sammukhÄ• imaá¹ƒâ€™â€™ ||

<30> á¹• 21 tassÄ• pi vacanaá¹ƒ sutvÄ• , bhiyyo cittaá¹ƒ pasÄ• dayiá¹ƒ.

uttariá¹ƒ vatamadhiá¹-á¹-hÄ• siá¹ƒ, dasapÄ• ramipÅ«riyÄ• ||

<31> á¹• 21 evamahaá¹ƒ saá¹ƒsaritvÄ• , parivajjento anÄ• caraá¹ƒ.

dukkaraÃ±ca kataá¹ƒ mayhaá¹ƒ, bodhiyÄ• yeva kÄ• raá¹‡Ä• ||

<32> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asÄ« nÄ• ma, kikÄ« nÄ• mÄ• si khattiyo.

vasate tattha nagare, sambuddhassa mahÄ• kulaá¹ƒ ||

<33> á¹• 21 brÄ• hmaá¹‡o brahmadattova, Ä• si buddhassa so pitÄ• .

dhanavatÄ« nÄ• ma janikÄ• , kassapassa mahesino ||

<34> á¹• 21 duve \Ee 64/ vassasahassÄ• ni, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjha so vasi.

haá¹ƒso yaso sirinando, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<35> á¹• 21 tisoá¸·asasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

sunandÄ• nÄ• ma sÄ• nÄ• rÄ«, vijitaseno nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<36> á¹• 21 nimitte caturo disvÄ• , pÄ• sÄ• denÄ• bhinikkhami.

sattÄ• haá¹ƒ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acarÄ« purisuttamo ||

<37> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• yÄ• cito santo, kassapo lokanÄ• yako.

vatti cakkaá¹ƒ mahÄ• vÄ«ro, migadÄ• ye naruttamo ||

<38> á¹• 21 tisso ca bhÄ• radvÄ• jo ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

sabbamitto nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, kassapassa mahesino ||

<39> á¹• 21 anuá¸·Ä• \Se II 542/ uruveá¸·Ä• ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggasÄ• vikÄ• .

bodhi tassa bhagavato, nigrodhoti pavuccati ||

<40> á¹• 21 sumaá¹…galo \Ne II 363/ ghaá¹-ikÄ• ro ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hakÄ• .

vicitasenÄ• bhaddÄ• {bhadrÄ• (Katthaci) } ca, ahesuá¹ƒ aggupaá¹-á¹-hikÄ• ||

<41> á¹• 21 uccattanena so buddho, vÄ«satiratanuggato.

vijjulaá¹-á¹-hÄ«va Ä• kÄ• se, candova gahapÅ«rito ||

<42> á¹• 21 vÄ«sativassasahassÄ• ni \Be II 379/, Ä• yu tassa mahesino.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• no so, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<43> á¹• 21 dhammataá¸·Ä• kaá¹ƒ mÄ• payitvÄ• , sÄ«laá¹ƒ datvÄ• vilepanaá¹ƒ.

dhammadussaá¹ƒ nivÄ• setvÄ• , dhammamÄ• laá¹ƒ vibhajjiya ||

<44> á¹• 21 dhammavimalamÄ• dÄ• saá¹ƒ, á¹-hapayitvÄ• mahÄ• jane.

keci nibbÄ• naá¹ƒ patthentÄ• , passantu me alaá¹…karaá¹ƒ ||

<45> á¹• 21 sÄ«lakaÃ±cukaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, jhÄ• nakavacavammitaá¹ƒ.

dhammacammaá¹ƒ pÄ• rupitvÄ• , datvÄ• sannÄ• hamuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<46> á¹• 21 satiphalakaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, tikhiá¹‡aÃ±Ä• á¹‡akuntimaá¹ƒ.

dhammakhaggavaraá¹ƒ datvÄ• , sÄ«lasaá¹ƒsaggamaddanaá¹ƒ ||

<47> á¹• 21 tevijjÄ• bhÅ«sanaá¹ƒ datvÄ• na, Ä• veá¸·aá¹ƒ caturo phale.

chaá¸·abhiÃ±Ã±Ä• bharaá¹‡aá¹ƒ datvÄ• , dhammapupphapiá¸·andhanaá¹ƒ ||

<48> á¹• 21 saddhammapaá¹‡á¸• aracchattaá¹ƒ, datvÄ• pÄ• panivÄ• raá¹‡aá¹ƒ.

mÄ• payitvÄ• bhayaá¹ƒ pupphaá¹ƒ, nibbuto so sasÄ• vako ||

<49> á¹• 21 eso \Se II 543/ hi sammÄ• sambuddho, appameyyo durÄ• sado.

eso hi dhammaratano, svÄ• kkhÄ• to ehipassiko ||

<50> á¹• 21 eso hi saá¹…gharatano, suppaá¹-ipanno anuttaro.

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahitaá¹ƒ, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ||

<51> á¹• 21 mahÄ• kassapo jino satthÄ• , setabyÄ• rÄ• mamhi nibbuto.

tatthevassa jinathÅ«po, yojanubbedhamuggatoti ||

kassapassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso catuvÄ«satimo.

27. gotamabuddhavaá¹ƒso

<1> á¹• 21 ahametarahi \Ne II 364/ \Ee 65/ sambuddho {buddho (Ce) }, gotamo sakyavaá¸•

padhÄ• naá¹ƒ padahitvÄ• na, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ ||

<2> á¹• 21 brahmunÄ• \Be II 380/ yÄ• cito santo, dhammacakkaá¹ƒ pavattayiá¹ƒ.

aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rasannaá¹ƒ koá¹-Ä«naá¹ƒ, paá¹-hamÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<3> á¹• 21 tato paraÃ±ca desente, naradevasamÄ• game.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, dutiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<4> á¹• 21 idhevÄ• haá¹ƒ etarahi, ovadiá¹ƒ mama atrajaá¹ƒ.

gaá¹‡anÄ• ya na vattabbo, tatiyÄ• bhisamayo ahu ||

<5> á¹• 21 ekosi sannipÄ• to me, sÄ• vakÄ• naá¹ƒ mahesinaá¹ƒ.

aá¸• á¸• hateá¸·asasatÄ• naá¹ƒ, bhikkhÅ«nÄ• si samÄ• gamo ||

<6> á¹• 21 virocamÄ• no vimalo, bhikkhusaá¹…ghassa majjhago.

dadÄ• mi patthitaá¹ƒ sabbaá¹ƒ, maá¹‡Ä«va sabbakÄ• mado ||

<7> á¹• 21 phalamÄ• kaá¹…khamÄ• nÄ• naá¹ƒ \Se II 544/, bhavacchandajahesinaá¹ƒ.

catusaccaá¹ƒ pakÄ• semi, anukampÄ• ya pÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<8> á¹• 21 dasavÄ«sasahassÄ• naá¹ƒ, dhammÄ• bhisamayo ahu.

ekadvinnaá¹ƒ abhisamayo, gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyo ||

<9> á¹• 21 vitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ bÄ• hujaÃ±Ã±aá¹ƒ, iddhaá¹ƒ phÄ«taá¹ƒ suphullitaá¹ƒ.

idha mayhaá¹ƒ sakyamunino, sÄ• sanaá¹ƒ suvisodhitaá¹ƒ ||

<10> á¹• 21 anÄ• savÄ• vÄ«tarÄ• gÄ• , santacittÄ• samÄ• hitÄ• .

bhikkhÅ«nekasatÄ• sabbe, parivÄ• renti maá¹ƒ sadÄ• ||

<11> á¹• 21 idÄ• ni ye etarahi, jahanti mÄ• nusaá¹ƒ bhavaá¹ƒ.

appattamÄ• nasÄ• sekhÄ• , te bhikkhÅ« viÃ±Ã±ugarahitÄ• ||

<12> á¹• 21 ariyaÃ±ca saá¹ƒthomayantÄ• , sadÄ• dhammaratÄ• janÄ• .

bujjhissanti satimanto, saá¹ƒsÄ• rasaritaá¹ƒ gatÄ• ||

<13> á¹• 21 nagaraá¹ƒ kapilavatthu me, rÄ• jÄ• suddhodano pitÄ• .

mayhaá¹ƒ janettikÄ• mÄ• tÄ• , mÄ• yÄ• devÄ«ti vuccati ||

<14> á¹• 21 ekÅ«natiá¹ƒsavassÄ• ni \Ne II 365/, agÄ• raá¹ƒ ajjhahaá¹ƒ vasiá¹ƒ.

rammo surammo subhako, tayo pÄ• sÄ• damuttamÄ• ||

<15> á¹• 21 cattÄ• rÄ«sasahassÄ• ni, nÄ• riyo samalaá¹…katÄ• .

bhaddakaÃ±canÄ• nÄ• ma nÄ• rÄ«, rÄ• hulo nÄ• ma atrajo ||

<16> á¹• 21 nimitte \Be II 381/ caturo disvÄ• , assayÄ• nena nikkhamiá¹ƒ.

chabbassaá¹ƒ \Se II 545/ padhÄ• nacÄ• raá¹ƒ, acariá¹ƒ dukkaraá¹ƒ ahaá¹ƒ ||

<17> á¹• 21 bÄ• rÄ• á¹‡asiyaá¹ƒ \Ee 66/ isipatane, cakkaá¹ƒ pavattitaá¹ƒ mayÄ• .

ahaá¹ƒ gotamasambuddho, saraá¹‡aá¹ƒ sabbapÄ• á¹‡inaá¹ƒ ||

<18> á¹• 21 kolito upatisso ca, dve bhikkhÅ« aggasÄ• vakÄ• .

Ä• nando nÄ• mupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• ko, santikÄ• vacaro mama.

khemÄ• uppalavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, bhikkhunÄ« aggasÄ• vikÄ• ||

<19> á¹• 21 citto hatthÄ• á¸·avako ca, aggupaá¹-á¹-hÄ• kupÄ• sakÄ• .

nandamÄ• tÄ• ca uttarÄ• , aggupaá¹-á¹-hikupÄ• sikÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 ahaá¹ƒ assatthamÅ«lamhi, patto sambodhimuttamaá¹ƒ.

byÄ• mappabhÄ• sadÄ• mayhaá¹ƒ, soá¸·asahatthamuggatÄ• ||

<21> á¹• 21 appaá¹ƒ vassasataá¹ƒ Ä• yu, idÄ• netarahi vijjati.

tÄ• vatÄ• tiá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nohaá¹ƒ, tÄ• remi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<22> á¹• 21 á¹-hapayitvÄ• na dhammukkaá¹ƒ, pacchimaá¹ƒ janabodhanaá¹ƒ.

ahampi nacirasseva, saddhiá¹ƒ sÄ• vakasaá¹…ghato.

idheva parinibbissaá¹ƒ, aggÄ« vÄ• hÄ• rasaá¹…khayÄ• ||

<23> á¹• 21 tÄ• ni ca atulatejÄ• ni, imÄ• ni ca dasabalÄ• ni {yasabalÄ• ni (-a) }.

ayaÃ±ca guá¹‡adhÄ• raá¹‡o deho, dvattiá¹ƒsavaralakkhaá¹‡avicitto ||

<24> á¹• 21 dasa disÄ• pabhÄ• setvÄ• , sataraá¹ƒsÄ«va chappabhÄ• .

sabbaá¹ƒ tamantarahissanti, nanu rittÄ• sabbasaá¹…khÄ• rÄ• ti || gotamassa bhagavato vaá¹ƒso paÃ±cavÄ«satimo.

28. buddhapakiá¹‡á¹‡akakaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ

<1> á¹• 21 aparimeyyito \Se II 546/ \Ne II 366/ kappe, caturo Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• .

taá¹‡haá¹…karo medhaá¹…karo, athopi saraá¹‡aá¹…karo.

dÄ«paá¹…karo ca sambuddho, ekakappamhi te jinÄ• ||

<2> á¹• 21 dÄ«paá¹…karassa \Be II 382/ aparena, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±o nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

ekova ekakappamhi, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<3> á¹• 21 dÄ«paá¹…karassa bhagavato, koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa ca satthuno.

etesaá¹ƒ antarÄ• kappÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• ||

<4> á¹• 21 koá¹‡á¸• aÃ±Ã±assa aparena, maá¹…galo nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

tesampi antarÄ• kappÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• ||

<5> á¹• 21 maá¹…galo ca sumano ca, revato sobhito muni.

tepi buddhÄ• ekakappe, cakkhumanto pabhaá¹…karÄ• ||

<6> á¹• 21 sobhitassa \Ee 67/ aparena, anomadassÄ« mahÄ• yaso.

tesampi antarÄ• kappÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• ||

<7> á¹• 21 anomadassÄ« padumo, nÄ• rado cÄ• pi nÄ• yako.

tepi buddhÄ• ekakappe, tamantakÄ• rakÄ• munÄ« ||

<8> á¹• 21 nÄ• radassa aparena, padumuttaro nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

ekakappamhi uppanno, tÄ• resi janataá¹ƒ bahuá¹ƒ ||

<9> á¹• 21 nÄ• radassa bhagavato, padumuttarassa satthuno.

tesampi antarÄ• kappÄ• , gaá¹‡anÄ• to asaá¹…khiyÄ• ||

<10> á¹• 21 kappasatasahassamhi \Se II 547/, eko Ä• si mahÄ• muni.

padumuttaro lokavidÅ«, Ä• hutÄ«naá¹ƒ paá¹-iggaho ||

<11> á¹• 21 tiá¹ƒsakappasahassamhi, duve Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• {Ä• siá¹ƒsu nÄ• yakÄ• sumedho ca sujÄ• to ca, orato padumuttarÄ• ||

<12> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-hÄ• rase kappasate, tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• {Ä• siá¹ƒsu nÄ• yakÄ•

piyadassÄ« atthadassÄ«, dhammadassÄ« ca nÄ• yakÄ• ||

<13> á¹• 21 orato \Ne II 367/ ca sujÄ• tassa, sambuddhÄ• dvipaduttamÄ• .

ekakappamhi te buddhÄ• , loke appaá¹-ipuggalÄ• ||

<14> á¹• 21 catunnavutito kappe, eko Ä• si mahÄ• muni.

siddhattho so lokavidÅ«, sallakatto anuttaro ||

<15> á¹• 21 dvenavute \Be II 383/ ito kappe, duve Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• .

tisso phusso ca sambuddhÄ• , asamÄ• appaá¹-ipuggalÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 ekanavutito kappe, vipassÄ« nÄ• ma nÄ• yako.

sopi buddho kÄ• ruá¹‡iko, satte mocesi bandhanÄ• ||

<17> á¹• 21 ekatiá¹ƒse ito kappe, duve Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• .

sikhÄ« ca vessabhÅ« ceva, asamÄ• appaá¹-ipuggalÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 imamhi bhaddake kappe, tayo Ä• suá¹ƒ vinÄ• yakÄ• .

kakusandho koá¹‡Ä• gamano, kassapo cÄ• pi nÄ• yako ||

<19> á¹• 21 ahametarahi sambuddho, metteyyo cÄ• pi hessati.

etepime \Se II 548/ paÃ±ca buddhÄ• , dhÄ«rÄ• lokÄ• nukampakÄ• ||

<20> á¹• 21 etesaá¹ƒ dhammarÄ• jÅ«naá¹ƒ, aÃ±Ã±esaá¹ƒnekakoá¹-inaá¹ƒ.

Ä• cikkhitvÄ• na taá¹ƒ maggaá¹ƒ, nibbutÄ• te sasÄ• vakÄ• ti || buddhapakiá¹‡á¹‡akakaá¹‡á¸• aá¹ƒ niá¹-á¹-hitaá¹ƒ.

29. dhÄ• tubhÄ• janÄ«yakathÄ•

<1> á¹• 21 mahÄ• gotamo \Ee 68/ jinavaro, kusinÄ• ramhi nibbuto.

dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ Ä• si, tesu tesu padesato ||

<2> á¹• 21 eko ajÄ• tasattussa, eko vesÄ• liyÄ• pure.

eko kapilavatthusmiá¹ƒ, eko ca allakappake ||

<3> á¹• 21 eko ca rÄ• magÄ• mamhi, eko ca veá¹-hadÄ«pake.

eko pÄ• veyyake malle, eko ca kosinÄ• rake ||

<4> á¹• 21 kumbhassa \Ne II 368/ thÅ«paá¹ƒ kÄ• resi, brÄ• hmaá¹‡o doá¹‡asavhayo.

aá¹…gÄ• rathÅ«paá¹ƒ kÄ• resuá¹ƒ, moriyÄ• tuá¹-á¹-hamÄ• nasÄ• ||

<5> á¹• 21 aá¹-á¹-ha sÄ• rÄ«rikÄ• thÅ«pÄ• , navamo kumbhacetiyo.

aá¹…gÄ• rathÅ«po dasamo, tadÄ• yeva patiá¹-á¹-hito ||

<6> á¹• 21 uá¹‡hÄ«saá¹ƒ catasso dÄ• á¹-hÄ• , akkhakÄ• dve ca dhÄ• tuyo.

asambhinnÄ• imÄ• satta, sesÄ• bhinnÄ• va dhÄ• tuyo ||

<7> á¹• 21 mahantÄ• \Be II 384/ muggamattÄ• ca {muggamÄ• sÄ• va (Katthaci) }, majjhim khuddakÄ• sÄ• sapamattÄ• ca, nÄ• nÄ• vaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca dhÄ• tuyo ||

<8> á¹• 21 mahantÄ• suvaá¹‡á¹‡avaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, muttavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca majjhimÄ• .

khuddakÄ• makulavaá¹‡á¹‡Ä• ca, soá¸·asadoá¹‡amattikÄ• ||

<9> á¹• 21 mahantÄ• paÃ±ca nÄ• á¸·iyo, nÄ• á¸·iyo paÃ±ca majjhimÄ• .

khuddakÄ• cha nÄ• á¸·Ä« ceva, etÄ• sabbÄ• pi dhÄ• tuyo ||

<10> á¹• 21 uá¹‡hÄ«saá¹ƒ sÄ«haá¸·e dÄ«pe, brahmaloke ca vÄ• makaá¹ƒ.

sÄ«haá¸·e dakkhiá¹‡akkhaÃ±ca, sabbÄ• petÄ• patiá¹-á¹-hitÄ• ||

<11> á¹• 21 ekÄ• dÄ• á¹-hÄ• tidasapure, ekÄ• nÄ• gapure ahu.

ekÄ• gandhÄ• ravisaye, ekÄ• kaliá¹…garÄ• jino ||

<12> á¹• 21 cattÄ• lÄ«sasamÄ• \Se II 549/ dantÄ• , kesÄ• lomÄ• ca sabbaso.

devÄ• hariá¹ƒsu ekekaá¹ƒ, cakkavÄ• á¸·aparamparÄ• ||

<13> á¹• 21 vajirÄ• yaá¹ƒ bhagavato, patto daá¹‡á¸• aÃ±ca cÄ«varaá¹ƒ.

nivÄ• sanaá¹ƒ kulaghare, paccattharaá¹‡aá¹ƒ kapilavhaye {silavhaye (Se) } ||

<14> á¹• 21 pÄ• á¹-aliputtapuramhi, karaá¹‡aá¹ƒ kÄ• yabandhanaá¹ƒ.

campÄ• yudakasÄ• á¹-iyaá¹ƒ, uá¹‡á¹‡alomaÃ±ca kosale ||

<15> á¹• 21 kÄ• sÄ• vaá¹ƒ brahmaloke ca, veá¹-hanaá¹ƒ tidase pure.

nisÄ«danaá¹ƒ avantÄ«su, raá¹-á¹-he {devaraá¹-á¹-he (Se) } attharaá¹‡aá¹ƒ tadÄ• ||

<16> á¹• 21 araá¹‡Ä« ca mithilÄ• yaá¹ƒ, videhe parisÄ• vanaá¹ƒ.

vÄ• si \Ee 69/ sÅ«cigharaÃ±cÄ• pi, indapatthapure tadÄ• ||

<17> á¹• 21 parikkhÄ• rÄ• avasesÄ• , janapade aparantake.

paribhuttÄ• ni muninÄ• , akaá¹ƒsu manujÄ• tadÄ• ||

<18> á¹• 21 dhÄ• tuvitthÄ• rikaá¹ƒ \Ne II 369/ Ä• si, gotamassa mahesino.

pÄ• á¹‡Ä«naá¹ƒ anukampÄ• ya, ahu porÄ• á¹‡ikaá¹ƒ tadÄ• ti || dhÄ• tubhÄ• janÄ«yakathÄ• niá¹-á¹-hitÄ• .

buddhavaá¹ƒsoniá¹-á¹-hito.

By Chance or Destiny (Chance meeting lead to steamy shower for two) bypulaski©

Note: This story was written (original version written long hand on 12 pages!) for a very spec life, my best friend in fact. While we have never shared a bed, nothing stops us from sharing hope you enjoy.

* * * * *

It was near the last night on the fire. The large wildland fire had burned for 12 days but the e hand. The few crews still working the fire lines had already eaten and headed to bed. I was s after some paperwork and a shower. The kitchen crew was busy packing up after the evenin heading off to another fire a few states away.

I was sitting all alone at the table when she walked in…still smudge faced from a hard day o with a smile that lit up the night. She plopped down right across from me with a weary but ch
"Howdy" I replied. "Aren't you a bit late getting in tonight?"

"Yea," she replied. " We had a break down on the dozer I'm working with and it took us a wh loaded up on the trailer. The operator is hauling it home to get fixed tonight and I gotta hang nite to officially check us outta here tomorrow then snag a ride home somehow."

"Oh, well, I don't think it should be to hard to hitch a ride with someone as I think everybody loose tomorrow. Do you want me to see if I can get the kitchen crew to rustle you up some c head out? " I asked. "Naw…I'm not hungry, but thanks anyway" she replied.

"What do you do here on the fire?" she asked. "I work in Logistics, making sure the garbage that people have a place to shit shower and shave mostly" I replied with a chuckle. "Well, tha job" she replied, "somebody has to do it."

"I know. It's an OK job, but my heart is still out on the line. I spent many years humping the r it has taken its toll on my knees…and that in turn has given me a pretty good case of fat ass regulated to the sidelines now" I said. "Awwww…poor baby!" she said in a good-natured tea showing that great smile. "So, where did you work? She asked. "Well, I've been pretty much stationed out of…….

We continued on oblivious to the world. Exchanging our life stories both good and bad. We f been on the same fire many times in the past and had a number of common acquaintances.

laughing so hard the tears were rolling and others found us dead serious as we explored a c time in our lives. All not to mention the many friendly barbs & teases and flirting comments.
the experience of meeting someone new, especially since we seemed to hit it off so well. I d was about this woman who I didn’t know from adam a little while ago, but she just seemed li with a heart of gold and a glowing warmth that could melt the arctic….hell, I just plain flat ou Best of all I think she liked me too. And that is a feeling I haven't had in a long time…too lon

The next thing I knew, I looked down at my watch and exclaimed, "Wholly cow!!, its almost 1 sitting here babbling away for nearly 4 hours!"

"Oh Man!" she said, "I've got to go over and grab a shower and hit the sack." "The showers you have to go down to the campground a couple of miles down the road and use the ones her. "I have to head that way too" I said, "I'd be glad to give you a lift if you want."

"That would be great" she replied, "as I don’t have any wheels of my own right now. My gea front gate, if you would pick me up there that would be great."

"No, problem" I replied.

As I swung by where her gear was, she was there waiting for me. Cripes, she looked good e nomex. Her hair was long and dark, braided into one pigtail in the back. She had a slender f breasts. All my favorites for some strange reason. Not that it mattered. She could have look Hun for all I cared.

She smiled as I approached and slid into the passenger seat with a warm hello and a friendl shoulder. It was then that I felt the butterflies in my stomach and just a wee bit of a twinge b legs. After sharing so much back in the camp, it was a little quiet on the way to the showers.
both a bit tired.

We arrived at the shower building soon enough and it was deserted, as one would expect a to get out of the truck I froze as I noticed the out of order sign on the men's shower room do said, " The men's side is closed. ….Oh well, how about if you shower then you cover for me women's side incase someone comes along?"

"Well…there is not much chance of anyone coming along…lets look inside first, maybe they she replied. We walked inside past the toilets to the shower area which was a narrow isle wi changing areas on each side then farther back two shower areas on each side….all with no any kind. "Oh well," I feebly mumbled as we both took in the situation. As I started to back a Wait a minute……ummm…..I don’t care if you don’t. I want to clean up and get to bed." Just showering in full view of each other was enough to make my blood drain from one head to th I wanted to I was now timid and a bit embarrassed. "I…I don’t know" I said as I moved my to of me in an attempt to camouflage my erection. She turned to me with that great shit eating and said "Oh come on!…don’t be a chicken!" …and ya know I've seen one of those before (pants), its nothing to be embarrassed about and I would kinda expect it as normal. Heck, it ju me…and ya know what, I like you too!" There was a short pause before I finally relented and hell" and threw my towel down on the changing area bench. We both were giggling as we st to our respective shower stall.

It was suddenly quiet again. The cool water felt good after the blistering hot day although I d silly standing there at full staff. Geez, it felt like my cock would pop if it got any harder. As I w washing my hair I caught her red handed looking at my cock. "Can you see it good enough? can see it very well" she replied, "you are packing a mighty fine piece of meat there buddy." comment and a twinkle in her eye, she turned around and faced the water.

My heart was burning with the joy of a budding new friendship but at the same time I was sc going so fast….too fast. But I was hooked now. The blood running through my veins (most c specific spot at this point I might add) was fueled by the long drought in my love life. It had b since I had felt the warm flesh of another against mine…at least that of someone who I felt a me. Every bone in my body wanted to take those few steps over to her…wrap my arms arou close…close enough to feel our hearts beating together. To feel the crush of her breasts aga enjoy the taste of her lips against mine.

Yet I felt this budding relationship was something special...very special. Something way bey or sexual contact. It was simply not worth the risk of making a sexual move at this point. Sex was looking for, well…ok, maybe a little bit…I am male, I can't help it. But it is the emotional caring & unquestioned acceptance of who and what I am, that I am longing for. But….Hell, a stuff with her is probably only real in my mind I thought…a figment of my imagination.

I stood there contemplating my feelings as I watched her. Still with her back to me, the casca rinsing the soot & dirt away revealing her smooth olive skin. Her hair was long & dark reachi her back. Her cheeks glistened…soft, round and smooth. They swayed slightly as she soape the days grime away. God, what a beautiful sight.

She turned around finally. Looking up, she smiled at me as I took in her naked body. Her sh and tapered down to her waist, and you could make out the outline of her stomach muscles there relaxed. Her legs were slender but muscular. This woman obviously took care of herse small, but the perfect size for a good handful…or mouth full, her areolas were dark and nipp aroused. Her pubic hair was trimmed but still had an excellent thick bush. …"Well, do I pass said breaking my gaze. "Yes indeed!" I replied, adding "and that’s an impressive set of highb sporting there too." As she gave her breasts a playful squeeze we both cracked up laughing

Out of the blue, I heard myself asking, "Want me to wash that little spot on your back that yo reach?" With that big ass grin of hers she replied, "Yea! I thought you would never ask!" She soap as I stepped over to her side of the stall and she turned facing the water pulling her ha of her body. I worked up a tremendous lather in my hands and put the soap down and began into the muscles of her neck and shoulders then slowly but firmly working my way down her feels good" she purred as she put her hands up on the shower wall to brace herself. Her ski soft yet firm in my hands. I had to step back a bit to keep my cock from poking her in the but point I don’t think she would have minded. Feeling a bit bolder I worked my hands up her sid again slightly brushing her breasts before moving across her tight stomach. "HEY!!, that’s no scolded in an obviously teasing tone. "Oh…heh heh…sorry" I replied in mock apology. Takin she looked over her shoulder at me smiling, I looked her straight in the eye and asked if she stop. With just the briefest of pauses she replied, "No way! If you stop now I will have to whu keep-a-goin!"

With that I stepped forward again and lightly brought my hands up the back of her thighs, pa held her cheeks in my hands then continued up her back then following each of her outstrete hands. Of course this brought our bodies in full contact, my cock pressed between her butt c her ass back into me, cooing and wiggling her butt at the same time. I brought my arms dow holding her tight with my face buried in her neck. I kissed her tenderly as one hand found the flesh of her breast. She covered my hand with hers massing her breast as she twisted aroun looked back at me. Our lips met in a frenzy of passion, our breathing heavy and tongues pro

Our lips finally parted and I put her hands up on the shower wall again and pulled her hips b her feet farther apart like she was going to be strip-searched. I dropped to my knees behind slight moan of passionate anticipation and shifted her weight between one foot then the othe cheeks in my hands and kissed each one lightly as I moved one hand between her legs and mound. I next moved to one ankle with both hands, firmly working my way north. I loved the muscles in my hands…so firm yet feminine. As I gently caressed her inner thigh she audibly as she stuck her butt out a bit more and spread her legs even further apart. My had brushed let my fingers ever so gently separate her lips as I gently drew my hand from between her le this process with the other leg but instead of touching her pussy, this time I drove my entire legs until my shoulder was wedged between her butt cheeks and I could touch her breasts w brought an even louder moan as she ground her bum and cunt against my shoulder. As I slo out I let my fingers find the hood of her clit and I massaged it gently as my thumb teased her was lost in passion now, her carnal instincts, as well as mine, ruling the moment. Her thighs as she reached down and turned off the water.

I spun around and sat on my butt then slid back so that I was sitting underneath her, face to swollen pussy. With my arms wrapped around her thighs and hands firmly on her cheeks I to into my mouth, my tongue tracing her lips. I suckled her lips into my mouth and slid my tongu found her clit. This brought on a sweet sigh of ecstasy from her as she dropped her hands to grinding her cunt into my face. As I tenderly flicked her clit with my tongue her thighs trembl and I eagerly tasted her sweet juices. The shuddering subsided slowly, her breathing still he released my head and slid down my body. I felt my cock slowly enveloped by the warmth of herself down on me. Finally seated and firmly impaled, we sat face to face, arms wrapped a chests heaving. "Thank you very much, that was wonderful" she whispered into my ear as s my cock. We sat there intertwined for a few moments, I knew it wouldn't be long before I wo my seed. " I want to taste you" she whispered as she slid off my cock and kissed her way do stomach…

My cock was throbbing with anticipation as she first gently licked my balls then inhaled my c mouth. I could feel her tongue swirling around my cock head as she held my balls in her har fingertips near my anus. This was it; I couldn't take it any longer. "I'm going to cum big time" my back arched and I started trembling. She didn't miss a beat as she hunched up and pum wrapped around its head. I could feel the cum shoot into her mouth as we both moaned in e miss a drop as my cock sent stream after stream of hot cum into her. I opened my eyes afte to see her looking up directly at me still bathing my cock with her tongue and a dab of my cu to her lip. I took her by the shoulders and slid her up so that we were face to face. Our lips m deepest passionate kiss…legs intertwined…arms wrapped around each other. We lay there minutes…slowly coming down from our mutual high. "Dayum! That was about the most refre had! Thank you!" she said. "Yea, I could handle that every day" I replied. "Let's get dressed camp."

By this point I think it was a given as nary a word was said. I pulled up to my tent and she ju sleeping bag inside. We spread our bags out together and slid underneath, both naked as a up together like spoons in a drawer, we each echoed a slightly moaning sigh of contentment giggle like school kids. I wrapped my arm around her wedging it between her breasts and pu as she wiggled her butt back up against my still half-hard cock. "Ya know, I will probably be tomorrow morning as well…I'd be more than glad to give you a ride home" I said. "That wou replied, and I have been having problems with my shower head not working properly, maybe me. Hopefully it won't take too long to fix, mebbe only a few years or decades." "Hmmmm…

that" I replied.

[This document can be acquired from a sub-directory coombspapers via anonymousFTP on COOMBS.ANU.EDU.AUThe document's ftp filename and the full directory path are given in level INDEX file][Last updated: 7 March 1993]----------"Han Shan's Carousel".All copyrights to this document belong to John Tarrant, California DiamondSangh Cal., USAEnquiries: The Editor, "Mind Moon Circle", Sydney Zen Centre, 251 Young St.,Ann 2038, Australia. Tel: + 61 2 660 2993----------JOHN TARRANT ROSHI(Th an introduction to any selection of the poems in "The Real Naturally Appears.")Han Shan's C daughter's first words were "Mummy," Daddy," and "Dojo." Over the past fewyears, Roberta travelling to sesshin with her. I didn't want tobe the kind of teacher who goes off and leaves home. So, throughcarting diapers to Perth and Sydney, and preparing talks while my hair is it's come to me that the best way to convey the Dharma to my daughter isto immerse her in through zazen, we've learned to give tobreath, the rain, the garden, the person in front of us Being inretreat feeds this kind of attention but intrinsically it has nothing to do withretreat. C attention is itself a kind of love and is one of the truegifts that we can give to one another. In Hua-yen vision of the universeeach thing contains each other thing, its Buddha nature shinin Weare all held in the great matrix, parts of each other, and a family is afragment of this net.
we've found is that having young childrenaround seems to deepen the retreats. The childre own brightdream while we, the meditators, circle in ours. Their ancient voices, thefreshness of things, and the splendid, primary colors of theirtoys -- the presence of the children is like a hibiscus flower on thealtar. Among the dark robes and black cushions it begins to sing, it re the pleasure of walking this arduous way of ours, and we know byexperience how awarenes our lives, so they come forward togreet us and we are never lonely again. There was an old Chinesemaster named Han Shan who left the worldly world, went into his hermitage andshu expecting to open it again. It occurred to me that havinga child was like this gate closing so something else could open, a kind ofbefore and after division of my life. After Sarah things a constricted,even sleep is not guaranteed; everything demands more attention and, like thatli mountains, is more infinite. My monastery lies in dailythings, persuading Sarah to get dress to preschool on the way towork. And I began to know in the cells of my body that it is the co that, fully inhabited, contains eternity. What Han Shan is doing today isteaching his daught the keyboard. So I wrote some of my own HanShan poems. Here are a few of them.John T Rosa Winter 93----------end of file

[This document can be acquired from a sub-directory coombspapers via anonymous FTP on the node COOMBS.ANU.EDU.AU
The document's ftp filename and the full directory path are given in the coombspapers top level INDEX file]
[Last updated: 26 April 1993]

"MUMONKAN CASE 5" - a provisional title of an originally untitled teisho.
This text addresses some of the most fundamental and delicate religious issues.
Therefore, it should be read, quoted and analysed in a mindful way.
All copyrights to this document belong to John Tarrant, California Diamond Sangha, Santa Rosa, Cal., USA
Enquiries: The Editor, "Mind Moon Circle", Sydney Zen Centre, 251 Young St., Annandale, Sydney, NSW 2038, Australia. Tel: + 61 2 660 2993

Please note - the text contains some gaps - caused by a defective tape used for recording of the teisho - the coombspapers -
---
TEISHO

John Tarrant Roshi
Zazenkai
September 13, 1992, Oakland, California

This is from the Mumonkan, the koan collection. This is the Fifth Case of that collection. It's called "Hsiang-yen: Up a Tree".

> The priest Hsiang-yen said, "It is as though you were up in a tree, hanging from a branch with your teeth. Your hands and feet can't touch any branch. Someone appears beneath the tree and asked, `What is the meaning of Bodhidharma's coming from the West?' If you do not answer, you evade your responsibility. If you do answer, you lose your life. What do you do?"

Wu-men has a comment here.

> Even if your eloquence flows like a river, it is all in vain. Even if you can expound cogently upon the whole body of Buddhist literature, that too is useless. If you can respond to this dilemma properly, you give life to those who have been dead and kill those who have been alive. If you can't respond, you must wait and ask Maitreya about it.

Wu-men's verse.

Hsiang-yen is just blabbing nonsense;
his poisonous intentions are without limit.
He stops up everyone's mouths, making his whole body the eye of a demon.

Please sit comfortably.

Hsiang-yen was an old Chinese teacher, probably around the Ninth Century of our era. There are a couple of interesting things about his history. He was an intellectual, intelligent person who studied with Kway-shan (sp?) who was a great teacher of his era. He really couldn't quite grasp what his teacher was saying. He had a conversation with his teacher and his teacher said, "Well, you're very smart but you don't understand life. So I suggest you take up this koan and tell me, "Who were you before your parents were born. Hsiang-yen was stopped by this bizarre question. He went off into his room and looked through all the notes he had made through the years. (A good reasonable technique. The answer must be here somewhere.) But he couldn't find anything that would help him and so he went back to his teacher several times trying to extract the answer from his teacher. His teacher said, "I could tell you, but afterwards you would blame me for it." I think of this time as being the time when he was hanging from the tree the koan spoke about--as if he were hanging off a cliff.

He gave up. He had heard there was a great old teacher.

had been active. He decided, "I will just live a simple life and I will go and keep the garden around the tomb and live a life that has some sort of simple reverence and piety, although I know it's not the real life. I just can't do any better. He did that for years. (I'm not sure how long.) But for quite some time he was there and just living a very simple life. He had given up trying to walk The Way in the way in he had originally intended to. He couldn't quite do that. He just a very deep moment when you just have to be hopeful. I fancy he became rather serene, actually from that. What else could he say? There was no hope for him. But he didn't give up completely. He didn't go out and kill himself or dissipate his life in some way. He decided to do something simple that he could do. He was sweeping the garden one day and a stone flew up from his broom and hit a bamboo and went "tock". That wonderful sound. And at that moment he heard the sound as if for the first time and his whole universe opened up. And he understood the whole of the teachings. This was a great moment for him and for him it came all in a rush. As if there were ice and all along it had been melting from underneath, but you couldn't see it until one day the ice was gone.

He composed a poem, and the poem was One tock! and I have forgotten all that I knew.

It's one of the great lines of zen, I think. Sometimes it's said that in zen we just become blind, really blind. You start out with false blindness and end up with true blindness. Because you are blind to the things that deluded you. You forget the things that obsessed you and persecuted you and the sufferings. It's there and it's all marvelous in its own way. Everybody knows that phenomenon of the things that were so hard for us when we were a certain age, a certain time in our life when we look back seem rather rich and interesting. We can dine out on the stories. But this is something even more penetrating. He really did forget.

He said another interesting thing. His next line is

No artificial discipline was ever needed. (no effort)
In every movement, I uphold the ancient Way

So we always start out with a sense of struggle, and most of us do in meditation because it doesn't immediately seem natural to our lives to meditate and sit still. We're always wiggling--attention deficit. The human being is an attention deficit creature. So we have a sense of going against something in our nature, of subduing something. And it is good to struggle a little. But he is pointing out that, really, when the mind is clear there is no struggle. If we completely let go to what is and become truly present, we don't have that wrestling match going on.

No discipline is ever needed.
In every movement, I uphold the ancient Way.

He also said

Wherever I walk, no traces are left, and my senses are not fettered by rules of conduct.
Everywhere those who have found this truth declare it to be the best.

So he went along to his teacher, who was pleased, but his teacher had a great student called Yang-shan who said, "Bah! I don't believe this. I'm not sure your experience is real." So sometimes we can have an experience in meditation that is very persuasive, but it doesn't last and we need to keep going. So Yang-san pressed him, this newly enlightened person who was so pleased with what he could see, his enlightenment, and asked him for something more. Hsiang-yen immediately came out with another poem, he said

Last year's poverty was not true poverty.

(Last year I thought I was poor, but I was only miserable.)

this year is the real thing.

(I thought I was blind before, but now I am really blind.)

Last year a fine gimlet could find a place; this year even the gimlet is gone.

Yang-shan was a kind of hard person to please and said, "Well, that's really as good as the buddha, but it's not really as good as zen." He was sort of pushing. He wasn't completely sure that this person was the real thing. Hsiang-yen didn't have a fit or anything, he just gave him another poem and he said,

> I have a single potential;
> that can be seen in a blink of an eye.
> If you still don't understand, > call the newest person in the zendo and ask him about it.

And with this Yang-shan was happy.

As a teacher, in this poem he emphasized that moment of darkness and difficulty and suffering in just hanging there from the tree. When doubt takes us over, when an obsession fills our lives. There's nothing like a good obsession to zen. That thing where you are arguing with somebody in your head proving that you're right or proving that they should have done this or how they didn't love you enough. Whatever it is. Weve all experienced this. It just goes on and on in our lives. And finally, we come down to even if we're right, what are we doing arguing in our heads like this, chasing after, making shadows. We are living in the ghost world fighting with the demons there. But we all do it. Everybody in this room does this sometimes. He is showing us at that moment, in a sense when we become aware that--and I think our awareness starts to creep in. Sometimes when we become aware it's worse for awhile.

Ikkyu, the great old Japanese zen teacher who was an eccentric teacher, was asked the essence of zen and he said, "Attention, attention, attention." Zen always depends on attention. Really, that's enough, that will get us through. However, when we attend sometimes we notice how much pain we're in and there really is that sense of hanging from a branch and seeing that you can't reach anything. It's a metaphor of--the literal minded part of me always wants to grab this thing and hang from it, but there is some sense in which we are stuck and hanging in the world.

One of the very curious things about human beings is that human beings seek such situations, I think. You will find that if there is a situation that gives you great difficulty, you'll find yourself going back to it again and again. This is why a friend's good advice is always true, but doesn't help. If you tell somebody--if they come to you with a problem and you say, "Oh yes, I have that problem, why don't you do this?" They'll give you ten reasons why they can't. And that's good, I think. We need to find our own thread through, our own route through. But when you come back, it really helps when you come back to that difficult situation hanging on a cliff, it really helps to notice that this is what it is. And if you just notice that you are hanging from a tree, that is the beginning of the transformation. Most of the time we don't notice, awareness doesn't get in. We're too busy screaming and panicking. We're too busy being unhappy. Running through our minds, "What will we do?" or "What horrible thing will happen?" or "How can I make something good happen?" That's very different from being present and having attention. With attention we just notice and we let bare awareness alone when the world just rises up, and we notice, "Oh, that hurts." That's very different from panicking. Just the way of noticing, "Oh, anger" is very different from hitting someone. It's more powerful.

Hsiang-yen is trying to give our attention to suffering in the world. But also, too, there is that intense, gritty quality of life. Not just suffering in some vague sense, but what a strong taste it has.

Then he complicates matters. He says, "Someone appears beneath the tree and asks, `What is the meaning of Bodhidharma's coming from the West?'" This is the fate of a teacher. This is what being a zen teacher is like. You're there dangling in your life and somebody comes along and says, "I have this problem, Roshi" and goes into great detail and you have to help them. He's putting out a truth of the bodhisattva. There is a lovely thing here. A great truth of the bodhisattva path that one of the things you can do, that you need to do often, is to make that effort for the good even if you're in a very difficult time. Often there's something you can do to make the world a little bit better. And if it's a very small thing it counts a lot at such times. It is like a crystal, the one bit of dirt that's dropped into this ocean that causes crystallization to occur. One good deed can be very powerful when you're in trouble. And you must respond, help save beings. How do you respond in this case? When we take this up as a koan in our meditation, this is the dilemma. All the time we are living our way through but also helping others.

And he says, "If you don't answer you evade your responsibility; if you do answer you lose your life." which is not going to help either, is it? What will you do? A good question always is impossible. A good path always can't be walked. If you think of the four vows we have in zen, you will immediately understand this koanlike quality.

Beings are numberless, I vow to save them.

Buddha's way is beyond attainment, I vow to embody it.

Something very beautiful is being pointed to here and that is that we can't do everything, but sometimes when you do the one thing, that is a great thing. What Hsiang-yen did was go on and just led this simple life--cleaning the temple grounds, fixing the plumbing. And all in that time while he was doing that, he didn't completely panic. He just kept his life together and then did what he could. Then something was growing in all that time. He was watering the seeds without knowing it. But when you are just faithful to your practice, when you do your zazen, even if you feel miserable. If you trust that and do your zazen and try to bring awareness into your life gradually, over the years, that seed grows into and you can't stop it from bursting into growth and flower. Practice just grows in us in spite of ourselves.

Wu-men's comment is typical of him. "Even if your eloquence flows like a river, it is all in vain." No matter how much we can explain things, we have to live it. And this can be quite hard. You have an experience where you really do understand zazen and zazen really opens for you and it's quite genuine. Then the next day you're in a mess again. And once again you are hanging from the tree. I think we need to accept this. If you can begin to accept this, then the whole thing becomes much more lovely. The world begins to silver over again and becomes much more workable. It is not yet gold, but something precious is happening.

And he says, "If you respond properly, you give life to those who have been dead and kill those who are alive." Everybody knows this is the truest goal of zen. And anything that we thought was lost will be returned to us.

And he says, "If you can't respond, you must wait and ask Maitreya about it." Maitreya is due to come in a few eons. Long after it would be of any help to us. So if you can't respond--in other words, you must respond now. You can't wait. In zazen you don't need to wait to do good zazen. Just do it now. Don't wait to do something good--an action for the good in your life. Do it now. Don't wait to notice your life. Do it now.

In his verse Wu-men says,

> Hsiang-yen is just blabbing, he's talking nonsense;
> but his poisonous intentions are limitless.

He poisons all our delusions. All the things we hang onto, we will take away. Even if we hang onto something that is pious and we think is wonderful, we will still take that away.

When you go deeper and deeper into your zazen the world does become clearer and clearer. And that is true. You can really test that. If you are faithful to the way the road opens out and it does get wider. You will also find that as you go, you will still meet realms of darkness. You will still find times when you are hanging from the tree. This happens at the advanced levels as well as the beginning levels of practice. All we can say is that if you really set out to follow wisdom, it becomes quite demanding. It just asks that we grow and grow and grow and that we not just lie down and go to sleep with a little bit of knowledge. We have to go the whole route. As one of my great teachers said . But the truth is we don't have much choice, I think, really. We went and started. Once you've started it, it's really hard to go back.

It's hard to go back to sleep once you've opened your eyes a little to the world. I think we just have to enjoy that and relish its strong garlic. You can complain about it or you can just get to like garlic. I think it's delicious myself.

It's that strong taste of life that is really with us. I think that we find our joy there up in the tree hanging. Soen Nakagawa Roshi had a period when he was quite interested in Christianity.
This new religion . He was reading about how Jesus was hanging on the cross with the thieves. It's the story of the theives who were crucified with Jesus. One of the thieves says something that pleases Jesus. And Jesus says, "You will be with me Paradise." Including no matter what you've done or what you're suffering, to have a pure heart at this moment you enter the kingdom of . He says, "You will be with me in Paradise. Soen Roshi was very disturbed about this on the cross. He asked around a lot and somebody came up with a translation from one of the Orthodox Christian schools, I can't remember which one-- Orthodox, I think. "You are with me in Paradise, right now, hanging on the cross." Yes, that's right.

So it is at that very moment when we are suffering the light is there, too, if we open our eyes and experience it. The light of the buddha is always there.

Thank you very much. Keep up your zazen.
---
end of record

COMPLETELY BECOME ONE

The following is a portion of a Dharma Speech that Zen Master Seung Sahn gave at the Cambridge Zen Center on Saturday, Jul 16, 1977.

When I was in the hospital, the doctors checked my heart. The first time they checked, there were 23-25 mistakes (premature ventricular contractions) in one minute, out of about eighty beats.

Many people have read about research by a Harvard professor who checked people with bad hearts, diabetes, etc. He checked people who did meditation and people who didn't. People who didn't do meditation were O.K. with medicine, but not O.K. without their medicine. But, people who tried concentration meditation got better more quickly, and were O.K. without their medicine. The Transcendental meditation people advertised this: "Meditation can fix many sicknesses." So now, many doctors like meditation. So, my doctors said, "DaeSoen Sa Nim, you are a Zen Master, so you try!" So, I said, "O.K., I will try." So, I tried this fix-your-body meditation. In three days, my heart was making only five mistakes. Usually, it takes about one month to recover like this, so my doctors understood this meditation was helping my body, so they were very happy.

After one week, my heart was only making one or two mistakes, and my doctors said, "This is wonderful! Most people take two or three months to come down to only one or two mistakes each minute!" So I said, "Thank you very much; you have helped me, so I can get better quickly. But this is only fix-your-body meditation. This is not correct meditation."

"Why isn't this correct meditation?" they asked.

"You can fix your body, your heart, your diabetes. In Korea, China, and India, there are people who do yoga. They go to the mountains and do breath-in, breath-out meditation. They can live 500 years and not get sick. Keeping their bodies for a long time is possible; even flying in the sky is possible. Trying this style body meditation, anything is possible. A body is like a car.

Use the car a lot, and in three years, it is broken. Only keep the car in the garage, then keeping it for a long time is possible. But finally, after 500 years, then these yoga people die. Then what? Live a long time, then die; live a short time, then die--it is the same! Dying is the same."

The doctors understood. "What is correct meditation, then?"

I told them, "I always try meditation. Meditation means always keeping one mind, not-moving mind." They thought meditation meant only concentration and keeping your body still. So I said, "Meditation means keeping one mind. You must understand--What is life? What is death? If you keep one mind, there is no life, no death. Then, if you die tomorrow, no problem; if you die in five minutes, no problem."

"What do you mean, no problem'?" they asked.

"Maybe you do fix-your-heart meditation. Then, 'My heart is good; my body is good.' It is very easy to become attached to this meditation. But, when you get old, and your heart is not so good, then you try this meditation. Maybe it is still not so good. Then, 'Why doesn't my meditation work?' Then your body, your meditation become hindrances. If your meditation cannot help your body, then you don't believe in your meditation. Then what? So, this style meditation is no good.

"Correct meditation means correctly understanding your situation moment to moment--what are you doing now? Only do it! Then, each action is complete; each action is enough. Then no thinking, so each moment, I can perceive everything just like this. Just like this is truth. Sick-time, only be sick. Driving-time, only drive. Only go straight--then, any situation is no problem."

The doctors liked this; they wanted to hear more about Zen. So six doctors came to my room, and I talked to them for two hours. One doctor asked me, "I am very busy at the hospital, then going home to my family. How can I keep a clear mind?"

"Clear mind," I told them, "means moment to moment, what are you doing now? When you are with your patients, only 100% keep doctor's mind. When you leave the hospital and you are driving home, 100% keep driver's mind. When you meet your wife, 100% keep husband's mind. This means, each moment, only go straight--don't make 'I', 'My', 'Me'. If you make 'I', 'My', 'Me', then your opinion, your condition, your situation appear. Then, you have a problem.

"If, when you are with your patients, you think, 'Where is my wife? Is she spending a lot of money?' Then, this patient is talking to you, and you only say, 'Oh, yeah, mmm-mmm.' So the patient is thinking, 'What does the doctor think?' They don't believe you. If you are talking to your wife, and she is telling you something important, and you are thinking about the hospital, this is just your opinion; this is just thinking; it is not your just-now situation. So, put it all down; only go straight.

"We say 'jeon il', completely become one. When you are doing an operation, you and this knife completely become one. When you are driving in your car, you and the car only become one. If you drive on a road with pebbles and you are not thinking, only driving, then you can feel these pebbles under your tires. Only become one means, you and your action completely become one; then you and the universe only become one--completely no-thinking mind. Inside and outside become one. The name for this is 'only go straight', or 'put it all down', or

"If you are only in the present, how can you plan for the future or choose a direction? I have to plan for my patients, and for myself, my family," one doctor said.

So I said, "What is the purpose of life? I asked many old people in the hospital this question, or 'What did you get out of life?' and many said, Nothing.' Maybe they have a good job, good family, good wife or husband, but these things cannot help them now. They want something they cannot have, and they understand this, so they say, help them, so they are suffering. Zen means attaining this nothing mind. The Buddha said, 'If you keep clear mind moment to moment, then you will get happiness everywhere. '

Zen is attaining this nothing mind, and then using this nothing mind. How can you use it? Zen means making this nothing mind into big-love mind. Nothing mind means no 'I', 'My', 'Me', no hindrance. So, this mind can change to Great-Compassion mind, action-for-all-people mind. This is possible. Nothing mind does not appear, does not disappear. So, moment by moment, it is possible to keep your correct situation. Then your mind is like a mirror--when you are with your patients, only become one. Then helping them is possible. When you are with your family, only become one; then understanding what is best for them is clear. Just like this. The blue mountain does not move. The white clouds float back and forth."

---

converted to digital format and included in the Teaching Library of MOUNT KAILAS BBS with permission of The Cambridge Zen Center 199 Auburn Street Cambridge MA 02139 (617) 576-3229

TO THE CEMETERY AND BACK
&
DARK AGES, GOLDEN AGES

by Leonard Price

Bodhi Leaves No. B. 96

BUDDHIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY
KANDY SRI LANKA

Copyright 1983 Buddhist Publication Society

* * *

DharmaNet Edition 1994

This electronic edition is offered for free distribution via DharmaNet by arrangement with the publisher.

Transcribed for DharmaNet by Pat Lapensee

DharmaNet International
P.O. Box 4951, Berkeley CA 94704-4951

* * * * * * * *

TO THE CEMETERY AND BACK

In this city, as in all, the dead are granted a little space. Our business and pleasure take us past the old iron gates a hundred times on the way to seemingly more immediate destinations. But on this odd morning when time hangs lightly and pure chance finds us here gazing over these hills of stone and ivy, let us actually turn our steps into the cemetery and along its crooked paths. The day is fine (or certainly we'd never venture here), the flowers glisten with last evening's rain, and a fair fragrance rises with the first breeze. Just inside the gates, someone stands at an easel and paints flowers. Farther off, a caretaker trims a hedge. The signs are propitious -- we shall have privacy but not solitude, and the morning's grace restrains the onslaught of gloom. We may even, carefully, allow ourselves to think thoughts appropriate to the place.

On these finely tended hillsides the music of birds mingles strangely with the numberless testimonies of death. The earth is half-paved with the stone remembrances and the middle air is full of obelisks and angels. Names and dates surround us, some sharp and raw, some worn nearly to oblivion, all crowding upon us with the particulars of spent lives -- of this family, of this age, with these virtues, with this hope of heaven. What can this mean to us, especially if we have no family here? The wind flings a rag of shade across the bright grass: //We too shall die//. The birds sing on, the bees hum in the violets, and the thought is not so terrible. Not so terrible, we remind ourselves, if the fever of life ends //here//, swathed in honeysuckles and southern airs.

We stroll on, reading the chronicles of grief: beloved wife, infant aged three days, daughter, son, darling children. Generations are drawn from the world by the chain of mortality. Do these stones mark an ending or only a continuance? The deceased fare on according to their deeds while we living stay to grieve. Where is there an end? These picturesque stones only mark the limit of our knowledge. Dress them how you will, O gardener, they bespeak our helplessness.

The rumble of the city dwindles and fails in these granite acres until a somber stillness attends our steps. Despite our resolutions and the sparkling sun, we are troubled and would turn back to the gates, but unaccountably we are lost and the hills roll on with their bare legends. Nothing to do but keep walking. assuredly we still live, and while we live we can try our philosophies against enormous mortality around us. Look now, a butterfly flails at the air in what we hope is joy. Beneath that tomb lives a chipmunk -- see him frisk about and vanish down his hole. We are briefly cheered and then plunged in doubt, for why should we lament the extinction of life and hail its repetition? We grow weary of sentiments careening back and forth and wish for equilibrium within the volatile universe. Samsara, we are told, is the terrible round of birth and death, but this disquiet, this resolution of doubt -- is it not samsara as well?

Hardly can we set a foot down for fear of treading wrongly, so crowded is this cemetery. We walk narrowly, wobbling on over the beautiful, terrible hills. Here where the path straightens for a moment let us pause and experiment by closing our eyes. At once the world collapses into red darkness and the pressure of the wind and sun. Now we shall take a step, hesitantly, feeling the gravel underfoot, imagining boundaries and perils. We move further. Somewhere the ground drops off, but where? Anxiety throws its coils around us, and we are walking through our minds -- with danger unseen but guessed on every side. Open eyes! The world blurs back to us, green and lovely, composing itself slowly and almost mockingly. Are we quite sure what is real? Are we quite sure we understand death?

Here's an iron bench in the shade we can rest and consider our position. Eyes closed or open, it's mind that assembles our world. Mind stirs up fear, mind accommodates grief, mind moves thoughts and limbs according to its nature. What is this nature? To judge from our confusion and instability, it is restlessness. We are, it would seem, not firm in space or conviction, not fully in control of anything. If we watch closely, here in the semi-silence, we may discern the flutter, the whir, the unease of this shifting mind. It knows not itself, it knows not the world, it only wants and hates by turns. The odor of flowers heaves it momentarily to paradise. The chiseled history of dead children hurls it down to despair. A crow on a stone angel's head call forth a smile. A fresh name on an old monument chills us. Delight pulls us one way, grief another. Neither can bear us across doubt or fear.

The mind runs endlessly in moments that flare and fizzle. There is a being-born and a dying with every one of them -- a birth and death of every thought and every breath happening right here while we worriedly scan the horizon for a supposed Great Death. Consider this dying that goes on all the time -- fits of memory and feeling, spasms of cells, torrents of desire and aversion, all tumbling in birth and death, birth and death -- the weary reiteration of samsara. Each instant ends but gives no rest because it ignites its successor; and in this the physical death memorialized around us is no different -- the troubled flame of being is passed on and on. What we fear out //there//, among the graven sorrows of the cemetery, is burning in //here//, in the mind, right now. Death has been our neighbor long before we came to ponder headstones. The Buddha understood this. We as yet do not, and tremble in the presence of innocent stone -- wide-eyed toward the symbol, blind to the blazing fact.

Sitting here alone, while the shade splashes silently around us, we hold all the worlds in our lap and can study them as the Buddha taught us, not with hunger, but with the clean dispassion that lays bare truth and liberates the beholder. The Buddha called craving the source of suffering, and indeed, as we bend our attention closer, what do we find but craving nesting even in the fractured moment? Every little death, every wretch of disappointment, is preceded by a birth, an upsurge of craving founded on ignorance. Being blind to the true nature of things, we continually give rise to passion that veers this way and that, never satisfied, forging link by link in the moment the chain binds us over the years. Events in themselves are only events; the deluded mind invests them with horrors and delights and ties the mortal chain around itself.

This cemetery with its solid stones is only a mirror, into which the Buddha bids us look to find the funeral procession within ourselves. Say we look, then. Say we are able to observe the deplorable state of our mind. What can we do about it? If birth and death are whirling on so mechanically and inexorably all efforts would appear futile. Indeed, though we begin to notice the cascading instability of body and mind, our mere intellectual recognition does nothing to free us.

Birth -- that is, the uprising of craving -- will of necessity be followed by death -- that is, the pang of impermanence and loss. But craving itself is not an inevitable phenomenon; it springs up only in the soil of ignorance, and when ignorance is dispelled craving and its resultant miseries cease to exist. The whole teaching of the Buddha drives to this end. We are urged to strive diligently to see things as they are, to resist craving, to observe it unsparingly, to uproot it altogether. All the defilements and afflictions of mind exist, as it were, with our permission. Not knowing we have the power to end them, we go on muttering, "Yes, go ahead, there's no help for it." But when we realize we //do// have the power to alter the painful course of life our excuses will no longer suffice. We must look closely, fix on a straight line, and sail by the three points of morality, concentration, and wisdom.

Spurred by these thoughts, we rise from the iron bench (how quickly it has become uncomfortable!) and continue walking through the endless field of graves. This business of being alive once seemed simple -- either you were or you weren't -- but even a brief contemplation reveals surprising complexities. It appears we have long considered death as a single grim monolith that will one day thump us on the head, while in reality death is subtle, manifold, and co-existent with the mind that fears it. Our steps drag slowly over the gravel, and around us the cemetery seems more empty than ever. There is nobody to be seen, even the birds have vanished, and our solitude is complete. The question must arise now; if we have misunderstood death, have we not misunderstood its corollary, life, as well? If what we have been calling death is not singular and unique but threaded throughout the living process, can we even draw a clear and meaningful distinction between the two? Here we must turn to the Buddha, who did not speak of "life" and "death" as independent realities but rather pointed out that experience is a continual becoming, a process of ceaseless change, a flux of arising and perishing -- which is to say samsara, the great wheel of cause and effect, on whose flashing rim no beginning and no end can be found.

As we examine mind and body we feel increasingly the inadequacy of conventional words such as "birth", and "death". We have taken definitions for granted and now find them useless when we need them. Experience upsets imagination. We are forced to ask ourselves, "Whatever these words mean, //who// is it that is born, //who// is it that lives, //who// is it that dies?". Having so grossly misunderstood //events// we reach desperately for the one who //undergoes// events, but can we even find such a one? The Buddha many times patiently explained that human beings are temporary compounds of five aggregates: form, feelings, perceptions, mental formations, and consciousness. These aggregates are constantly changing, but so swiftly that they appear to retain a distinctive identity -- hence the conventional notions of "you" and "I". But such words and ideas are only conveniences which do not accord with ultimate reality. Life and death are only the continual becoming of the five aggregates, within which there can be found no indwelling core, no identity or permanent "self". Well, we may ask, does such-and-such a person live or not? Of course we may say that he or she or they or I live -- it is true enough on a mundane level. We are all, in a sense, lost beings wandering through cycles of existence. But we must clearly understand that ultimately there are only the five aggregates spinning through birth-and-death, afflicted with pain and pleasure, weighted with ignorance and goaded by desire and fear. The question "Who?" becomes meaningless as we study mind and body. Here we find instability, misery, and doubt burning in rightful chain reaction. Rather than searching futilely for an owner of the fire, hadn't we better put it out?

The Buddha did not proclaim the Dhamma in order to satisfy our curiosity about the origin of the universe, or to reveal startling secrets, or to stimulate worship. His purpose was to teach us to put an end to suffering -- the same suffering we feel now as we contemplate these symbols and evidences of death. By investigating with dispassionate minds we come to see things as they really are, seeing them we turn away from the destructive habit of craving, turning away we are by degrees liberated from all suffering. We may be familiar with this idea and may even give it our intellectual assent, but until we make it work in our daily lives we must remain in doubt and under the sway of continual death. We shall be buried soon enough -- shall we stay in the tomb till then? The light of insight can dispel the charnel darkness and free the suffering mind even in this present life. If the present is well attended to, the future will take care of itself.

We look up through sunlight and find that our steps have gone full circle: just beyond a bank of ivy and flowers stand the gaunt gates of this cemetery. The painter has gone; the caretaker is nowhere to be seen; nobody accompanies us on this quiet journey. We pause by a final marker, an old one, whose legend has been eaten by time. It lays flat, abject to the sky, speaking no longer any name of man but uttering the truth of impermanence. Its individuality has been effaced -- it is scarcely more regular then random nature -- but still it declares in the sounding-box of thought the ineluctable fate of all compounded things. It will bear our names as easily as any others, and indeed already does so -- let the wise man read his own! The death of the body is real, as are the small convulsions of flesh and thought in the present moment. Let us drive to the end of all of these. No evasion shall avail us, no distraction blur the sight -- this marker is our own. It shall not yield to the blows of hope or fear, but only to the long, cool gaze of wisdom.

We issue from the iron gates into the churning city once again, and the granite hills slip into distance and memory. Walking familiar pavements we find, strangely, that we carry still a mood or vision before which all objects fall into atoms and aspects of the Buddha's revelation. The city shows as many symbols as the graveyard. Around us life burns as profligately as gunpowder -- in getting and spending, gaining and losing, craving and hating. We see buildings, avenues, hurrying people, but if we are careful we also see that we are really still walking among monuments in the mind. We make our fate right here. The cemetery and the city are one. Shall we continue to build upon our little insight? It's not so hard: the body moves, feelings spring up, mind comprehends, mental objects succeed one another -- all these may be observed. In city or cemetery the process is the same -- let us simply keep looking, noting with cool attention the flow of the phenomena. The defilements of mind cannot stand the scrutiny; they must perforce dissolve. Who shall oppress us then? Life, till now one long fatality, may unfold in understanding. When birth and death are understood they are overcome, and with them all manner of suffering.

Whoever realizes a little, should he not strive to realize more? Whoever would be free, should he not lay hands on his chains? Whoever would act rightly, should he not found his actions on knowledge? The Buddha has declared the nature of suffering, its origin, its end, and the means to its end. His words hang in the air -- pregnant, epic, awesome -- until we begin to move by their guidance. Then they become living truth. Then the dark and mortal way we tread brightens with direct experience. Final emancipation may be far or near. What matters is the going.

* * * * * * * *

DARK AGES, GOLDEN AGES

Without quite intending it, we find ourselves over the years burdened by more and more responsibilities, difficulties, and doubts. It seems practically a consequence of growing older. Time passes like a river -- so smooth to our puzzled eyes -- but leaves, as if by magic, these boulders on our backs. All of us but the very young sense this weight and wonder why, since we asked for none of it, it settles on us and will not be shirked. Troubles old and new bear on us despite all the care we take to persevere ourselves and to build our castles against a turbulent world. We will all, of course, acknowledge the possibility of catastrophes which could plunge us into genuine grief at any moment, but why now, as we live in relative comfort and health, should we feel this weight on the heart, this strain of apprehension?

Little annoyances and thorns of worry are just part of life, we tell ourselves as we make our way between the twin imponderables of birth and death. If we are brave, determined, and optimistic, that should be enough, should it not? Yet even in our joys there falls the shadow -- the menace of great forces around us, the obscure sadness looking back at us from the mirror, the occasional sense of overwhelming futility and frailty. We look around, wondering who is to blame? If no culprit is forthcoming, we may turn with suspicion to the great, grim world at large and wonder if its influence goes deeper than the indigestion occasioned by the evening news. Even if we are personally healthy and prosperous, perhaps malaise of the times has subtly infected us. If the age we live in is corrupt and decadent can we remain altogether uncontaminated? What sort of age is this, anyway?

Probably all but the most fanatical optimists have from time to time, while hearing of the latest crime or war or degradation of human decency, considered the proposition that the world has gone screaming mad. The iniquity of mankind these days seems to surpass the merely incidental and to approach willful dementia. Moral values retreat before the onslaught of hysterical cruelty and lust, and everywhere we see wicked fantasy enthroned -- mankind and nations having lost faith in the god and the right. Science, once hailed as our deliverance, labors mightily and produces bombs and video games to pacify -- in one way or another -- the frenzied multitudes. But there is no peace. Drugs, alcohol, and insanity hang on the communal body like leeches, draining what life remains and imparting a fever of nihilism that burns fearfully bright with decadent delights. There is a murmur of woe but little resistance, for who can turn the trend of history? The honest man -- never easy to find -- fades from view as evildoers are first excused, then celebrated by the timid and the envious. Like a worn-out carousel, our society jangles, and wheezes toward collapse.

The instinct of most of us in times such as these is to keep our heads down and hang onto our pleasures and possessions and bear our pains as best we may. We wish to run no risks in a world with chance so badly skewed against us. The result is that we are trapped, closeted with our fears while the storm rages worse outside. Here in this tight space dread grows, and the possibilities for remedy are few. On television maniacally cheerful people contrive to sell us happiness. Buy! Enjoy! Experience! Out on the streets glowering zealots paste up posters urging struggle, war, confusion, and the death of their enemies -- after which, presumably, mankind will enjoy bliss. Civilization appears to be spiralling down into awesome decadence, and the fall of Rome comes to the minds of those not altogether oblivious to history. It's an unpleasant thought, so we take shelter in our small delights or else in the blandishments of psychological and religious quacks who -- for a fee to defray the costs of their own indulgences -- will tell us anything we want to hear. Do we feel guilty? It's probably someone else's fault. Are we tempted by vice? Go ahead, fulfill yourselves! Will we have to //give up// anything to achieve happiness? Oh, never! Perish the thought! A golden age is dawning.

Most of us avoid the worst excesses of the age -- not out of sturdy virtue so much as out of a trembling sense of self-preservation. But all of us, Buddhists included, feel the sickness in our surroundings and grow fearful, hiding where we can. In a dark age, who can blame our caution?

Yet the trouble with such caution is that it may mask mere cowardice or sloth. Let us examine the matter a little closer. Does this hobbling, failing century really qualify as a dark age? Without pressing evidence to the contrary, we are apt to regard our own woes as the worst ever endured by the race. (Self-aggrandizement comes in curious forms.) But if we read a bit of history we will be hard put to champion the depravity of our own age against the past. If we define dark age as a period when the light of understanding is eclipsed and evils multiply, what age of history may //not// be called dark? The perfidy and wretchedness of our ancestors must give us pause and take the edge of our own complaints. Wars, plagues, persecutions, and crimes abound in every era. There's plenty of horror to go around, and the special poignancy of the present version is only that it's happening to //us//.

However dark the world may appear to us, we are not justified in retreating to the extremes of hedonism or nihilism. There is a task to be done, and that task is not -- as many people believe -- to readjust self, society, or world to fit our blind desires. Rather it is to train ourselves to the point where we know reality for what it is and free ourselves of the burdens of passion that now oppress us. This task faces all Buddhists, though we are reluctant to admit it and tend to excuse ourselves on the grounds that the times are so bad and responsibilities so weighty that we cannot -- most regrettably -- take on the additional project of earnest Dhamma practice. The woes of nations and the afflictions of persons are thereby perversely made reasons for //not// doing anything, and the way of Dhamma is implicitly called a burden. As if it were not suffering that first impelled the Buddha toward liberation. As if the Dhamma were not the means to that liberation.

Some of us may even rationalize to the extent of believing that since the times are too difficult for //us// to make a genuine effort toward emancipation, they are probably too difficult for everybody. The days of high attainment are gone, and with them any reason to exert ourselves beyond a modicum of morality and ritual observance. With war, crime, and madness round about, we have enough trouble just saving our skins. Better to keep our heads down and (over another glass of wine) lament cruel fate.

Yet to look honestly at ourselves and the Dhamma must bring us to another conclusion. One era may be better or worse than another -- as the world goes -- but old age, sickness, and death come to all. Anxiety, depression and grief come to all. If we cannot overcome them now, how should we ever face them in heaven or a golden age when we are swimming in bliss? What motivation would we have //then//? A dark age will pass in five years or five hundred, the age of //dukkha// never. This pervasive suffering, coarse or fine, settles like dust on us -- swiftly or slowly with the winds of circumstance. We can't outwait it, yearning for a golden age which, if it ever came, could only enervate us and leave us none the wiser. Let it rain champagne, the heart will still thirst.

No time is worthier than now, for we have no other time. The past expires at our feet; the future is being wrought for our present action. We need not pretend that the world is good or evolving toward an age of light, or deny the dangers that beset us in this savage century, but we should rouse ourselves with the knowledge that the serenity and happiness preached by the Buddha remain as accessible now as ever, transcending and abolishing the jungle of the years. A thorn in the mind is the father of all griefs. The Buddha teaches us to pull it out.

* * * * * * * *

The Author, an American from Louisville, Kentucky, graduated from Dartmouth after majoring in English. An actor and a writer, he spends his free time in reading, meditating, and Dhamma-activities. Reproduced from //The Washington Buddhist//.

* * * * * * * *

THE BUDDHIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY

The BPS is an approved charity dedicated to making known the Teaching of the Buddha, which has a vital message for people of all creeds. Founded in 1958, the BPS has published a wide variety of books and booklets covering a great range of topics. Its publications include accurate annotated translations of the Buddha's discourses, standard reference works, as well as original contemporary expositions of Buddhist thought and practice. These works present Buddhism as it truly is -- a dynamic force which has influenced receptive minds for the past 2500 years and is still as relevant today as it was when it first arose. A full list of our publications will be sent upon request with an enclosure of U.S. $1.00 or its equivalent to cover air mail postage.

Write to:

The Hony. Secretary
BUDDHIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY
P.O. Box 61
54, Sangharaja Mawatha
Kandy Sri Lanka

or

The Barre Center for Buddhist Studies Lockwood Road
Barre, MA 01005
Tel: (508) 355-2347

* * * * * * * *

CORRECTIONS

In preparing this electronic edition for DharmaNet, some minor changes and corrections were made to the original text. These include changing the spellings of certain words from British to American English and adapting punctuation and style to conform more closely to the Chicago Manual of Style (13th edition) guidelines.

In addition, the following changes were made ("---->" means "was changed to"):

1. p.11, line 3 up: origin or and of the universe ----> origin of the universe

* * * * * * * *

DISTRIBUTION AGREEMENT
~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

TITLE OF WORK: To the Cemetery and Back & Dark Ages, Golden Ages
(Bodhi Leaves No. B.96)
FILENAME: WHEEL096.ZIP
AUTHOR: Leonard Price
AUTHOR'S ADDRESS: N/A
PUBLISHER'S ADDRESS: Buddhist Publication Society
P.O. Box 61
54, Sangharaja Mawatha
Kandy, Sri Lanka
~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

COPYRIGHT HOLDER: Buddhist Publication Society (1983)
DATE OF PUBLICATION: 1983
DATE OF DHARMANET DISTRIBUTION: July 1994 ORIGIN SITE: Access to Insight BBS, Barre MA * (508) 433-5847
(DharmaNet 96:903/1)

The copyright holder retains all rights to this work and hereby grants electronic distribution rights to DharmaNet International. This work may be freely copied and redistributed electronically, provided that the file contents (including this Agreement) are not altered in any way and that it is distributed at no cost to the recipient. You may make printed copies of this work for your personal use; further distribution of printed copies requires permission from the copyright holder. If this work is used by a teacher in a class, or is quoted in a review, the publisher shall be notified of such use.

It is the spirit of dana, freely offered generosity, which has kept the entire Buddhist tradition alive for more than 2,500 years. If you find this work of value, please consider sending a donation to the author or publisher, so that these works may continue to be made available. May your generosity contribute to the happiness of all beings everywhere.

DharmaNet International, P.O. Box 4951, Berkeley, CA 94704-4951

[end]

SHINJIN: THE CENTER OF EXPERIENCEINTRODUCTION If one truly will come to see even more clearly the true intention of the Buddha, realizing the limitless the compassionate Vow; and he will teach those who are unsure of being born in the Bu of their lowly station that the Primal Vow does not discriminate between the good and b and impure. Only then does he deserve to be called a scholar.------- Tannisho, Chapter XII I At the heart of all religion is the "religious experience", thatexperience in which the Absolute becomes a realized presence o of the individual. This meeting, as it were, of the Absolute and a finitebeing, causes the indi his self, in a different light, that is, inlight of or in relation to the Absolute; this changes the individual'sperception of his world and the role he and the Absolute play in it. Thereligious e then, is an existential experience, rooted and confirmedin the very life of the individual. Also religious experience is atransforming experience, and this and its existential, self-confirming what !!! distinguirsh it from philosophy, metaphysics and psychology. !!! It is this transform experience, of course, that the religious seeker,regardless of tradition, is after. !!! The religi is undeniably theattempt to get the Absolute into our lives !!! and, hopefully, to put to resttho questions of pain, suffering, and mortality. The ways in which weattempt to do this are as nu are seekers, but for most of usthis means to include turning to the words of teachers. Other traditionsnotwithstanding, transmittal of the teaching in Buddhism, either spoken orwritten, h inherent and inevitable dangers of misunderstanding andconfusion; !!! for the Truth of the Dh intellectual, not the resultof logic, but is rather outside of the mental process altogether. !!! In otherwords, the Dharma cannot be reduced to words; !!! nevertheless, langurage andlogic, tools of man, seem to be the most reasonable, if not theonly, mutual medium of excange. !! best, transmittal, in thesense of transferring the Truth of the teaching from one person to and not possible; the only tool of transfer available, as it turns out, isthe weakest link in any such attempt.[I usually say that we as human beings cannot speak Truth, but only wordsABOUT
"T" Absolute kind of Truth. ed] One approach to this dilemma as been, therefore, to turn t theintellect upon itself in hopes of revealing to it that it, itself, is the causeof its own suffering this regard, we are taught that the mind views theuniverse from a dualistic point of view. Fir foremost, it posits a self,a seperate, unchanging entity, which is, for all intents and purposes of the universe. It seperates, classifies and isolates what itexperiences into good and bad, r and all the variations inbetween and attempts to impose these distincitons on the world arou to support and sustain its image of the self. !!! This dualisticpoint of view, self over here an else over there, distorts the true natureof existence, which is not static, but fluid and inter-rel nature, !!! constantly changing from good to bad, right to wrong, to good and bad, rightand separately and all at one and the same time. And the attempt tohold this flow still, the attem permanence where ALL is impermanent,is an attempt to distort what actually is. !!! It is this activity oftrying to resist the natural flow of life that causes the existential fricitonwe recogniz suffering, pain, and sorrow. !!! But as clear as that message may be understood, it is, r aproduct of the intellect. And in the everyday living of our lives, theconfusion and suffering r as it did in the Buddha's time, jsut as itdid in Shinran's, as it does today and as it will in the fu is aninherent part of the human condition, a peculiarly human dilemma. !!! Whetherwe are s for our own salvation or have received the gift ofSHINJIN, our efforts to clarify our understan Dharma and transmit itto others is, at best, only a finger pointing at the moon; ultimately, eachindividuallmust personally know the Truth in his own heart, and util thatoccurs the confu suffering will remain for that person. !!! Nevertheless, the effort to clear the confusion for on and to assistothers in doing so is a worthwhile and significant undertaking, not onlybecause seems inherently connected with ones own salvation, butbecause this kind of effort is under the ultimate goal ofBuddhism, that is, salvation of all beings. It is tin this spirit that thisvolum given. At the center of Jodo Shinshu is the experience we call SHINJIN. SHINJINis the m coming together of the individual and Amida (theAbsolute); this coming together is the transf religious experience thatdefines Shin Buddhism. Most present day explanations of SHINJIN of self-reflection. An ordinary understanding would be that SHINJIN isthat which we are aim Buddhists and self-reflection is theprocess that somehow leads us in the direction of SHINJI thesenotions are central to a clear understanding [intellectual understanding, ed.]and apprec Shinshu, they seem to remain significantly elusive andcreate considerable confusion. One r seems to lie in theperennial problem of translation; but, more at the heart of the problem, in our natural tendencyto separate SHINJIN from self-reflection,when, infact, they are one and With regards to translation, we are dependent upon the scholars. [I don;tagree here, there a available who can help one awaken to thecore of the Jodo Shinshu religious experience (SH scholarsin the traditional sense of the word, ed.] The alternatives seem to include atranslatio into the receiving language, in this case replacingSHINJIN with its English equivalent; [of wh really. ed] or theintroduction of the (foreign) term into the receiving language, that is making that people come to understand, as it is. In the case of SHINJIN, Ibelieve the latter alternati best. To date, the most commontranslation of SHINJIN contains or is limited to the word fai aChristian culture this translation tends to invite much misunderstanding. RevTaitetsu Unno general Buddhism, faith is basically a trust in theBuddha's teachings as the first step on the enlightenment. In someother religions, faith is a belief in God, heaven or hell. In all such ca is considered from the standpoint of men, self-enclosed nad unconsciouslyaffirming some ki First, in the broader view, Buddhism is ultimately self-confirming, ateaching verified by the in the context of his own life. Therefore, faith or trust in the word of another can be seen only aspreliminary or helpful, but in no way as the culmination of spiritual efforts. It must be reme that the Shin teaching is for those incapable ofsuccessfully performing any spiritual practices central to theteaching and precludes the possibility of true faith on the part of the averagema event. [I disagree again here, Amida is open to one who practicesas well! ed] Furthermore instances above, faith is man-centered. This kind if faith is clearly not SHINJIN, for the sourc is Amida,not man. For the purpose of this presenatation, then, I would prefer toavoidany "ec

English term for "SHINJIN" and instead direct our efforts atunderstanding what SHINJIN is a it to come alive for us, as itis. Like all other Buddhist notions, it is important to understand thatSHINJIN is not static, not a fixed idea or concept. SHINJIN is a process, adynamic, nev participated in by and enfolding the person ofSHINJIN. Thus, in the discussions below,any a implication offixed orders or relationships should be discounted as necessary for thestructur explanation, but not taken as accurate as to the essence ofthe SHINJIN experience. Shinjin process, unique to eachindividual, manifesting its overlapping, interrelated and simultaneous aspects as each individual's life unfolds. With this in mind, it can be said that the religious experience of SHINJINhas a dual nature. Or, put another way, SHINJIN manifests, or has tw same as a coin has two sides; these aspects can be characterizedloosly as the intellectual a Generally speaking, theseaspects can be explained as referring to insight into or understan (intellectual) [the True Self, ed] and trust or the entrusting of theself to the Dharma or Amid (emotional). SHINJIN is not one or the other ofthese, but necessarily and simultaneously bo clearly shows this inthe KYOGYOSHINSHO, quoting Zendo's SANZEN GI: The Deep Deep Faith. It has, again, two aspects The first is that which believes deeply and determi are really sinful, ordinary, beings, fettered to Birth-and-Death, con- tinuously drowning a transmigrationg (insight into or understanding of the self) ...The second is that which belie and deter- minedly that the Forty-Eight Vows of Amida Buddha embrace the sentient b those who trust His Vow-Power... to attain Birth (trust or entrusting of the self to Ami Rev Taitetsu Unno describes this dual nature with the term "true-entrusting". SHINJIN first of all, to the mind and heart of Amida Buddha. When this (mind and heart) enters our hearts, it enables us to entrust ourselves to the Other Power freeing us from ourselves.
final goal on the path, an awakening of the nature of self and Buddha.He further states tha denotes the mind and heart of the Buddha; and`entrusting' refers to the mind of the Buddha mind of a foolishbeing." The impression of both of these explanations give us is of a proce ofunderstanding or insight that gives way to or allows for trust. That is, itappears that the pro SHINJIN is one of understanding of the true natureof the self AND understanding of the true which leads to theself entrusting itself, opening itself, to Amidas heart and mind, which thenw the self. This understanding is ultimately misleading, because itleaves the definite impressio are two distinct aspects, one leadingto the other, when in fact, they are one and the same: [ ed] deep understanding IS entrusting and I believe this can be seen if we lookclosely at the self-examination,which, as noted earlier, I believeto be, ultimately, one and the same. In t above, Zendo mentions understanding of the self andunderstanding of Amida; these two rep aspects of SHINJIN. Professor Unno, too, while clarifying the entrusting aspect of SHINJIN, reference to an "awakening to" (the understanding of) self AND theBuddha. He clearly stat "awakening to the nature of self andBuddha" is the "final goal", that is to say, is SHINJIN. W means, ofcourse, is that the process of understanding of the self and Buddha is the sameas SHINJIN, which manifests in our life experience bothintellectually and emotionally as deep u entrusting. The factthat the entrustiong aspect is not mentioned is, I believe, because it isunquestioningly understood to be a part of this process of deep understandingof the self a point of connection I would like to clarify hereis that this process of understanding the self ar established above asthe heart of SHINJIN, is also one and the same with what we commonl self-examination. [Heard with certain reservations--ed.] And furthermore,if we look closely a meant by self examination, it will become clearthat deep understanding and entrusting are ir same. Self examination is the process of coming to see th self as it really is,not as what w is,lnot as what we would like or want it to be. Seeingthe self for what it really is, is to unders iss essence isimpermanence. As noted earlier, no Buddhist term or concept refers to orrepr entity. The self, like all else, is impermanent, is in aconstant state of flux and flow and not st fixed or constant as we wouldlike. The true nature of the Dharma, the true nature of Amida alsoimpermanence. So, to come to know the self as it really is, is to come to knowthe self a same with Amida; this is what is meant by self-reflection (examination) in Amida's light, a pro examining the nature ofthe self in light of our understanding of the teaching. As our under the teaching deepens, our understanding fo thetrue nature of the self deepens, for the truth includes allexistence. What occurs is a process of detachment from our deluded, self-cente staff (as different from the rest of existence, as goodopposed to bad, as permanent,unique, deepening understanding ofthe nature of the self as it truly is (neutral, changing, good and b andessentially impermanent). A clearing of the confusion caused by this deludedview occur with our deepening understanding of or insight intothe Dharma. Our self, once seen from a perspective, comes to be seenas being filled with the Dharma; that is to say that our self bec emptiedof deluded views, simultaneously opens to the real truth of its essence, henceentrus the "mind and heart of the Buddha:, which works "in themind of a foolish being". This is SHI "complete entrusting to theBuddha as the ultimate liberation from attachment to a fixed self." summation, SHINJIN is not soemething we do not have and then somehowget, but is an exi that we awaken to; SHINJIN is theprocess of awakening to what as already been the true na Theperson of SHINJIN experiences a deep understanding of the true nature of theself and c simultaneously, as his life unfolds, and therebyentrustes his life to life itself. Even thought th of awakening isultimately a gift to us from Amida, we ordinary beings think we must pursue i efforts, and, in fact due to our deluded views, we cannot helpourselves in this regard; it is im us not to pursue awakening. Jerry Bolick[Ed comments by Tom Manship]

Homage to Chagdud Rinpoche

This poem was written in the Trinity Alps of Northern California at Rigdzin Ling, the main center of Tibetan Lama Chagdud Tulku. It was my second time there. I had the yurt, a canvas covered, circular structure secluded in a meadow, all to myself. At night the moon cast spectacular beams through the plexiglass skylight, spiralling them around the room. On moonless nights the stars were brighter than I'd ever seen. Night was my favorite time. I sat at a makeshift desk, basking in the meager warmth of a little woodstove, brewing tea, reading texts, and writing by light of a kerosene lamp.

The Buddha of Sawtooth Peak
by Pema Gonpo

the Sawtooth Peaks
erupt from deep pine valleys squirming against the floating blue vibrant sky cast in shadow of glacial ice and snow grey rock reaching for the heavens stars are pinlights in distant galaxies pointed at the earth

at the skylight of the yurt dartplayers hurling beams of light with a twitch
a flick of the wrist 186,000 miles per second piercing this tinted bullseye an eyeball observatory

through which I swim into aquamarine midnight sky silhouettes of darkness ridge and rising mountain a pulsing mass of fuzzy pine a surry with the fringe on top a geological freight train rising slowly steadily unstoppably from the bowels of the earth until bursting erupting from deep green valleys

the Sawtooth Peaks
holding up the afternoon early spring sky

I sit alongside the path connecting yurt and house across the footbridge over the swirling stream then up the rock steps the steep path to the clearing little patches of blue peek through the clouds like babies fighting sleep a mosquito hovers

a few inches from my forehead a bumblebee swings
two tight buzzsaw haloes flies away returns twice each time 360 degrees

the Buddha of Sawtooth Peak smiled upon me today
I could barely see the haggard form steadfastly meditating for the benefit of all beings amongst the glaciated boulders of the Trinity Alps

as wind whipped snow transformed the alpine desert into sandstorm fury the Buddha's eyes opened in a wide mouth grin to bow to the Sawtooth Peaks in anticipation of Maitreya the coming Buddha of enlightenment
for all sentient beings

I prostrated half a dozen times kissing the enlightened earth that blesses me with raindrops which have flowed unceasingly from person to air to cloud communion of molecules then back again and again uniting the three times connecting each thing to the Buddha connecting each thing to the Teaching an unbroken verbal lineage

I stood with my eyes upon the distant snowy peaks feeling the strangest truest feeling that the Buddha of Sawtooth Peak had risen from the ice and snow and stood in the bitter wind to watch over my approach to ease my suffering by extending a hand to see me through to a place far beyond the Sawtooth Range perhaps a smaller mountain or a valley as a bodhisattva

serving all sentient beings

This document can be acquired from a sub-directory coombspapers via anonymous FTP and COOMBSQUEST gopher on the node COOMBS.ANU.EDU.AU

The document's ftp filename and the full directory path are given in the coombspapers top level INDEX file.

Date of the document's last update/modification 03/09/93
==========
This file is the work of Stan Rosenthal. It has been placed here, with his kind permission, by Bill Fear. The author has asked that no hard copies, ie. paper copies, are made.

Stan Rosenthal may be contacted at 44 High street, St. Davids, Pembrokeshire, Dyfed, Wales, UK. Bill Fear may be contacted at 29 Blackweir Terrace, Cathays, Cardiff, South Glamorgan, Wales, UK. Tel (0222) 228858 email fear@thor.cf.ac.uk. Please use email as first method of contact, if possible. Messages can be sent to Stan Rosenthal via the above email address - they will be forwarded on in person by myself - B.F.

.....Beginning of file.....

INTRODUCTION

Because the rules of chado are binding upon both host and guests, these notes have been prepared so that you are aware of the code of conduct which is traditionally employed. They are provided in the hope that they will enable you to enjoy the evening to the full, and will be repeated by the host at the appropriate time.....so there is no need to worry, provided a visitor acts in the spirit of harmony and mutual respect, he or she is considered to be an honoured guest.

ENTERING

Before knocking at the door, please note whether water has been sprinkled, or a container of water placed at the porch. If it has not, please wait. If it has, please knock, and you will be greeted. Ideally, you should come at 7.30 p.m., fifteen minutes before the ceremony begins. Please remove your shoes and leave them in the hall. Anything else not required during the ceremony (hats, coats etc) should be left in the room at the end of the corridor. This room also serves as a smoking room during the intermission.

When asked to enter the 'Dojo', which serves as the tea room on this occasion, please bow (standing bow) towards the tokonoma (the alcove containing ornaments). You will see 'safu' placed around the room, and on each of these will be an envelope in which the utensils brought by you in 'zenrei' and required for the ceremony, have been placed. Your name will have been written on the envelope. Please bow to the safu, remove the envelope, and holding it, sit down, kneeling with your legs on either side of the safu. If you do not require a safu, pick it up and place it in front of you (it will then be removed). Place the envelope on the floor to your left. Please remain silent.

BOWING WHEN SEATED

Once you are seated all bows are performed from that position. When approached, spoken to or given food or drink by a principal guest or the host, or when addressing one of these, you should bow 'shinrai' (the hands as in 'zarai', but the back and head bowed slightly less), and when addressing or responding to another guest the 'sorai' bow should be used (fingertips only touch the floor, and the back and head are bowed fractionally).

THE USE OF UTENSILS

The items brought for the ceremony are used as follows:
One cotton cloth is used to wipe a bowl, or the edge of a bowl, when you have used it.
The silk cloth is used to pat around your mouth between drinks or courses.
The second cotton cloth (or paper napkin) is used as a pad to support the bowl which you are using, and as insulation.
The short skewer is used for picking up dry and moist sweetmeats.
The longer skewer is used for picking up small savouries.

THE KAISEKI MEAL

Because of the varied tastes of the guests, and so as not to cause offence to anyone, the Kaiseki meal prepared for this occassion has been varied slightly from the traditional fare. Please allow the principal guest(s) who have served you to start before you each time.

We begin with a bowl of hot water to drink in order to clear the palate. When you have finished, please wipe the bowl and place it to your right side, then pat your mouth dry.

When all the guests have finished, you are at liberty to chat. The conversation during the ceremony is usually about the meal, the occassion, the utensils, or the decorations. Questions on these matters are welcomed by the host, but 'gossip' should be avoided since it is considered an insult to the occassion.

The meal proper begins with a bowl of miso soup with 'ocean and mountain' garnish. (You drink direct from the bowl, first turning it twice in a clockwise direction, ninety degrees each time). This soup, and its garnish, are entirely vegan. You will also receive a puffed rice cake to eat with the soup. You should hold it on the flat of your hand, holding the open napkin underneath with the other hand to catch any pieces which might escape. The topping is all edible, and is again a vegan form of ocean and mountain food, designed to complement the soup garnish.

When putting the soup bowl down in order to eat the rice cake, the bowl should be placed on the floor to your right. When you have finished, as a signal, please place the bowl on the floor in front of you. When everyone has finished, it will be collected.

You are next presented with specially prepared vol au vont cases containing seafood. For those guests who do not eat shellfish, rice crackers with soya spread will be presented. It is for these savories that the longer skewers are used. When you have finished, place the longer skewer in front of you.

When everyone has finshed their savouries, the long skewers and platters etc will be removed, after which silence should be observed whilst the kettle is put on for tea. Warm saki is then poured by the host for each guest (water will be poured for those guests who do not drink alcohol), using the small bowls originally used for the hot water. When everybody has been served, on a signal from the host, everybody lifts their bowl and after turning it a half circle in two quarter turns (clockwise), drinks inunison, taking only one small sip, then placing the bowl on the floor to the left. Small sweetmeats are also offered at this time, one being a red bean jelly cube, and the other a marzipan ball with glace cherry topping, on a green marzipan base. It is traditional to take only one of the cubes, but two of the glace cherry topped sweets may be taken, each being skewered with the shorter skewer and placed on the napkin.

When the principal guest(s) have resumed eating and drinking, speaking may begin again; the sweetmeets are eaten, and the sake drunk. When you have finished the sake, the rim of the cup should be wiped before it is put down in front of you.

INTERMISSION

A short intermission follows (fifteen minutes). During this period, those who wish to smoke should withdraw to the outer room. Traditionally, this time is used to view and comment on the decorations in the room, contents of the tokonoma, screens, utensils, artifacts, etc. A gong or bell is struck when it is time to continue with the taking of tea. Guests having a gift to present, either to 'show a true face', or to mark the occassion, should bring them into the dojo at this stage of the proceedings and place them behind the safu before sitting, since this is the beginning of the final and most important stage of the ceremony.

TAKING TEA

Thick (strong) tea is taken without general conversation, although polite comments or pleasantaries are often exchanged quietly between guests and the host, or between the principal guest(s) and others.

When all the guests have taken their places, the host begins to prepare the 'thick' tea. Using the ladle, he pours a little hot water into the ceremonial bowl, pours it out, and wipes the bowl with a special cloth. This is known as 'purifying the bowl'.

He then scoops some powdered tea into the bowl, arranging it into a small mound in the centre. This is repeated as many times as is required, according to the number of guests present. Hot water is then ladled onto the tea, which is then kneaded into a paste with the whisk. More water is then added until the bowl contains the right amount of liquid.

The utensils are then wiped, and the bowl is slid along the floor to the principal guest, who (after bowing) picks it up, bows with it in his hands (a clean cloth/pad must be used), and makes an apology to the other guests (for taking tea before them). He (or she) then turns the bowl as previously, and sips from it. The edge of the bowl is then wiped, turned, and passed to the next guest, who turns it, sips the tea, wipes it and passes it on, until all the guests have drunk from it.

Traditionally, each guest takes three and a half sips of thick tea, but there are usually only three guests at a tea ceremony, and a maximum of five. Since we are honoured by having so many guests this evening, and wish to use our most special ceremonial bowl, you are asked to take only one sip before passing the bowl to the next guest.

The last guest to drink returns the bowl to the host, bowing when doing so. Conversation may then resume.

Dry sweets are offered next, and up to three of these may be taken, being placed on the silk napkin to the left, to await the serving of thin (weak) tea. These sweets are vegetarian, but not vegan.

The small tea bowls will have been removed and washed by this time, and will be in the possession of the host. It is traditional for one small bowl to be used, this being filled, the tea drunk by the first guest, and the bowl cleaned and refilled for the next guest...etc. However, this would be impracticable with so many guests as are present on this occassion. For this reason, a bowl of thin tea will be prepared for each guest in his or her own bowl.

When your bowl is slid to you, you should pick it up in the right hand and place the left hand (with pad) underneath it. When the principal guest(s) begin, the tea should be drunk, and the dry sweets eaten. When you have finished, please put away the small bowl. This marks the completion of tea drinking.

PRESENTING GIFTS

If the host has a gift to present to a guest, it is presented now. Similarly, if any gifts are to be exchanged or presented by guests, this is the part of the ceremony when it should occur. If he has a gift to present, the host bows towards the guest for whom it is intended, who should then rise and approach the host, sitting again in the kneeling posture. The gift is then presented.

When the host has presented his gift(s), guests should present theirs to each other if this is their intention, but it is the presenter who rises and goes to the potential recipient, taking the gift with him or her. If a gift is to be made to the host, it is left until the guests have exchanged gifts between them, if this is their intention, since the receipt of gifts by the host marks the end of the ceremony.

CHADO

The 'Way of Tea' is intended to be a microcosm of life. For this reason it is the function of the host to attempt to symbolise a particular aspect of life through the food and drink provided in the ceremony. On this occasion the intention has been to provide each of the five tastes, namely, bitter, sweet, sour, spicy, and salty.

The 'Chado' ceremony which you have graciously consented to attend this evening is performed in the manner known as 'Wabi Cha', which means 'tea of simple taste', and is conducted according to the principles of Ch'an Tao Chia. The type of Chado ceromony to which it conforms is known as 'Kaiseki', or 'warm stone'. This type of ceremony is named after the practice of early Taoists and Zenji, who, frequently being hungry on retiring for the night, would take with them to bed, a warm stone wrapped in cloth, which was used in much the same way as a hot water bottle, to relieve the pangs of hunger. The meal provided in this evening's ceremony is intended to fulfil this function of relieving the feeling of hunger.

The philosophy of chado is to engender mutual respect, harmony and tranquility. It is hoped that this evening's ceremony will go some way towards furthering that philosophy.

THE OCCASION

This evening's ceremony takes place on the fifty-second birthday of Shih-tien Roshi, who is your host, and has been arranged in order to celebrate the official opening of The Centre for the Study and Practice of Ch'an Tao Chia, otherwise known as 'Shih- Tien Gakkai' (The 'Stony Ground' School). It is therefore intended to be a happy as well as a formal occasion.

Traditionally, the thick tea used in the tea ceremony provides the bitter taste referred to earlier, but in order to give consideration to the Western palate, and because it is hoped that you will remember this evening as a happy rather than a bitter occasion, one of the principal guests went to considerable trouble to obtain a Japanese mountain tea which does not have such a bitter 'after-taste' as exists with some teas used in Chado. The thin tea is also a mountain tea, but comes from mainland China. By incorporating both Chinese and Japanese tea in this ceremony, it is intended to have symbolized the fact that Ch'an Tao Chia owes a debt to the masters from both of these nations. The music played during the intermission was specially recorded by another principal guest, and many of the artifacts and utensils used were provided by past and present students. Our thanks are conveyed to all these good people, as they are to you for honouring us by your attendance at this gathering.

.....End of file.....

Chapter I

"This fire that has gone out... in which direction from here has it gone?"

The discourses report two instances where Brahmans asked the Buddha about the nature of the goal he taught, and he responded with the analogy of the extinguished fire. There is every reason to believe that, in choosing this analogy, he was referring to a concept of fire familiar to his listeners, and, as they had been educated in the Vedic tradition, that he probably had the Vedic concept of fire in mind. This, of course, is not to say that he himself adhered to the Vedic concept, or that he was referring to it in all its details. He was simply drawing on a particular aspect of fire as seen in the Vedas so that his listeners could have a familiar reference point for making sense of what he was saying.

Now, although the Vedic texts contain several different theories concerning the physics of fire, there is at least one basic point on which they agree: Fire, even when not manifest, continues to exist in a latent form. The Vedic view of all physical phenomena is that they are the manifestation of pre-existent potencies inherent in nature. Each type of phenomenon has its corresponding potency, which has both personal & impersonal characteristics: as a god and as the powers he wields. In the case of fire, both the god & the phenomenon are called Agni:

Agni, who is generated, being produced (churned) by men through the agency of sahas.

RV 6,48,5

'Sahas' here is the potency, the power of subjugation, wielded by Agni himself. Jan Gonda, in discussing this passage, comments, 'The underlying theory must have been...that a man and his physical strength are by no means able to produce a god or potency of Agni's rank. Only the co-operation or conjunction of that special principle which seems to have been central in the descriptions of Agni's character, his power of subjugation, his overwhelming power, can lead to the result desired, the appearance of sparks and the generation of fire.' Further, 'a divine being like Agni was in a way already pre-existent when being generated by a pair of kindling sticks' (1957, pp. 22-3). As fire burns, Agni 'continues entering' into the fire (AV 4,39,9). Scattered in many places--as many separate fires--he is nevertheless one & the same thing (RV 3,55). Other fires are attached to him as branches to a tree (RV 8,19).

When fire is extinguished, Agni and his powers do not pass out of existence. Rather, they go into hiding. This point is expressed in a myth, mentioned frequently in the Vedic texts, of Agni's trying to hide himself from the other gods in places where he thought they would never perceive him. In the version told in RV 10,51, the gods finally find the hidden Agni as an embryo in the water.

> (Addressed to Agni): Great was the membrane and firm, that enveloped you when you entered the waters....We searched for you in various places, O Agni, knower of creatures, when you had entered into the waters and plants.
>
> RV 10,51

As Chauncey Blair notes, 'The concept of Agni in the waters does not imply destruction of Agni. He is merely a hidden, a potential Agni, and no less capable of powerful action' (1961, p. 103).

The implications of Agni's being an embryo are best understood in light of the theories of biological generation held in ancient India:

> The husband, after having entered his wife, becomes an embryo and is born again of her.
>
> Laws of Manu, 9,8

Just as ancient Indians saw an underlying identity connecting a father & his offspring, so too did they perceive a single identity underlying the manifest & embryonic forms of fire. In this way, Agni, repeatedly reborn, was seen as immortal; and in fact, the Vedas attribute immortality to him more frequently than to any other of the gods.

> To you, immortal! When you spring to life, all the gods sing for joy...By your powers they were made immortal...(Agni), who extended himself over all the worlds, is the protector of immortality.
>
> RV 6,7

Not only immortal, but also omnipresent: Agni in his manifest form is present in all three levels of the cosmos--heaven, air, & earth--as sun, lightning & flame-fire. As for his latent presence, he states in the myth of his hiding, 'my bodies entered various places'; a survey of the Vedas reveals a wide variety of places where his embryos may be found. Some of them--such as stone, wood, plants, & kindling sticks--relate directly to the means by which fire is kindled & fueled. Others relate more to fire-like qualities & powers, such as brilliance & vitality, present in water, plants, animals, & all beings. In the final analysis, Agni fills the entire universe as the latent embryo of growth & vitality. As Raimundo Panikkar writes, 'Agni...is one of the most comprehensive symbols of the reality that is all-encompassing' (1977, p.325).

> Agni pervades & decks the heaven & earth...his forms are scattered everywhere.
>
> RV 10,80

> He (Agni) who is the embryo of waters, embryo of woods, embryo of all things that move & do not move.
>
> RV 1,70,2

> In plants & herbs, in all existent beings, I (Agni) have deposited the embryo of increase. I have engendered all progeny on earth, and sons in women hereafter.
>
> RV 10,183,3

> You (Agni) have filled earth, heaven & the air between, and follow the whole cosmos like a shadow.
>
> RV 1,73,8

> We call upon the sage with holy verses, Agni Vaisvanara the ever-beaming, who has surpassed both heaven & earth in greatness. He is a god below, a god above us.

RV 10,88,14.

This view that Agni/fire in a latent state is immortal & omnipresent occurs also in the Upanishads that were composed circa 850-750 B.C. and later accepted into the Vedic Canon. The authors of these texts use this view to illustrate, by way of analogy, the doctrines of a unitary identity immanent in all things, and of the immortality of the soul in spite of apparent death.

Now, the light that shines higher than this heaven, on the backs of all, on the backs of everything, in the highest worlds, than which there are no higher--truly that is the same as the light which is here within a person. There is this hearing of it--when one closes one's ears and hears a sound, a roar, as of a fire blazing.

ChU 3.13.7-8

Truly, this Brahma (the god that the Upanishads say is immanent in the cosmos) shines when fire blazes, and disappears when it does not blaze. Its brilliance goes to the sun; its vital breath to the wind.

This Brahma shines when the sun is seen, and disappears when it is not seen. Its brilliance goes to the moon, its vital breath to the wind. (Similarly for moon & lightning.)

Truly, all these divinities, having entered into wind, do not perish when they die (disappear) in the wind; indeed, from there they come forth again.

KauU 2.12

In the major non-canonical Upanishads--whose period of composition is believed to overlap with the time of the Buddha--the analogy is even more explicit:

As the one fire has entered the world and becomes corresponding in form to every form, So the Inner Soul of all things corresponds in form to every form, and yet is outside.

KathU 2.2.9

As the material form of fire, when latent in its source, is not perceived-- and yet its subtle form is not destroyed, but may be seized again in its fuel-source--
So truly both (the universal Brahma & the individual Soul) are (to be seized) in the body by means of (the meditation word) AUM.
Making one's body the lower friction stick,
and AUM the upper stick, practicing the drill of meditative absorption, one may see the god,
hidden as it were.

SvU 1.13-14

One interesting development in this stratum of the Vedic literature is the positive sense in which it comes to regard extinguished fire. The Vedic hymns & earlier Upanishads saw burning fire as a positive force, the essence of life & vitality. These texts, though, see the tranquillity & inactivity of the extinguished fire as an ideal image for the soul's desired destination.

To that God, illumined by his own intellect, do I, desiring liberation, resort for refuge-- to him without parts, without activity,
        tranquil,
    impeccable, spotless,
the highest bridge to the deathless, like a fire with fuel consumed.

SvU 6.18-19

As fire through loss of fuel grows still (extinguished) in its own source, so thought by loss of activeness grows still in its own source...
For by tranquillity of thought one destroys good & evil karma.
With tranquil soul, stayed on the Soul, one enjoys unending ease.

MaiU 6.34

Whether this re-evaluation of the image of fire--seeing its extinguishing as preferable to its burning--predated the founding of Buddhism, was influenced by it, or simply paralleled it, no one can say for sure, as there are no firm dates for any of the Upanishads. At any rate, in both stages of the Vedic attitude towards fire, the thought of a fire going out carried no connotations of going out of existence at all. Instead, it implied a return to an omnipresent, immortal state. This has led some scholars to assume that, in using the image of an extinguished fire to illustrate the goal he taught, the Buddha was simply adopting the Vedic position wholesale and meant it to carry the same implications as the last quotation above: a pleasant eternal existence for a tranquil soul.

But when we look at how the Buddha actually used the image of extinguished fire in his teachings, we find that he approached the Vedic idea of latent fire from another angle entirely: If latent fire is everywhere all at once, it is nowhere in particular. If it is conceived as always present in everything, it has to be so loosely defined that it has no defining characteristics, nothing by which it might be known at all. Thus, instead of using the subsistence of latent fire as an image for immortality, he uses the diffuse, indeterminate nature of extinguished fire as understood by the Vedists to illustrate the absolute indescribability of the person who has reached the Buddhist goal.

Just as the destination of a glowing fire struck with a (blacksmith's) iron hammer, gradually growing calm,
is not known:
Even so, there is no destination to describe for those who are rightly released --having crossed over the flood of sensuality's bonds-- for those who have attained unwavering ease.

Ud viii.10

'But, Venerable Gotama (the Brahman, Aggivessana Vacchagotta, is addressing the Buddha), the monk whose mind is thus released: Where does he reappear?'

'"Reappear," Vaccha, doesn't apply.'

'In that case, Venerable Gotama, he does not reappear.'

'"Does not reappear," Vaccha, doesn't apply.'

'...both does & does not reappear.'

'...doesn't apply.'

'...Neither does nor does not reappear.'

'...doesn't apply.'...

'At this point, Venerable Gotama, I am befuddled; at this point, confused. The modicum of clarity coming to me from your earlier conversation is now obscured.'

'Of course you're befuddled, Vaccha. Of course you're confused. Deep, Vaccha, is this phenomenon, hard to see, hard to realize, tranquil, refined, beyond the scope of conjecture, subtle, to-be-experienced by the wise. For those with other views, other satisfactions, other aims, other teachers, it is difficult to know. That being the case, I will now put some questions to you. Answer as you see fit. How do you construe this, Vaccha: If a fire were burning in front of you, would you know that, "This fire is burning in front of me"?'

'...yes...'

'And suppose someone were to ask you, Vaccha, "This fire burning in front of you, dependent on what is it burning?" Thus asked, how would you reply?'

'...I would reply, "This fire burning in front of me is burning dependent on grass & timber as its sustenance."'

'If the fire burning in front of you were to go out, would you know that, "This fire burning in front of me has gone out"?'

'...yes...'

'And suppose someone were to ask you, "This fire that has gone out in front of you, in which direction from here has it gone? East? West? North? Or south?" Thus asked, how would you reply?'

'That doesn't apply, Venerable Gotama. Any fire burning dependent on a sustenance of grass and timber, being unnourished--from having consumed that sustenance and not being offered any other--is classified simply as "out" (nibbuto).'

'Even so, Vaccha, any physical form by which one describing the Tathagata would describe him: That the Tathagata has abandoned, its root destroyed, like an uprooted palm tree, deprived of the conditions of existence, not destined for future arising. Freed from the classification of form, Vaccha, the Tathagata is deep, boundless, hard-to-fathom, like the sea. "Reappears" does not apply. "Does not reappear" does not apply. "Both does & does not reappear" does not apply. "Neither reappears nor does not reappear" does not apply.

'Any feeling...Any perception...Any mental process...

'Any act of consciousness by which one describing the Tathagata would describe him: That the Tathagata has abandoned...Freed from the classification of consciousness, Vaccha, the Tathagata is deep, boundless, hard-to-fathom, like the sea.'

M 72

The person who has attained the goal is thus indescribable because he/she has abandoned all things by which he/she could be described. This point is asserted in even more thoroughgoing fashion in a pair of dialogues where two inexperienced monks who have attempted to describe the state of the Tathagata after death are cross-examined on the matter by Sariputta & the Buddha himself.

Sariputta: How do you construe this, my friend Yamaka: Do you regard form as the Tathagata?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: Do you regard feeling as the Tathagata?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: ...perception...?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: ...mental processes...?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: ...consciousness...?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: Do you regard the Tathagata as being in form? Elsewhere than form? In feeling? Elsewhere than feeling? In perception? Elsewhere than perception? In mental processes? Elsewhere than mental processes? In consciousness? Elsewhere than consciousness?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: Do you regard the Tathagata as form-feeling-perception-mental processes-cognizance?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: Do you regard the Tathagata as that which is without form, without feeling, without perception, without mental processes, without cognizance?

Yamaka: No, sir.

Sariputta: And so, my friend Yamaka--when you do not ascertain the Tathagata even in the present life--is it proper for you to declare, 'As I understand the Teaching explained by the Exalted One, a monk with no more (mental) effluents, on the break-up of the body, is annihilated, perishes & does not exist after death'?

Yamaka: Previously, friend Sariputta, I did foolishly hold that evil supposition. But now, having heard the Venerable Sariputta's explanation of the Teaching, I have abandoned that evil supposition, and the Teaching has become clear.

Sariputta: Then, friend Yamaka, how would you answer if you are thus asked: A monk, a worthy one, with no more mental effluents, what is he on the break-up of the body, after death?

Yamaka: Thus asked, I would answer, 'Form...feeling... perception...mental processes...consciousness are inconstant. That which is inconstant is stressful. That which is stressful has stopped and gone to its end.'

S xxii.85

The Buddha puts the same series of questions to the monk Anuradha who--knowing that the Tathagata after death could not be described in terms of existence, non-existence, both or neither--had attempted to describe the Tathagata in other terms. After receiving the same answers as Yamaka had given Sariputta, the Buddha concludes:

'And so, Anuradha--when you do not ascertain the Tathagata even in the present life--is it proper for you to declare, "Friend, the Tathagata--the supreme man, the superlative man, attainer of the superlative attainment--being described, is described otherwise than with these four positions: The Tathagata exists after death, does not exist after death, both does & does not exist after death, neither exists nor does not exist after death"?'

'No, venerable sir.'

'Very good, Anuradha. Both formerly & now, Anuradha, it is only stress that I describe, and the stopping of stress.'

S xxii.86

Thus none of the four alternatives--reappearing/existing, not reappearing/existing, both, & neither--cannot apply to the Tathagata after death, because even in this lifetime there is no way of defining or identifying what the Tathagata is.

To identify a person by the contents of his or her mind--such things as feelings, perceptions, or mental processes--there would have to be a way of knowing what those contents are. In ordinary cases, the texts say, this is possible through either of two cognitive skills that a meditator can develop through the practice of meditation, and that beings on higher planes of existence can also share: the ability to know where a living being is reborn after death, and the ability to know another being's thoughts.

In both skills the knowledge is made possible by the fact that the ordinary mind exists in a state of dependency on its objects. When a being is reborn, its consciousness has to become established at a certain point: This point is what a master of the first skill perceives. When the ordinary mind thinks, it needs a mental object to act as a prop or support (arammana) for its thoughts: This support is what a master of the second skill perceives. The mind of a person who has attained the goal, though, is free from all dependencies, and so offers no means by which a master of either skill can perceive it.

> Then the Blessed One went with a large number of monks to the Black Rock on the slope of Isigili. From afar he saw Ven. Vakkali lying dead on a couch. Now at that time a smokiness, a darkness was moving to the east, moved to the west, moved to the north, the south, above, below, moved to the intermediate directions. The Blessed One said, 'Monks, do you see that smokiness, that darkness...?'
>
> 'Yes, Lord.'
>
> 'That is Mara*, the Evil One. He is searching for the consciousness of Vakkali the Clansman: "Where is the consciousness of Vakkali the Clansman established?" But, monks, it is through unestablished consciousness that Vakkali the Clansman has attained total nibbana.'

S xxii.87

(The Buddha describes the meditative state of a person who has achieved the goal and is experiencing a foretaste of nibbana after death while still alive. We will discuss the nature of this meditative state below. Here, though, we are interested in how this person appears to those who would normally be able to fathom another person's mind.)

There is the case, Sandha, where for an excellent thoroughbred of a man the perception of earth with regard to earth has ceased to exist; the perception of liquid with regard to liquid...the perception of heat with regard to heat...the perception of wind with regard to wind...the perception of the sphere of the infinitude of space with regard to the sphere of the infinitude of space...the perception of the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness with regard to the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness...the perception of the sphere of nothingness with regard to the sphere of nothingness...the perception of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception with regard to the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception...the perception of this world with regard to this world...the next world with regard to the next world...and whatever is seen, heard, sensed, cognized, attained, sought after, pondered by the intellect: the perception with regard even to that has ceased to exist.

Meditating in this way, the excellent thoroughbred of a man meditates dependent neither on earth, liquid, heat, wind, the sphere of the infinitude of space, the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness, the sphere of nothingness, the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception, this world, the next world, nor on whatever is seen, heard, sensed, cognized, attained, sought after or pondered by the intellect--and yet he does meditate. And to this excellent thoroughbred of a man, meditating in this way, the gods, together with Indra, the Brahmas & their chief queens, pay homage even from afar:

Homage to you, O thoroughbred man.
Homage to you, O superlative man-- of whom we have no direct knowledge even by means of what it is you meditate dependent on.

A xi.9

Thus the mind that has attained the goal cannot be known or described from the outside because it is completely free of any dependency--any support or object inside it--by which it might be known. This point forms the context for the dialogue in which the Brahman Upasiva asks the Buddha about the person who attains the goal.

Upasiva:
And does he stand firm there, unaffected
All-seeing for many years?
Right there would he be cooled & released?
Would (his) consciousness be of such a sort?

The Buddha:
As a flame overthrown by the force of the wind
Goes to an end that cannot be classified,
So the sage freed from naming (mental) activity
Goes to an end that cannot be classified.

Upasiva:
He who has reached the end:
Does he not exist,
Or is he for eternity free from affliction?
Please, sage, declare this to me as this phenomenon has been known by you.

The Buddha:
One who has reached the end has no criterion By which anyone would say that-- it does not exist for him.
When all phenomena are done away with All means of speaking are done away with as well.

Sn v.6

The important term in the last verse is pamana: 'criterion'. It is a pregnant term, with meanings both in philosophical and in ordinary usage. In philosophical discourse, it refers to a means of knowledge or a standard used to assess the validity of an assertion or object. In the Buddha's time, and later, various schools of thought specialized in discussing the nature and role of such criteria, and the Maitri Upanishad contains one of their basic tenets:

Because of its precision, this (the course of the sun through the zodiac) is the criterion for time. For without a criterion, there is no ascertaining the things to be assessed.

MaiU 6.14

Thus when a mind has abandoned all phenomena, there is no means or criterion by which anyone else could know or say anything about it.

This much is obvious. But the verse also seems to be saying that the goal is indescribable from the inside--for the person experiencing it--as well. First, the verse is in answer to Upasiva's inquiry into the goal as the Buddha has known it. Secondly, the line, 'it does not exist for him,' can mean not only that the person experiencing the goal offers no criteria to the outside by which anyone else might describe him/her, but also that the experience offers no criteria from the inside for describing it either. And as we have already noted, the outside criteria by which a person might be described are determined precisely by what is there inside that person's mind. Thus, for the person experiencing the goal, there would not even be any means of knowing whether or not there was a person having the experience. There would simply be the experience in & of itself.

This is where the ordinary meaning of pamana--as limit or measurement--comes in. This meaning goes back to the Vedic hymns. There, the act of measuring is seen as an essential part of the process of the creation (or 'building,' like a house) of the cosmos. In one Rg Vedic hymn (X.129), for example, the creation of mind is followed by the appearance of a horizontal limit or measuring line separating male from female (heaven from earth). From this line, the rest of the cosmos is laid out.

So to say that no criterion/measurement/limit exists for the person experiencing the goal means that the person's experience is totally free of all the most elementary perceptions & distinctions that underlie our knowledge of the cosmos. And the word "free"--one of the few the Buddha uses in a straightforward way to describe the mind that has attained the goal--thus carries two meanings: free from dependency, as we have already seen, and free from limitations, even of the most abstruse & subtlest sort.

This second reading of the verse--dealing with the limitlessness & undescribability of the goal for the person experiencing it--is supported by a number of other passages in the Pali Canon referring explicitly to the inner experience of the goal.

Consciousness without feature, without end luminous all around:
Here water, earth, fire, & wind have no footing.
Here long & short coarse & fine fair & foul name & form
are all brought to an end.
With the stopping of (the activity of) consciousness, each is here brought to an end.

D 11

There is, monks, that sphere where there is neither earth nor water, nor fire nor wind, nor sphere of the infinitude of space, nor sphere of the infinitude of consciousness, nor sphere of nothingness, nor sphere of neither perception nor non-perception, nor this world, nor the next world, nor sun, nor moon. And there, I say, there is neither coming nor going nor stasis, nor passing away nor arising: without stance, without foundation, without support (mental object). This, just this, is the end of stress.

Ud viii.1

Where water, earth, fire, & wind have no footing:
There the stars do not shine,
    the sun is not visible,
    the moon does not appear,
    darkness is not found.
And when a sage, a worthy one, through sagacity has known (this) for himself,

Then from form & formless, from pleasure & pain,
He is freed.

Ud ii.10

Consciousness without feature, without end, luminous all around, does not partake of the solidity of earth, the liquidity of water, the radiance of fire, the windiness of wind, the divinity of devas (and so on through a list of the various levels of godhood to) the allness of the All.

M 49

The phrase 'does not partake of the allness of the All' can best be understood with reference to the following three passages:

What is the All? Simply the eye & forms, ear & sounds, nose & odors, tongue & flavors, body & tactile sensations, intellect & ideas. This, monks, is termed the All. Anyone who would say, 'Repudiating this All, I will describe another,' if questioned on what exactly might be the grounds for his statement, would be unable to explain, and furthermore, would be put to grief. Why? Because it lies beyond range.

S xxxv.23

If the six senses & their objects--sometimes called the six spheres of contact--constitute the All, is there anything beyond the All?

MahaKotthita: With the remainderless stopping & fading of the six spheres of contact (vision, hearing, smell, taste, touch, & intellection) is it the case that there is anything else?

Sariputta: Do not say that, my friend.

MahaKotthita: With the remainderless stopping & fading of the six spheres of contact, is it the case that there is not anything else?

Sariputta: Do not say that, my friend.

MahaKotthita: ...is it the case that there both is & is not anything else?

Sariputta: Do not say that, my friend.

MahaKotthita: ...is it the case that there neither is nor is not anything else?

Sariputta: Do not say that, my friend.

MahaKotthita: Being asked...if there is anything else, you say, 'Do not say that, my friend'. Being asked...if there is not anything else...if there both is & is not anything else... if there neither is nor is not anything else, you say, 'Do not say that, my friend'. Now, how is the meaning of this statement to be understood?

Sariputta: Saying...is it the case that there is anything else... is it the case that there is not anything else...is it the case that there both is & is not anything else...is it the case the there neither is nor is not anything else, one is differentiating non-differentiation. However far the six spheres of contact go, that is how far differentiation goes. However far differentiation goes, that is how far the six spheres of contact go. With the remainderless fading & stopping of the six spheres of contact, there comes to be the stopping, the allaying of differentiation.

A iv.173

The sphere of non-differentiation, although it may not be described, may be realized through direct experience.

Monks, that sphere should be realized where the eye (vision) stops and the perception (mental noting) of form fades. That sphere is to be realized where the ear stops and the perception of sound fades...where the nose stops and the perception of odor fades...where the tongue stops and the perception of flavor fades...where the body stops and the perception of tactile sensation fades...where the intellect stops and the perception of idea/phenomenon fades: That sphere should be realized.

S xxxv.116

This experience of the goal--absolutely unlimited freedom, beyond classification and exclusive of all else--is termed the elemental nibbana property with no 'fuel' remaining (anupadisesa-nibbana-dhatu). It is one of two ways in which nibbana is experienced, the distinction between the two being expressed as follows:

Monks, there are these two forms of the nibbana property. What two? The nibbana property with fuel remaining, and the nibbana property with no fuel remaining.

And what is the nibbana property with fuel remaining? There is the case where a monk is a worthy one devoid of mental effluents, who has attained completion, finished the task, laid down the burden, attained the true goal, destroyed the bonds of becoming, and is released through right knowledge. His five sense faculties still remain, and owing to their being intact, he is cognizant of the pleasant & the unpleasant, and is sensitive to pleasure & pain. That which is the passing away of passion, aversion, & delusion in him is termed the nibbana property with fuel remaining.

And what is the nibbana property with no fuel remaining? There is the case where a monk is a worthy one...released through right knowledge. All that is sensed by him, being unrelished, will grow cold right here. This is termed the nibbana property with no fuel remaining.

Iti 44

The phrase referring to the range of feeling as 'growing cold right here' is a set expression describing death as experienced by one who has reached the goal. The verse following this passage states explicitly that this is what is meant here.

These two nibbana properties proclaimed by the one with vision the one independent
    the one who is Such:
one property, here in this life with fuel remaining from the ending of craving, the guide to becoming

and that with no fuel remaining after this life in which all becoming stops completely.

Those who know this state uncompounded their minds released through the ending of craving,
    the guide to becoming,

they, attaining the Teaching's core, delighting in the depletion of craving, have abandoned all becoming:
        They, the Such.

            Iti 44

The Verses of the Elder Udayin suggest a simile to illustrate the distinction between these two nibbana properties:

A great blazing fire unnourished grows calm
And while its embers exist is said to be out:
Conveying a meaning,
this image is taught by the cognizant.
Great Nagas* will recognize the Naga as taught by the Naga As free from passion free from aversion
        free from delusion
            without mental effluent.
His body discarded, the Naga will go totally out without effluent.

Thag xv.2

Here Ven. Udayin compares the nibbana property with fuel remaining--the state of being absolutely free from passion, aversion, & delusion--to a fire whose flames have died out, but whose embers are still glowing. Although he does not complete the analogy, he seems to imply that the nibbana property without fuel remaining--when the Worthy One discards his body at death--is like a fire so totally out that its embers have grown cold.

Thus the completely free & unadulterated experience we have been discussing is that of nibbana after death. There are, though, states of concentration which give a foretaste of this experience in the present life and which enabled the Buddha to say that he taught the goal on the basis of direct knowledge.

Ananda: In what way, venerable sir, might a monk attain concentration of such a form that he would have neither the perception of earth with regard to earth, nor of water with regard to water, nor of fire...wind...the sphere of the infinitude of space...the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness...the sphere of the infinitude of nothingness... the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception...this world...nor of the next world with regard to the next world, and yet he would still be percipient?

The Buddha: There is the case, Ananda, where he would be percipient of this: 'This is peace, this is exquisite--the resolution of all mental processes; the relinquishment of all the paraphernalia of becoming; the ending of craving; dispassion; stopping; nibbana.'

A x.6

(Ananda puts the same question to Sariputta, who responds that he himself once had experienced such a concentration.)

Ananda: But what were you percipient of at that time?

Sariputta: 'The stopping of becoming--nibbana--the stopping of becoming--nibbana': One perception arose in me as another perception stopped. Just as in a blazing woodchip fire, one flame arises as another flame disappears, even so, 'The stopping of becoming--nibbana--the stopping of becoming--nibbana': One perception arose in me as another one stopped. I was percipient of the stopping of becoming--nibbana.

A x.7

Ananda: It is amazing, my friend, it is marvelous, how the Master has attained & recognized the opportunity for the purification of beings...and the direct realization of nibbana, where the eye will be, and forms, and yet one will not be sensitive to that sphere; where the ear will be, and sounds...where the nose will be, and odors...where the tongue will be, and flavors...where the body will be, and tactile sensations...where the intellect will be, and ideas, and yet one will not be sensitive to that sphere.

Udayin: Is one insensitive to that sphere with or without a perception in mind?

Ananda: ...with a perception in mind...

Udayin: ...what perception?

Ananda: There is the case where with the complete transcending of perceptions dealing with form, and the passing away of perceptions of resistance, and not heeding perceptions of diversity, thinking, 'infinite space,' one remains in the sphere of the infinitude of space: Having this perception in mind, one is not sensitive to that sphere.

Further, with the complete transcending of the sphere of the infinitude of space, thinking, 'infinite consciousness,' one remains in the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness: Having this perception in mind, one is not sensitive to that sphere.

Further, with the complete transcending of the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness, thinking, 'There is nothing,' one remains in the sphere of nothingness: Having this perception in mind, one is not sensitive to that sphere.

Once, friend, when I was staying in Saketa at the Game Refuge in the Black Forest, the nun Jatila Bhagika went to where I was staying, and on arrival--having bowed to me--stood to one side. As soon as she had stood to one side, she said to me: 'The concentration whereby--neither pressed down nor forced back, nor with mental processes kept blocked or suppressed--still as a result of release, contented as a result of stillness, and as a result of contentment one is not agitated: This concentration is said by the Master to be the fruit of what?'

I said to her, '...This concentration is said by the Master to be the fruit of gnosis (the knowledge of Awakening).' Having this sort of perception, friend, one is not sensitive to that sphere.

A ix.37

In this extraordinary state of mental poise--neither pressed, forced, blocked, or suppressed--nibbana in the present life is experienced as freedom from all perception dealing with the six sensory spheres & the spheres of meditative absorption. Although one is conscious, and these spheres are present, one does not partake of them.

On the level of ordinary sensory experience, however, nibbana in the present life is experienced by the Worthy One as the passing away of passion, aversion, & delusion. This implies that these three states are analogous to fire; and as we saw in the Introduction, they are directly referred to as fires at various points in the Canon. On the surface, the notion of passion & aversion as fires hardly requires explanation, but in order to gain a fuller appreciation of the analogies that the Canon draws between fire on the one hand, and passion, aversion, & delusion on the other, we first need some background on the specifically Buddhist views on fire it contains.

Chapter II

"Fire burns with clinging, and not without clinging."

Although the compilers of the Pali Canon were not concerned with teaching the physical sciences, there are frequent passages where they cite the behavior of the physical universe, in similes or examples, to illustrate points of doctrine. A number of these passages discuss questions of heat, motion, meteorology, the etiology of diseases, and so forth, in enough detail to show that a common theory underlies their explanation. That theory centers around the concept of 'dhatu,' property or potential. The physical properties presented in this theory are four: those of earth (solidity), liquid, heat, & wind (motion). Three of them--liquid, heat, & wind--are potentially active. When they are aggravated, agitated or provoked--the Pali term here, 'pakuppati', is used also on the psychological level, where it means angered or upset--they act as the underlying cause for activity in nature. Fire, for example, is said to occur when the heat property is provoked.

> There comes a time when the external heat property is provoked, and consumes village, town & city, countryside & rural area, and then, coming to the edge of a green district, the edge of a road, the edge of a rocky district, to the water's edge, or to a lush, well-watered area, goes out from lack of sustenance.
>
> M 28

Once a fire has been provoked, it needs 'upadana'--commonly translated as fuel--to continue burning. Upadana has other meanings besides fuel, though--one is the nourishment that sustains the life & growth of a tree--and as we shall see below, wind can also function as a fire's upadana. Thus, 'sustenance' would seem to be a more precise translation for the term.

> 'How do you construe this, young man: Which fire would be more brilliant, luminous, & dazzling--that which burned in dependence on a sustenance of grass & timber, or that which burned in dependence on having relinquished a sustenance of grass & timber?'
>
> 'If it were possible, Gotama, for a fire to burn in dependence on having relinquished a sustenance of grass & timber, that fire would be the more brilliant, luminous, & dazzling.'
>
> 'It's impossible, young man, there is no way, that a fire could burn in dependence on having relinquished a sustenance of grass & timber, aside from a feat of psychic power....'
>
> M 99

> 'Just as a fire, Vaccha, burns with sustenance, and not without sustenance, even so I declare the rebirth of one who has sustenance, and not of one without sustenance.'
>
> 'But, Venerable Gotama, at the moment a flame is being swept on by the wind and goes a far distance, what do you say is its sustenance then?'
>
> 'Vaccha, when a flame is being swept on by the wind and goes a far distance, I say that it is wind-sustained. The wind,

Vaccha, is its sustenance at that time.'

'And at the moment when a being sets this body aside and has not yet attained another body, what do you say is its sustenance then?'

'Actually, Vaccha, when a being sets this body aside and has not yet attained another body, I say that it is craving-sustained. Craving, Vaccha, is its sustenance at that time.'

S xliv.9

Another meaning for upadana is clinging, which suggests that, just as a tree clings to the soil that provides its sustenance, fire clings to its fuel. Thus the above passage could also read, 'fire burns with clinging and not without clinging'--a characteristic of fire that was observed in other ancient Asian traditions, such as the Chinese I Ching, as well.

The clinging nature of fire is reflected in a number of other idioms used by the Pali Canon to describe its workings. For one, an object that catches fire is said to get 'stuck' (passive) or to 'stick' (active): Adherence is a two-way process.

Just as a wing bone or tendon parings, monks, thrown into a fire don't catch fire (lit: 'stick' or 'get stuck'), keep apart, turn aside, and are not drawn in; even so the heart of a monk who spends time often with a mind accustomed to focusing on the repulsive, doesn't stick to the (thought of) engaging in the sexual act, keeps apart, turns aside and is not drawn in, and remains either indifferent or repelled.

A vii.46

The second side of the attachment--that fire, in sticking to something, gets stuck--is reflected in yet another idiom in the Pali Canon: When it leaves a piece of fuel it has been clinging to, it is said to be released.

> Just as fire...after being released from a house of reeds or a house of grass, burns even gabled houses, plastered, latched, shut against the wind; even so, all dangers that arise, arise from fools, and not from wise men; all disasters...all troubles that arise, arise from fools and not from wise men.
>
> M 115

This sense of fire's being entrapped as it burns echoes the stanza from the Svetasvatara Upanishad, quoted above (page 19), that refers to fire as being 'seized' when ignited by the friction of fire sticks. Apparently the Buddhists were not alone in their time in seeing attachment & entrapment as they watched a fire burn. And this would account for the way early Buddhist poetry tends to couple the image of an extinguished fire with the notion of freedom:

> like a flame's going out > was the liberation of awareness.
>
> D 16

as a flame overthrown by the force of the wind...
so the sage freed from mental activity...

Sn v.6

So, to summarize: The image of an extinguished fire carried no connotations of annihilation for the early Buddhists. Rather, the aspects of fire that to them had significance for the mind-fire analogy are these: Fire, when burning, is in a state of agitation, dependence, attachment, & entrapment--both clinging & being stuck to its sustenance. Extinguished, it becomes calm, independent, indeterminate, & unattached: It lets go of its sustenance and is released.

This same nexus of events, applied to the workings of the mind, occurs repeatedly in Canonical passages describing the attainment of the goal:

One attached is unreleased; one unattached is released. Should consciousness, when standing (still), stand attached to (a physical) form, supported by form (as its object), established on form, seeking enjoyment, it would exhibit growth, increase, & proliferation. Should consciousness, when standing (still), stand attached to feeling...to perception... to mental processes...it would exhibit growth, increase, & proliferation. Were someone to say, 'I will describe a coming, a going, a passing away, an arising, a growth, an increase or a proliferation of consciousness apart from form, from feeling, from perception, from mental processes,' that would be impossible.

If a monk abandons passion for the property of form... feeling...perception...mental processes...consciousness, then owing to the abandonment of passion, the support is cut > off, and there is no base for consciousness. Consciousness, thus unestablished, not proliferating, not performing any function, is released. Owing to its release, it stands still. Owing to its stillness, it is contented. Owing to its contentment, it is not agitated. Not agitated, he (the monk) is totally 'nibbana-ed' right within himself. He discerns that 'Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world.'

>
> S xxii.53

This being the set of events--stillness, independence, unattachment--associated with the extinguishing of a fire and the attainment of the goal, it would appear that, of all the etymologies offered to explain the word 'nibbana,' the one closest to its original connotations is that quoted by Buddhaghosa in The Path of Purification (VIII, 247). There he derives the word from the negative prefix 'nir,' plus 'vana,' or binding*: 'Unbinding'.

Modern scholars have tended to scorn this derivation as fanciful, and they favor such hypotheses as 'blowing out,' 'not blowing' or 'covering.' But although these hypotheses may make sense in terms of modern Western ideas about fire, they are hardly relevant to the way nibbana is used in the Canon. Freedom, on the other hand, is more than relevant. It is central, both in the context of ancient Indian theories of fire, and in the psychological context of attaining the goal: 'Not agitated, he is totally unbound right within.'

So 'Unbinding' would seem to be the best equivalent for nibbana we have in English. What kind of unbinding? We have already gained some idea--liberation from dependency & limitations, from agitation & death--but it turns out that nibbana is not the only term the Buddha borrowed from the workings of fire to describe the workings of the mind. Upadana is another, and a survey of how he applied it to the mind will help to show what is loosed in the mind's unbinding and how.

Chapter III

"Forty cartloads of timber."

Upadana carries both of its meanings--clinging & sustenance--when applied to the mind. It refers on the one hand both to mental clinging & to the object clung to, and on the other to both the act of taking mental sustenance & the sustenance itself. This, of course, raises the question, 'Sustenance for what?' In the description of Dependent Origination, upadana forms the condition for becoming and, through becoming, for birth, old age, death, and the entire mass of suffering & stress. Thus the answer: 'Sustenance for becoming' & its attendant ills.

> Just as if a great mass of fire, of ten...twenty...thirty or forty cartloads of timber were burning, and into it a man would time & again throw dried grass, dried cow dung, & dried timber, so that the great mass of fire--thus nourished, thus sustained--would burn for a long, long time; even so, monks, in one who keeps focusing on the allure of those phenomena that offer sustenance (lit: 'flammable phenomena'), craving develops; with craving as condition, sustenance; with sustenance as condition, becoming; with becoming as condition, birth; from birth--ageing, sickness & death, sorrow, lamentation, grief, & despair. Thus is the origin of this entire mass of suffering & stress.
>
> Just as if a great mass of fire...were burning, into which a man simply would not time and again throw dried grass, dried cow dung or dried timber, so that the great mass of fire--its original sustenance being consumed, and no other being offered--would, without nourishment, go out; even so, monks, in one who keeps focusing on the drawbacks of those phenomena that offer sustenance, craving stops. From the stopping of craving, sustenance stops. From the stopping of sustenance, becoming...birth...ageing, sickness & death, > sorrow, lamentation, grief, & despair all stop. Thus is the stopping of this entire mass of suffering & stress.

>
> S xiii.52

The Buddha made a distinction between phenomena that offer sustenance & the sustenance itself.

> And what, monks, are phenomena that offer sustenance? What is sustenance? Form, monks, is a phenomenon offering sustenance. Any desire or passion related to it, is sustenance related to it. Feeling...Perception...Mental processes... Consciousness is a phenomenon offering sustenance. Any desire or passion related to it, is sustenance related to it.
>
> S xii.121

Thus passion & desire are both the act of taking sustenance and the sustenance itself, while form, feeling, mental processes, & consciousness simply offer the opportunity for them to occur.

Alternatively, we can translate the distinction as one between clingable phenomena & the clinging itself.

> And what, monks, are clingable phenomena? What is clinging? Form, monks, is a clingable phenomenon. Any desire or passion related to it, is clinging related to it. Feeling...Perception...Mental processes...Consciousness is a clingable phenomenon. Any desire or passion related to it, is clinging related to it.

S xii.121

In this case, passion & desire are the act of clinging and the object clung to, while form, feeling, & the rest simply offer the opportunity for them to occur.

Still, the two sides of this distinction are so closely interrelated that they are hardly distinct at all.

Visakha: Is it the case that clinging/sustenance is the same thing as the five aggregates for clinging/sustenance (form, feeling, perception, mental processes & consciousness), or is it something separate?

Sister Dhammadinna: Neither is clinging/sustenance the same thing as the five aggregates for clinging/ sustenance, my friend, nor is it something separate. Whatever desire & passion there is with regard to the five aggregates for clinging/sustenance, that is the clinging/sustenance there.

M 44

(The use of the word aggregate (khandha) here may relate to the fire image, as khandha can also mean the trunk of a tree.)

The desire & passion for these five aggregates can take any of four forms.

Monks, there are four (modes of) sustenance for becoming. What four? Sensuality as a form of sustenance, views as a > form of sustenance, precepts & practices as a form of sustenance, doctrines of the self as a form of sustenance.

>
> M 11

These four modes of sustenance acts as the focus for many of the passages in the Canon that describe the attainment of the goal. Because they are so closely related to the notion of nibbana--they are the binding loosened in the unbinding of the mind--each of them deserves to be considered in detail.

SENSUALITY

First, sensuality. The Buddha recommends relinquishing attachment to sensuality, not because sensual pleasures are in any way evil, but because the attachment itself is dangerous: both in terms of the pain experienced when a relished pleasure inevitably ends, and in terms of the detrimental influence such attachment can have on a person's actions--and thus on his or her future condition.

> It is with a cause, monks, that sensual thinking occurs, and not without a cause...And how is it, monks, that sensual thinking occurs with a cause and not without a cause? In dependence on the property of sensuality, there occurs the perception of sensuality. In dependence on the perception of sensuality, there occurs the consideration of sensuality... the desire for sensuality...the fever for sensuality...the quest for sensuality. Questing for sensuality, monks, an uninstructed, run-of-the-mill person conducts himself wrongly through three means: through body, through speech, & through mind.

Just as if a man were to throw a burning firebrand into a dry, grassy wilderness and not quickly stamp it out with his hands & feet, and thus whatever animals inhabiting the grass & timber would come to ruin & loss; even so, monks, any contemplative or priest who does not quickly abandon, dispel, demolish, & wipe out of existence any wrong-headed, unwise perceptions once they have arisen, will dwell in stress in the present life--troubled, despairing, & feverish--and on the break-up of the body, after death, can expect a bad destination.

S xiv.12

This is not to deny that sensual pleasures provide a certain form of happiness, but that happiness must be weighed against the greater pains & disappointments sensuality can bring.

Now what is the allure of sensuality? There are, monks, these five strands of sensuality. What five? Forms cognizable via the eye--agreeable, pleasing, charming, endearing, fostering desire, enticing. Sounds cognizable via the ear... Aromas cognizable via the nose...Flavors cognizable via the tongue...Tactile sensations cognizable via the body--agreeable, pleasing, charming, endearing, fostering desire, enticing. Now whatever pleasure or joy arises in dependence on these five strands of sensuality, that is the allure of sensuality.

And what is the drawback of sensuality? There is the case where, on account of the occupation by which a clansman makes a living--whether checking or accounting or calculating or plowing or trading or cattle tending or archery or as a king's man, or whatever the occupation may be--he faces cold, he faces heat, being harassed by mosquitoes & flies, wind & sun & creeping things, dying from hunger & thirst.

Now this drawback in the case of sensuality, this mass of stress visible here & now, has sensuality for its reason, sensuality for its source, sensuality for its cause, the reason being simply sensuality.

If the clansman gains no wealth while thus working & striving & making effort, he sorrows, grieves & laments, beats his breast, becomes distraught: 'My work is in vain, my efforts are fruitless!' Now this drawback too in the case of sensuality, this mass of stress visible here & now, has sensuality for its reason...

If the clansman gains wealth while thus working & striving & making effort, he experiences pain & grief in protecting it: 'How shall neither kings nor thieves make off with my property, nor fire burn it, nor water sweep it away nor hateful heirs make off with it?' And as he thus guards and watches over his property, kings or thieves make off with it, or fire burns it, or water sweeps it away, or hateful heirs make off with it. And he sorrows, grieves & laments, beats his breast, becomes distraught: 'What was mine is no more!' Now this drawback too in the case of sensuality, this mass of stress visible here & now, has sensuality for its reason...

Furthermore, it is with sensuality for the reason, sensuality for the source, sensuality for the cause, the reason being simply sensuality, that kings quarrel with kings, nobles with nobles, priests with priests, householders with householders, mother with child, child with mother, father with child, child with father, brother with brother, sister with sister, brother with sister, sister with brother, friend with friend. And then in their quarrels, brawls, & disputes, they attack one another with fists or with clods or with sticks or with knives, so that they incur death or deadly pain. Now this drawback too in the case of sensuality, this mass of stress visible here & now, has sensuality for its reason...

Furthermore, it is with sensuality for the reason, sensuality for the source...that (men), taking swords & shields and buckling on bows & quivers, charge into battle massed in double array while arrows & spears are flying and swords are flashing; and there they are wounded by arrows & spears, and their heads are cut off by swords, so that they incur death or deadly pain. Now this drawback too in the case of sensuality, this mass of stress visible here & now, has sensuality for its reason...

Furthermore, it is with sensuality for the reason, sensuality for the source...that (men), taking swords & shields and buckling on bows & quivers, charge slippery bastions while arrows & spears are flying and swords are flashing; and there they are splashed with boiling cow dung and crushed under heavy weights, and their heads are cut off by swords, so that they incur death or deadly pain. Now this drawback too in the case of sensuality, this mass of stress visible here & now, has sensuality for its reason, sensuality for its source, sensuality for its cause, the reason being simply sensuality.

M 13

Sumedha to her fianc_:

In the face of the Deathless, what worth are your sensual pleasures?
For all delights in sensuality are burning & boiling aggravated, aglow....
A blazing grass firebrand, held in the hand:

Those who let go
do not get burned.
Sensuality is like a firebrand.
It burns
those who do not let go.

Thig xvi.1

Even the more honorable emotions that can develop from sensual attraction--such as love & personal devotion--ultimately lead to suffering & stress when one is inevitably parted from the person one loves.

Once in this same Savatthi there was a certain man whose wife died. Owing to her death he went mad, out of his mind, and wandering from street to street, crossroads to crossroads, would say, 'Have you seen my wife? Have you seen my wife?' From this it may be realized how from a dear one, owing to a dear one, comes sorrow & lamentation, pain, grief, & despair.

Once in this same Savatthi there was a wife who went to her relatives' home. Her relatives, having separated her from her husband, wanted to give her to another against her will. So she said to her husband, 'These relatives of mine, having separated us, want to give me to another against my will,' whereupon he cut her in two and slashed himself open, thinking, 'Dead we shall be together.' And from this it may be realized how from a dear one, owing to a dear one, comes sorrow & lamentation, pain, grief, & despair.

M 87

How do you construe this, monks: Which is greater, the tears you have shed while transmigrating & wandering this long time--crying & weeping from being joined with what is displeasing, from being separated from what is pleasing--or the water in the four great oceans?...This is the greater: The tears you have shed...Why is that? From an inconstruable beginning, monks, comes transmigration. A beginning point is not evident, though beings hindered by ignorance and fettered by craving are transmigrating & wandering on. Long have you thus experienced stress, experienced pain, experienced loss, swelling the cemeteries--long enough to become disenchanted with all conditioned things, enough to become dispassionate, enough to be released.

S xv.3

A theme recurrent throughout the Canon is that complete knowledge of any object does not end with an understanding of its allure & drawbacks, but goes on to comprehend what brings emancipation from the mental fetters based on both.

And what is the emancipation from sensuality? Whatever is the subduing of passion & desire, the abandoning of passion & desire for sensuality, that is the emancipation from sensuality.

M 13

Sundara Samudda:

Ornamented, finely clothed garlanded, adorned,
Her feet stained red with lac, she wore slippers:
        a courtesan.
Stepping out of her slippers-- her hands raised before me palm-to-palm over her heart-- She softly, tenderly, in measured words
    spoke to me first:
'You are young, recluse.
    Heed my message:
Partake of human sensuality.
    I will give you luxury.
Truly I vow to you,
    I will tend to you as to a fire.
When we are old,
    both leaning on canes,
Then we will both become recluses, winning the benefits of both worlds.'
And seeing her before me-- a courtesan, ornamented, finely clothed, hands palm-to-palm over her heart-- like a snare of death laid out, Apt attention arose in me,
    the drawbacks appeared, disenchantment stood at an even keel:
With that, my heart was released....

Thag vii.1

Seeing a form unmindfully, focusing on its pleasing features, One knows with mind enflamed and remains fastened to it.

(Notice how these lines draw directly on the image of burning as entrapment.)

One's feelings, born of the form, grow numerous.
Greed & provocation
injure one's mind.
Thus amassing stress
one is said to be far from Unbinding.
(And so on with the rest of the six senses.)
One not enflamed with forms --seeing a form with mindfulness firm-- Knows with mind unenflamed and does not remain fastened there.
While he is seeing a form
--and even experiencing feeling--
It falls away and does not accumulate.
Faring mindful.
and thus not amassing stress, he is said to be in the presence of Unbinding.
(And so on with the rest of the six senses.)

S xxxv.95

There are forms, monks, cognizable via the eye--agreeable, pleasing, charming, endearing, fostering desire, enticing.
If a monk relishes them, welcomes them and remains fastened to them, he is said to be a monk fettered by forms cognizable by the eye. He has gone over to Mara's camp; he has come under Mara's power. The Evil One can do with him as he will.

(And so on with the rest of the six senses.)

S xxxv.115

There are forms cognizable by the eye--agreeable...enticing. If a monk relishes them, welcomes them, & remains fastened to them, then...his consciousness is dependent on them, is sustained by them. With sustenance/clinging, the monk is not totally unbound...

If he does not relish them, welcome them, or remain fastened to them, then...his consciousness is not dependent on them, is not sustained by them. Without sustenance/clinging, the monk is totally unbound.

(And so on with the rest of the six senses.)

S xxxv.118

Here again, we see the reciprocal nature of attachment: One is bound by what one relishes & latches onto--or rather, by the act of relishing & latching on, in and of itself.

Citta: Venerable sirs, it is just as if a black ox and a white ox were joined with a single collar or yoke. If someone were to say, 'The black ox is the fetter of the white ox, the white ox is the fetter of the black'--speaking this way, would he be speaking rightly?

Some elder monks: No, householder. The black ox is not the fetter of the white ox, nor is the white ox the fetter of the black. The single collar or yoke by which they are joined: That is the fetter there.

Citta: In the same way, the eye is not the fetter of forms, nor are forms the fetter of the eye. Whatever desire & passion arises in dependence on the two of them: That is the fetter there. The ear is not the fetter of sounds...The nose is not the fetter of smells...The tongue is not the fetter of tastes...The body is not the fetter of tactile sensations... The intellect is not the fetter of ideas, nor are ideas the fetter of the intellect. Whatever desire & passion arises in dependence on the two of them: That is the fetter there.

S xli.1

In other words, neither the senses nor their objects are fetters for the mind. Beautiful sights, sounds, and so forth, do not entrap it, nor do the senses themselves. Instead, it is trapped by the act of desire & passion based on such things.

Monks, there are these five strands of sensuality. What five? Forms cognizable via the eye--agreeable...enticing; sounds... odors...flavors...tactile sensations cognizable via the body--agreeable...enticing. But these are not sensuality. They are called strands of sensuality in the disciple of the Noble Ones.

The passion for his intentions is a man's sensuality,
Not the beautiful sensual pleasures found in the world.
The passion for his intentions is a man's sensuality.
The beauties remain as they are in the world, While the wise, in this regard subdue their desire.

A vi.63

Thus sensual pleasures, which belong to the realm of form, are the 'clingable phenomena' that offer sustenance for the bond of desire & passion. Or, to borrow an image from Ven. Rahula, they are the bait--as long as one is blind to their true nature--for falling into the trap of one's own craving & complacency.

Ven. Rahula:
They (the unawakened):
Blinded by sensual pleasures, covered by the net,
Veiled with the veil of craving, bound by the bond of complacency, like fish in the mouth of a trap.

Thag iv.8

For this reason, freedom from sensuality as a clinging/sustenance requires a two-pronged approach: to realize the true nature of the bait and to extricate oneself from the trap. The first step involves examining the unattractive side of the human body, for as the Buddha says, Monks, I don't know of even one other form that stays in a man's mind and consumes it like the form of a woman... one other sound...smell...taste...touch that stays in a man's mind and consumes it like the touch of a woman. The touch of a woman stays in a man's mind and consumes it.

I don't know of even one other form that stays in a woman's mind and consumes it like the form of a man...one other sound...smell...taste...touch that stays in a woman's mind and consumes it like the touch of a man. The touch of a man stays in a woman's mind and consumes it.

A I.1

Just as if a sack with openings at both ends were full of various kinds of grain--wheat, rice, mung beans, kidney beans, sesame seeds, husked rice--and a man with good eyesight, pouring it out, were to reflect, 'This is wheat. This is rice. These are mung beans. These are kidney beans. These are sesame seeds. This is husked rice,' in the same way, monks, a monk reflects on this very body from the soles of the feet on up, from the crown of the head on down, surrounded by skin and full of various kinds of impurities: 'In this body there are head hairs, body hairs, nails, teeth, skin, flesh, tendons, bones, bone marrow, kidneys, heart, liver, pleura, spleen, lungs, large intestines, small intestines, gorge, feces, bile, phlegm, pus, blood, sweat, fat, tears, skin-oil, saliva, mucus, fluid in the joints, urine'...

Or again, as if he were to see a corpse cast away in a charnel ground--one day, two days, three days dead--bloated, livid & festering, he applies it to this very body, 'This body, too: Such is its nature, such is its future, such its unavoidable fate'...

Or again, as if he were to see a corpse cast away in a charnel ground, picked at by crows, vultures, & hawks, by dogs, hyenas, & various other creatures...a skeleton smeared with flesh & blood, connected with tendons...a fleshless skeleton smeared with blood, connected with tendons...a skeleton without flesh or blood, connected with tendons...bones detached from their tendons, scattered in all directions--here a hand bone, there a foot bone, here a shin bone, there a thigh bone, here a hip bone, there a back bone, here a rib, there a chest bone, here a shoulder bone, there a neck bone, here a jaw bone, there a tooth, here a skull...the bones whitened, somewhat like the color of shells...piled up, more than a year old...decomposed into a powder, he applies it to this very body, 'This body, too: Such is its nature, such is its future, such its unavoidable fate.' So he abides contemplating the body in & of itself, internally, externally or both internally & externally.

D 22

The purpose of this contemplation is not to develop a morbid fascination with the grotesque, but simply to correct the distortion of perception that tries to deny the unattractive aspects of the body and to admit only 'the sign of the beautiful'--its attractive side. Now of course this contemplation has its dangers, for it can go overboard into states of aversion & depression, but these are not incurable. At several points in the Canon, where the Buddha sees that monks have let the contemplation of foulness adversely affect their minds, he recommends that they calm their aversion by focusing on the in & out breath as a companion meditation.

Ultimately, as a more balanced perception of the body develops, one may make use of the second prong of the approach: turning one's attention from the object of the lust to the act of lust itself, seeing it as an act of mental fabrication--foolish, inconstant, & stressful--and so removing any sense of identification with it. This, in turn, can calm the mind to an even deeper level and lead on to its Unbinding.

Ven. Vangisa:

With sensual lust I burn.
My mind is on fire.
Please, Gotama, from compassion,
    Tell me how to put it out.

The Buddha:
From distorted perception your mind is on fire.
Shun the sign of the beautiful, accompanied by lust.
See mental processes as other as stress & not as self.
    Extinguish your great lust.
    Do not keep burning again & again.

Thag xxi.1

For one who keeps focusing on the foulness (of the body), any underlying tendencies to lust for the property of beauty are abandoned. When mindfulness of breathing is internally well-established before one, there are no annoying inclinations to external thinking. For one who keeps focusing on the inconstancy of all processes, whatever is ignorance is abandoned; whatever is knowledge arises.

Focusing on foulness
    with regard to the body, Mindful
    of in & out breathing, Seeing
    the calming of all processes
      --always ardent--
The right-seeing monk,

when released there,
is truly a master of direct knowledge.
Calm.
He is truly a sage gone beyond bonds.
Iti 85

Sister Nanda:
As I, uncomplacent, examined it aptly
(a vision of a beautiful person growing sick, unclean & putrid) This body--as it actually is-- was seen inside & out.
Then was I disenchanted with the body and dispassionate within:
Uncomplacent, detached, calmed was I.
Unbound.
Thig v.4

VIEWS

Views are the second mode of clinging/sustenance. And, as with the abandoning of attachment to sensuality, the abandoning of attachment to views can lead to an experience of Unbinding.

'This I maintain,' does not occur to one who would investigate what is seized (as a view) with reference to (actual) phenomena.
Looking for what is unseized with reference to views,

And detecting inner peace,
I saw.
Sn iv.9

Attachment to views can block an experience of Unbinding in any of three major ways. First, the content of the view itself may not be conducive to the arising of discernment, and it may even have a pernicious moral effect on one's actions, leading to an unfavorable rebirth.

I have heard that once the Master was dwelling among the Koliyans...Then Punna the Koliyan, a bovine, and Seniya, a canine naked ascetic, approached the Master. On approaching, Punna the Koliyan bovine, saluting the Master, sat down to one side, while Seniya, the canine naked ascetic, exchanged greetings with the Master, and having made agreeable polite conversation, sat down to one side, curling up like a dog. Punna the Koliyan bovine, sitting to one side, said to the Master, 'Sir, Seniya, this naked ascetic, is a canine, a doer-of-hard-tasks. He eats food that is thrown on the ground. He has long undertaken & conformed to that dog-practice. What is his future destination, what is his future course?'

(The Buddha at first declines to answer, but on being pressed, finally responds:) 'There is the case where a person develops the dog-practice fully & perfectly...Having developed the dog-practice fully & perfectly, having developed a dog's virtue fully & perfectly, having developed a dog's mind fully & perfectly, having developed a dog's demeanor fully & perfectly, then on the break-up of the body, after death, he reappears in the company of dogs. But if he is of such a view as, "By this virtue or practice or asceticism or holy life I shall become a greater or lesser god," that is his wrong view. Now, Punna, there are two destinations for one with wrong view, I say: purgatory or the animal womb. So the dog-practice, if perfected, leads him to the company of dogs; if defective, to purgatory.'

M 57

Just as if in the last month of the hot season a maluva creeper pod were to burst open, and a maluva creeper seed were to fall at the foot of a sala tree. The deity living in the tree would become frightened, apprehensive & anxious. Her friends & companions, relatives & kin--garden deities, forest deities, tree deities, deities living in herbs, grass & forest monarchs--would gather together to console her: 'Have no fear, have no fear. In all likelihood a peacock is sure to swallow this maluva creeper seed, or a deer will eat it, or a brush fire will burn it up, or woodsmen will pick it up or termites will carry it off, and it probably isn't really a seed.'

And then no peacock swallowed it, no deer ate it, no brush fire burned it up, no woodsmen picked it up, no termites carried it off and it really was a seed. Watered by a rain-laden cloud, it sprouted in due course and curled its soft, tender, downy tendril around the sala tree.

The thought occurred to the deity living in the sala tree: 'Now what future danger did my friends...foresee, that they gathered together to console me?...It's pleasant, the touch of this maluva creeper's soft, tender, downy tendril.'

Then the creeper, having enwrapped the sala tree, having made a canopy over it, & cascading down around it, caused the massive limbs of the sala tree to come crashing down. The thought occurred to the deity living in the tree: 'This was the future danger my friends...foresaw, that they gathered together to console me...It's because of that maluva creeper seed that I'm now experiencing sharp, burning pains.'

In the same way, monks, there are some priests & contemplatives who hold to a doctrine, a view like this: 'There is no harm in sensual pleasures.' Thus they meet with their downfall through sensual pleasures. They consort with women wanderers who wear their hair coiled and long. The thought occurs to them: 'Now what future danger do those (other) priests & contemplatives foresee that they teach the relinquishment & analysis of sensual pleasures? It's pleasant, the touch of this woman wanderer's soft, tender, downy arm.'

Thus they meet with their downfall through sensual pleasures. With the break-up of the body, after death, they will go to a bad bourn, destitution, the realm of the hungry shades, purgatory. There they will experience sharp, burning pains. The thought will occur to them: 'This was the future danger those priests & contemplatives foresaw that they taught the relinquishment & analysis of sensual pleasures. It's because of sensual pleasures, as a result of sensual pleasures, that we are now experiencing these sharp, burning pains.'

M 45

Secondly, apart from the actual content of the views, a person attached to views is bound to get into disputes with those who hold opposing views, resulting in unwholesome mental states for the winners as well as the losers.

Engaged in disputation in the midst of an assembly, --desirous of praise, anxious-- he is staggered when defeated.
Shaken with criticism, he seeks for an opening.
He whose doctrine is (judged as) demolished, Defeated, by those who judge the question:
He laments, he grieves--the inferior exponent--
'He beat me,' he mourns.
These disputes have arisen among contemplatives.
In them are victory & defeat.
Seeing this, one would abstain from disputes,
For they have no other goal than the gaining of praise.
He who is praised there for expounding his doctrine in the midst of the assembly, Laughs on that account and grows haughty, attaining his heart's desire.
That haughtiness will be his grounds for vexation, for he will speak in pride & over-estimation.
Seeing this, one should abstain from disputes.
No purity is attained by them, say the wise.
Sn iv.8

Thirdly, and more profoundly, attachment to views implicitly involves attachment to a sense of 'superior' & 'inferior,' and to the criteria used in measuring and making such evaluations. As we saw in Chapter I, any measure or criterion acts as a limitation or bond on the mind.

That, say the wise, is a fetter,
In dependence on which
One sees others as inferior.
Sn iv.5

Whoever construes
    'equal'
    'superior' or 'inferior,'
by that he would dispute;
Whereas to one unaffected by these three,
    'equal'
    'superior'
do not occur.
Of what would the Brahman* say 'true' or 'false,' disputing with whom,
he in whom 'equal' & 'unequal' are not....
As the prickly lotus is unsmeared by water & mud,
So the sage,
    an exponent of peace,
        without greed,
    is unsmeared by sensuality & the world.
An attainer-of-wisdom is not measured made proud
    by views or by what is thought, for he is not altered by them.
Not by rituals is he led, nor by traditional lore, nor with reference to dogmas.
For one dispassionate towards perception there are no ties;
for one released by discernment,
    no delusions.
Those who seize at perceptions & views go about disputing in the world.

Sn iv.9

An important point to notice is that attachment to views must be abandoned through knowledge, and not through skepticism, agnosticism, ignorance, or a mindless openness to all views. This point is made clear in the Discourse of the Supreme Net. There the Buddha gives a list of 62 philosophical positions concerning the nature of the self, the cosmos, & the state of ultimate freedom in the immediate present. The list is intended to be exhaustive--the 'net' in the title of the discourse--covering all possible views & positions on these subjects divided into ten categories, one of the categories--equivocation--including cases of agnosticism.

> There are, monks, some contemplatives & priests who, being asked questions regarding this or that, resort to verbal contortions, to eel-like wriggling, on four grounds...There is the case of a certain priest or contemplative who does not discern as it actually is that 'This is good,' or that 'This is not good.' The thought occurs to him: 'I don't discern as it actually is that "This is good," or that "This is not good." If I...were to declare that "This is good," or that "This is not good," desire, passion, aversion, or irritation would occur to me; that would be a falsehood for me. Whatever would be a falsehood for me would be a distress for me. Whatever would be a distress for me would be an obstacle for me.' So, out of fear of falsehood, a loathing for falsehood, he does not declare that 'This is good,' or that 'This is not good." Being asked questions regarding this or that, he resorts to verbal contortions, to eel-like wriggling: 'I don't think so. I don't think in that way. I don't think otherwise. I don't think not. I don't think not not.'

The second case is virtually identical with the first, substituting 'clinging' for 'falsehood.'

The third case: There is the case of a certain priest or contemplative who does not discern as it actually is that 'This is good,' or that 'This is not good'...'If I, not discerning as it actually is that "This is good," or that "This is not good," were to declare that "This is good," or that "This is not good"--There are priests and contemplatives who are pundits, subtle, skilled in debate, who prowl about like hair-splitting marksmen, as it were, shooting philosophical positions to pieces with their dialectic. They might cross-question me, press me for reasons, rebuke me. I might not be able to stand my ground, that would be a distress for me...an obstacle for me.' So, out of a fear for questioning, a loathing for questioning...he resorts to verbal contortions, to eel-like wriggling...

The fourth case: There is the case of a certain priest or contemplative who is dull & exceedingly stupid. Out of dullness & exceeding stupidity, he--being asked questions regarding this or that--resorts to verbal contortions, to eel-like wriggling: 'If you ask me if there exists another world (after death), if I thought that there exists another world, would I declare that to you? I don't think so. I don't think in that way. I don't think otherwise. I don't think not. I don't think not not. If you asked me if there isn't another world...both is & isn't...neither is nor isn't...if there are beings who transmigrate...if there aren't...both are & aren't... neither are nor aren't...if the Tathagata exists after death... doesn't...both...neither...I don't think so. I don't think that way. I don't think otherwise. I don't think not. I don't think not not.'

D 1

Agnosticism, then, is not a way of abandoning standpoints but is simply another standpoint: Like all standpoints, it must be abandoned through knowledge. The type of knowledge called for--in which standpoints are regarded, not in terms of their content, but as events in a causal chain--is indicated by the refrain that follows each of the ten categories of the Supreme Net.

> This, monks, the Tathagata discerns. And he discerns that these standpoints, thus seized, thus held to, lead to such & such a destination, to such & such a state in the world beyond. And he discerns what surpasses this. And yet discerning that, he does not hold to it. And as he is not holding to it, Unbinding (nibbuti) is experienced right within. Knowing, for what they are, the origin, ending, allure, & drawbacks of feelings, along with the emancipation from feelings, the Tathagata, monks--through lack of sustenance/clinging-- is released.
>
> D 1

Another list of speculative views--a set of ten positions summarizing the standard topics debated by the various schools of contemplatives in the Buddha's time--recurs frequently in the Canon. Non-Buddhist debaters used it as a ready-made checklist for gauging an individual's positions on the controversial issues of the day, and they often put it to the Buddha. Invariably, he would reply that he did not hold to any of the ten positions.

> 'Seeing what drawback, then, is the venerable Gotama thus entirely dissociated from each of these ten positions?'

'Vaccha, the position that "the world is eternal" is a thicket of views, a wilderness of views, a contortion of views, a writhing of views, a fetter of views. It is accompanied by suffering, distress, despair, & fever, and it does not lead to disenchantment, dispassion, stopping; to calm, direct knowledge, full awakening, Unbinding.

'The position that "the world is not eternal"...

'..."the world is finite"...

'..."the world is infinite"...

'..."the soul & the body are the same"...

'..."the soul is one thing and the body another"...

'..."after death a Tathagata exists"...

'..."after death a Tathagata does not exist"...

'..."after death a Tathagata both exists & does not exist"...

'..."after death a Tathagata neither exists nor does not exist"...does not lead to disenchantment, dispassion, stopping; to calm, direct knowledge, full awakening, Unbinding.'

'Does Master Gotama have any position at all?'

'A "position," Vaccha, is something that a Tathagata has done away with. What a Tathagata sees is this: "Such is form, such its origin, such its disappearance; such is feeling, such its origin, such its disappearance; such is perception... such are mental processes...such is consciousness, such its origin, such its disappearance."

Because of this, I say, a Tathagata,--with the ending, fading out, stopping, renunciation & relinquishment of all construings, all excogitations, all I-making & mine-making & tendencies to conceits--is, through lack of sustenance/clinging, released.'

M 72

The construings the Buddha relinquished include views not only in their full-blown form as specific positions, but also in their rudimentary form as the categories & relationships that the mind reads into experience. This is a point he makes in his instructions to Bahiya, which led immediately to the latter's attaining the goal. When the mind imposes interpretations on its experience, it is engaging implicitly in system-building, and all the limitations of location & relationship that system-building involves. Only when it can free itself of those interpretations and the fetters they place on it, can it gain true freedom.

Therefore, Bahiya, you should train yourself thus: In reference to the seen, there will be only the seen. In reference to the heard, only the heard. In reference to the sensed, only the sensed. In reference to the cognized, only the cognized. That is how you should train yourself.

When for you there will be only the seen in reference to the seen...only the heard...only the sensed...only the cognized in reference to the cognized, then, Bahiya, you will not be 'thereby.' When you are not thereby, you will not be 'therein.' When you are not therein, you will be neither 'here' nor 'there' nor between the two. This, just this, is the end of stress.

Ud i.10

PRECEPTS & PRACTICES.

The Canon mentions a variety of precepts & practices--the third mode of clinging/sustenance. Prominent among them are Brahmanical rituals & Jain practices of self-torture, and according to the Commentary these are the precepts & practices referred to in this context. Yet although the goal will always remain out of reach as long as one remains attached to such practices, the abandonment of this attachment is never in & of itself sufficient for attaining the goal.

But there is another practice which, though a necessary part of the Buddhist path, can nevertheless offer sustenance for becoming; and which--as the object of attachment to be transcended--figures prominently in descriptions of the goal's attainment. That practice is jhana, or meditative absorption. It might be argued that this is stretching the term practice (vata) a little far, but jhana does not fall under any of the other three sustenances for becoming at all, and yet it definitely does function as such a sustenance, so there seems to be little choice but to place it here.

Different passages in the Canon number the levels of jhana in different ways. The standard description gives four, although the pure mindfulness & equanimity attained on the fourth level may further be applied to four progressively more & more refined formless sensations--termed the 'peaceful emancipations, formlessness beyond forms'--that altogether give eight levels, often referred to as the eight attainments.

A number of objects can serve as the basis for jhana. The breath is one, and an analysis of the Canon's description of the first stages of breath meditation will give an idea of what jhana involves.

The first step is simply being mindful of the breath in the present:

There is the case of a monk who, having gone to a forest, to the shade of a tree or to an empty building, sits down folding his legs crosswise, holding his body erect, & keeping mindfulness to the fore. Always mindful, he breathes in; mindful he breathes out.

Then comes evaluation: He begins to discern variations in the breath:

Breathing in long, he discerns that he is breathing in long; or breathing out long, he discerns that he is breathing out long. Or breathing in short, he discerns that he is breathing in short; or breathing out short, he discerns that he is breathing out short.

The remaining steps are willed, or determined: He 'trains himself', first by manipulating his sense of conscious awareness, making it sensitive to the body as a whole. (This accounts for the term 'mahaggatam'--enlarged or expanded--used to describe the mind in the state of jhana.)

He trains himself to breathe in sensitive to the entire body, and to breathe out sensitive to the entire body.

Now that he is aware of the body as a whole, he can begin to manipulate the physical sensations of which he is aware, calming them--i.e., calming the breath--so as to create a sense of rapture & ease.

> He trains himself to breathe in calming the bodily processes, and to breathe out calming the bodily processes. He trains himself to breathe in sensitive to rapture, and to breathe out sensitive to rapture. He trains himself to breathe in sensitive to pleasure and breathe out sensitive to pleasure.

(As we will see below, he maximizes this sense of rapture & pleasure, making it suffuse the entire body.)

Now that bodily processes are stilled, mental processes become apparent as they occur. These too are calmed, leaving--as we will see below--a radiant awareness of the mind itself.

> He trains himself to breathe in sensitive to mental processes, and to breathe out sensitive to mental processes. He trains himself to breathe in calming mental processes and to breathe out calming mental processes. He trains himself to breathe in sensitive to the mind, and to breathe out sensitive to the mind....
>
> M 118

The standard description of jhana, however, does not refer to any particular object as its basis, but simply divides it into four levels determined by the way the mind relates to the object as it becomes more & more absorbed in it.

Furthermore, monks, the monk--quite withdrawn from sensual pleasures, withdrawn from unwise (mental) qualities--enters and remains in the first jhana: rapture & pleasure born from withdrawal, accompanied by directed thought & evaluation. He permeates & pervades, suffuses & fills this very body with the rapture & pleasure born from withdrawal. There is nothing in his body unpervaded by rapture & pleasure born from withdrawal.

Just as a skilled bathman or bathman's apprentice would pour bath powder into a brass basin and knead it together, sprinkling it again & again with water, so that his ball of bath powder--saturated, moisture-laden, permeated within & without--would nevertheless not drip; even so, monks, the monk permeates...this very body with the rapture & pleasure born of withdrawal. And as he remains thus earnest, ardent & intent, any longings related to the household life are abandoned, and with their abandoning his mind gathers & settles inwardly, one-pointed & composed. That is how a monk develops mindfulness immersed in the body.

And furthermore, with the stilling of directed thought & evaluation, he enters & remains in the second jhana: rapture & pleasure born of composure, one-pointedness of awareness free from directed thought & evaluation--internal assurance. He permeates & pervades, suffuses & fills this very body with the rapture & pleasure born of composure. There is no part of his entire body unpervaded by rapture & pleasure born of composure.

Just like a lake with spring-water welling up from within, having no inflow from east, west, north or south, and with the skies supplying abundant showers time & again, so that the cool fount of water welling up from within the lake would permeate & pervade, suffuse & fill it with cool waters, there being no part of the lake unpervaded by the cool waters; even so monks, the monk permeates...this very body with the rapture & pleasure born of composure. And as he remains thus earnest, ardent & intent...he develops mindfulness immersed in the body.

And furthermore, with the fading of rapture, he remains in equanimity, mindful & fully aware, and physically sensitive of pleasure. He enters & remains in the third jhana, and of him the Noble Ones declare, 'Equanimous & mindful, he has a pleasurable abiding.' He permeates & pervades, suffuses & fills this very body with the pleasure divested of rapture, so that there is nothing of his entire body unpervaded by pleasure divested of rapture.

Just as in a blue-, white-, or red-lotus pond, there may be some of the blue, white, or red lotuses that, born & growing in the water, stay immersed in the water and flourish without standing up out of the water, so that they are permeated & pervaded, suffused & filled with cool water from their roots to their tips, and nothing of those blue, white, or red lotuses would be unpervaded with cool water; even so, monks, the monk permeates...this very body with the pleasure divested of rapture. And as he remains thus earnest, ardent & intent...he develops mindfulness immersed in the body.

And furthermore, with the abandoning of pleasure & stress--as with the earlier disappearance of elation & sorrow--he enters & remains in the fourth jhana: purity of equanimity & mindfulness, neither pleasure nor stress. He sits, permeating the body with a pure, bright awareness, so that nothing of his entire body is unpervaded by pure, bright awareness.

Just as if a man were sitting covered from head to foot with a white cloth so that there would be no part of his body to which the white cloth did not extend; even so, monks, the monk sits, permeating the body with a pure, bright awareness. And as he remains thus earnest, ardent & intent...he develops mindfulness immersed in the body.

M 119

'Directed thought' mentioned in the reference to the first level of jhana corresponds, in the description of breath meditation, to the mindfulness directed to the breath in the present. 'Evaluation' corresponds to the discernment of variations in the breath, and to the manipulation of awareness & the breath so as to create a sense of rapture & pleasure throughout the body (the bathman kneading moisture throughout the ball of bath powder). The still waters in the simile for the third level of jhana, as opposed to the spring waters welling up in the second level, correspond to the stilling of mental processes. And the pure, bright awareness in the fourth level corresponds to the stage of breath meditation where the meditator is sensitive to the mind.

Thus as the mind progresses through the first four levels of jhana, it sheds the various mental activities surrounding its one object: Directed thought & evaluation are stilled, rapture fades, and pleasure is abandoned. After reaching a state of pure, bright, mindful, equanimous awareness in the fourth level of jhana, the mind can start shedding its perception (mental label) of the form of its object, the space around its object, itself, & the lack of activity within itself. This process takes four steps--the four formlessnesses beyond form--culminating in a state where perception is so refined that it can hardly be called perception at all.

With the complete transcending of perceptions of (physical) form, and the passing away of perceptions of resistance, and not heeding perceptions of diversity, thinking, 'Infinite space,' one enters & remains in the sphere of the infinitude of space...

With the complete transcending of the sphere of the infinitude of space, thinking, 'Infinite consciousness,' one enters & remains in the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness...

With the complete transcending of the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness, thinking, 'There is nothing,' one enters & remains in the sphere of nothingness...

With the complete transcending of the sphere of nothingness, one enters & remains in the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.

D 15

To abandon attachment to jhana as a sustenance for becoming means, not to stop practicing it, but rather to practice it without becoming engrossed in the sense of pleasure or equanimity it affords, so that one can discern its true nature for what it is.

When this had been said, the Venerable Ananda asked the Master: 'In the case, Sir, where a monk has reached the point that--(thinking) "It should not be, it should not occur to me; it will not be, it will not occur to me. What is, what has come to be, that I abandon"--he obtains equanimity. Would this monk be totally unbound, or not?'

'A certain such monk might, Ananda, and another might not.'

'What is the cause, what is the reason, whereby one might and another might not?'

'There is the case, Ananda, where a monk has reached the point that--(thinking) "It should not be, it should not occur to me; it will not be, it will not occur to me. What is, what has come to be, that I abandon"-- he obtains equanimity. He relishes that equanimity, welcomes it, remains fastened to it. As he does so, his consciousness is dependent on it, sustained by it. With sustenance, Ananda, a monk is not totally unbound.'

'Being sustained, where is that monk sustained?'

'The sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.'

'Then, indeed, being sustained, he is sustained by the supreme sustenance.'

'Being sustained, Ananda, he is sustained by the supreme sustenance; for this--the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception--is the supreme sustenance. There is (how-ever) the case where a monk...reaches equanimity. He does not relish that equanimity, does not welcome it, does not remain fastened to it. Such being the case, his consciousness is not dependent on it, is not sustained by it. Without sustenance, Ananda, a monk is totally unbound.'

M 106

Once the mind can detach itself from the pleasure & equanimity offered by jhana, it can be inclined toward that which transcends jhana--the unconditioned quality of deathlessness.

There is the case, Ananda, where a monk...enters & remains in the first jhana: rapture & pleasure born of withdrawal, accompanied by directed thought & evaluation. He regards whatever phenomena there that are connected with form, feeling, perceptions, mental processes, & consciousness as inconstant, stressful, a disease, a cancer, an arrow, painful, an affliction, alien, a dissolution, a void, not-self. He turns his mind away from those phenomena, and having done so, inclines it to the quality of deathlessness:

'This is peace, this is exquisite--the resolution of all mental processes; the relinquishment of all the paraphernalia of becoming; the ending of craving; dispassion; stopping; Unbinding.'

Having attained this point, he reaches the ending of the mental effluents. Or, if not, then--through passion & delight for this very phenomenon (the discernment inclining to deathlessness) and from the total ending of the first of the five Fetters*--he is due to be reborn (in the Pure Abodes), there to be totally unbound, never again to return from that world. (Similarly with the other levels of jhana.)

M 64

The fact that the various levels of jhana are nurtured & willed, and thus dependent on conditions, is important: A realization of exactly how they are nurtured--a realization acquired only through practical experience with them--can give insight into the conditioned nature of all mental events and is one of the ways in which the attachment to jhana, as sustenance for becoming, can be abandoned.

An indication of how this happens is given in outline form in the Discourse on Mindfulness of In & Out Breathing. To take up the description of breath meditation where we left off: Once there is direct awareness of the mind itself, the various levels of jhana are reviewed. Now, however, primary attention is focused, not on the object, but on the mind as it relates to the object--the different ways in which it can be satisfied & steadied, and the different factors from which it can be released by taking it through the different levels (e.g., releasing it from directed thought & evaluation by taking it from the first to the second level, and so forth).

> He trains himself to breathe in satisfying the mind, and out satisfying the mind. He trains himself to breathe in steadying the mind, and out steadying the mind. He trains himself to breathe in releasing the mind, and out releasing the mind.

The states of satisfaction, steadiness, & release experienced on these levels, though, are willed, and therefore conditioned. The next step is to focus on the fact that these qualities, being conditioned, are inconstant. Once the mind sees directly that inconstancy is inherent both in the pleasure offered by jhana and in the act of will that brings it about, one becomes dispassionate towards it, stops craving it, and can relinquish any & all attachment to it.

> He trains himself to breathe in focusing on inconstancy, and out focusing on inconstancy. He trains himself to breathe in focusing on dispassion, and out focusing on dispassion. He trains himself to breathe in focusing on stopping, and out focusing on stopping. He trains himself to breathe in focusing on relinquishment, and out focusing on relinquishment.
>
> M 118

At the conclusion to the discourse, the Buddha states that breath meditation, when practiced often & repeatedly in this way, results in the maturation of clear knowledge & release.

A more vivid description of how mastery of jhana can lead to the insight that transcends it, is given in the Discourse on the Exposition of the Properties:

> (On attaining the fourth level of jhana) there remains only equanimity: pure & bright, pliant, malleable & luminous. Just as if a skilled goldsmith or goldsmith's apprentice were to prepare a furnace, heat up a crucible, and, taking gold with a pair of tongs, place it in the crucible. He would blow on it time & again, sprinkle water on it time & again, examine it time & again, so that the gold would become refined, well-refined, thoroughly refined, flawless, free from dross, pliant, malleable & luminous. Then whatever sort of ornament he had in mind--whether a belt, an earring, a necklace, or a gold chain--it would serve his purpose. In the same way, there remains only equanimity: pure & bright, pliant, malleable & luminous. He (the meditator) discerns that 'If I were to direct equanimity as pure & bright as this toward the sphere of the infinitude of space, I would develop the mind along those lines, and thus this equanimity of mind--thus supported, thus sustained--would last for a long time. (Similarly with the remaining formless states.)'
>
> He discerns that 'If I were to direct equanimity as pure & bright as this towards the sphere of the infinitude of space and to develop the mind along those lines, that would be fabricated. (Similarly with the remaining formless states.)' He neither fabricates nor mentally fashions for the sake of becoming or unbecoming. This being the case, he is not sustained by anything in the world (does not cling to anything in the world). Unsustained, he is not agitated. Unagitated, he is totally unbound right within. He discerns that 'Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world.'

M 140

DOCTRINES OF THE SELF

Doctrines of the self. These form the fourth mode of clinging/sustenance. The Canon reports a wide variety of doctrines of the self that were current in the Buddha's time, only to reject them out-of-hand for two major reasons. The first is that even the least articulated sense of self or self-identification inevitably leads to stress & suffering.

> 'Monks, do you see any clinging/sustenance in the form of a doctrine of self which, in clinging to, there would not arise sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief, & despair?'
>
> 'No, Lord.'
>
> '...Neither do I...How do you construe this, monks: If a person were to gather or burn or do as he likes with the grass, twigs, branches & leaves here in Jeta's Grove, would the thought occur to you, "It's us that this person is gathering, burning, or doing with as he likes"?'
>
> 'No, sir. Why is that? Because those things are not our self and do not pertain to our self.'
>
> 'Even so, monks, whatever is not yours: Let go of it. Your letting go of it will be for your long-term happiness & benefit. And what is not yours? Form (body) is not yours... Feeling is not yours...Perception...Mental processes...Consciousness is not yours. Let go of it. Your letting go of it will be for your long-term happiness & benefit.'

M 22

The second reason for rejecting doctrines of the self is that, whatever form they take, they all contain inherent inconsistencies. The Buddha's most systematic treatment of this point is in the Great Discourse on Causation, where he classifies all theories of the self into four major categories: those describing a self (a) possessed of form (a body) & finite; (b) possessed of form & infinite; (c) formless & finite; and (d) formless & infinite. The text gives no examples for the categories, but we might cite the following as illustrations: (a) theories that deny the existence of a soul, and identify the self with the body; (b) theories that identify the self with all being or with the universe; (c) theories of discrete souls in individual beings; (d) theories of a unitary soul or identity immanent in all things.

Discussing these various categories, the Buddha states that people who adhere to any of them will state that the self already is of such a nature, that it is destined to acquire such a nature after death, or that it can be made into such a nature by various practices. He then goes on to discuss the various ways people assume a self as defined in relation to feeling.

'In what respect, Ananda, does one assume when assuming a self? Assuming feeling to be the self, one assumes that "Feeling is my self" (or) "Feeling is not my self: My self is oblivious (to feeling)" (or) "Neither is feeling my self, nor is my self oblivious to feeling, but rather my self feels, in that my self is subject to feeling."

'Now, one who says, "Feeling is my self," should be addressed as follows: "There are these three feelings, my friend--feelings of pleasure, feelings of pain, and feelings of neither pleasure nor pain. Which of these three feelings do you assume to be the self? At a moment when a feeling of pleasure is sensed, no feeling of pain or of neither pleasure nor pain is sensed. Only a feeling of pleasure is sensed at that moment. At a moment when a feeling of pain is sensed, no feeling of pleasure or of neither pleasure nor pain is sensed. Only a feeling of pain is sensed at that moment. At a moment when a feeling of neither pleasure nor pain is sensed, no feeling of pleasure or of pain is sensed. Only a feeling of neither pleasure nor pain is sensed at that moment.

'Now, a feeling of pleasure is inconstant, compounded, dependent on conditions, subject to passing away, dissolution, fading, & stopping. A feeling of pain...A feeling of neither pleasure nor pain is inconstant...subject to stopping. Having sensed a feeling of pleasure as 'my self,' then with the stopping of one's very own feeling of pleasure, 'my self' has perished. Having sensed a feeling of pain as 'my self'... Having sensed a feeling of neither pleasure nor pain as 'my self,' then with the stopping of one's very own feeling of neither pleasure nor pain, 'my self' has perished."

'Thus he assumes, assuming in the immediate present a self inconstant, entangled in pleasure & pain, subject to arising & passing away, he who says, "Feeling is my self." Thus in this manner, Ananda, one does not see fit to assume feeling to be the self.

'As for the person who says, "Feeling is not the self: My self is oblivious (to feeling)," he should be addressed as follows: "My friend, where nothing whatsoever is sensed (experienced) at all, would there be the thought, 'I am'?"'

'No, sir.'

'Thus in this manner, Ananda, one does not see fit to assume that "Feeling is not my self: My self is oblivious (to feeling)."

'As for the person who says, "Neither is feeling my self, nor is my self oblivious to feeling, but rather my self feels, in that my self is subject to feeling," he should be addressed as follows: "My friend, should feelings altogether and every way stop without remainder, then with feeling completely not existing, owing to the stopping of feeling, would there be the thought, 'I am'?'"

'No, sir.'

'Thus in this manner, Ananda, one does not see fit to assume that "Neither is feeling my self, nor is my self oblivious to feeling, but rather my self feels, in that my self is subject to feeling."

'Now, Ananda, in as far as a monk does not assume feeling to be the self, nor the self as oblivious, nor that "My self feels, in that my self is subject to feeling," then, not assuming in this way, he is not sustained by anything in the world. Unsustained, he is not agitated. Unagitated, he is totally unbound right within. He discerns that "Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world."

'If anyone were to say with regard to a monk whose mind is thus released that "The Tathagata exists after death," is his view, that would be mistaken; that "The Tathagata does not exist after death"...that "The Tathagata both exists & does not exist after death"...that "The Tathagata neither exists nor does not exist after death" is his view, that would be mistaken. Why? Having directly known the extent of designation and the extent of the objects of designation, the extent of expression and the extent of the objects of expression, the extent of description and the extent of the objects of description, the extent of discernment and the extent of the objects of discernment, the extent to which the cycle revolves: Having directly known that, the monk is released. (To say that,) "The monk released, having directly known that, does not see, does not know is his opinion," that would be mistaken.' (This last sentence means that the monk released is not an agnostic concerning what lies beyond the extent of designation, and so forth. He does know & see what lies beyond, even though--as Ven. Sariputta said to Ven. MahaKotthita--he may not express it inasmuch as it lies beyond differentiation. See the discussion on pages 31-32.)

D 15

Views of the self can center around not only feeling, but also physical form, perception, mental processes, & consciousness--the five aggregates for sustenance--which, according to another passage in the above discourse, cover the extent of what can be designated, expressed, & described, but none of which, on investigation, can rightfully be designated as self.

I have heard that on one occasion the Master was staying at Varanasi, in the Game Refuge at Isipatana. There he addressed the group of five monks:

'Physical form, monks, is not the self. If physical form were the self, this body would not lend itself to disease. One could get physical form to be like this and not be like that. But precisely because physical form is not the self, it lends itself to disease. And one cannot get physical form to be like this and not be like that.

'Feeling is not the self...Perception is not the self...Mental processes are not the self...

'Consciousness is not the self. If consciousness were the self, this consciousness would not lend itself to disease. One could get consciousness to be like this and not be like that. But precisely because consciousness is not the self, it lends itself to disease. And one cannot get consciousness to be like this and not be like that.

'How do you construe thus, monks--Is physical form constant or inconstant?'--'Inconstant, Lord.'--'And whatever is inconstant: Is it easeful or stressful?'--'Stressful, Lord.'--'And is it right to assume with regard to whatever is inconstant, stressful, subject to change, that "This is mine. This is my self. This is what I am"?'--'No, Lord.'

'...Is feeling constant or inconstant?...Is perception constant or inconstant?...Are mental processes constant or inconstant?...

'Is consciousness constant or inconstant?'--'Inconstant, Lord.'--'And whatever is inconstant: Is it easeful or stressful?'--'Stressful, Lord.'--'And is it right to assume with regard to whatever is inconstant, stressful, subject to change, that "This is mine. This is my self. This is what I am"?'--'No, Lord.'

'Thus, monks, any physical form whatsoever--past, future, or present; internal or external; blatant or subtle, common or sublime, far or near: every physical form--is to be seen as it actually is with right discernment as: "This is not mine. This is not my self. This is not what I am."

'Any feeling whatsoever...Any perception whatsoever...Any mental processes whatsoever...

'Any consciousness whatsoever--past, future, or present; internal or external; blatant or subtle, common or sublime, far or near: every consciousness--is to be seen as it actually is with right discernment as: "This is not mine. This is not my self. This is not what I am."

'Seeing thus, the instructed noble disciple grows disenchanted with the body, disenchanted with feeling, disenchanted with perception, disenchanted with mental processes, and disenchanted with consciousness. Disenchanted, he grows dispassionate. Through dispassion, he is released. With release, there is the knowledge, "Released." He discerns that "Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world."'

That is what the Master said. Glad at heart, the group of five monks delighted at his words. And while this explanation was being given, the hearts of the group of five monks, through not clinging (not being sustained), were released from the mental effluents.

S xxii.59

On the surface, doctrines about the self would appear simply to be another variety of speculative view. They deserve separate treatment, though, because they all come down to a deeply rooted sense of 'I am'--a conceit coloring all perception at the most basic level.

Monks, whatever contemplatives or priests who assume in various ways when assuming a self, all assume the five aggregates for sustenance, or a certain one of them. What five? There is the case where an uninstructed, run-of-the-mill person...assumes the body to be the self, or the self as possessing the body, the body as in the self, or the self as in the body. He assumes feeling to be the self...perception to be the self...mental processes to be the self...He assumes consciousness to be the self, or the self as possessing consciousness, consciousness as in the self, or the self as in consciousness.

Thus, both this assumption & the understanding, 'I am,' occur to him. And so it is with reference to the understanding 'I am' that there is the appearance of the five faculties--eye, ear, nose, tongue, & body (the senses of vision, hearing, smell, taste, & touch).

Now, there is the intellect, there are ideas (mental qualities), there is the property of ignorance. To an ordinary run-of-the-mill person, touched by experience born of the contact of ignorance, there occur (the thoughts): 'I am,' 'I am thus,' 'I shall be,' 'I shall not be,' 'I shall be possessed of form,' 'I shall be formless,' 'I shall be percipient (conscious),' 'I shall be non-percipient,' or 'I shall be neither percipient nor non-percipient.'

The five faculties, monks, continue as they were. And with regard to them the instructed noble disciple abandons ignorance and gives rise to clear knowledge. Owing to the fading of ignorance, (the thoughts)--'I am,' 'I am this,'...'I shall be neither percipient nor non-percipient'--do not occur to him.

S xxii.47

The sense of 'I am' can prevent a person from reaching the goal, even when he feels that he has abandoned attachment to sensuality, speculative views, & the experience of jhana.

There is the case, monks, where a certain contemplative or priest, with the abandonment of speculations about the past and the abandonment of speculations about the future, from the thorough lack of resolve for the fetters of sensuality, and from the surmounting of the rapture of withdrawal (in the first level of jhana), non-material pleasure and the feeling of neither pleasure nor pain (in the fourth level of jhana), thinks, 'I am at peace, I am unbound, I am without clinging/ sustenance!'

In this regard, the Tathagata perceives: 'This venerable contemplative or priest, with the abandonment of speculations about the past...thinks, "I am at peace, I am unbound, I am without clinging/sustenance!' To be sure, he affirms the practice conducive to Unbinding. Still, he clings, clinging to a speculative view about the past or...a speculative view about the future...or a fetter of sensuality...or the rapture of withdrawal...or formless pleasure...or a feeling of neither pleasure nor pain. And the fact that he thinks, "I am at peace, I am unbound, I am without clinging/sustenance!"--that in itself proclaims his clinging.'

Now, with regard to that--conditioned, gross--there is still this: the stopping of mental processes. Knowing this, seeing the emancipation from it, the Tathagata has gone beyond it.

M 102

Whereas the contemplative or priest under discussion in this passage reads an 'I' into what he is experiencing, the Buddha simply observes that 'There is this....' This unadorned observation--which simply sees what is present in an experience as present, and what is absent as absent--is treated in detail in the Lesser Discourse on Voidness. There the Buddha describes how to develop it methodically, in ascending stages passing through the levels of jhana--in this case based on the object 'earth', or solidity--and leading ultimately to Awakening.

Ananda, just as this palace of Migara's mother (in the monastery constructed by Lady Visakha near Savatthi) is devoid of elephants, cattle & mares, devoid of gold & silver, devoid of assemblies of women & men, and there is only this non-voidness--the singleness based on the community of monks; even so, Ananda, a monk--not attending to the perception (mental note) of village, not attending to the perception of human being--attends to the singleness based on the perception of forest. His mind takes pleasure, finds satisfaction, settles, & indulges in its perception of forest.

He discerns that 'Whatever disturbances would exist based on the perception of village...whatever disturbances would exist based on the perception of human being, are not present. There is only this modicum of disturbance: the singleness based on the perception of forest.' He discerns that 'This mode of perception is void of the perception of village. This mode of perception is void of the perception of human being. There is only this non-voidness: the singleness based on the perception of forest.' Thus he regards it as void of whatever is not there. Whatever remains, he discerns as present: 'There is this.' And so this, his entry into voidness, accords with actuality, is undistorted in meaning, & pure.

Further, Ananda, the monk--not attending to the perception of human being, not attending to the perception of forest--attends to the singleness based on the perception of earth. His mind takes pleasure, finds satisfaction, settles, & indulges in its perception of earth. Just as a bull's hide is stretched free from wrinkles with a hundred stakes, even so--without attending to all the ridges & hollows, the river ravines, the tracts of stumps & thorns, the craggy irregularities of this earth--he attends to the singleness based on the perception of earth. His mind...settles & indulges in its perception of earth.

He discerns that 'Whatever disturbances would exist based on the perception of human being...whatever disturbances would exist based on the perception of forest, are not present. There is only this modicum of disturbance: the singleness based on the perception of earth.' He discerns that 'This mode of perception is void of the perception of human being...void of the perception of forest. There is only this non-voidness: the singleness based on the perception of earth.' Thus he regards it as void of whatever is not there. Whatever remains, he discerns as present: 'There is this.' And so this, his entry into voidness, accords with actuality, is undistorted in meaning, & pure.

Further, Ananda, the monk--not attending to the perception of forest, not attending to the perception of earth--attends to the singleness based on the perception of the sphere of the infinitude of space...(and so on through the four levels of formless jhana. Then:)

Further, Ananda, the monk--not attending to the perception of the sphere of nothingness, not attending to the perception of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception--attends to the singleness based on the signless concentration of awareness. His mind takes pleasure, finds satisfaction, settles, & indulges in its signless concentration of awareness.

He discerns that 'Whatever disturbances would exist based on the perception of the sphere of nothingness...whatever disturbances would exist based on the perception of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception, are not present. And there is only this modicum of disturbance: that connected with the six sensory spheres, dependent on this very body with life as its condition.' He discerns that 'This mode of perception is void....(etc.)'

Further, Ananda, the monk--not attending to the perception of the sphere of nothingness, not attending to the perception of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception--attends to the singleness based on the signless concentration of awareness. His mind takes pleasure, finds satisfaction, settles, & indulges in its signless concentration of awareness.

He discerns that 'This signless concentration of awareness is fabricated & mentally fashioned.' And he discerns that 'Whatever is fabricated & mentally fashioned is inconstant & subject to stopping.' For him--thus knowing, thus seeing--the mind is released from the effluent of sensuality, the effluent of becoming, the effluent of ignorance. With release, there is the knowledge, 'Released.' He discerns that 'Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world.'

He discerns that 'Whatever disturbances would exist based on the effluent of sensuality...the effluent of becoming...the effluent of ignorance, are not present. And there is only this modicum of disturbance: that connected with the six sensory spheres, dependent on this very body with life as its condition.' He discerns that 'This mode of perception is void of the effluent of sensuality...becoming...ignorance. And there is just this non-voidness: that connected with the six sensory spheres, dependent on this very body with life as its condition.' Thus he regards it as void of whatever is not there. Whatever remains, he discerns as present: 'There is this.' And so this, his entry into voidness, accords with actuality, is undistorted in meaning, pure-- superior & unsurpassed.

M 121

Ananda: It is said that the world is void, the world is void, venerable sir. In what respect is it said that the world is void?

The Buddha: Insofar as it is void of a self or of anything pertaining to a self: Thus it is said that the world is void. And what is void of a self or of anything pertaining to a self? The eye is void of a self or of anything pertaining to a self. Forms...Visual consciousness...Visual contact is void of a self or of anything pertaining to a self.

The ear...The nose...The tongue...The body...

The intellect is void of a self or of anything pertaining to a self. Ideas...Mental consciousness...Mental contact is void of a self or of anything pertaining to a self. Thus it is said that the world is void.

S.xxxv.85

In abandoning the notion of self with regard to the world--here defined in the same terms as the 'All' (page 31, above)--the Buddha did not, however, hold to a theory that there is no self.

Having taken a seat to one side, Vacchagotta the wanderer said to the Master, 'Now then, Venerable Gotama, is there a self?' When this was said, the Master was silent.

'Then is there no self?' Again, the Master was silent.

Then Vacchagotta the wanderer got up from his seat and left.

Then, not long after Vacchagotta the wanderer had left, the Venerable Ananda said to the Master, 'Why, sir, did the Master not answer when asked a question asked by Vacchagotta the wanderer?'

'Ananda, if I, being asked by Vacchagotta the wanderer if there is a self, were to answer that there is a self, that would be conforming with those priests & contemplatives who are exponents of eternalism (i.e., the view that there is an eternal soul). And if I...were to answer that there is no self, that would be conforming with those priests & contemplatives who are exponents of annihilationism (i.e. that death is the annihilation of consciousness). If I...were to answer that there is a self, would that be in keeping with the arising of knowledge that all phenomena are not-self?

'No, Lord.'

'And if I...were to answer that there is no self, the bewildered Vacchagotta would become even more bewildered: "Does the self that I used to have, now not exist?"'

S xliv.10

This dialogue is one of the most controversial in the Canon. Those who hold that the Buddha took a position one way or the other on the question of whether or not there is a self have to explain away the Buddha's silence, and usually do so by focusing on his final statement to Ananda. If someone else more spiritually mature than Vacchagotta had asked the question, they say, the Buddha would have revealed his true position.

This interpretation, though, ignores the fact that of the Buddha's four express reasons for not answering the question, only the last is specific to Vacchagotta. The first two hold true no matter who is asking the question: To say that there is or is not a self would be to fall into one of two philosophical positions that the Buddha frequently attacked as incompatible with his teaching. As for his third reason, the Buddha wanted to be consistent with 'the arising of knowledge that all phenomena are not-self,' not because he felt that this knowledge was worth holding onto in & of itself (cf. his statement to Upasiva, on page 28, that in the experience of the goal all phenomena are done away with), but because he saw that the arising of such knowledge could, through causing the mind to let go of all forms of clinging/sustenance, lead to liberation.

This point becomes clear when we compare the exchange with Vacchagotta, given above, to this one with Mogharaja:

Mogharaja:
In what way does one view the world so that the King of Death does not see one?

The Buddha:
Having removed any view in terms of self, always mindful, Mogharaja, view the world as void.
This way one is above & beyond death.
This is the way one views the world so that the King of Death does not see one.

Sn v.16

The fundamental difference between this dialogue & the preceding one lies in the questions asked: In the first, Vacchagotta asks the Buddha to take a position on the metaphysical question of whether or not there is a self, and the Buddha remains silent. In the second,

Mogharaja asks for a way to view the world so that one can go beyond death, and the Buddha speaks, teaching him to view the world without reference to the notion of self.

This suggests that, instead of being a metaphysical assertion that there is no self, the teaching on not-self is more a strategy, a technique of perception aimed at leading beyond death to Unbinding--a way of perceiving things that involves no self-identification, no sense that 'I am', no attachment to 'I' or 'mine.' And this would be in keeping with the discernment the Buddha recommends in the Discourse on the Supreme Net (see page 64): one that judges views not in terms of their content, but in terms of where they come from and where they lead.

If a person aiming at Unbinding is not to view the world in terms of self, then in what terms should he or she view it? The Buddha's comment to Anuradha (page 25)--'It is only stress that I describe, and the stopping of stress'--suggests an answer, and this answer is borne out by a series of other passages in the Canon.

> 'Lord, "Right view, right view," it is said. In what respect is there right view?'
>
> 'By & large, Kaccayana, this world is supported by (takes as its object) a polarity, that of existence & non-existence. But when one sees the origin of the world as it actually is with right discernment, "non-existence" with reference to the world does not occur to him. When he sees the stopping of the world as it actually is with right discernment, "existence" with reference to the world does not occur to him.
>
> 'By & large, Kaccayana, this world is in bondage to attachments, clingings (sustenances), & biases. But the awareness of a person such as this is not attached, does not cling to these attachments, clingings, fixations, biases, & propensities; nor is it resolved on "my self." He has no uncertainty or doubt that, when there is arising, only stress is arising; and that when there is passing away, only stress is passing away. In this, his knowledge is independent of others. It is in this respect, Kaccayana, that there is right view.'

S xii.15

There is the case where an uninstructed, run-of-the-mill person...does not discern what ideas are fit for attention, or what ideas are unfit for attention. This being so, he does not attend to ideas fit for attention, and attends (instead) to ideas unfit for attention...This is how he attends inaptly: 'Was I in the past? Was I not in the past? What was I in the past? How was I in the past? Having been what, what was I in the past? Shall I be in the future? Shall I not be in the future? What shall I be in the future? How shall I be in the future? Having been what, what shall I be in the future?' Or else he is inwardly perplexed about the immediate present: 'Am I? Am I not? What am I? How am I? Where has this being come from? Where is it bound?'

As this person attends inaptly in this way, one of six kinds of view arises in him: The view I have a self arises in him as true & established, or the view I have no self...or the view It is precisely because of self that I perceive self...or the view It is precisely because of self that I perceive not-self...or the view It is precisely because of not-self that I perceive self arises in him as true & established, or else he has a view like this: This very self of mine--the knower that is sensitive here & there to the ripening of good & bad actions--is the self of mine that is constant, everlasting, eternal, not subject to change, and will endure as long as eternity. This is called a thicket of views, a wilderness of views, a contortion of views, a writhing of views, a fetter of views. Bound by a fetter of views, the uninstructed run-of-the-mill person is not freed from birth, ageing, & death, from sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief, & despair. He is not freed from stress, I say.

The well-taught noble disciple...discerns what ideas are fit for attention, and what ideas are unfit for attention. This being so, he does not attend to ideas unfit for attention, and attends (instead) to ideas fit for attention...He attends aptly, This is stress...This is the origin of stress...This is the stopping of stress...This is the way leading to the stopping of stress. As he attends aptly in this way, three fetters are abandoned in him: identity-view, doubt, and grasping at precepts & practices.

M 2

Now this, monks, is the noble truth of stress: Birth is stressful, ageing is stressful, death is stressful; sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief, & despair are stressful; association with the unbeloved is stressful, separation from the loved is stressful, not getting what is wanted is stressful. In short, the five aggregates for sustenance are stressful.

And this, monks, is the noble truth of the origination of stress: the craving that makes for further becoming--accompanied by passion & delight, relishing now here & now there--i.e., craving for sensual pleasure, craving for becoming, craving for non-becoming.

And this, monks, is the noble truth of the stopping of stress: the remainderless fading & stopping, renunciation, relinquishment, release & letting go of that very craving.

And this, monks, is the noble truth of the way leading to the stopping of stress: precisely this Noble Eightfold Path--right view, right intention, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, right concentration.

Vision arose, insight arose, discernment arose, knowledge arose, illumination arose within me with regard to things never heard before: 'This is the noble truth of stress'...'This noble truth of stress is to be comprehended'...'This noble truth of stress has been comprehended'...'This is the noble truth of the origination of stress'...'This noble truth of the origination of stress is to be abandoned'...'This noble truth of the origination of stress has been abandoned'...'This is the noble truth of the stopping of stress'...'This noble truth of the stopping of stress is to be directly experienced'...'This noble truth of the stopping of stress has been directly experienced'...'This is the noble truth of the way leading to the stopping of stress'...'This noble truth of the way leading to the stopping of stress is to be developed'...'This noble truth of the way leading to the stopping of stress has been developed.'

And, monks, as long as this knowledge & vision of mine--with its three rounds and twelve permutations concerning these four noble truths as they actually are--was not pure, I did not claim to have directly awakened to the unexcelled right self-awakening...But as soon as this knowledge & vision of mine--with its three rounds and twelve permutations concerning these four noble truths as they actually are--was truly pure, then did I claim to have directly awakened to the unexcelled right self-awakening...The knowledge & vision arose in me: 'Unprovoked is my release. This is the last birth. There is now no further becoming.'

S lvi.11

Just as if there were a pool of water in a mountain glen--clear, limpid & unsullied--where a man with good eyes standing on the bank could see shells, gravel & pebbles, and also shoals of fish swimming about & resting, and it would occur to him, 'This pool of water is clear, limpid & unsullied. Here are these shells, gravel & pebbles, and also these shoals of fish swimming about & resting.' So too, the monk discerns as it actually is, that 'This is stress...This is the origination of stress...This is the stopping of stress...This is the way leading to the stopping of stress...These are mental effluents...This is the origination of mental effluents...This is the stopping of mental effluents...This is the way leading to the stopping of mental effluents.' His heart, thus knowing, thus seeing, is released from the effluent of sensuality, released from the effluent of becoming, released from the effluent of ignorance. With release, there is the knowledge, 'Released.' He discerns that 'Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world.'

This, great king, is a fruit of the contemplative life, visible here & now, more excellent than the previous ones and more sublime. And as for another visible fruit of the contemplative life, higher & more sublime than this, there is none.

D 2

Thus for the person who aims at Unbinding, the Buddha recommends a technique of perception that regards things simply in terms of the four truths concerning stress, with no self-identification, no sense that 'I am', no attachment to 'I' or 'mine' involved. Although, as the following passage states, there may be a temporary, functional identity to one's range of perception, this 'identity' goes no further than that. One recognizes it for what it is: inconstant & conditioned, and thus not worthy of being taken as a self--for in transcending attachment to it, there is the realization of deathlessness.

Ananda: 'It is wonderful, sir; it is marvelous. For truly, the Master has pointed out the way to cross over the flood by going from one support to the next. But what then, sir, is the Noble Liberation?'

The Buddha: 'There is the case, Ananda, where a noble disciple considers that "Sensual pleasure here & now and in lives to come; form here & now and in lives to come; perceptions of form here & now and in lives to come; perceptions of imperturbability, perceptions of the sphere of nothingness, perceptions of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception: (All) that is an identity, to the extent that there is identity. (But) this is deathless: the liberation of the mind through lack of clinging/sustenance."'

M 106

Once the sense of self is transcended, its polar opposite--the sense of something standing in contradistinction to a self--is transcended as well. In the Discourse at Kalaka's Park, the Buddha expresses this lack of a self/non-self polarity directly in terms of sensory experience. For a person who has attained the goal, experience occurs with no 'subject' or 'object' superimposed on it, no construing of experience or thing experienced. There is simply the experience in & of itself.

Monks, whatever in this world--with its gods, Maras & Brahmas, its generations complete with contemplatives & priests, princes & men--is seen, heard, sensed, cognized, attained, sought after, pondered by the intellect: That do I know. Whatever in this world...is seen, heard, sensed, cognized, attained, sought after, pondered by the intellect: That I directly know. That is known by the Tathagata, but the Tathagata has not been obsessed with it...

Thus, monks, the Tathagata, when seeing what is to be seen, does not construe an (object as) seen. He does not construe an unseen. He does not construe an (object) to-be-seen. He does not construe a seer.

When hearing...When sensing...

When cognizing what is to be cognized, he does not construe an (object as) cognized. He does not construe an uncognized. He does not construe an (object) to-be-cognized. He does not construe a cognizer.

Thus, monks, the Tathagata--being such-like with regard to all phenomena that can be seen, heard, sensed, & cognized--is 'Such.' And I tell you: There is no other 'Such' higher or more sublime.

Whatever is seen or heard or sensed and fastened onto as true by others, One who is Such--among those who are self-bound-- would not further assume to be true or even false.
Having seen well in advance that arrow where generations are fastened & hung
    --'I know, I see, that's just how it is!'--
There is nothing of the Tathagata fastened.

A iv.24

A view is true or false only when one is judging how accurately it refers to something else. If one is regarding it simply as an event in & of itself, true & false no longer apply. Thus for the Tathagata--who no longer needs to impose notions of subject or object on experience, and can regard sights, sounds, feelings, & thoughts purely in & of themselves--views are not necessarily true or false, but can simply serve as phenomena to be experienced. With no notion of subject, there is no grounds for 'I know, I see;' with no notion of object, no grounds for 'That's just how it is.' So--although a Tathagata may continue using 'true' & 'false' in the course of teaching others, and may continue reflecting on right view as a means of abiding mindfully & comfortably in the present--notions of true, false, self, & not self have lost all their holding power over the mind. As a result, the mind can see conditioned events in their suchness--'such are the aggregates, such their origin, such their disappearance'--and is left free to its own Suchness: unrestrained, uninfluenced by anything of any sort.

* * *

This concludes our survey of the four modes of clinging/sustenance--passion & delight for sensuality, for views, for precepts & practices, and for doctrines of the self--and should be enough to give a sense of what is loosed in the Unbinding of the mind. All that remains now is the question of how.

Many of the passages we have considered seem to suggest that total Unbinding may be realized by letting go of any one of these four modes of sustenance. What most likely happens in such cases, though, is that the abandoning of one mode immediately triggers an abandoning of the remaining three, for there are other cases reported in the Canon where the experience of Unbinding comes in stages spread over time: the arising of the eye of Dhamma, which frees one from passion & delight for doubt, self-identity views, and grasping at precepts & practices; the attainment of Non-returning, which frees one from passion & delight for sensuality; and the attainment of Arahantship, which frees one from passion & delight for all views, the practice of jhana, & the conceit 'I am.' Why these stages happen in this order, and how they relate to the practices meant to induce them, is what we will take up next.

Chapter IV

"And taking a pin,
I pulled out the wick."

A theme recurrent in the passages we have been considering is that the abandonment of clinging/sustenance is effected through knowledge.

These four (modes of) sustenance have what as their cause, what as their origin, from what are they born, from what do they arise? These four (forms of) sustenance have craving as their cause, craving as their origin, are born from craving, and arise from craving.

And what does craving have as its cause...?...feeling...And what does feeling have as its cause...?...contact...And what does contact have as its cause...?...the six sense spheres... And what do the six sense spheres have as their cause...?... name & form...And what do name & form have as their cause...?...consciousness...And what does consciousness have as its cause...?...processes...And what do processes have as their cause...?...ignorance...

And, monks, as soon as ignorance is abandoned in a monk, and clear knowledge arises, he--from the fading of ignorance and the appearance of clear knowledge--clings neither to sensual pleasures as sustenance, nor to views as sustenance, nor to precepts & practices as sustenance, nor to doctrines of the self as sustenance. Not clinging (unsustained), he is not agitated. Unagitated, he is totally unbound right within. He discerns that 'Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world.'

M 11

The word 'vijja'--translated here as clear knowledge--also means 'science.' And just as science implies a method, there is a method--a discipline--underlying the knowledge that leads to Unbinding. That method is described from a number of perspectives in the Canon, each description stressing different aspects of the steps involved. The standard formula, though, is the Noble Eightfold Path, also known as the middle way.

> There are these two extremes that one who has gone forth is not to indulge in. What two? That which is devoted to sensual pleasure with reference to sensual objects: base, vulgar, common, ignoble, unprofitable; and that which is devoted to self-affliction: painful, ignoble, unprofitable. Avoiding both of these extremes, the middle way realized by the Tathagata--producing vision, producing knowledge--leads to calm, to direct knowledge, to self-awakening, to Unbinding.
>
> And what is the middle way realized by the Tathagata that--producing vision, producing knowledge--leads to calm, to direct knowledge, to self-awakening, to Unbinding? Precisely this Noble Eightfold Path: right view, right intention, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, right concentration.

S lvi.11

The eight factors of the path fall under three headings, the first two factors coming under discernment, the next three under virtue, and the final three under concentration. These three headings are called the Threefold Training; the dynamic among them, leading to the knowledge & vision of release, is one of natural cause & effect.

> It is natural that in a virtuous person, one of consummate virtue, freedom from remorse will arise...It is natural that in a person free from remorse gladness will arise...that in a glad person rapture will arise...that for an enraptured person the body will be calmed...that a person of calmed body will feel pleasure...that the mind of a person feeling pleasure will become concentrated...that a person whose mind is concentrated will see things as they actually are...that a person seeing things as they actually are will grow disenchanted & dispassionate...that a disenchanted & dispassionate person will realize the knowledge & vision of release.
>
> A X.2

According to the standard description of the Eightfold Path, the heading of discernment includes seeing things in terms of the four noble truths about stress, and maintaining the intention to release oneself from sensuality, to abandon ill will, and to avoid doing harm. Virtue includes abstaining from lying, from divisive speech, from harsh speech & idle chatter; from killing, stealing, & having illicit sex; and from engaging in dishonest or abusive forms of making a living, such as dealing in poison, slaves, weapons, intoxicants, or animal flesh.

The factors that go into concentration, though, are somewhat more complex.

And what, monks is right effort? There is the case where a monk arouses desire, endeavors, arouses energy, extends & exerts his mind for the sake of the non-arising of evil, bad qualities that have not yet arisen...for the sake of the abandonment of evil, bad qualities that have arisen...for the sake of the arising of good, wise qualities that have not yet arisen... (and) for the maintenance, non-confusion, increase, plenitude, development, & culmination of good qualities that have arisen. This, monks, is right effort.

And what is right mindfulness? There is the case where a monk remains focused on the body in & of itself--ardent, aware & mindful--putting away greed & sorrow with reference to the world. He remains focused on feelings in & of themselves...He remains focused on the mind in & of itself... He remains focused on mental qualities in & of themselves--ardent, aware & mindful--putting away greed & sorrow with reference to the world.

Thus either internally he remains focused on the body in & of itself, or externally...or both internally & externally...or else he remains focused on the phenomenon of arising with reference to the body...or the phenomenon of passing away with reference to the body...or the phenomenon of arising & passing away with reference to the body. Or, simply thinking, 'There is a body,' his mindfulness is present, just to the extent of knowledge & recollection. And he remains independent, not sustained by (clinging to) anything in the world. (Similarly with feelings, mind & mental qualities.)

D 22

(See page 66 above, instructions to Bahiya.)

Right concentration is the practice of the four basic levels of jhana.

These three factors are component parts of a single whole. In fact, their balanced inter-relatedness is what makes them 'right.' The first level of jhana requires the abandoning of bad mental qualities (the Hindrances*), which is part of the duty of right effort; and, as we saw in the description of breath meditation, jhana begins with mindfulness of the present. As jhana is practiced & mastered, good qualities (such as the Factors of Awakening*) are fostered & maintained; physical processes are stilled so that mental qualities may become clearly apparent as they occur; mindfulness is made pure on the attainment of the fourth level of jhana; and all four of the Applications of Mindfulness are developed.

> On whatever occasion, monks, a monk breathing in long discerns that he is breathing in long; or breathing out long, discerns that he is breathing out long; or breathing in short discerns that he is breathing in short; or breathing out short, discerns that he is breathing out short; trains himself to breathe in...&...out sensitive to the entire body; trains himself to breathe in...&...out calming the bodily processes: On that occasion, monks, the monk remains focused on the body in & of itself--ardent, aware & mindful--subduing greed & sorrow with reference to the world...
>
> On whatever occasion a monk trains himself to breathe in... &...out sensitive to rapture; trains himself to breathe in...&... out sensitive to pleasure; trains himself to breathe in...&...out sensitive to mental processes; trains himself to breathe in... &...out calming mental processes: On that occasion the monk remains focused on feelings in & of themselves--ardent, aware & mindful--subduing greed & sorrow with reference to the world...

On whatever occasion a monk trains himself to breathe in... &...out sensitive to the mind; trains himself to breathe in... &...out satisfying the mind; trains himself to breathe in...&... out steadying the mind; trains himself to breathe in...&... out releasing the mind: On that occasion the monk remains focused on the mind in & of itself--ardent, aware & mindful--subduing greed & sorrow with reference to the world...

On whatever occasion a monk trains himself to breathe in... &...out focusing on inconstancy; trains himself to breathe in...&...out focusing on dispassion; trains himself to breathe in...&...out focusing on stopping; trains himself to breathe in...&...out focusing on relinquishment: On that occasion the monk remains focused on mental qualities in & of themselves--ardent, aware & mindful--subduing greed & sorrow with reference to the world.

M 118

In the Great Discourse on the Applications of Mindfulness, the Buddha describes mindfulness of mental qualities in & of themselves, in part, in terms of the Hindrances and the Factors of Awakening, qualities that are respectively set aside & fostered in the practice of jhana.

And how does a monk remain focused on mental qualities in & of themselves with reference to the five Hindrances? There is the case where, there being sensual desire present within, a monk discerns that 'There is sensual desire present within me.' Or, there being no sensual desire present within, he discerns that 'There is no sensual desire present within me.' He discerns how there is the arising of unarisen sensual desire. And he discerns how there is the abandoning of sensual desire once it has arisen. And he discerns how there is no further appearance in the future of sensual desire that has been abandoned. (The same formula is repeated for the remaining Hindrances: ill will, sloth & torpor, restlessness & anxiety, and doubt.)....

And how does a monk remain focused on mental qualities in & of themselves with reference to the seven Factors of Awakening? There is the case where, there being mindfulness as a Factor of Awakening present within, a monk discerns that 'Mindfulness as a Factor of Awakening is present within me.' Or, there being no mindfulness as a Factor of Awakening present within, a monk discerns that 'Mindfulness as a Factor of Awakening is not present within me.' He discerns how there is the arising of unarisen mindfulness as a Factor of Awakening. And he discerns how there is the development & consummation of mindfulness as a Factor of Awakening once it has arisen. (The same formula is repeated for the remaining Factors of Awakening: investigation of phenomena, energy, rapture, serenity, concentration & equanimity.)

D 22

Thus the practice of right mindfulness does not repress undesirable mental qualities--i.e., it does not deny their presence. Rather, it notices them as they occur so that the phenomenon of their occurrence can be understood. Once they are understood for what they are as phenomena, they lose their power and can be abandoned.

However, the practice of right mindfulness focuses, not on the haphazard occurrence of mental qualities, but on the elimination of undesirable qualities--the Hindrances--that obstruct jhana, and on the development of desirable qualities--the Factors of Awakening--that it fosters. As these factors are strengthened through the continued practice of jhana, they make possible a clearer awareness of sensory processes as they occur: The factors of rapture, serenity, & equanimity, existing independently of the input of the five senses, make the mind less involved in sensory pleasures, less inclined to search for emotional satisfaction from them; the factors of mindfulness, investigation of phenomena, effort, & concentration enable clear insight into the events that make up sensory perception.

To see events in the body & mind simply as that--events, conditioned, arising & passing away--creates a further sense of distance, disenchantment, & de-identification.

> Knowing & seeing the eye as it actually is, knowing & seeing forms...visual consciousness...visual contact as they actually are, knowing & seeing whatever arises conditioned by visual contact--experienced as pleasure, pain, or neither pleasure nor pain--as it actually is, one is not infatuated with the eye...forms...visual consciousness...visual contact... whatever arises conditioned by visual contact and is experienced as pleasure, pain, or neither pleasure nor pain...
>
> Knowing & seeing the ear...Knowing & seeing the nose... Knowing & seeing the tongue...Knowing & seeing the body...
>
> Knowing & seeing the intellect as it actually is, knowing & seeing ideas...mental consciousness...mental contact as they actually are, knowing & seeing whatever arises conditioned by mental contact--experienced as pleasure, pain, or neither pleasure nor pain--as it actually occurs, one is not infatuated with the intellect...ideas...mental consciousness...mental contact...whatever arises conditioned by mental contact and is experienced as pleasure, pain, or neither pleasure nor pain.
>
> For him--remaining uninfatuated, unattached, unconfused--the > five aggregates for sustenance head toward future diminution. The craving that makes for further becoming--accompanied by passion & delight, relishing now this & now that--is abandoned by him. His bodily disturbances & mental disturbances are abandoned. His bodily torments & mental torments are abandoned. His bodily distresses & mental distresses are abandoned. He is sensitive both to ease of body & ease of awareness.

>
> Whatever view is his, is his as right view. Whatever intention, as right intention. Whatever effort, as right effort. Whatever mindfulness, as right mindfulness. Whatever concentration, as right concentration: just as earlier his actions, speech, & livelihood were already well-purified. Thus for him the Noble Eightfold Path goes to the culmination of its development...the four Applications of Mindfulness go to the culmination of their development...the seven Factors of Awakening go to the culmination of their development. (And) for him these two qualities occur in concert: tranquillity & insight.
>
> M 149

With the union of tranquillity & insight at the culmination of the path, Awakening occurs. The Canon records many instances where Awakening is sudden & total, and many where it occurs in stages: The reason for the difference isn't stated, but perhaps in sudden Awakening the mind goes through the various stages in quick succession. At any rate, a brief look at the stages will give something of an idea of the dynamics of the mind's Unbinding.

The standard list of the stages gives four, and describes them in terms of how many of the ten Fetters the mind sheds: (1) self-identity views, (2) grasping at precepts and practices, (3) doubt, (4) sensual passion, (5) irritation, (6) passion for form, (7) passion for formlessness, (8) conceit, (9) restlessness, & (10) ignorance.

There are in this community of monks, monks who, with the total ending of (the first) three Fetters, are Stream-winners, steadfast, never again destined for states of woe, headed for self-awakening...

There are...monks who, with the total ending of (the first) three fetters and the thinning out of passion, aversion, & delusion, are Once-returners. After returning only once to this world they will put an end to stress...

There are...monks who, with the total ending of the first set of five Fetters, are due to be reborn (in the Pure Abodes), there to be totally unbound, never again to return from that world...

There are...monks who are Arahants, whose mental effluents are ended, who have reached fulfillment, done the task, laid down the burden, attained the true goal, totally destroyed the fetter of becoming, and who are released through right gnosis.

M 118

An alternative way of classifying the stages lists three:

There is the case of the monk who has attained full accomplishment with regard to virtue, a modicum of accomplishment with regard to concentration, and a modicum with regard to discernment...

There is the case of the monk who has attained full accomplishment with regard to virtue, full accomplishment with regard to concentration, and a modicum of accomplishment with regard to discernment...

There is the case of the monk who has attained full accomplishment with regard to virtue, full accomplishment with regard to concentration, and full accomplishment with regard to discernment. With the ending of the mental effluents, he remains in the effluentless release of awareness & release of discernment, having known and made them manifest for himself right in the present.

A iii.88

As the text makes clear, Stream-winners and Once-returners are those who have fully developed virtue, Non-returners are those who have fully developed virtue & concentration, and Arahants are those who have fully developed all three parts of the path: virtue, concentration, & discernment.

This is not to say, however, that Stream-winners have not developed discernment to a fairly high degree. In fact, the unvarying definition of Stream-winners is that they have 'seen with discernment,' and their level of Awakening is called the arising of the Dhamma eye. What they see with this Dhamma eye is always expressed in the same terms:

Then Ven. Assaji gave this exposition of Dhamma to Sariputta the Wanderer:

'Whatever phenomena arise from cause:
Their cause & their cessation.
Such is the teaching of the Tathagata the Great Contemplative.'

Then to Sariputta the Wanderer, as he heard this exposition of Dhamma, there arose the dustless, stainless Dhamma eye: Whatever is subject to origination is all subject to cessation.

Mv i.23.5

For this realization to occur, it must follow on a glimpse of what stands in opposition to 'all that is subject to origination,' i.e., a glimpse of the Unconditioned--deathlessness.

(Immediately after winning to the Stream) Sariputta the Wanderer went to where Moggallana the Wanderer was staying. Moggallana the Wanderer saw him coming from afar, and on seeing him said, 'Your faculties are bright, my friend; your complexion pure & clear. Could it be that you have attained the Deathless?'

'Yes, my friend, I have....'

Mv i.23.5

Although their Awakening is not yet complete, Stream-winners see enough of the Deathless to remove all doubt in the Buddha's teachings.

To Upali the householder, as he was sitting right there, there arose the dustless, stainless Dhamma eye: Whatever is subject to origination is all subject to cessation.
Then--having seen the Dhamma, having reached the Dhamma, known the Dhamma, plunged entirely into the Dhamma, having crossed over & beyond doubt, having had no more questioning-- Upali the householder gained fearlessness and was independent of others with regard to the Teacher's message.

M 56

Their glimpse of deathlessness is also enough to convince Stream-winners of the worthlessness of self-identity views that center around the five aggregates of sustenance, all of which come under the category of 'all that is subject to origination.'

Magandiya, it is just as if there were a blind man who couldn't see black objects...white...blue...yellow...red... the sun or the moon. Now suppose that a certain man were to take a grimy, oil-stained rag and fool him, saying, 'Here, my good man, is a beautiful, clean, spotless white cloth.' The blind man would take it and wear it.

Then suppose his friends, companions & relatives took him to a doctor and the doctor treated him with medicine: purges from above & purges from below, ointments & counter-ointments and treatments through the nose. And thanks to the medicine his eyesight would appear & grow clear. Then together with the arising of his eyesight, he would abandon whatever passion & delight he felt for that grimy, oil-stained rag. And he would regard that man as an enemy & no friend at all, and think that he deserved to be killed. 'My gosh, how long have I been fooled, cheated, & deceived by that man & his oil-stained rag!--"Here, my good man, is a beautiful, clean, spotless white cloth."'

In the same way, Magandiya, if I were to teach you the Dhamma--this freedom from Disease, this Unbinding--and you on your part were to understand that freedom from Disease and see that Unbinding, then together with the arising of your eyesight, you would abandon whatever passion & delight you felt with regard for the five aggregates for sustenance. And it would occur to you, 'My gosh, how long have I been fooled, cheated, & deceived by this mind! For in clinging, it was just form that I was clinging to...it was just feeling...just perception...just mental processes... just consciousness that I was clinging to. With my clinging as condition, there arises becoming...birth...ageing & death... sorrow, lamentation, pains, griefs, & despairs. And thus is the origin of this entire mass of stress.'

M 75

Because they realize that their glimpse of the goal came through an act of discernment, Stream-winners no longer grasp at precepts & practices. What this means is that they no longer view mere adherence to precepts & practices as a sufficient means to the goal in & of itself, although they continue to abide by the precepts of right speech, action, & livelihood and by the practice of jhana that fostered their discernment to begin with. Having seen the efficacy of their own actions, they will never intentionally do evil again. This is what perfects their virtue. Still, they have yet to fully comprehend the practice of jhana, and so their minds remain attached to the phenomena--with & without form--on which that practice is based. As the texts say, they are bound by their incomplete mastery of concentration & discernment, and by seven remaining Fetters to the cycle of birth & death.

As for Non-returners, they have mastered jhana to the extent that they can use it as a vantage point for watching the arising & passing away that occurs in reference to the five senses, while the pleasure, rapture, & equanimity it offers serve them as a fulcrum point for uprooting any desire for the pleasures of those five senses, together with all feelings of irritation that come when such desires are not met.

They, too, have seen the Deathless, but as with Stream-winners, their discernment is not yet fully comprehensive: They have yet to turn it on the act of seeing: the tools--tranquillity & insight--that lead to that discernment, and the subtle levels of passion & delight that accompany it.

The texts express this point in a variety of ways. Some passages simply list the Fetters that Non-returners have yet to abandon: passion for form, passion for formlessness, conceit, restlessness, & ignorance. Others give more experiential accounts of what is happening in a Non-returner's mind. From reading these latter accounts it is possible to see how the five Fetters in the list are interconnected: Although Non-returners shed attachment to self-identity views back when they attained Stream entry, they still have a lingering sense of the conceit 'I am', associated with the five aggregates for sustenance--possessing form & formless--as they function subtly in the arising of tranquillity & insight as a process of becoming. And while they have gained enough insight into the five senses to let go of any attachment to them, they still suffer from a certain amount of ignorance concerning the subtler level of becoming inherent in that conceit, and this leads to refined forms of passion & delight that keep them restless & bound to the sixth sense: the mind.

> There is the case, Ananda, where a monk...enters & remains in the first jhana: refreshment & pleasure born of withdrawal, accompanied by directed thought & evaluation. He regards whatever phenomena there that are connected with form (body), feeling, perceptions, mental processes, & consciousness as inconstant, stressful, a disease, a cancer, an arrow, painful, an affliction, alien, a dissolution, a void, not self.
>
> He turns his mind away from those phenomena, and having done so, inclines his mind to the quality of deathlessness: 'This is peace, this is exquisite--the resolution of all mental processes; the relinquishment of all the paraphernalia of becoming; the ending of craving; dispassion; stopping; Unbinding.' Having attained this point, he reaches the ending of the mental effluents. Or, if not, then--through passion & delight for this very phenomenon (the discernment inclining to deathlessness) and from the total ending of the first of the five Fetters--he is due to be reborn (in the Pure Abodes), there to be totally unbound, never again to return from that world. (Similarly with each of the remaining levels of jhana.)

M 64

Several strands of our discussion converge at this passage. To begin with, the act of discernment described here--inclining the mind to the Deathless--is identical with the object of concentration described by the Buddha at A x.6 (see page 35). This would thus be an instance of tranquillity occurring in concert with insight (see page 102).

Secondly, as the passage points out, the crucial difference between Arahants and Non-returners is whether or not the mind feels passion & delight for this act of discernment. Here the distinctions concerning sustenance & clinging raised at the beginning of Chapter III (see page 44) come subtly into play. Any act of discernment, even on this level, comes under the five aggregates for sustenance, as composed of perception, mental processes, & consciousness. If not fully seen for what it is, it can thus act as a phenomenon offering sustenance (or as a clingable phenomenon). Any passion & delight for it--and these themselves are perceptions & mental processes--function as refined sustenance/clinging in the modes of views (of inferior/superior), mental absorption, & a sense of 'I am' involved in the act of discerning. Thus the mind still contains the conditions for becoming on a refined level, and this stands in the way of its total freedom.

Bound by both the yoke of sensuality
& the yoke of becoming, Beings continue in transmigration, returning to birth & death.
Those who have abandoned sensuality without reaching the ending of the effluents, are bound by the yoke of becoming:
Non-returners they are called.
While those who have cut off doubt have no more conceit or renewal of becoming.
They who have reached the ending of the effluents, while in the world,
have gone beyond.

Iti 96

Ven. Khemaka, a Non-returner, speaks shortly before he attains Arahantship: 'Just like the scent of a blue, red, or white lotus: If someone were to call it the scent of a petal or the scent of the color or the scent of a filament, would he be speaking correctly?'

'No, friend.'

'Then how would he describe it if he were describing it correctly?'

'...As the scent of the flower.'

'In the same way, friends, I don't say that this "I am" is form, nor that this "I am" is other than form. I don't say that this "I am" is feeling...perception...mental processes....I don't say that this "I am" is consciousness, nor that this "I am" is other than consciousness. It's just that for me the "I am" with regard to the five aggregates for sustenance has not been removed, although I don't regard them as "This is me."

'...Just like a cloth, spotted & stained, whose owners give it over to a washerman: The washerman scrubs it with salt earth or lye or cow-dung and then rinses it in clear water. Now even though the cloth is clean and spotless, it still has a slight, lingering residual scent of salt earth or lye or cow-dung. The washerman gives it to the owners, the owners put it away in a wicker box filled with incense, and its slight, lingering residual scent of salt earth, lye, or cow-dung disappears.

'In the same way, even though a noble disciple has abandoned the five lower Fetters, he still has with regard to the five aggregates for sustenance a slight, lingering residual "I am" conceit, an "I am" desire, an "I am" propensity. But at a later time he keeps focusing on the phenomena of arising & passing away with regard to the five aggregates of sustenance: "Such is form, such its origin, such its disappearance. Such is feeling...Such is perception...Such are mental processes...Such is consciousness, such its origin, such its disappearance." As he keeps focusing on the arising & passing away of these five aggregates for sustenance, the slight, lingering residual "I am" conceit, "I am" desire, "I am" propensity he had with regard to them disappears.'

S xxii.89

Only when discernment is so fully developed & totally comprehensive that it has no lingering conceits, desires or propensities for anything--not even for the mental processes of passion & delight that condition subtle levels of becoming around the act of discerning--can it complete its emancipation from the six spheres of sensory contact that make up the All.

Moggallana (shortly before becoming an Arahant): Briefly, sir, in what respect is a monk--released through the ending of craving--utterly complete, utterly free from bonds, a follower of the utterly chaste life, utterly consummate: foremost among human & heavenly beings?

The Buddha: There is the case, Moggallana, of the monk who has heard, 'All things are unworthy of attachment.' Having heard that all things are unworthy of attachment, he fully knows every thing. Fully knowing every thing, he fully comprehends every thing. Fully comprehending every thing, then whatever feeling he experiences--pleasure, pain, neither pleasure nor pain-- he keeps focusing on impermanence with regard to it, keeps focusing on dispassion, focusing on stopping, focusing on relinquishing. As he keeps focusing on impermanence... dispassion...stopping...relinquishing with regard to that feeling, he is unsustained by (does not cling to) anything in the world. Unsustained, he is not agitated. Unagitated, he is unbound right within: 'Birth is ended, the holy life fulfilled, the task done. There is nothing further for this world.'

It is in this respect, Moggallana, that a monk, in brief, is released through the ending of craving, utterly complete, utterly free from bonds, a follower of the utterly chaste life, utterly consummate: foremost among human & heavenly beings.

A vii.58

He who knows the All
    from all around,
Who is not aroused
    by anything at all, Having totally comprehended
    the All,
Has overcome
    all stress.

Iti 7

Now when a monk discerns--as they actually are--the origin & passing away of the six spheres of (sensory) contact, their allure, their drawbacks & the emancipation from them, then he discerns that this (discernment) is superior to all these (things).

D 1

With ignorance as condition, there occur processes; with processes as condition, (sensory) consciousness; with (sensory) consciousness as condition, name & form; with name & form as condition, the six (sense) spheres....

But with the remainderless fading & stopping of ignorance, processes stop. With the stopping of processes, (sensory) consciousness stops. With the stopping of (sensory) consciousness, name & form...the six (sense) spheres...contact... feeling...craving...clinging...becoming...birth stops. With the stopping of birth--ageing & death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, & grief (all) stop. Thus is the stopping of this entire mass of stress.

M 115

That which arises in dependence on the eye as pleasure or joy, that is the allure of the eye. Whatever aspects of the eye are inconstant, stressful, & subject to change, that is the drawback of the eye. Whatever is the subduing of passion & desire, the abandoning of passion & desire for the eye, that is the emancipation from the eye. (Similarly with the ear, nose, tongue, body, & intellect, and with forms, sounds, odors, flavors, tactile sensations, & ideas.)

S xxxv.13-14

This, the unsurpassed, foremost state of peace, has been realized by the Tathagata: liberation, through lack of clinging/sustenance, having known, as they actually are, the origin, the passing away, the allure, the drawbacks of--and the emancipation from--the six spheres of (sensory) contact.

M 102

This unsurpassed, foremost state of peace that comes as the mind realizes emancipation from the All, is totally Unconditioned.

There is, monks, an unborn--unbecome--unmade--uncompounded. If there were not that unborn--unbecome--unmade--uncompounded, there would not be the case that emancipation from the born--become--made--compounded would be discerned. But precisely because there is an--unborn--unbecome--unmade--uncompounded, emancipation from the born--become--made--compounded is thus discerned.

Ud viii.3

Where water, earth, fire and wind have no footing
There the stars do not shine
The sun is not visible
The moon does not appear
Darkness is not found.
And when a sage, a worthy one, through wisdom has known (this) for himself Then from form & name
from pleasure & pain,
He is freed.

Ud ii.10

Having fully realized the Unconditioned, the mind no longer falls under the sway of stress & inconstancy. No longer engrossed, it finds that its sense of participation & engagement in all the processes of experience disbands once & for all.

Ven. Nandaka: 'Sisters, it is just as if a skilled butcher or butcher's apprentice, having killed a cow, were to carve it up with a sharp carving knife so that--without damaging the substance of the inner flesh, without damaging the substance of the outer hide--he would cut, sever & detach only the skin muscles, connective tissues, & attachments in between; and having cut, severed & detached the outer skin, and then covering the cow again with that very skin, he were to say that the cow was actually joined to the skin: Would he be speaking rightly?'

'No, sir. Why is that?...because no matter how much he might say that the cow was actually joined to the skin, the cow would still be disjoined from the skin.'

'This simile, sisters, I have given to convey a message. The message is this: The substance of the inner flesh stands for the six inner sense spheres (the senses); the substance of the outer hide stands for the six outer sense spheres (their objects). The skin muscles, connective tissues, & attachments in between stand for passion & delight. And the sharp knife stands for noble discernment, which cuts, severs, & detaches the defilements, fetters, & attachments in between.'

M 146

Although the senses & their objects are there just as before, the fundamental affective link that ties the mind to sensations has been cut. And its cutting means unconditional freedom for the mind.

Ven. Maha Kaccayana: 'Concerning the brief statement the Master made, after which he entered his dwelling without expounding the detailed meaning--i.e., "A monk should investigate in such a way that, his consciousness neither externally scattered & diffused, nor internally fixated, he would from lack of clinging/sustenance be unagitated. When...from lack of clinging/ sustenance he would be unagitated, there is no seed for the conditions of future birth, ageing, death, or stress"--I understand the detailed meaning of this statement to be this:

'How is consciousness said to be scattered & diffused? There is the case where a form is seen with the eye, and consciousness follows the drift of (lit.: 'flows after') the image of the form, is tied to the attraction of the image of the form, is chained to the attraction of the image of the form, is fettered & joined to the attraction of the image of the form: Consciousness is said to be externally scattered & diffused. (Similarly with the remaining senses.)

'And how is consciousness said not to be externally scattered & diffused? There is the case where a form is seen with the eye, and consciousness does not follow the drift of the image of the form, is not tied to...chained to...fettered & joined to the attraction of the image of the form: Consciousness is said not to be externally scattered & diffused. (Similarly with the remaining senses.)

'And how is the mind said to be internally fixated? There is the case where a monk...enters & remains in the first jhana. His consciousness follows the drift of the rapture & pleasure born of withdrawal, is tied to...chained...fettered & joined to the attraction of the rapture & pleasure born of withdrawal. Or further...he enters & remains in the second jhana. His consciousness follows the drift of the rapture & pleasure born of composure, is tied to...chained...fettered & joined to the attraction of the rapture & pleasure born of composure. Or further...he enters & remains in the third jhana....His consciousness follows the drift of the equanimity & pleasure...Or further...he enters & remains in the fourth jhana. His consciousness follows the drift of the neither pleasure nor pain, is tied to...chained to...fettered & joined to the attraction of the neither pleasure nor pain: The mind is said to be internally fixated.

'And how is the mind said not to be internally fixated? There is the case where a monk...enters & remains in the first jhana. His consciousness does not follow the drift of the rapture & pleasure born of withdrawal, is not tied to...chained to...fettered & joined to the rapture & pleasure born of withdrawal. (And similarly with the remaining levels of jhana.)

'And how is agitation caused by clinging/sustenance? There is the case of an uninstructed, run-of-the-mill person...who assumes the body to be the self, or the self as possessing the body, or the body as in the self or the self as in the body. His body changes & is unstable. Because of the change and instability of his body, consciousness alters in accordance with the change in the body. With the concomitant arising of agitation born from this alteration, the mind stays consumed. And because of the consumption of awareness, he feels fearful, threatened, & solicitous. It is thus, friends, that agitation is caused by clinging/sustenance. (And similarly with feeling, perception, mental processes & consciousness.)'

'And how is non-agitation caused by lack of clinging/ sustenance? There is the case of an instructed noble disciple... who does not assume the body to be the self, or the self as possessing the body, or the body as in the self or the self as in the body. His body changes & is unstable, but consciousness does not for that reason alter in accordance with the change in the body. His mind is not consumed with any concomitant agitation born from such a change. Because his awareness is not consumed, he does not feel fearful, threatened, or solicitous. It is thus, friends, that nonagitation is caused by lack of clinging/sustenance. (And similarly with feeling, perception, mental processes & consciousness.)'

M 137

One who is dependent has wavering. One who is independent has no wavering. There being no wavering, there is calm. There being calm, there is no desire. There being no desire, there is no coming or going. There being no coming or going, there is no passing away or arising. There being no passing away or arising, there is neither a here nor a there nor a between-the-two. This, just this, is the end of stress.

Ud viii.4

Sensing a feeling of pleasure, he (a person who has reached the goal: This is the continuation of the passage on pages 74-75) discerns that it is fleeting, not grasped at, not relished. Sensing a feeling of pain....Sensing a feeling of neither pleasure nor pain, he discerns that it is fleeting, not grasped at, not relished. Sensing a feeling of pleasure, he senses it disjoined from it. Sensing a feeling of pain....Sensing a feeling of neither pleasure nor pain, he senses it disjoined from it. When sensing a feeling limited to the body, he discerns that 'I am sensing a feeling limited to the body.' When sensing a feeling limited to life, he discerns that 'I am sensing a feeling limited to life.' He discerns that 'With the break-up of the body, after the termination of life, all that is experienced, not being relished, will grow cold right here.'

Just as an oil lamp burns in dependence on oil & wick; and from the termination of the oil & wick--and from not being provided any other sustenance--it goes out unnourished; even so, when sensing a feeling limited to the body, he discerns that 'I am sensing a feeling limited to the body.' When sensing a feeling limited to life, he discerns that 'I am sensing a feeling limited to life.' He discerns that 'With the break-up of the body, after the termination of life, all that is sensed, not being relished, will grow cold right here.'

Thus a monk so endowed is endowed with the highest resolve for discernment--for this, the knowledge of the passing away of all stress, is the highest noble discernment.

His release, being founded on truth, does not fluctuate, for whatever is deceptive is false; Unbinding--the undeceptive--is true. Thus a monk so endowed is endowed with the highest resolve for truth, for this--Unbinding, the undeceptive--is the highest noble truth.

Whereas formerly he foolishly had taken on & brought to completion the paraphernalia of becoming, he has now abandoned them, their root destroyed, like an uprooted palm tree, deprived of the conditions of development, not destined for future arising. Thus a monk so endowed is endowed with the highest resolve for relinquishment, for this--the renunciation of all the paraphernalia of becoming--is the highest noble relinquishment.

Whereas formerly he foolishly had greed--as well as desire & infatuation--he has now abandoned them, their root destroyed...not destined for future arising. Whereas formerly he foolishly he had malice--as well as ill-will & hatred--he has now abandoned them....Whereas formerly he foolishly had ignorance--as well as delusion & confusion--he has now abandoned them, their root destroyed like an uprooted palm tree, deprived of the conditions of development, not destined for future arising. Thus a monk so endowed is endowed with the highest resolve for calm, for this--the calming of passions, aversions, & delusions--is the highest noble calm. 'One should not be negligent of discernment, should guard the truth, be devoted to relinquishment and train only for calm.' Thus it was said, and in reference to this was it said.

'He has been stilled where the currents of construing do not flow. And when the currents of construing do not flow, he is said to be a sage at peace:' Thus it has been said. With reference to what was it said? 'I am' is a construing. 'I am this' is a construing. 'I shall be' is a construing.

'I shall not be'...'I shall be possessed of form'...'I shall not be possessed of form'...'I shall be percipient'...'I shall not be percipient'... 'I shall be neither percipient nor non-percipient' is a construing. Construing is a disease, construing is a cancer, construing is an arrow. By going beyond all construing, he is called a sage at peace.

Furthermore, a sage at peace is not born, does not age, does not die, is unagitated and free from longing. He does not have anything whereby he would be born. Not being born, will he age? Not ageing, will he die? Not dying, will he be agitated? Not being agitated, for what will he long? It was in reference to this that it was said, 'He has been stilled where the currents of construing do not flow. And when the currents of construing do not flow, he is said to be a sage at peace.'

M 140

Sariputta: And how, my friend, is a monk's mind well-composed by means of awareness? 'My mind is without passion'--his mind is well-composed by means of awareness. 'My mind is without aversion'...'My mind is without delusion'...'My mind is not subject to passion'...'to aversion'... 'to delusion'--his mind is well-composed by means of awareness. 'My mind is destined not to return to states of sensuality'...'to states of form'...'to states without form'-- his mind is well-composed by means of awareness.

Even if powerful forms cognizable by the eye come into the visual range of a monk whose mind is thus rightly released, his mind is neither overpowered nor even engaged. Being still, having reached imperturbability, he focuses on their passing away. And even if powerful sounds...smells...tastes... tactile sensations...Even if powerful ideas cognizable by the intellect come into the mental range of a monk whose mind is thus rightly released, his mind is neither overpowered nor even engaged. Being still, having reached imperturbability, he focuses on their passing away.

Just as if there were a stone column, sixteen spans tall, of which eight spans were rooted below ground, and then from the east there were to come a powerful wind storm: The column would not shiver nor quiver nor quake. And then from the west...the north...the south there were to some a powerful wind storm: The column would not shiver nor quiver nor quake. Why? Because of the depth of the root and the well-buriedness of the stone column. In the same way, my friend, even if powerful forms cognizable by the eye come into the visual range of a monk whose mind is thus rightly released...etc....his mind is neither overpowered nor even engaged.

A ix.26

Everywhere
    the sage independent holds nothing dear or undear.
    In him lamentation & selfishness like water on a white lotus do not adhere.
As a water bead on a lotus leaf,
as water on a red lily,
    does not adhere,
    so the sage
    does not adhere to the seen, the heard or the sensed;
    for, cleansed,

he does not construe
by means of the seen, the heard or the sensed.
In no other way
does he ask for purity, for neither impassioned nor dispassioned is he.

Sn iv.6

This radical freedom--unattached to sensation, untouched by the power of passion, aversion, & delusion--is the Unbinding experienced in the present life.

Sister Patacara:
Washing my feet, I noticed the water.
And in watching it flow from high to low,
my heart was composed
like a fine thoroughbred steed.
Then taking a lamp, I entered the hut, checked the bedding,
sat down on the bed.
And taking a pin, I pulled out the wick:
Like the flame's unbinding was the liberation of awareness.

Thig v.10

CHAPTER ONE

Patimokkha

~~~~~~~~~~ The Patimokkha is available to us in several recensions, some in Indic languages, others in Tibetan or Chines However, of the Indic recensions, only one -- the Pali -- is still a living tradition, recited fortnightly, and put into practice by Theravadin bhikkhus throughout the world. This is the r translated and explained in this book. The meaning of the term //patimokkha// is a ma conjecture. According to the Mahavagga, it means "the beginning, the head (or entrance the foremost (//pamukha//) of skillful qualities." (Mv.II.3.4) The term serves as the name no basic code of training rules, but also of a sermon in which the Buddha enumerated the b common to the teachings of all Buddhas: "The non-doing of all evil, the performance of wh skillful, and the purification of one's heart: this is the Buddhas' message." (Dhp.183) Thus w etymology of the term //patimokkha//, it denotes a set of principles basic to the practice o religion. The basic code of training rules for bhikkhus, in its Pali recension, contains 2 rules, divided into eight sections in accordance with the penalty assigned by each rule: //pa defeat; //sanghadisesa//, formal meeting; //aniyata//, undetermined; //nissaggiya pacittiya// and confession; //pacittiya//, confession; //patidesaniya//, acknowledgement; //sekhiya//, and //adhikarana-samatha//, settlement of issues. The following chapters will discuss the p of these terms. Three of these terms, though, do not denote penalties. The aniyata r directions for judging uncertain cases; the sekhiya rules simply say, "(This is) a training to followed," without assigning a particular penalty for not following them; and the adhikara rules give procedures to follow in settling issues that may arise in the Community. Thus th five types of penalty mentioned in the Patimokkha rules themselves, ranging from perma from the Community to simple confession in the presence of another bhikkhu. None of the should note, involve physical punishment of any kind. And we should further note that the undergoing the penalties is not somehow to absolve one from guilt or to erase any bad k incur by breaking the rules; rather, the purpose is both personal and social: to strengthen o to refrain from such behavior in the future, and to reassure the other bhikkhus that one is serious about following the training. In addition to the penalties directly mentioned in th there are also penalties derived from the rules by the Vibhanga and commentaries. Thes penalties deal with two sorts of cases: 1) A bhikkhu tries to commit an action mentioned in rules, but the action for one reason or another does not reach completion (e.g., he tries to person, but the person doesn't die). 2) A bhikkhu commits an action not directly covered in but similar to one that is (e.g., he strikes an unordained person, which is not directly cover rule, while the act of striking a bhikkhu is). Penalties of this sort, when derived from parajika and sanghadisesa rules, include thullaccaya (grave offense) and dukkata (wron derived from the nissaggiya pacittiya, pacittiya, and patidesaniya rules -- except for the rul speaking insults -- include only the dukkata. The penalties derived from the rule against s insults include dubbhasita (wrong speech) as well. As for the sekhiya rules, the Vibhanga to disobey any of them out of disrespect entails a dukkata. All of these derived penalties m through confession. There may, of course, be times when the assigned penalties are n to deter an unconscientious bhikkhu from committing an offense repeatedly. In such cases which he is living may, if it sees fit, formally impose additional penalties on him as a mea bringing him into line. These formal acts range from stripping him of some of the privileges to banishment from that particular Community, and on to suspension from the Bhikkhu S In each case the punishment is temporary; if the bhikkhu realizes his errors and mends his Community is to revoke the act against him and return him to his former status. Thus a whole, the Vinaya's system of penalties makes use of three basic principles -- confessio and various degrees of ostracism from the Community -- as means of enforcing the rules the wisdom of this system, it is important to realize how each of these principles is related practice of the Dhamma and the training of the mind. //Confession//: There are sever the discourses (e.g., D.2, M.140) where the Buddha states, 'It is growth in the discipline One that a person sees a transgression (of his own) as a transgression, makes amends fo with the Dhamma, and achieves restraint in the future.' From the context each time the B this statement, it is clear that "makes amends" means confessing one's mistakes. In anoth (M.61), the Buddha informs his son, Rahula, that if one sees that one's words or deeds h oneself or others, one should confess them to a knowledgeable companion in the Holy Life have purified their thoughts, words, and deeds in the past, all those who are doing so in and all those who will do so in the future, he adds, have acted, are acting, and will act in ju way. In addition, one of the basic requisites for exerting oneself in the practice is that one fraudulent or deceitful, and that one declare oneself to one's knowledgeable companions i Life in line with one's actual behavior (A.V.53). Thus a willingness to confess one's misdee essential factor in progress along the path. //Forfeiture//, in most cases, is simply a symbolic adjunct to confession. One forfeits the object in question, confesses the offens receives the object in return. In a few cases, though -- where the object is improper for a b or own -- one must break it or forfeit it for good. In these cases, forfeiture serves as a ch against greed and as a reminder of two essential principles -- contentment with little and fe wants -- that are absolutely basic to the practice. //Ostracism//: In a famous passage (S.XLV.2), the Buddha tells Ven. Ananda, "Being a friend, a companion, a colleague with people is the entirety of the Holy Life. When a bhikkhu is a friend, a companion, a colleagu admirable people, he can be expected to develop the Noble Eightfold Path and make muc one of the few things a bhikkhu serious about the practice would naturally fear would be to by the well-behaved members of the Community, for that would be a true barrier to his s progress. This fear would then help deter him from any action that might entail such ostrac In this way, the Vinaya's system of penalties provides rehabilitation for offenders and dete offenses -- with confession the means of rehabilitation, and ostracism the deterrent -- gro directly out of principles basic to the practice of the Dhamma. Offenses. In analyzing for the purpose of determining penalties, the Vibhanga divides an action into five factors: t object, the perception, the intent, the effort, and the result. In some of the rules, all five fac play a role in determining what is and is not a full offense. In others, only two, three or four a role. For example, under the parajika rule forbidding murder, all five factors have to be p full offense: The object has to be a human being, the bhikkhu has to perceive him/her as a being, he has to have murderous intent, he has to make an effort for the person to die, and to die. If any of these factors are missing, the penalty changes. For instance, object: bhikkhu kills a dog, the penalty is a pacittiya. Perception: If he cremates a friend, thinking t friend is dead, then even if the friend is actually alive but severely comatose, the bhikkhu penalty. Intent: If he accidentally drops a rock on a person standing below him, he incurs even if the person dies. Effort: If he sees a person fall into the river, but makes no effort to person, he incurs no penalty even if the person drowns. Result: If he tries to kill a person succeeds in injuring him, he incurs a thullaccaya. There are some rules, though, where of intention, perception, and result do not make any difference in determining offenses. F if a bhikkhu is sleeping alone in a room and a woman comes in and lies down in the room incurs the pacittiya for lying down in the same lodging as a woman even though his inter lie down alone and he was unaware of her presence. A bhikkhu who drinks a glass of wine grape juice, incurs the pacittiya for taking intoxicants all the same. A bhikkhu who tries to another bhikkhu incurs a pacittiya regardless of whether or not the other bhikkhu is actuall frightened. Another variation is that in rules where a bhikkhu may be put into a pass in committing an act that would fulfill the factor of effort, the factor of intention is changed t consent: mental acquiescence to the act combined with a physical or verbal expression acquiescence. Under some rules, such as the rule against sexual intercourse, simply lettin counts as physical acquiescence even if one lies perfectly still, and the question of wheth one incurs a penalty depends entirely on the state of one's mind. Under other rules, thoug rule against lustful contact with a woman, which includes cases where the woman is the the contact -- simply lying still is not enough to count as a physical sign of acquiescence, a if one consents mentally, say, to a woman's fondling, one would incur a penalty only if one or responds with a physical movement to what she is doing. The factor of effort is ba every rule and is also used to determine offenses in cases where a bhikkhu intends to bre does not complete the action. For instance, in the case of stealing, the efforts involved are begin when, acting under the intent to steal, a bhikkhu gets dressed and starts walking to With each of these preliminary efforts -- literally, with every step -- he incurs a dukkata. At glance, this may seem extreme, but when we view his state of mind as having ultimate i system of assigning penalties is appropriate. In cases like this, if the bhikkhu completes th penalties he incurred in the preliminary efforts are nullified, and he is left with only the pe imposed by the rule. Thus it is important, when reading about each training rule, to p attention to what role these five factors play in determining the offenses related to the rule course, it is important for each bhikkhu to pay attention to all five of these factors in all o actions to make sure that he does not fall at any time into an offense. This is where trainin discipline becomes part of the training of the mind leading to Awakening. A bhikkhu who is analyze his actions into these five factors, to be aware of them as they arise, and to behav in such a manner that he avoids committing any offenses, is developing three qualities: r an analytical attitude towards phenomena in his thoughts, words, and deeds; and persiste unskillful qualities and developing skillful ones within himself. These are the first three of seven factors of Awakening, and form the basis for the remaining four: rapture, tranquility, concentration, and equanimity. The Parivara (VI.4), in reviewing the Vibhanga's five fa analyzing offenses, devises a number of categories for classifying offenses, the most imp distinction between rules carrying a penalty only when broken intentionally through correct (//sacittaka//), and those carrying a penalty even when broken unintentionally or through m (//acittaka//). Although it may seem harsh to impose penalties for unintentional action must again reflect on the state of mind that leads to such actions. In some acts, of course, makes all the difference between guilt and innocence. Taking an article with intent to ret example, is something else entirely from taking it with intent to steal. There are, however, with damaging consequences that, when performed unintentionally, reveal carelessness circumspection in areas where a person may reasonably be held responsible. Many of the the proper care of communal property and one's basic requisites fall in this category. Ex very unlikely situation, though, none of the major rules carry a penalty if broken unintentio the minor rules that do carry such penalties may be regarded as useful lessons in mindfu
~~~~~~~~~~

The Parivara (IV.7.4) also lists six ways in which offenses can be committed: 1) //unconscientiously//, i.e., knowing that an action is contrary to the rules, but going ahead anyway; 2) //unknowingly//, i.e., not realizing that the action is contrary to the rules;
3) //absentmindedly//; 4) //assuming something improper to be proper//, e.g., drink glass of apple wine perceiving it to be apple juice; 5) //assuming something proper to improper//, e.g., perceiving a glass of apple juice to be apple wine, and drinking it noneth
6) //acting out of uncertainty//, i.e., not being sure if an action is proper, but going ah with it anyway. In this last case, if the action is improper, one is to be treated according to relevant rule. If it is proper, one incurs a dukkata in any event for having acted irresponsib Another scheme introduced in the ancient commentaries for classifying offenses is the di between those that the world criticizes (//loka-vajja//) and those that only the rules criticize (//pannati-vajja//). The Commentary defines this distinction by saying that loka-vajja offens committed with an unskillful state of mind (i.e., greed, anger or delusion), whereas panna offenses are committed with a skillful state of mind. Thus the concepts would seem to hav originally to deal with the exceptional cases in which a bhikkhu would be led by mature c to break a rule -- e.g., where another person's life would be at stake. Under such circumsta world at large would not criticize his actions, although the rules would impose a penalty.

As these concepts finally took shape in the ancient commentaries, though, they became a rules. The compilers apparently felt that some of the rules forbade actions that necessar motivated by an unskillful state of mind, whereas others forbade actions that might be mot skillful states of mind. Given this use of the distinction, the Vinaya Mukha redefines the t follows: "Some offenses are faults as far as the world is concerned -- wrong and da even if committed by ordinary people who are not bhikkhus -- examples being robbery a as such lesser faults as assault and verbal abuse. Offenses of this sort are termed lo There are also offenses that are faults only as far as the Buddha's ordinances are conce neither wrong nor damaging if committed by ordinary people; wrong only if committed by grounds that they run counter to the Buddha's ordinances. Offenses of this sort are t pannati-vajja." Even a cursory glance at the Patimokkha rules will show that many of t with the latter sort of offense, and that such offenses concern relatively minor matters. The often arises, then: Why this concern with minutiae? The answer is that the rules deal wit relationships -- among the bhikkhus themselves and between the bhikkhus and the laity -- relationships are defined by seemingly minor points. Take, for instance, the rule that bhikkhu may not eat food unless it is handed to him or to a fellow bhikkhu by an unordaine that day. This rule has wide-ranging ramifications. It means, among other things, that a bh leave human society to lead a solitary hermit's existence, foraging for food on his own. H frequent contact with humanity, however minimal, and in that contact he performs a servic if simply offering them a noble example of conduct and giving them an opportunity to dev virtue of generosity. Many of the other seemingly trivial rules -- such as those forbidding di the soil and damaging plant life -- will reveal, on reflection, implications of a similar scope. The Great Standards. Although the Vibhanga and Khandhakas cover an enormous numb of course, cover every possible contingency in the world; and from what we have seen of t which the Buddha formulated the rules -- dealing with cases as they arose -- there is reaso he himself wanted them to form an airtight system. As for cases that did not arise during lifetime, he established the following four guidelines for judgment -- called the Great Stand separate set from those he formulated at Bhoganagara) -- for judging cases not mention rules: "Bhikkhus, whatever I have not objected to, saying, 'This is not allowable,' if it fits in with what is not allowable, if it goes against what is allowable, that is not allowable you. "Whatever I have not objected to, saying, 'This is not allowable,' if it fits in wi what is allowable, if it goes against what is not allowable, that is allowable for you. "And whatever I have not permitted, saying, 'This is allowable,' if it fits in with what is not allowable, if it goes against what is allowable, that is not allowable for you. "And whatever I have not permitted, saying, 'This is allowable,' if it fits in with what is allowable goes against what is not allowable, that is allowable for you." (Mv.VI.40) These f Great Standards, when properly applied, are an important tool for extending the principles into situations unknown in the Buddha's time. We will have occasion to refer to them fre course of this book. There is evidence in the Canon that the Buddha's own attitude t discipline was not one of strict legalism. Take, for instance, this discourse: "At one ti the Blessed One was living in Vesali, in the Great Wood. Then a certain Vajjian bhikkhu him...and said: 'Lord, more than 150 training rules come up for recitation every fortni cannot train in reference to them.' "'Bhikkhu, can you train in reference to the three tra the training in heightened virtue, the training in heightened mind, the training in heigh discernment?' "'Yes, Lord, I can....' "'Then train in reference to those three trainings....When you train in reference to the training in heightened virtue... heighter mind...heightened discernment, passion will be abandoned in you, aversion...delusion w in you. Then with the abandoning of passion...aversion... delusion, you will not do an unskillful or engage in any evil.' "Later on, that bhikkhu trained in heightened virtue... heightened mind...heightened discernment....Passion... aversion...delusion were abando did not do anything unskillful or engage in any evil." (A.III.85) Another discourse with similar point: "'Bhikkhus, more than 150 training rules come up for recitation every fortnight, in reference to which young men desiring the goal train themselves. There are trainings in which they (the training rules) are all contained. What three? The training heightened virtue, the training in heightened mind, the training in heightened discernmen the three trainings in which they are all contained.... "'There is the case, bhikkhus where a bhikkhu is fully accomplished in virtue, concentration, and discernment (i.e., arahant). With reference to the lesser and minor training rules, he falls into offenses and rehabilitates himself. Why is that? Because it is not said to be an impossibility. But as for the training rules that are basic to the holy life and proper to the holy life, his virtue is ste and firm. Having undertaken them, he trains in reference to the training rules. Becau ending of (mental) effluents, he dwells in the release of awareness and release of discer free from effluent, having known and made them manifest for himself right in the pres "'Those who are partially accomplished attain a part; those who are wholly accompl whole. The training rules, I say, are not in vain.'" (A.III.88) * * * * * * *

CHAPTER TEN

Sekhiya

~~~~~~~ This term, as an adjective qualifying a duty, means "to be practiced" or "t trained in." As the name of a training rule, it means "to be followed." There are 75 training this category, divided by subject into four groups: etiquette in dressing and behaving wh inhabited areas; etiquette in accepting and eating alms food; etiquette when teaching the D etiquette in urinating, defecating, and spitting. The rules themselves do not impose a penalty. Instead, they simply say, "(This is) a training to be observed." The Vibhanga, t that to violate any of these rules out of disrespect incurs a dukkata. To violate them uninte unthinkingly, or unknowingly, or to disobey them when there are dangers or (in most case ill, incurs no penalty. The Commentary adds that "unknowingly" in this case does not m knowing the rule. For a new bhikkhu not to make the effort to know the rules, it says, wou disrespect. So "unknowingly" here means not knowing that a situation contrary to the ru developed. For instance, if one does not know that one's robes have gotten out of kilter, t count as a breach of the relevant rule.

* * *

Part One: The 26 Dealing with Proper Behavior

The Canon contains several stories in which a bhikkhu's behavior another person to become interested in the Dhamma. The most famous example is the st Sariputta's first encounter with Ven. Assaji. "Now at that time the wanderer Sanjaya residing in Rajagaha with a large company of wanderers -- 250 in all. And at that ti Sariputta and Moggallana were practicing the celibate life under Sanjaya. They had ma agreement: Whoever attains the Deathless first will inform the other. "Then Ven Assaji, arising early in the morning, taking his robe and bowl, entered Rajagaha for alms in the way he approached and departed, looked forward and behind, drew in and st his arm; his eyes downcast, his every movement consummate. Sariputta the wanderer Assaji going for alms in Rajagaha: gracious...his eyes downcast, his every movement c seeing him, the thought occurred to him: 'Surely, of those in this world who are ara have entered the path to arahantship, this is one. What if I were to approach him and q him: "On whose account have you gone forth? Who is your teacher? In whose Dham delight?'" "But then the thought occurred to Sariputta the wanderer: 'This is the wrong time to question him. He is going for alms in the town. What if I were to follow b bhikkhu who has found the path for those who seek it?'" Even though the following ru minor matters, a bhikkhu should remind himself that the minor details of his behavior can the difference between sparking and killing another person's interest in the Dhamma.

[2]I will wear the lower robe [upper robe] wrapped around (me): a training to be observe To wear the lower robe wrapped around means to wear the upper edge circling the waist, and the lower edge circling the knees. The Commentary states that when standing, the lo should be not more than eight fingerbreadths below the knees, although if one's calves are is all right to cover them more than that. To wear the upper robe wrapped around me according to the Vibhanga, keeping both ends of the top and bottom edges level. The b the upper robe, though, does not have to be level with the bottom edge of the lower robe. of the upper robe in the Buddha's time, it would not have extended down that far. Int to wear either robe hanging down in front or in back is a breach of these rules. The Comm that the purpose of this rule is to prevent bhikkhus from wearing their robes in any of the ways that lay people in those days wore theirs -- e.g., pleated "with 100 pleats," tied up, or between the legs. It also comments that since these rules are not qualified, as the follow are, with the phrase, "in inhabited areas," they should be followed in the monastery and wi as well. As a practical matter, though, if one is working on a high ladder or in a tree, it is policy to tuck one's lower robe up between the legs for decency's sake. 3. [4]I wil [sit] well-covered in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. The Vibhanga does define //inhabited areas// in this or any of the following rules. The term thus probably has meaning as under Patidesaniya 1: in the homes of lay people, or along the streets and villages, cities, or towns. This does not include, however, monasteries located in inhabited although many such monasteries make it a rule that bhikkhus living with them observe m rules when outside of their personal quarters, even though they are still within the monaste //Well-covered//, according to the Commentary, means not exposing one's chest or kn should have the upper edge of the upper robe around the neck, and the lower edge coveri lower edge of the lower robe, as stated above, should cover the knees. When seated, o hands and legs from the calves on down should show. Rule #4 here has an added n clause: There is no offense if one sits not "well-covered" within one's residence (%). Ac the Vinaya Mukha, this means within one's room if one is staying overnight in a lay person outside of one's room, though, one should follow the rule. 5. [6]I will go [sit] well-restrained in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. //Well-restrained//, according to the Commentary, means not playing with the hands or feet. This would inclu dancing, cracking one's knuckles, wiggling one's fingers or toes. 7. [8]I will go [sit] with eyes lowered in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. The Vibhanga that a bhikkhu should keep his gaze lowered to the ground the distance of a plow's length this equals two meters, according to the Commentary. The purpose of this rule, it adds, one from gazing aimlessly here and there at the sights as one walks along. There is nothi though, in looking up when one has reason to do so. An example given in the Commenta look up and see if there are dangers from approaching horses or elephants. A more mode would be checking the traffic before crossing a road. 9. [10]I will not go [sit] with robes hitched up in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. According to the Co to hitch up one's robes means to lift them so as to expose either side or both sides of the b #10 here, like Sekhiya 4, does not apply when one is sitting in one's residence in an inhab
~~~~~~~

11. [12]I will not go [sit] laughing loudly in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. According to the Vibhanga, if there is any reason for amusement, one shou smile. 13. [14]I will go [sit] (speaking) with a lowered voice in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. The Commentary defines a lowered voice as follows: Three l sitting in a row at intervals of three meters. The first bhikkhu speaks. The second can hea clearly catch what he is saying. The third can hear his voice, but not what he is saying. third can clearly catch what he is saying, it maintains, the first bhikkhu is speaking too loud Vinaya Mukha notes, though, when one is speaking to a crowd of people, there is nothing raising one's voice provided that one does not shout. And as the no-offense clauses show nothing wrong in shouting if there are dangers -- e.g., someone is about to fall off a cliff o by a car -- or if one's listener is partially deaf. 15. [16]I will not go [sit] swinging the body in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. This means that one should one's body straight. Rule #16, like Sekhiya 4, does not apply when one is sitting in one's in an inhabited area. 17. [18]I will not go [sit] swinging the arms in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. According to the Commentary, this means that one sh arms still, although as the Vinaya Mukha points out, there is nothing wrong in swinging o slightly to keep one's balance as one walks. Rule #18, like Sekhiya 4, does not apply whe sitting in one's residence in an inhabited area. 19. [20]I will not go [sit] swinging the head in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. This refers to swinging the head side to side or letting it droop forward or back. Of course, there is no offense if one is do off, and like Sekhiya 4, Rule #20 does not apply when one is sitting in one's residence in a area. 21. [22]I will not go [sit] with arms akimbo in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. //Akimbo// means with the hand on the hip. This rule, the Commentar forbids having one arm or both arms akimbo. Rule #22 does not apply when one is sitting residence in an inhabited area. 23. [24]I will not go [sit] with my head covered in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. //Covered//, here, means covered with a r scarf, or other similar piece of cloth. Rule #24 does not apply when one is sitting in one' residence in an inhabited area. The allowance for "one who is ill" under both rules means cover one's head when the weather is unbearably cold or the sun unbearably hot. will not go tiptoeing or walking just on the heels in inhabited areas: a training to be obse This translation of the rule follows the Commentary. 26.I will not sit holding up th knees in inhabited areas: a training to be observed. This, the Vibhanga says, refers sitting with one or both arms or hands hugging one or both knees; or with a strap or a strip around one or both knees and the torso (%). The bas reliefs at Borobudur show royalty us position as a way of keeping the body erect when tired or weak.

* * * In addition to the rules listed here, there are others in the Khandhakas concer behavior in inhabited areas. These include: A bhikkhu entering an inhabited area must of his basic set of robes unless -- he is ill; it is during the four months of the rains; it is during the period when his kathina privileges are in effect; he is going to have cross a river; or he has a secure dwelling (or other hiding place, the Commentary say hollow in a tree or a rock) in which to place the robe he leaves behind (Mv.VIII.23.2). should also wear his waistband. The bhikkhu who instigated this rule had the unforgettabl having his lower robe slip off in front of a group of people who thoroughly enjoyed the sp (Cv.V.29.1). A bhikkhu entering an inhabited area, though, should not spread out his c to sit on (Cv.VIII.4.3) and, unless he is ill, should not wear footwear -- shoes, sandals, boo (Mv.V.12) or use an umbrella or sunshade (Cv.V.23.3). The Commentary to the umbrell physical or mental discomfort under //ill// in this case, and says that one may also use the protect one's robes from the rain. * * *

Two: The 30 Dealing with Food 27.I will receive alms food appreciatively: a training to be observed. This rule was formulated in response to an incident in whic group-of-six bhikkhus accepted alms food unappreciatively, as if -- to quote the Vibhanga to throw it away." The Commentary explains //appreciatively// as "with mindfulness esta should also remind oneself of the trouble and expense the donors went to in providing the 28.I will receive alms food with attention focused on the bowl: a training to be observed. The purpose of this rule is to prevent one from looking at the donor's face aimlessly in other directions while he/she is placing food in the bowl. However, one of the observed on alms round," (Cv.VIII.5) is that one should not stand too long or turn away t This means that one should glance at what the donor has prepared to give, so that one wi waiting for more when the donor has finished giving, or turn away when he/she has more t

29.I will receive alms food with bean curry in proper proportion: a training to be observed. This rule refers specifically to eating habits at the time of the Buddha. //Be curry// means sauces made with gram, pulses, vetch, etc., thick enough that they can be p by the hand. //In proper proportion//, according to the Commentary, means no more than the total food. The Vinaya Mukha tries to interpret this rule as covering curries and soups but the Vibhanga and commentaries state unequivocally that it covers only bean curries. gravies, soups, stews, and sauces are exempt. This rule probably refers to situation which bhikkhus are offered food from a serving dish from which they help themselves -- custom when they were invited to homes in the Buddha's time, and still is the custom whe to homes in Sri Lanka and Burma -- for the Vibhanga states that there is no offense in re than the proper proportion if one is invited to accept more than that. There is also no offen more than the proper proportion if one is accepting it from relatives, for the sake of anoth one has obtained the food through one's own resources. (This interpretation follows the C K/Commentary, for some reason, maintains that all of these no-offense situations -- acce one's relatives, from people who have offered an invitation, for the sake of another, or from obtained through one's own resources -- apply only to dishes that are not bean curries, bu interpretation does not fit with the Vibhanga.) 30.I will receive alms food level with the edge (of the bowl): a training to be observed. Iron bowls in the past had a approximately 1 cm. wide around the inside of the mouth: According to the Commentary, means the bottom edge of this hoop. A bhikkhu is prohibited from accepting more than thi course there is nothing against accepting less. The Commentary contains a long discu does and does not come under //alms food// in this rule, and concludes that it covers onl non-staple foods. Thus if one receives a sweet, the "tail" of whose wrapper extends above bowl (such sweets are still common in Asia today), it would not count as an infraction of The same holds true if one receives foods that do not fill the bowl but extend above the ed as a length of sugar cane -- or if the donor places on top of one's bowl another vessel cont such as a box of sweets or a bag of fruit. 31.I will eat alms food appreciatively: a training to be observed. According to the Vinaya Mukha, this rule forbids doing other things -- such as reading -- while eating one's food. The Recollection Moment of Using One's Requisites requires that one reflect that one is eating "not playfully intoxication, nor for fattening, nor for beautification; but simply for the survival and contin of this body, for ending its afflictions, for the support of the celibate life, (thinking) 'I will des old feelings of hunger without creating new feelings from overeating: Thus will I maintai blameless, and live in comfort.'" One should also remind oneself of the effort and expense went to in providing the meal. 32.I will eat alms food with attention focused on t bowl: a training to be observed. The purpose of this rule is to prevent one from ga aimlessly about while eating. The Vinaya Mukha notes, though, "To look elsewhere in w one's eating -- e.g., looking with the thought of providing a nearby bhikkhu with whatever h -- is not prohibited." (See Sekhiya 38, below.) 33.I will eat alms food methodically (%): a training to be observed. The purpose of this rule is that a bhik work steadily across his food while eating, from one side to another, and not pick at it he there. Special treats, though, may be passed over -- either as a form of self-denial or to sa the end of the meal. Also, there is no offense in picking here and there when taking food bowl to give to another person. (%) 34.I will eat alms food with bean curry in proper proportion: a training to be observed. The non-offenses here are the same Sekhiya 29: This rule does not apply to foods that are not thick bean curries, or to situat one has received the food from relatives, from people who offered an invitation to take mo of another, or from one's own resources. 35.I will not eat alms food taking mouthfuls heap: a training to be observed. This refers to the rice in one's bowl. The Comme translates //from a heap// as from the top or from the middle. The Vinaya Mukha notes t custom among bhikkhus before eating to level off the rice in their bowls so that its surface would then work from one side, as under Sekhiya 33. The no-offense clauses state that food remains scattered in one's bowl, there is no offense in gathering it together in a small eating from that (%). The Vinaya Mukha adds that if one is served other foods -- such as s stacked on a platter, it would be impolite to level them off, so in such cases one may take top of the heap. 36. I will not hide bean curry and foods with rice out of a desir to get more: a training to be observed. Some donors, if they see that a bhikkhu has not in his bowl, will go out of their way to provide him with extra food. This rule is to prevent bhikkhus from taking advantage of their kind intentions. According to the Vibhanga, t offense if donors cover the food in one's bowl with rice, or if one covers it with rice oneself some reason other than a desire for more. The Commentary notes that there is no exc a bhikkhu who is ill. 37.Not being ill, I will not eat rice or bean curry that I have requested for my own sake: a training to be observed. The Commentary to Pac that //rice or bean curry// here covers all foods not covered in that rule. There is no offense in requesting these foods from relatives, from people who have offered an invitatio or if one is ill (weak from hunger would be included here). There is also no offense in ob these foods by means of one's own resources. The Mendaka Allowance (Mv.VI.34.21) to search for provisions of husked rice, kidney beans, green gram (mung beans), salt, su ghee when going on a journey through a wilderness area where alms food will be hard to f see the discussion under Pacittiya 39. 38.I will not look at another's bowl inten on finding fault: a training to be observed. The K/Commentary defines //finding faul taking note of the fact that the other bhikkhu or novice has something. What this probab that he has some especially nice food that he is not sharing. The Vinaya Mukha provides suggestion, that this rule refers to finding fault with another's sloppy manner of eating.

Sloppiness, though, is something about which bhikkhus may admonish one another, so th interpretation seems more to the point. The Vibhanga states that there is no offense at another's bowl if one is not meaning to find fault or if one wants to provide him with wh may be lacking. Here again, the Commentary notes that there is no exception for a b is ill. 39.I will not take an extra-large mouthful: a training to be observed.
According to the Commentary, a mouthful the size of a peacock's egg is too large, whil of a chicken egg is too small. (!) One midway between these two sizes is just right. This s to fathom, unless chicken eggs in those days were much smaller than they are now. the Vibhanga, this rule does not cover fruits, solid foods such as roots, or special confectio (sandwiches at present would fit here). Apparently, if these items are a little large, it is a right to stick them whole into the mouth, although if they are very large, it would be better t bites out of them (see Sekhiya 45). 40.I will make a rounded mouthful: a training to be observed. People at that time ate food with their hands, and formed mouthfuls of the food with their fingers before taking them to the mouth. This rule, li preceding one, does not cover fruits, solid foods such as roots, or special confections such sandwiches. In other words, one does not have to mash these things up and form them mouthfuls before eating. 41.I will not open the mouth when the mouthful has ye brought to it: a training to be observed. 42.I will not put the whole hand into the mouth while eating: a training to be observed. The Commentary and K/Co are in agreement that this is the proper translation for this rule. The Sub-commentary insis it should be "any part of the hand" rather than "the whole hand," but according to the Com of sticking a finger in one's mouth while eating comes under Sekhiya 52. 43.I will not speak with the mouth full of food: a training to be observed. According to t Commentary, if the amount of food in one's mouth is not enough to effect the clarity of one pronunciation, it is all right to speak. 44.I will not eat from lifted balls of food:

a training to be observed. What this means is that one should not lift food from the one hand and then use the other hand to take parts of that handful to put in the mouth.
the Vibhanga, this rule does not cover fruits, solid foods, or special confections. Thus, for example, it is all right to pick up a bunch of grapes in one hand and then take the grapes o the other hand to put them in the mouth. This rule is often translated as, "I will not ea tossing up balls of food," but as it seems unlikely that there would be an allowance for to fruit, etc., into the air and catching it in the mouth, the above translation is probably more c 45.I will not eat nibbling at mouthfuls of food: a training to be observed.
After forming a mouthful of food (see Sekhiya 39 & 40), one should place it all into the mou time, rather than biting it off bit by bit. Again, this rule does not cover fruits, solid foods, or special confections. In other words, there is nothing wrong in taking bites from these foods that are too large to fit into the mouth, although the etiquette in many Asian co present frowns on taking bites even out of things such as these. 46.I will not eat stuffing out the cheeks: a training to be observed. In other words, one should swall food before putting another mouthful in the mouth. This is another rule that does not fruits, solid foods, or special confections. Apparently this allowance covers cases where etc., would make up a mouthful a little on the large side, as mentioned under Sekhiya 39.
47.I will not eat shaking (food off) the hand: a training to be observed. According the Vibhanga, there is no offense in shaking dust or dirt off the hand while eating (%).
48.I will not eat scattering rice about: a training to be observed. If one happens to shaking dirt off the hand, and a few rice grains on the hand happen to get scattered in the is no offense. 49.I will not eat sticking out the tongue: a training to be observed. 50.I will not eat smacking the lips: a training to be observed. 51.I will not eat making a slurping noise: a training to be observed. In the origin story to this rule, a certain Brahmin prepared a milk drink for th bhikkhus, who drank it making a hissing or slurping sound. One of the bhikkhus, a former joke about the fact: "It's as if this entire Sangha were cooled." (This of course, is a pun higher meaning of the word "cooled.") Word got to the Buddha, who in addition to formula also imposed a dukkata on the act of making a joke about the Buddha, Dhamma, or San 52.I will not eat licking the hands: a training to be observed. According to the Commentary, this rule also covers the act of sticking a finger into the mouth. There are tin it says -- when one is eating a semi-liquid food with one's hand, in which case it is all rigl stick the tips of the fingers into the mouth so as to get as much of the food as possible into without spilling it. 53.I will not eat licking the bowl: a training to be observed. The Commentary shows that the verb //lick// here also means scrape, when scraping the bowl even with one finger is a breach of this rule. The Commentary is surely for otherwise there is no making sense of the Vibhanga's allowance that if there are a few crumbs left in the bowl, one may gather them into one last mouthful, scrape them up, and If the crumbs are not enough to form a mouthful, though, the Vinaya Mukha recommend they are. One would then throw them out with the bowl-washing water (see Sekhiya 56). of leaving a little food uneaten is a point of etiquette common throughout Asia. If one is a has been offered food or drink, one should not eat it to the last crumb or drink it to the la for that would imply that one was not offered enough and is hungry or thirsty for more. Wa bits of food is less serious than hurting the feelings of one's host. (For more on this poin Pacittiya 35.) Even when one is eating in a situation where the donor is not around to wat generally a good practice to leave a few crumbs -- to be thrown away a good distance fr dwelling -- as a gift to insects or other small, hungry beings. 54.I will not eat licking the lips: a training to be observed. 55.I will not accept a water vessel with a hand soiled by food: a training to be observed. According to the Commentar rule applies to anything from which one would drink water, whether it belongs to oneself or If one's hand is partially soiled, it says, one may pick up a water vessel with the unsoiled p The Vibhanga says that if one's hand is soiled, one may take the water vessel with the t "I will wash it or get it washed," although this allowance might be qualified with the consi that one should try to get it washed before someone else wants to use it. 56.I wil not, in an inhabited area, throw away bowl-rinsing water that has grains of rice in it: a tr be observed. The custom in those times, when bhikkhus were invited to eat at a l person's home, was for the donor to offer water to the bhikkhus to rinse out their bowls be and again at the end. In both cases, each bhikkhu was to hold his bowl in both hands, rec water into the bowl, swish it around without scraping it (against the ground or floor), and po receptacle if there was one -- or on the ground if not -- taking care not to splash any nea or one's own robes (Cv.VIII.4-6). This rule applies to the after-meal rinsing. The Vibha that there is no offense in throwing away bowl rinsing water if the rice grains are removed squashed so as to dissolve in the water, or if the water is poured into a receptacle and late outside (%). * * * In addition to the above rules, the duties observed on alms round and in eating at a lay person's home include the follow etiquette: While on alms round. One should go unhurriedly, and stand neither too clos too far from the donor (Cv.VIII.5.2). While eating in a home. One should select a seat th encroach on the senior bhikkhus' spaces, but that also does not deprive the junior bhikk place to sit (Cv.VIII.4.3). If there are any special foods, the most senior bhikkhu should the donor to make sure that everyone gets equal portions. He should also not begin eatin is served, nor should he accept water for rinsing his bowl until everyone is finished eating (Cv.VIII.4.5). * * * The Vinaya Mukha notes that some of the rules and allowances in this section outline "table manners" that would be reg excessively fussy or messy by polite modern standards. Thus wherever ancient and mo etiquette are at variance, the wise policy would be to adhere to whichever code is more st that particular point. * * *

Three: The 16 Dealing with Teaching Dhamma The Canon records that the Buddh the highest respect for the Dhamma he had discovered; that, as others might live under a teacher, honoring and revering him, the Buddha lived under, honored, and revered the D enjoined his followers to show the same respect for the Dhamma not only when listening when teaching it, by refusing to teach it to a person who shows disrespect. The follow rules deals with situations in which a listener, in terms of the etiquette at that time, would b as showing disrespect for a teacher or his teaching. As the Vinaya Mukha notes, a few -- such as those concerning footwear -- are not considered disrespectful under certain ci at present, although here the exceptions given for listeners who are "ill" might be stretched situation where the listener would feel inconvenienced or awkward if asked to comply wi etiquette of the Buddha's time. On the other hand, there are many ways of showing disres that are not covered by these rules, and an argument could be made, reasoning from the Standards, that a bhikkhu should not teach Dhamma to a person who showed disrespect i //Dhamma// here is defined as any statement spoken by the Buddha, his disciples, seers, connected with the teaching or with its goal. See Pacittiya 7 for a more detailed discussion point. 57.I will not teach Dhamma to a person with an umbrella in his hand and is not ill: a training to be observed. An umbrella or sunshade, at that time, was conside sign of rank. According to the Commentary, this rule applies regardless of whether the u open or closed, as long as one's listeners has his/her hand on it. If, however, the umbrella listener's lap, resting against his/her shoulder, or if someone else is holding it over the list head, there is no offense in teaching him/her any Dhamma. 58.I will not tea Dhamma to a person with a staff in his hand and who is not ill: a training to be observe According to the Vibhanga, a //staff// is a pole two meters long. For some reason, any pol longer than that would not come under this rule. 59.I will not teach Dhamma t person with a knife in his hand and who is not ill: a training to be observed. The te //knife// here includes anything with a blade. According to the Commentary, if the knife is listener's hand -- e.g., it is in a sheath attached to the belt -- there is no penalty in teachi him/her any Dhamma. 60.I will not teach Dhamma to a person with a weapon i hand and who is not ill: a training to be observed. The Vibhanga defines //weapon// a and the Commentary includes arrows here as well. The Vinaya Mukha adds guns; and in that does not have a blade would seem to fall under this rule. Again, if the weapon is the listener's hand -- e.g., it is in a holster attached to the belt -- there is no penalty in teac him/her any Dhamma. 61.[62] I will not teach Dhamma to a person wearing non-leather [leather] footwear who is not ill: a training to be observed. The Pali te for non-leather and leather footwear -- //paduka// and //upahana// -- cover all forms of shoe and boots (see Mv.V.1.30-8.3). Wearing means any one of three things: placing on top of the footwear without inserting the toes; inserting the toes without fastening the foo fastening the footwear with the toes inside. 63. I will not teach Dhamma to a pers a vehicle and who is not ill: a training to be observed. The Commentary makes the if the vehicle is large enough to seat two or more, the bhikkhu may sit together with his list teach Dhamma without penalty. The same holds true if the bhikkhu and his listener are in vehicles, as long as the bhikkhu's vehicle is the same height or higher than his listener's following along behind it. 64. I will not teach Dhamma to a person lying down w not ill: a training to be observed. The Commentary goes into great detail on this ru listing the various permutations of the bhikkhu's position and his listener's, saying which allowable and which ones not: A bhikkhu lying down may teach any listener who is sta sitting down. He may also teach a listener lying down on a piece of furniture, a mat, or the long as the bhikkhu's position is on an equal level or higher than his listener's. A bhik sitting down may teach a listener who is standing or sitting down (see also Sekhiyas 68 & who is lying down, unless the listener is ill. A bhikkhu standing may teach a listener w also standing, but not one who is sitting or lying down, again unless the listener is ill (see 70). 65. I will not teach Dhamma to a person who sits holding up his knees and who is not ill: a training to be observed. The position of //holding up the knees// is discussed in detail under Sekhiya 26. 66. I will not teach Dhamma to a perso wearing headgear who is not ill: a training to be observed. This rule applies only t headgear -- such as turbans or hats -- that hide all of the hair. If the hat/turban does not h the hair, or if the listener adjusts it so as to expose some hair, it would not come under th 67. I will not teach Dhamma to a person whose head is covered (with a robe or s who is not ill: a training to be observed. There is no offense in teaching if the liste adjusts the robe or scarf to uncover his/her head. 68.Sitting on the ground, I will teach Dhamma to a person sitting on a seat who is not ill: a training to be observed According to the Commentary, a //seat// here includes even a piece of cloth or a pile of gr 69.Sitting on a low seat, I will not teach Dhamma to a person sitting on a high seat not ill: a training to be observed. The Commentary states that this rule also covers where the bhikkhu and his listener are both sitting on the ground, but the listener is sittin higher piece of ground than the bhikkhu. 70.Standing, I will not teach Dhamma to a sitting who is not ill: a training to be observed. 71.Walking behind, I will not teach Dhamma to a person walking ahead who is not ill: a training to be observed. no offense, the Commentary says, if the bhikkhu and his listener are walking side by side; bhikkhus are walking along, one in front of the other, and they practice reciting a passag together. 72.Walking beside a path, I will not teach Dhamma to a person walki the path and who is not ill: a training to be observed.

* * * Four: The 3 Miscellaneous Rules 73.Not being ill, I will not defecate or urinate while standing: a training to be observed. Arguing from Commentary's allowance under the following rule, it would seem that a bhikkhu who needs himself in a public restroom, and can no longer hold himself in while waiting for a toilet, w qualify as "ill" here and so would be able to use a urinal without penalty. 74.Not being ill, I will not defecate, urinate, or spit on living crops: a training to be observed.
The Vinaya Mukha says that //crops// here includes all plants that are tended -- such as in farms, or lawns -- but not plants growing wild. The Commentary includes roots of living tre appear above ground, in addition to green plants running along on top of the ground. It als the Mahapaccari, one of the ancient commentaries on which it is based, includes blowing the term //spitting// in this rule and the next. According to the Vibhanga, there is no offe using plants to cover up feces, urine, or saliva; and the Commentary states that a bhikkh a place without crops to do his business, can't find one, and is unable to hold himself in an would qualify as "ill" under this rule. 75.Not being ill, I will not defecate, urinate, or spit in water: a training to be observed. According to the Commentary, / here includes water fit for drinking or bathing, but not water unfit for such use -- e.g., salt stagnant water -- or water in a toilet. If there is a flood with no dry ground available, there offense in relieving oneself in the water. As under the preceding rule, the Vibhanga s there is no offense in using water to cover up feces, urine, or saliva, or to wash them aw
* * * The Cullavagga (VIII.10) contains a series of rules on the etiquette in using a restroom. Among them: -- The restroom should be used in or arrival, rather than in order of seniority. ("Now at that time, bhikkhus used the restr order of seniority. Newly-ordained bhikkhus, having arrived first in dire need to go, had keeled over stiff from holding themselves in.") -- One should not go bursting into t restroom. (According to the Vinaya Mukha, this means not only that one should not go in, but also that one should not go in with one's lower robe open or pulled up.) Before e should cough or clear one's throat; if a bhikkhu is inside, he should cough or clear h throat in response. -- One's robes should be hung up on a line or rod before enter This, according to the Vinaya Mukha, refers to one's upper and outer robe. -- One not make grunting or groaning noises while relieving oneself. -- If the toilet or rest is dirty, one should clean it for the next person. -- One should not go bursting out the restroom when finished -- again, taking care not to have one's lower robe pulled up open. Cv. VIII.9 adds that after one has defecated -- inside a restroom or not -- one sh always rinse oneself if water is available. * * * * * * * *

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Adhikarana-Samatha ~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

This term means, "the settlement of issues." The seven rules in this sectio are actually principles and procedures for settling the four sorts of issues mentioned under disputes, accusations, offenses, and duties. The Canon's explanations of these proced not in the Vibhanga, but in Cullavagga IV, which starts with a sketch of the procedures, fol detailed discussion of how to apply them to each of the four types of issues. We will follo mode of presentation here. For the settling, the resolution of issues that arise:

1. //A verdict "in the presence of" should be given//. This means that the formal act settli issue must be carried out in the presence of the Community, in the presence of the individ the presence of the Dhamma and Vinaya. //In the presence of the Community// means of bhikkhus that has gathered is competent to carry out the formal act under question. I words, it contains the minimum number of bhikkhus required, all the bhikkhus in the desig either are present or have sent their consent, and none of the bhikkhus in the meeting m against having the matter settled by the group -- although as we noticed under Pacittiya 8 formal act is being carried out against a bhikkhu, his protest does not invalidate the act; a made by any other member of the group, though, would invalidate it, even if he only inform bhikkhu sitting next to him (Mv.IX.4.8). //In the presence of the individuals// means tha individuals involved in the matter are present. For instance, in a dispute, both sides of t must be in the meeting; when the Community is carrying out a formal act against one of its the accused must be there; in an ordination, the bhikkhu-to-be must be present. There a where this factor is not followed -- such as the ordination of a bhikkhuni by messenger an turning the bowl upside down (refusing to accept donations from a lay person who has mis Community) -- but these are rare. //In the presence of the Dhamma and Vinaya// me the proper procedures laid down in the Vinaya are followed, and that bhikkhus who advo truly Dhamma or Vinaya are not holding sway over the group. 2. //A verdict of mindfulness may be given//. This is the verdict of innocence given in an accusation, base that the accused remembers fully that he did not commit the offense in question. verdict of this sort is valid only if -- 1) The bhikkhu is pure and without offense. 2) H accused of an offense. 3) He asks for the verdict. 4) The Community gives him the ver It is in accordance with the Dhamma, the assembly of bhikkhus being complete and co (Cv.IV.4.11). According to the Commentary, factor (1) here -- the bhikkhu is pure and offense -- applies only to arahants, but the Canon makes no mention of this point. There in the Khandhakas where the phrase "pure and without offense" is used to refer to any b not committed the offense of which he is accused (e.g., Mv.IX.1.7; Mv.IX.4.9), with nothing that he would have to be an arahant. If the Commentary's interpretation were correct her be no way that a bhikkhu in his right mind who is not an arahant could be declared inno offense at all, since the only three verdicts that may settle an accusation are this one, the past insanity (for a bhikkhu who was insane when he committed the offense in question) (punishment for) further misconduct, for a bhikkhu who committed the offense in question his right mind. The fourth rule below -- acting in accordance with what is admitted -- whi sometimes assumed to cover cases of innocence, actually applies only to cases where the to having committed an offense before the matter goes to interrogation, and not to cases w innocent and asserts his innocence. Thus we will follow the general usage in the Kha say that the factor "pure and without offense" is fulfilled by any bhikkhu -- arahant or not has not committed the offense in question. 3. //A verdict of past insanity may be given//. This is another verdict of innocence given in an accusation, based on the fact that accused was out of his mind when he committed the offense in question and so is absolve responsibility for it. Such a verdict is valid only if given to a bhikkhu who: 1) does not remember what he did while insane; 2) remembers, but only as if in a dream; or insane enough to believe that his behavior is proper. ("I act that way and so do you. It is for me and allowable for you!") (Cv.IV.6.2). 4. //Acting in accordance with what is admitted//. This refers to the ordinary confession of offenses, where no formal interrogatio involved. The confession is valid only if in accord with the facts, e.g., a bhikkhu actually co pacittiya offense and then confesses it as such, and not as a stronger or lesser offense. If to confess it as a dukkata or a sanghadisesa, that would be invalid. 5. //Acting in accordance with the majority//. This refers to cases in which bhikkhus are unable to settle unanimously, even after all the proper procedures are followed, and -- in the words of the are "wounding one another with weapons of the tongue." In cases such as these, decision majority vote. Such a vote is valid only if -- 1) The issue is major. 2) The proper procedures have already been followed (in at least two or three Communities, says the have failed to achieve a result. 3) Those on the side of the Dhamma are in the majori perceived to be in the majority. 4) It is felt that such an act will not divide the Commun 5) The Community present is competent to settle the issue. 6) All the bhikkhus present ag vote. 7) There is no cheating (e.g., one bhikkhu taking two voting tickets). 8) Each bhikkhu honestly votes in accordance with his views, and not, for example, under fear o (Cv.IV.10). 6. //Acting in accordance with the accused's further misconduct//. This refers to cases where a bhikkhu admits to having committed the offense in question only a formally interrogated about it. He is then to be reproved for his actions, made to remembe offense and to confess it, after which the Community carries out a formal act of "further mi against him as an added punishment for being so uncooperative as to require the formal in the first place. The Cullavagga (IV.11.2-12.2) contains three separate discussions conditions that are necessary for the act to be valid. The discussions overlap, but can be follows: The act is essentially the same thing as an act of censure, and as such can to a bhikkhu who -- 1) is a maker of strife, quarrels, and dissension in the Commu 2) is ignorant, full of offenses, and has not undergone the penalty for them; or 3) live unbecoming association with lay people. What makes this act special is that it is aimed at a bhikkhu who has committed an offense that requires confession, but he does not co being formally interrogated. This is shown by the factors required for the act to be valid: The accused is impure (i.e., he actually did commit the offense, and it is an offense that confession). 2) He is unconscientious (i.e., he didn't voluntarily confess the offense o in the first place). 3) A formal meeting has been called in which he is present and has interrogated: reproved for his actions, made to remember the offense, and formally acc committed it. (The Commentary translates this word -- //sanuvada// -- as meaning argumentative -- //saupavada// -- which also fits the context. If the bhikkhu has been ac offense but at first denies it, that would fulfill this factor.) 4) He finally acknowledges th offense and confesses it. 5) The Community carries out the act 6) in accordance with th Vinaya, and with a complete assembly. Once such an act has been carried out ag bhikkhu, he must observe the following rules: 1) He may not act as preceptor or teach another bhikkhu, nor is he to have a novice attend to him. 2) He may not accept auth exhort bhikkhunis; even if authorized, he is not to exhort them. 3) He should not comm offense for which he is being punished, a similar offense, or a worse one. 4) He shou fault with the formal act or with those who carried it out. 5) He should not accuse othe offenses or participate actively in any of the procedures involved in a formal accusation suspending another bhikkhu's right to join in the Patimokkha recitation, asking leave t reproving, making remember, etc. 6) He should not quarrel with bhikkhus (Cv.IV.12.4 If he abides by all these rules, and the Community is satisfied that he has seen the error o they are to rescind the act and restore him to his former status as a full-fledged bhikkhu.

7. //Covering over as with grass//. This refers to situations in which both sides of a dispute that, in the course of their dispute, they have done much that is unworthy of a contemplativ they were to deal with one another for their offenses, the only result would be greater divis Thus if both sides agree, all the bhikkhus gather in one place. (According to the Commen means that all bhikkhus in the //sima// must attend. No one should send his consent, and bhikkhus must go.) A motion is made to the entire group that this procedure will be followe member of each side then makes a formal motion to the members of his faction that he wi confession for them. When both sides are ready, the representative of each side addresse group and makes the blanket confession, using the form of a motion and one announceme (//natti-dutiya-kamma//). This clears all offenses except for -- 1) any heavy offense (parajika and sanghadisesa, says the Commentary) committed by anyone in the group; offenses dealing with the laity; 3) any offenses of any member of either side who does no of the procedure; and 4) any offenses of any bhikkhu who does not attend the meeting. the reason for the Commentary's statement that even sick bhikkhus must attend.) F here is interesting. If any member of either side were to dissent, that would invalidate the procedure. This point is thus probably added as a reminder to any bhikkhu who might be enough to want to deal with his enemies case-by-case, that //his// offenses will also have t with case-by-case. This might be enough to discourage him from dissenting. The Co explains the name of this procedure by comparing the offenses cleared in this way to excr been so thoroughly covered with grass that it can no longer send an oppressive smell.

* * * According to the Cullavagga, the principle of "in the presence of" applies to all four types of issues: disputes, accusations, offenses, and dut addition, disputes may be settled "in accordance with the majority"; accusations must be s by a verdict of mindfulness, a verdict of past insanity, or an act "in accordance with furthe misconduct"; and offenses may be settled by acting in accordance with what is admitted o over as with grass. What follows it a more detailed discussion of how these principles procedures apply in each of the four cases: Disputes are heated disagreements over w did and did not teach, or -- in the words of the Cullavagga -- "when bhikkhus dispute, sa

'It is Dhamma,' or 'It is not Dhamma;' 'It is Vinaya,' or 'It is not Vinaya;'
'It was spoken by the Tathagata,' or 'It was not spoken by the Tathagata;' 'I was regularly practiced by the Tathagata,' or 'It was not regularly practiced by the Tatha
'It was formulated by the Tathagata,' or 'It was not formulated by the Tathagata;'
'It is an offense,' or 'It is not an offense;' 'It is a light offense,' or 'It is a heavy offense;' 'It is a curable offense,' or 'It is an incurable offense;'
'It is a serious offense,' or 'It is not a serious offense.' Whatever strife, quarreling, contention, dispute, differing opinions, opposing opinions, heated words, abusiveness b this, is an issue arising from disputes." (Cv.IV.14.2) Thus not all disagreements on these are classed as issues. Friendly disagreements or differences of interpretation aren't; hea abusive disagreements are. The Buddha advises that a bhikkhu who wants to bring up questions for discussion should first consider five points: 1) whether it is the right time for discussion; 2) whether it concerns something true; 3) whether it is connected with the goal whether he will be able to get on his side bhikkhus who value the Dhamma and Vinaya; an question will give rise to strife, quarreling, disputes, cracks and splits in the Community.
answer to the first four questions is yes, and to the fifth question no (i.e., the discussion is likely to lead to strife), he may then go ahead and start the discussion. Otherwise, he shou the matter rest for the time being (Cv.IX.4). The Cullavagga quotes the Buddha as say sorts of mental states -- skillful and unskillful -- can turn disputes into issues. The unskill states are covetous, corrupt, or confused states of mind; the skillful ones are states of min not covetous, not corrupt, and not confused. The Buddha adds, however, that six chara lead to issues arising from disputes that will act towards the detriment of many people. Th bhikkhu: is easily angered and bears ill will, is mean and spiteful, is jealous and possessive, is scheming and deceitful, has evil desires and wrong views, is attached views, obstinate, unable to let them go. Such a bhikkhu, he says, lives without deferenc for the Buddha, the Dhamma, the Sangha, and does not complete the training. If one sh these traits within oneself or others, one should strive for their abandonment. If there are traits present, one should make sure that they don't arise in the future (Cv.IV.14.3). noted under Sanghadisesa 10, there are two sorts of disputes: those in which one of the at schism and those in which neither is. Disputes of the first sort are to be dealt with in l the procedures listed under Sanghadisesas 10 & 11; those of the second sort, as follows: presence of// -- Step 1: a) The Community meets, with at least four bhikkhus -- the minim quorum -- present. All of the bhikkhus in the //sima// are either present or have sent thei and none of the bhikkhus present protests having the matter settled by the group. b) of the dispute are present. c) The meeting is carried out in accordance with the proce laid down by the Buddha, and the unanimous decision of the Community is in line with wh actually laid down. This point is important: It means that no Community -- even if it follow proper form for the meeting -- can legitimately replace the Buddha's teachings with its own any point. If the Community can settle the manner in this way, it is properly settled a should not be reopened. //Step 2//: If the Community cannot settle the matter, they go to a monastery where there are more bhikkhus, and ask them to help settle the matte happens that the group is able to settle the matter among themselves on the way to the ot monastery, then it is properly settled, and they may return home to their own monastery.

//Step 3//: If the matter is still unsettled by the time they reach the second monastery, they the resident bhikkhus there to help settle the matter. The resident bhikkhus should then m consider among themselves whether or not they are competent to settle the matter. If they aren't, they shouldn't take it on. If they feel they are, they should then ask the incoming how the dispute arose. (The Commentary here adds that the residents should first stall fo days -- saying that they have to wash their robes or fire their bowls first -- as a way of su the pride of the incoming bhikkhus.) Once the resident bhikkhus have asked the histo dispute, the incoming bhikkhus are to say that if the resident bhikkhus can settle the disp (the incoming bhikkhus) will hand it over to them; if they can't settle it, the incoming bhikkh still be in charge of the matter. If the resident bhikkhus can then settle the dispute, it properly settled. //Step 4//: If they can't settle it in this way -- and, in the words of the Canon, "endless disputes arise, and there is no discerning the meaning of a single sta disputants should, with a motion and announcement, hand the matter over to a panel of Commentary recommends a panel of ten. Each member of the panel must meet the follo
1) He is moral, abiding scrupulously by the rules of the Vinaya. 2) He is learned in all t dealing with the celibate life. 3) He has memorized both Patimokkhas in detail. 4) He is knowledge of the Vinaya and is not easily led off-track. 5) He is skilled at reconciling sides of a dispute. 6) He is skilled at settling an issue. 7) He knows what constitutes an
8) He knows how an issue arises (i.e., through skillful, unskillful, or neutral states of mi
9) He knows when an issue is stopped. 10) He knows the way leading to the stopping of that these last four qualifications are similar in form to knowledge of the four Noble Truths.) The Commentary notes that while the panel is discussing the issue, none of t bhikkhus is to speak. If the panel can settle the issue, it is properly settled and should not reopened. //Step 5//: If the panel has trouble in settling the issue, and there are mem the panel who "hide the Dhamma under the shadow of the letter" -- i.e., use the letter of th against the spirit -- they may be removed from the panel through a formal motion. If the then settle the issue, it is properly settled. If not -- and by this time, the Commentary s at least two or three monasteries have become involved -- the procedures of "in the pres been exhausted, and the dispute must go on to a settlement "in accordance with the majo //In accordance with the majority//: A decision by majority vote is valid only in the followin situation: 1) The issue is important. 2) The procedures of "in the presence of" have al followed but have not succeeded in settling the issue. 3) Both sides have been made their position. 4) The distributor of voting tickets knows that the majority sides with the Dhamma, or 5) that the majority probably sides with the Dhamma. 6) The distributor of knows that the procedure will not lead to a split in the Sangha, or 7) that the procedu probably not lead to a split in the Sangha. 8) The tickets are taken in accordance with (e.g., only one ticket per bhikkhu, and the Dhamma side wins). 9) The assembly is co

10) The bhikkhus take the tickets in accordance with their views (and not, for example, coercion). When these factors are all present, the group should first ask one of its me act as a distributor of voting tickets. He should be free of the four kinds of prejudice, and k does and does not constitute the taking of a voting ticket. Before accepting the role, he reflect on whether the situation meets the ten qualifying factors, and accept only when it d accepts the role, he is to be authorized by means of a formal motion and announcement is then to have voting tickets made -- a different color for each side -- and conduct the ball three ways: secretly, by whispering in the ear, or openly. In //secret// balloting, he is t tell each bhikkhu, "This color is for this side, and that color for that. Take one, but don't sh to anyone." According to the Commentary, this method is to be used when there are man bhikkhus in the assembly. In "//whispering in the ear//" balloting, he is to whisper to ea bhikkhu, "This color is for this side, and that color for that. Take one, but don't tell anyone method, the Commentary says, is for assemblies in which there are many foolish or troubl bhikkhus. In //open// balloting, the bhikkhus are to take the voting tickets openly. Th method is for assemblies where the distributor is certain that the conscientious bhikkhus a majority. Once the vote is taken, the distributor is to assess the result before announ
If he sees that the anti-Dhamma side has won, he is to annul the balloting and take the vo again. According to the Commentary, he may take the vote up to three times. If the ant is still in the majority, he should announce that the time is not right for a vote, adjourn the and try to find more bhikkhus on the side of the Dhamma to join the next meeting. procedures make two interesting assumptions: One side of the dispute is clearly in the rig distributor must belong to the right side. If he belongs to the wrong side, the whole ballo invalid, and the issue may later be reopened without penalty. If neither side is clearly in th the composers of the Cullavagga would probably consider the issue unimportant and not in the first place. If this is true, then even if a vote is taken, it would not be a valid use of th procedure, and the results would not be binding. In all of these steps for settling disp the important point to remember is that in no way is a group of bhikkhus to rewrite the Dh Vinaya in line with their views. Even if they attempt it, following the procedures to the lette fact that their decision goes against the Buddha's teachings invalidates their efforts, and may be reopened at any time without penalty. * * *

Accusations. When a bhikkhu has committed an offense, it is his responsibility to undergo voluntarily so as to make amends for it. If his fellow bhikkhus see, hear, or suspect that he committed an offense without undergoing the penalty, it is their duty to question and admo private, in accordance with the procedures discussed under Sanghadisesa 8. The issue m informally in one of two ways: (1) The accused admits to the act, sees it as an offense, an the penalty; or (2) he is truly innocent, professes his innocence, and can convince his adm that their suspicions were ungrounded. If both sides act in good faith and without prejudic this sort are relatively easy to settle informally in this way. If the issue can't be settled it should be taken to a meeting of the Community for a formal interrogation and verdict.
the Community meets, both the accused and the accuser must be present, and both must being heard by that particular group. (If the original accuser is a lay person, one of the b is to take up the charge.) The accused is then asked if he remembers having committed t question, and is to be dealt with in accordance with what he admits to having done (Mv.I Cullavagga (IV.14.29) shows that the other bhikkhus are not to take his first statement at f
They should press and cross-examine him until they are all satisfied that he is telling the only then may they pass one of three verdicts: 1) If he is innocent of the offense and c convince the group of his innocence, he is to request a verdict of //mindfulness// -- expressing the request three times -- and the Community is to give it to him by means o motion with three announcements. 2) If he committed the offense while insane or possessed, he should request a verdict of //past insanity// -- again, expressing the r three times -- and the Community is to give it to him by means of a formal motion with th announcements. 3) If he committed the offense while in his right mind, but admits only after the interrogation has begun, the other bhikkhus are to make him confess the c then give him a verdict of //further misconduct// by means of a formal motion with three announcements. As we noted above, each of these three verdicts is valid only if in lin the truth. If it so happens that a guilty bhikkhu is given a verdict of mindfulness, a bhikkhu committed the offense in question while he was in his right mind is given a verdict of pas or an innocent bhikkhu is given a verdict of further misconduct, the case may be reopened evidence surfaces, and the verdict rescinded or reversed. There are, however, two s which none of these three verdicts applies, and the accusation -- at least for the time being remains unsettled: (1) If a bhikkhu, in the course of an interrogation, admits to an a that is an offense, but either refuses to see it as an offense or refuses to confess it, he i to an act of banishment. Though this too may later be rescinded on the basis of go -- when he admits that his action was an offense and confesses it -- it is a much stronge than the act for further misconduct. (2) If a bhikkhu denies having committed the a question, and the bhikkhus are not convinced of his innocence, there are various w pressure him to tell the truth: The Cullavagga suggests intensive interrogation; the Com bouts of group chanting. If neither works, and the Community still has doubts abou innocence, the issue is to be abandoned for the time being as unsettled: The accused i punished nor declared innocent. As long as the issue remains unsettled, though, th no peace of mind either for the accused or for the Community as a whole.

* * * Offenses. All offenses are settled by means of the principle of //in the presence of//. Most are also settled by means of the procedure of //in accordance with wh admitted//. Rare cases may be settled by //covering over as with grass//. //In accord with what is admitted//: When a bhikkhu has committed an offense requiring confession a it truthfully in the presence of another bhikkhu, group of bhikkhus, or complete Communi called settlement in accordance with what is admitted. It also counts as having been settle presence of the Dhamma and Vinaya and the individuals -- i.e., the bhikkhu making the co bhikkhu(s) witnessing it are face to face. If a bhikkhu has committed a sanghadisesa it is settled only after he has confessed it and undergone penance and probation, both o require further confessions. Only then, when a Community of at least 20 bhikkhus has me penalty from him, is the offense considered settled. Here, //in the presence of// would in only the Dhamma, Vinaya, and individuals, but also the Community, when it imposes the p probation, and again when it lifts the penalty. If a bhikkhu has committed a parajika o it is settled only when he admits that he is no longer a bhikkhu and returns to lay life. He the presence of// would have the same factors as under confessable offenses, above.
//Covering over as with grass//: This procedure has already been discussed in detail abov no need to add any further details here. //In the presence of//, here, means in the presenc Dhamma, Vinaya, individuals, and the Community: In the presence of the individuals mea make the blanket confession and those who witness it are face to face. In the presence Community means that enough bhikkhus for a quorum (four) have arrived, the assembly is bhikkhus in the //sima// have joined the meeting) and none of the bhikkhus, having met, protest. * * * Duties are settled //in the presence of//
-- (1) when they are properly carried out in line with the procedures set out in the D and Vinaya, (2) if the relevant individuals are present (e.g., the ordinand in an ordination, the bhikkhu-to-be-banished in a formal act of banishment, etc.), and (3 Community that has met to carry them out forms a quorum and a complete assembly, w present -- except the bhikkhu against whom a formal act is to be carried out, if such case -- makes any protest.

* * * * * * * *

CHAPTER TWO

Nissaya

~~~~~~~ The Dhamma and Vinaya impinge in such detail on many areas of one's life that no new bhikkhu can be expected to master them in a short reason, the Buddha arranged for a period of apprenticeship -- called //nissaya//, or depend which every newly ordained bhikkhu must train under the guidance of an experienced bh least five years before he can be considered competent to look after himself. This apprenticeship has formed the human context in which the practice of the Buddha's teachi passed down for the past 2,600 years. To overlook it is to miss one of the basic parameter life of the Dhamma and Vinaya. Thus we will discuss it here first, before going on to the in training rules of the Patimokkha. Dependence is of two sorts: dependence on one's p (//upajjhaya//) and dependence on a teacher (//acariya//). The relationships are similar -- a details, identical -- so the following discussion will use the word "mentor" to cover both p and teacher wherever the pattern applies to both, and will distinguish them only where the differ. //Choosing a mentor//. Before ordination, one must choose a bhikkhu to act as preceptor. The Mahavagga (I.36-37) gives a long list of qualifications a bhikkhu must meet act as a preceptor, while the Commentary divides the list into two levels: ideal and minim qualifications. A bhikkhu who lacks the minimal qualifications incurs a dukkata if he acts as a bhikkhu who meets the minimal but lacks the ideal qualifications is not an ideal person guidance, but he incurs no penalty in doing so. //The ideal qualifications:// The precept have an arahant's virtue, concentration, discernment, release, and knowledge of release able to train another person to the same level of attainment. He should have faith, a sense of evil, persistence in the practice, and quick mindfulness (according to the Subcommen means that he is constantly mindful of whatever mental object is before the mind). He shou heavy and light offenses and be possessed of right view. (This last point, the Commentary that he does not adhere to the extremes of eternalism or annihilationism.) He should be co tend to a sick pupil, or to find someone who will tend to him, and to allay dissatisfaction in wants to leave the celibate life. The Mahavagga does not say outright that these are opposed to minimal, qualifications, but the Commentary offers as proof the fact that one duties is to try to allay any dissatisfaction that may arise in his preceptor. If all preceptors arahants, no case of this sort would ever arise, and there would be no need to mention it. Commentary concludes that arahantship, although ideal in a preceptor, is not necessary. minimal qualifications//: The preceptor must be learned and intelligent. According to the Co means that he knows enough of the Dhamma and Vinaya to govern a following and is in know what is and is not an offense. He must be competent enough to allay any anxiety a p the rules, know what is and is not an offense, what is a light offense, what is a heavy offe how an offense may be removed. He must have detailed knowledge of both Patimokkhas bhikkhus and the one for the bhikkhunis) and be able to train the pupil in the bhikkhus' cus this means that he knows the Khandhakas), in the basic rules of the chaste life (Subcom.: both Vibhangas), the higher Dhamma, and the higher Vinaya. He must be able to dissuad adhering to a wrong view, or find someone who will help dissuade him. And -- the most ba requirement -- he must have been ordained as a bhikkhu for ten years or more. If, fo reason, the new bhikkhu lives in a separate monastery from his preceptor, he must take d teacher, whose qualifications are precisely the same as those for a preceptor. Since the (I.72.1) gives a dukkata for taking dependence under an unconscientious bhikkhu, the nev allowed four to five days to observe his potential teacher's conduct before taking depend him (Mv.I.72.2). //Taking dependence//. Prior to his ordination -- and usually, as part ceremony itself -- the candidate must make a formal request for dependence from his prec procedure is as follows: Arranging his upper robe over his left shoulder, leaving his r shoulder bare, he bows down to the preceptor and then, kneeling with his hands palm-to-p his heart, repeats the following passage three times: Upajjhayo me bhante hohi, means, "Venerable sir, be my preceptor." If the preceptor responds with any of these wo //(very well), //lahu// (certainly), //opayikam// (all right), //patirupam// (it is proper) or //pasadikena sampadehi// (manage it amiably) -- the dependence has taken hold. The Ma if the preceptor indicates any of these meanings by gesture, that also counts; and accordi Commentary, the same holds true if he makes any equivalent statement. (Mv.I.25.7) ordination, the new bhikkhu needs to request dependence from a teacher, the procedure i that the request he makes three times is this: Acariyo me bhante hohi; ayasmato ni vacchami, which means, "Venerable sir, be my teacher; I will live in dependence on you (Mv.I.32.2) //Duties//. The Mahavagga (I.25.6; 32.1) states that a pupil should regard h as a father; and the mentor, the pupil as his son. It then goes on to delineate this relations of reciprocal duties. The pupil's duties to his mentor fall into the following five categories: 1. //Attending to the mentor's personal needs//. The Mahavagga goes int detail on this topic, giving precise instructions dealing with every conceivable way a pupil c service to his mentor. The Vinaya Mukha tries to reduce these duties to a few general pr this misses much of what the Mahavagga has to offer, for it is in the details that we can se examples of mindfulness in action -- the best way to fold a robe, clean a dwelling, and so well as indications of how one can use this aspect of one's training to develop sensitivity to of others. Still, the detailed instructions are so extensive that they would overburden the in this chapter, so I have saved them for Appendix VIII. Here I will simply give them in outli
~~~~~~~

The pupil should: a. Arrange his mentor's toiletries for his morning wash-up. b.
Arrange his seat and food for his morning conjey (if he has any), and clean up after he is
c. Arrange his robes and bowl for his alms round. d. Follow him on his alms rou the mentor so desires, and take his robes and bowl when he returns. e. Arrange h and food for his alms meal and clean up afterwards. f. Prepare his bath. If he goe sauna, go with him and attend to his needs. g. Study the Dhamma and Vinaya fro he is prepared to teach. (The Mahavagga describes this as "recitation" and "interroga Recitation, according to the Commentary, means learning to memorize passages; interro to investigate their meaning.) h. Clean his dwelling and other parts of his dwelling complex, such as the restroom and storage rooms, when they get dirty. 2. //Assist mentor in any problems he may have with regard to the Dhamma and Vinaya//. The Maha following examples: a. If the preceptor begins to feel dissatisfaction with the celiba life, the pupil should try to allay that dissatisfaction or find someone else who can.

If the preceptor begins to feel anxiety over his conduct with regard to the rules, the pupil to allay that anxiety, or find someone else who can. c. If the preceptor begins to h wrong views, the pupil should try to dissuade him from those views or find someone can. d. If the preceptor has committed a sanghadisesa offense, the pupil should - best of his ability -- help with the arrangements for penance, probation, and rehabilitation find someone else who can. e. If the Community is going to carry out a formal act aga the mentor, the pupil should try to dissuade them from it. According to the Commentary, he should go to the various members of the Community individually before the meeti dissuade them from going through with the act. If he can't dissuade them, he should try t lessen its severity (say, from an act of banishment to an act of censure). If they are ju in carrying out the act, though, he should not object while the meeting is in progress.
they have carried out the act, he should concentrate on helping his mentor behave so th rescind the act as quickly as possible. 3. //Washing, making, and dyeing the mento robes.// 4. //Showing loyalty and respect for the mentor//. a. The pupil should ne give or receive gifts, nor give or receive services to/from others without first obtaining the mentor's permission. According to the Commentary, //others // here refers to people who terms with the mentor. b. The pupil should obtain his mentor's permission before a village, going to a cemetery (to meditate, says, the Commentary), or leaving the distric they live. The Commentary notes, though, that if the mentor refuses one's request th time, one should ask up to two more times, presenting one's reasons as best one can. If still refuses, the pupil should reflect on his situation. If staying with the mentor is not helping his education and meditation, and if the mentor seems to want him to stay simply someone to look after his (the mentor's) needs, the pupil is justified in leaving and taking with a new mentor in his new residence. 5. //Caring for the mentor when he falls ill//, leaving him until he either recovers or passes away (Mv.I.25). According to the Comm pupil is freed from these duties when he is ill. Otherwise, he should observe all the above his preceptor as long as he is in dependence on him, and the duties in sections 1-3 even a released from dependence, as long as both he and the preceptor are alive and still ordaine for the duties to one's teacher, the Commentary lists four types of teachers: the going-forth one who gives one the ten precepts during one's ordination ceremony); the acceptance who chants the motion and announcements during the ceremony); the Dhamma teacher (t the Pali language and Canon); and the dependence teacher (the one with whom one live With the dependence teacher, one must observe all the above duties only as long as one dependence on him. As for the other three, one should observe sections 1-3 as long as bo alive and still ordained. The Commentary adds that if the mentor already has a pupil w performing these duties for him, he may inform his remaining pupils that they need not tak exempts them from having to observe them. If he neglects to do this, the pupil who is perfo duties may inform his fellows that he will take responsibility for looking after the mentor. Th exempts them. Otherwise, they incur a dukkata for every duty they neglect to perform.

mentor's duties to his pupil: 1. //Furthering the pupil's education//, teaching him the Dha and Vinaya through recitation, interrogation, exhortation, and instruction. 2. //Providin requisites for the pupil//. If the pupil lacks any of his basic requisites, and the mentor has a spare, he should make up the lack. 3. //Attending to the pupil's personal needs when ill//, performing the services mentioned in section 1 under the pupil's duties to his mentor
4. //Assisting the pupil in any problems he may have with regard to the Dhamma and Vin the services mentioned in section 2 under the pupil's duties to his mentor. 5. //Teach pupil how to wash, make, and dye robes//. If for some reason the pupil is unable to handle the mentor should find someone who can help the pupil with them. 6. //Caring for the he falls ill//, not leaving him until he either recovers or passes away (Mv.I.26). Accord the Commentary, the preceptor, going-forth teacher, and acceptance teacher must observ toward the pupil as long as both parties are alive and still ordained. As for the Dhamma dependence teachers, they must observe these duties only as long as the pupil is living wi //Dismissal//. If the pupil does not observe his duties to his mentor, the mentor is empow dismiss him. In fact, if the pupil deserves dismissal, the mentor incurs a dukkata if for som he does not dismiss him, just as he would for dismissing a pupil who did not deserve it (MV grounds for dismissal are five: 1. The pupil has no affection for his mentor -- i.e., he s him no kindness. 2. He has no faith in his mentor -- i.e., he does not regard him as example to follow. 3. He has no shame in front of his mentor -- i.e., he openly disrega training rules in his mentor's presence. 4. He has no respect for his mentor -- i.e., he d listen to what the mentor has to say, and openly disobeys him. 5. He is not developin his mentor -- the Commentary translates //developing// here as developing a sense of goo mentor, but it could also mean developing in his general education and practice of the Dha
The Vinaya Mukha notes that the mentor should reflect on his own conduct before such a pupil. If he has done anything that would give the pupil valid reason for losing affec he should first correct his own conduct. Only after reflecting that there is no longer anyth own conduct that would give the pupil valid reason to disregard him should he go ahead w dismissal. The Mahavagga mentions each of the following statements as a valid mea dismissal: "I dismiss you." "Don't come back here." "Take away your robes and bowl." "Do

It also states that if the mentor makes any of these meanings known by gesture -- e.g., h pupil from his quarters and throws his robes and bowl out after him -- that also counts as a of dismissal (Mv.I.27.2). The Commentary adds that any statement conveying the same those above would count as well. Once a pupil has been dismissed, it is his duty to ap he doesn't, he incurs a dukkata (Mv.I.27.3). Once the pupil has apologized, the mentor's forgive him (Mv.I.27.4). If, however, he sees that the pupil is still unconscientious, he shou take him back, for a mentor who takes on an unconscientious pupil incurs a dukkata (Mv.I. mentor may, if he sees fit, inflict a non-physical punishment on the pupil before taking hi the original footing, to make sure that he has actually seen the error of his ways. An exam punishment, mentioned in the Vinaya Mukha, is simply asking to wait to observe the pupil' for a while to see whether or not his apology is sincere. The Commentary recommends mentor refuses to forgive the pupil, the latter should try to get other bhikkhus in the mona intercede for him. If that doesn't work, he should go stay in another monastery and take de a senior bhikkhu there who is on friendly terms with the mentor, in hopes that the mentor this as a sign of the pupil's good intentions and will eventually grant his forgiveness.

//Dependence lapses//. Mv.I.36.1 says that if a pupil is staying in dependence with his prec dependence lapses if: 1. He leaves. According to the Subcommentary, this means tha preceptor goes to spend the night outside the monastery, regardless of whether or not he 2. He disrobes. 3. He dies. 4. He goes over to another side -- according to the Commentary, this means that he joins another religion. In all of the above cases, commentaries interpret "he" as referring to the preceptor, although it would seem to refer t pupil as well. This would fit with the passages from the Mahavagga, to be mentioned belov new bhikkhu on a journey as not being in dependence. In such cases, the new bhikkhu is one who has left the preceptor, and his leaving is what has caused the dependence to lap He gives a command. This is the one alternative where "he" clearly refers only to the prec Commentary interprets //command// here as dismissal, as discussed above, although the would also include cases where the preceptor sees that the pupil qualifies to be released f (see below) and tells him so. In each of these cases, a pupil who is not yet released dependence must find someone else to take dependence under on that very day, except i instances (taken from the Commentary): -- The preceptor leaves, saying that he will only for a day or two, and that the pupil need not ask anyone else for dependence in the it so happens that the preceptor's return is delayed, he should send word to his pupil, sayi still intends to come back. If, however, the pupil receives word from his preceptor that the longer intends to return, he should immediately look for a teacher to take dependence und The preceptor leaves, and the only other senior bhikkhu in the monastery is one whom the know well. In this case, the pupil is allowed four or five days to observe the senior bhikkh behavior (as mentioned above) before requesting dependence from him. If, though, the pu the senior bhikkhu well enough to feel confident in his conduct, he should take depender the day of his preceptor's departure. If the pupil is staying in dependence on a teacher dependence can lapse for any of six reasons. The first five are identical with those abov even the Commentary states that "he leaves," the first reason, applies not only to cases w leaves but also to cases where the pupil leaves. The sixth reason is: 6. The pupil rej preceptor. The Commentary explains this by saying that, in effect, the pupil's original depe preceptor always overrides his dependence on a teacher. If the pupil happens to see his recognize him, or to hear and recognize his voice -- even if they just happen to pass on th his dependence on his teacher automatically lapses, and his dependence on his precepto he then returns to live with his teacher, he must ask for dependence from the teacher all The Vinaya Mukha objects to his judgment, saying that "rejoins the preceptor" shoul the pupil's actually living with the preceptor, either in another monastery or in the same mo where the teacher lives. This, however, is an area where different Communities differ in th interpretation, and the wise policy is to follow the interpretation of the Community in which //Temporary exemption from dependence//. Normally a junior bhikkhu is required to li dependence under a mentor at all times. However, Mv.I.73 allows him not to take depende the following situations if no qualified bhikkhu is available as a mentor: 1) He is on journey. 2) He is ill. 3) He is caring for an ill person who has requested his help (%). 4) He is living alone in the forest, meditating comfortably, intending to take depe if a qualified mentor comes along. The Commentary, in discussing these allowance following points: A bhikkhu on a journey is said to have no mentor available if no qualified senior bhikkhu is traveling with him. In other words, the fact that he happens to p monastery with a qualified mentor does not mean that a mentor is available, and he is allo continue traveling without taking dependence. If, however, he spends the night in a place taken dependence before, he should take dependence on the day of his arrival. If he reac where he has never been before and plans to spend only two or three days, he need not t if he plans to spend a week, he must. If the senior bhikkhu he requests dependence from the use of taking dependence for only a week?" that exempts him from this requirement. the bhikkhu living alone in the forest, the Commentary says that "meditating comfortably" tranquility and insight meditation are going smoothly. For some reason, though, it says tha allowance applies only to bhikkhus whose meditation is at a tender stage and might deteri were to leave the forest; if a bhikkhu has attained any of the Noble Attainments -- beginnin Stream-entry -- he may not make use of this allowance. Why the Commentary limits the al way, it doesn't say. At any rate, once the month before the Rains Retreat arrives, and suitable mentor appears, the junior bhikkhu must leave his forest abode and look for a pla take dependence for the Rains. //Release from dependence//. According to Mv.I.53. may be released from dependence after he has been ordained for five years, on the con experienced and competent. If he is not yet experienced and competent, he must remain until he is. If he never becomes experienced and competent, he must remain in dependen life as a bhikkhu. The Commentary adds that, in the last case, if he cannot find a compe experienced bhikkhu who is senior to him, he must take dependence with a competent, ex who is his junior. To be considered competent and experienced enough to deserve from dependence, a bhikkhu must meet many of the same general qualifications as those that he need not possess the competence to look after a pupil, and the minimum numbe needs as a bhikkhu is five. None of the texts divide the qualifications here into ideal and m qualifications, as they do for the mentor, but it seems reasonable that the same division w as well. This would give us the following list: //The ideal qualifications//: The bhikkhu should have an arahant's virtue, concentration, discernment, release, and knowledge of should have faith, a sense of shame, fear of evil, persistence in the practice, and quick mi should be free of heavy and light offenses and possess right view. //The minimal qualifications//: The bhikkhu must be learned and intelligent, knowing both Patimokkhas in understanding what is and is not an offense, what is a light offense, what is a heavy offe an offense may be removed. And -- the most basic requirement -- he must have been orda for at least five years (Mv.I.5-13). The Commentary expands on the term //learned// b saying that the bhikkhu must have memorized: 1. Both Patimokkhas. 2. The Fou Bhanavaras -- a set of auspicious chants that are still regularly memorized in Sri Lanka. discourse that is helpful as a guide for sermon-giving. (The Commentary lists as examples Maha-Rahulovada Sutta [M. 62], the Andhakavinda Sutta, and the Ambattha Sutta [D. 3].) kinds of //anumodana //(rejoicing in the merit of others) chants: for meals; for auspicious m ceremonies, such as blessing a house; and for non-auspicious ceremonies, i.e., any rela death. The Commentary adds that he must also know the rules for such official acts Community as the Patimokkha recitation and the Invitation Ceremony at the end of the Ra acquainted with themes for tranquility and insight meditation leading to arahantship. definition of //learned// is not universally accepted, and some traditions have reworked it. A another area where different Communities have different interpretations, the wise policy to the practice followed in one's Community, as long as it follows the basic requirements in mentioned above. Once a pupil has been released from dependence, he need no lon the duties mentioned in sections 4 and 5 under the pupil's duties to his mentor. //Ret dependence//. The Cullavagga (I.9-12) states that a bhikkhu released from dependence m formal act of the Community, to return to dependence if his conduct is so bad as to warra qualifying factors are: 1. He is ignorant and inexperienced. 2. He is full of offense and has not made amends for them. 3. He lives in unbecoming association with lay pe If these factors apply to a bhikkhu to the extent that the Community is "fed up with granting probation, sending him back to the beginning, imposing penance, and rehabilitating him" -- refer to the procedures for dealing with a bhikkhu who has committed repeated sanghadis Chapter 5) -- then the Community is justified in imposing a formal "act of dependence" on identical with a formal "act for further misbehavior," to be discussed in Chapter 11, and ca penalties, the only difference being that the bhikkhu must live in dependence under a me as the act of dependence is in effect. If he mends his ways to the Community's satisfactior rescind the act and return his independence. * * * At any rate, as we mentioned above, regardless of whether a pupil is under dependence or releas still expected to observe certain duties to his preceptor -- and his preceptor, certain dutie

-- as long as both are alive and ordained. This is in line with the fact that they are always t each other as father and son: The preceptor is to take a continuing interest in his pupil's and the pupil is to show his continuing gratitude for the initiation his preceptor has given hi the bhikkhu's life. * * * * * * * *

CHAPTER THREE

Disrobing

~~~~~~~~~~ The first rule in the Patimokkha opens with the statement that it -- and, by extension, every other ru Patimokkha -- applies to all bhikkhus who have not disrobed by renouncing the training an to the lay life. Thus the Vibhanga begins its explanations by discussing what does and doe valid act of disrobing. Because this is, in effect, the escape clause for all the rules, I am discussing it first as a separate chapter, for if a bhikkhu disrobes in an invalid manner, he as a bhikkhu and is subject to the rules whether he realizes it or not. If he then were to b of the Parajika rules, he would be disqualified from ever becoming a bhikkhu again in this

To disrobe, a bhikkhu with firm intent states in the presence of a witness words to the ef is renouncing the training. The validity of the act depends on four factors: 1. The bhik state of mind. 2. His intention. 3. His statement. 4. The witness to his statement.

State of mind. The bhikkhu must be in his right mind. Any statement he makes while insa pain, or possessed by spirits does not count. Intention. He must seriously desire to le Community. If, without actually intending to disrobe, he makes any of the statements usu disrobing, it does not count as an act of disrobing. For example, if he makes the statement telling someone else how to disrobe, the fact that he mentions the words does not mean disrobed. Also, if he says one thing and means something else -- e.g., if he makes a slip o -- that too does not count. The statement. The Vibhanga gives a wide variety of stater that one may use to renounce the training. The most basic one follows the form, "I renoun //x// may be replaced with the Buddha, the Dhamma, the Sangha, the training, the discip (//vinaya//), the Patimokkha, the chaste life, one's preceptor, one's teacher, one's fellow bh any equivalent terms. Other examples follow similar forms, such as, "I am tired of //x//," " //x// to me?" "//X// means nothing to me," or "I am well freed of //x//." A separate form follo pattern, "I will be //y//," where //y// may be replaced with a householder, a lay follower, a a member of another sect, an adherent of another sect, or any other equivalent term. stipulates that the statement may //not// be put in the conditional tense ("Suppose I were to training"), and the Commentary further stipulates that the "//x//" statements must be in th //present// tense. Thus to say, "I have renounced the training," or "I will renounce the traini not be a valid statement of disrobing. The witness must be a human being in his or h mind, and must understand what the bhikkhu says. This rules out the practice legendary bhikkhus who disrobe by taking a Buddha image as their witness, or who disrobe in front o the assumption that the tree deity counts. These four factors cover all that is absolut necessary for an act of disrobing to be valid. However, each of the different national trad developed a set of formal ceremonies to surround the act -- such as making a final confes offenses and reciting the passage for reflection on one's past use of the four requisites - psychological weight to the occasion and to help minimize any sense of remorse one may afterwards. Because disrobing is a serious act with strong consequences for one's m spiritual well being, it should be done only after due consideration. Once a bhikkhu decide //does// want to disrobe, he would be wise to follow not only the stipulations given in the also any additional customs dictated by the traditions of his particular Community, as a sig and to others that he is acting seriously and with due respect both for the religion and fo

~~~~~~~~~~

* * * * * * * *

CHAPTER FOUR

Parajika ~~~~~~~~

This term, according to the Parivara, derives from a verb meaning to lose or be defeated. A bhikkhu who commits any of the four following o surrendered to his own mental defilements to such an extent that he defeats the purpose o become a bhikkhu in the first place. The irrevocable nature of this defeat is illustrated in Vibhanga with a number of similes: "as a man with his head cut off...as a withered leaf free stem...as a flat stone that has been broken in half cannot be put together again...as a pa off at the crown is incapable of further growth." A bhikkhu who commits any of these offens himself irrevocably from the life of the Sangha and is no longer considered a bhikkhu.

1.Should any bhikkhu -- participating in the training and livelihood of the bhikkhus, wit having renounced the training, without having declared his weakness -- engage in t act, even with a female animal, he is defeated and no longer in communion. Effor this rule, the term //sexual act refers to all kinds of sexual intercourse. The Vibhanga class various types of intercourse by the organs involved -- the genitals, the mouth, the anus - of the possible combinations (except for mouth-to-mouth, which is treated separately unde below), the sexual act has been performed when one organ enters the other even if just of a sesame seed." This means that a bhikkhu engaging in genital, oral, or anal intercours to this rule regardless of which role he plays. The question of whether there is a covering, condom, between the organs is irrelevant, as are the questions of whether the bhikkhu is a passively involved, and whether or not any of the parties involved reaches orgasm. O full penalty under this rule applies to any voluntary sexual intercourse with a human being, being (a //yakkha//, //naga//, or //peta//), or a common animal, whether female, male, neu hermaphrodite. Performing the sexual act with a dead body -- even a decapitated he entails the full penalty if the remains of the body are intact enough for the act to be accom

The Vinita Vatthu also lists two examples of "self-intercourse": A bhikkhu with a supple his penis into his mouth, and a bhikkhu with an unusually long penis inserts it into his anus cases carry the full penalty, which shows that one's own anal and oral orifices can fulfill th object here. Knowledge & consent. For the sexual act to count as an offense, the bhik know that it is happening and give his consent. Thus if he is sexually assaulted while aslee unconscious and remains oblivious to what is happening, he incurs no penalty. If, howev conscious during the assault or was conscious right from the start, then whether he incurs depends on whether he gives his consent during any part of the act. Strangely enough, Canon nor the Commentary discusses the factor of consent in any detail, except to mentio passing that it can apply to the stage of inserting, being fully inserted, staying in place, or p out. From the examples in the Vinita Vatthu, it would appear that consent refers to a //men of acquiescence, together with its physical or verbal expression. Mere physical compliance as there are cases where bhikkhus forced into intercourse comply physically but without mentally and so are absolved of any offense; but there is some question as to whether a b consents mentally to letting the sexual act happen would incur the penalty if he simply lie lets it happen, or if he would have to indicate his consent with a verbal act or physical moti As we mentioned in Chapter 1, the rules contains two patterns concerning what does and a physical expression of consent when one is forced into a situation that would break a rul of the Vinita Vatthu cases mentioned under this rule, bhikkhus are approached by women fondle them to the point where they emit semen (%). Both bhikkhus let them go ahead, a the full penalty under Sanghadisesa 1. In such cases, simply letting the act happen counts acquiescence. Under Sanghadisesa 2, however, if a bhikkhu is approached by a woman w body, and he consents mentally to what she is doing, he incurs a penalty if he says somet physical move to indicate that consent, but no penalty if he remains perfectly still. No the texts explain why there are these two patterns, but two possibilities suggest themselve physically impossible to emit semen and to enjoy the emission without the body's moving another. (2) One is not necessarily responsible if a woman simply makes contact with one one enjoys the contact; but if one is happy to let her get to the point where she has one e one cannot deny responsibility for what is happening. In either case, this rule would seem the pattern for Sanghadisesa 1: If one is sexually assaulted, one is completely absolved fr only if (1) one does not give one's mental consent at any time during the act or (2) one doe mental consent during at least part of the act but puts up a struggle so as not to express th physically or verbally in any way. If one puts up no struggle and feels mental consent, eve fleetingly during the stage of inserting, being fully inserted, staying in place, or pulling out, incurs the full penalty. This would seems to be the basis for the Commentary's warni its discussion of the Vinita Vatthu case in which a bhikkhu wakes up to find himself being s assaulted by a woman, gives her a kick, and sends her rolling. The warning: This is how a still subject to sensual lust should act if he wants to protect his state of mind. Derived offenses. The only thullaccaya directly related to this rule is for the unlikely case of a bhikk attempts intercourse with the decomposed mouth, anus, or genitals of a corpse. (!) To at intercourse with any other part of a dead body or with any part of an insentient object, such inflatable doll or mannikin, incurs a dukkata. The Vibhanga states that if a bhikkhu at intercourse with any part of a living being's body apart from the three orifices, the case fa the Sanghadisesa rules -- either Sanghadisesa 1 for intentional ejaculation or Sanghadise bodily contact. As we shall see below, the penalties assigned in the latter case are as fo the partner is a woman, a sanghadisesa; if a //pandaka// (see Sanghadisesa 2), a thullacc a common animal, a dukkata. We can infer from the Vibhanga's ruling here that if a bhik orgasm while attempting intercourse with the decomposed mouth, anus, or genitals of a co other part of a dead body, or with any part of an insentient object, the case comes under S

The Commentary disagrees with the Vibhanga on these points, however, saying that offenses under this rule can include only dukkata and thullaccaya penalties. In its explanat Sanghadisesa 1, it sets forth a system of eleven types of lust in which the lust for the pleas bringing about an ejaculation, lust for the pleasure of bodily contact, and lust for the pleasu intercourse are treated as completely separate things that must be treated under separate says, if a bhikkhu aiming at intercourse takes hold of a woman's body, it is simply a preli intercourse and thus entails only a dukkata, rather than a sanghadisesa for lustful bodily c Similarly, if he has a premature ejaculation before beginning intercourse, there is no offe all. These are fine academic distinctions and are clearly motivated by a desire to dra lines between the rules, but they lead to practical problems. As the Commentary itself poir bhikkhu commits an act that falls near the borderline between these rules, but cannot late precisely which type of lust he was feeling in the heat of the moment, there is no way his c judged and a penalty assigned. At any rate, though, there is no basis in the Canon for the system, and in fact it contradicts not only the Vibhanga's ruling mentioned above, but also definition of "lustful" under Sanghadisesas 2, 3, & 4, which is exactly the same for all three places no limits on the type of lust involved. All of this leads to the conclusion that the Commentary's neat system is invalid, and that the Vibhanga's judgment holds: If a bhikkhu intercourse with any part of a living being's body apart from the three orifices, the case fall the Sanghadisesa rules -- either Sanghadisesa 1 for intentional ejaculation or Sanghadise bodily contact -- rather than here. Blanket exemptions. In addition to bhikkhus who d they are being assaulted or do not give their consent when they do know, the Vibhanga there are four special categories of bhikkhus exempted from a penalty under this rule: any insane, possessed by spirits, delirious with pain, or the first offender (in this case, Ven. S whose actions prompted the Buddha to formulate the rule in the first place. The Comment anyone who "goes about in an unseemly way, with deranged perceptions, having cast awa conscience and shame, not knowing whether he has transgressed major or minor training as insane here. It recognizes this as a medical condition, which it blames on the bile. As fo possession, it says that this can happen either when spirits frighten one or when, by dist with sensory images, they insert their hands into one's heart by way of one's mouth. (!) At notes, insane and possessed bhikkhus are exempt from penalties they incur only when t are deranged ("when their mindfulness is entirely forgotten, and they don't know what fire, excrement, and sandalwood are") and not from any they incur during their lucid moment bhikkhu overcome with pain, he is exempt from penalties he incurs only during periods wh great that he does not know what he is doing. These four categories are exempted fro under //all// of the rules, although the first offender for each rule is exempted only for the time he acted in such a way as to provoke the Buddha into formulating the rule. I will not m categories again, but the reader should bear them in mind as being exempt in every case Lastly, the Vinita Vatthu to this rule includes an interesting case that formed the basis for a additional rule: "At that time a certain monk had gone to the Gabled Hall in the G Wood at Vesali to pass the day and was sleeping, having left the door open. His various stiff with the 'wind forces' (i.e., he had an erection). Now at that time a large compa women bearing garlands and scents came to the park, headed for the vihara. Seeing th they sat down on his male organ and, having taken their pleasure and remarking, 'What man!' they went on their way, taking up their garlands and scents." The bhikkhu in penalty, but the Buddha gave formal permission to close the door when resting during the Summary: Voluntary sexual intercourse -- genital, anal, or oral -- with a human being, n being, or common animal is a parajika offense. * * *

2. Should any bhikkhu, in the manner of stealing, take what is not given from an inhabi from the wilderness -- just as when, in the taking of what is not given, kings arrestin criminal would flog, imprison, or banish him, saying, "You are a robber, you are a fool, y benighted, you are a thief" -- a bhikkhu in the same way taking what is not given is def longer in communion. This rule against stealing is, in the working out of its details, the most complex in the Patimokkha and requires the most explanation -- not that stealing especially hard to understand, simply that it can take so many forms. The Vibhanga d act of stealing in terms of four factors: 1) //Object//: anything belonging to another pers group of persons, or a location (such as the offerings made to a sacred place).
2) //Perception//: One perceives that the object belongs to another person, etc.
//Intention//: One decides to steal it. 4) //Effort//: One takes possession of it.
Stealing under any circumstances is always an offense. However, the severity of the offen another factor, which is -- 5) //The value of the object//. Object. For an object to qualify as //what is not given// -- the rule's term for anything that may be the object of a the must belong to another person or be guarded as common property of a group or of a loca offerings to a Buddha image, chedi, or other sacred place, as mentioned above. A further is that the owner or person responsible for guarding the object has neither given nor throw there is no offense for a bhikkhu who takes a discarded object, such as rags from a pile unclaimed things from a wilderness; or things unclaimed by any human being but in the po animal or ghost. The Vinita Vatthu mentions an interesting case in which the groundskee orchard permits bhikkhus to take fruit from the orchard, even though he was not authorize bhikkhus committed no offense. The question of property belonging to the Sangha lo here, but since the topic is fairly complex, I will treat it as a special case below Perception. For the act of taking "what is not given" to count as theft, one must also //perc object as being something not given. Thus there is no offense if one takes an object, even "not given," if one sincerely believes that it is ownerless or thrown away. Similarly, if a bhik an object mistaking it for his own or as belonging to a friend who has given him permission his things on trust, there is no offense. Or again, a bhikkhu who takes things from the Com stores, on the assumption that he has the right to help himself, commits no offense even assumption proves false. Intention. The act of taking "what is not given," even when on perceives it as "not given," counts as theft only if one's intention is to steal it. Thus if a bhik takes an object on loan or on trust, he commits no offense. According to the Commentary, something on loan means that one has the intention that, "I'll return it," or "I'll make compe

As for taking an object on trust, Mv.VIII.1.19 lists five conditions that must be met if a is rightly to take an object on trust: a. The owner is a friend. b. He/she is an intimate. c. He/she has given one permission to take from his/her things. d. He/s still alive. e. One is confident that he/she will not mind. If any of these factors is lack -- for example, the owner is a good friend but has never given explicit permission to take fr his/her things -- one has no right to take the things on trust. However, the Vinita Vatthu giv of a bhikkhu who takes an item mistakenly thinking that he had the right to take it on trust; Buddha termed this a "misconception as to trust" and did not impose a penalty. The problem that arises in this area is when one sincerely assumes that the owner will not min out that he/she does. In cases of this sort there is no offense, and the matter is left to the and the owner to settle on their own as amicably as possible. A bhikkhu who, seeing left in a place where it might be damaged, puts it in safe keeping for the owner, commits n

Effort. Assuming that all of the above conditions are met -- the object belongs to someo perceives it as belonging to someone else, and one intends to steal it -- if one then takes i constitutes stealing. The question then arises as to precisely what acts constitute //taking// summarize the Vibhanga's treatment of this question, we can classify objects into two broa moveable and immovable. Moveable items are said to be taken when they are moved their "base(s)," i.e., the spot(s) on which they rest. An object such as a box or a trunk lying the ground or touching its support at a single area has a single base and counts as "take been moved entirely from its base. An object such as a table or chair touching its support a separate places has that number of bases. For instance, a stool with three legs touches three points and so has three bases. An object with more than one base is "taken" when it from all of its bases. Thus a television set standing on four legs is taken when all four of i have been lifted or slid away from the four spots on which they were standing. If a m object is placed on another moveable object, such as a television set placed on a cart, the to count it as taken -- either when it is removed from its base on the cart or when the wh cart have been moved from all of their bases on the floor -- whichever occurs first. If A is carrying an object, and person B tries to take it from him, it is counted as taken even i only in moving it from one spot on A's body to another. According to the Vibhanga, if holding an object with the owner's permission then decides to abscond with it, it counts as he shifts it to another part of his person (e.g., into his pocket) or places it elsewhere. The V Mukha, however, takes issue with this point, saying that cases of this sort should be trea the terms of a breach of trust, which is discussed below. Animals are reckoned to ha (e.g., snakes, any reclining animal) or more (e.g., chickens or dogs on their feet) in the sar inanimate objects, and are said to be taken when they are pulled, chased, etc., completely base(s). When a bhikkhu takes a moveable object in theft, the question of whether h with it is irrelevant as far as the offense is concerned. For example, if he tries to steal a rac succeeds in moving it completely from its base, but then hears the owner coming and sc its original place, the owner would not even know that the object was in danger of being ta civil law would regard the act at most as an attempted theft. As far as the Vinaya is conc though, the theft occurred when the bhikkhu first moved the object, and the fact that he ret not erase the theft. He would still be guilty of an offense. As for immovable objects -- or things such as buildings or trees affixed to the land -- these are taken when the rightful unwillingly abandons his claim to them of his own accord (through fear of intimidation or re incur the expense and bother of a court battle) or when he is forced to do so by a court of cannot, or does not, make a further appeal. In the Buddha's time, a court dispute involving considered fully settled when the winner of the case staked out his claim with the permissi court. Thus the Vibhanga states that a bhikkhu who unfairly wins a court case of this sort h land when he formally stakes out his claim after winning the case. At present we would sa taken the land when he receives the deed. Immovable objects in the secondary sense buildings, etc. -- are treated in the same light as ordinary moveable objects if a bhikkhu c down or dismantles them: They count as taken when removed from their bases. The general considerations for determining when an object is taken. The Vibhanga, though, cit additional cases involving special contingencies, as follows: a. //Fraudulence//: Obj being distributed by lot to the Community. A bhikkhu desiring the portion rightfully g another bhikkhu exchanges his ticket for the other bhikkhu's ticket. The "taking" is accor the tickets have been exchanged. b. //Breach of trust//: A person places goods with a bhikkhu. When the owner comes to ask for their return, the bhikkhu claims th not have them. The taking is accomplished when the owner stops pressing his claim. If goes to court, the taking is accomplished when the owner loses the case in the final cou appeals. c. //Embezzlement//: A bhikkhu responsible for items kept in a storeroo removes one of the items from the storeroom. The taking is accomplished when the iter storeroom's boundary. d. //Smuggling//: A bhikkhu carrying items subject to an import duty hides them as he goes through customs. The taking is accomplished when customs area. If, however, the bhikkhu informs the customs official that he has an i subject to customs duty, and yet the official decides not to collect the duty, the bhikkhu i no penalty. And there is no penalty if the bhikkhu goes through customs not knowing t item subject to import duties among his effects. Special cases cited in the Commen include the following: a. //False dealing//: A bhikkhu makes counterfeit money or u counterfeit weights. The taking is accomplished when the counterfeit is accepted. //Extortion//: Using threats, a bhikkhu compels the owner of an object to give it to him. T is accomplished when the owner complies. The value of the object. As stated abov of stealing counts as an offense, but the gravity of the offense is determined by the value object. This is the point of the phrase in the rule reading, "just as when there is the taking not given, kings...would banish him, saying... 'You are a thief.'" In other words, for theft t a parajika, it must be a case of grand larceny, which in the time of the Buddha meant that involved were worth at least five //masakas//, a unit of money used at the time. Goods valu at more than one masaka but less than five are grounds for a thullaccaya; goods valued one masaka or less are grounds for a dukkata, the worth of the articles being determined would have fetched at the time of the theft. This leaves us with the question of how a would translate into current monetary rates. No one can answer this question with any c the oldest attempt to peg the masaka to the gold standard dates from the V/Subcommenta masaka as equal to 4 rice grains' weight of gold. At this rate, the theft of an item worth 2 grains' (1/24 troy ounce) weight of gold or more would be a parajika offense. One ob this method of calculation is that some of the items mentioned in the Vinita Vatthu as being parajika when stolen -- e.g., a pillow, a bundle of laundry, a robe, a handful of rice during -- would seem to be worth much less than 1/24 troy ounce of gold, but we must remember regarded as commonplace now might have been viewed as expensive luxuries at the time of this objection, there is one very good reason for adopting the standard set by the V/Sub sets a high value for the least article whose theft would result in a parajika. Thus when a steals an item worth 1/24 troy ounce of gold or more, there can be no doubt that he has co offense. When the item is of lesser value, there will be inescapable doubt -- and when th doubt concerning a parajika, the tradition of the Vinaya consistently gives the bhikkhu the doubt: He is not compelled to disrobe. A basic principle operating throughout the texts is better to risk letting an offender go unpunished than to risk punishing an innocent bhikkhu.

There is a second advantage to the V/Subcommentary's method of calculation: its precisio Some people have recommended adopting the standard expressed in the rule itself -- that would result in flogging, imprisonment or banishment by the authorities in that time and at then the theft would constitute a parajika -- but this standard creates more problems than solve. In most countries the sentence is largely at the discretion of the judge or magistrate factor of value is only one among many taken into account when determining the penalty whole Pandora's box of issues, many of which have nothing to do with the bhikkhu or the taken -- the judge's mood, his social philosophy, his religious background, and so forth -- that the Buddha never allowed to enter into the consideration of how to determine the pen theft. Thus the V/Subcommentary's method of calculation has the benefits that it is a easy method for determining the boundaries between the different levels of offense in any it involves no factors extraneous to the tradition of the Vinaya, and -- as noted above -- i the line at a value above which there can be no doubt that the penalty is a parajika. I bhikkhu steals several items on different occasions, the values of the different items are a to determine the severity of the offense //only if they were stolen as part of a single plan intention//. If they are stolen as a result of separate intentions, each act of stealing is treate separate offense whose severity depends on the value of the individual item(s) stolen in

This point is best explained with examples: In a case given in the Vinita Vatthu, a bh decides to steal a spoonful of ghee from a jar. After swallowing the spoonful, he decides more. After that he decides to steal another, and so on until he has finished the jar. Becau spoonful was stolen as a consequence of a separate plan or intention, he incurs several for the theft of one spoonful of ghee. If, however, he decides at one point to steal enou to build himself a hut and then steals a plank from here and a rafter from there, taking lu many days at different places from various owners, he commits one offense in accordance value of all the lumber stolen, since he took all the pieces of wood as a consequence of or Derived offenses. If a bhikkhu tries to steal an article that would be grounds for a para does not succeed -- e.g., he is going to steal a book from a shelf, but before he can remov its place on the shelf he hears someone approaching and so walks off without taking it -- h lighter offense in accordance with the effort made. Offenses of this sort are called offenses in the //pubbayoga// or preliminary steps. In the case of stealing, they are determined as f //Inanimate moveable objects:// If the article is made to budge slightly, but is not mov completely from its base, or from some but not all of its bases -- thullaccaya. All act prior to this, beginning with the act of walking toward the object with intent to steal it -- dukkata. //Animals:// If in driving the animal along the bhikkhu gets it to move its front feet -- thullaccaya. All actions prior to this -- dukkata. //Immovable objects and articles placed in trust//: If the bhikkhu creates doubt in the mind of the owner as to he will deprive him/her of the property in question -- thullaccaya. All actions prior to t dukkata. //Immovable objects in the secondary sense (e.g., a tree):// If with one blow of the ax the tree will fall -- thullaccaya. All actions prior to this -- dukkata, unless (according to the Vinaya Mukha) there is a training rule imposing a higher penalty, such pacittiya rule concerning injury to plant life. For ease of remembrance, if the bhikkh one step away from taking the object, he incurs a thullaccaya; if he does not go that far, one or more dukkatas. In offenses of this sort, when a heavier penalty is incurred, only penalty is counted, and the preceding lighter ones are nullified. For example, in the case m above, if the bhikkhu trying to steal the book simply touches it, he incurs a string of dukk each step in walking up to the book and taking hold of it. If he budges the book slightly but as to move it completely from its spot, the dukkatas are nullified and replaced with a thul he actually takes the book, that nullifies the thullaccaya and replaces it with a parajika.
Shared responsibility. A bhikkhu can commit an offense not only if he himself steals an obj if he incites another to steal. The offenses involved in the acts leading up to the crime are follows: If a bhikkhu tells an accomplice to steal an object that would be grounds for parajika, he incurs a dukkata. If the accomplice agrees, the instigator incurs a thullaccaya.
accomplice succeeds in taking the object as instructed -- whether or not he gets away w whether or not he shares it with the instigator -- the instigator incurs a parajika. If the acco a bhikkhu, he too incurs a parajika. If the object would be grounds for a thullaccaya or a the only penalties incurred prior to the actual theft would be dukkatas. If there is any confusion in carrying out the instructions -- e.g., if the accomplice, instead of taking the bo specified by the instigator, takes something else instead; or if he is told to take it in the afternoon but instead takes it in the morning -- the instigator incurs only the penalties for p the theft and persuading the accomplice, and not the penalty for the theft itself. The sam if the instigator rescinds his order before the theft takes place, but the accomplice goes ah the object anyway. According to the Commentary, an instigator who wishes to call of theft before it is carried out, but who for one reason or another cannot get his message to in time, incurs the full penalty for the completed theft. If there is a chain of command Bhikkhu A telling Bhikkhu B to tell Bhikkhu C to tell Bhikkhu D to commit the theft -- then o takes the object as instructed, all four incur the penalty coming from the theft. If there is an confusion in the chain of command -- e.g., Bhikkhu B instead of telling C tells D directly -- nor C incurs the penalty for the theft itself. If bhikkhus go in a group to commit a theft, only one of them does the actual taking, all still incur the penalty coming from the theft. S if they steal valuables worth collectively more than five masakas but which when divided a shares worth less than five masakas each, all incur a parajika. Special cases. As me above, the notion of stealing covers a wide variety of actions. The texts mention a variety o that border on stealing, some of them coming under this rule, some of them not. //Belongings of the Sangha//. According to the Commentary to Nissaggiya Pacittiya 30, an the Sangha when donors, intending for it to be Sangha property, offer it to one or more b representing the Sangha, and those bhikkhus receive it, although not necessarily into thei property thus counts as "what is not given" as far as individual bhikkhus are concerned, owner -- the Sangha of all times and places -- and is guarded by the individual Community Sangha property is divided into two sorts: light (//lahu-bhanda//) and heavy (//garu-bha Light property includes such things as robes, bowls, medicine, and food. Heavy property i things as monastery land, buildings, and furnishings. The Buddha gave permission for indi Communities to appoint certain of their members to be officials responsible for the proper Sangha property. The officials responsible for light property are to distribute it among the m the Community, following set procedures to ensure that the distribution is fair. Once an i member has received such property, he may regard it as his own and use it as he sees fit. the case of heavy property, though, the officials are responsible for seeing that it is allotted proper use in the Community, //but the individual bhikkhus who are allowed to use it may as their own personal property//. This is an important point. At most, such items may be ta exchanged -- with the approval of the Community -- for other heavy property of equal va who gives such items away to anyone -- ordained or not -- perceiving it as his to give, incu thullaccaya, no matter what the value of the object. Of course, if he knows that it is not his take, then in appropriating it as his own he incurs the penalty for stealing. The Buddha highly critical of any bhikkhu who gives away heavy property of the Sangha. In the origin s

Parajika 4, he cites the case of a bhikkhu who, hoping to find favor with a lay person, giv person some of the Sangha's heavy property. Such a bhikkhu, he says, is one of the five g the world. A bhikkhu who takes heavy property of the Sangha donated for use in a p monastery and uses it elsewhere incurs a dukkata. If he takes it on loan, he commits no o //Receiving stolen goods//. Accepting a gift of goods, or purchasing them very cheaply kn were stolen, would in Western criminal law result in a penalty similar to stealing itself. Ho neither the Canon nor the commentaries mention this case. The closest they come is in th where a groundskeeper gives bhikkhus fruit from the orchard under his care, even though to give, and there was no offense for the bhikkhus. Thus the implication is that there is no receiving stolen goods, even knowingly, although a bhikkhu who does so would not be e civil law and the consequent proceedings, in the course of which the Community would pr disrobe. (In Thailand, the civil law empowers the police to force a bhikkhu to disrobe if he charged with a criminal case.) //Compensation owed//. The Commentary introduces th //bhandadeyya//, or compensation owed, to cover cases where a bhikkhu is responsible fo destruction of another person's property. It defines this concept by saying that the bhikkh the price of the object to the owner or give the owner another object of equal value to the o destroyed; if he abandons his responsibility to the owner, he incurs a parajika. The Com applies this concept not only to cases where the bhikkhu knowingly and intentionally destr but also to cases where he borrows or agrees to look after something that then gets lost destroyed through his negligence; or where he takes an item mistakenly thinking that it wa that he was in a position to take it on trust. To cite a few examples: A bhikkhu breaks person's jar of oil or places excrement in the oil to spoil it. A bhikkhu who is charged with the Community storeroom lets a group of other bhikkhus into the storeroom to fetch belong left there; they forget to close the door and, before he remembers to check it, thieves slip steal things. A group of thieves steal a bundle of mangoes but, being chased by the owner run; a bhikkhu sees the mangoes, thinks that they have been thrown away, and so eats th someone to present them to him. A bhikkhu sees a wild boar caught in a trap and, out of c sets it free but cannot reconcile the owner of the trap to what he has done. In each of thes Commentary says, the bhikkhu in question owes compensation to the owner of the goods.
the mangoes, he must compensate not only the owners but also the thieves if it turns out t planned to come back and fetch the fruit.) If he abandons his responsibility to the owner(s) incurs a parajika. In making these judgments, the Commentary is probably following law of its day, for the Canon contains no reference at all to the concept of bhandadeyya, a judgments would seem to contradict the Commentary's. For instance, the Vinita Vatthu r in which a bhikkhu knowingly sets fire to a field of grass (which in those days would have b than five masakas), and yet it assigns only a dukkata to the action. When it discusses ca bhikkhu takes an item on mistaken assumptions, or where he feels compassion for an ani trap and so sets it free, it says that there is no offense at all. Thus it seems strange for an that, according to the Canon, carries a dukkata or no penalty whatsoever to become grou parajika. Of course, in all cases of this sort it would be a wise policy to offer the owner rea compensation, but it is by no means certain that a bhikkhu would have the wherewithal to Canon places only one responsibility on him: to apologize to the owner (see Cv.I.18-20). I apologize, the Community, if it sees fit, can force him to. Beyond that, though, the Canon require that he make any material compensation at all. Thus, as the Commentary's conce clearly foreign to the Canon, there seems no reason to adopt it. //Court actions//. As above, if a bhikkhu knowingly starts an unfair court case against someone else and then final court to which the accused makes appeal, he incurs a parajika. The Commentary to t Sanghadisesa 1, however, states that even if a bhikkhu is actually mistreated by someone physically injured, robbed, etc. -- and then tries to take a just court action against the guilt he incurs a parajika if he wins. Again, this is an instance where the Commentary has no s the Canon and, as the Vinaya Mukha points out, its assertion cannot stand. However, the bhikkhu requires that he view all losses in the light of kamma and focus on looking after th his mind rather than on seeking compensation in social or material things. There is n in any of the texts that if a bhikkhu is asked to give evidence in a courtroom and does so, accordance with the facts, he commits no offense no matter what the outcome for the oth //Deceit//. If a bhikkhu uses a deliberate lie to deceive another person into giving an ite the transgression is treated not as a case of stealing -- since, after all, the item is given to

-- but rather as a case of lying. If the lie involves making false claims to superior meditative attainments, it is treated under Parajika 4. If not, it is treated under Pacittiya 1. The Vinita Vatthu gives two examples: During a distribution of requisites in the Community, a bhi for and is given an extra portion for a non-existent bhikkhu. A bhikkhu approaches his lay supporter and asks for medicines, saying that they will be for his teacher, although he plans to use them himself instead. In both of these cases, the penalty is a pacittiya for //Compassion//. The Vinita Vatthu contains a case in which a bhikkhu, out of compass an animal caught in a hunter's snare. He incurs no penalty. In another case, a bhikk psychic powers uses them to retrieve a pair of kidnapped children. The Buddha states tha no penalty because such a thing lies in the province of those with psychic power. The Vin discussing this case, takes it as a precedent for saying that if a bhikkhu returns a stolen its legal owner, there is no offense. The Buddha's statement, though, was probably meant bhikkhus without psychic powers from getting directly involved in righting wrongs of this bhikkhu happens to learn of the whereabouts of stolen goods, kidnapped children, etc., he authorities, if he sees fit, and let them handle the situation themselves. //Taking arti from undecomposed corpses//. In the early days of the Sangha, bhikkhus were expected t from discarded cloth, one source being the cloths used to wrap corpses laid in charnel g bhikkhus would wash and boil the cloth before using it themselves.) However, they were n from undecomposed bodies, and this was for a reason. "At one time a certain bhikkh charnel ground and took hold of discarded cloth on a body not yet decomposed. The spirit one was dwelling in the body. It said to the bhikkhu, 'Honored sir, don't take hold of my clo bhikkhu, ignoring it, went off (with the cloak). The body, arising, followed closely on the h the bhikkhu until the bhikkhu, entering the vihara, closed the door, and the body fell down

The story gives no further details, and we are left to imagine for ourselves both the b state of mind while being chased by the body and his friends' reaction to the event. As is u stories in the Vibhanga, the more outrageous the event, the more matter-of-fact is its tell the more its humor lies in the understatement. At any rate, as a result of this incident Buddha laid down a dukkata penalty for taking cloth from an undecomposed body -- which the Commentary, means one that is still warm. Modern cases. The modern world conta ownership and monetary exchange that did not exist in the time of the Buddha, and so c forms of stealing that did not exist then either. Here are a handful of cases that come to m examples of ways in which the standards of this rule might be applied to modern situatio //Breach of copyright.// The international standards for copyright advocated by UNESCO s of copyright is tantamount to theft. They go on to state, however, that if one duplicates a books, cassette tapes, or video tapes for private use, for study, or for non-profit distributio copy as much as one likes. In some countries, though, one is allowed to copy only small copyrighted material for such purposes, although exactly how small is only vaguely define copyright laws do not always adopt the UNESCO standard, a bhikkhu should check with copying anything. In particular, the agreements covering the copying of commercial compu usually do not permit the owner to give copies of the software to anyone for any reason, number of copies one may make for one's own use. One should follow such agreements t //Credit cards//. The theft of a credit card would of course be an offense. The seriousness offense would be determined by how much the owner would have to pay to replace the sto Nissaggiya Pacittiya 20 would forbid a bhikkhu from using a credit card to buy anything ev were his to use, although a bhikkhu who had gone to the extent of stealing a card would p be dissuaded by that rule from using it or having someone else use it. At any rate, each us card would also count as a theft, the seriousness of which would be calculated in line with principle of the "prior plan" mentioned above. //Long distance telephone calls//. Unauth of a telephone to place long distance calls would also count as a theft, and again the ser the offense would be calculated in light of the principle of the prior plan. //Tax evasio
If a bhikkhu intentionally does not pay a tax to which he is subject -- say, on an inheritance
-- he is guilty of a theft, which would occur on the deadline for payment of the tax. Of cou bhikkhu who fails to pay a tax out of ignorance would not be guilty of an offense. Exc currency on the black market is also a form of tax evasion in countries where there is a tax exchange, so a bhikkhu in such a country who directs his steward to change money on t would be guilty of a theft. If, however, the steward on his own initiative exchanges money market for use in the bhikkhu's account, the bhikkhu commits no offense. Summary:

anything worth 1/24 ounce troy of gold or more is a parajika offense.

* * * 3. Should any bhikkhu intentionally deprive a human being of life, or search for an assassin for him, or praise the advantages of death, or incite him to die (th good man, what use is this wretched, miserable life to you? Death would be better f life," or with such an idea in mind, such a purpose in mind, should in various ways prais advantages of death or incite him to die, he also is defeated and no longer in communic This rule against intentionally causing the death of a human being is best understood in te factors, all of which must be present for there to be a parajika offense. 1) //Object//: a human being, which according to the Vibhanga includes human fetuses as well, countin time consciousness first arises in the womb immediately after conception up to the time 2) //Intention//: knowingly, consciously, deliberately, and purposefully wanting to ca that person's death. "Knowingly" also includes the factor of -- 3) //Perception//: perceiving the person as a living being. 4) //Effort//: whatever one does with the purp causing that person to die. 5) //Result//: The person dies as the result of one's a Object. The Vibhanga defines a human being as a person "from the time consciousne manifest in a mother's womb, up to its death-time." (The concept of //death-time//, since it most directly to questions that arise in treating the terminally ill, will be discussed in the se dealing with that topic, below.) It follows from this that a bhikkhu who intentionally causes abortion -- by arranging for the operation, supplying the medicines, or giving advice that re abortion -- incurs a parajika. A bhikkhu who encourages a woman to use a means of con works after the point of conception would be guilty of a parajika if she were to follow his ad There is a series of cases in the Vinita Vatthu in which bhikkhus provide medicines for w an abortion, followed by two cases in which a bhikkhu provides medicines to a barren wom to become fertile and to a fertile woman who wants to become barren. In neither of these t does anyone die, but in both cases the bhikkhu incurs a dukkata. From this, the Comment bhikkhus are not to act as doctors to lay people, an inference supported by the Vibhanga t 13. (The Commentary, though, gives a number of exceptions to this principle. See the di that rule.) The parajika offense is for killing a human being aside from oneself. A bhik attempts suicide incurs a dukkata. A bhikkhu who kills a "non-human being" -- a yakkh peta -- or a devata (this is in the Commentary) incurs a thullaccaya. According to the Co when a spirit possesses a human being or an animal, it can be exorcised in either of two w is to command it to leave: This causes no injury to the spirit and results in no offense. Th to make a doll out of flour paste or clay and then cut off various of its parts. If one cuts off hands and feet, the spirit loses its hands and feet. If one cuts off the head, the spirit dies, a is grounds for a thullaccaya. A bhikkhu who intentionally kills a common animal is tre under Pacittiya 72. Intention & perception. The Vibhanga defines //intentionally// as "having made the decision knowingly, consciously, and purposefully." According to the Co made the decision// refers to the moment when one "crushes" one's indecisiveness by tak

//Knowingly// means being aware that, "This is a living being." //Consciously// means being one's action is depriving the living being of life. //Purposefully// means that one's purpose i murderous. Whether one is motivated by compassion, hatred, or indifference is irrelevant a offense is concerned. All of the above sub-factors must be present for the factors of and perception to be fulfilled here. Thus there is no offense for a bhikkhu who causes a de //accidentally// -- e.g., accidentally dropping a rock that kills a person standing below; toying with a gun, trying to decide whether or not to kill the person, and the gun accidentally goes off before he can make up his mind; //not knowing that a living bei there// -- e.g., placing a heavy load on a pile of cloth without realizing that a person lying underneath it; //not conscious that his action is causing death// -- e.g., by unwittingly giving poisoned food to another bhikkhu who eats it and dies; or whe actions are //motivated by a purpose other than that of causing death// -- e.g., giving me fellow bhikkhu, sincerely trying to help cure him, but the sick bhikkhu chokes on the and dies. One aspect of the Commentary's definition of //knowingly// is worth noting h does not need to know that the living being is a human being for the factor of perception to Thus if a bhikkhu hears a noise in the dark and, thinking it to be a wild animal, stabs it w to kill, he incurs a parajika if the "animal" turns out to be a human being who dies from the Although this judgment may seem strange, it is supported by a passage in the Canon: pitfall with the thought that whatever living beings fall into it will perish. The penalty, if an animal dies as a result, is a pacittiya; if a human being, a parajika. This shows that the inte perception of killing a living being of any kind fulfills the relevant factors here. The Vi Vatthu contains an unusual case of a bhikkhu who uses a friend as a guinea pig for testing friend dies, and the bhikkhu incurs only a thullaccaya. The Commentary explains this by two types of test: one to see if a particular poison is strong enough to kill a person; the oth if a particular person is strong enough to survive the poison. In either of these cases, the incurs a thullaccaya whether or not the victim dies. If, though, the bhikkhu gives poison to the desire that it cause that person's death, he incurs a parajika if the victim dies, and a thullaccaya if not. Effort. This factor covers four types of action: taking life, assisting murderer or suicide, describing the advantages of dying, and inciting a person to die. //Taking life//. The Vibhanga defines //taking life// as "cutting off the life faculty," and the Commentary's discussion of this point shows clearly that this means interrupting the contin life before it would reach its "timely" end through the exhaustion of the victim's merit or life The Commentary lists six means by which one might make such an effort: -- //One's c This includes using not only one's hands or feet, but also such weapons as knives, sticks, -- //Throwing//: hurling a stone, shooting an arrow or a gun, etc. -- //Stationary devices//: setting a trap, poisoning food, etc. -- //Magical formulae//: calling on malevol spirits to bring about a person's death, using voodoo, etc. -- //Psychic powers//. using "evil eye" or other similar powers. -- //Commanding//: inciting another person to com murder. This category includes recommendations as well as express commands. A few Telling A to kill B. The way in which a bhikkhu is penalized for getting another person to co can be inferred from the discussion of //shared responsibility// under the preceding rule.

Commentary to this rule goes into great detail concerning the six ways the command to kil specified: the object [the person to be killed], the time, the place, the weapon to use, the which the weapon is to be used [e.g. "Stab him in the neck"], and the position the victim sh [sitting, standing, lying down] when the act is to be done. If the instigator specifies any o things, and yet the person following his orders does not carry them out to the letter, the ins not incur the penalty for the actual murder. For instance, Bhikkhu A tells his student to ki B is sitting in meditation at midnight. The student gets into B's room at midnight, only to fin in bed, which is where he kills him. Bhikkhu A thus incurs only the thullaccaya for convin student to accept the command. Inciting A to kill B. The Commentary includes a case o active bhikkhu who tells people, "In such-and-such a place a bandit is staying. Whoever c head will receive great honor from the King." If any of the bhikkhu's listeners kills the band result of his instigation, the bhikkhu incurs a parajika. Recommending means of euthan Vinita Vatthu includes a case of a criminal who has just been punished by having his hand cut off. A bhikkhu asks the man's relatives, "Do you want him to die? Then make him drink relatives follow the bhikkhu's recommendation, the man dies, and the bhikkhu incurs a p Recommending means of capital punishment. Again from the Vinita Vatthu: A bhikkhu a executioner to kill his victims mercifully with a single blow, rather than torturing them. The executioner follows his advice, and the bhikkhu incurs a parajika. This judgment indicates should not involve himself in matters of this sort, no matter how humane his intentions. Ac the Vinita Vatthu, if the executioner says that he will not follow the bhikkhu's advice and th victims as he pleases, the bhikkhu incurs no penalty. The Commentary adds that if the e tries to follow the bhikkhu's advice and yet needs more than one blow to do the job, the bh thullaccaya. As we have mentioned, though, the best course is to leave matters of this s laity. b) //Assisting a murderer or suicide.// A bhikkhu may commit an offense not onl using any of the six above-mentioned means of taking life, but also by intentionally assistin who uses any of them to commit a murder or a suicide. This is how the Vibhanga explain "search for an assassin" in the rule. The act of assisting includes not only finding an assas procuring weapons for the would-be murderer or suicide. c) //Describing the advanta dying//. This, the third type of act covered by this rule, can include berating a sick person ( you keep hanging on to life like this? Don't you realize what a burden you are to others?") telling a person of the miseries of life or the bliss of dying and going to heaven in such a he/she might feel inspired to commit suicide or simply pine away to death. The Vibhanga r statements fulfill this factor whether delivered by gesture, by voice, by writing, or by mea messenger d) //Inciting a person to die//, the fourth type of act, covers: -- Recommending suicide. This includes not only telling a person to commit suicide, but also whether requested or not -- to a would-be suicide on the best ways to commit the act. Telling a person to go to a dangerous place where he/she might die of the dangers. a terrible sight, sound, etc. to frighten a person to death, or a beautiful, "heart-stirring" one attract a person who will then pine away to death when it fades. //Command//. Giving or recommendation to get another person to perform any of these last three types of actio assisting a murder or suicide, describing the advantages of dying, or inciting another perso would also fulfill the factor of effort under this rule. //Expressing a wish//. According t the Vibhanga, a bhikkhu who expresses an idle wish that so-and-so be murdered would in whether or not he was overheard. If, however, the bhikkhu's purpose in expressing the wis listener take him up on it and commit the murder, his action would come under the catego "command," mentioned above. //Inaction// does not fulfill the factor of effort here. Thus bhikkhu sits idle when seeing a flood sweep a person down-stream, he commits no offens his feelings about the person's death -- even if the person then drowns. Recommending th person sit idle as well would also not fulfill this factor, because the category of "command" only the act of inciting the listener to do any of the four actions that would fulfill the factor effort under this rule. Result. If a bhikkhu fulfills the factor of effort with the intention of causing a person's death, and the person dies as a result, he incurs a parajika. This hol person does not die immediately, but succumbs later, say, to complications arising from by the bhikkhu. If the person does not die, but experiences pain or injury as a result of the efforts, the penalty is a thullaccaya. If the bhikkhu's efforts result in neither pain nor deat penalty is a dukkata for each separate action leading up to them. If a bhikkhu intend to injure the victim or cause him/her pain, and yet the victim dies as a result of the bhikkhu the case is treated under Pacittiya 74. There is an apparent contradiction in the Vinit concerning the penalty for a bhikkhu who tries to kill one person but ends up killing anot In one passage, it says that a bhikkhu who means to kill X but kills Y instead incurs a para another passage, it tells of a bhikkhu who gives medicine to a woman who wants to com near the end of a full-term pregnancy. The woman takes the medicine but, instead of the f the woman dies and the infant survives. In this case, the bhikkhu incurs a thullaccaya, pr the pain he caused the infant. The Commentary tries to resolve this contradiction with illustration: A bhikkhu with a grudge against A decides to ambush him. He sees B coming mistaking him for A, shoots him dead on the spot. Since his intention was to kill the person aiming at, he incurs a parajika. We can call this a case of mistaken identity. In cases of thi whether the "right" or the "wrong" person dies is of no consequence to the offense. If, the bhikkhu is a poor shot, takes aim at B but misses him, and inadvertently kills C instead incur a parajika, for he did not intend to kill C during any part of his action. His only pena are the dukkatas he incurs while preparing for B's murder. If a bhikkhu means to cau death of any member of a group, then when any member of the group dies as a result of h incurs a parajika. Caring for the terminally ill. Some of the most highly charged issue involving this training rule concern the duties of a bhikkhu acting as nurse, and his accoun the event that his patient dies. Not a few controversies have arisen in the past when high teachers have died after an illness, for there is a tendency to blame the nurse either for the death or for being so intrusive in his care that he does not let the teacher die in peace. R developments in modern medicine -- such as professionally mandated care, life-support m transplants -- have further complicated the issue of exactly how far the nurse's accounta Fortunately, the texts are quite clear on these issues -- applying rules where rules are calle and guidelines where rules would be inappropriate -- but to understand their rationale it is have some historical perspective on the subject. Medical care in the time of the Budd primarily the responsibility of the ill person's family. Subsidized health care did not exist, families had a very real sense of the exigencies -- their time, their resources, the wishes o patient, and the likelihood of his recovery -- that might force them to provide less than stat care, even for a loved one. At the same time, the current Western system whereby one sty care can establish itself as "standard" -- and can enlist the help of the law to discredit alter styles of treatment as bogus -- also did not exist. Patients and their families had a wide a of treatments to choose from and, given the means to make a choice, might select a partic any number of reasons: belief in the theory that lay behind it, trust in a particular doctor, with the means of treatment, etc. As a result, there was none of the belief, current in so circles, that outside professionals have the right to monopolize medical care or to impose t of treatment on an unwilling patient or his family. The choice of treatment was an in-fami

If a patient balked at a particular doctor's treatment, the family was free to decide whether wishes and forego the treatment, or to force the treatment on him for his own good. On t if the patient's condition reached the point where the family felt that the doctor's treatment unaffordable, or otherwise no longer appropriate, it could dismiss the doctor and attempt its own, doing whatever was within its ability to offer moral support to the patient and alle pain and discomfort while waiting for factors beyond its control -- such as the patient's pres kamma -- to decide the outcome of the disease. The principal ethical constraints on t arrangement, ancient medical textbooks show, were that doctors should not use their kn aggravate or prolong illness -- to do so would count as malpractice -- and that no one shou patient to treatment designed to bring on death faster than it would if the disease were s allowed to run its course: To defy this principle would count as murder. This, in brief, the accepted pattern for medical care in the Buddha's time. The only change the Buddha i pattern was to point out to the bhikkhus that, as they had no family to care for them, they take on the role of family for one another. If a bhikkhu falls ill, it is automatically the duty of mentor, his students (if he has any), or fellow students of his mentor to care for him. The are to stay with the patient until he either recovers or dies -- although the Commentary to M points out that they may leave him if they put him into the care of another. If a bhikkhu hap ill in a place where none of these people are available, it is the duty of the Community in th location to care for him. If it doesn't care for him, all the members of that Community incur (MV.VIII.26.3-4). The Mahavagga contains guidelines for the ill bhikkhu and his nurs follow, so that the ill bhikkhu will be easy to care for, and the nurses will be chosen from ar best suited to the task. The ill bhikkhu ideally avoids any food, medicine, or activity that v aggravate his disease; he knows moderation in the things that will be conducive to his rec his medicine; he reports to the nurse his condition as it actually is; and does his best to e pain (Mv.VIII.26.5). The nurse ideally is one who knows how to prepare the proper m knows what is conducive and unconducive to the patient's recovery; provides the patient w conducive and removes what is not; tends the patient out of kindness, and not from hope o not squeamish about cleaning up urine, excrement, sweat, or vomit; and is competent at e patient at the appropriate times with a talk on Dhamma (Mv.VIII.26.5). There is no of a patient who does not live up to the ideal guidelines for his behavior; and none for a bhikk though lacking any of the ideal qualities of nurse, is pressed into a position where he must sick. The only penalties mentioned in the Khandhakas are the dukkatas for those who neg for the ill when they are duty-bound to do so or who abandon an ill person they are caring recovers or dies. The Vinita Vatthu to this rule contains only two basic cases in which bhikkhu acting as a nurse for an ill friend incurs a parajika: one in which the friend dies afte bhikkhu gives him a specific treatment with the purpose of killing him off; and one in whic bhikkhu, feeling pity for a friend in severe pain, praises the pleasures that await him after d that he will give up the will to live and speed up his death: The friend does so and dies as of the nurse's instigation. Aside from the parajikas for such cases of out-and-out murde action and intent, and the dukkatas for leaving the patient helpless, the Canon imposes no bhikkhu acting as nurse who provides his patient with less than ideal care. Instead, withi parameters of those penalties, it offers guidelines for ideal behavior, together with the enc the Buddha's remark that, "He who would tend to me should tend to the sick." (Mv.VIII.2 it leaves it up to the bhikkhu to exercise his best judgment, in light of the Dhamma, as to w fitting in his individual case. A moment's reflection will suggest some obvious reasons If a particular standard of care were mandated, it would give rise to countless questions from the many uncontrollable variables that can surround an illness, questions that rules a ill-suited to answer: How much must one's resources be depleted before one can say that of care is unaffordable? How should limited resources be allocated when several bhikkhus the same time? What should one do if the patient says that he does not want to undergo a doctor is trying to press on him? If one follows the patient's request is he assisting a suic Should one follow the doctor's orders and thus risk damaging the patient's psychological s of questions could go on, but it is obvious from even these examples that this is an area for rules than for guidelines that can be adapted to suit particular circumstances. Decision be based on a reasoned and compassionate assessment of the particular situation, rath of hard and fast penalties and rules. The commentaries' treatment of the issue of a nu accountability follows the same general pattern as the Canon's, but we find Buddhaghosa' probably following the ancient commentaries -- bringing a little more precision to the discu introducing a distinction between //timely// and //untimely// death that the Commentary app Vinita Vatthu cases. The distinction comes from Ayurveda -- ancient Indian medical scienc Buddhaghosa expresses it in purely Buddhist terms, most fully in the Visuddhi Magga: death// comes about with the exhaustion of merit, with the exhaustion of life potential (// with both. //Untimely death// comes about through kamma that interrupts [other, life-producing,] kamma. "//Death through exhaustion of merit//, here, refers to the death that comes about entirely through the finished ripening of [former] rebirth-producin when favorable conditions for prolonging the continuity of the life potential may still present. //Death through exhaustion of life potential// refers to the death that comes through the exhaustion of the natural life potential of human beings, which amounts to c years.... "//Untimely death// refers to the death of those whose continuity is interrupted by kamma capable of causing them to fall from their place [on a particular le at that very moment...or for the death of those whose continuity is interrupted by att with weapons, etc., due to previous kamma. All these are included under the [term] //interruption of the life faculty....//" (VIII.2-3) As we saw above, the Commentary's discu //cutting off the life faculty// refers specifically to instances where one is bringing about a untimely death. When it applies this point to the case of the bhikkhu inciting his patient to g will to live, it notes that the bhikkhu incurs a parajika if his act causes the patient to cut s his/her life even by a moment through such things as refusing to eat, etc. However, if the p acting on the bhikkhu's comments, simply dies in line with his/her natural life potential an continuity, there is no offense. It is important to note that the Commentary does not at a use the distinction of timely and untimely death to make a case that mere negligence coul of an untimely demise. Instead, it restricts its use of "untimely death" to cases where the n care causes the patient to die earlier than he would have in the absence of care. Fro point of view it is easy to see that the decision not to have the patient undergo a particular death-delaying treatment would not count as an offense, for such a decision would do noth up the approach of a timely death. In terms of the factor of effort under this rule, it would c inaction and thus not fulfill the factor. Thus if a bhikkhu sees that his patient is dying and reasons of the expense, the trauma, or the patient's own wishes -- opts against having him operation that would merely delay death, there is no grounds for offense. In situation the choice is not between action and inaction, but between different courses of action, the distinction is helpful in gauging one's //perceptions// and //intentions// when choosing amo treatments. If a bhikkhu caring for a terminally ill patient opts for an alternative, such as a pain-killer, in hopes that it will weaken the patient's system and make him die faster than h otherwise, his aim would fulfill the factor of intention under this rule. But if he is presente a number of alternatives and believes that none of them would make the patient die before any treatment, he may choose any of them because neither the perception nor the inten on an untimely death would enter into his decision. Even if it turns out later that the treatm instrumental in bringing on the patient's death, the nurse would still be without blame.

seem that the Vinaya is leaving the patient in an unprotected position here, but we must re this is an area where the Dhamma takes precedence over the Vinaya in providing the nu guidance. Even a nodding acquaintance with the principle of kamma should be enough to from being callous in his decisions. Even a modicum of maturity will make him realize that nurse provides an excellent opportunity to gain insight into illness as a natural part of life, a training in such valuable qualities as compassion, patience, mindfulness, strength, sacrif sensitivity to the needs of others. As we noted in the Introduction, rules and standards different purposes and are suited to different situations. The authors of the texts, after usin against murderous malpractice and abandonment to delimit this area, were wise to sketc remaining territory with standards aimed at inspiring the best behavior in the nurse and his appealing to their higher side. Special cases. The Vinita Vatthu includes three specia that touch on this rule but inspired the Buddha to formulate separate rules to deal specifi them: A bhikkhu, for the fun of it, throws a stone from a precipice and accidentally kil person standing below -- no penalty for the death, but a dukkata for throwing a stone from fun. A bhikkhu, hoping to commit suicide, throws himself over a cliff. Instead of dying lands on and kills a hapless basket-maker standing at the foot of the cliff -- again, no offen death, but a dukkata for throwing oneself from a high place. A bhikkhu, sitting down h chair without first checking it carefully, kills a child lying in the chair and covered with a b
-- again, no penalty for the death, but a dukkata for sitting down without first checking care Summary: Intentionally bringing about the untimely death of a human being, even if i fetus, is a parajika offense. * * * 4. Should any bhikkhu, without direct knowledge, boast of a superior human state, a truly noble knowle as present in himself, saying, "Thus do I know; thus do I see," such that regardless whether or not he is cross-examined on a later occasion, he -- being remorseful and des purification -- might say, "Friends, not knowing, I said I know; not seeing, I said I see -- falsely, idly," unless it was from over-estimation, he also is defeated and no longer i communion. All conscious lies are forbidden by the first pacittiya rule, but knowingly to false claim to a superior human state is the most heinous lie a bhikkhu can tell, and so her its own rule and the heaviest possible penalty. The seriousness with which the Budd a breach of this training rule is indicated by his statements to the original instigators:
"You misguided men, how can you for the sake of your stomachs speak praise of one ano states to householders? It would be better for you that your bellies be slashed open with a butcher's knife than that you should for the sake of your stomachs speak praise of one and human states to householders. Why is that? For //that// reason you would undergo death suffering, but you would not on that account, at the break-up of the body, after death, fall in deprivation, the bad bourn, the abyss, purgatory. But for //this// reason you would, at the of the body, after death, fall into deprivation, the bad bourn, the abyss, purgatory....Bhikkh world with its gods, maras, and brahmas, its generations with priests and contemplatives men, this is the ultimate great thief: he who claims an unfactual, non-existent superior hum is that? You have consumed the nation's almsfood through theft." Superior human st Vibhanga lists a large number of superior human states that the Commentary classifies int categories: //mahaggata dhamma//, those related to the practice of meditative absorption; dhamma//, those related to the absolute eradication of the mental fetters that bind the min cycle of rebirth. a. Meditative absorption -- the Pali term is //jhana// -- is of two major sorts: absorption in a physical object or sensation (//rupa jhana//) and absorption in a non-object or sensation (//arupa jhana//). Both contain four levels and are described in the di follows: "The bhikkhu -- quite withdrawn from sensual pleasure, withdrawn from u (mental) qualities -- enters and remains in the //first jhana//: rapture and pleasure born from withdrawal, accompanied by directed thought and evaluation. He permeates and p and fills this very body with the rapture and pleasure born from withdrawal....

"And furthermore, with the stilling of directed thought and evaluation, he enters and rem //second jhana//: rapture and pleasure born of composure, unity of awareness free directed thought and evaluation -- internal assurance. He permeates and pervades, suff this very body with the rapture and pleasure born of composure.... "And furthermore, with the fading of rapture, he remains in equanimity, mindful and fully awar physically sensitive of pleasure. He enters and remains in the //third jhana//, and of Noble Ones declare, 'Equanimous and mindful, he has a pleasurable abiding.' He perm pervades, suffuses and fills this very body with the pleasure divested of rapture....
"And furthermore, with the abandoning of pleasure and pain -- as with the earlier disapp elation and distress -- he enters and remains in the //fourth jhana//: purity of equani and mindfulness, neither pleasure nor pain. He sits permeating the body with a pure, br so that nothing of his entire body is unpervaded by pure, bright awareness." (D.2; M The four levels of arupa jhana are based on the fourth level of rupa jhana. "With complete transcending of perceptions of (physical) form, and the passing away of perce resistance, and not heeding perceptions of diversity, thinking, 'Infinite space,' one e and remains in the sphere of the infinitude of space.... "With the complete transcending of the sphere of the infinitude of space, thinking, 'Infinite consciousness,' o enters and remains in the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness.... "With the complete transcending of the sphere of the infinitude of consciousness, thinking, 'There one enters and remains in the sphere of nothingness.... "With the complete tran of the sphere of nothingness, one enters and remains in the sphere of neither perce non-perception." (D.15) The Vibhanga mentions only the four rupa jhanas in its list of human states, but as the four arupa jhanas are based on the fourth rupa jhana, the Comm them in the list as well. In addition to these states of absorption themselves, the catego mahaggata dhamma also includes the intuitive powers (//abhinna//) that can arise from the //iddhividhi// -- the ability to manifest one or more images of oneself, to appear in a differen form, to create a "mind-made" (astral) body, to pass through solid matter, walk on water, etc. //dibba-sota// -- clairaudience, enabling one to hear sounds both celestial and hu and near. //cetopariya-nana// -- the ability to read the minds of other living beings.

//dibba-cakkhu// -- clairvoyance, the ability to see beings in other realms of existence, an particular to see them pass from death in one level to rebirth in another.
//pubbe-nivasanussati-nana// -- the ability to remember previous lives. There are oth abilities that are not based on jhana and for this reason do not count as mahaggata dham divination, giving protective charms, casting malevolent spells, psychic healing, practicin medium, etc. The discourses list these and other similar activities as //tiracchana-vijja//, be knowledge, which -- as the name implies -- is far removed from superior human states.
//Lokuttara dhamma//, in its fullest sense, refers to the series of mental states, called paths fruitions, in which the fetters that bind the mind to the cycle of rebirth are eradicated; and ultimate state of //nibbana//, or liberation. The paths and fruitions occur in four pairs. In first pair, the path to and fruition of stream-entry, three fetters are abandoned: self-identi (//sakkaya-ditthi//), uncertainty (//vicikiccha//), and attachment to precepts and practices (//silabbata-paramasa//). In the second pair, the path to and fruition of once-returning, two fetters -- sensual passion (//kama-raga//) and irritation (//patigha//) are weakened, only to abandoned fully in the third pair, the path to and fruition of non-returning. In the fourth pair to and fruition of arahantship, a final set of five additional fetters is abandoned: //rupa-rag passion for physical phenomena (e.g., the objects of rupa jhana); //arupa-raga// -- passion non-physical phenomena (e.g., the objects of arupa jhana); //mana// -- conceit; //uddhacca restlessness; and //avijja// -- unawareness. With the cutting of this last set of fetters, all bo with the cycle of rebirth are cut for good, and the mind attains nibbana. The term //nib literally means extinguishing, like a fire. The commentarial literature (Vism.VIII,247), derive etymologically from //nir//, a negative prefix, and //vana//, binding. Thus it means unbindi liberation. In the physics of the Buddha's time, fire as it burned was said to be in a state of agitation, dependence, attachment, and entrapment -- both clinging to and being trapped b Extinguished, it was said to become calm, independent, and unattached. It let go of its s was released. In the mind's extinguishing, or unbinding, a parallel change occurs. Ni one; the paths and their fruitions, eight. Thus there are nine lokuttara dhammas. Asid jhana, the other states mentioned in the Vibhanga -- such as the destruction of the mental (//asava//), the signless emancipation, the desireless emancipation, the emptiness eman so forth -- are either synonymous with these transcendent states or -- as in the case of the Awakening (//bodhi-pakkhiya-dhamma//) -- conjoined with them. The full offense und has five factors: 1) //Effort//: One makes a direct claim 2) //Object//: to a superior hum state 3) //Perception//: that one perceives as not present in oneself. 4) //Intention//: One intention is to misrepresent the truth. 5) //Result//: One's listener understands what one is Effort. To make a direct claim means to say outright that one has attained a superio state, saying such things as, "I have attained the first jhana," "I have seen the heavenly re know my previous lifetimes," etc. Outright claims, here, include not only spoken statement written statements and physical gestures. An example of a claim by gesture occurs in the group of bhikkhus make an agreement that the first to set out from their dwelling would, by gesture, be known to the rest as an arahant. One of the group, who was not an arahant bu regarded as one, set out first from the dwelling and was soon known to the rest as an ex-b having committed a parajika. //Indirect claims//. An indirect claim to a superior human s is not grounds for a parajika. If it is a deliberate lie, it is at most grounds for a thullaccaya. claims, which contain an uncertainty in their wording even though the listener may feel no in understanding their import, may be uncertain in one of two ways: uncertain as to the pe uncertain as to the attainment. The Vinita Vatthu contains several examples of the fi a bhikkhu states that whoever lives in a particular dwelling is an arahant, the dwelling be where he lives; a bhikkhu saying that all the disciples of his teacher are arahants, and so f There is only one example in the Vinita Vatthu of a bhikkhu who makes a claim "uncerta attainment": a sick bhikkhu, meaning to deceive the fellow bhikkhus nursing him, says to t is no way that this sickness could be endured by an ordinary person (//puthujjana//)." According to the Commentary, if the person to whom such indirect remarks are directed u the penalty for the speaker is a thullaccaya. If he/she does not understand them, the pena dukkata. The factor of understanding is covered in the section on "Result," below. //C about other people//. The original instigators of this rule, instead of each making claims ab attainments, made false claims about one another's attainments. This case is not mentio Vibhanga or the commentaries and so is not an offense under this rule, but it would come 1. Perception. Claiming a superior human state that one mistakenly thinks one has a no offense under this rule, although if addressed to a lay person the claim would come un The same holds for a claim that is actually true. If, however, a bhikkhu has attained a superior human state without realizing it and then claims to have attained the state, thinkin statement to be a lie, he commits the full offense under this rule. Intention. To fall un this rule, a claim to have attained any of these superior human states must be a deliberate "Deliberate lying," according to the Commentary, requires the arising of the intention to r the truth just prior to, and motivating, the actual statement. When the intention to misrepre truth is absent, the statement does not come under this rule. Examples would include -- meaning to say one thing, but accidentally saying another that comes out as a claim to human state; and innocently making a statement that someone else misconstrues claim to a superior human state. Neither of these cases would involve an offense. //Equivocation//. It is not uncommon for a bhikkhu to be put on the spot by lay people askin point-blank about his attainments, and for him to respond by equivocating. The Vinita Vatt number of examples of this sort. In one of them, the bhikkhu responds by saying, "I have attainable through the exertion of effort," which of course could mean almost anything. B purpose was simply to avoid the question, he incurred no penalty. Had he meant the state indirect claim, he would have incurred a thullaccaya. Result. The Vibhanga, in discus obscure case, states that when the listener understands a deliberate lie directly claiming a human state, the bhikkhu making the claim incurs a parajika. If the listener does not under bhikkhu incurs a thullaccaya. The Vibhanga mentions this condition only in the context o lie -- one in which the speaker intends to lie saying one thing but actually states another lie Commentary generalizes from this case to say that this condition applies to //all// cases this rule. Its explanations run as follows: //Understanding//, here, means simply that t listener hears the statement clearly enough to know that it is a claim. Whether he/she un names for the states claimed -- jhana, clairvoyance, clairaudience, or whatever -- is not an

The same is true of whether he/she believes the statement to be true or false. If the liste the remarks are directed does not understand them, but a passer-by does, the penalty is s
If the listener does not hear the bhikkhu clearly enough to catch all he says, the pena thullaccaya. If the listener at first has some doubt as to what the bhikkhu said, but later rea it was a claim to a superior human state, the offense is still a thullaccaya. If the listener d hear the bhikkhu at all, the offense is a dukkata. As stated above, if a bhikkhu states deliberate lie in the form of an indirect claim to a superior human state, he incurs a thulla his listener understands that it is a claim, and a dukkata if not. According to the Vibh there is a dukkata for a bhikkhu sitting in solitude who states a deliberate lie directly claimi superior human state, and another dukkata if he is overheard by a devata. The Commenta same penalty applies if he is overheard by a non-human being or a common animal. entail a parajika, the claim to a superior human state must be a direct claim, a deliberate li be heard and quickly understood by another human being//. Special cases in the Vibh A bhikkhu, intending to make a false claim for one superior human state, muddles his wo another: a parajika. The Commentary explains this by noting that all the factors necessary parajika offense are present: The bhikkhu makes a claim based on the intention to tell a de and the listener understands the claim. The fact that the intended claim and actual claim superior human states is crucial; the fact that they are different states is not. In a ser of cases, a person speaking with exaggerated faith or politeness addresses bhikkhus of no attainments as if they were arahants ("May the arahants come....May the arahants be se puts them in a quandary, and so they ask the Buddha how to behave in such a situation. H is no offense in accepting invitations such as these from a "speaker with faith" -- the poin that there is no offense in coming, sitting, etc., as long as the intention is just to accept the invitation and not to imply a claim. A bhikkhu, hoping that people will esteem him, en special practices -- the example given in the Vinita Vatthu is living in the jungle, but from can extrapolate to other practices such as long periods of sitting, any of the ascetic (//dhut practices, vegetarianism, etc., followed so as to impress other people. The penalty: a dukk Summary: Deliberately lying to another person that one has attained a superior human parajika offense. * * * A bhikkhu who violates any of these four parajika rules is automatically no longer a bhikkhu. There is no need for him to a formal ceremony of disrobing, for the act of violating the rule is an act of disrobing in anc Even if he continues to pretend to be a bhikkhu, he does not really count as one; as soon are known he must be expelled from the Sangha. He can never again properly ordain as a life. If he tries to ordain in a Community that does not know of his offense, his ordination count, and he must be expelled as soon as the truth is found out. The Commentary, states that such an offender may "go forth" as a novice if he wants to, although it is up to t individual Community to consider the circumstances of his offense to decide whether or no accept him. Ignorance of these rules does not exempt an offender from the penalty, the Buddha ordered that they be taught to each new bhikkhu as soon as possible after ord Because the rules cover a number of cases that are legal in presentday society (e.g., rec abortion, proving to oneself how supple one has become through yoga by inserting one's mouth) or that are common practice among people who see nothing wrong with flirting w the law (e.g., copying computer software for a friend, hiding an article subject to customs d entering a country), it is especially important to inform each new bhikkhu of the rules' full implications right from the very start. If a bhikkhu suspects that he has committed a pa should immediately inform a senior bhikkhu well-versed in the rules. The way the senior handle the case is well-illustrated by a incident reported in the Commentary to Parajika 2: together with an enormous crowd came to worship the Great Stupa at a certain monaster was a visiting bhikkhu from the South who was carrying an expensive roll of cloth. The cor the event was so great that the bhikkhu dropped the cloth, was unable to retrieve it and so for lost. One of the resident bhikkhus happened to come across it and, desiring to steal i put it away before the owner might see it. Eventually, of course, he became tormented by the resident Vinaya expert to admit a parajika and disrobe. The Vinaya expert, thoug let him disrobe until he had found the owner of the cloth and inquired about it more fully.

Eventually, after a long search, he was able to track down the original owner at a monaste distant South, who told him that at the time of the theft he had given the cloth up for lost an abandoned all mental attachment for it. Thus, as the cloth was ownerless, the resident bhi incurred not a parajika, but simply some dukkatas for the preliminary efforts with intention steal. This example shows several things: the great thoroughness with which a senio should investigate a possible parajika, the compassion he should show to the offender, an the offender should be given the benefit of the doubt wherever possible: He is innocent u facts prove him guilty. Finally, the Commentary concludes its discussion of the parajika noticing that there are altogether 24, actual and virtual, in the Vinaya. They are: The fo bhikkhus. The four additional parajikas for bhikkhunis. The eleven disqualified typ who should not be ordained in the first place. If they happen to be ordained, their ordinatio not count, and once they are found out they must be expelled for life (Mv.I.61-68). Thus th parajikas. They are -- a pandaka (essentially, a eunuch or a person born neuter -- see Sanghadisesa 2), a "non-human" being, such as a naga or yakkha, that can assume a hermaphrodite, a person who poses as a bhikkhu without having been ordained, a bh ordained in another sect or religion without first giving up his status as a bhikkhu; a p who has murdered his father, a person who has murdered his mother, a person who ha arahant, a person who has sexually violated a bhikkhuni, a person who has injured a B point of causing him to bleed, a person who has caused a schism in the Sangha.

addition to the above actual and virtual parajikas, the Commentary gives separate listing t //anulomika// (derived) parajikas, which refer to four cases included under Parajika 1: the with a supple back who sticks his penis in his mouth, the bhikkhu with a long penis who ins his anus, the bhikkhu who performs oral intercourse with someone else, and the bhikkhu anal intercourse. The 24th Parajika refers to the case of a bhikkhuni who, taking up t of a housewife, goes to live in a lay person's household. * * * * * * *

CHAPTER FIVE

Sanghadisesa

~~~~~~~~~~~~ This term means "involving the Community in the initial (//adi//) and subsequent (//sesa//) acts." It refers to the fact that the Community is the agent that initially the bhikkhu who breaks any of the rules in this category to undergo the penalty (of //mar penance, and //parivasa//, probation), subsequently reimposes the penalty if he does not p out, and finally lifts the penalty when he does. There are thirteen training rules here, the nine entailing a sanghadisesa immediately on transgression, the last four only after the off rebuked three times as a formal act of the Community. 1.Intentional discharge of except while dreaming, entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. T story to this rule is as follows: "Now at that time Ven. Seyyasaka was leading the celib life dissatisfied. Because of this, he was thin, wretched, unattractive, and jaundiced, his covered with veins. Ven. Udayin saw that Ven. Seyyasaka was thin...his body cove veins; and seeing him, said to him, 'Seyyasaka, my friend, why are you thin...your body veins? Could it be that you're leading the celibate life dissatisfied?' "'Yes, friend.' "'In that case, eat as you like and sleep as you like and bathe as you like and having eaten, slept, and bathed as you like, when dissatisfaction arises and lust ass mind, emit semen making do with your hand.' "'But is it okay to do that?' "'Of course. I do it myself.' "So then Ven. Seyyasaka ate as he liked and slept as he liked...and when dissatisfaction arose and lust assailed his mind, he would emit semen his hand. Then it wasn't long before he became attractive, with rounded features, a complexion, and very bright skin. So the bhikkhus who were his friends said to him, 'Bef Seyyasaka, you were thin...your body covered with veins. But now you are attractive features, a clear complexion, and very bright skin. Could it be that you're taking me "'No, I'm not taking medicine, my friends. I just eat as like and sleep as I like...a when dissatisfaction arises and lust assails my mind, I emit semen making do with my "'But do you emit semen making do with the same hand you use to eat the gifts o faithful?' "'Yes, my friends.' "So the bhikkhus...were offended and annoyed a spread it about, 'How can this Ven. Seyyasaka emit semen making do with the sam to eat the gifts of the faithful?'" This rule, in its outline form, is one of the simplest to explain. In its details, though, it is one of the most complex, not only because subject is a sensitive matter, but also because the Commentary deviates somewhat from t explanations of two of the three factors that constitute the full offense. The three fact are result, intention, and effort: Emission of semen caused by an intentional effort. When a factors are present, the offense is a sanghadisesa. If the last two -- intention and effort -- present, the offense is a thullaccaya. Any single factor or any other combination of two fac intention and result without making a physical effort, or effort and result without intention not grounds for an offense. It may seem strange to list the factor of result first, but I wa to explain it first partly because, in understanding the types of intention and effort covered rule, it is necessary to know what they are aimed at, and also because result is the one fac the Vibhanga and Commentary are in basic agreement. Result. The Commentary disc of semen as it was understood at the time, and in passing touches on the question of wh //semen// refers to the clear liquid produced in small quantities by the prostrate and Coope prior to ejaculation, or to the seminal fluid released at orgasm (in its words, "having made body shake, it is released and descends into the urinary tract.") It concludes that the latter is meant here. As for the Vibhanga, it devotes long passages to the various colors an qualities that semen can come in, only to conclude that the color and quality are irrelevant offense. This suggests that a bhikkhu who has had a vasectomy can still commit an offens rule, since he can still discharge the various components that go into seminal fluid -- minus sperm -- at orgasm. //Discharge//, according to the Vibhanga, refers to the point in ti the semen "falls from its base." The Commentary explains this as the point when the seme urinary tract, because from that point on the process is irreversible. Thus if the process c stimulation has reached this point, the factor of result has been fulfilled, even if one tries to the semen from leaving the body by pinching the end of one's penis. Intention. The V defines //intentionally// as "having made the decision knowingly, consciously, and purpose According to the Commentary, "having made the decision" refers to the moment when o indecisiveness by taking an act. (These are the same terms it uses to explain the same ph Parajika 3 and several other rules. The meaning is that one has definitely made up one's with the act and is not simply toying with the idea.) //Knowingly// means that one knows tha making an exertion." //Consciously// means that one is aware that one's efforts are bring emission of semen. //Purposefully// means that one's purpose is to enjoy the bringing abou emission. This last point is where the Commentary deviates from the Vibhanga's disc the factor of intention. The Vibhanga, throughout its analysis, expresses the factor of purpo "aiming at causing an emission," and it lists ten possible reasons for wanting to bring the about: for the sake of health, for the sake of pleasure, for the sake of a medicine for the sake of a gift (to insects, says the Commentary), for the sake of merit, for the s sacrifice, for the sake of heaven, for the sake of seed (to produce a child -- a bhikkhu w semen to be used in artificial insemination would fit in this category), for the sake investigating (to see what color it will be -- ancient medicine sometimes used this as a w diagnosing disease), or for the sake of fun. Each of these reasons, the Vibhanga fulfills the factor of intention here. Thus for the Commentary to limit the question of "purp strictly to the enjoyment of the act of bringing about an emission (numbers 2 and 10 in the list) has no basis in the Canon. And so the factor of intention under this rule is fulfilled wh wants to cause an emission of semen, for no matter what reason. Given the way //int defined, there is no offense for a bhikkhu who brings on an emission of semen --
~~~~~~~~~~~~

//accidentally// -- e.g., toying with his penis simply for the pleasure of the contact, when suddenly and unexpectedly goes off; //not knowing that he is making an effort// -- when he is dreaming or in a semi-conscious state before fully waking up from sleep //not conscious that his efforts are bringing about an emission of semen// -- e.g., when h engrossed in applying medicine to a sore on his penis that he doesn't realize that he is on an ejaculation; or when his efforts are //motivated by a purpose other than that causing an emission// -- e.g., when he wakes up, finds that he is about to have a sponta ejaculation, and grabs hold of his penis to keep the semen from soiling his robes or bed

Effort. The Vibhanga defines four types of effort that fulfill this factor: A bhikkhu causes emission making an effort (1) at an internal object, (2) at an external object, (3) at both an and an external object, or (4) by shaking his pelvis in the air. It then goes on to explain the The internal object is one's own living body. External objects can either be animate or inan objects. The third type of effort involves a combination of the first two, and the fourth cover when one makes one's penis erect ("workable") by making an effort in the air. The e general nature of these definitions gives the impression that the compilers of the Vibhanga cover every imaginable type of bodily effort aimed at arousing oneself sexually, and this is borne out by the wide variety of cases covered in the Vinita Vatthu. They include, amon bhikkhu who squeezes his penis with his fist, one who rubs his penis with his thumb, one w penis against his bed, one who inserts his penis into sand, one who bathes against the cu stream, one who rubs his preceptor's back in the bathing room, one who gets an erection of his thighs and robes while walking along, one who has his belly heated in the bathing ro who stretches his body. In each of these cases, if the bhikkhu aims at and succeeds in cau emission, he incurs a sanghadisesa. The Vinita Vatthu also includes a case in which desiring to cause an emission, orders a novice to take hold of his (the bhikkhu's) penis. emission and a sanghadisesa to boot, which shows that getting someone else to make the fulfills the factor of effort here. In discussing the factor of effort, though, the Commenta makes a slight change in the Vibhanga's definition -- that one makes an effort //with// or one's own body, etc., rather than //at// one's own body, etc. -- and adds an additional facto effort must be directed at one's own penis. If this is so, then a bhikkhu who succeeds in c emission by stimulating any of the erogenous zones of his body aside from his penis woul penalty. The Commentary itself actually makes this point, and the Sub-commentary secon V/Sub-commentary says that such a bhikkhu would incur a dukkata -- what it bases this op doesn't say: perhaps a misreading of the Case of the Sleeping Novice, which we will discu

At any rate, the Commentary in adding this last factor runs up against a number of case Vatthu in which the effort does not involve the penis: the bhikkhu warming his belly, the rubbing his preceptor's back, a bhikkhu having his thighs massaged, and others. The Com these cases by rewriting them, stating in most cases that the effort somehow had to invo This in itself is questionable, but when the Commentary actually contradicts the Vinita Vatt of the bhikkhu who warms his belly, saying that this sort of effort could not involve an off all, even if one aims at and succeeds in causing an emission, the commentators have mov of commenting into the realm of rewriting the rule. As stated in the Introduction, we h go on the assumption that the compilers of the Vibhanga knew the crucial factors well er what is and is not an offense, and were careful enough to include all the relevant facts wh the precedents in the Vinita Vatthu in order to show how the Buddha arrived at his judgm the Commentary's position -- adding the extra factor that the physical effort has to involve penis -- directly contradicts the Vibhanga on this point, the extra factor cannot stand. question then is why the commentators added the extra factor in the first place. An answe one of the cases in the Vinita Vatthu: the Case of the Sleeping Novice. "On that occa certain bhikkhu grabbed hold of the penis of a sleeping novice. His semen was emitted. remorseful....'Bhikkhu, there is no sanghadisesa offense. There is a dukkata offense.'" issue here is whose semen was emitted. Pali syntax, unlike English, doesn't give us a clue no rule that the pronoun in one sentence should refer to the subject of the preceding sen are many cases under Parajika 3 that follow the form, "A stone badly held by the bhikkhu s hit the bhikkhu standing below on the head. The bhikkhu died. He felt remorseful." In the is obvious from the context within the story which bhikkhu died and which one felt remorse with the sleeping novice we have to look for the context in terms of the other parts of the V

If the bhikkhu was the one who emitted semen, then perhaps there is a contradiction in Vibhanga, and the Commentary is justified in saying that the effort must involve one's peni otherwise the case would seem to fulfill the Vibhanga's general definition for the factor o
The bhikkhu is making an effort at an outside body and has an emission. Following the ge the rule, he would incur a sanghadisesa if he intended emission, and no penalty at all if h Yet the question of intention is not mentioned at all, and the bhikkhu is given a dukkata, wh an inconsistency. If, however, the novice was the one who emitted, there is no inconsistency at all: The bhikkhu gets his dukkata for making lustful bodily contact with an the discussion under Sanghadisesa 2, below), and the case is included here to show that offense under this rule concerns instances where one makes //oneself// emit semen, and n others emit. (Other than this case, there is nothing in the rule or the Vibhanga that expre this point. The rule simply mentions bringing about the emission of semen, without explicit whose. This would explain the bhikkhu's uncertainty as to whether or not he had commit sanghadisesa.) And the reason there is no mention of whether or not the bhikkhu intended because -- as it comes under another rule -- it is irrelevant to the case. Thus, since th second reading -- the novice was the one who had an emission -- does no violence to the Vibhanga, it seems to be the preferable one. So if this was the case that led the commen their extra factor, we can see that they misread it, and that the Vibhanga's original definitio factor of effort still stands: Any bodily effort made at one's own body, at another body or object, at both, or any effort made in the air -- like shaking one's pelvis or stretching one's fulfills the factor of effort here. One case that does //not// fulfill the factor of effort is when one is filled with lust and stares at the private parts of a woman or girl. In the case with this contingency, the bhikkhu emits semen, but again no mention is made of whether In any event, the Buddha lays down a separate rule, imposing a dukkata for staring lustfu private parts. This suggests that efforts with one's eyes do not count as bodily efforts un sanghadisesa, for otherwise the penalty would have been a sanghadisesa if the bhikkhu h emission, and no offense if he hadn't. And this also suggests that the dukkata under this rule holds regardless of intention or result. The Commentary adds that this dukkata applie staring lustfully at the genitals of a female animal or at the area of a fully-clothed woman where her sexual organ is, thinking, "Her sexual organ is there." At present we would impo on a bhikkhu who stares lustfully at a woman's private parts in a pornographic photograp Consent. A special contingency covered by this rule is mentioned twice in the Vinita Vatth 1: A woman approaches a bhikkhu and offers to make him emit semen by making do with bhikkhu lets her go ahead, and the Buddha says that he incurs a sanghadisesa in doing s treat the case as self-evident and offer no extra details. Thus, given the facts as we have would seem that consent under this rule can be expressed physically simply by letting the bhikkhu who acquiesces mentally when someone tries and succeeds in making him emi absolved from the full offense here even if he otherwise lies perfectly still throughout the e Derived offenses. As stated above, a bhikkhu who fulfills all three factors -- result, inter and effort -- incurs a sanghadisesa. One who fulfills only the last two -- intention and effo incurs a thullaccaya. People have sometimes asked how much of an effort is necessar thullaccaya and, in particular, whether the thullaccaya is only for cases where a bhikkhu tr the way to an emission but cannot have one for physical reasons beyond his control -- e unable to have an erection or to produce semen -- or whether it also covers cases where a out trying to cause an emission but stops short and changes his mind before the emissio The Vibhanga suggests indirectly that the penalty covers both cases when it says simp thullaccaya is for one who intends, makes the effort, but does not emit. If it had meant to penalty to those who //cannot// emit, it would have said so and would have set some kind determining when the bhikkhu passed the threshold from //does not// to //cannot// so that be no doubt as to where the realm of non-offense ends and thullaccaya begins. But it does The Commentary is even clearer on this topic when it discusses the case of a bhikkhu wh lust, grabs his penis with the purpose of causing an emission but drifts off to sleep before emission occurs. The emission does occur while he is asleep, though, and he incurs a sa efforts made during sleep do not count (see below), this shows that the factor of effort doe to go all the way to ejaculation in order to count. In discussing the case of a bhikkhu w thighs who develops an erection simply by walking along, the Commentary mentions that sensual "fever" arising in such a case, one must immediately stop walking and start conte foulness of the body so as to purify the mind before continuing on one's way. Otherwise, incur a thullaccaya simply for moving one's legs. //Sensual fever//, here, probably refers to to cause an emission, for there are several spots where the Commentary discusses bhik stimulate an erection simply for the enjoyment of the contact rather than to cause an emiss judgment is that they incur no penalty, even if an emission does inadvertently result. from the thullaccaya, there are no other derived offenses under this rule. A bhikkhu who ha ejaculation while thinking sensual thoughts but without making any physical effort to cause no penalty regardless of whether or not the idea crosses his mind that he would like to hav and whether or not he enjoys it when it occurs. However, the Commentary notes here that there is no offense involved, one should not let oneself be overcome by sensual thoughts point is borne out by the famous simile that occurred to Prince Siddhattha before his Aw that later, as Buddha, he related to a number of listeners: "'Suppose there were a we piece of timber lying on dry ground far from water, and a man were to come along with fire-stick, thinking, "I'll light a fire. I'll produce heat." Now what do you think? Would he b to light a fire and produce heat by rubbing the upper fire-stick in the wet sappy timb "'No, Master Gotama. And why not? Because the wood is wet and sappy, even lying on dry ground far from water. The man would reap nothing but weariness and disappointment.' "'So it is with any priest or contemplative who lives withdrawn f sensuality only in body, but whose desire, infatuation, urge, thirst, and fever for sensual relinquished and stilled within him: Whether or not he feels painful, racking, piercing feelings due to his striving (for Awakening), he is incapable of knowledge, vision, and unexcelled self-awakening.'" (M.36) Non-offenses. In addition to the cases already men bhikkhus who bring about emissions accidentally, not knowing that they are making an e conscious that their efforts are bringing about an emission, whose efforts are motivated by other than that of causing an emission, or who without making any physical effort have an while overcome by sensual thoughts -- there is no offense for a bhikkhu who has an ejacu a dream. In the wording of the rule, the phrase "except while dreaming" is expressed idiom that could also mean "at the end of a dream." This second possibility, though, is rule Commentary, which states that what happens in the mind while one is sleeping falls in th the Abhidhamma, but what happens after one awakens falls within the bounds of the Vina is no such thing as a misdeed performed when one is in a "non-negligible" state of mind count as an offense. ("Non-negligible," according to the Sub-commentary, means "normal. making the exception for what happens while asleep, the Buddha states that even though intention to cause an emission, it doesn't count. The Commentary goes on to say, howeve bhikkhu fully awakens in the course of a wet dream, he should lie still and be extremely ca make a move that would fulfill the factor of effort under this rule. If the process has reach point where it is irreversible, and the ejaculation occurs spontaneously, he incurs no penal of whether or not he enjoys it. And as the Commentary quotes from the Kurundi, one of t Sinhalese commentaries on which it is based, if he wakes up in the course of a wet dream his penis so that the ejaculation will not soil his robes or bedding, there is no offense. However, the case from the Commentary mentioned above -- the bhikkhu who had the de effort towards an emission before falling off to sleep -- suggests that the exemption for e during a dream does not extend to cases where both the intention and the effort occur whi conscious, for all three factors under this rule are fully present: One makes the conscious to cause an emission, makes a conscious effort aimed at causing the emission, and the er Whether or not one is conscious that it is occurring is of no account. Summary: Inten causing oneself to emit semen, or getting someone else to cause one to emit semen -- during a dream -- is a sanghadisesa offense.

* * * 2.Should any bhikkhu, overcome by lust, with altered mind, engage in bodily contact with a woman, or in holding her ha holding a lock of her hair, or caressing any of her limbs, it entails initial and subsequent of the Community. This rule has sometimes been viewed as a sign of prejudice agai But, as the origin story makes clear, the Buddha formulated the rule not because women a because bhikkhus sometimes can be. "Now at that time, Ven. Udayin was living in t His dwelling was beautiful, attractive, and appealing. The inner chamber was in the entirely surrounded by the outer rooms. The bed and chair, the pillows and bolsters wer arranged, the water for washing and drinking well placed, the surrounding area well swe came to admire it. Even a certain Brahmin together with his wife went to where Ver staying and on arrival said, 'We would like to admire your dwelling.' '"Very well t Brahmin, have a look.' Taking the key, unfastening the lock, and opening the door, he e dwelling. The Brahmin entered after Ven. Udayin; the Brahmin lady after the Brahmin. Udayin, opening some of the windows and closing others, walking around the inner coming up from behind, rubbed up against the Brahmin lady limb by limb. "Afte the Brahmin exchanged pleasantries with Ven. Udayin and left. Delighted, he burst out exclamation of joy: 'How splendid are are these Sakyan contemplatives who live in like this! And how splendid is Ven. Udayin who lives in the forest like this!' "Whe had said this, his wife said to him, 'What's so splendid about him? He rubbed up agains limb just the way you do!' "So the Brahmin was offended and annoyed and spre about: 'How shameless these bhikkhus are, how immoral and hypocritical!...How can t Udayin rub up against my wife limb by limb? It isn't possible to go with your women monastery or dwelling. If you go to a monastery or dwelling with your womenfolk, the Sa contemplatives will molest them!'" There are two ways in which a bhikkhu can come into woman: either actively (the bhikkhu makes the contact) or passively (the woman does). Vibhanga uses different terms to analyse these two possibilities, we will discuss them sep //Active contact//. The full offense for active contact here is composed of four factors: //Object//: a living woman -- "even one born on that very day, all the more an older one." not she is awake to realize what is going on is irrelevant to the offense. 2) //Perception//: The bhikkhu correctly perceives her to be a woman. 3) //Intention//: acting under the influence of lust. 4) //Effort//: He comes into physical contact with her Since the system of derived offenses based on the various permutations of these factors most complex in the Vibhanga, we will limit our discussion first to the full offense before the permutations. Of the four factors listed above, only two -- intention and effort -- re detailed explanation. Intention. The Vibhanga explains the term //overcome with lust// meaning "impassioned, desiring, a mind bound by attraction." //Altered//, it says, can refer one of three states of mind -- passion, aversion, or delusion -- but here it refers specifica passion. The Commentary adds a piece of Abhidhamma analysis at this point, sayin //altered// refers to the moment when the mind leaves its state of pure neutrality in the //bh under the influence of desire. Thus the factor of intention here can be fulfilled not only by prolonged or intense feeling of desire, but also by a momentary infatuation. The Com also tries to limit the range of passion to which this rule applies, saying that it covers only the enjoyment of contact. As we noted under Parajika 1, the ancient commentators form eleven types of lust, each mutually exclusive, and the question of which rule applies to a case depends on which type of lust provokes the bhikkhu's actions. Thus if a bhikkhu lusti intercourse touches a woman, it says, he incurs only a dukkata as a preliminary to sexual under Parajika 1. If he touches her from his lust for an ejaculation, he incurs a thullaccaya preliminary to causing an emission under Sanghadisesa 1. Only if he touches her with the to enjoy the sensation of contact does he incur a sanghadisesa under this rule. This though very neat and orderly, flies in the face of common sense and, as we noted under P contradicts the Vibhanga as well, so there is no need to adopt it. We can stick with the V this rule and say that //any// state of passion fulfills the factor of intention here. The Comm discussion, though, is useful in showing that the passion needn't be full-scale sexual lust momentary desire to enjoy the sensation of physical contact -- overwhelming enough that is enough to fulfill this factor. Effort. The Vibhanga illustrates the effort of making physical contact with a list of activities: rubbing, rubbing up against, rubbing downwards, upwards, bending down, pulling up, drawing to, pushing away, seizing hold (or pinning dov //abhinigganhana//), squeezing, grasping, or touching. The Vinita Vatthu includes a case o giving a woman a blow with his shoulder: He too incurs a sanghadisesa, which shows that list is meant to cover all similar actions as well. If a bhikkhu with lustful mind does anything sort to a living woman's body, perceiving that she is a woman, he incurs the full penalty rule. Derived offenses. Each of the factors of an offense allows a number of permuta admit for different classes of offenses. Taken together, they form a complex system. Here each factor in turn. //Object//. Assuming that the bhikkhu is acting with lustful intentio and is perceiving his object correctly, he incurs a thullaccaya for making bodily contact wit //pandaka//, a female yakkha, or a dead woman; and a dukkata for bodily contact with a m wooden doll, or a female animal. //Pandaka //is usually translated as eunuch, but eunu one of five types of pandakas recognized by the Commentary: (1) An //asitta// (literally "sprinkled one") -- a man who finds sexual fulfillment in performing fellatio on another m and bringing him to climax. (For some reason, other homosexual acts, even though they ancient India, are not included under this type nor under any of the types in this list. (2) A voyeur -- a man who finds sexual fulfillment in watching other people have sex. (3) A eunuch -- one who has been castrated. (4) A half-time pandaka -- one who is a p during the waning moon. (! -- The Sub-commentary's discussion of this point show author and his contemporaries were as unfamiliar with this type as we are today. Perha bisexuals were understood in ancient times.) (5) A neuter -- a person born without organs. According to the Commentary, the Mahavagga's statement (I.61) that panda receive ordination refers only to the last three types, and to the half-time pandaka only dur waning moon. As for female yakkhas, the Commentary says that this also includes fe There is an ancient story in Chieng Mai of a bhikkhu who was visited by a dazzling heaver one night while he was meditating alone in a cave at Wat Umong. He couldn't resist touc as soon as he did, went immediately out of his mind. The moral: This is one thullaccaya no lightly. Also from the Commentary: (1) The thullaccaya for lustfully touching female applies only to those that would be grounds for a full offense under Parajika 1, i.e., with an anal, oral, or genital orifice intact enough for one to perform the sexual act. Fem decomposed beyond that point are grounds for a dukkata here. (2) The dukkata fo touching wooden dolls (mannikins) applies also to any female form made out of other m even to any picture of a woman. (3) Female animals include female nagas and othe half-woman species as well. According to the Sub-commentary, the dukkata for lu touching female animals also applies to male animals. For some reason, male yakkha slipped out of the list. Perhaps they should come under "men." //Perception//. Misper affects the severity of the offense only in the cases of women and pandakas. A bhikkhu wl bodily contact with a woman while under the impression that she is something else -- a p or an animal -- incurs a thullaccaya. If he makes lustful bodily contact with a pandaka while the impression that the pandaka is a woman, a man, or an animal, the penalty is a dukkata men and animals, misperception has no effect on the severity of the case: Lustful bodily e.g., with a male transvestite whom one thinks to be a woman -- still results in a dukkata. //Intention//. The Vinita Vatthu contains cases of a bhikkhu who caresses his mother out o affection, one who caresses his daughter out of fatherly affection, and one who caresses h out of brotherly affection. In each case the penalty is a dukkata. The Vibhanga does n the issue of bhikkhus who intentionally make active contact with women for purposes othe affection -- e.g., helping a woman who has fallen into a raging river -- but the Commentary introduces the concept of //anamasa//, things carrying a dukkata penalty when touched; clothing belonging to a woman top the list. It then goes into great detail to tell how one sho when one's mother falls into a raging river. Under no circumstances, it says, should one her, although one may extend a rope, a board, etc., in her direction. If she happens to gral son the bhikkhu, he should not shake her off, but should simply let her hold on as he swi shore. Where the Commentary gets the concepts of //anamasa// is hard to say. Perh from the practices of the Brahmin caste, who are very careful not to touch certain things ar certain lower castes. At any rate, there is no direct basis for it in the Canon. Although the has received universal acceptance in Theravadin Communities, many highly-respected Vi made an exception right here, saying that there is nothing wrong in touching a woman whe based not on lust but on a desire to save her from danger. Even if there is an offense in do there are other places where Buddhaghosa recommends that one be willing to incur a min sake of compassion (e.g., digging a person out of a hole into which he has fallen), and the principle surely holds here. There is no offense in touching a being other than a woma one's intentions are not lustful, although tickling is an offense under Pacittiya 52.

//Effort//. Acts of lustful but indirect bodily contact with a woman one perceives to be a wor pandaka one perceives to be a woman carry the following penalties: For the woman: U body to make contact with an article connected to her body -- e.g., using one's hand to t of her dress, a rope, or stick she is holding: a thullaccaya. Using an item connecte one's body to make contact with her body -- e.g., using the edge of one's robe or a flowe holding to brush along her arm: a thullaccaya. Using an item connected with one's b contact with an item connected with her body: a dukkata. Taking an object -- such flower -- and tossing it against her body, an object connected with her body, or an objec tossed: a dukkata. Taking hold of something she is standing or sitting on -- a br a tree, a boat, etc. -- and giving it a shake: a dukkata. For the pandaka one assumes t woman, the penalty in all the above cases is a dukkata. These penalties for indirec contact have inspired the Commentary to say that if a bhikkhu makes contact with a clothe woman's body or uses a clothed portion of his body to make contact with hers, and the clo that neither his body hairs nor hers can penetrate it, the penalty is only a thullaccaya, since not making direct contact. Only if the contact is skin-to-skin, skin-to-hair, or hair-to-hair (as possible through thin cloth) does he commit the full offense. Thus a bhikkhu who fondles or buttocks of a fully-clothed woman would incur only a thullaccaya since the contact was While this contention might be true in a technical sense, two points from the Vibhanga i its compilers did not have this sort of thing in mind when they mentioned indirect contact.
(1) In its discussion of passive contact, the Vibhanga divides the factor of effort into two pa and result. The result necessary for a full offense is that the bhikkhu detects contact. The word here is "detect" (//pativijanati//): The Canon uses it to refer to cases where one perce something that may not be readily apparent, and here it seems specifically designed to c where the contact may not be skin-to-skin, but still can be felt as bodily contact. Thus if the such that the bhikkhu could feel the presence of the woman's body through his or under direct contact has been made. If this much contact is enough for a full offense under passi there is good reason to assume that it should also be enough under active contact as we

(2) The Vinita Vatthu contains the following case: "Now at that time, a certain bhikkhu woman he encountered coming in the opposite direction, was infatuated and gave l his shoulder. He was remorseful....'Bhikkhu, you have committed a sanghadisesa c As mentioned in the Introduction, we have to go on the assumption that the Vibhanga c careful enough to include all of the relevant facts in describing the cases in the Vinita Vatth if the Commentary's assertion were true -- that the amount of cloth between the bodies of the woman is important in determining an offense -- the compilers would have mentioned t least indirectly, saying, for instance, that the encounter took place in the monastery, where have had his shoulder uncovered, rather than outside of the monastery, where he should covered; or that he had neglected to cover his shoulders when leaving the monastery; or t wearing a very fine robe that allowed his hair to pass through. But they say nothing of the their silence here suggests that such questions are irrelevant. The only cases of ind contact mentioned in the Vinita Vatthu refer to contact of a much more remote sort: a bhikl of which a woman is holding another end, pulls a stick of which she is holding the other e her a playful push with his bowl. Thus in the context of this rule the Vibhanga defines " connected to the body," through which indirect contact is made, with examples: things that //holding//. The Vinaya Mukha adds things that are //hanging// from the person, like the he or a dress. In this context, contact made through cloth that the person is wearing, if the co detected, would be classed as direct. This would parallel Parajika 1, in which the questio there is anything covering either of the organs involved in intercourse is completely irreleva offense. Thus the concept of direct and indirect contact here would seem to follow gener usage: If a woman is wearing a long-sleeved shirt, for instance, grabbing her by the arm a her by the shirt-sleeve are two different things, and would receive different penalties under According to the Vibhanga, if a bhikkhu feels desire for contact with a woman and m effort but does not achieve even indirect contact, the penalty is a dukkata. //Passive c
The Vibhanga's analysis of passive contact -- when the bhikkhu is the object rather than th the contact -- deals with only a limited number of variables. Agent: either a woman th perceives to be a woman, or a pandaka he perceives to be a woman. The agent's ef the actions that fulfill the factor of act for the full offense under active contact -- rubbing, pu pushing, squeezing, etc. The bhikkhu's aim. The Vibhanga lists only two here: the de come together and the desire to escape (%). The Sub-commentary explains the first as de pleasurable feeling of contact. Effort. The bhikkhu either makes a physical effort or he
The Commentary includes under this factor even the slightest physical movements, such raising one's eyebrows, or rolling one's eyes. At present we would include such things as woman to caress one, or deliberately placing oneself in a crowded entrance to a store so t have to make contact with one as they walked past. Result. The bhikkhu either detec contact or he doesn't. The most important factor here is the bhikkhu's aim: If he desire escape from the contact, then no matter who the person making the contact is, whether or makes an effort, or whether or not he detects the contact, there is no offense. The Vinita gives an example: "Now at that time, many women, pressing up to a certain bhikk about arm-in-arm. He felt conscience-stricken.... 'Did you consent, bhikkhu?' (the B asked. 'No, Lord, I did not.' 'Then there was no offense, bhikkhu, as you di not consent.'" The Commentary mentions another example, in which a bhikkhu, no the contact, is molested by a lustful woman. He remains perfectly still, with the thought, "W realizes I am not interested, she will go away." He too commits no offense. However bhikkhu desires the contact, then the offenses are as follows: The agent is a woman bhikkhu makes an effort and detects contact: a sanghadisesa. He makes an effort but dete a dukkata. He makes no effort (e.g., he remains perfectly still as she grasps, squeezes, a body): no offense regardless of whether or not he detects contact. One exception here, the be the special case mentioned under "Consent" in the preceding rule, in which a bhikkhu l anyone at all, for that matter -- make him have an emission and he incurs a sanghadisesa rule as a result. The agent is a pandaka whom the bhikkhu perceives to be a woman, makes an effort and detects contact: a dukkata. All other possibilities -- effort but no detec detected contact but no effort, no effort and no detected contact: no offense. Cour offenses. According to the Vibhanga, if a bhikkhu has lustful bodily contact with //x// numbe in any of the ways that constitute an offense here, he commits //x// number of offenses. I if he lustfully rubs up against two women in a bus, he incurs two sanghadisesas. If, out of affection, he hugs his two daughters and three sons, he incurs two dukkatas for hugging and no penalty for hugging his sons. The Commentary adds that if he makes lustful co person //x// number of times, he commits //x// number of offenses. For instance, he hugs behind, she fights him off, and he strikes her out of lust: two sanghadisesas. The que counting sanghadisesas, though, is somewhat academic, since the penalty for multiple off identical with the penalty for one. The only difference is in the formal announcements that penalty -- e.g., when the Sangha places the offender under probation, when he informs oth of why he is under probation, etc. For more on this point, see the concluding section of this Non-offenses. There is no offense for a bhikkhu who makes contact with a woman -- //unintentionally// -- as when inadvertently running into a woman in a crowded place; //unthinkingly// -- as when a woman runs into him and, startled, he pushes her away; //unknowingly// -- as when, without lustful intent, he touches a young tomboy he thinks t or //when he doesn't give his consent// -- as in the case of the bhikkhu led around arm a crowd of women. Summary: Lustful bodily contact with a woman whom one to be a woman is a sanghadisesa offense. * * *

3.Should any bhikkhu, overcome by lust, with altered mind, address lewd words to a wo of young men to a young woman alluding to sexual intercourse, it entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. "Now at that time Ven. Udayin was living in One day many women came to the monastery to admire his dwelling. They went to staying and on arrival said to him, 'Ven. Sir, we would like to admire your dwelling.' Ther Ven. Udayin, showing the dwelling to the women and referring to their genital and anal c praised and criticized and begged and implored and asked and quizzed and advised instructed and ridiculed them. Those of the women who were brazen, shameless, and s Udayin, exclaimed to him, laughed aloud, and teased him; while those of the wome sense of decency complained to the bhikkhus as they left: 'It is improper, Ven. sirs, and unbecoming! Even from our husbands we wouldn't like to hear this sort of thing, much le Udayin.'" The K/Commentary lists five factors for a full breach of this rule: 1) //Object woman, i.e., any female human being experienced enough to know what words are and 2) //Perception//: The bhikkhu perceives her to be such a woman. 3) //Intention//: He is lus the preceding rule, we can take the Commentary's definition of lust here as the //minimu amount of lust to fulfill this factor: He wants to enjoy saying something lewd or improper //Effort//: He makes remarks referring to her genitals, anus, or to her performing sexual intercourse. 5) //Result//: The woman immediately understands. The only factors requ detailed explanation here are intention and effort. Intention. The minimum level of de required to fulfill this factor means that this rule covers cases where a bhikkhu simply gets out of referring to a woman's genitals, etc., in her presence, without necessarily having any actually to have sex with her. The Vibhanga makes clear that this rule does not cove statements made in anger. Thus any insults a bhikkhu may direct at a woman out of ang playfully in desire -- even if they refer to her genitals, etc. -- would come under Pacittiya 2, than here. Effort. The Vibhanga states that to incur a sanghadisesa under this rule one is speaking to a woman, one must refer to //her// genitals, anus, or performing sexual (%). The Commentary goes further and says that to incur the full penalty one must r mention of one of these three things, or accuse her of being sexually deformed in a way th directly to her genitals. Otherwise, if one refers lustfully to these matters without directly m them, there is no sanghadisesa, although the Sub-commentary quotes ancient texts call Ganthipadas as assigning a dukkata for such an act. All of this contradicts the Vibhang lists the ways of referring to the woman's anus, genitals, and sexual intercourse that wou the full penalty under this rule -- one speaks praise, speaks criticism, begs, implores, asks advises, exhorts, or ridicules -- and many of the examples it gives, although referring to t private parts or to her performing sexual intercourse, do not actually mention those words: give to your husband?" "How do you give to your lover?" "When will your mother be reco will you have a good opportunity?" Although all of these statements refer to sexual interco people in those days would have understood them in that light, none of them actually men Thus the Vibhanga's examples seem to indicate that if a bhikkhu is referring lustfully to t private parts or to her performing sexual intercourse, then whether or not he directly name things, he fulfills this factor. None of the texts mention the case in which a bhikkhu talk one person about another person's private parts, etc. Derived offenses. The factors o object, perception, and result permit a number of permutations that result in lesser offens the permutations of intention, see the section on non-offenses, below. //Effort//. A bh speaks to a woman he perceives to be a woman and refers lustfully to parts of her body -- private parts -- below her collarbone and above her knees, such as her breasts or her th thullaccaya. If he refers to parts of her body outside of that area, such as her face or hair, clothing or jewelry she is wearing: a dukkata. //Object//. A bhikkhu speaks to a panda this and the following cases we are assuming that he perceives his object correctly) and lustfully to his private parts or to his performing sexual intercourse: a thullaccaya. He refer to other parts of the pandaka's body, his clothing, etc.: a dukkata. A bhikkhu speaks (or boy) and refers lustfully to any part of his listener's body, clothing, etc.: a dukkata. The penalty holds for speaking lustfully to a common animal about its body, ornaments, etc. (% point with interesting implications, but unfortunately the Commentary is silent. Perhaps n be included here, or perhaps the Vibhanga compilers had in mind cases where one mentio animal within earshot of a human or celestial being.) The texts make no mention of s lustfully to a woman/girl too young to understand what is and is not lewd. We might argue cases included in the Vinita Vatthu, though -- where bhikkhus make punning references to parts, and the women do not understand -- that a bhikkhu incurs a thullaccaya for referring to her genitals, anus, or performing sexual intercourse in her presence, and a dukkata for indirectly in her presence to such things. //Perception//. A bhikkhu speaking to a wom he perceives to be something else -- a pandaka, a man, an animal -- incurs a thullaccaya lustfully to her genitals, anus, or performing sexual intercourse. If he is speaking to a pand man, or an animal he misperceives -- e.g., he thinks the pandaka is a woman, the man is a animal is a man -- he incurs a dukkata if he refers lustfully to those topics. //Result//.

mentioned above, the Vinita Vatthu contains a number cases of bhikkhus speaking to wom punning references to the women's genitals that the women do not understand. In one c is a thullaccaya, in the others a dukkata. The thullaccaya case is the only one in which the a word synonymous with genitals (//magga//, which also means road, the meaning the w Thus we might argue that if a bhikkhu makes direct reference to the genitals, anus, or sexu
-- and this includes slang expressions and euphemisms -- and the woman doesn't imme that he is referring to those things, he incurs a thullaccaya. If he makes indirect mention of things, and she doesn't immediately understand what he is referring to, he incurs a dukkat happens that she understands later, the penalty remains the same. Counting offense making remarks of the sort covered by this rule to //x// number of people commits //x// num offenses, the type of offense being determined by the factors discussed above. Thus for lu two women referring to their breasts, he would incur two thullaccayas; for lustful remarks men concerning their bodies, three dukkatas; for teasing a group of twenty old ladies abou for sexual performance is past, twenty sanghadisesas. Non-offenses. The Vibhanga there is no offense for a bhikkhu who speaks aiming at (spiritual) welfare (//attha//), aiming Dhamma, or aiming at teaching. Thus, for example, if one is talking in front of women and intent, one may recite or explain the training rules that deal with these matters or go into the topic of the loathsomeness of the body as a topic of meditation, all without incurring a Commentary here adds an example of a bhikkhu addressing a sexually deformed woman, heedful in her practice so as not to be born that way again. If, however, one were to broac topics out of a desire to enjoy saying something lewd to one's listeners, one would not b an offense. A bhikkhu who, without intending to be lewd, makes innocent remarks th listener takes to be lewd, commits no offense. Summary: Making a lustful remark to a her genitals, anus, or about performing sexual intercourse is a sanghadisesa offens

* * * 4. Should any bhikkhu, overcome by lust, with altered mind, speak in the presence of a woman in praise of ministering to his own sensual
"This, sister, is the highest ministration, that of ministering to a virtuous, fine-nature follower of the celibate life such as myself with this act" -- alluding to sexual intercourse entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. "Now at that time a ce woman, a widow, was beautiful, attractive, and appealing. So Ven. Udayin, arising early morning, taking his robe and bowl, went to her residence. On arrival, he sat on an appo Then the woman, approaching him, paying him homage, sat down to one side. As s Ven. Udayin instructed, urged, roused, and encouraged her with a talk on Dhamma. Th woman, instructed, urged, roused, and encouraged with a talk on Dhamma...said to him sir, what would be in my power to give you for your welfare: Robe-cloth? Alms-food Medicines for the sick?' "'Those things aren't hard for us to come by sister....Give just what is hard for us to come by.' "'What, Ven. sir?' "'Sexual intercourse.'
"'For your welfare, Ven. sir?' "'For my welfare, sister.' "'Then come, Ven. sir.' Entering into an inner room, taking off her cloak, she lay back on a cou Udayin approached the woman and, on approaching, said, 'Who would touch this f wretch?' And he departed, spitting. "Then the woman was offended and annoyed ar about...'How can this contemplative Udayin, when he himself begged me for sexual in "Who would touch this foul-smelling wretch?" and depart spitting? What's wretched What's foul-smelling about me? In what am I inferior to whom?"' At first glance this might seem redundant with the preceding one, for what we have here is another case of a begging, or imploring a woman to perform sexual intercourse. However, some facts abo belief in the Buddha's time might have led some people to feel that this was a special case covered by the previous rule; so -- to prevent this misunderstanding -- it gets separate trea "Giving," in the Buddha's time, was a common term for having sex. If a woman gave meant that she was willing to have sexual intercourse with him. Now, Buddhism was not th of the time to teach that gifts -- of a more innocent sort -- given to contemplatives produce reward to those who gave them, and ultimately somebody somewhere came up with the b since sex was the highest gift, giving it to a contemplative would produce the highest rewa this idea was first formulated by faithful women or by clever contemplatives is hard to say.

several cases in the Vinita Vatthu to Parajika 1 telling of bhikkhus approached or attacked professing this belief, which shows that it had some currency: that sex was somehow seen higher benefits through the law of kamma. Since the preceding rule gives exemptions speaking "aiming at (spiritual) welfare (//attha//), aiming at Dhamma," some misguided s not comprehend the Buddha's teachings on sensuality might believe that welfare of this so under the exemption. Even today, although the rationale might be different, there are pe believe that having sex with spiritual teachers is beneficial for one's spiritual well-being.
have this separate rule to show that the Buddha would have no part in such a notion, and who tries to suggest that his listener would benefit from having sex with him is not exem offense. The K/Commentary lists five factors for the full offense here. Object: a w experienced enough to know what words are and are not lewd. Perception. The bhik her to be such a woman. Intention. He is lustful. According to the Sub-commentary, thi that he wants to enjoy saying something lewd or improper. This point is borne out by the o where Ven. Udayin addressed his remarks to the young widow apparently just to test her the preceding rules, we can take the Sub-commentary's definition to stand for the //minimu lust needed to fulfill this factor. Effort. The bhikkhu speaks to the woman in praise of ministering to his sensual needs, making reference to sexual intercourse. The Commenta his remarks must directly mention sexual intercourse for this factor to be fulfilled, but the in the rule itself would seem to contradict its assertion. Result. The woman immediatel understands. Derived offenses. The only factors having permutations leading to less are object and perception. //Object//. A bhikkhu, motivated by lust, makes such remark pandaka: a thullaccaya. To a man or animal: a dukkata. //Perception//. A bhikkhu, moti lust, makes such remarks to a woman he perceives to be something else -- a pandaka, ma thullaccaya. To a pandaka he perceives to be something else: a dukkata. Counting o Offenses are counted by the number of people one makes such remarks to. Non-offe no-offense clauses in the Vibhanga, in addition to the blanket exemptions mentioned unde simply: "There is no offense if he speaks saying, 'Support us with the requisites of robealms-food, lodgings, or medicines for the sick.'" Thus there is apparently no way that a bhi right mind may speak in the presence of another person in praise of that person's minist (the bhikkhu's) own sexual desires, without committing an offense. Summary: Tellin that she would benefit from having sexual intercourse with oneself is a sanghadisesa of

* * *

5. Should any bhikkhu engage in conveying a man's intentions to a woman or a woman's intentions to a man, proposing marriage or par even if only for a momentary liaison -- it entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. There are essentially two factors for a full offense under this rule: effort object. Effort. The Commentary says that to "engage in conveying" means to take or a go-between. This includes helping to arrange not only marriages and affairs, but also "m associations" that, from the way it describes them, could include anything from appointm prostitute to arrangements for X to be Y's date. The Vibhanga sets the component fact go-between's role at three: 1) //accepting// the request of one party to convey a prop

2) //inquiring//, i.e., informing the second party and learning his/her/their reaction; and
3) //reporting// what one has learned to the first party. The penalties for these actions dukkata for performing any one of them, a thullaccaya for any two, and a sanghadisesa fo of three. Thus a bhikkhu acting on his own initiative to sound out the possibility of a date b and a woman would incur a thullaccaya for inquiring and reporting. A bhikkhu planning t asks a woman if she would be interested in marrying him after his return to lay life would i for inquiring. The penalties are the same if the bhikkhu, instead of acting as a go-b himself, gets someone else to act for him. Thus a bhikkhu who agrees to convey such a p gets a lay follower or another bhikkhu to do the inquiring and reporting, would incur a sa all the same. If a group of bhikkhus are asked to act as go-betweens and they all acc even if only one of them takes the message, all incur the penalty for his actions. "Re not a factor here, and so the Commentary mentions that whether or not the arrangements bearing on the offense. "Intention" is also not a factor, which leads the Sub-commen raise the issue of a man who writes his proposal in a letter and then, without disclosing the gets a bhikkhu to deliver it. Its conclusion, though, is that this case would not qualify as an offense under this rule, in that both the Vibhanga and the Commentary define the action o "telling": Only if the bhikkhu himself tells the proposal -- whether repeating it orally, maki gesture or writing a letter -- does he commit an offense here. Object. The full offens acting as a go-between between a man and a woman who are not married to each other.
dealing directly with the man and woman, one deals with people speaking on their behalf ( pimp), one incurs the full penalty all the same. There is no offense for a bhikkhu who effect a reconciliation between an estranged couple who are not divorced; but a full offe who tries to effect a reconciliation between a couple who are. "Perception" is also not a fa which inspires the Commentary to note that even an arahant could commit an offense u he tried to effect a reconciliation between his parents whom he assumed to be separated actually were divorced. A bhikkhu incurs a thullaccaya for acting as a go-between for pandaka; and, according to the Commentary, the same penalty for acting as a go-betwee or peta. (!) Non-offenses. The Vibhanga states that, in addition to the usual exemptio is no offense if a bhikkhu conveys a message from a man to a woman or vice versa dealin the Community, of a shrine, or of a sick person." The Commentary illustrates the first tw with cases of a bhikkhu conveying a message dealing with construction work for the Com shrine; and the third with a case where a bhikkhu, acting on behalf of a fellow bhikkhu wh sent by a male lay follower to a female lay follower for medicine. The Sub-commenta any similar errand is also exempt from penalty as long as it is not a form of subservience t people (see Sanghadisesa 13, below). Summary: Acting as a go-between to arrange affair, or a date between a man and a woman not married to each other is a sangha

* * *

6.When a bhikkhu is building a hut from (gains acquired by) his own begging -- having no spons for himself -- he is to build it to the standard measurement. Here the standard is this twelve spans, using the sugata span, in length (measuring outside); seven in width, (me inside. Bhikkhus are to be assembled to designate the site. The site the bhikkhus desig without disturbances and with adequate space. If the bhikkhu should build a hut fro begging on a site with disturbances and without adequate space, or if he should not ass bhikkhus to designate the site, or if he should exceed the standard, it entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. "At that time the bhikkhus of Alavi were huts built from their own begging -- having no sponsors, destined for themselves, n standard measurement -- that did not come to completion. They were continually beggin continually hinting: 'Give a man, give labor, give an ox, give a wagon, give a knife, give an adze, give a spade, give a chisel, give rushes, give reeds, give grass, give clay.' harassed with the begging, harassed with the hinting, on seeing bhikkhus would feel ap alarmed, would run away; would take another route, face another direction, close the seeing cows, they would run away, imagining them to be bhikkhus." This rule and t following one concern the procedures a bhikkhu should follow when he wants to build a dw use. The following rule deals with cases where he has a sponsor to provide him with fun materials. This rule deals with cases where he doesn't. The Vibhanga and Commentary de //hut// and //dwelling// in these rules in such a way that they apply only to a limited range structures, but the Commentary's discussion of what a bhikkhu may and may not beg for w anything at all, guarantees that even in cases not covered by these rules he is not allowe burdensome to the people he asks for help. In discussing this rule, we will first cover what begging are proper and improper in connection with //any// kind of construction work, an to treat the particular case coming under this rule. Begging. A bhikkhu may ask for p give labor in any situation. Thus he may ask stone masons to carry stone posts to his co carpenters to carry boards there. If, after he has asked them to help with the labor, they vo donate the materials as well, he may accept them without penalty. Otherwise, he has to for the materials. As for tools, vehicles, and other things he will use in the process o construction, he may ask only to borrow them from other people and may not ask for them tools get damaged, he is responsible for getting them repaired before returning them to t only things he needn't return to the owner are light articles (//lahubhanda//), which the Sub identifies as things like reeds, rushes, grass, and clay -- i.e., things having little or no mo value at all. In effect, this means that unless a bhikkhu is going to build his dwelling of reeds, etc., or out of thrown-away scraps, he may not ask for any of the materials that w go into the dwelling. Keep in mind that these rules were made during a period when wild still plentiful, and solid building materials such as timber and stones were free for the takin present, unless a bhikkhu has access to unclaimed wilderness of this sort, to unclaimed has enough funds on deposit with his steward (see NP 10) to cover the cost of materials, b if he wants a solid structure is either to rammed earth or to hinting. The Commentary that while hinting is not allowed with regard to food or cloth, it is allowed with regard to con materials. One example it gives is asking, "Do you think this is a good place to build a hu ordination hall?" Another example is staking out a construction site in hope that someone are you planning to do here?" If people get the hint and offer the materials, the bhikkhu n them. If they don't, he may not ask directly for any materials except the "light articles" men above. From this it should be obvious that even in cases not covered by this rule -- i dwelling he is building doesn't qualify as a "hut," or he is building something for other peop a bhikkhu engaged in construction work is not allowed to be burdensome to the laity. Th important point, as the Buddha illustrated in a story he told to the bhikkhus at Alavi. A certa had once come to him with a complaint, and he reports the conversation as follows:

there is a large forest on the slopes of the Himalayas, and not far from it is a broad, low-marsh. A great flock of birds, after feeding all day in the marsh, goes to roost in the at nightfall. That is why I have come to see the Blessed One -- because I am annoyed b noise of that flock of birds.' '"Bhikkhu, you want those birds to go away for good?'
'"Yes, Lord, I want them to go away for good.' '"Then go back there, enter the fore in the first watch of the night make this announcement three times: "Listen to me, g I want a feather from everyone roosting in this forest. Each of you give me one feather."
the second watch...In the third watch of the night make this announcement three times: good birds. I want a feather from everyone roosting in this forest. Each of you give feather"....(The bhikkhu did as he was told.) Then the flock of birds, thinking, 'The bhikkh for a feather, the bhikkhu wants a feather,' left the forest. And after they were gone, th again returned. Bhikkhus, begging is unpleasant, hinting is unpleasant even to thes animals -- how much more so to human beings?" The hut. Now we turn to the partic covered by this rule. The Vibhanga defines a hut as "plastered inside, outside, or both." states that this rule does not apply to a //lena//, a //guha//, or to a grass hut. A lena, accord the Commentary, is a cave. A guha it doesn't define, except to say that guhas may be bu wood, stone, or earth. And as for a grass hut, it says that this refers to any building with a //roof//, which means that even a dwelling with plastered walls but a grass roof would not hut under this rule (although a hut whose roof has been plastered and then covered with g count as a hut here). The Commentary goes on to stipulate that the plastering menti the Vibhanga refers to a plastered //roof//, that the plaster must be either clay or white lime (plastering with cow dung or mud doesn't count, although cement would probably come un here), and that the plastering on the inside or outside of the roof must be contiguous with t on the inside or outside of the walls. Thus if the builder leaves a gap in the plastering aro top of the wall so that the plastering of the roof and the plastering of the walls don't touch a point, the building doesn't qualify as a hut and so doesn't come under the rule. The Commentary's stipulations on these point may seem like attempts to create gaping loopho but there is nothing in the Vibhanga to prove them wrong. Perhaps in those days only fu buildings were considered to be finished, permanent structures, while everything else was makeshift and temporary and thus not worth the fuss and bother of the procedures we w below. At another point in its discussions, the Commentary adds that any building th spans wide or less is not big enough to move a bed around in and so does not count as a rule. The Commentary itself defines a sugata span as three times the span of a normal p would put it at approximately 75 cm. More recent calculations, based on the fact that the B abnormally tall, set the sugata span at 25 cm. The procedures. If, for his own use, a planning to build a hut as defined in this rule, he must chose a site, clear it, and ask for t Community to inspect and approve it before he can go ahead with the actual construction. site//. The site must be free of disturbances and have adequate space. "Free of dist means that the site is not the abode of such creatures as termites, ants, or rats who might building, or of those such as snakes, scorpions, tigers, lions, elephants, or bears who mi to its inhabitant. The Commentary states that the Vibhanga's purpose in forbidding a bhi building on a site where termites and other small animals have their home is to show comp and other small creatures like them by not destroying their nests. As for the stipulation a building where snakes and other dangerous animals live, this also extends, it says, to the they regularly forage for food. In addition, the Vibhanga says that a site without distu is one that is not near any places that will disturb the bhikkhu's peace and quiet. Exampl are: fields, orchards, places of execution, cemeteries, pleasure groves, royal property, ele stables, horse stables, prisons, taverns, slaughterhouses, highways, crossroads, public re meeting places. "Adequate space" means that there is enough room on the site for a to go around, or for a man to carry a ladder around, the proposed hut. The question arises this means that all trees within that radius of the hut must be cut down, or whether it sim that there must be enough land around the hut so that if the trees were not there, it would go around the hut in the ways mentioned. The Sub-commentary states that the stipulatio space is so that the hut will not be built on the edge of a precipice or next to a cliff wall, an Vinaya Mukha notes that the Vibhanga here is following the Laws of Manu (an ancient In in ensuring that the dwelling not be built right against someone else's property. Both of the statements suggest that there is no need to cut the trees down. The Vinaya Mukha ma that the procedures for getting the site approved are concerned basically with laying claim unclaimed land, and this has led many Communities in Thailand to say that the need to ha approve the site does not apply to places where the Community already owns the land, su monastery. If a bhikkhu in such Communities wishes to build a hut for his own use on mon need only get the approval of the abbot. The ancient texts say nothing on this point, so it is where the wise policy is to follow the views of the Community to which one belongs.

the site//. Before notifying the local Community, the bhikkhu must get the site cleared -- so Vibhanga, and the Commentary adds that he should get it leveled as well. In both cases arrange to have this done in such a way that does not violate Pacittiyas 10 & 11. Again, th arises as to whether clearing the site means cutting down the trees on the spot where or building the hut. In the origin story to the following rule, Ven. Channa caused an uproar by a venerated tree on a site where he planned to build, which led the Buddha to formulate the Community must inspect and approve the site to prevent uproars of this sort. This sugg clearing the site here means clearing the underbrush. Only after the Community has appro should the necessary trees be cut down. //Getting the site inspected//. The bhikkhu t to the local Community and formally asks them to inspect the site. (The Pali passages fo remaining formal requests and announcements are in the Vibhanga.) Either the entire Com to inspect the site or it will select two or three of its members to go and inspect the site in i The Vibhanga says that these inspectors should know what does and does not constitute and adequate space, and requires that they be chosen by a formal motion with one annou Commentary, for some reason, says that they may also be chosen by a simple declaration (//apalokana//). The inspectors then visit the site. If they find any disturbances or see the site has inadequate space, they should tell the bhikkhu not to build there. If the site pa inspection, though, the bhikkhu may go on to the next step. //Getting the site approve bhikkhu returns to the Community and formally asks them to approve the site. The formal motion and one announcement. Once this has passed, the bhikkhu may start construction of the hut. As the rule states, the hut may be no more than twelve spans long and seven s approximately 3 x 1.75 meters. For some reason the Vibhanga states that the length of t measured from the outside (excluding the plastering, says the Commentary), while the wid from the inside. The Commentary adds that neither of these measurements may be excee ten by eight spans wide, even though it has less floor area than a twelve by seven span hu the standard width and so would be a violation of this rule. Offenses. The Vibhanga a penalties for building a hut without a sponsor, for one's own use, without regard for the s in this rule, as follows: an oversized hut -- a sanghadisesa; a hut on an unapproved s sanghadisesa; a hut on a site without adequate space -- a dukkata; a hut on a site with -- a dukkata. These penalties are additive. Thus, for example, an oversized hut on an site would entail a double sanghadisesa. The wording of the training rule, though, sugg building a hut without a sponsor, for one's own use, on a site with disturbances and with space would entail a sanghadisesa; but the Sub-commentary says -- without offering expla to read the rule in this way is to misinterpret it. Since the penalty for a multiple sanghadise same as that for a single one, there is only one case where this would make an appreciab a hut of the proper size, built on a designated site that has disturbances or does not have space. This is a case of a formal act of the Community improperly performed: Either the inspecting the site were incompetent, or the disturbances were not immediately apparent. penalty for improperly performing an act of the Community is a dukkata (Mv.II.16.4), this the Vibhanga allots penalties as it does. As we noted in the Introduction, in cases w Vibhanga is explaining the training rules that deal with formal acts of the Community, it s has to deviate from the wording of the rules so as to bring them in line in with the general p such acts, a pattern that was probably formulated after the rules and came to take prece them. Getting others to build the hut. If, instead of building the hut himself, a bhikkhu others to build it for him, he must inform them of the four stipulations mentioned in this rule neglects to inform them, and they build the hut in such a way that it does not meet any o stipulations, he must either have it torn down (to the ground, says the Commentary) and h line with the stipulations, give it to another, or face the full penalty for each of the stipulat they violated that he neglected to mention to them. For example: He tells them to bu of the right size, but neglects to tell them to have the site approved. They build it to the ri size, the site is without disturbances and has adequate space but is not approved. Unless down or gives it to another, he incurs a sanghadisesa. If the bhikkhu mentions the pr stipulations, but learns that the builders are ignoring them, he must go himself or send a to reiterate the stipulations. Not to do so incurs a dukkata. If, having been reminded of the stipulations, the builders still ignore them, the bhikkhu incurs no penalty; but they -- if the bhikkhus -- incur a dukkata for each of the three criteria regarding the site that they disobe the standard measurement, they are not bound by it as they are building the hut for anot

If a bhikkhu, intending it for his own use, completes a hut that others have started, or g others to complete a hut he has started, he is still bound by the stipulations given in this ru Preliminary offenses. The penalties in the preliminary steps are as follows: If the hut is s when finished it will entail a sanghadisesa or two, each act in its construction entails a duk until the next to the last act, which entails a thullaccaya. Once the hut is completed, and th incurs the sanghadisesa(s), the dukkatas and thullaccaya are nullified. Non-offenses no-offense clauses mention, in addition to the usual exemptions, that there is no offense "i guha, in a grass hut, in (a dwelling) for another's use, or in anything other than a dwelling Commentary explains that no offense here means that these cases are not subject to any stipulations given in this rule. As for the last case, if a bhikkhu is building, e.g., a meeting for the Community, he is not bound by this rule, but if he plans to live there as well, he is. T case suggests that if a bhikkhu is building a dwelling, planning to donate it formally to the Community but also planning to live there himself, he is not exempt from this rule. Su Building a plastered hut -- or having it built -- without a sponsor, destined for one's own without having obtained the Community's approval, is a sanghadisesa offense. Buil plastered hut -- or having it built -- without a sponsor, destined for one's own use, excee standard measurements, is also a sanghadisesa offense. * * *
7. When a bhikkhu is building a large dwelling -- having a sponsor and destined fo himself -- he is to assemble bhikkhus to designate the site. The site the bhikkhus de should be without disturbances and with adequate space. If the bhikkhu should build a l on a site with disturbances and without adequate space, or if he should not assemb bhikkhus to designate the site, it entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Commun

The Vibhanga defines //dwelling// here with the same terms it uses for //hut// in the preced explanations for this rule may be inferred from those above, the only difference being that, dwelling here has a sponsor, no begging is involved in its construction, and so there is no its size. If a sponsor is building a dwelling for a bhikkhu, and the bhikkhu is not invol in any way in building it or getting it built, this rule does not apply. Summary: Building hut with a sponsor -- or having it built -- destined for one's own use, without having obta Community's approval, is a sanghadisesa offense. * * *

8.Should any bhikkhu, malicious, angered, displeased, charge a (fellow) bhikkhu wit case involving defeat, (thinking), "Surely with this I may bring about his fall from the celibate life," then regardless of whether or not he is cross-examined on a later occasion issue is unfounded and the bhikkhu confesses his anger, it entails initial and subse meetings of the Community. "Now at that time a householder who served fine food g food to the Community on a regular basis, four bhikkhus every day. (One day) he happe business to the monastery. He went to where Ven. Dabba Mallaputta was staying a bowed to him and sat down to one side....Ven. Dabba Mallaputta roused... him with a D talk. Then the householder with fine food...said to Dabba Mallaputta, 'To whom, sir, is to meal in our house assigned?' "'To (the) followers of Mettiya and Bhummajaka, householder.' [Mettiya and Bhummajaka were among the leaders of the group-of-six, a for its shameless behavior, and instigators of many of the situations that compelled Buddha to formulate training rules.] "This upset the householder with fine food. Thin can these evil bhikkhus eat in our house?' he returned home and ordered his femal
'Hey. Those who are coming for a meal tomorrow: Prepare a seat for them in the storer serve them unhusked rice porridge with pickle brine.' "'As you say, master,' the fema answered.... "Then the followers of Mettiya and Bhummajaka said to one anoth 'Yesterday we were assigned a meal at the house of the householder with fine food. To with his wife and children, he will serve us. Some will offer rice, some will offer curry some oil, and some dainties.' Because of their joy, they didn't sleep as much that night a had hoped. "Early the next morning...they went to the home of the household fine food. The female slave saw them coming from afar. Preparing them a seat in the st said to them, 'Have a seat, honored sirs.' "The thought occurred to the followers Mettiya and Bhummajaka, 'No doubt the food isn't ready yet, which is why we are b sit in the storeroom.' "Then the female slave brought them unhusked rice porridge pickle brine and said, 'Eat, honored sirs.' "'Sister, we've come for the regular meal.'
"'I know you've come for the regular meal. But yesterday the householder ordered r

Those who are coming for a meal tomorrow: Prepare a seat for them in the storeroom a them unhusked rice porridge with pickle brine." So eat, honored sirs.' "Then the followers of Mettiya and Bhummajaka said to one another, 'Yesterday the householder went to the monastery and met with Dabba Mallaputta. No doubt Dabba Mallaputta against us.' Because of their disappointment, they didn't eat as much as they had hope "Then they returned to the monastery and, putting away their robes and bowls, went to outside the gate and sat on their outer cloaks, their arms around their knees, silent, abashed, their shoulders drooping, their heads down, brooding, at a loss for words.
"Then Mettiya Bhikkhuni came along and said to them, 'I salute you, masters.' But when this, they didn't respond. A second time...A third time she said, 'I salute you, master a third time they didn't respond. "'Have I offended you, masters? Why don't you resp me?' "'Because you stand by doing nothing, sister, when Dabba Mallaputta tr like dirt.' "'What can I do?' "'If you like, you could get the Blessed One to expel Dabba Mallaputta right this very day.' "'What can I do? How could I do tha "'Come, sister. Go to where the Blessed One is and say this: "It is unfitting, Lord, improper. The quarter without dread, without harm, without danger, is (now) the quarter dread, with harm, with danger. Where there is calm, there is a windstorm. The water, as ablaze. I have been raped by Master Dabba Mallaputta.'" "'As you say, masters she went to carry out their bidding.)" This is just the heart of the origin story to this ru which is one of the longest and most controversial accounts in the Vinaya. After Mettiya made her charge, the Buddha convened a meeting of the Sangha to question Ven. Dabba latter, who had attained arahantship at the age of seven, responded truthfully that he cou to mind ever having indulged in sexual intercourse even in a dream, much less when awa then told the Sangha to expel Mettiya Bhikkhuni and returned to his quarters. Accord Commentary, the expulsion of Mettiya Bhikkhuni was one of the controversial points in the the Mahayanist bhikkhus in the Abhayagiri Vihara and the Theravadin bhikkhus of the M old Sri Lankan capital of Anuradhapura. Even modern scholars have objected to the Budd of Mettiya Bhikkhuni and interpret this passage as a "monkish gloss," as if the Buddha him monk, and the entire Canon were not the work of monks and nuns. The Commentary ma Buddha acted as he did because he knew if he treated her less harshly, the followers of M Bhummajaka would never have volunteered the information that they had put her up to in the first place, and the truth would never have come out. This would have led some peo secretly convinced of Ven. Dabba Mallaputta's guilt and -- because he was an arahant -- w for their long-term detriment. At any rate, what concerns us here is that at some point this rule was formulated, the Buddha put the Sangha in charge of judging accusations of t them a definite pattern to follow in order to ensure that their judgments would be accurate Because the Vibhanga and Commentary to this rule are based on this pattern, we will disc first before dealing with the special case -- unfounded charges -- covered by this rule.

Admonition. As the Buddha states in Sanghadisesa 12, one of the ways bhikkhus may hop teachings is through mutual admonition and mutual rehabilitation. If a bhikkhu commits an responsibility is his to inform his fellow bhikkhus so that they may help him through whatev the offense may entail. Now of course, human nature being what it is, there are bound to who neglect this responsibility, in which case the responsibility falls to the offender's fellow who know of the matter to admonish him in private, if possible, or -- if he is stubborn -- to formal charge in a meeting of the Community. The pattern here is this: Before speak bhikkhu, one must first make sure that one is qualified to admonish him. According to Cv means one knows: 1) One is pure in bodily conduct. 2) One is pure in verbal conduct is motivated by kindness, not vengeance. 4) One is learned in the Dhamma. 5) One kn Patimokkhas (the one for the bhikkhus and the one for the bhikkhunis) in detail.
Furthermore, one determines that: 1) I will speak at the right time and not at the wrong t
2) I will speak the truth and not untruths. 3) I will speak gently and not harshly. 4) I will s what is connected with the goal and not what is unconnected with the goal. 5) I will sp kindness and not out of inner anger. The Parivara (XV.5.3) adds that one should keep fi in mind: compassion, solicitude for the other's welfare, sympathy, desire to see him reha and a desire to keep the Vinaya foremost. If one feels that one is unqualified, yet bel that another bhikkhu has committed an offense for which he has not made amends, one another bhikkhu who is qualified to handle the charge and inform him. Not to inform anyon this -- if the case involves a parajika or sanghadisesa offense -- is to violate Pacittiya 64, in the extenuating circumstances discussed under that rule. The next step, if one is c to make the charge, is to look for a proper time and place to talk with the other party -- e.g he is not likely to get embarrassed or upset -- and then to ask his leave, i.e., to ask permis speak with him: "Let the Ven. One give me leave. I want to speak with you." To accuse hir offense without asking leave is to incur a dukkata (Mv.II.16.1). As for the other party, th recommends that he should give leave only after assessing the person asking for leave, fo possible that someone might ask for leave without any real grounds, simply to be abusive.
asks for leave with no grounds -- i.e., he has not seen the other party commit the offense, no reliable report to that effect, and has no reason to suspect anything to that effect -- incu dukkata (Mv.II.16.3).) The Parivara (XV.4.7) suggests that one should not give leave to a who: 1) is unconscientious, 2) is ignorant, 3) is not a bhikkhu in regular standing, 4) speaks intent on creating a disturbance, or 5) is not intent on rehabilitating the bhikkhu accusing. In another passage (XV.5.4), it suggests further that one should not give le bhikkhu who: 1) is not pure in bodily conduct, 2) is not pure in verbal conduct, 3) is pure in his livelihood, 4) is foolish, childish, and unintelligent, or 5) is unable to give a consistent line of reasoning when questioned. If the bhikkhu, is not unqualified in a these ways, though, one should willingly give him leave to speak. The Cullavagga (IX.5.
when being admonished or accused, one should keep two qualities in mind: truth, and lach Patimokkha also contains a number of rules imposing penalties on behaving improperly admonished formally or informally: Sanghadisesa 12 for being difficult to admonish in gene Pacittiya 12 for being evasive or refusing to answer when being formally questioned, Pacit being disrespectful to one's accuser or to the rule one is being accused of breaking, and for finding excuses for not listening to a particular training rule. If both sides act in go faith and without prejudice, accusations of this sort are easy to settle on an informal basis. can't be settled informally, they should be taken to a meeting of the Community so that t whole may pass judgment. The procedures for this sort of formal meeting will be discusse Aniyata and Adhikarana-Samatha rules, below. Abuse of the system. As the origin sto shows, it can easily be the case that a bhikkhu making a charge against another bhikkhu of a grudge and has simply made up the charge. This rule and the following one cover cas made-up charge is that the other bhikkhu has committed a parajika. Pacittiya 76 covers ca made-up charge is that the other bhikkhu has broken a less serious rule. The full offe this rule involves four factors: 1) //Object//: The other bhikkhu is regarded as ordained. 2) //Perception//: One perceives him to be innocent of the offense one is charging him 3) //Intention//: One wants to see him expelled from the Sangha. 4) //Effort//: One ma unfounded charge in his presence that he is guilty of a parajika offense. Object. The definition of this factor -- the other bhikkhu is regarded as ordained -- may sound strange, from the K/Commentary and is phrased that way with a reason: In normal cases the obje will be an innocent bhikkhu, but there may be cases where a bhikkhu has actually commit offense that no one knows about; yet instead of disrobing, he acts as if he were still a bh everyone else assumes that he still is. Yet even a "bhikkhu" of this sort would fulfill this fac as this rule is concerned. For example, Bhikkhu X steals some of the monastery fun one knows about it, and he continues to act as if he were a bhikkhu. Bhikkhu Y later deve against him and makes an unfounded charge that he has had sexual intercourse with one supporters. Even though X is not really a bhikkhu, the fact that people in general assume means that he fulfills this factor. Perception. If one perceives the bhikkhu one is char with a parajika offense to be innocent of the offense, that is enough to fulfill this factor regardless of whether the accused is actually innocent or not. To make an accusation bas assumption or suspicion that the accused is //not// innocent entails no offense. Intent in making an unfounded charge of a parajika offense against another bhikkhu, one's purpo expelled from the Sangha, that fulfills this factor. If one's purpose is simply to insult him, actions would come under Pacittiya 2. If one's purpose is both to see him expelled and to incurs both a sanghadisesa and a pacittiya. If one has a strange sense of humor and is charge as some sort of joke, the penalty is either a pacittiya under Pacittiya 1 or a dubbha Pacittiya 2: The texts are not clear on this point, but in either case this sort of thing is no matter. According to the Vibhanga, "confessing one's anger" can simply mean admit made the charge idly. Thus the amount of malice motivating one's desire to see the other can be minimal indeed: If one wants to see him expelled just for the fun of it, that would factor of intention here. Effort. The act covered by this rule is that of making an unfou charge of a parajika in the accused's presence. Whether one makes the charge oneself or to make it, the penalty is the same. If that "someone else" is a bhikkhu and knows the ch unfounded, he too incurs the full penalty. The Vibhanga defines an unfounded charge no basis in what has been seen, heard, or suspected. In other words, the accuser has n accused committing the offense in question, nor has he heard anything reliable to that effe there anything in the accused's behavior to give rise to any honest suspicion. "Seein "hearing," according to the Commentary, also include the powers of clairvoyance and clair have developed through meditation. Thus if one charges X with having committed a para the basis of what one has seen clairvoyantly, this would not be an unfounded charge, altho be careful to make clear from the very beginning what kind of seeing the charge is based

If there is some basis in fact, but one changes the status of the evidence, the penalty is t Changing the status means, e.g., saying that one saw something when in actuality one sin about it or suspected it, or that one saw it clearly when in actuality one saw it indistinctly.
An example from the Commentary: Bhikkhu X goes into a grove to relieve himself. Ms. Y grove to get something there. One sees them leaving the grove at approximately the same could count as grounds for suspicion -- but one then accuses Bhikkhu X, saying that one a having sex with Ms. Y. This would count as an unfounded charge. Another example: In t night, one sees a man stealing something from the monastery storehouse. He looks vague but one can't be sure. Still, one firms up one's accusation by saying that one definitely sa the item. Again, this would count as an unfounded charge. The Commentary states t unfounded charge to count under this rule, it must state explicitly (a) the precise act the ac supposedly committed (e.g., having sexual intercourse, getting a woman to have an aborti the accused is guilty of a parajika, or (c) that the accused is no longer a true bhikkhu. If simply says or does something that might imply that the accused is no longer a bhikkhu -- to show him respect in line with his seniority -- that does not yet count as a charge. T Commentary adds that charging a bhikkhu with having committed a virtual parajika, as dis conclusion to the preceding chapter, would fulfill this factor as well. For instance, if one unfounded charge accusing Bhikkhu A of having killed his father before his ordination, tha constitute a full offense here. All of the charges given as examples in the Vibhanga a expressed directly to the accused -- "I saw you have sexual intercourse," "I heard you la claims to a superior human state" -- and the Commentary concludes from this that the full only when one makes the charge in the accused's presence, in line with the pattern for a discussed above. To make an unfounded charge behind the accused's back, it states, incu Some people have objected to this point, saying that this gives a very light penalty for b character assassination, but there is nothing in the Vibhanga to indicate that the Comment here. Remember that the correct procedures for making an accusation require that an earn in the presence of the accused. If a bhikkhu spreads gossip about another bhikkhu, accus having committed a parajika, he should be asked whether he has taken up the matter with hasn't, he should be told to speak to the accused before he speaks to anyone else. If he doesn't feel qualified or that he fears the accused will retaliate, he should be told to take th up with the bhikkhus who will be responsible for calling a meeting of the Community. If h do that, he shouldn't be listened to. For some reason, the Commentary maintains that in writing does not count, although a charge made by gesture -- e.g., pointing at the accu is asked who committed the parajika -- does. Perhaps in those days written charges were cowardly to take seriously. The rule seems to require that the accused confess that he acting out of anger, although the Vibhanga states that this means simply that he admits th lie. The Commentary states further that here the rule is showing the point where the rest o Community knows that the bhikkhu making the charge is guilty of a sanghadisesa: He actu offense when he made the charge. The Commentary adds "result" as a further facto offense under this rule, saying that the accused must understand the charge in a reason time -- but nothing in the Vibhanga supports this added factor. Whether or not anyon believes the charge is not a factor here. Non-offenses. If one understands the accus guilty of a parajika and accuses him accurately on the basis of what one has seen, hear suspected, then -- regardless of whether he is guilty or not -- one has not committed an of a case such as this, though, one incurs a dukkata if one makes the charge without askin accused, and a pacittiya if one makes the charge so as to insult him. Summary: Mak unfounded charge to a bhikkhu that he has committed a parajika offense, in hopes of ha disrobed, is a sanghadisesa offense. * * * 9.Should any bhikkhu, malicious, angered, displeased, using as a mere ploy an aspect of an issu otherwise, charge a bhikkhu with a case involving defeat, (thinking), "Surely with th bring about his fall from the celibate life," then regardless of whether or not he is cross-examined on a later occasion, if the issue pertains otherwise, an aspect used as a and the bhikkhu confesses his anger, it entails initial and subsequent meetings of th Community. "At that time the followers of Mettiya and Bhummajaka, descending Vulture Peak Mountain, saw a billy-goat copulating with a nanny-goat. Seeing them, the here, friends, let's name this billy-goat Dabba Mallaputta, and this nanny-goat Mettiy Bhikkhuni. Then we'll phrase it like this: "Before, my friends, we accused Dabba Mallapu the basis of what we had heard, but now we have seen him with our very own eyes forn Mettiya Bhikkhuni!"" Some grudges die hard. This rule is almost identical with the preceding one and involves the same factors except for one of the sub-factors under "Effo charge" here becomes "a charge based on an issue that pertains otherwise." The phrase s but the origin story gives a perfect example of what it means. The precise difference the two rules is this: With an unfounded charge, one has neither seen, heard, nor suspecte offense has been committed; or if one has, one changes the status of the evidence -- e.g., something one has suspected as if one has heard it, or something one has heard as if one In a charge based on an issue that pertains otherwise, one has seen an offense being con does not change the status of the evidence, but one distorts the facts of the case. T summarize the Vibhanga, there are two basic ways in which this can be done: 1) X, may not be a bhikkhu, has something in common with Bhikkhu Y -- they are both tall, sh have the same name, or whatever. One sees X committing an action that would am offense and then, on the basis of the similarity between the two, claims that one has see committing a parajika. For instance, X and Y are both very tall. Late at night one see knowing that it is X -- stealing tools from the monastery storeroom. One has a grudge ag and so accuses him of being the thief, saying, "I saw this big tall guy stealing the tools, looked just like you. It must have been you." 2) One sees Bhikkhu Y actually comm offense. Although one perceives that it is a lesser offense, one magnifies the charge parajika. For instance, one sees him get into an argument with Bhikkhu Z and in a fit of a blow to the head. Z goes unconscious, falls to the floor and suffers a severe conc resulting in death. Since Y's intention was simply to hurt him, not to kill him, he incurs on pacittiya. If one realizes the nature of Y's intention and the fact that the penalty is a pacittiya, and yet accuses him of having committed a parajika, one would incur a sangh this rule. If one sees Y committing an action that one knows does not violate the rules that bears some resemblance to an offense, and then accuses him of having committed a not fit under this category. For instance, Y is teaching Vinaya to some new bhikkhus and of the statements that would count as claims of superior human states. One overhears him realizing the context, later accuses him of having violated Parajika 4. Since one knows tha no offense, this would count as an unfounded charge and so would come under the prece

The other explanations here are exactly the same as those for the preceding rule, except no-offense clauses the Vibhanga states that if one makes a charge against the accused ba one actually perceives, there is no offense even if the issue turns out to pertain otherwise. instance, from the examples already given: One sees X stealing tools in the dark and, bec resemblance to Y, actually thinks Y is the thief. One sees Y give a fatal blow to Z and actu that Y's intention was to kill Z. In either of these cases, if one then accuses Y of a parajika offense, one incurs no penalty regardless of how the case comes out, although -- as in the -- one should be careful to ask Y's leave before making the charge and to have no intentio insulting him. Summary: Distorting the evidence while accusing a bhikkhu of havi committed a parajika offense, in hopes of having him disrobed, is a sanghadisesa offen
* * * 10.Should any bhikkhu agitate for a schism in a Community in concord, or should he persist in taking up an issue conducive to schism, the bhikkh admonish him thus: "Do not, Ven. sir, agitate for a schism in a Community in conco persist in taking up an issue conducive to schism. Let the venerable one be reconciled w Community, for a Community in concord, on complimentary terms, free from dispute, h recitation, dwells in peace." And should that bhikkhu, admonished thus by the bhi persist as before, the bhikkhus are to rebuke him up to three times so as to desist. If being rebuked up to three times he desists, that is good. If he does not desist, it ent initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. This rule dates from Devadatta's att create a schism in the Sangha during the Buddha's life and is designed to help prevent su from ever happening again. Disputes. Schisms arise from disputes over what the Budd did not teach or, in the words of the Cullavagga, "when bhikkhus dispute, saying: 'It is Dhamma,' or 'It is not Dhamma;' 'It is Vinaya,' or 'It is not Vinaya;' 'It was spoken by th Tathagata,' or 'It was not spoken by the Tathagata;' 'It was regularly practiced by the Tathagata,' or 'It was not regularly practiced by the Tathagata;' 'It was formulated by t Tathagata,' or 'It was not formulated by the Tathagata;' 'It is an offense,' or 'It is not a offense;' 'It is a light offense,' or 'It is a heavy offense;' 'It is a curable offense,' or 'It is an incurable offense;' 'It is a serious offense,' or 'It is not a serious offense.' Whatever strife, quarreling, contention, dispute, differing opinions, opposing opinions, hea abusiveness based on this, is an issue arising from disputes." (Cv.IV.14.2) Thus not disagreements on these matters are classed as issues. Friendly disagreements or differen interpretation aren't; heated and abusive disagreements are. The Buddha advises th who wants to bring up such questions for discussion should first consider five points: 1) is the right time for such a discussion; 2) whether it concerns something true; 3) whether it with the goal; 4) whether he will be able to get on his side bhikkhus who value the Dham and 5) whether the question will give rise to strife, quarreling, disputes, cracks, and splits i Community. If the answer to the first four questions is yes, and to the fifth question no (i. the right time for the discussion, it concerns something true, it is connected with the goal, value the Dhamma and Vinaya will be willing to join his side, and the discussion is not lik to strife), he may go ahead and start the discussion. Otherwise, he should let the matter re time being (Cv.IX.4). The Cullavagga quotes the Buddha as saying that two sorts of states -- skillful and unskillful -- can turn disputes into issues. The unskillful states he lists a covetous, corrupt, or confused states of mind; the skillful ones are states of mind that are covetous, corrupt, or confused. He adds, however, that six character traits can lead to issu from disputes that will tend toward the detriment of many people. They are when a bhikkhu easily angered and bears ill will, is mean and spiteful, is jealous and possessive, is s and deceitful, has evil desires and wrong views, is attached to his own views, obstinate let them go. Such a bhikkhu, he says, lives without deference or respect for the Buddh Dhamma, or the Sangha, and does not complete the training. If one should see any of the oneself or others, one should strive for their abandonment. If there are no such traits pre should make sure that they don't arise in the future (Cv.IV.14.3). Not all disputes, ev prolonged, will lead to schism. An example is the dispute that led to the Second Council. E it was bitterly fought, there was never a point when either faction thought of splitting off an conducting communal business separately. In fact, even after the early Buddhists had form separate schools, and the Mahayana movement added //its// schools of interpretation, Chi India reported that bhikkhus belonging to the different schools of thought could be found liv together harmoniously in the same monastery, performing communal business together in scholars have misunderstood this point, thinking that the various schools were schismatic, they weren't.) Thus there are two sets of procedures to follow when a dispute becom For a dispute in which none of the partisans is aiming at a schism, there are the procedure Cv.IV.14.16-26. For one that is heading towards a schism (and //only// for one in which at is aiming at schism, the Commentary implies and the Sub-commentary states explicitly), w rule and the following one. Schism. The Cullavagga (VII.5.1), states that schism occurs the leader of a schism puts the matter to a vote in a Community of at least nine bhikkhus w four on either side of the split. It further adds that all the bhikkhus involved must be bhikk regular standing in communion with the group as a whole (i.e., they haven't been suspend Community), living in the same boundary. If one or the other of these qualifications is -- the issue goes to a vote in a Community of less than nine bhikkhus, one side or the ot than four adherents, or the bhikkhus involved are not on regular standing or do not belong boundary -- the efforts at schism count as a crack (//raji//) in the Community, but not as a f (//bheda//). However, the Parivara (XV.10.9), drawing on material in A.X.35 & 37, list ways in which a schism can take place: discussion, announcement, vote, act, and recitatio Commentary, trying to reconcile the Cullavagga and Parivara on this point, interprets the four steps in a single process (the last two ways counting as alternative forms of a single s 1) //Discussion//. A bhikkhu aiming at schism begins a dispute over the Buddha's teach explaining Dhamma as not-Dhamma; not-Dhamma as Dhamma; Vinaya as not-Vinaya; what was not spoken by the Buddha as having been spoken by him; what was spoke not; what was not regularly practiced by him as having been regularly practiced by him; was regularly practiced by him as not; what was not formulated by him as having been f him; what was formulated by him as not; an offense as a non-offense; a non-offense as a heavy offense as a light offense; a light offense as heavy; a curable offense as incu incurable offense as curable; a serious offense as not serious; or a not-serious offense serious. 2) //Announcement//. He announces that he is splitting off from the Comm asks other bhikkhus to take sides. 3) //Vote//. The issue goes to a vote in a Communit least nine bhikkhus, with at least four on either side. 4) //Act or recitation//. The bhikkhus who side with the schismatic split from the others and recite the Patimokkha o perform other communal business separately. According to the Commentary, the actual taken place until step 4, when the schismatic group conducts communal business or rec Patimokkha separately. This is in accordance with A.X.35 but seems to conflict with the Cu Commentary explains that if the vote is taken in a split-off meeting of the Community, ste happen simultaneously, and the schism has been accomplished. Otherwise, if the vote is t the boundary, the schism is not finalized until the split-off faction conducts communal bu separately within the same boundary as the Community (Pv.VI.2 & XV.10.10). We ca the way the Vibhanga and Commentary analyze the steps leading up to schism, that if a g living in a Community that does not adhere to the Buddha's teachings and they wish to l so that they may more easily follow those teachings, they do not count as schismatics. Ho should be careful first to make sure that their views //are// genuinely in line with the Budd teachings and then conduct their departure in as amenable and unprovocative a manner a words, instead of announcing a split, they should simply say that they want to go to a mo place to practice. Schism is serious business -- one of the five most heinous crimes can commit. The other four are killing one's mother, killing one's father, killing an arahant, maliciously causing a Buddha to shed blood. A bhikkhu who creates a schism is expelled a be readmitted into the Community during this lifetime (Mv.I.67). If he knows that his schism the Dhamma, then after death he will go immediately to Hell and be boiled there for an a fate awaits those who join his schismatic group knowing that what he teaches is not the tru Vinaya. Those, however, who follow him not knowing that his teaching is not the true Dh will not necessarily suffer that fate. If they realize their mistake and ask to be allowed back Community, they need only confess a thullaccaya and they are members of the Commun as before (Cv.VII.4.4; Cv.VII.5.1-6). Preventing a schism. The Vibhanga states that i bhikkhu sees or hears of an attempt at a schism, it is his duty to reprimand the instigator times, for the instigator, if he goes unreprimanded, may continue with his efforts as he like incurring a penalty. A bhikkhu who neglects this duty incurs a dukkata. The Commentary a dukkata applies to every bhikkhu within a half-yojana (five-mile) radius who learns of the a schism; any bhikkhu outside that radius, even though he may not be subject to the pena regard it as his duty, if he is able, to go reprimand the instigator as well. (According to th Sub-commentary, any bhikkhu within the five-mile radius who is ill or otherwise unable to g instigator is not subject to this penalty.) If the attempt takes place during the Rains Retre bhikkhus are allowed to cut short their stay at other monasteries to help end the attempt (M If, after being reprimanded three times, the instigator abandons his efforts, he incurs penalty and nothing further need be done. If he is still recalcitrant, though, he incurs a dukkata; and the next step is to take him into the midst of a formal meeting of the Comm force, if necessary, says the Commentary) and admonish him formally three more times. I efforts before the end of the third admonition, well and good. If not, he incurs another du next step is to recite a formal rebuke, by mandate of the Community, using the formula of three announcements given in the Vibhanga. If the instigator remains obstinate, he incur additional dukkata at the end of the motion, a thullaccaya at the end of each of the first two announcements, and the full sanghadisesa at the end of the third. Once he commits the the penalties he incurred in the preliminary stages are nullified. Perception. The Vibh states that if the acts of admonition and rebuke are carried out properly -- i.e. the bhikkhu misstating the Buddha's teachings, is really aiming at a schism, and the various other forr requirements for a formal act are fulfilled -- then if he does not abandon his intention to ag schism, he incurs the full sanghadisesa regardless of whether he perceives the act to be improper, or doubtful. If the act is improperly carried out, then regardless of how he percei validity, he incurs a dukkata for not abandoning his intention (%). The fact that the bhi not free from an offense in the latter case is important: There are several other, similar poi the Vinaya -- such as the Buddha's advice to the Dhamma-expert in the controversy at Ko where for the sake of the harmony of the Community in cases that threaten to be divisive, advises bhikkhus to abandon controversial behavior and to yield to the mandate of the Co seems unjust. Non-offenses. The no-offense clauses, in addition to the usual exemp simply that there is no offense if the bhikkhu is not reprimanded or if he gives up his attem schism. Further steps. If the bhikkhu is truly stubborn, it is possible that he may conti his efforts at a schism even after this sanghadisesa is imposed on him. However, the fact Community met to deal with his case should be enough to alert well-meaning bhikkhus t schismatic is following a wrong course of action, and this should help unite the Community efforts. If they deem it necessary -- to keep the laity from being taken in by his argument may authorize one or more of their members to inform the lay community that the schisma this offense (see Pacittiya 9) and explain why. If the schismatic refuses to undergo the p remains divisive, they may suspend him from the entire Sangha. If, unrepentant, he leaves they may send word to whatever Community he tries to join. All of this shows one of reasons why schism is regarded so seriously: As the Buddha states in the Discourse on F (A.V.78), it is difficult to find time to practice when the Community is embroiled in controve way. Summary: To persist in one's attempts at a schism, after the third announc a formal rebuke in a meeting of the Community, is a sanghadisesa offense.

* * *

11.Should bhikkhus -- one, two, or three -- who are followers and partisans of that bhikkhu, say, "Do not, Ven. sirs, admonish that bhikkhu in any way exponent of the Dhamma, an exponent of the Vinaya. He acts with our consent and knows, he speaks for us, and that is pleasing to us," other bhikkhus are to admonish the thus: "Do not say that, Ven. sirs. That bhikkhu is not an exponent of the Dhamma and h exponent of the Vinaya. Do not, Ven. sirs, approve of a schism in the Community. L venerable ones' (minds) be reconciled with the Community, for a Community in concord complimentary terms, without dispute, with a common recitation, dwells in peace." should those bhikkhus, thus admonished, persist as before, the bhikkhus are to rebuke times so as to desist. If while being rebuked up to three times by the bhikkhus they that is good. If they do not desist, it entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. If the schismatic mentioned in the preceding rule begins to attract adhere are to be treated under this rule -- and quickly, before the schismatic gains a fourth adhere reasons are these: 1) One Community cannot impose a penalty on another Communi more bhikkhus) in any one formal act. (Mv.IX.2) 2) Penalties of this sort may be impos the unanimous agreement of all the bhikkhus present in the meeting. If there is a fo adherent present in the meeting, he can prevent the rebuke from being completed.

Sub-commentary points out, once a potential schismatic has gained four adherents, he following to go through with his split. The procedures for dealing with these partisan reprimanding them in private, admonishing and rebuking them in the midst of the Comm same as in the preceding rule. Summary: To persist in supporting a potential schismat after the third announcement of a formal rebuke in a meeting of the Community, is a sa offense. * * * 12.In case a bhikkhu is by nature difficult to admonish -- who, when being legitimately admonished by the bhikkhus with reference to the training rules included in the (Patimokkha) recitation, makes himself un (saying), "Do not, venerable ones, say anything to me, good or bad; and I will not s anything to the venerable ones, good or bad. Refrain, venerable ones, from admonishin bhikkhus should admonish him thus: "Let the venerable one not make himself unadm venerable one make himself admonishable. Let the venerable one admonish the bh accordance with what is right, and the bhikkhus will admonish the venerable one in acc what is right; for it is thus that the Blessed One's following is nurtured: through mutu admonition, through mutual rehabilitation." And should that bhikkhu, thus admoni the bhikkhus, persist as before, the bhikkhus are to be rebuke him up to three times desist. If while being rebuked up to three times he desists, that is good. If he does not d it entails initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. If a bhikkhu breaks any rules of the Vinaya without undergoing the penalties they entail, or if he breaks them hab when undergoing the penalties, the other bhikkhus have the duty to admonish him, as exp Sanghadisesa 8. If he shows disrespect while being admonished or refuses to mend his further penalty under Pacittiya 54. If his lack of respect while being admonished becomes to be treated under this rule. The Commentary defines //difficult to admonish// as "im to speak to," and then further clarifies by saying that a bhikkhu difficult to admonish is or cannot stand being criticized or who does not mend his ways after his faults are pointed ou It quotes from the Anumana Sutta (M.15) a list of traits, any one of which makes a bhikkhu admonish: He has evil desires; exalts himself and degrades others; is easily angered; bec he harbors ill will, holds a grudge, utters angry words; accused, he throws a tantrum (litera "explodes"); accused, he is insulting; accused, he returns the accusation; he evades back he does not respond; he is mean and spiteful; jealous and possessive; scheming and dec proud; attached to his own views, obstinate, unable to let them go. A good number o traits are exemplified by Ven. Channa -- according to tradition, the Buddha's horseman on great Going Forth -- in the origin story to this rule. "Who do you think you are to adm me? It is I who should admonish you! The Buddha is mine, the Dhamma is mine, it was young master that the Dhamma was realized. Just as a great blowing wind would gathe leaves, and rubbish, or a mountain-born river would gather up water weeds and scu going forth, have been gathered up from various names, various clans, various ancestri various families. Who do you think you are to admonish me? It is I who should admonis The procedures to follow when a bhikkhu is difficult to admonish -- reprimanding him in pr admonishing and rebuking him in a formal meeting of the Community -- are the same as u Sanghadisesa 10, beginning with the fact that a bhikkhu who, hearing that Bhikkhu X is be admonish, incurs a dukkata if he does not reprimand him. The question of perception and non-offenses are also the same as under that rule. If the bhikkhu difficult to admonish as before, even after incurring the full penalty under this rule, the Community may perfor banishment (//pabbajaniya-kamma//) against him for speaking in dispraise of the Commun if he admits to performing acts that are offenses but refuses to see that they are offense undergo the penalty -- the Community may exclude him from participating in the Patimokk ceremonies (Mv.IV.16.2; Cv.IX.2) or suspend him from the entire Sangha. (Cv.I.26; Cv.I.

Summary: To persist in being difficult to admonish, after the third announcement of a fo the Community, is a sanghadisesa offense. * * *
13.In case a bhikkhu living in dependence on a certain village or town is a corrupter of man of depraved conduct -- whose depraved conduct is both seen and heard abou families he has corrupted are both seen and heard about -- the bhikkhus are to admonis
"You, Ven. sir, are a corrupter of families, a man of depraved conduct. Your depraved both seen and heard about; the families you have corrupted are both seen and hea Leave this monastery, Ven. sir. Enough of your staying here." And should that b thus admonished by the bhikkhus, say about the bhikkhus, "The bhikkhus are prejudice favoritism, prejudiced by aversion, prejudiced by delusion, prejudiced by fear, in that for of offense they banish some and do not banish others," the bhikkhus are to admoni
"Do not say that, Ven. sir. The bhikkhus are not prejudiced by favoritism, are not prejudi aversion, are not prejudiced by delusion, are not prejudiced by fear. You, Ven. sir, are of families, a man of depraved conduct. Your depraved conduct is both seen and h and the families you have corrupted are both seen and heard about. Leave this monast Enough of your staying here." And should that bhikkhu, thus admonished by the persist as before, the bhikkhus are to rebuke him up to three times so as to desist. being rebuked up to three times he desists, that is good. If he does not desist, it ent initial and subsequent meetings of the Community. A //corrupter of families// is a bhikkh behaving in a demeaning, frivolous, or subservient way -- succeeds in ingratiating himse people to the point where they withdraw their support from bhikkhus who are earnest in th give it to those who are more ingratiating instead. This is illustrated in the origin story of rule, in which the followers of Assaji and Punabbasu (leaders of one faction of the group o thoroughly corrupted the lay people at Kitagiri. "Now at that time a certain bhikkhu, finished his rains-residence among the people of Kasi and on his way to Savatthi to Blessed One, arrived at Kitagiri. Arising early in the morning, taking his robe and bowl, h entered Kitagiri for alms: gracious in the way he approached and departed, looked forwa drew in and stretched out his arm; his eyes downcast, his every movement consum seeing him said, 'Who is this weakest of weaklings, this dullest of dullards, this most sno snobs? Who would go up and give him alms? Our masters, the followers of Assaji ar compliant, genial, pleasing in conversation. They are the first to smile, saying, "Com are welcome." //They// are not snobbish. They are approachable. They are the first to sp them that alms should be given."' The Vibhanga lists the ways of corrupting a family giving gifts of flowers, fruit, etc., practicing medicine, and delivering messages -- althoug Commentary qualifies this by saying there is no harm in delivering messages that have to activities, such as inviting bhikkhus to a meal or to deliver a sermon, or in conveying a la respects to a senior bhikkhu. //Depraved conduct// the Vibhanga defines merely as gro flowers and making them into garlands, but this, the Commentary says, is a shorthand refe list of bad habits mentioned in the origin story, which includes such things as presenting women, eating from the same dish with them, sharing a blanket with them, eating at the w drinking intoxicants, wearing garlands, using perfumes and cosmetics, dancing, singing, musical instruments, playing games, performing stunts, learning archery, swordsmanship, horsemanship; boxing and wrestling. Any one of these actions taken in isolation carries on penalty -- a dukkata or a pacittiya -- but if indulged in habitually to the point where its bad influence becomes "seen and heard about," i.e., common knowledge, it can become groun bhikkhus to banish him from their particular Community until he mends his ways. The in a section that begins with the same origin story as the one for this rule (Cv.I.13-16), trea of banishment in full detail, saying that a Community of bhikkhus, if it sees fit, has the au to perform an act of banishment against a bhikkhu with any of the following qualities: 1 maker of strife, disputes, quarrels, and issues in the Community. 2) He is ignorant, inexperienced, and has many offenses for which he has not made amends. 3) He live association with householders. 4) He is corrupt in his precepts, corrupt in his conduct, or corrupt in his views. 5) He speaks in dispraise of the Buddha, Dhamma, or Sangha. 6) in word, deed, or both. 7) He misbehaves in word, deed, or both. 8) He is vindictive in w or both. 9) He practices wrong modes of livelihood. This last category includes such p as: a) running messages and errands for kings, ministers of state, householders, et modern example would be participating in political campaigns. b) scheming, talking, h belittling others for the sake of material gain; pursuing gain with gain (giving items of sm value in hopes of receiving items of larger value in return, making investments in hopes offering material incentives to those who make donations). (For a full discussion of practices, see Ven. Nanamoli's translation of the Visuddhi Magga, //The Path of Purifica 24-30.) c) Practicing worldly arts, e.g., medicine, fortune telling, astrology, exorcism, reciting charms, casting spells, performing ceremonies to counteract the influence of the determining propitious sites, setting auspicious dates (for weddings, etc.), interpreti oracles, auguries, or dreams, or -- in the words of the Vibhanga to the Bhikkhunis' Pacit

-- engaging in any art that is "external and unconnected with the goal." The Cullava (V.33.2) gives a dukkata for studying and teaching worldly arts or hedonist doctrines (//l For extensive lists of worldly arts, see the Brahmajala and Samannaphala Suttas -- and pp. 35-38 in Ven. Bodhi's translations. For the connection between lokayata and he the Kama Sutra), see Warder, //Outline of Indian Philosophy//, pp. 38-39. A bhikkhu for indulging in any of these activities is duty-bound to undergo the 18 observances listed i to mend his ways so that the Community will revoke the act of banishment. The Comme bhikkhu banished for corrupting families may not live in the monastery where he was mis enter the city or town where he was corrupting families, until after the banishment is revok is based on Cv.I.16.1). Also, even after the revoking of the banishment, he may never ag gifts from the families he had corrupted. If they ask him why, he may tell them. If they then they are giving the gifts not because of his former behavior but because he has now me he may then accept it. If a bhikkhu, instead of mending his ways after being banished, criticizes the act of banishment or those who performed it, he is subject to this rule. The pr follow in dealing with him -- reprimanding him in private, admonishing and rebuking him in meeting of the Community -- is the same as under Sanghadisesa 10, beginning with the fa who, hearing that Bhikkhu X is criticizing his act of banishment, incurs a dukkata if he does reprimand him. The question of perception and the non-offenses are also the same as und Summary: To persist -- after the third announcement of a formal rebuke in the Comm criticizing an act of banishment performed against oneself is a sanghadisesa offens
* * * A bhikkhu who commits an offense against any of these thirteen sanghadisesa offenses is duty-bound to inform a fellow bhikkhu and to ask a Co least four bhikkhus to impose a six-day period of penance (//manatta//) on him. (The Cano literally, a six-night period: At the time of the Buddha, the lunar calendar was in use and, we using the solar calendar count the passage of days, they counted the passage of night period, which is a day for us, would be a night for them, as in the Bhaddekaratta Sutta (M.
Buddha explicitly says that a person who spends a day and night in earnest practice has h "auspicious night.") Penance. Penance does not begin immediately, but only at the c of the Community giving it. During his period of penance, the offender is partially stripped and must observe a number of restrictions -- 94 in all (Cv.II.5-6). The four most importan
1) He must not live under the same roof as a full-fledged bhikkhu. 2) He must live in monastery with at least four full-fledged bhikkhus. 3) He may not go anywhere out monastery unless accompanied by four full-fledged bhikkhus. 4) Every day he mu the bhikkhus in the monastery of the fact that he is observing penance and the precise which the penance was imposed. If visiting bhikkhus come to the monastery, he must well; if he goes to another monastery, he must inform all the bhikkhus there, too. If any day of his penance, the bhikkhu neglects to observe any of these four restrictions, tha count toward the total of six. In addition, he incurs a dukkata each time he fails to observ the 94 restrictions. Once the bhikkhu has completed his penance, he may ask a Comm least 20 bhikkhus to give him rehabilitation. Once rehabilitated, he returns to his previous s full-fledged bhikkhu in good standing. Probation. If a bhikkhu who commits a sangha offense conceals it from his fellow bhikkhus past dawn of the day following the offense, h observe an additional period of probation (//parivasa//) for the same number of days as he offense. Only after he has completed his probation may he then ask for the six-day perio The Commentary sets the factors of concealment at ten, which may be arranged in fiv follows: 1) He has committed a sanghadisesa offense and perceives it as a sangha offense. 2) He has not been suspended and perceives that he has not been suspe bhikkhu has been suspended, no other bhikkhus will speak with him, and thus he canno after his suspension has been lifted.) 3) There are no obstacles (e.g., a flood, a fo fire, dangerous animals) and he perceives that there are none. 4) He is able to inf another bhikkhu (i.e., a fellow bhikkhu suitable to be informed lives in a place that may b in that day, one is not too weak or ill to go, etc.) and he perceives that he is able. // bhikkhu suitable to be informed// means a one who is -- a) in good standing (e.g. undergoing penance or probation himself) and b) not on unfriendly terms with the

5) He (the offender) desires to conceal the offense and so conceals it. If any o these factors are lacking, there is no penalty for not informing another bhikkhu that day. Fo the following cases do //not// count as concealment: A bhikkhu is not sure whether o action he has done qualifies as a sanghadisesa and so waits until he can consult w knowledgeable bhikkhu before informing anyone else. A bhikkhu lives alone in a forest sanghadisesa in the middle of the night. Afraid of the snakes or other wild animals l encounter in the dark, he waits until daylight before going to inform a fellow bhikkhu. bhikkhu lives alone in a forest, but the only other bhikkhu within one day's traveling time personal enemy who, if he is informed, will use this as an opportunity to smear the offen name, so the offender travels another day or two before reaching a friendly bhikkhu who Once all of the first eight factors are complete, though, one must inform another bhikk dawn of the next day or else incur a dukkata and undergo the penalty for concealment. who commits a slighter offense that he thinks is a sanghadisesa and then conceals it, incu (Cv.III.34.1). The restrictions for a bhikkhu undergoing probation are similar to those undergoing penance and are discussed in detail at Cv.II.1. Sanghadisesas are class heavy offenses (//garukapatti//), both because of the seriousness of the offenses themselv because the procedures of penance, probation, and rehabilitation are burdensome by des the offender but also for the Community of bhikkhus in which he lives -- a fact intended to added deterrent to anyone who feels tempted to transgress. * * * * * * *

CHAPTER SIX Aniyata

This term means undetermined or uncertain. The rules in this section do not determine fixed penalties, but instead give procedures by which the Commu judgment when a bhikkhu in uncertain circumstances is accused of having committed an are two training rules here. 1. Should any bhikkhu sit in private, alone with a woman a seat secluded enough to lend itself (to the sexual act), so that a female lay follower w can be trusted, having seen (them), might describe it as constituting any of three ca involving either defeat, communal meetings, or confession -- then the bhikkhu, acknowl sat (there), may be dealt with for any of the three cases -- involving defeat, commun meetings, or confession -- or he may be dealt with for whichever case the female lay fol described. This case is undetermined. //Woman// here means a female human being, that very day, all the more an older one." //To sit// also includes lying down. Whether th sits near the woman when she is already seated, or the woman sits near him when he is a both sit down at the same time, makes no difference here. //Private// means private t and private to the ear. Two people sitting in a place private to the eye means that no one see if they wink, raise their eyebrows, or nod. If they are in a place private to the ear, no c can hear what they say in an normal voice. A secluded seat is one behind a wall, a closed large bush, or anything at all that would afford them enough privacy to commit the sexual a For a bhikkhu to sit in such a place with a woman can be in itself a breach of Pacittiya 44 (explanations for that rule) and affords the opportunity for breaking Parajika 1 and Sanghad 2, 3, & 4 as well -- which is why this case is called uncertain or undetermined. If a trustworthy female lay follower happens to see a bhikkhu with a woman in such circumstar inform the Community and charge him on the basis of what she has seen. //Female lay means one who has taken refuge in the Buddha, Dhamma, and Sangha. //Trustworthy// m least a Stream-winner. Even if she is not a Stream-winner, the Community may chose t case anyway; but if she is, they have to. The texts do not discuss cases in which a man is charge but, given the low legal status of women in the Buddha's time, it seems reasonable a woman's word was given such weight, the same would hold true for a man's. In other w a Stream-winner, the Community has to investigate the case. If he isn't, they are free to h or not, as they see fit. The wording of the rule suggests that once the matter is investigated and the bhikkhu in question has stated his side of the story, the bhikkhus are the case either in line with what he admits to having done or in line with the trustworthy fer follower's charge. In other words, if his admission and her charge are at variance, they ma side seems to be telling the truth and impose a penalty -- or no penalty -- on the bhikkhu fit. The Vibhanga, however, says that they may deal with him only in line with what h to having done. The Commentary offers no explanations for this point aside from saying t cases things are not always as they seem, citing as example the story of an arahant who charged by another bhikkhu of having broken Pacittiya 44. Actually, the Vibhanga in from the wording of the rule is simply following the general guideline the Khandhakas give handling accusations. Apparently what happened was that this rule and the following one early on. Later, when the general guidelines were first worked out, some group-of-six bhik the system to impose penalties on innocent bhikkhus they didn't like (Mv.IX.3.1), so the Bu a number of checks to prevent the system from working against the innocent. We will co guidelines in detail under the Adhikarana-Samatha rules, but here we may note a few of th important features. As explained under Sanghadisesa 8, if Bhikkhu X is charged with a the bhikkhus who learn of the charge are duty-bound to question him first in private. If he charge, agrees that it is an offense, and then undergoes the penalty, nothing further nee (Mv.IX.5.6). If he admits that he did the act, but refuses to see that it is an offense and/or undergo the penalty, then if the act really did constitute an offense, the Community may suspend him (Mv.IX.5.8; Cv.I.26). The Khandhakas (Mv.IX.1.3 and Cv.XI.1.10) show that offense" does //not// mean that one denies doing the act; simply that one does not agree th against any of the rules. If, however, X denies the charge, and yet some of the membe Community suspect him of not telling the truth, the issue has to go to a formal meeting. O reaches this stage, one of only three verdicts is possible: that the accused is innocent, tha insane at the time he committed the offense (and so absolved of guilt), or that he is not on charged but also guilty of "further misconduct" in having dragged out his confession to this (Cv.IV.14.27-29). If the last verdict is the true one, then the bhikkhu must not only underg for the offense but also be penalized with an act of further misconduct, which is the sam of censure. (Cv.IV.11-12) When the Community meets, both the accused and the acc present, and both must agree to the case's being heard by that particular group. (If the ori is a lay person, one of the bhikkhus is to take up the charge.) The accused is then asked his version of the story and is to be dealt with in accordance with what he admits to having (Mv.IX.6.1-4). The Cullavagga (IV.14.29) shows that the other bhikkhus are not to take statement at face value. They should press and cross-examine him until they are all satis telling the truth, and only then may they pass one of the three verdicts mentioned above necessary, they should be prepared to spend many hours in the meeting to arrive at a una for if they cannot come to a unanimous agreement, the case has to be left as unsettled, very bad question mark to leave in the communal life. The Commentary to Sanghadisesa one side or the other seems unreasonably stubborn, the senior bhikkhus present should in long periods of chanting to wear down the stubborn side. If a verdict is reached bu discovered to be wrong -- the accused got away with a plea of innocence when actually gu admitted to being guilty simply to end the interrogation when actually innocent -- the Comm reopen the case and reach a new verdict (Cv.IV.4.11; Cv.IV.8). If a bhikkhu learns that a bhikkhu actually was guilty and yet got away with a verdict of innocence, and he then help truth, he is guilty of an offense under Pacittiya 64. Obviously, the main thrust of these guidelines is to prevent an innocent bhikkhu from being unfairly penalized. As for the oppo

-- a guilty bhikkhu getting away with no penalty -- we should remember that the laws of kar that in the long run he is not getting away with anything at all. Although these guidel supercede both Aniyata rules, the rules still serve two important functions: 1) They r the bhikkhus that charges made by lay people are not to be lightly ignored, and that the Bu point was willing to let the bhikkhus give more weight to the word of a female lay followe that of the accused bhikkhu. This in itself, considering the general position of women in In at the time, is remarkable. 2) As we will see under Pacittiya 44, it is possible under s circumstances -- depending on the bhikkhu's state of mind -- to sit alone with a woman in a without incurring a penalty. Still, a bhikkhu should not blithely take advantage of the exe under that rule, for even if his motives are pure, it doesn't look good to anyone who may co see him there. These rules serve to remind such a bhikkhu that he could easily be subje that would lead to a formal meeting of the Community. Even if he were to be declared inn meeting would waste a great deal of time both for himself and for the Community. And i minds -- given the Vibhanga's general rule that he is innocent until proven guilty -- there w remain the belief that he was actually guilty and got off with no penalty simply from lack of evidence. A bhikkhu would be wise to avoid such situations altogether, remembering wha told Ven. Udayin in the origin story to this rule: "It is unfitting, sir, and improper, for the master to sit in private, alone with a woman....Even though the master may not be aimin it is difficult to convince those who are unbelievers." Summary: When a trustworthy follower accuses a bhikkhu of having committed a parajika, sanghadisesa, or pacitt while sitting alone with a woman in a private, secluded place, the Community should inv the charge and deal with the bhikkhu in accordance with whatever he admits to having
* * * 2.In case a seat is not sufficiently secluded to lend itself (to the sexual act) but sufficiently so to address lewd words to a woman, shou bhikkhu sit in private, alone with a woman in such a seat, so that a female lay follower word can be trusted, having seen them, would describe it as constituting either of two ca involving communal meetings or confession -- then the bhikkhu, acknowledging hav (there), is to be dealt with for either of the two cases -- involving communal meetings or
-- or he is to be dealt with for whichever case the female lay follower described. Th too is undetermined. This rule differs from the preceding one mainly in the type of seat describes -- private to the eye and private to the ear, but not secluded. Examples would b meeting hall or a place out in the open far enough away from other people so that they cou one wink, etc., or hear what one is saying in a normal voice. Such a place, although incon committing Parajika 1, Sanghadisesas 1 & 2, or Pacittiya 44, would be convenient for co Sanghadisesas 3 & 4 or Pacittiya 45. As a result, the term //woman// under this rule is def those rules: one experienced enough to know what is and is not lewd. Otherwise, all explanations for this rule are the same as under the preceding rule. Summary: Whe trustworthy female lay follower accuses a bhikkhu of having committed a sanghadisesa offense while sitting alone with a woman in a private place, the Community should inv charge and deal with the bhikkhu in accordance with whatever he admits to having

* * * * * * * *

CHAPTER SEVEN

Nissaggiya Pacittiya

~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

The term //nissaggiya//, used in connection with training rules, means "entailing forfeitur in connection with articles, it means "to be forfeited." //Pacittiya// is a word of uncertain etymology. The Parivara gives a didactic derivation -- that it means letting skillful qualities (//patati//) with a deluded mind (//citta//) -- but the term is more likely related to the verb //pacinati// (pp. //pacita//), which means to discern, distinguish or know. Each of the r in this category involves an object that a bhikkhu has acquired or used wrongly, and that h before he may "make the offense known" -- confess it -- to a fellow bhikkhu or group of b he has made his confession, he is absolved from the offense. In most cases, the forfeitur symbolic -- after his confession, he receives the article in return -- although three of the rul that the offender give up the article for good. There are thirty rules in this category, divided into three chapters (//vagga//) of ten rules each.

Part One: The Robe-cloth Chapter

~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

bhikkhu has finished his robe-making and the frame is destroyed (his kathina privileges abeyance), he is to keep an extra robe-cloth ten days at most. Beyond that, it is to forfeited and confessed. The origin story for this rule is retold with more detail in the Mahavagga (VIII.13.4-8). Since the added details are what make it interesting, that is the translated here. "(The Buddha addresses the bhikkhus:) 'As I was on the road fro to Vesali, I saw many bhikkhus coming along buried in robe-cloth, with a mattress of rob their heads and a mattress of robe-cloth on their backs, and a mattress of robe-clot hips. Seeing them, I thought, "All too soon have these foolish men come under the luxury in terms of robe-cloth. What if I were to set a boundary, to lay down a restriction robe-cloth for the bhikkhus." '"Then traveling by stages, I came to Vesali. There stayed at the Gotamaka Shrine. Now at that time, during the cold winter middle-eigh four nights on either side of the full moon in February, the coldest time of the year i India) when snow was falling, I sat outside wearing one robe and was not cold. Toward first watch I became cold. I put on a second robe and was not cold. Towards the e middle watch I became cold. I put on a third robe and was not cold. Towards the end o final watch, as dawn arose and the night smiled, I became cold. I put on a fourth robe a cold. The thought occurred to me, "Those in this doctrine and discipline who are so respectable families -- sensitive to cold and afraid of the cold -- even they are able to ge by with three robes. Suppose I were to set a boundary, to lay down a restriction on robe bhikkhus and were to allow three robes." Bhikkhus, I allow you three robes: a dou outer robe, a single-layer upper robe and a single-layer inner robe (thus, four layers of c "Now at that time, some group-of-six bhikkhus, thinking, 'The Blessed One allows t entered the village wearing one set of robes, stayed in the monastery wearing anot went down to bathe in still another. Modest bhikkhus... were offended and annoyed and about, 'How can the group of six bhikkhus keep extra robe-cloth?' They told this matte Blessed One. He...addressed the bhikkhus, saying, 'Bhikkhus, an extra robe-cloth kept.' "Now at that time an extra robe-cloth accrued to Ven. Ananda, and he wa give it to Ven. Sariputta, but Ven. Sariputta was at Saketa. He thought, '...Now what sh do?' He told this matter to the Blessed One, who said, 'But how long is it, Ananda, befo will come here?' "'Nine or ten days.' "Then the Blessed One...addressed the bhikkhus, 'I allow an extra robe-cloth to be kept at most ten days.' "Now at that an extra robe accrued to the bhikkhus. They thought, 'Now what should we do?' They matter to the Blessed One, who said, 'I allow you, bhikkhus, to place an extra robe-cloth ownership.'" The offense under this rule involves two factors: 1) //Object//: a pie of extra robe-cloth, i.e., a piece of cloth suitable to be made into a robe or other cloth requ measuring at least four by eight inches (fingerbreadths), that has not been formally determ placed under dual ownership. This category includes finished requisites as well as simple cloth, but does not include robe-cloth belonging to the Community. 2) //Effort//: One for more than ten days (except during the allowed period) without determining it for use, pl dual ownership, abandoning it (giving or throwing it away); or without the cloth's being lo destroyed, burnt, stolen or taken by someone else on trust within that time. Object. A to the Mahavagga (VIII.3.1), six kinds of cloth are suitable for making into cloth requisites: cotton, silk, wool, hemp or canvas (any of the five preceding types mixed with jute). By nylon, rayon and other synthetic fibers would count as suitable as well. Unsuitable materi cloth made of hair, horse-hair, grass, bark, wood-shavings or antelope hide (and by exte leather) -- do not come under this rule. (For a full list of unsuitable materials, see Mv.VIII.2 Mv.VIII.29 gives a list of colors -- such as black, blue and crimson -- and patterns that are for robes but that, according to the Commentary, are suitable for things like handkerchiefs sheets. Pieces of cloth dyed these colors or printed with these patterns //would// come un

If a bhikkhu receives a piece of suitable cloth measuring four by eight fingerbreadths but does not yet plan to use it, he may place it under dual ownership (//vikappana//) until h for it. Once he decides to make use of the cloth, he must rescind the dual ownership (se 59) before making it into a finished requisite (if it isn't already). Once it is finished, he may determine it for use (//adhitthana//) or place it under dual ownership again, depending on the article: Each of the three basic robes, handkerchiefs, bed sheets and the sitting are to be determined, and may not be placed under dual ownership. //A rains-bath (see NP 24) may be determined for the four months of the rainy season, and is to be pla ownership for the remainder of the year. //A skin-eruption cloth// (see Pacittiya 90) be determined when needed and is to be placed under dual ownership when not.
of cloth// may be determined as "accessory cloths." (The procedures for determining a under dual ownership are given in Appendices IV & V.) Any cloth made of any of t materials and of the requisite size counts as an extra cloth if -- it has not been determined for use or put under dual ownership, it has been improperly determined or pl ownership, or its determination or dual ownership has lapsed. Many of the cas which determination and dual ownership lapse also exempt the cloth from this rule: e.g., t disrobes or dies, he gives the cloth away, it gets stolen, destroyed (bitten by things such termites, says the Commentary), burnt, lost, or someone else takes it on trust. There are a however, where determination and dual ownership lapse and the cloth //does// fall under They are -- //Under dual ownership//: The first owner takes the cloth on trust; or the s owner formally rescinds the dual ownership. //Under determination//: The owner rescin determination; or (if the cloth has been determined as one of the three basic robes) the c develops a hole. This latter case comes in the Commentary, which gives precise standard what kind of hole does and does not make the determination of the robe lapse: 1) //S hole has to be a full break (through both layers of cloth, if in the outer robe) at least the of the nail on one's little finger. If one or more threads remains across the hole, t the hole makes the determination lapse only if either of the two "halves" divided by the is the requisite size. 2) //Location//. On an upper robe or outer robe, the hole h to be at least one span (25 cm.) from the longer side and eight fingerbreadths fro shorter; on an under robe, at least one span from the longer side and four fingerbreadt shorter. Any hole closer to the edge of the robe than these measurements does n determination lapse. Because of these stipulations, the Commentary notes that if one is a worn spot -- not a hole as defined above -- the requisite distance away from the edge of determination lapses if one cuts out the worn spot before applying the patch, but not if o the patch before cutting out the worn spot. If the determination lapses, it is an easy matter redetermine the robe, but one must be mindful to do it within the time span allotted by th Effort. According to the Vibhanga, if one keeps a piece of extra robe-cloth past the ele (except when the end-of-vassa and kathina privileges are in effect), one commits the full o under this rule. The Commentary explains this by saying that the dawn of the day on whic the cloth, or lets its determination/dual ownership lapse, counts as the first dawn. Thus t eleventh dawn would actually be the tenth dawn after one receives, etc., the cloth. (The p definition of dawn is a controversial point. See Appendix I.) Perception is not a mitig factor here. Even if one miscounts the days, or perceives a robe to be determined when it not, one is not immune from the offense: The robe is to be forfeited and the offense confe

To use such a robe or piece of robe-cloth before one has forfeited it and confessed the of a dukkata. This point holds for each of the nissaggiya pacittiya rules. End-of-vassa & privileges. The fourth lunar month of the rainy season -- beginning the day after the first fu October and lasting to dawn of the day following the next full moon -- is termed the robe period traditionally given over to robe-making. In the early days, when most bhikkhus spe and hot seasons wandering, and stayed put in one place only during the Rains, this would ideal period to prepare robes for their wandering, and would have been the ideal time for la who had come to know the bhikkhus during the Rains to show their gratitude and respect t presenting them with gifts of cloth for this purpose. During this robe season, six of th training rules -- NP 1, 2, & 3; Pacittiyas 32, 33, & 46 -- are relaxed as a privilege for bhik have observed the three-month rains residence (//vassa//), to make it more convenient for robes. Also, any cloth accruing to a particular monastery during this period may be shar the bhikkhus who spent the Rains there, and not with any incoming visitors. If the bh have spent the Rains in a particular monastery number five or more, they are also entitled in a //kathina// ceremony in which they receive a gift of cloth from lay people, bestow it o their members, and then as a group make it into a robe before dawn of the following day. means frame, and refers to the frame over which the robe-cloth is stretched, much like th in America to make a quilt.) After participating in this ceremony, the bhikkhus may take the above-mentioned privileges for an additional four lunar months, up to the dawn after th that ends the cold season in late February or early-to-mid March (called Phagguna in Pa a bhikkhu's kathina privileges may be rescinded earlier than that for either of two reasons: He participates in a meeting in which all the bhikkhus in the monastery, as a formal act Community, voluntarily relinquish their kathina privileges. (This act is discussed un Bhikkhunis' Pacittiya 30 -- see BD, vol. III, p. 302.) 2) He comes to the end both of his commitment to the monastery (//avasa-palibodha//) and of his commitment to making a (//civara-palibodha//). (See Mv.VII.1.7; Mv.VII.2 & Pv.XIV.6.) a) Commitment to the mo when either of the following things happen: -- One leaves the monastery without in to return before the four lunar months are up. -- One has left the monastery, planni return, but learns that the bhikkhus in the monastery have formally decided to rel their kathina privileges. b) Commitment to making a robe ends when any of the following occur: -- One finishes making a robe. -- One decides not to make a robe, -- On robe-cloth gets lost. -- One expects to obtain robe-cloth, but doesn't obtain it as expected. Only if Point 1 happens, or //both// Points 2a and 2b happen, do one's kathi privileges lapse before the dawn after the full moon day marking the end of the cold seaso During the period in which one's end-of-vassa privileges or kathina privileges are in effect, an extra piece of robe-cloth for more than ten days without committing an offense under Once these privileges lapse, though, one must determine the cloth, place it under dual ow abandon it within ten days. If one fails to do so by the 'eleventh dawn' after the privilege the cloth is to be forfeited and the offense confessed. Forfeiture & confession. To be absolved of the offense under this rule, one must first forfeit the robe-cloth kept over ten da then confess the offense. This may be done in the presence of one other bhikkhu, a group or a Community of four or more. After confessing the offense, one receives the robe-cloth This is the pattern followed under all the nissaggiya pacittiya rules, except for the few in wh forfeiture and confession must be done in the presence of a full Community, and in whic may not be returned to the offender. (We will note these rules as we come to them.)

formulae to use in forfeiture, confession and return of the article for this and all the followin are given in Appendix VI. We should note, though, that according to the Commentary o these procedures in any language at all. In this and every other rule under which the a be returned to the offender, it //must// be returned to him. According to the Vibhanga, a receives the article being forfeited without returning it incurs a dukkata. The Commentary this by saying that this penalty applies only to the bhikkhu who assumes that, in receiving being forfeited in this way, it is his to take as he likes. For the bhikkhu who knows that it is his to take -- and this includes every bhikkhu who has read this passage and remembered is to be treated under Parajika 2, and the penalty determined by the value of the article.
this light, the act of accepting the forfeited article is like accepting an object placed in trust A bhikkhu who has received the robe-cloth in return after forfeiting it and confessing the use it again without penalty, unless he keeps it as a piece of extra robe-cloth for more th additional ten days. Non-offenses. Aside from extra robe-cloth kept more than ten day one's end-of-vassa or kathina privileges are in effect, the Vibhanga says that there is no o within ten days the cloth is determined, placed under dual ownership, lost, stolen, destroye taken by someone else on trust, thrown away, or given away. In connection with this la Commentary discusses proper and improper ways of giving things away. The article coun been properly given if one says, "I give this to you," or "I give this to so-and-so" or "Take th yours," but not if one says things like, "Make this yours," or "May this be yours." Appare one simply hands the article over without saying anything to show that one is transferring again does not count. As we noted above, perception is not a mitigating factor under thi one gives extra robe-cloth away in an improper manner, then even though one may assun been given away, it still counts as one's own extra robe-cloth under this rule. Curre practice. As the origin story shows, the purpose of this rule was to prevent bhikkhus from than one set of the three robes at any one time. With the passage of time, though, gifts the Community became more numerous, and the need for stringency in this matter becam Exactly when spare robes became accepted is not recorded, although the passage on a to his preceptor (Mv.I.25.9) shows that the practice of having a spare lower robe was alrea when that part of the Canon was compiled (see Appendix VIII). Mv.VII.1 also makes ment forest dwelling monks who were "wearers of the three robes," as if this were a special di characteristic. The Parivara (V.5) mentions the practice of using only one set of three robe and the Visuddhi Magga (5th century A.D.) classes this practice as one of the thirteen o //dhutanga// (ascetic) practices. As we will see below, Pacittiya 92 suggests that in the days the under, upper, and outer robes were all nearly the same size, so there would ha difficulties in washing one robe and using the other two while the first one dried. Later, wh compilers of the ancient commentaries greatly enlarged the size of the upper and outer deciding that the Buddha was much larger than an ordinary human being, getting by with three robes became less convenient. Thus many teachers at present suggest that even when staying in monasteries, should use one spare under robe or a spare under and uppe will have no trouble keeping his robes clean and presenting an acceptable appearance a and save the three-robe dhutanga practice for periods when alone in the wilderness.

rate, since only one set of three robes may be determined as such, spare robes -- once th generally accepted -- were determined as "accessory cloths." This point may be inferred f Commentary's explanation of this rule, and the Sub-commentary's explanation of NP 7. T contains a discussion of the views of various elders as to whether or not a bhikkhu who avoid the special rules surrounding the use of the three robes (such as the following rule) his basic set as accessory cloths as well. The majority opinion -- with only one dissentin was yes, although at present many Communities do not agree with this opinion. The Sub-commentary suggests an alternative way of dealing with spare robes: placing them u and -- since none of the three robes may be placed under dual ownership -- calling them (//civara//). This, however, plays havoc with Pacittiya 59, and the general use of the idea o ownership in the Canon, as a way of keeping cloth that one is not yet using. Still, bot methods of dealing with spare robes -- determining them as "accessory cloths" and placing ownership as "cloths" -- are in practice at present. And since spare robes have been ac current effect of this rule is mainly to deter a bhikkhu from hoarding up robe-cloth in secret letting a hole in any of his basic set of three robes go unmended for more than ten days. Nevertheless, the spirit of the rule makes it incumbent on each bhikkhu to keep his cloth re minimum. Summary: Keeping a piece of robe-cloth for more than ten days withou it for use or placing it under dual ownership -- except when the end-of-vassa or kathina privileges are in effect -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. *
* * 2.When a bhikkhu has finished his robe-making and the frame is destroyed kathina privileges are in abeyance): If he dwells apart from (any of) his three robes eve night -- unless authorized by the bhikkhus -- it is to be forfeited and confessed. the origin story here, a number of bhikkhus went off on tour, leaving their outer robes with at the monastery. Eventually the robes became moldy, and the bhikkhus at the monastery with having to sun them to get rid of the mold. The Buddha thus formulated this rule so tha would be responsible for looking after their own robes. The offense here consists of tw object and effort. Object: any one of the robes that a bhikkhu has determined as his of three -- the //antaravasaka// (under robe), //uttarasanga// (upper robe) and //sanghati// (This rule thus does not apply to spare robes or other cloth requisites. Effort: greeting at a place outside of the zone in which any of ones robes are located, except when the exc mentioned in the rule are in effect. //Dawn// is a concept that would seem intuitive en but the lack of a definition for the term in the Vibhanga has given rise to a variety of later interpretations. The Khuddasikkha -- a Vinaya manual written by Ven. Dhammasiri, a Sri 11th or 12th century -- states that the sky lightens in four stages before sunrise: a slight reddening 2 hours before sunrise; a slight whitening 1/2 hour later; a second reddening 48 sunrise; and a second whitening 24 minutes after that. Burmese, Sri Lankan, and some tend to follow this analysis, and differ among themselves only as to which of the four stage constitutes dawn, most of them favoring the first reddening. Other Thai bhikkhus ignore th entirely, and say that dawn occurs in the half hour before the point when, by natural light, see the lines in one's hand while holding it out at arm's length. Appendix I discusses passage from the Canon -- M. 66 -- that suggests that the first reddening and whitening is the dawn meant by the Vibhanga, but as with many other controversial points of this sor policy is usually to adhere to the traditions of one's Community. //Zones//. This is the complex facet of this rule. The zone where a bhikkhu must be at dawn depends on the typ where his robes are placed, whether or not the property around the location is enclosed (w fence, or a body of water such as a moat, river, or lake, says the Sub-commentary) and -- enclosed -- whether it belongs to one or more than one //kula//. The term //kula// has d meanings for the different types of locations. According to the Commentary, a village, tow is one-kula if ruled by a single ruler, and multi-kula if ruled by a council -- as in the case of and Kusinara during the time of the Buddha. At present, cities or towns governed under a contract -- such as a town charter -- would count as multi-kula regardless of whether the h authority in the government is invested in a single individual or not. A building, a veh a piece of land is one-kula if it belongs to one family, and multi-kula if it belongs to more th in an apartment house). According to the Sub-commentary, a monastery is one-kula people who initiated it belong to one kula -- of either type, apparently -- and multi-kula if th to several. What follows is a synopsis of the specific places listed in the Vibhanga, to with explanations from the commentaries: 1. //A village, town, or city//: a. Enclose one-kula: If the robes are in the enclosure, one may greet dawn anywhere in the encl b. Enclosed and multi-kula: If the robes are in a house, greet dawn anywhere in th the public meeting hall, at the town gate, or one //hatthapasa// (1.25 meters) around ar these places (%). If the robes are in the public meeting hall or in the area one hattha around it, greet dawn in the public meeting hall, at the town gate, or in the area one hatthapasa around either of the two. c. Unenclosed: If the robes are in a one-kula d greet dawn in the house, or in the area one hatthapasa around it (%). (See 2 & 3 for further details.) 2. //A dwelling with a yard//: a. Enclosed and one-kula: If the robes are within the enclosure, greet dawn anywhere within the enclosure. b. and multi-kula: Greet dawn in the room where the robes are located, at the entrance t enclosure, or in the area one hatthapasa around either of the two (%). c. Uner Greet dawn in the room where the robes are located, or in the area one hatthapasa ar 3. //A monastic dwelling// (vihara -- //according to the Sub-commentary, this inclu entire monasteries//): a. Enclosed and one-kula: If the robes are within the enclosure, greet dawn anywhere within the enclosure. b. Enclosed and multi-kula: Greet dawn dwelling where the robes are located, at the entrance to the enclosure, or in the a hatthapasa around either of the two (%). c. Unenclosed: Greet dawn in the dwelling robes are located or in the area one hatthapasa around it (%). 4. //A field, orcha garden (park) or threshing floor//: a. Enclosed and one-kula: If the robes are within th enclosure, greet dawn anywhere within the enclosure. b. Enclosed and multi-kula: robes are within the enclosure, greet dawn in the area one hatthapasa around the to the enclosure or in the area one hatthapasa around the robes. c. Unenclos Greet dawn within one hatthapasa of the robes. 5. //Buildings with no yard (such as a or city apartment block)//: a. One-kula: If the robes are in the building, greet dawn anywhere within the building. b. Multi-kula: Greet dawn within the room where t are located or in the area one hatthapasa around it (%). 6. //A boat (and by extension, other vehicles)//: a. One-kula: If the robes are in the vehicle, greet dawn anywhere within the vehicle. b. Multi-kula (as in a commercial airplane or bus): If th is within a room, greet dawn in the room or in the area one hatthapasa around it (For this reason, a bhikkhu traveling in an airplane overnight should wear his complete of robes or have it with him in his cabin baggage, rather than in his checked baggage. //A caravan (according to the Sub-commentary, this includes groups traveling by foot a cart; group hiking trips would thus be included here)//: a. One-kula: If the robes a anywhere in the caravan, greet dawn anywhere up to seven //abbhantaras// (98 meter of or behind the robes, or up to one abbhantara (14 meters) to either side. b Multi-kula: If the robes are anywhere in the caravan, greet dawn within one hatthapas caravan. 8. //At the foot of a tree//: a. One-kula: If the robes are in the area shaded by the tree at noon, greet dawn within that area. According to the Comm this doesn't include spots where sun leaks through gaps in the foliage, so be careful. b. Multi-kula (as a tree on the boundary between two pieces of land): Greet dawn wit hatthapasa of the robes. 9. //In a wilderness area (where there are no villages)//: Greet dawn anywhere within a seven-abbhantara (98 meter) radius of the robes. 1 other areas//: If the robes are located in a place other than those mentioned abov (e.g., in the unshaded yard of an unenclosed monastery), greet dawn within one hattha robes. Exemptions. 1) As in the preceding rule, this rule does not apply when the enc and kathina privileges are in effect. 2) In the origin story to this rule, the Buddha gives permission for a Community of bhikkhus to authorize an ill bhikkhu to be separated from dawn throughout the course of his illness without penalty. This authorization is to be given formal act with one motion and one announcement (//natti-dutiya-kamma//). The Com discusses how long this authorization is to last, and concludes that once the bhikkhu has r should make every reasonable effort to get back to his robes as soon as possible withou his health. The authorization then automatically subsides, with no further formal act being

If his illness returns, the authorization is automatically reinstated. 3) In Mv.II.12.1-3, Buddha directs the bhikkhus to declare a //sima// -- or territory in which formal acts of the C are enacted -- as a //ticivara-avippavasa//, which means that if a bhikkhu's robes are any the territory, he may greet dawn at any other part of that territory without committing an off under this rule. In the early days, when such a territory might cover many monasteries (th allowable size is 3x3 //yojanas//, approximately 48x48 kilometers), this was a definite co for bhikkhus who had to leave one monastery to join in Community meetings at another or territory. Since it was possible for such territories to include villages and homes as well, Buddha added the extra stipulation that robes left in the houses of lay people lying in such were not covered by this exemption. At present the custom is to designate much sma simas -- usually only a fraction of the land in one monastery -- and although these can a designated as ticivara-avippavasa, this arrangement in such cases is not the great conven the larger simas. Forfeiture & confession. If a bhikkhu greets dawn outside of the where any one of his three determined robes is placed -- except when the exemptions are robe is to be forfeited and the offense confessed. Perception and intention are not mitigat factors here. If he thinks that he is in the same zone when he actually isn't, if he thinks the not determined when it actually is, or if he means to be in the same zone when circumsta him, he incurs the penalty all the same. If he then uses the robe before forfeiting it and co offense, he incurs a dukkata. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of are the same as in the preceding rule. For the Pali formula to use in forfeiture, see Appe Once the robe has been forfeited, its determination lapses, so when the bhikkhu receives he must re-determine it for use or give it away within ten days so as not to commit an offen preceding rule. Non-offenses. In addition to the above-mentioned exemptions, there offense if, before dawn, the robe is lost, destroyed, burnt or stolen; if someone else takes i or if the bhikkhu gives it away or rescinds its determination. Because of this last allowan Commentary recommends that if a bhikkhu realizes that he will not be able to get back to dawn, he should verbally rescind the robe's determination before dawn arrives so as to a and then redetermine the robe after dawn has passed. A note on Thai practice. The the Vinaya Mukha missed the Sub-commentary's discussion of monastic residences unde came to the conclusion that none of the texts discuss the question of zones in a monastery he formulated his own system, treating each separate monastic dwelling as a lay dwellin Furthermore, he neglected to discuss the question of what counts as single-kula and multi dwelling. In the absence of any other standard, Thai bhikkhus have come to view a dwel more bhikkhus, in which the bhikkhus come from different families, as a multi-kula dwelling bhikkhus live in separate rooms, then the room where the robes are placed, plus a radius around it, is the bhikkhu's zone. If two or more bhikkhus are spending the night in a sing each bhikkhu must greet dawn within one hatthapasa of his robes. Although there is the Canon or commentaries for this practice, it is so widely accepted in Thailand that the w for anyone spending the night in the same dwelling or the same room with a Thai bhikkhu it and abide by it, to avoid the useless controversies that can arise over minor matters like

Summary: Being in a separate zone from any of one's three robes at dawn -- excep end-of-vassa or kathina privileges are in effect, or one has received formal authoriz from the Community -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * *

3. When a bhikkhu has finished his robe-making and the kathina privileges are in If out-of-season robe-cloth accrues to him, he may accept it if he so desires. Once accepts it, he is to make it up immediately (into a cloth requisite). If it should not be enough, he may lay it aside for a month at most if he has an expectation for filling the la he keep it beyond that, even when there is an expectation (for further cloth), it is to forfeited and confessed. There are two factors for an offense here: 1) //Object//: (a) out-of-season robe-cloth, made of any of the proper six kinds of material, in pieces measu four by eight fingerbreadths; (b) the cloth is not enough to make the cloth requisite on mind, but one expects to receive more. 2) //Effort//: One keeps the cloth for more tha days, except when the privileges are in effect. Object. Any gift of robe-cloth presente the Community when the end-of-vassa or kathina privileges are in effect is an in-season Thus, out-of-season robe-cloth includes any gift of robe-cloth: 1) presented to the Co any other time, 2) presented at any time to a bhikkhu or group of bhikkhus (except in-season cloth allotted to him/them by the Community); or 3) presented to the Commu privileges are in effect, with the stipulation that it be treated as out-of-season cloth. reason why a donor would present cloth under category (3) is because, according to Mv.V in-season cloth may be shared among only the bhikkhus who spent the vassa in that parti Community, and not among any visiting bhikkhus. The Bhikkhunis' NP 2 tells of a case wh but shabbily dressed bhikkhunis visited a Community of bhikkhunis when the end-of-vassa were in effect; lay donors, wishing to help them out, gave cloth to the Community with the
that it be treated as out-of-season robe-cloth so that the visiting bhikkhunis would also h share. Out-of-season cloth, if it is enough to make the cloth requisite one has in mind treated as extra robe-cloth under NP 1. If, however, it is not enough, and one expects to g cloth from any source -- lay donors, the Community, cast-off cloth, or one's own resource be kept for up to 30 days with no need to be determined or placed under dual ownership. further cloth, when one receives it, has a life span of ten days, as under NP 1, and one mu making one's requisite within the time period determined by whichever cloth has the shorte Thus, if one obtains the expected cloth during the first 20 days, the requisite must be mad days, this being the life span of the second cloth. If one obtains it after the 21st day, the requisite must be made before the original 30 days are up. If the second cloth turns ou different quality from the first, one is under no compulsion to put the two cloths together to the requisite if one does not want to, and may continue waiting for further cloth as long as of the first cloth allows. The Commentary recommends that if the second cloth is of poo than the first, one may determine it as accessory cloth; if the second cloth is of better qual determine the first cloth as accessory cloth, and start a new 30-day countdown from the receiving the second cloth. Effort. Days are counted by dawns. If, by the 30th dawn a receives the original cloth, one has not determined it, placed it under dual ownership or ab is to be forfeited and the offense confessed. The Sub-commentary adds that if at any time first ten days have elapsed one abandons any expectation for further cloth, one must dete original cloth, place it under dual ownership, or abandon it before the following dawn. O one commits an offense under NP 1. As in the preceding rules, perception is not a miti here. If one miscounts the dawns, or thinks the cloth is properly determined, etc., when isn't, there is an offense all the same. As for the question of out-of-season cloth that crosses the boundary between times when the privileges are and are not in effect -- i.e., received less than a month before the privileges start, or less than a month before they en K/Commentary to NP 24 indicates that if cloth received when the privileges are still in eff enough to make a robe, the one-month grace period allowed in this rule begins the day aft are rescinded. And the Commentary to NP 28 indicates that if the cloth covered in this r toward the end of the Rains Retreat, and the day when the robe has to be finished falls in season, one is allowed the entire robe season to finish it. Still, these questions rarel up in practice, as it is a simple enough matter to determine the original cloth as accessory place it under dual ownership until one has enough cloth to make one's requisite, remove arrangements to make the requisite, and so avoid having to worry about this rule at all.

Forfeiture & confession. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the cloth as in the preceding rules. For the Pali formula to use in forfeiting the cloth, see Appendi Once the cloth is received in return, and it is now enough for the requisite one has in mind classed as extra robe-cloth under NP 1. If not, the 30-day countdown starts all over aga Non-offenses. There is no offense if, before the 30 days are up, the original cloth is stole destroyed, burnt; if someone else takes it on trust; or if the owner determines it for use, p under dual ownership or abandons it. And, as stated above, this rule does not apply wher and kathina privileges are in effect. Summary: Keeping out-of-season cloth for more days when it is not enough to make a requisite and one has expectation for more -- the end-of-vassa and kathina privileges are in effect -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya offe

* * * 4. Should any bhikkhu have a used robe washed, dyed, or beaten by a bhikkhuni unrelated to him, it is to be forfeited and confessed. The c story here is one of the classics of Vinaya literature, although it is hard to say which is mor
-- the dry, matter-of-fact style with which the narrative relates the improbable events, or t reaction of the bhikkhunis when they hear what has happened. "Now at that time Ve wife had gone forth among the bhikkhunis. She often went to his dwelling, and he to hers. One day he went to her dwelling for a meal. Arising early in the morning, carry and bowl, he went to where she was staying and on arrival sat down in front of her, his male organ. She sat down in front of him, exposing her female organ. He, full of stared at her organ. His organ emitted semen. He said to her, 'Go and fetch some wat I'll wash my under robe.' "'Give it to me. //I'll// wash it.' "Then she took some of the semen in her mouth and inserted some of it in her female organ. With conceived a child. "The bhikkhunis said, 'This bhikkhuni has been practicing unchastity. She's pregnant.' "'It's not that I've been practicing unchastity.' And she told them what had happened. The bhikkhunis were offended and annoyed and sprea this Master Udayin get a bhikkhuni to wash his used robe?"' There are three factors offense here: object, effort and result. Object: a used robe. //Robe//, here, accordin the Commentary, means any robe that has been dyed and properly marked (see Pacittiy way of saying that the robe must be a finished cloth requisite of the type suitable for weari need not be determined as one of one's basic three robes. In other words, it could also be undetermined, or a spare robe determined as an accessory cloth. //Used//, according Vibhanga, means worn around the body at least once. According to the Commentary, it ca other ways -- e.g., rolled up as a pillow or worn draped over the shoulder or head -- as w Other cloth requisites, such as sitting cloths and bed sheets, are grounds for a dukkata. requisites are not grounds for an offense. Effort. One tells an unrelated bhikkhuni to dye, or beat the robe. A //bhikkhuni//, here, means one who has received the double ordination, first in the Bhikkhuni Sangha and secondly in the Bhikkhu Sangha. A bhikkhun received only her first ordination is grounds for a dukkata. Female probationers and nov grounds for an offense. //Unrelated// is explained by the Vibhanga as meaning unrelat through seven grandfathers, either on the father's or the mother's side. The Commentary that this means seven generations counted back starting from one's grandfather. Thus a of one's great-great-great-great-great-great-great-grandfathers are counted as one's rela In-laws, though, are not counted. This definition of unrelated applies wherever the Vibhan word. At the time of the Buddha, perceived ties of kinship extended more widely than th and a bhikkhu at present would be well-advised to regard as his relatives only those blood with whom ties of kinship are actually felt. Perception is not an issue here. If a bhikkhu perceives a bhikkhuni as related when in fact she isn't, he is subject to the penalty all the //Telling//, according to the Commentary, includes gesturing as well. Thus if a bhikkhu washing her robes, and a bhikkhu throws his robe down next to her, that would fulfill the fa here. Result. The bhikkhuni washes, dyes or beats the robe as requested. Off A bhikkhu who tells an unrelated bhikkhuni to wash, etc., his used robe incurs a dukkata in For every effort she then makes towards washing it, he incurs an extra dukkata. When s starts washing it, the robe is to be forfeited and the nissaggiya pacittiya offense confessed a nissaggiya pacittiya and a dukkata if he gets her to do two of the three actions mention rule -- e.g., washing and dyeing the robe; and a nissaggiya pacittiya and two dukkatas if he do all three. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the robe are the

as in the preceding rules. Once the robe is returned, it counts as an extra robe-cloth unde Non-offenses. There is no offense if the bhikkhuni is related to the bhikkhu, if an unrela bhikkhuni washes the robe unasked, if an unrelated bhikkhuni helps a related bhikkhuni w robe has not yet been used, if one gets an unrelated bhikkhuni to wash a non-cloth requisi gets an unrelated female probationer or female novice to wash a used robe. The Co discusses the case of a bhikkhu who gives a used robe to a female probationer to wash: becomes ordained as a bhikkhuni in the meantime, and then washes it. The verdict: He penalty under this rule. For the fun of it, the Commentary then goes on to discuss the cas who gives his used robe to a lay man to wash. The lay man undergoes a spontaneous becomes a bhikkhuni before washing the robe, and again, the bhikkhu incurs the full pena is intended here is hard to say. Summary: Getting an unrelated bhikkhuni to wash, beat a robe that has been used at least once is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * * 5. Should any bhikkhu accept robe-cloth from a bhikkhuni unrelated to him -- unless it is in exchange -- it is to be forfeited and confessed. The behind this rule is expressed by a single sentence in the origin story: 'It's hard for a woma things.' In the original version of the rule, the Buddha made no allowance for accepting in exchange, but this point was later changed at the request of the bhikkhunis. They had t exchange robe-cloth with the bhikkhus, who refused because of the rule as it stood at th this upset the bhikkhunis. As the Commentary explains, their poverty was what made ther the Masters are not on familiar terms with us even to this extent, how are we supposed to The offense under this rule is composed of two factors: object and effort. Object: piece of robe-cloth of the six suitable kinds, measuring at least four by eight fingerbreadths requisites are not grounds for an offense. Effort. The bhikkhu receives such cloth fro unrelated bhikkhuni and does not give her anything in exchange. //Unrelated bhikkhu defined in the same terms as under the preceding rule: a bhikkhuni who has received the ordination and is not related to the bhikkhu back through their great x 7 grandfathers. A bh has received only her first ordination, from the bhikkhunis, is grounds for a dukkata. Fema probationers and female novices are not grounds for an offense. Perception here is no factor: According to the Vibhanga, even if a bhikkhu perceives an unrelated bhikkhuni as is still subject to the penalty. The Commentary adds that even if one does not know that th from a bhikkhuni -- as when many donors place robes in a pile for a bhikkhu, and one of unbeknownst to the bhikkhu, is a bhikkhuni -- this factor is fulfilled all the same. If a bhikkh robe-cloth to someone else to present to a bhikkhu, though, the bhikkhu commits no offe accepting it. The Commentary also states that receiving need not be hand-to-hand.
bhikkhuni simply places robe-cloth near a bhikkhu as her way of giving it to him, and he ac given, this factor is fulfilled. As for the item given in exchange for the cloth, the Vibha states that it can be worth much more then the cloth or much less. Buddhaghosa quotes Mahapaccari, one of the ancient commentaries, as saying that even if, in return for the clo gives the bhikkhuni a piece of yellow myrobalan -- a medicinal fruit, one of the cheapest imaginable in India -- he escapes the penalty under this rule. Offenses. If all three fa of the offense here are fulfilled, the bhikkhu incurs a dukkata in accepting the cloth. He th forfeit the cloth and confess the additional nissaggiya pacittiya offense. The procedures fo confession, and return of the cloth are the same as in the preceding rules. Non-offen There is no offense: if the bhikkhuni is a relation; if the bhikkhuni is not related, but th bhikkhu gives her something in exchange; if the bhikkhu takes the cloth on trust; if borrows the cloth; if he accepts a non-cloth requisite; if he accepts robe-cloth from a fe probationer or female novice. Exchange. The origin story to this rule is where the B explicitly gives permission for bhikkhus, bhikkhunis, female probationers, male novices an novices to trade items with one another. NP 20 forbids bhikkhus from trading items with la and people ordained in other religions. Summary: Accepting robe-cloth from an unrel without giving her anything in exchange is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * * 6. Should any bhikkhu ask for robe-cloth from a man or woman householder unrelated to him, except at the proper occasion, it is to be forfeited and co Here the proper occasion is this: The bhikkhu's robe has been stolen or destroyed. the proper occasion in this case. "Now at that time Ven. Upananda the Sakyan had be skilled in giving Dhamma talks. A certain millionaire's son went to where he was, and o bowed down and sat to one side. As he was sitting there, Ven. Upananda the Sakyan urged, roused, and encouraged him with a Dhamma talk. Then the millionaire's son...sa me, Ven. sir, what would be in my power to give you for your welfare: Robe-cloth? Lodgings? Medicines for the sick?' "'If you want to give me something, friend, give me one of those cloths (you are wearing).' "'I'm the son of a good family, V sir. How can I go about wearing one cloth? Wait until I've returned home. After go I will send you one of these cloths, or a finer one.' "A second time...A third time, Ven. Upananda said to him, 'If you want to give me something, friend, then give me one those cloths.' "'I'm the son of a good family, Ven. sir. How can I go about weari one cloth? Wait until I've returned home. After going home, I will send you one of these a finer one.' "'Are you making an offer when you don't want to give me anything, in that having made the offer you don't give?' "So the millionaire's son, bei pressured by Ven. Upananda, left having given him one cloth. People seeing him said 'Why is it, master, that you go around wearing only one cloth?' "He told them wh happened. So the people were offended and annoyed and spread it about, 'They're these Sakyan contemplatives, and not easily contented. It's no simple matter to make a request of them. How can they, after being made a reasonable request by the millio take his cloth?'" The factors for an offense here are three: object, effort, and result. Object: a piece of any of the six suitable kinds of robe-cloth, measuring at lea four by eight fingerbreadths. Effort. One asks, except at the proper time, for such cloth a lay person who is not related back through one's great x 7 grandfathers. Perception is n factor here. Even if one perceives the lay person to be related when in fact he/she isn't, fulfills the factor here. Result. One receives the cloth. The proper occasions.

//Stolen//, according to the Vibhanga, refers to a robe stolen by anyone at all. //Destroyed/burnt, carried away by water, eaten by such things as rats or termites, or worn out by us the Sub-commentary adds here that worn out by use means worn to the point where the r cover the body. If all of a bhikkhu's robes are stolen or destroyed, he is not to go abo naked. To do so incurs a dukkata (as opposed to the thullaccaya Mv.VIII.28.1 imposes on chooses to go about naked when he has robes to wear). A bhikkhu with no cloth to cove should make a covering of grass and leaves. If he happens on an unoccupied Sangha res permitted to take any cloth he finds there -- robes, sheets, mats, pillow cases, or whatev wear as a makeshift robe as long as he has the intention of returning it when he obtains a The Commentary adds several points here: If one picks leaves or cuts grass to mak for oneself under these circumstances, one is exempt from the penalty for damagin under Pacittiya 11. If, after getting one's makeshift robe, one has to go a great dis before getting a proper robe, one may leave the makeshift robe with any convenient mo property of the Sangha. If, under these circumstances, one asks lay people for clo receives cloth of a type or color that normally is not allowed, there is no offense in we until one can obtain suitable cloth. The following rule adds extra stipulations on how cloth one may ask for in circumstances like this. Offenses. The act of asking for robe-from an unrelated lay person not at the proper time entails a dukkata. The cloth, when c it, is to be forfeited and the nissaggiya pacittiya offense confessed. The procedures for for confession, and return of the cloth are the same as in the preceding rules. The Pali form in forfeiting the cloth is given in Appendix VI. Non-offenses. According to the Vibhanga no offense if -- one asks at the right time, one asks from one's relations, one asks from people who have invited one to ask for cloth, one obtains cloth through one's own re one asks for the sake of another bhikkhu. The Commentary explains that this last poin things: One may ask for cloth for the sake of another bhikkhu (1) from one's own relatio people who have invited one to ask for cloth //or// (2) from the relatives of that bhikkhu or f who have invited //him// to ask. This point applies for all rules where one is allowed to as sake of another. As for obtaining cloth through one's own resources, the Sub-comme that one should be careful to do it in such a way as not to commit an offense under NP 20 applies to all rules that contain this exemption. Summary: Asking for and receiving r from an unrelated lay person, except when one's robes have been stolen or destroy nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * * 7. If that unrelated man or woman householder presents the bhikkhu with many robes (pieces of to accept at most (enough for) an upper and an under robe. If he accepts more tha is to be forfeited and confessed. This rule is a continuation of the preceding one, dea with the protocol in asking for robe-cloth when one's robes have been stolen or destroye story is as follows: "At that time some group-of-six bhikkhus, having approached b whose robes had been stolen, said, 'Friends, the Blessed One has allowed those whose or destroyed to ask an unrelated man or woman householder for robe-cloth. Ask fo friends.' "'Never mind, friends. We have already received (enough) robe-cloth.'

"'We are asking in your name, friends.' "'Then go ahead and ask.' "So the group-of-six bhikkhus, having approached unrelated householders, said, 'Bhikkhus robes were stolen. Give us robe-cloth for them.' And they asked for a lot of robe-cl Then a certain man, sitting in a meeting hall, said to another man, 'Master, bhikkhus hav robes were stolen. I gave robe-cloth for them.' "And he said, 'I gave, too.'
"And another said, 'I gave, too.' "They were offended and annoyed and spread it
'How can these Sakyan contemplatives, not knowing moderation, ask for a lot of ro Will the Sakyan contemplatives deal in the cloth business? Or will they set up a shop?" Protocol. The Vibhanga states that when a bhikkhu's robes are stolen or destroyed, the a may ask for and accept from an unrelated householder who has not previously invited him cloth depends on the number of robes stolen or destroyed. If three, he may ask for and ac for two. If two, he may ask for and accept only enough for one. If one, he should not as cloth at all. The K/Commentary mentions that these stipulations apply only when rob one's determined set of three are stolen or destroyed. The way it phrases this suggests th spare robes are stolen or destroyed, one has no right to ask for robe-cloth at all. The Sub-commentary, though, interprets this as opening a loophole so that if one loses any of robes, one may ask for as much cloth as one likes. It then accuses the K/Commentary of the Canon and Commentary, and of ignoring the purpose of the rule, which is to teach mo fewness of wants. Its conclusion: The protocol applies when any of one's robes are stole destroyed -- whether determined as the basic set of three, undetermined or determined as cloths. If, however, we recall that originally each bhikkhu had only one set of three ro and that the allowance in the preceding rule was to relieve the hardship of having little or n wear, we can agree with the K/Commentary's interpretation: that the allowance in the pr applies //only// when robes from one's basic set of three are stolen and destroyed, and tha case we are concerned with here. If one's spare robes get stolen or destroyed, one may of the allowance to ask for robe-cloth at all. The Vibhanga states further that if the hou presents one with a great deal of cloth, with the invitation to take as much as one likes, o take only enough cloth to make the allowable number of robes. The no-offense clauses a take excess cloth if one promises to return the excess when one has finished making on And if the donor tells one to keep the excess, one may do so without penalty. The fa the offense for overstepping the bounds of this protocol are three: 1) //Object//: any of the six kinds of suitable robe-cloth, measuring at least four by eight fingerbreadths.
//Effort//: One asks for more than the allowable amount of robe-cloth from an unrelated ho has not previously made an invitation to ask. Perception is not a mitigating factor here: one perceives the householder to be related when in fact he/she isn't -- or feels that he/sh happy to offer the excess cloth even though he/she has given no previous invitation to a factor is fulfilled all the same. 3) //Result//: One gets the excess robe-cloth. The offenses here are as follows: a dukkata for asking in the way that fulfills the factor of effor nissaggiya pacittiya when all three factors are fulfilled. The procedures to follow in forfei confession, and receiving the cloth in return are the same as in the preceding rules. For th formula to use in forfeiting the cloth, see Appendix VI. Non-offenses. In addition to th cases mentioned above -- one takes excess cloth with the promise to return the excess wh finished one's robe(s), and the donors tell one to keep the excess -- there is no offense in cloth if: the donors are offering cloth for reasons other than that one's robes were or destroyed (e.g., they are impressed with one's learning, says the Commentary); or from one's relatives or people who have previously made one an invitation to ask for clo one's robes were stolen or destroyed, says the Sub-commentary); or one gets the clo one's own property. The Commentary calls attention to the fact that the Vibhanga's r clauses make no mention of asking for the sake of another. It then draws the conclusion, fact that the rule was formulated in response to bhikkhus' requesting excess cloth for the others, that in the circumstances mentioned in this rule, one may not ask for excess cloth f others. The Sub-commentary takes issue with this, and presents three arguments for its 1) There is no requirement that the working out of a training rule has to follow from the story. (It gives no examples, but Parajikas 3 & 4, Sanghadisesas 8 & 9, NP 4 and Pacit 58 are all cases in point.) 2) The Ganthipadas state that since this training rule deals wi what to do when presented with offerings for one's own sake, there is no need for the V mention the case of asking for another's sake. 3) If asking for another's sake is not a here, it should also not be allowable in the preceding rule. Thus it concludes that h as under the preceding rule, there is no offense in asking for excess cloth for Bhikkhu X fr relatives or people who have invited one to ask, or from Bhikkhu X's relatives or people w invited X to ask. Summary: Asking for and receiving excess robe-cloth from unrel people when one's robes have been stolen or destroyed is a nissaggiya pacittiya offens

* * *

8. In case a man or woman householder prepares a robe fund for the sake of an unrelated bhikkhu, thinking. "Having purchased a robe with this robe f supply the bhikkhu named so-and-so with a robe:" If the bhikkhu, not previously inv approaching (the householder) should make a stipulation with regard to the robe, saying would be good indeed, sir, if you supplied me (with a robe), having purchased a robe of a sort with this robe fund" -- out of a desire for something fine -- it is to be forfeited a confessed. "Now at that time a certain householder said to his wife, 'I will supply M Upananda with a robe.' A certain bhikkhu on his almsround overhead the man saying th Ven. Upananda the Sakyan was staying and on arrival said to him, 'You have a lot friend Upananda. A certain man over there said to his wife, 'I will supply Master Up with a robe.' "'He's my supporter, my friend.' "So Ven. Upananda the Sakya to where the man was staying and on arrival said to him, 'My friend, is it true that yo to supply me with a robe?' "'Now, wasn't I just thinking, 'I will supply Master Upananda with a robe'? "'Well, if you want to supply me with a robe, supply me with robe like this. What use is it to me to be supplied with a robe I won't use?' "So t man was offended, annoyed and spread it about, 'They're insatiable, these Sakyan cont not easily contented. It's no simple matter to supply them with a robe. How can thi Upananda, without having first been invited by me, make stipulations concerning a robe

The situation covered by this rule is this: An unrelated lay person has put aside resourc purchase a robe to present to a bhikkhu, but without yet asking the bhikkhu what kind of ro wants. The factors for the offense here are four: Object. The texts mention only that t concerns funds for a robe (civara), but without specifying whether this means funds only robes or pieces of robe-cloth suitable for making into robes as well. They also do not men funds for other requisites would be grounds for a lesser offense or no offense, although spirit of the rule, it would be a wise policy for a bhikkhu not to make stipulations, when unin lay person who has prepared funds for purchasing any kind of requisite for his use.
Intention. One wants to get a better robe than the lay person is planning to buy. Effo makes a request to the unrelated lay person that would involve raising the cost of the robe previous rules, perception is not a factor here. Even if one perceives the lay person to b when he/she actually isn't, that would fulfill the factor here all the same. Result. One the robe. The way the texts define this factor suggests that whether or not the lay person spends more on the robe than he/she actually planned is not an issue here. Offense act of making a request that would fulfill the factors of intention and effort, the penalty is a When one receives the robe it is to be forfeited and the nissaggiya pacittiya offense cont procedures to follow in forfeiture, confession, and receiving the cloth in return are the sam preceding rules. For the Pali formula to use in forfeiting the cloth, see Appendix VI.
Non-offenses. According to the Vibhanga, there is no offense if: the lay person is a rela invited one to ask for cloth; one asks for another's sake; one is getting the robe with on resources; or one asks the lay person to get a robe less expensive than the one he/s planning to get. The Commentary adds here that there is also no offense if one's reque in a robe equal in price to the one the lay person has in mind. Summary: When a who is not a relative is planning to get a robe for one, but has yet to ask one what k robe one wants: Receiving the robe after making a request that would raise its cost is a pacittiya offense. * * * 9. In case two householders -- men or women -- prepare separate robe funds for the sake of a bhikkhu them, thinking, "Having purchased separate robes with these separate robe funds of supply the bhikkhu named so-and-so with robes": If the bhikkhu, not previously invi approaching (them) should make a stipulation with regard to the robe, saying, "It would indeed, sirs, if you supplied me (with a robe), having purchased a robe of such-and sort with these separate robe funds, the two (funds) together for one (robe)" -- out of a d something fine -- it is to be forfeited and confessed. Explanations for this training rule the same as those for the preceding one, the only difference being in the factor of effort: the two donors to put their funds together to purchase one robe. Whether or not the reque the amount of money they would have to spend is not an issue here, although the Vibhang one makes a request that would //reduce// the amount of money they would spend, there i The Commentary adds that, under the conditions mentioned here, making requests of th to combine their robe funds into one is also covered by this rule. Summary: When tw lay people who are not one's relatives are planning to get separate robes for one, but yet to ask one what kind of robe one wants: Receiving a robe from them after asking th their funds to get one robe -- out of a desire for something fine -- is a nissaggiya pa offense. * * * 10.In case a king, a royal official, a brahmin or a householder sends a robe fund for the sake of a bhikkhu via a messen "Having purchased a robe with this robe fund, supply the bhikkhu named so-and-so with If the messenger, approaching the bhikkhu, should say, "This is a robe fund being deliv sake of the venerable one. May the venerable one accept this robe fund," then the to tell the messenger: "We do not accept robe funds, my friend. We accept robes (robe proper according to season." If the messenger should say to the bhikkhu, "Does th venerable one have a steward?" then, bhikkhus, if the bhikkhu desires a robe, he may i steward -- either a monastery attendant or a lay follower -- (saying), "That, my frien the bhikkhus' steward." If the messenger, having instructed the steward and going t the bhikkhu, should say, "I have instructed the steward the venerable one indicated. Ma venerable one go (to him) and he will supply you with a robe in season," then the b desiring a robe and approaching the steward, may prompt and remind him two or three need of a robe." Should (the steward) produce the robe after being prompted and r or three times, that is good. If he does not produce the robe, (the bhikkhu) should st in silence four times, five times, six times at most for that purpose. Should (the stewar the robe after (the bhikkhu) has stood in silence for the purpose four, five, six times most, that is good. If he should not produce the robe (at that point), should he th produce the robe after (the bhikkhu) has endeavored further than that, it is to be forfeite confessed. If he should not produce (the robe), then the bhikkhu himself should the place from which the robe fund was brought, or a messenger should be sent (to say fund that you, venerable sirs, sent for the sake of the bhikkhu has given no benefit to at all. May the you be united with what is yours. May what is yours not be lost." Th the proper course here. The protocols surrounding gifts of money and their proper use ar complex -- much more complex than even this long training rule would indicate -- and requ explanation. What follows is an attempt to make them clear. If it seems long and involvec that the purpose of the protocols is to free bhikkhus from the even more bothersome worri complexities that come with participating in buying, selling, and monetary matters in gener

This rule is one of four nissaggiya pacittiya rules covering a bhikkhu's proper relationship t
The others are # 18, 19 & 20. Although they sometimes seem to be splitting hairs, they fo precisely on the two acts involving money that are most burdensome to a sensitive mind:
accepting money, or having it accepted in one's name, one is accepting all the cares, responsibilities, and dangers that come with its ownership; in the act of arranging a trade, accepting responsibility for the fairness of the trade: that it undervalues neither the generc the person who donated the money, nor the goods or services of the person receiving the exchange. Thus to protect a bhikkhu from these mental burdens, this rule sets up pr that lay donors may have the convenience of dedicating amounts of money and other valu a bhikkhu's needs, and so that the bhikkhu may benefit from such gifts without having to responsibilities of ownership or of having to arrange fair trades. If a bhikkhu follows t protocols recommended here, the money placed with the steward still belongs to the dono responsibility for making a fair trade lies with the steward. The bhikkhu's only responsibilit inform the original donor if, after a reasonable number of promptings, the steward entruste money does not provide him with the requisite the donor had in mind, and then let the don matter if he/she cares to. Although the rule itself mentions only funds for robe-cloth intended for individual bhikkhus, we should note from the outset that the Commentary exte all funds -- composed of money, jewels, commodities, land, livestock or other valuables th are not allowed to accept -- not only for individual bhikkhus, but also for Communities, grou bhikkhus and buildings in a monastery. The money rules & allowances: an overview forbids a bhikkhu from accepting gifts of money, from getting others to accept them, and consenting to gifts of money meant for him being placed down next to him. NP 19 & 20 fo engaging in buying, selling, or bartering, regardless of whether or not it involves money.
Mahavagga, however, the Buddha makes the following allowance, called the Mendaka All donor who inspired it: "There are people of conviction and confidence, bhikkhus, place gold and silver in the hand of stewards, saying 'Give the master whatever is allow allow you, bhikkhus, to accept whatever is allowable coming from that. But in no w do I say that money is to be accepted or sought for." (Mv.VI.34.21) Even given this allowance, though, it is important that the bhikkhu, in his dealings with the steward, does not say or do anything that would transgress NP 18-20. A it is important that he does not abuse the steward's services. Otherwise the steward will to perform this service for bhikkhus again. This is the main point of the origin story to this "Then Ven. Upananda the Sakyan approached the lay follower (his steward) and on 'My friend, I have need of a robe.' "'Wait just today, sir. Today there is a town meeting, and the town has made a rule that whoever comes late is fined 50 (kahap "'Friend, give me the robe this very day!' (Saying this,) he grabbed hold of him by t

So the lay follower, being pressured by Ven. Upananda the Sakyan, purchased a r and arrived late. The people said to the lay follower, 'Why, master, have you come late lost 50.' So he told them what had happened. They were offended and annoyed a about, 'They're insatiable, these Sakyan contemplatives, and not easily contented. It's n simple matter even to render them a service. How can Upananda the Sakyan, being to "Wait just today, sir," not wait?"' Stewards. According to the Commentary, there are ways money may be placed with a steward: the steward is either indicated by the bhikkh the donor or his/her messenger, or else indicated by neither. 1) //Indicated by the bhik covers two sorts of cases: a) The donor asks the bhikkhu who his steward is, and the bh points him/her out, as mentioned in the training rule. b) The donor, knowing that a part person has volunteered to act as a steward or is on familiar terms with the bhikkhu, money to the lay person and informs the bhikkhu -- or has someone else inform him -- e after the fact. 2) //Indicated by the donor// covers cases where the donor chooses on his/her own friends or employees to act as the steward for that particular gift, and informs -- or has someone else inform him -- either before or after the fact. 3) //Indicated by ne covers two separate cases: a) The donor asks the bhikkhu who his steward is, and the b says that he has none. Another person happens to overhear the conversation and volu the steward for that particular gift. b) The donor gives the gift to the lay person who normally the bhikkhu's steward or is on familiar terms with the bhikkhu, but does no the bhikkhu or have him informed of the fact. According to the Commentary, this training only cases of the first sort: the steward is indicated by the bhikkhu. I will discuss this ca detail first before going on to discuss the protocol in the other two. The protocol in accepting. The Vibhanga gives the following guidelines: If donors offer money, they a told that bhikkhus do not accept money. If they ask who the bhikkhus' steward is, point out any lay person at all, saying, "That's the steward." One is //not// to say, "G it to him/her" or "He/she will keep (the money)," for that would be to accept ownership a responsibility for the money, and thus be an infraction of the rule against accepting Also, one is not to say, "He/she will buy (the requisite)" or "He/she will get it in exchange even this much would be an infraction of the rules against trading. The K/Comment that if the donor asks, "To whom should I give this?" or "Who will keep this?" one is not to out. It doesn't say what one //may// do in such a situation, although a wise policy would broach the topic of stewards so that the donor will ask a question to which one may give a answer. The protocol in obtaining requisites from the fund. The rule states that a bhi give his steward up to three verbal and six silent promptings in order to get a requisite from The Vibhanga works out an arrangement whereby he may exchange two silent promptin prompting, which leads the Commentary to lay out the following scheme: A bhikkhu may r 6 verbal & 0 silent promptings 5 verbal & 2 silent promptings 4 verbal & 4 silent promptings 3 verbal & 6 silent promptings 2 verbal & 8 silent promptings 1 verbal & promptings, or 0 verbal & 12 silent promptings. When giving a verbal prompting, one only, "I need a robe (or whatever the requisite may be)" or statements to that effect. On say, "Give me a robe," "Get me a robe," "Buy me a robe," or "Get a robe in exchange or m statements would be violations of the rules against trading. According to the Comme promptings are counted not by the number of visits to the steward, but by the number of ti bhikkhu states his need/desire for the requisite. Thus if, in one visit, he states his need for three times, that counts as three verbal promptings. As for silent promptings -- or "sta

-- the bhikkhu merely stands in the steward's presence. If he/she asks, "What have you bhikkhu should say, "You know," or "You should know." The Vibhanga also notes that period when a bhikkhu has yet to receive the requisite, he should not accept an invitation t at the steward's place, to accept alms, or to teach Dhamma there. If he does any of these cuts back his number of allowed standings. The Sub-commentary contains a long discuss precisely this means, and finally sides with the decision in the Three Ganthipadas: that ea bhikkhu sits, receives alms or teaches one sentence of Dhamma (see Pacittiya 7) under th circumstances, he cuts down his allowed number of standings by one. If one obtains th after making the allowable number of verbal and silent promptings -- or less -- there is no o one does not obtain the requisite after the maximum allowable number of promptings, on the original donor, and then leave the issue up to him/her. Not to inform the donor here, th Commentary says, entails a dukkata. If the donor, being informed, then makes arrangeme requisite for the bhikkhu, there is no offense. The factors of an offense here are three:
1) //Object//: a fund left with a steward pointed out by a bhikkhu. 2) //Effort//: One m an excessive number of promptings. 3) //Result//: One obtains the requested requisite.
a dukkata for the excessive promptings, and the requisite, when obtained, is to be forfeited nissaggiya pacittiya offense confessed. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and r requisite in return are the same as in the preceding rules. For the Pali formula to use in for Appendix VI. Cases where this rule does not apply. According to the Commentary steward has been indicated by the donor, one may make any number of promptings at all an offense. If the article is not forthcoming, one may get another lay person to handle th (although one should be careful to phrase one's request to this lay person so as not to tran rules against accepting money, trading, and buying). If the article is not forthcoming, on duty-bound to inform the original donor. There is nothing in the Canon to contradict an points, but simple etiquette would suggest that one not harass the steward excessively, should inform the donor if the article is not forthcoming, so as to let the donor handle the m there on in if he/she sees fit. As for the third case, in which the steward is not indicat either by the donor or by a bhikkhu, the Commentary says that, as far as that fund is conc steward should be treated as a person who is not related and has not made an invitation t other words, one may not make any requests of the steward at all, unless he/she happens make a request. We can qualify this by saying that if the article is not forthcoming after a reasonable amount of time, one may inform the original donor. Other funds. The Com a long discussion of how this rule applies to funds other than those intended for an indivi bhikkhu's requisites. A few of the more relevant cases: //Monetary funds for Sangha or requisites//. If a donor comes with a gift of money and says that it is being offered to the or to a group for whatever purpose, one should follow the protocol for accepting as under instance, if the donor says, "I'm giving this to the Sangha for you to make use of the four requisites," one may not accept it in any of the three ways covered by NP 18. As we will se there is a dukkata for the bhikkhu who consents to money's being placed next to him unde circumstances. There is also a dukkata, says the Sub-commentary, for every bhikkhu who bought with the money. If, however, the donor says, "The money will be with your ste or "with my people" or "with me: All you need to do is make use of the four requisites," the offense in accepting and making use of this arrangement. The etiquette to follow in obta requisites depends on who the money is left with: if the bhikkhus' steward, follow the proto this rule; if the donor's workers, one may make any number of promptings; if the donor, f guidelines under Pacittiya 47. //Non-monetary funds for Sangha or group requisites//. a number of other articles that may not be owned by bhikkhus, and that carry a dukkata p are. They include land, fields, and orchards; jewels; slaves; commodities (e.g., unhusked animals. If a donor wants to make a gift of such things to the Sangha, the Commentary sa of whether or not they may be accepted depends on how the donation is phrased. If the "I'm giving this to the Sangha" for whatever the purpose, the gift may not be accepted. As previous case, there is a dukkata for whoever receives it, and also for whoever uses an obtained from proceeds coming from the gift. If the donor says, "This is for the purpose four requisites," or "Accept whatever is allowable coming from this," without mentioning t any bhikkhu as custodians or recipients of the unallowable object, the arrangement may b without penalty. For instance, if a donor wants to present a herd of cows, saying, "These a purpose of milk products for the Sangha" (perhaps this sounds less stilted in Pali than it English), this is an acceptable arrangement. But if he/she says, "I am giving these cows to provide milk products for the Sangha," then it is not. If a donor proposes to give pigs chickens or other animals used only for their meat to the Sangha, the bhikkhus are to say, accept gifts like this, but we will be glad to set them free for you." If, after setting up a allowable arrangement, the donor asks the bhikkhus to appoint a steward to look after it, t not, they are to do nothing about the arrangement at all. How the proceeds from suc arrangements are to be used depends on what they are: If money, and a bhikkhu tells the this money to buy such-and-such," no bhikkhu may make use of what is bought with the proceeds are commodities, such as unhusked rice, and a bhikkhu tells the steward, "Use t trade for such-and-such," the bhikkhu who makes the order may not use whatever is obtai but other bhikkhus may without incurring a penalty. If the proceeds are allowable goods, fruit, and a bhikkhu tells the steward, "Use this fruit to trade for such-and-such," the Comm that any bhikkhu may use what is obtained from the trade, but this would seem to contra //Building funds//. If a donor comes with money or other unallowable gift, and says, "I this to the Sangha for the meditation hall (or any other building)," the gift may not be acc But if the donor says, "I am giving this to (or for) the meditation hall," without mentioning a individual bhikkhu, group of bhikkhus or the Sangha as custodians or recipients of the gift then this arrangement is not to be refused, and the monastery steward is to be informed o said. In the context of NP 18, this means that the bhikkhus are not to take the money or to get anyone else to take it, but may consent to its being placed next to them, since it i as a gift for them. Many monasteries have donation boxes, and there is a question a whether or not the bhikkhus may tell a donor in this case to put the money in the box. The NP 18 states that when a donation has been placed down for a bhikkhu -- over his protest someone besides the donor offers to put it in a safe place, the bhikkhu may point out a sa money, but may not tell him/her to put it there, as that would imply that he is accepting responsibility for the money. If this also applies to funds given "to a building," then the bhi should be able to say to the donor of such funds, "The donation box is over there," but the to say, "Put it there." At any rate, after the money has been placed by the donor, the may then tell the monastery steward what the donor said, but are not to tell him/her to take this would violate NP 18. Since the steward in this case would be classed as "indicated bhikkhus," they are to follow the protocol in this rule when they tell the steward of their nee building materials, wages for the workers, and other necessities that come up in the cou the building's construction or maintenance. The Commentary mentions two other acce arrangements: (1) The donor places the money with the workmen, and tells the bhi their only responsibility is to check on whether the work is being done poorly or well.

The donor says that the money will be kept with him/her or with his/her employees, and bhikkhus' only responsibility is to inform them of whom the money is to be given to. present such a donor would be able to set up a checking account for the construction a monastery buildings. In this case, the bank would be the steward "indicated by the and the authorized bhikkhu signing a check drawing on the fund would be informing the the money should go. He should not, however, be the one who hands the check over t or payee's representative. This point will be discussed in more detail under NP 20.
the steward in both of these cases is indicated by the donor, the bhikkhus may make as m they like -- i.e., in the first case, telling the workers what to do; in the second case, telling steward or donor who is to be paid -- but here again in this second case they should be ca their requests so as not to violate the rules against trading and buying. In addition to building funds, it would seem that any charitable fund for schools, hospitals, etc. -- such as wealthy monasteries have -- would come under this category, as long as the fund is not for the Sangha, either as a group or individually. Fund management. The Comment if a Sangha fund has been set up for a particular requisite, it should as a general rule be buy only that requisite. If, however, the Sangha has enough of one kind of //lahubhanda// may be shared among the bhikkhus -- but not enough for another, the fund for the first k diverted to the second kind by an //apalokana-kamma//: a formal meeting of the Commun motion is phrased in one's own words and unanimously accepted. Funds for lodgings a though, since they are //garubhanda// (goods that may not be shared among the bhikkhus) diverted to lahubhanda at all. But if there is Sangha furniture that is going unused and is i deteriorating before it gets used, the Community may arrange to have it exchanged -- us procedure allowed under NP 20, and making sure not to let it go for less than its full value use the proceeds for lahubhanda. The Commentary adds that proceeds of this sort shou 'frugally, just enough to keep life going.' In other words, don't use them to splurge on anyt excessive. Summary: When a fund has been set up with a steward indicated by a Obtaining an article from the fund as a result of having prompted the steward more than allowable number of times is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * * * * * * *

CHAPTER SEVEN

Part Two: The Silk Chapter ~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

11.Should any bhikkhu have a felt (blanket/rug) made of a mixture containing silk, it is to forfeited and confessed. //Santhata//, defined here as a felt blanket/rug, is a type of c described in the texts simply by its method of manufacture: Instead of being woven, it is strewing threads over a smooth surface, sprinkling them with a glue-like mixture made fron rice, rolling it smooth, and then repeating the process until the felt is thick and strong enou one's purposes. Although felt made like this can be used for a number of purposes, its ma the time of the texts seems to have been as a small personal rug for sitting or lying down, blanket for wearing around oneself when sick or cold. Blanket/ rugs like this are still made in parts of India even today, and as the no-offense clauses to this and the following rules s precisely to this type of blanket/rug that these rules apply. There are three factors for t full offense here: 1) //Object//: a felt blanket/rug containing silk threads and intende for one's own use. 2) //Effort//: One either makes it oneself, gets someone else to ma finishes what others have let unfinished, or gets someone else to finish what one has le unfinished. 3) //Result//: One obtains it after it is finished (or finishes it, if one is maki it oneself). According to the Commentary, intention and perception are not mitigating f here. Thus if one is making a felt blanket/rug, and silk threads happen to float in on the br land in the felt, one commits an offense all the same. Perhaps the Commentary's interp is why bhikkhus no longer use felt rugs, for there is no way of knowing whether or not ther silk filaments in them that would make them unsuitable for use. There is a dukkata in effort of making a blanket/rug with silk mixed in it -- or in having it made -- and once it is ob (or finished, if one is making it oneself), it is to be forfeited and the nissaggiya pacittiya o confessed. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and receiving the blanket/rug in retu same as in the preceding rules. Since there is a dukkata in using //any// felt blanket/rug m in it, the bhikkhu receiving such a rug in return after forfeiting it may use it only in the wa described in the no-offense clauses. According to the Vibhanga, there is a dukkata in r blanket/rug with silk mixed in it for another's use, and a dukkata in acquiring or using such blanket/rug made for someone else. Non-offenses. There is no offense in making felt w in it to use as a canopy, a floor-covering, a wall screen, a pillow, or a kneeling mat.

Summary: Making a felt blanket/rug with silk mixed in it for one's own use -- or having i a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * *

12.Should any bhikkhu have a felt (blanket/rug) made of pure black wool, it is to be forfe confessed. The origin story to this rule indicates that a pure black felt blanket/rug was considered stylish at that time, and thus inappropriate for a bhikkhu's use. This is a recurr throughout the Vinaya: that stylish, luxurious, or elegant articles are not in keeping with th bhikkhus' way of life. All other explanations for this training rule are the same as for th preceding rule, simply replacing "a felt blanket/rug made with silk mixed in it" with "a felt bl entirely of black wool." Summary: Making a felt blanket/rug entirely of black wool one's own use -- or having it made -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * * 13.When a bhikkhu is making a new felt (blanket/rug), two parts of pure black wool are to be incorporated, a third (part) of white, and a fourth of brown. If a should have a new felt (blanket/rug) made without incorporating two parts of pure b a third of white, and a fourth of brown, it is to be forfeited and confessed. This is a continuation of the preceding rule and its purpose is to set the maximum amount of black w may include when making his felt blanket/rug or having it made for his own use. The Vib precise measures for how much black, white, and brown wool one should use in making th Commentary says that these quantities are relative: As long as black wool constitutes no half the total amount of wool used, the bhikkhu making the rug commits no offense. A preceding rules, there is a dukkata in acquiring and using a felt blanket/rug that is more tha black wool no matter who it is made for. Thus if a bhikkhu makes such a rug, forfeits it, a receives it in return, he may use it only in the ways indicated by the no-offense clauses. Non-offenses. The Vibhanga states that there is no offense if the rug is more than one-qu wool, more than one-quarter brown wool, or made entirely of white wool or of brown. The S here reiterates that the important point is that the rug be no more than one-half black wool also no offense if one is making the felt -- or having it made -- for a canopy, a floor-coverin wall screen, a pillow, or a kneeling mat. Summary: Making a felt blanket/rug that is mo one-half black wool for one's own use -- or having it made -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya

* * * 14.When a new felt (blanket/rug) has been made by a bhikkhu, it is to be kept for (at least) six years. If after less than six years he shou have another new felt (blanket/rug) made, regardless of whether or not he has disposed first, then -- unless he has been authorized by the bhikkhus -- it is to be forfeited and co

"Now at that time bhikkhus were (each) having a new felt blanket/rug made every y were constantly begging, constantly hinting, 'Give wool. We need wool.' People were and annoyed and spread it about, 'How can these Sakyan contemplatives have a new f every year?...The felt blanket/rugs we make for ourselves last five or six years, eve our children wet them and soil them, and they get chewed on by rats. But these Sakyan contemplatives have a new felt blanket/rug made every year and are constantly beggin hinting, 'Give wool. We need wool.'" There are three factors for an offense here. //Object//: a new felt blanket/rug for one's own use. 2) //Effort//: One makes it or has it ma than six //vassa// after one's last one was made, even though one has not been for authorized by the bhikkhus to do so. 3) //Result//: One acquires the rug when it is finished The texts are silent on the factor of perception here, which suggests that if a bhikkhu misc passage of years -- making a new rug when six years haven't passed even though he thin he fulfills the factor of effort all the same. According to the Vibhanga, there is a dukkata effort of making the rug or having it made. Once it is obtained (or finished, if one is maki oneself), it is to be forfeited and the nissaggiya pacittiya offense confessed. The procedur forfeiture, confession, and receiving the blanket/rug in return are the same as in the prece Since the no-offense clauses allow one under these conditions to use a felt blanket/rug ma someone else, it would seem that the rug here, unlike those forbidden by the preceding ru //ipso facto// unusable as a rug. Thus a bhikkhu who has forfeited his rug under this rule able to use it as a blanket/rug after receiving it in return. Non-offenses. There is no offense if a bhikkhu makes a new felt blanket/rug after six or more years have past; if he m another's use; if he uses one made for someone else; or if he makes felt to use as a can floor-covering, a wall screen, a pillow, or a kneeling mat. Also, as the rule indicates, t is also no offense if within less than six years he makes a felt blanket/rug for his own use being authorized to do so by the bhikkhus. The Vibhanga explains this by saying that the sees fit, may formally give this authorization to a bhikkhu who is too ill to do without a ne blanket/rug before his six years are up. The pattern for this formal act -- one motion and o announcement (//natti-dutiya-kamma//) -- is in the Vibhanga. Summary: Unless one authorization to do so from the Community, making a felt blanket/rug for one's own having it made -- less than six years after one's last one was made is a nissaggiya paci offense. * * * 15. When a felt sitting rug is being made by a bhikkhu, a piece of old felt a sugata span (25 cm.) on each side is to incorporated for the sake of discoloring it. If, without incorporating a piece of old felt a s span on each side, he should have a new felt sitting rug made, it is to be forfeited a confessed. A sitting cloth -- for protecting his robes from getting soiled by any place wh sits down, and for protecting any place where he sits down from being soiled by him -- is o requisites a bhikkhu is allowed to have (Mv.VII.16.3). In fact, if he goes without one for n four months, he incurs a dukkata (Cv.V.18). Pacittiya 89 gives stipulations for its size, and fact that it should have at least one border piece. There is some question as to whether sitting rug described in this rule counts as a sitting cloth. The Commentary to Pacittiya 8 yes, the Sub-commentary no, but the Vibhanga's definition for sitting cloth under that rule that it "has a border," and since the felt sitting rug also "has a border," it would seem to c under that definition, too. The Commentary to that rule describes the border piece of a sitting rug as follows: "Having made a felt rug, then on one end in an area of one sugata s it at two points, one makes three border pieces." Whether these three pieces are to be lef or are to be sewn back together, it doesn't say. According to the Vibhanga, when one i felt sitting rug, one should take a piece of old felt -- at least one span in diameter or one square -- and then either place it down in one part of the new felt as is, or else shred it up the pieces throughout the new felt. This, it says, will help to strengthen the new felt.

//Old felt// the Vibhanga defines as worn wrapped around oneself at least once: This is on places indicating that felt was commonly used as a blanket. The Commentary rewords the definition, saying "sat on or lied down upon at least once," which -- at least in the days of t commentators -- was the more common usage. The Commentary adds that, in addition to discolor the new felt sitting rug and make it stronger, one of the Buddha's purposes in form rule was to teach bhikkhus how to make good use of old, used requisites, so as to maintai faith of those who donated them. Offenses. As with the previous rules, there is a dukk bhikkhu who makes a sitting rug -- or has one made -- that violates this rule, whether it is own use or for that of another; and a nissaggiya pacittiya offense when he acquires the ru for his own use (or finishes it, if he is making it himself). The procedures for forfeiture, con and receiving the rug in return are the same as in the preceding rules. Since the no-offens here, as under the preceding rule, allow one to use a felt sitting rug made without old felt f of another, it would seem that a bhikkhu, having forfeited his rug, should be able to use i sitting rug after receiving it in return. Non-offenses. There is no offense if, being unabl find a large enough piece of old felt to provide the one-span piece, one includes a smalle old felt in the sitting rug; if, being unable to find any old felt at all, one does not include any felt in the rug; if one makes use of a felt sitting rug made without old felt for the sake of an if one is making a canopy, a floor-covering, a wall screen, a pillow, or a kneeling mat. It logical that there would also be no offense for the bhikkhu making a felt blanket/rug that do any border pieces and that he is not planning to use for sitting, but for some reason none texts mention this point. Summary: Making a felt sitting rug for one's own use -- or having it made -- without incorporating a one-span piece of old felt is a nissaggiya pacit offense. * * * 16. If wool accrues to a bhikkhu as he is going on a journey, he may accept it if he so desires. Once he accepts he may carry it by hand -- there being no one else to carry it -- three leagues (48 km.=3 most. Should he carry it farther than that, even if there is no one else to carry it, it i to be forfeited and confessed. "At that time wool accrued to a bhikkhu as he was on th road in the Kosalan districts, going to Savatthi. So, tying the wool into a bundle with his robe, he went along his way. People who saw him teased him, 'How much did you venerable sir? How much will the profit be?'" There are, in essence, three factors for an here: object, effort, and intention. Object. //Wool//, under this rule, refers to wool that not been made into goods (%). The Commentary explains that wool here thus does not cloth, woolen felt, woolen yarn, or even raw wool tied up with a thread, although this last p contradiction to the origin story, where the bhikkhu carried his wool tied up with a robe. Commentary goes on to say, though, that wool here //does// refer to even small quantities wool, such as wool placed in the ear when one has an earache, or wrapped around scisso sheath to protect them from rusting, so a bhikkhu should be careful not to travel more than with such things. Effort. This factor includes not only carrying unmade wool more tha leagues oneself, but also placing it in a bundle or vehicle belonging to someone else witho knowing about it, and then letting him/her take it more than three leagues. Perception is mitigating factor here: If one travels more than three leagues, even if one thinks one hasn fulfills this factor all the same. Intention. The Vibhanga says that there is no offense the bhikkhu who, after traveling three leagues, cannot find a proper place to stay and so wool further until finding a proper place. Thus the offense under this rule is only for a bhik carries wool past the three-league mark for reasons other than looking for a place to stay. Non-offenses. In addition to the issue of intention just mentioned, the no-offense clauses is no offense for the bhikkhu who is retrieving lost or stolen wool; for the bhikkhu who ca wool three leagues and then carries it back; or for the bhikkhu who gets someone else to c for him. Summary: Carrying wool that has not been made into cloth or yarn for mo three leagues is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * *

17.Should any bhikkhu have wool washed, dyed, or carded by a bhikkhuni unrela it is to be forfeited and confessed. The reason behind this rule is expressed succinct following conversation from the origin story: "Then Mahapajapati Gotami went to the One, and on approaching, greeting him, stood to one side. As she was standing th Blessed One said to her, 'I trust, Gotami, that the bhikkhunis remain uncomplacent, ardo resolute?' "'Since when, Lord, is there uncomplacency among the bhikkhunis? masters -- the group-of-six bhikkhus -- keep having the bhikkhunis wash, dye, and card bhikkhunis, washing, dyeing, and carding wool, neglect...the training in heightened vir training in heightened mind, and the training in heightened discernment.'" //Wool//, in under the preceding rule, refers to wool that has not been made into cloth or yarn. Thus offense for a bhikkhu who gets a bhikkhuni unrelated to him to wash woolen cloth or yar yet been used. Otherwise, all the explanations for this training rule are identical with for NP 4, except that here "beating" is replaced by "carding." Summary: Getting an u bhikkhuni to wash, dye, or card wool that has not been made into cloth or yarn is a pacittiya offense. * * *

18. Should any bhikkhu take gold and silver, or have it taken, or consent to its being deposited (near him), it is be forfeited and confessed. As mentioned under NP 10, one of the purposes of this rule i relieve a bhikkhu of the burden of ownership that comes as the result of accepting gifts of having them accepted in one's name. The discourses contain passages, though, indicatin purposes for this rule as well: "For whomever gold and silver are suitable, headman, th five strands of sensuality are also suitable. And for whomever the five strands of sensu suitable, gold and silver are suitable. You may take it for certain that this is not the of a contemplative, not the way of a son of the Sakyan." (S.XLII.10) "Bhikkhus, are these four stains because of which the sun and moon do not glow, do not shine, are What four? Rain clouds...snow clouds...smoke and dust...an eclipse. In the same w these four stains because of which contemplatives and priests do not glow, do not s not radiant. What four? Drinking alcoholic beverages...indulging in sexual intercourse... gold and silver...obtaining requisites through a wrong mode of livelihood." (A.IV.50) Bhikkhus, in abandoning the use of money, make real their abandonment of worldly pursu by example that the struggle for wealth is not the true way to find happiness. The fac an offense under this rule are two: object and effort. Object. The Vibhanga defines //g that it includes anything made of gold. //Silver// it defines to cover coins made of silver, wood, or lac, or whatever is used as a medium of exchange in business. The Commentar as bones, pieces of hide, fruit, seeds of trees used as currency, whether they have been a figure or not. At present, the term would include coins and paper currency, but not chec cards, bank drafts, or promissory notes, as these -- on their own and without further ider of the person carrying them -- do not function as true currency. The Commentary, in this training rule, also gathers a list of items from the Canon carrying a dukkata, rather tha nissaggiya pacittiya, when accepted by a bhikkhu. They include pearls and precious stone grain, slaves, fields, orchards, and livestock. For convenience's sake, we will refer to the from here on as dukkata objects (//dukkata-vatthu//), or D.O. for short. Effort. This fa may be fulfilled by any of three actions: 1) //Accepting//. According to the K/Comment includes receiving gold or money when it is offered as a gift or picking up gold or money around ownerless. (As the no-offense clauses show, this factor does not cover cases whe money left lying around the monastery or a house where one is visiting if one's purpose is safekeeping for the owner. See Pacittiya 84.) According to the Commentary, a bhikkhu money wrapped up in a bolt of cloth would also commit an offense here, which shows that receiving or taking the money not only with one's body, but also with items connected wi Thus accepting money in an envelope or having it placed in one's shoulder bag as it hang shoulder would fulfill this factor as well. The Vibhanga states that perception is not a mitigating factor. Thus a bhikkhu accepting an envelope that unbeknownst to him conta fall under this factor, too. The K/Commentary adds the stipulation that in the taking the must be some movement of the money from one place to another. It offers no explanation but it probably refers to cases where money is forced on a bhikkhu, as when he is on alms lay donor, against the bhikkhu's protestations, places money in his bowl. In this case, the simply stand right there until he gets the donor or someone else to remove the money, a absolved of an offense under this rule. The commentaries add an extra factor -- the ful entailed only if the bhikkhu is taking the money for his own sake -- but there is no mentio in the Vibhanga, so the added factor does not seem warranted. Thus whether the bhikkhu for himself or for others is not an issue here. 2) //Having money accepted//, accordin K/Commentary, includes getting someone else to do any of the actions covered under a described above. Examples from the texts include such things as telling the donor to give steward, telling the donor that so-and-so will take the money for him, telling the steward money, to put it in a donation box, to "do what he thinks appropriate," or any similar comm Anything that falls short of a command, though, would not fulfill this factor, as we have alre under NP 10. Thus simply telling the donor that X is the bhikkhus' steward -- or that the stewards have placed a donation box in such-and-such a place -- would not be a factor for

Also, if the donor leaves money, say, on a table as a gift for a bhikkhu, then if the bhikkh his steward what the donor did and said, without telling the steward to do anything with the letting the steward figure things out on his/her own -- this too would not entail a penalty.
Commentary's discussion of stewards under the next point shows that while a bhikkhu wh steward to put such a donation in a donation box would incur a penalty, a bhikkhu who s out the donation box would not. 3) //Consenting to money being deposited//. The Vibh this action as follows: "He (the donor), saying, 'This is for the master,' places it, and the consents." (%) According to the K/Commentary, //placing// covers two sorts of situations:
The donor places money anywhere in the bhikkhu's presence, and says, "This is for the
(2) The donor tells him, "I have some money placed in such-and-such a location. It's (One of the implications of this second case is that any monastery with a donation box make clear that money left in the box is being placed with the steward.) //Consentin either of these cases, says the Commentary, means that one does not refuse either in tho deed. Refusing in thought means thinking, "This is not proper for me." Refusing in word telling the donor that such a gift is not allowable. Refusing in deed means making a gestu effect. If one refuses in any of these ways -- e.g., one wants to accept the money, but te donor that it is not allowable; or one says nothing, but simply reminds oneself that such gif proper to accept -- one avoids the penalty here. The question of whether or not it is be express one's refusal outwardly lies beyond the scope of the Vinaya, and often depends o situation. Ideally, one should inform the donor so that he/she will know enough not to pres in the future, but there are also cases where the donor is still new to the idea of rules and simply be offended if the bhikkhu objects to what he/she means as a well-intentioned gest thus a matter where a bhikkhu should use his discretion. The Commentary contains discussion of what a bhikkhu should do if, after he refuses such a donation, the donor goe it there anyway: If someone else comes along and asks the bhikkhu, "What is this?", the him/her what he and the donor said, but may not ask him/her to do anything about it. If th volunteers to put the money into safekeeping, the bhikkhu may point out a safe place but him/her to put it there. Once the money is in a safe place, one may point it out to other people -- one's steward, for instance -- but may not tell anyone to take it. The Commentar directions for how to arrange an exchange with such money so as not to violate NP 19 & 2 save this part of the discussion until we come to those rules. The Vibhanga's definition action of "placing" money for a bhikkhu indicates that in this case the question of who the for //does// make a difference, since the nature of the donor's action is defined by what he
If the donor means the money for the bhikkhu, and the bhikkhu accepts, that fulfills the f
This covers cases where the donor says, "This is for you," or "This is for you to give to X."
If the donor simply says, "This is for the Community," or "This is for Bhikkhu Y," and Bhikk to its being placed down near him, then according to the Commentary, X incurs a dukkata.
say, though, what should be done with the money, aside from the fact that any bhikkhu wh bought with it also incurs a dukkata. Its discussion of the following rule, though, would see imply that it should be returned to the original donor. If money for Bhikkhu Y is placed Bhikkhu X in this way, and Y in turn accepts the donation for himself, then of course Y wou the full penalty under this rule. The Commentary's discussion under NP 10 indicates that Community is placed near Bhikkhu X, the Community is said to have accepted it only whe the Community unanimously agree to it. If one member disagrees, he saves all the other committing an offense -- except for X, who still has his dukkata. The Commentary he that a bhikkhu who accepts monetary donations "placed nearby" him for monastery buildin dukkata as well. This refers to cases where the donor says, "This is for the Community to such-and-such," and places the money down next to the bhikkhu. As the Commentary its 10, if the donor does not mention the name of the bhikkhu or the Community as custodian the funds, the donations are not to be refused. Rather, they are to be left there and the told of what the donor said. Forfeiture & confession. A bhikkhu who accepts money or it accepted, or consents to its being placed down for him must forfeit the money and confe in the midst of a formal meeting of the Community. The formula for forfeiture is given in VI. This is one of the few rules where the offender may not confess the offense to an indiv or to a group of less than four. Once he has forfeited the money, the Community is not t to him, as there is no way a bhikkhu is allowed to possess money. If a lay person the along, the bhikkhus should tell him, "Look at this." If he asks, "What should be bought with bhikkhus are not to tell him to buy anything, although they may tell him what in general is for bhikkhus, such as the five tonics, as under NP 23 below. If he takes the money and pu proper items, all the bhikkhus except for the one who originally accepted the money may n

If it so happens that one of the bhikkhus tells him explicitly to buy something, then the C says that the item(s) bought this way may be used by all the bhikkhus except for the origin the bhikkhu who gave the order to buy. If the lay person does not volunteer to buy anyth money, the bhikkhus should tell him to get rid of it. If he does not get rid of it, they are choose one of their number as the "money-remover," by means of the formal act -- one announcement (//natti-dutiya-kamma//) -- given in the Vibhanga. The money-remover's du money away without taking note of where it falls. If he does take note, he incurs a dukka Commentary recommends that, "Closing his eyes, he should throw it into a river, over a cli jungle thicket without paying attention to where it falls, disinterested as if it were excremen None of the texts mention what a bhikkhu is to do with dukkata objects he has received shall see under the following rule, the Commentary would seem to suggest that he return t donors. Non-offenses. As mentioned above, there is no offense for the bhikkhu who, lying around the monastery or in a house he is visiting, puts it away in safe keeping for the point is discussed in detail under Pacittiya 84. Summary: Taking gold or money, hav else take it, or consenting to its being placed down as a gift for oneself is a nissagg pacittiya offense. * * * 19. Should any bhikkhu engage in various types of monetary exchange, it (the income) is to be forfeitec confessed. There are two factors for an offense here: object and effort. Object. Th Vibhanga defines //money// in the same terms it uses to define gold and silver in the prece type of gold, whether shaped into an ornament or not; and any coins or currency used in exchange. Effort. The Vibhanga's description of the kind of exchange covered by thi differs from that given in the Commentary, so it is best to discuss them separately. // Vibhanga's interpretation//. Monetary exchange refers primarily to the type of business an gold dealer would engage in -- exchanging currency, trading gold ore for gold shaped int vice versa, trading gold ore for gold ore, or gold ornaments for gold ornaments -- but the V discussion of the factor of perception shows that the factor of effort here includes any exch the bhikkhu ends up with gold or money as the result of the exchange. Thus it would cove a bhikkhu sells any kind of item -- allowable or unallowable -- for money. At first glan this would seem redundant with the preceding rule against receiving money, and the follov engaging in trade, but actually it closes a number of loopholes in those rules. In the prec rule, a bhikkhu may point out a steward to a person who brings money intended for him; a following rule he can, if he words it right, propose a trade or tell a steward to arrange a tr him. Thus, given just those two rules, it would be possible for a bhikkhu using "proper" pro have his steward engage in currency speculation and other money-making activities with an offense. This rule, though, includes no such exceptions for "wording things right (//kappiya-vohara//)," and so closes those loopholes as far as this type of trading is concer result, a bhikkhu may not express a desire to his steward that he/she sell something belon or take funds dedicated for his use and invest them for monetary return. And if the bhikkh abroad, he must leave it up to his steward to figure out that his funds may have to be exc foreign currency if they are going to be of any use. //The Commentary's interpretation// According to the Commentary, monetary exchange refers to any trade in which money is i whether as the item the bhikkhu brings into the trade, gets out of the trade, or both. Buddl that this interpretation is based on a passage that is not in the Vibhanga but logically shou The Sub-commentary supports him, explaining that if monetary exchange covers trades in one side of the trade, it shouldn't matter which side of the trade it is on. This, howeve contradicts a number of points in the Vibhanga. (1) Its table of the possible actions covere includes only cases where the outcome of the trade for the bhikkhu is money. As we no Introduction, we have to trust that the Vibhanga arrangers knew what was and was not an certain rule, and that if they had meant the rule to cover more than the alternatives listed table, they would have included them. (2) In the Vibhanga's discussion of how the forfeitu conducted, it consistently refers to the offender as the "one who purchased money" and to throws the forfeited object away as the "one who removes the money." (3) If //monetary covers cases where the bhikkhu uses money to buy allowable things, then the discussion could get his steward to use money rightfully placed with the steward to buy such things been included under this rule; instead, it is included under the following rule. All of this see indicate that the Commentary is on shaky ground when it tries to force its interpretation o Vibhanga here. Still, the Commentary's interpretation is widely followed and fairly co it will be good to discuss it in some detail. As under the preceding rule, the Commenta articles into three sorts: //nissaggiya objects// (N.O.), i.e., articles such as gold and money, which entail a nissaggiya pacittiya when they are accepted, //dukkata obje (D.O.), articles such as pearls, precious stones, unhusked grain, fields, orchards, slaves livestock, which entail a dukkata when they are accepted; //allowable objects// (A. articles that a bhikkhu may rightfully accept and possess. It then works out the follo scheme to cover all possible sorts of trade involving these objects: Using to buy resu ~~~~~ ~~~~~~ ~~~~~~~~~~ N.O. > N.O. a nissaggiya pacittiya N.O. > D.O. a n pacittiya N.O. > A.O. a nissaggiya pacittiya D.O. > N.O. a nissaggiya pacittiya D D.O. a dukkata* D.O. > A.O. a dukkata* A.O. > N.O. a nissaggiya pacittiya A.

D.O. a dukkata* A.O. > A.O. a nissaggiya pacittiya under NP 20 The trades mark asterisks point out one of the anomalies of the Commentary's interpretation: Why trades i should entail only a dukkata, while A.O. > A.O. trades should entail a nissaggiya pacittiy fathom. At any rate, to continue with the Commentary's explanations: N.O. > A.O. tra two possible cases, depending on whether the money was obtained properly or improperly rule. If improperly, the object bought with the money is unallowable for all bhikkhus. Thi whether the bhikkhu makes the purchase himself or a steward makes it for him. The only be made allowable is to have an equal sum of money returned to the original donor and returned to the person who sold it, and then arrange for a proper exchange as allowed und rule. (At first glance, it may seem strange for the Commentary to insist that the price of t be returned to the original donor of the N.O., since the bhikkhus are in no way in his/her de is probably the Commentary's way of ensuring that if the seller returns the purchase price the bhikkhus' steward, it is not used to repurchase the A.O.) If, however, a bhikkhu e in a N.O. > A.O. trade using money obtained properly under the preceding rule, the item b unallowable only for him, but allowable for other bhikkhus once he has forfeited it. If N.O. exchanges really were covered by this rule, though, this would contradict the Vibhanga, wh that the item obtained as a result of this rule either has to be given to a lay person or throw Thus it seems better to follow the Vibhanga in treating cases of this sort under the follow The Commentary makes no mention of what should be done with items resulting from carry a dukkata here, but its discussion of how to "undo" a trade so as to make the item al suggests the following scheme: For a D.O > D.O. trade: Return the object bought to t who sold it, return the original object to the donor, and confess the offense. For a A.O. trade: Return the object bought to the person who sold it, return the original object donor, and confess the offense. If one wants to, one may then approach the person the allowable object and arrange a proper trade in accordance with the following rule.
~~~~~

A.O. > D.O. trade: Return the object bought to the person who sold it and confess the c
As an intellectual exercise, the Commentary considers the question of a trade that results that can never be made allowable, and comes up with the following scenario: A bhikkhu ta improperly obtained under the preceding rule, uses it to get iron mined, smelted and made Since there is no way to undo these transactions -- the iron can never be returned to its sta
-- there is no way any bhikkhu may ever properly make use of the iron no matter what is d As mentioned above, the Commentary's explanations here contradict the Vibhanga on points, and contain several anomalies as well. It seems preferable to treat a number of ca here -- N.O. > D.O., N.O. > A.O., D.O. > D.O., D.O. > A.O., A.O. > D.O., or in other word resulting in an allowable or a dukkata object -- under the following rule instead. Forfe confession. When a bhikkhu has obtained gold or money in violation of this rule he is to fo the midst of a formal meeting of the Community, following the procedures explained und rule. The Pali formula for forfeiture is in Appendix VI. Non-offenses. The Vibhanga's no-offense clauses contain nothing but the blanket exemptions mentioned under Parajika Summary: Obtaining gold or money through trade is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * *

20. Should any bhikkhu engage in various types of trade,
(the article obtained) is to be forfeited and confessed. "Now at that time Ven. Upana Sakyan had become skilled at robe making. Having made an outer robe of old rags it well and stitched it nicely, he wore it. A certain wanderer, wearing a very expensive c went to where he was staying and on arrival said to him, 'Your outer robe is beautiful, r Give it to me in exchange for this cloak.' "'Do you know (what you are doing), m friend?' "'Yes, I know.' "'Very well, then.' And he gave him the robe.
"Then the wanderer went to the wanderers' park wearing the outer robe. The other v to him, 'Your outer robe is beautiful, friend. Where did you get it?' "'I got it in exchange for my cloak.' "'But how long will this outer robe last you? That cloak of yours was better.' "So the wanderer, thinking, 'It's true what the wanderers said long will this outer robe last me? That cloak of mine was better,' went to where Ven. Up Sakyan was staying, and on arrival said, 'Here is your outer robe, my friend. Give r cloak.' "'But didn't I ask you, "Do you know what you are doing?" I won't give it you.' "So the wanderer was offended and annoyed and spread it about, 'Even a householder will give another householder the item he regrets (trading). How can one v forth not give (extend the same courtesy) to one who has gone forth?'" As we no under NP 10, one of the purposes of this rule is to relieve bhikkhus of the responsibilities t with making trades -- the responsibility of having to get a fair price for one's goods and a time offering a fair deal to the person making the trade. The factors for an offense her two: object and effort. Object. The Vibhanga defines //various types of trade// as co deals involving the four requisites, "even a lump of powder, a tooth-cleaner or unwoven th being its standard examples of objects with the least possible material value. The Comm interprets this as limiting this rule to deals involving nothing but allowable objects (A.O. > A there is nothing in the Vibhanga to suggest that this is necessarily so. The emphasis in seems to be that this rule covers even allowable objects of the least possible value, and al more valuable and restricted objects. In fact, since the Vibhanga explicitly limits the prec rule to trades that result in money for the bhikkhu (N.O. > N.O.; D.O. > N.O.; A.O. > N.O.), best to interpret this rule as covering all types of trade not covered in that rule: N.O. > N.O. > A.O.; D.O. > D.O.; D.O. > A.O.; A.O. > D.O.; and A.O. > A.O. The Vibhanga commentaries also mention that the goods one offers in trade are one's own goods, but th explicitly whether or not this also includes goods belonging to someone else that have b trust in one's keeping (such as monastery funds placed under the supervision of a monast Since the no-offense clauses make no exemptions for a bhikkhu who trades using goods from someone else, though, it would seem that such cases do fall under this rule as well Effort. //Engaging in trading//, according to the Vibhanga, involves two steps: (1) The proposes an exchange, saying, "Give this for that," or "Take this for that," or "Exchange that," or "Purchase this with that." (2) The goods exchange hands, the bhikkhu's g ending up with the other person, and the other person's goods ending up with the b

The first step entails a dukkata; both steps together, a nissaggiya pacittiya. Perception mitigating factor here: If a bhikkhu manages an exchange in a way that he thinks avoids a under this rule but in fact doesn't (see below), he commits the full offense all the same.
Forfeiture & confession. Once a bhikkhu has received an article from trading, he is to forfe to an individual bhikkhu, to a group of two or three, or to a full Community of four or more.
then may he confess the offense. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and the return are the same as under NP 1. The Pali formula for forfeiture is in Appendix VI. The Vibh mention of what the bhikkhu may and may not do with after receiving it in return, but we m from the Commentary's discussion of the preceding rule and say that: //If the exchan > D.O.//, he should return the D.O. to its seller. If the N.O. was properly obtained under there is nothing further to be done. If not, the bhikkhu should confess the offense fo violating that rule. (If he accepts the purchase price in return, he must forfeit it in the mi the Community. If not, he should simply confess the pacittiya offense.) //If the exchange was N.O. > A.O.//, then if the N.O. was obtained in violation of NP 18, no bhik use of the A.O. unless it is returned to the seller, the price of the article is turned ov to the original donor of the money, and the A.O. is then repurchased in a way that does this rule. (Again, if the seller refunds the purchase price, the offender should forfeit in the midst of the Community. If not, he should simply confess the pacittiya offense.) //If the N.O. in this case was properly obtained//, then the purchased article is allowable bhikkhus, but not for the offender. (Some might object that if the N.O. was properly it should be treated as A.O., but we must remember that a bhikkhu who orders his stew to buy an object is assuming ownership of the money, which goes against the spirit of and the protocol of having a steward in the first place.) //If the exchange was D.O. > D bhikkhu should return the purchased article to the seller and the original article (if the seller returns it to him) to the original donor. //If the exchange was D.O. > A.O.//, the pu article is not allowable for any bhikkhu unless it is returned to the seller, the D.O. is returned to the original donor, and the A.O. is then repurchased in a way that does not v rule. //If the exchange was A.O. > D.O.//, the bhikkhu should return the purchased to the seller. //If the exchange was A.O. > A.O.//, the bhikkhu may make use of the as he likes. //If the exchange was wages in payment for services rendered//, the C notes that there is no way the bhikkhu can rightfully get the payment back, so he should confess a pacittiya offense. Non-offenses. In the origin story to NP 5, the Buddha a bhikkhus to trade allowable articles with other bhikkhus, bhikkhunis, female probationers, female novices. The present rule thus covers trades made only with people who are not co-religionists. As for trades with people who are not one's co-religionists, the Vibhan adds that a bhikkhu commits no offense -- if he asks the price of an object; if he tells steward (wording the request properly, as under NP 10); or if he tells the seller, "I hav I have need of such-and-such," and then lets the seller arrange the exchange as he fit. This last point may seem like a lot of hair splitting, but we must remember that if a is arranged in this way, the bhikkhu is absolved from any responsibility for the fairness of t which seems to be the whole point of the rule. The Commentary, in discussing these raises the following points: 1) A bhikkhu who tries to avoid the technicalities of what is defined as engaging in trading by saying simply, "Give this. Take that," may do so only close relatives. Otherwise, telling a lay person to take one's belongings as his/her own "theft of faith" (//saddha-deyya//) -- i.e., a misuse of the donations that lay supporters ha sacrificed for the bhikkhu's use. (See Mv.VIII.22.1) On the other hand, telling an unrela lay person to give something is a form of begging, which carries a dukkata unless the la related or has invited one to ask in the first place. (From this we may deduce that bhikk should not bargain after having asked the price of goods or services -- e.g., a taxi fare -- situations where bargaining is the norm.) 2) A bhikkhu desiring to get an article m his steward, "Having taken that, give (the seller) this." This, however, contradicts o passages in the Commentary itself, in which this form of speech is said to violate this ru spoken directly to the seller. Since the Vibhanga includes orders to X to purchase coming under this rule, it would seem that only the forms of speech allowed under NP 1 need of such-and-such;" "I want such-and-such" -- would be allowed under the no-clauses here as well. 3) Under the previous rule, the Commentary mentioned that a engaging in an otherwise allowable trade for profit incurs a dukkata. Here it says that if proposing a trade by wording it right (//kappiya-vohara//), deceives the seller as to t value of his goods, he is to be treated under Parajika 2. 4) If a bhikkhu goes with steward to a store and sees that the steward is getting a bad deal, he may simply tell th steward, "Don't take it." 5) The Commentary to NP 10 describes how a bhikkhu may n purchase when his steward has left funds in safe-keeping on the bhikkhu's premises bu to arrange a trade when, say, a bowl-seller comes along. The bhikkhu may tell the selle want this bowl, and there are funds of equal value here, but there is no steward to make allowable." If the seller volunteers to make them allowable, the bhikkhu may show him they are but may not tell him how much to take. If the seller takes too much, the bhikkh the sale by saying, "I don't want your bowl after all." In general it is not a wise policy have funds left for safe-keeping on one's premises -- a Community allowing this exposes dangers of robbery and assault -- but the Commentary here seems less interested in desc behavior than in simply drawing the line between what is and is not an offense. Spec

1) The Bhikkhunis' Nissaggiya Pacittiya rules 4-10 show that if a lay donor gives money to to pay for whatever a bhikkhuni will request from the store, the bhikkhuni may avail hers arrangement. If the donor stipulates that this arrangement applies only to certain things, o worth a certain amount, she may request only what falls under the stipulation: This is th the rules. In effect, what this is doing is making the storeowner her steward. Such an arra would thus also seem allowable for bhikkhus, as long as they word their requests to the st properly, as advised under NP 10. 2) As mentioned under NP 18, checks, credit cards and traveler's checks do not count as gold or money, but any trade arranged with them v this rule. With checks, the point where the full offense is committed is when the bhikkhu h check over to the seller -- or tells his steward to hand it over -- in exchange for goods or se Simply signing a check does not come under this rule. Thus a bhikkhu responsible for mo building funds of the sort discussed in the Commentary to NP 10 -- where the donor make responsible for saying who money should go to -- may sign checks drawing on the fund wi committing an offense here, unless he hands the check over to the seller or tells the stewa to buy X." Similarly with credit cards: The offense is committed when the bhikkhu ha signed credit card receipt -- or has it handed -- to the seller. The receipt is an acknowledg goods purchased or services rendered, which in the context of the card holder's agreem credit card company is his promise to repay the loan he is making on the company. This p is trading with the seller. Summary: Engaging in trade with anyone except one's co-religionists is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * * * * * * *

CHAPTER SEVEN

Part Three: The Bowl Chapter ~~~

the bowl, they do not make it a non-bowl, and the bhikkhu should mend it and continue us however, there is even one hole so large that the metal used to plug it cannot be polished surface of the rest of the bowl, the tiny crevices in the patch will collect food. This makes unfit for use, and the owner is entitled to ask for a new one to replace it. An extra alm bowl, according to the Vibhanga, is any that has not yet been determined for use or placed ownership. Since a bhikkhu may have only one bowl determined for use at any one time, any additional bowls he receives under dual ownership if he plans to keep them on hand.
for placing bowls under determination and dual ownership, and for rescinding their deter dual ownership, are given in Appendices IV & V.) Effort. According to the Commen bowl belonging to a bhikkhu fulfills all the requirements for a determinable bowl, he is res for it even if he has not yet received it into his keeping. For example, if a blacksmith prom him a bowl and send word when it is finished, the bhikkhu is responsible for the bowl as hears word from the blacksmith's messenger that the bowl is ready, even if he has yet to r the blacksmith, prior to making the bowl, promises to send it when it is done, then the bh responsible for it until the blacksmith's messenger brings it to him. (All of this assumes tha bowl is already fully paid for.) If, within ten days after becoming responsible for a new bhikkhu does not determine it for use, place it under dual ownership, abandon it (give it away), or if the bowl is not lost, stolen, damaged beyond repair, or taken on trust, then on dawn after receiving it he incurs the full penalty under this rule. Perception is not a mitigating factor here. Even if the bhikkhu thinks that ten days have not passed when they thinks that the bowl is damaged beyond repair or placed under dual ownership, etc., whe incurs the penalty all the same. Forfeiture & confession. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the bowl are the same as under NP 1. For the Pali formulae to u and returning the bowl, see Appendix VI. As with the rules concerning robe-cloth, the bow returned to the offender after he has confessed his offense. Not to return it entails a dukka the bowl is returned, the ten-day countdown starts all over again. Non-offenses. The offense if within ten days the bhikkhu determines the bowl for use, places it under dual ow abandons it, loses it, or if the bowl is stolen, damaged beyond repair, or taken on trust.
Summary: Keeping an alms bowl for more than ten days without determining it for use under dual ownership is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. *
* * 22. Should a bhikkhu with an alms bowl having less than five mends ask fo another new bowl, it is to be forfeited and confessed. The bowl is to be forfeited by the the company of bhikkhus. That company of bhikkhus' final bowl should be presente bhikkhu, (saying,) "This, bhikkhu, is your bowl. It is to be kept until broken." This is proper procedure here. "Now at that time a certain potter had invited the bhikkhus, 'If any of the masters need a bowl, I will supply them with bowls.' So the bhikkhus, know moderation, asked for many bowls. Those with small bowls asked for large ones. large ones asked for small ones. The potter, making many bowls for the bhikkhus, coul make other goods for sale. (As a result,) he could not support himself, and his wife and suffered." According to the Commentary, the phrase, a bowl "having less than five men one that is not beyond repair, as explained under the preceding rule. Thus this rule does n bhikkhu whose bowl is beyond repair: As the K/Commentary notes, whether or not the o is actually mended is not an issue here. A bhikkhu whose bowl is not beyond repair in dukkata in asking for a new bowl, and a nissaggiya pacittiya in receiving it. Forfeiture confession, & bowl exchange. Once a bhikkhu has received a bowl in violation of this rule forfeit it and confess the offense in the midst of the Community. (See Appendix VI for th formula used in forfeiture.) He then receives the Community's "final bowl" to use in place o he has forfeited. The Community's final bowl is selected in the following way: Each bhikkhu coming to the meeting to witness the offender's forfeiture and confession must bri has determined for his own use. If a bhikkhu has an inferior bowl in his possession -- eithe or placed under dual ownership -- he is not to determine that bowl and take it to the meetin getting a more valuable one in the exchange about to take place. To do so entails a duk Once the bhikkhus have assembled, the offender forfeits his bowl and confesses the off Community, following the pattern of one motion and one announcement (//natti-dutiya-kam the Vibhanga, then chooses one of its members as bowl exchanger. The bowl exchanger forfeited bowl and show it to the most senior bhikkhu, who is to choose whichever of the tw pleases him more -- his own or the new one. If the new bowl is preferable to his own, and take it out of sympathy for the offender, he incurs a dukkata. The K/Commentary and Su add that if he does not prefer the new bowl, there is no offense in not taking it. Onc most senior bhikkhu has taken his choice, the remaining bowl is then shown to the bhikkhu seniority, who repeats the process, and so on down the line to the most junior bhikkhu. exchanger then takes the bowl left over from this last bhikkhu's choice -- the least desirabl belonging to that company of bhikkhus -- and presents it to the offender and tells him to for his use and care for it as best he can. If the offender treats it improperly -- putting place where it might get damaged, using it in the wrong sort of way -- or tries to get rid o thinking, "How can this bowl be lost or destroyed or broken," he incurs a dukkata.

Non-offenses. The Vibhanga states that a bhikkhu whose bowl is not beyond repair incurs asks for a new bowl from relatives or from people who have invited him to ask, or if he get bowl with his own resources. He is also allowed to ask for a bowl for the sake of another, following the Commentary to NP 6 -- means that Bhikkhu X may ask for a bowl for Y only i his own relatives or people who have invited him to ask for a bowl OR if he asks from Y's r people who have invited Y to ask. Asking for and receiving a bowl for Y from people oth would entail the full offense. Summary: Asking for a new alms bowl when one's curren is not beyond repair is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * *

23.There are these tonics to be taken by sick bhikkhus: ghee, fresh butter, oil, honey, sugar/molasses. Having been received, they are to be used from storage seven most. Beyond that, they are to be forfeited and confessed. Tonics. The five tonics menti rule form one of four classes of edibles grouped according to the time period within which eaten after being received. The other three -- food, juice drinks, and medicines -- are disc detail at the beginning of the Food Chapter in the pacittiya rules. Here is the story of hov group came to be a special class: "Then as the Blessed One was alone in seclusion, t of reasoning occurred to him: 'At present the bhikkhus, afflicted by the autumn disease the conjey they have drunk and the food they have eaten. Because of this they are wretched, unattractive, and jaundiced, their bodies covered with veins. What if I were to medicine for them that would be both medicine and agreed to be medicine for the w serve as food, yet would not be considered gross (substantial) food.' "Then this th occurred to him: 'There are these five tonics -- ghee, fresh butter, oil, honey, sugar/mol that are both medicine and agreed to be medicine for the world, and serve as food y be considered gross food. What if I were now to allow the bhikkhus, having accept the right time (from dawn to noon), to consume them at the right time'.... "Now a time bhikkhus, having accepted the five tonics at the right time, consumed them at the r Because of this they could not stomach even their ordinary coarse meals, much les ones. As a result, afflicted both by the autumn disease and this loss of appetite for food they became even more thin and wretched....So the Blessed One, for this cause, for this given a Dhamma talk, addressed the bhikkhus: 'I allow you, bhikkhus, having acce tonics, to consume them both at the right time and at the wrong time (from noon to dawn (Mv.VI.1) The Vibhanga defines the five tonics as follows: //Ghee// means strained butter oil made from the milk of any animal whose flesh is allowable for bhikkhus to eat (se introduction to the Food Chapter in the pacittiya rules). //Fresh butter// must be made f milk of any animal whose flesh is allowable. None of the Vinaya texts go into detail on how butter is made, but the Bhumija Discourse (M.126) describes the process as "having sprin pot, one twirls them with a churn." Fresh butter of this sort is still made in India today by a small churn -- looking like an orange with alternate sections removed, attached to a sma twirling it in curds, all the while sprinkling them with water. The fresh butter -- mostly mil plus some milk solids -- coagulates on the churn, and when the fresh butter is removed, w the pot is diluted buttermilk. Fresh butter, unlike creamery butter made by churning crean stored unrefrigerated in bottles for several days even in the heat of India without going ran Arguing by the Great Standards, creamery butter would obviously come under fresh butte controversial topic is cheese. In Mahavagga VI.34.21, the Buddha allows bhikkhus to c products of the cow: milk, curds, buttermilk, fresh butter, and ghee. Apparently, cheese - heated to evaporate their liquid content and then cured with or without mold -- was not kno days, but it seems proper to include it under one of the five. The question is which one. S argued that it should come under fresh butter, since the composition is similar -- milk fat an derived from curds. Others have argued that it should come under curds, as it generally re more of a gross food. Since the texts give no guidance here, the best policy would seem t follow the views of the Community to which one belongs. //Oil//, according to the Vibha includes sesame oil, mustard seed oil, "honey tree" oil, castor oil, and oil from tallow. The Mahavagga (VI.2.1) allows oil made from five kinds of tallow: bear, fish, alligator (shark?), donkey tallow. Since bear meat is one of the kinds normally unallowable for bhikkhus, the Sub-commentary interprets this list as meaning oil from the tallow of any animal whose fle -- and from any animal whose flesh, if eaten, carries a dukkata -- is allowable here. Since flesh, if eaten, carries a thullaccaya, oil from human fat is not allowed. The Commentary a made from any plants not listed in the Vibhanga carries a dukkata if kept more than seven //Honey// means the honey of bees, although the Commentary lists two species of bee - long and with wings, and //tumbala//, large, black and with hard wings -- whose honey it sa viscous and ranks as a medicine, not as one of the five tonics. //Sugar/molasses// th defines simply as essence of sugar cane. The Commentary interprets this as meaning no molasses, but also fresh sugar cane juice. The Vinaya Mukha disagrees here, saying that if kept overnight, can quickly turn into alcohol and so should be classed as a juice drink.

Commentary also says that sugar or molasses made from any fruit classed as a food -- e.g palm, sugar beet, etc. -- ranks as a food and not as a tonic, but it is hard to guess at its r here, since sugar cane itself is also classed as a food. The Vinaya Mukha seems more co Great Standards to say that all forms of sugar and molasses, no matter what the source, included here. Thus artificial sweeteners would also come under this rule. According Mv.VI.16.1, even if the sugar has a little flour mixed in with it simply to make it firmer -- as happens in sugar cubes and blocks of palm sugar -- it is still classed as a tonic as long a still regarded simply as "sugar." If there is enough flour mixed in so that people are consc flour's being there, or if the flour is meant to serve more than simply as a firming agent, t mixture counts as a food and may not be eaten after noon of the day on which it is receive Proper use. According to Mv.VI.40.3, any tonic received today may be eaten mixed with fo drinks received today, but not with food or juice drinks received on a later day. Thus, as th Commentary points out, tonics received in the morning may be eaten with food that morni the afternoon, they may not be eaten mixed with food at any time at all. Also, the C says at one point, one may take the tonic at any time during those seven days regardless one is ill. At another point, though, it says that one may take the tonic after the morning day on which it is received only if one has a reason. This statement the Sub-commentary meaning that any reason suffices -- e.g., hunger, weakness -- as long as one is not takin for nourishment as food. In other words, one may take enough to assuage one's hunger, oneself up. Mv.VI.27, though, contains a special stipulation for the use of sugar. If is ill, one may take it "as is" at any time during the seven days; if not, then after noon of the day one make take it only if it is mixed with water. Forfeiture & confession. If a bhikk keeps a tonic past the seventh dawn after receiving it, he is to forfeit it and confess the r pacittiya offense. Perception is not a mitigating factor here. Even if he thinks that seven d not yet passed when they actually have -- or thinks that the tonic is no longer in his poss it actually is -- he incurs the penalty all the same (%). The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the tonic are the same as under NP 1. The formula to use in forf tonic is given in Appendix VI. Once the bhikkhu receives the tonic in return, he may not us to apply to his body, although he may use it for other external purposes, such as oil for a Other bhikkhus may not eat the tonic either, but they may apply it to their bodies -- for exa to rub down their limbs. Non-offenses. According to the Vibhanga, there is no offens within seven days the tonic gets lost, destroyed, burnt, stolen, or taken on trust; or if the bh determines it for use, abandons it or -- having given it away to an unordained person, aban possession of it in his mind -- he receives it in return and makes use of it (%). The Commentary has an extended discussion of the last three points. 1) Determining the use means that, within the seven days, the bhikkhu determines that he will use it not as a but only to apply to the outside of his body or for other external purposes instead. In this c keep the tonic as long as he likes without penalty. 2) Unlike the other rules dealing w robe-cloth or bowls kept X number of days, the no-offense clauses here do not include e tonics placed under dual ownership, but the Commentary discusses "abandons it" as if it r under dual ownership." Its verdict: Any tonic placed under dual ownership may be kept seven days without incurring a penalty as long as the owners do not divide up their shares the seventh day they may not use it for internal purposes. The Sub-commentary adds tha under dual ownership may not be used at all until the arrangement is rescinded. 3) T Commentary reports a controversy between two Vinaya experts on the meaning of the las list -- i.e., "having given it away to an unordained person, abandoning possession of it in he receives it in return and makes use of it." Ven. Maha Sumatthera states that the phrase seven days" applies here as well: If within seven days the bhikkhu gives the tonic to an person, having abandoned possession of it in his mind, he may then keep it and consume seven days if the unordained person happens to return it to him. Ven. Maha Paduma disagrees, saying that the exemption "abandons it" already covers such a case, and that th here refers to the situation where a bhikkhu has kept a tonic past seven days, has forfeited received it in return, and then gives it up to an unordained person. If the unordained perso returns the tonic to him, he may use it to rub on his body. The K/Commentary agrees w position, but this creates some problems, both textual and practical. To begin with, the p within seven days," modifies every one of the other no-offense clauses, and there is nothin that it does not modify this one, too. Secondly, every one of the other exemptions refers ways of avoiding the full offense, and not to ways of dealing with the forfeited article after i returned, and again there is nothing to indicate that the last exemption breaks this pattern.

On the practical side, if the exemption "abandons it" covers cases where a bhikkhu may g to anyone at all and then receive it in return to use for another seven days, bhikkhus could their time trading hoards of tonics among themselves indefinitely, and the rule would beco

But as the origin story shows, it was precisely to prevent them from amassing such hoar rule was formulated in the first place. "Then Ven. Pilindavaccha approached the reside Seniya Bimbisara of Magadha, and on arrival sat down on an appointed seat. Then Bimbisara... approached Ven. Pilindavaccha and, paying homage, sat down to one side sat there, Ven. Pilindavaccha addressed him: 'For what reason, great king, has the mo attendant's family been imprisoned?' "'Sir, in the monastery attendant's house w garland of gold: beautiful, attractive, exquisite. There is no garland of gold like it ev in our own women's quarters. From where could he have gotten it? It must have been "Then Ven. Pilindavaccha willed that the palace of King Seniya Bimbisara be go it became made entirely of gold. 'But from where did you get so much gold, great k "(Saying,) 'I understand, sir. This is simply the master's psychic power,' he had the monastery attendant's family released. "The people, saying, 'The master Pilind displayed a psychic wonder, a superior human feat, to the king and his retinue,' we gladdened and delighted. They presented Ven. Pilindavaccha with the five tonics: ghe oil, honey, and sugar. "Now ordinarily Ven. Pilindavaccha was already a receiv the five tonics, so he distributed his gains among his company, who came to live in They put away their gains having filled pots and pitchers. They hung up their gains filled water strainers and bags. These kept oozing and seeping, and their dwellings wer creeping with rats. People, engaged in a tour of the dwellings, having seen this, we offended and annoyed and spread it about, 'These Sakyan contemplatives have inner like the king....'" Thus it seems more likely that the Vibhanga's no-offense clauses sho interpreted like this: A bhikkhu is no longer held responsible for a tonic if he abandons it o away -- no matter who he gives it to, or what his state of mind -- but he may receive it in use it another seven days only if he has given it to an unordained person, having abandon of it in his mind. Summary: Keeping any of the five tonics -- ghee, fresh butter, oil, honey, or sugar/molasses -- for more than seven days, unless one determines to us externally, is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * *
24. When a month is left to the hot season, a bhikkhu may seek a rains-bathing cl a half-month is left to the hot season, (the cloth) having been made, may be worn.
more than a month is left to the hot season he should seek a rains-bathing cloth, (or) wh a half-month is left to the hot season, (the cloth) having been made should be worn be forfeited and confessed. Bhikkhus in the time of the Buddha commonly bathed in lake. Passages in the Canon give an indication of some of the dangers involved: They h their robes to make sure they weren't stolen or washed away by the river, and at the same sure they didn't expose themselves. (S.II.10 tells of a female deity who, seeing a young b became smitten with the sight of him wearing only his under robe. She appeared to him that he leave the monkhood to take his fill of sensual pleasures before his youth had past, fortunately he was far enough in the practice to resist her advances.) A further danger d rainy season was that the rivers would become swollen and their currents strong. During t bhikkhus would bathe in the rain. Rains-bathing cloth. The Mahavagga (Mv.VIII.15.1-the story of a servant girl who went to a monastery and -- seeing bhikkhus out bathing na rain -- concluded that there were no bhikkhus there, but only naked ascetics. She returned her mistress, Lady Visakha, who realized what was actually happening and made this the permission of the Buddha to provide rains-bathing cloths for the bhikkhus, because as she "Nakedness is repulsive." He granted her request, and at a later point (Mv.VIII.20.2) state rains-bathing cloth could be determined for use during the four months of the rainy season beginning with the day after the full moon in July, or the second if there are two -- and that of the four months it was to be placed under dual ownership. This training rule deals with protocol for seeking and using such a cloth during the rains and the period immediately pr

The protocol is sketched out in the Vibhanga, the details being filled in by the Comme follows: During the first two weeks of the fourth lunar month of the hot season -- the lunar ending with the full moon in July, or the first if there are two -- a bhikkhu may seek a rains-cloth and make it if he gets enough material, but may not yet use it or determine it for use.
seeking the cloth he may directly ask for it from relatives or people who have invited him to may approach people who have provided rains-bathing cloths in the past and give them su "It is the time for material for a rains-bathing cloth," or "People are giving material for a rains-bathing cloth." If he asks directly from people who are not relatives or who have not him to ask, he incurs a dukkata; if he then receives cloth from them, he incurs the full pena
6. If he gives hints to people who have never provided rains-bathing cloths in the past, h dukkata. During the last two weeks of the fourth lunar month of the hot season he ma using his cloth, although he may not yet determine it for use. This shows clearly that this r providing an exemption to NP 1, under which he otherwise would be forced to determine t days after receiving it. If he has not yet received enough material, he may continue seekin in the way described above and make himself a cloth when he receives enough. Wh of the rainy season arrives, he may determine the cloth. If he does not yet have enough m his rains-bathing cloth, he may continue seeking it throughout the four months of the rain bathes naked in the rain when he has a cloth to use, he incurs a dukkata, although he may lake or river without penalty. If he has no cloth to use, he may also bathe naked in the ra At the end of the four months, he is to wash his cloth, place it under dual ownership, and aside if it is still usable. He may begin using it again the last two weeks of the last lunar m before the next rainy season and is to redetermine it for use on the day the rainy season c begins. Towards the end of his discussion of this rule, Buddhaghosa adds his own p opinion on when the rains-bathing cloth should be determined for use if it is finished during on the grounds that the ancient commentaries do not discuss the issue -- one of the few he overtly gives his own opinion anywhere in the Commentary. His verdict: If one receive material to finish the cloth within ten days, one should determine it within those ten days. may keep what material one has, undetermined and throughout the rainy season if need b does obtain enough material and then determine the cloth on the day it is completed. Offenses. As the K/Commentary points out, this rule covers two separate offenses whose somewhat different: the offense for seeking a rains-bathing cloth at the wrong time and th using it at the wrong time. //Seeking//. The factors here are three: object, effort, and result. The bhikkhu is looking for material for a rains-bathing cloth, he makes hints to peo the time he is not allowed to make hints, and he receives the cloth. There is a dukkata in hinting and a full offense in receiving the cloth. //Using//. The factors here are two: ob he has a rains-bathing cloth -- and effort -- he has other robes to use, there are no dang he wears the cloth during the period when he is not allowed to wear it. (The conditions he on the no-offenses clauses, which we will discuss below.) In neither of these cases is a mitigating factor. Even if a bhikkhu thinks that the right time to hint for the cloth or to w has come when it actually hasn't, he is not immune from an offense. Forfeiture & co bhikkhu who has committed either of the two full offenses here is to forfeit the cloth and co offense. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the cloth are the same as Non-offenses. As the rule states, there is no offense for the bhikkhu who hints for a rains-bathing cloth within the last lunar month of the hot season, or for one who wears his cloth during the last two weeks of that month. The Vibhanga then refers to a situatio occasionally happens under the lunar calendar: The four months of the hot season end, Retreat is delayed another lunar cycle due to the fact that a thirteenth lunar month has to b that year in order to bring the lunar year back into line with the solar year. (This usually when there are two full moons in July.) In this case, it says that the rains-bathing cloth -- h sought for during the fourth month and worn during the last two weeks of the hot season washed and then put aside. When the proper season arrives, it may be brought out for us The Commentary adds that there is no need to determine the cloth in this period until the Retreat officially starts, but it doesn't say whether the proper season to use the cloth begin the Rains Retreat or two weeks before. It would make sense to allow the bhikkhu to begin two weeks before, but this is simply my own opinion. The Vibhanga then adds three exemptions: There is no offense for a "stolen-robe" bhikkhu, a "destroyed-robe" bhikkhu, there are dangers. The Commentary interprets "robe" here as meaning rains-bathing cloth these exemptions apply to the dukkata offense for bathing naked in the rain. A bhikkhu wh rains-bathing cloth has been stolen or destroyed may bathe naked in the rain without incur as may a bhikkhu with an expensive bathing cloth who would rather bathe naked because cloth thieves. Strangely enough, Buddhaghosa's own K/Commentary makes the Vib exemptions refer also to the full offense. If a bhikkhu's other robes have been stolen or de may wear his rains-bathing cloth out of season. The same holds true when, in the words K/Commentary, "naked thieves are plundering," and a bhikkhu decides to wear his rains-b out-of-season in order to protect either it or his other robes from being stolen. The Sub-commentary follows the K/Commentary in holding to both interpretations. At pre this discussion is purely academic, inasmuch as most bhikkhus -- if they use a bathing clo determine it for use as a "cloth accessory" so as to avoid any possible offense under this Summary: Seeking and receiving a rains-bathing cloth before the fourth month of th is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. Using a rains-bathing cloth before the last two w of the fourth month of the hot season is also a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * * 25. Should any bhikkhu, having himself given a robe-cloth to (another) bhikkhu, and then being angered and displeased, snatch it back or hav snatched back, it is to be forfeited and confessed. "At that time Ven. Upananda th said to his brother's student, 'Come, friend, let's set out on a tour of the countryside "'I can't go, sir. My robe is threadbare.' "'Come, friend, I'll give you a robe.' And he gave him a robe. Then that bhikkhu heard, 'The Blessed One, they say, is out on a tour of the countryside.' The thought occurred to him: 'In that case I won't set tour of the countryside with Ven. Upananda the Sakyan. I'll set out on a tour of the countryside with the Blessed One.' "Then Ven. Upananda said to him, 'Come, frien out on that tour of the countryside now.' "'I won't set out on a tour of the countryside with you, sir. I'll set out on a tour of the countryside with the Blessed O "'But the robe I gave you, my friend, will set out on a tour of the countryside with //me//.' And angered and displeased, he snatched the robe back." As the Commenta this rule applies to cases where one perceives the robe-cloth as being rightfully one's own having given it away, as when giving it on an implicit or explicit condition that the recipient later fulfill. Thus the act of snatching away here does not entail a parajika. If, however, or mentally abandoned ownership of the robe and then for some reason snatches it back, the under Parajika 2. The factors for an offense here are two. Object: a piece of any of six allowable kinds of robe-cloth, measuring at least four by eight fingerbreadths. Eff One has given the cloth to another bhikkhu on one condition or another and then, angered with him, either snatches it back or has someone else snatch it back. In the latter case, a dukkata in giving the order to snatch the robe, and the full offense when the robe is snat Perception (with regard to the recipient/victim) is not a mitigating factor here. If he actua bhikkhu, then whether or not one perceives him to be so makes no difference as far as the concerned. Forfeiture & confession. A bhikkhu who has obtained robe-cloth in violat rule is to forfeit it and confess the offense. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and the cloth are the same as under NP 1. The formula to use in forfeiting the cloth is given VI. Lesser offenses. There is a dukkata for angrily snatching back from a bhikkhu re other than cloth; and for angrily snatching back any kind of requisite -- cloth or otherwise -- one has given to someone who is not a bhikkhu. The Sub-commentary adds that to give r layman planning to be ordained, and then to snatch it back in this way after his ordination, the full offense. According to the Vibhanga, there is no offense if the recipient returns robe of his own accord or if the donor takes it back on trust (%). The Commentary's discu first exemption shows that if the recipient returns the robe after receiving a gentle hint fro donor -- "I gave you the robe in hopes that you would study with me, but now you are stud else" -- the donor incurs no penalty. But if the donor's hint shows anger -- "I gave this ro bhikkhu who would study with me, not to one who would study with somebody else!" -- he for the hint, but no penalty when the recipient returns the robe. Summary: Having gi another bhikkhu a robe on a condition and then -- angry and displeased -- snatching it b having it snatched back is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * *

26. Should any bhikkhu, having requested thread, have a robe woven by weav to be forfeited and confessed. The factors for an offense here are three: object, effort, an result. 1) //Object//: thread or yarn of the six allowable types for robe-cloth, that a bhik -- with the purpose of making a robe -- has requested from people who are not his relative not invited him to ask. 2) //Effort//: He takes this thread to weavers who are unrelate to him and have not offered their services for free, and gets them to weave him robe-cloth least four by eight fingerbreadths. 3) //Result//: He receives the cloth. Offenses The Commentary has a table that works out the various combinations of offenses here ba variables: thread properly or improperly received, and weavers proper or improper for th ask. Thread properly received is any that the bhikkhu has requested from people who are have invited him to ask. Similarly, weavers proper for him to ask are any who are relate have offered him their services. If both the thread and the weavers are classed as no there is a dukkata in getting them to weave cloth, and a nissaggiya pacittiya in receiving t it is done. There is a dukkata in receiving the cloth if the thread is proper, but the weavers not; OR if the thread is not proper, but the weavers are. (For ease of remembran one variable is proper and the other not.) If both variables are proper, there is no offense. The Commentary then has a field day working out the permutations if two di weavers -- one proper and one improper -- work on the cloth, or if proper and improper thr the cloth -- proper warp and improper woof, or alternating strands of proper and improp which if nothing else goes to show how few truly burning issues have sprung up around th Forfeiture & confession. Robe-cloth received in a way that entails the full offense under t to be forfeited and the offense confessed, following the procedure under NP 1. Non The Vibhanga says that there is no offense "to sew a robe, or in a binding, a belt, a should bag for carrying the bowl, or a water-strainer." The Commentary interprets this as mean is no offense in asking for thread or yarn to sew a robe or to make any of the other things these articles are small, and since bhikkhus are allowed looms (Cv.V.28.2), perhaps the that bhikkhus could be expected to make themselves. The no-offense clauses also s is no offense if they -- the donors or the weavers -- are relatives, if they have invited one if the cloth is for the sake of another, or if it is by means of one's own property. These exe apply both to asking for thread and for getting weavers to weave cloth. As under NP 6 & sake of another" means that one may ask from one's own relatives or from those who hav OR from relatives of the other person or people who have invited him to ask. Asking for people other than these would entail the full offense. If the cloth is obtained by mean one's own property -- i.e., one arranges to pay for the thread and hire the weavers -- the states that one is responsible for the cloth as soon as it is finished and fully paid for, wheth it is delivered into one's possession. One must therefore determine it for use within 10 d date so as not to commit an offense under NP 1. If the weavers have promised to send w is done, one's responsibility starts when one receives word from their messenger; simila have promised to send the cloth when done, one's responsibility begins when their messe Summary: Taking thread that one has asked for improperly and getting weavers to from it -- when they are unrelated and have not made a previous offer to weave -- is nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * * 27. In case a man or woman householder unrelated to a bhikkhu has weavers weave robe-cloth for his sal the bhikkhu, not previously invited (by the householder), having approached the weaver stipulations with regard to the cloth, saying, "This cloth, friends, is to be woven for m sake. Make it long, make it broad, make it tightly woven, well woven, well spread, well s smoothed, and perhaps I may reward you with a little something;" and should the b having said that, reward them with a little something, even as much as alms food, it cloth) is to be forfeited and confessed. Here the factors for an offense are four: Obje piece of any of the six allowable types of robe-cloth, measuring at least four by eight finge which is being made for one's sake by the arrangement of a donor who is unrelated and invitation to ask. Intention. One wants to get better cloth than what the donors are pl to give. Effort. One approaches the weavers and gets them to increase the amount going into the cloth. The Commentary explains that the bhikkhu's words quoted in the rule simply to be an example of any way in which one might do this. The Vibhanga defines t "alms food" as covering anything of even the slightest material value -- food, a lump of pov wood, unwoven thread, or even a phrase of Dhamma. A bhikkhu who offers to pay for t full would thus also fulfill this factor. The Sub-commentary adds that even if the bhikk doesn't deliver the reward, this factor is fulfilled all the same as long as the weavers, as of his stipulations, actually increase the amount of thread from that which they and the don on. Result. One receives the cloth. Offenses. The bhikkhu incurs a dukkata as s the weavers add even a little extra thread to the cloth, and the full offense when he recei

The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the cloth are the same as under N Non-offenses. There is no offense if -- the donors are relatives, they have invited or ask, one asks for the sake of another, one gets the weavers to make the cloth less ex the donors had ordered, or if it is by means of one's own property. (This last point re only to cases where the bhikkhu was the one who had the weavers hired in the first p

Summary: When donors who are not relatives -- and have not invited one to ask -- ha weavers to weave robe-cloth intended for one: Receiving the cloth after getting the to increase the amount of thread used in it is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * * 28.Ten days prior to the third-month Kattika full moon, should robe-cloth offered in urgency accrue to a bhikkhu, he is to accept it if he regards offered in urgency. Once he has accepted it, he may keep it throughout the robe se Beyond that, it is to be forfeited and confessed. The //third-month Kattika full moon// is t moon in October, or the first if there are two. This is the final day of the Rains Retreat, a day before the beginning of the robe season. //Robe-cloth offered in urgency// is any p six allowable kinds of robe-cloth, measuring at least four by eight fingerbreadths, offered person who does not want to wait until the robe season to make an offering, either becaus survival is in doubt -- as when a soldier is going into war, a traveler is about to set out on journey, or a woman has become pregnant -- or because he/she has developed new-foun religion. The Commentary points out that the period allowed for giving robe-cloth offe urgency begins on the fifth day of the waxing moon before the end of the Rains Retreat; a robe-cloth offered to an individual bhikkhu beginning on the sixth day of the waning moo NP 1, be kept throughout the robe season because the tenth dawn after the sixth waning m beginning of the robe season. Thus it would seem that this rule is giving only a one-day allowance. However, we should note that the Vibhanga implicitly, and the Commen explicitly, treat robe-cloth offered in urgency as in-season cloth (see NP 3): In other words goes to the Community, and is to be divided only among those bhikkhus who spend the that Community. Thus if a bhikkhu has broken the retreat, he must return his share to the he no longer has any right to it. The factors for an offense here are two: //object// -- robe-cloth offered in urgency; and //effort// -- one keeps it past the end of the robe seaso dawn after the full moon following the Rains Retreat, if one does not participate in a kathin of one's kathina privileges, if one does. And, as noted above, if one has broken one's R has no right to any share in such cloth and must return it to the Community immediately.
Perception is not a mitigating factor here. Thus if the period to keep the cloth has passed one thinks it hasn't -- or if it is not determined for use, etc., when one thinks it is -- one is still subject to the offense all the same. The procedures for forfeiture, confession, and the cloth are the same as under NP 1. See Appendix VI for the Pali formula to use in for cloth. Non-offenses. There is no offense if, before the robe season is over, one dete the cloth, places it under dual ownership, or abandons it (gives it away or throws it away); lost, destroyed, burnt, or stolen, or if someone else takes it on trust. Summary: Keep robe-cloth offered in urgency past the end of the robe season after having accepted it d eleven days of the Rains Retreat is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * * 29. There are wilderness abodes that are considered dubious and risky. A bhikkhu living in such abodes after the (fourth-month) Kattika full moon has pas any one of his three robes in a village if he so desires. Should he have any reason apart from the robe, he may do so for six nights at most. If he should live apart from it longer than that -- unless authorized by the bhikkhus -- it is to be forfeited and confesse As we noted under NP 2, every bhikkhu who has spent the Rains Retreat has the right to l his set of three robes during the following month. This rule is a partial one-month extens right for bhikkhus living in dangerous wilderness areas. The reason for this extension is th one-month period was when thieves were active -- perhaps because they knew that bhik received new cloth, or simply because now that roads were passable again it was time for to their work. The Commentary defines this situation in terms of four factors: 1) T bhikkhu has spent the first Rains Retreat -- the one beginning with the full moon in July, second full moon if there are two in that month -- without break. 2) He is staying in wilderness abode, defined in the Vibhanga as one at least 500 bow-lengths, or one kilo nearest village, this distance being measured by the shortest walkable path betwee and not as the crow flies. At the same time, he is not so far from a village that he canno alms there in the morning and then return to eat in his abode before noon. 3) abode is dubious and risky: dubious in that thieves are known to be about, risky in that known to have been hurt or plundered by them. 4) The time period for the extensi month beginning the day after the fourth Kattika moon, the full moon one month after of the Rains Retreat. The dawn after this full moon day is when the robe season norma for those bhikkhus who have not participated in a kathina. However, a bhikkhu living in the outlined above may keep one of his set of triple robes in the village where he normally goe and -- if he has a reason -- may stay apart from it six nights at most. As usual, nights are dawns. The factors for an offense here are two: //object// -- one of a bhikkhu's basi of three robes; and //effort// -- staying away from the robe past the sixth dawn after first be from it. Perception is not a mitigating factor here: Even if one thinks that six nights have passed when they actually have, one is not immune from the offense. As the Sub-co points out, the Commentary and K/Commentary differ in their definition of the factor of effo According to the K/Commentary, the bhikkhu staying in a forest abode during the period counted as being apart from his robe when it is placed in the village, and thus can keep it is in his forest abode only six nights at a stretch. Thus, it says, if he is in his wilderness at the sixth dawn, he incurs the full penalty. The Commentary, however, maintains th bhikkhu staying in the wilderness abode is not counted as being apart from his robe when in the village, but if he leaves that abode on business and lets his robe remain in the villag stay away from the abode only six nights at a stretch. Thus, it says, if in returning from h business he cannot make it to his forest abode by the sixth dawn, and the village is closer over in the village long enough to check up on the robe and still be immune from the offe The second interpretation makes more sense, in that if the bhikkhu is staying in his abod for alms in the village, he may check up on his robe every day. It is also more in line with Vibhanga's definition of "any reason" -- i.e., "any business" -- which indicates situations wh bhikkhu would be away from his abode. The Sub-commentary, following Bhadanta Buddh adopts the second interpretation. Forfeiture & confession. A bhikkhu under these cond has been away from his robe for more than six nights is to forfeit it and confess the offen procedures for forfeiture, confession, and return of the robe are the same as under NP 1. formula for forfeiting the robe is in Appendix VI. Non-offenses. There is no offense fo bhikkhu who has stayed away from his robe six nights or less; or if, having been apar robe six nights, he enters the village boundary (and, according to the Commentary, stay enough to check up on his robe); if, within the six nights, he rescinds the determination o robe, places it under dual ownership, abandons it; or the robe gets lost, burnt, destroyed taken by someone on trust; or if he has been authorized by the Community to be apa robe. (This, according to the Commentary, refers to the authorization discussed unde The commentaries refer the reader to NP 2 for the remaining explanations to this rule, w seem to indicate that if a bhikkhu's kathina privileges are still in effect, he is also immune offense under this rule during the period in question no matter how many nights he is awa Summary: When one is living in a dangerous wilderness abode during the month fourth Kattika full moon and has left one of one's robes in the village where one normally goes for alms: Being away from the abode and the village for more than six nights at a except when authorized by the Community -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense.

* * *

30. Should any bhikkhu knowingly divert to himself gains that had been intended for a Community, they are to be forfeited and confessed.

"Now in Savatthi at that time a certain guild had prepared a meal with cloth for the Com (thinking,) 'Having fed (the bhikkhus) we will supply them with cloth.' "Then som group-of-six bhikkhus went to where the guild members were staying and on arrival said cloths, friends.' "'We can't, sirs. We arrange alms with cloth for the Community (like this) on a yearly basis.' "'The Community has lots of donors, my frie Community gets lots of meals. It is in dependence on you, looking to you, that we l If you won't give to us, is there anyone who will? Give us the cloths, friends.' "S the guild, pressured by the group-of-six bhikkhus, gave them what cloth they had prepa served the meal to the Community. The bhikkhus who knew that a meal with cloth prepared, but not that the cloth had been given to the group-of-six bhikkhus, addressed members: 'Present the cloth to the Community, friends.' "'There isn't any, sirs. W cloth we had prepared, the masters -- the group-of-six bhikkhus -- have diverted to themselves.' "Those bhikkhus who were of few wants...were offended and anno spread it about: 'How can these group-of-six bhikkhus divert to themselves gains intend Community?'" There are four factors for an offense here. Object: any requisite -- "robe-cloth, alms-food, lodgings, medicine, even a lump of powder, toothwood, or unwove that donors have indicated by word or gesture that they intend to give to a Community. As notes, //donors// here include not only lay people in general, but also one's fellow bhikkh relatives -- even one's own mother: The fact that a gift is intended for a Community overri considerations, even when one is ill. Perception. One perceives that the donors hav the requisite for a Community (%). Effort. One tries to persuade them that they shou it to oneself instead. This in itself, following on the first two factors, entails a dukkata.

Result. One receives the article from the donors. This entails the full offense. Forfe & confession. Any gains received in violation of this rule are to be forfeited and the offens
The procedures here are the same as under NP 1. The Pali formula for forfeiting the ga Appendix VI. Related offenses. If one knowingly tries to divert gains intended for a C to oneself, but the donors go ahead and give the gains to the Community anyway, then th that one should not have a share in them. If one does receive a share from the Commu return it. If, instead of returning it, one shares it among lay people, the case is to be treate Parajika 2. If one is in doubt as to whether items are intended for the Community bu ahead and diverts them anyway, one incurs a dukkata regardless of whether the items rea for the Community or not (%). To divert items intended for a Community to another i entails a pacittiya under Pacittiya 82. To divert items intended for one Community of bhik another Community or to a shrine, entails a dukkata. The same holds true for diverting ite for a shrine to a Community, to an individual, or to another shrine; and for diverting items i an individual to a Community, to a shrine, or to another individual. The Commentar that the term //individual// here can mean common animals as well as human beings, and thus includes even such things as saying, "Don't give it to that dog. Give it to this one." point is well-taken: A bhikkhu has no business interfering with the gains that are to be free another being, no matter what that being's current status. The Sub-commentary hold an item has been presented by a donor, there is nothing wrong in diverting it elsewhere. T says, taking flowers presented to one shrine and placing them at another -- or chasing a d food that has been given to it so that another dog can have a share -- would be perfectly a but the Thai editors of the Sub-commentary state in a footnote that they disagree.
Non-offenses. There is no offense in diverting items to oneself if one does not perceive th for a Community, another individual, or a shrine, regardless of whether the donors intende way or not. Still, one should be careful not to do this in such a way as to violate any of the rules on asking from people who are unrelated or have not given an invitation to ask. no-offense clauses recommend a safer line of conduct: If one is asked, "To whom should may answer, "Give wherever your gift would be used, or would be well-cared for, or wou wherever your mind feels inspired." Summary: Persuading a donor to give to oneself he or she had planned to give to the Community -- when one knows that it was inten Community -- is a nissaggiya pacittiya offense. * * *
A bhikkhu who commits an offense against any of these thirty nissaggiya pacittiya offens forfeit the item in question before confessing the offense. If he makes use of the item be forfeiting it, he incurs an extra dukkata -- except for money received in violation of NP 18 c would involve another nissaggiya pacittiya if used in trade. If the item gets lost or destro before the bhikkhu forfeits it, he may simply confess a pacittiya. Except in cases wher forfeiture must be made to a Community of four bhikkhus or more (NP 18, 19, & 22), the o forfeit the item to a single bhikkhu, to a group of two or three, or to a Community of four Once he has confessed the offense, he is cleared of the penalty. In cases where he the item to the Community, he may not receive it in return. In the remaining cases, though must be returned to him. Not to do so entails a dukkata for the bhikkhu(s) to whom it is for few cases, there are restrictions as to what use a bhikkhu may make of an item received after forfeiture -- e.g., he may not use the five tonics to treat his body internally or externall may not use felt made with silk or composed of more than 1/2 black wool as a rug -- but this he is free to use the returned item as he likes. The act of forfeiture is thus symbolic most cases, and the effect of the rules is more internal: The offender may not make use until he has confessed his wrong-doing, and this in itself should give him time to reflect on Similarly, in the act of handing the nissaggiya item over to another, he has an opportuni reflect on whether or not is it worth whatever greed, anger, or delusion it has sparked in hi Offenses of this and the remaining categories in this book are classed as light offenses (//lahukapatti//) and are also termed //desana-gamini//, meaning that they can be cleared t confession. * * * * * * * *

CHAPTER EIGHT

Pacittiya

~~~~~~~~~ As explained in the preceding chapter, this term is most probably related to the verb //pacinat know," and means "to be made known" or "to be confessed." There are 92 rules in this ca divided into eight chapters of ten each, and one of twelve.

Part One: The Lie Chapter ~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

1. A deliberate lie is to be confessed. "Now at that time Hatthaka the Sakyan h been overthrown in debate. In discussions with adherents of other sects, he ackno points after having denied them, denied points after having acknowledged them, evade with another, told deliberate lies, made an appointment (for a debate) but then didn it. The adherents of other sects were offended and annoyed and spread it about.... "The bhikkhus heard them...and having approached Hatthaka the Sakyan, asked him: " Hatthaka, that in discussions with adherents of other sects, you acknowledged poin having denied them, denied points after having acknowledged them, evaded one questi another, told deliberate lies, made an appointment (for a debate) but then didn't keep it? "'Those adherents of other sects have to be beaten in //some// way or another. You give them the victory!'" A deliberate lie is a statement or gesture made with the p of misrepresenting the truth to someone else. According to the K/Commentary, a violati requires two factors: 1) //Intention//: the intention to misrepresent the truth; and 2) //Effort//: the effort to make another individual know whatever one wants to communica that intent. Intention. The desire to misrepresent the truth fulfills this factor regardles of what one's motives are. Thus "white lies," lies made with benevolent intentions (e.g., to whose state of mind is too weak to take the truth), and outrageous lies meant as jokes -- rather than deceive -- would all fall under this rule. For this reason, a bhikkhu who w to shield an emotionally weak person from harsh truths has to be very skillful in phrasing h statements. And any bhikkhu with an active sense of humor should be careful about how bearing in mind a famous passage from M.61: The Buddha shows an empty water dipper son, telling him that anyone who feels no shame at uttering a deliberate lie is as empty of a contemplative as the dipper is empty of water. He then advises Rahula to train himself: not utter a deliberate lie, even for a laugh." Effort. According to the Vibhanga, to misre the truth means to say that one has seen X when one hasn't, that one hasn't seen X whe that one has seen X clearly when one is in doubt about the matter. This pattern holds for senses -- hearing, smell, taste, touch, and ideation -- as well. Thus to repeat what one h seen, etc., even if it actually is misinformation, does not count as a misrepresentation of th under this rule, since one is truthfully reporting what one has seen, etc. If, however, one s believes in such misinformation -- when one actually doesn't -- this //would// count as a misrepresentation of the truth, and so would fulfill this factor. According to the Commentary, effort here covers falsehoods conveyed not only by speech but also by writi well as the act of remaining silent in situations where silence would convey a false mess during the recitation of the Patimokkha, where silence on the part of the listener indicates t no unconfessed offenses). Result is not a factor here. Thus whether or not anyone understands the lie or is deceived by it, is irrelevant to the offense. In cases where a particular lie would fall under another rule -- such as Parajika 4, Sanghadisesas 8 or 9, Pa 24, or 76 -- the penalties assigned by that rule take precedence over the ones assigned instance, making a false claim to a superior human state and not being understood would thullaccaya under Parajika 4; falsely accusing another bhikkhu of a parajika offense wou sanghadisesa under Sanghadisesa 8; falsely accusing him of a sanghadisesa would entai Pacittiya 76; and falsely accusing him of a lesser offense would entail a dukkata under th The Vinaya Mukha argues that this rule should take precedence in cases where a part entail only a dukkata under any of the other rules -- as in the last example -- but this contra the Vibhanga. Non-offenses. A bhikkhu who misrepresents the truth unintentionally offense under this rule. The Vibhanga gives two examples -- speaking quickly and saying meaning another -- and the Commentary explains them as follows: //Speaking quickly// r before one has carefully considered the matter. //Saying one thing while meaning another making a slip of the tongue, either out of stupidity or carelessness. And, as we noted abov who speaks from mistaken assumptions -- truthfully reporting any mistaken information h received or mistaken beliefs he may have thought up -- does not come under this rule. promises. The Mahavagga (III.14.1-14) imposes a dukkata on the act of making a promise intentions but later breaking it. Since the texts make no mention of any circumstances bey control that would exempt one from that penalty, a bhikkhu should be very careful of how h plans for the future. A special instance of breaking a promise -- accepting an invitation to but then not going -- is treated under Pacittiya 33. Summary: The intentional effort to misrepresent the truth to another individual is a pacittiya offense.
~~~~~~~~~

* * * 2.An insult is to be confessed. An insult is a gesture or statement, written or spoken, made with the malicious intent of hurting another person's feelings or of him/her into disgrace. The Vibhanga analyzes the full offense under this rule in terms of th 1) //Effort//: One insults a person directly to his face, touching on any one of the 10 topics for abuse (//akkosa-vatthu//) discussed below. 2) //Object//: The person is a bhikkhu. 3) //Intention//: One wants to humiliate him for malicious reasons. Effort. The Vibhanga lists ten ways a verbal insult can be phrased: making remarks abou person's //race, class, or nationality// (You nigger! You bum! You Jew!); //nam (You really are a Dick!); //family or lineage// (You bastard! You son of a bitch!); //occupation// (You pimp! You capitalist pig!); //craft// (What would you expect from a guy crochets?); //disease or handicap// (Hey, Clubfoot! Spastic!); //physical characteristics Fatty! Beanpole! Shrimp! Hulk!); //defilements// (You control freak! Fool! Queer! Breeder!); //offenses or attainments// (Some stream-winner //you// are! You liar! Y thief!); or //using an abusive form of address//, such as, "You camel! You goat! You You penis! You vagina!" (%) (All five of these come from the Vibhanga.) These te are called the //akkosa-vatthu// -- topics for abuse -- and appear in the following training ru

As the examples in the Vibhanga show, the remark that fulfills the factor of effort he touch on one of these topics for abuse and must be made directly to the listener: "You are phrased either as sarcastic praise or as out-and-out abuse. The Commentary and Sub- that any insulting remark not listed in the Vibhanga would only be grounds for a dukkata, b Vibhanga defines the topics for abuse in such a way that //any// term related to them in an fulfill this factor here. Remarks made in an indirect or insinuating manner, though, wo not fulfill this factor. //Indirect remarks// are when the speaker includes himself together w target of his insult in his statement ("We're all a bunch of fools.") //Insinuating remarks// when he leaves it uncertain as to whom he is referring to ("There are camels among us"). this sort, if meant as an insult, entails a dukkata regardless of whether the target is a bhi not. All of the insults mentioned in the Vibhanga take the form of remarks about the whereas insults and verbal abuse at present often take the form of command -- Go to hell! etc. -- and the question is whether or not these too would be covered by this rule. Viewed standpoint of intent, they fit under the general definition of an insult; but if for some reaso would not fit under this rule, they would in most cases be covered by Pacittiya 54. In remarks made about someone behind his/her back are dealt with under Pacittiya 13. factor is fulfilled for the full offense only if the target of one's insult is a bhikkhu. To insult a unordained person -- according to the Commentary, this runs the gamut from bhikkhunis living beings -- entails a dukkata. Intent. The Vibhanga defines this factor as "desirin jeer at, desiring to scoff at, desiring to shame." If, with no insult intended, a bhikkhu joke another person's race, etc., he incurs a dubbhasita, regardless of whether the person is la ordained, mentioned outright or insinuatingly, and regardless of whether he/she takes it as insult. This is the only instance of this class of offense. The K/Commentary adds res fourth factor -- the target of one's insult knows, "He is insulting me" -- but there is no basis this in either the Vibhanga or the Commentary. If one makes an insulting remark under or intending to be heard, or in a foreign language, not intending to be understood, the intentio be to let off steam, which would not qualify as the intention covered by this rule. If one trul humiliate someone, one will make the necessary effort to make that person hear and un words -- but if for some reason that person //doesn't// hear or understand (a loud noise blo words, one uses a slang term that is new to one's listener), there is nothing in the Vibhan indicate that one would escape from the full penalty. For this reason, whether or not person addressed actually feels insulted by one's remarks is of no consequence in determ severity of the offense. If one makes a remark to a fellow bhikkhu, touching on one of the abuse and meaning it as an insult, one incurs a pacittiya even if he takes it as a joke. If the remark as a joke, one incurs a dubbhasita even if the other person feels insulted. Non-offenses. According to the Vibhanga, a bhikkhu who mentions another person's race offense if he is "aiming at Dhamma, aiming at his benefit, aiming at teaching." The Comm illustrates this with a bhikkhu saying to a member of the untouchable caste: "You are an u Don't do any evil. Don't be a person born into misfortune and going on to misfortune." Another example would be of a teacher who uses insulting language to shame a stubborn would entail no offense if done without malice, but one should be very sure of the purity of motives and of the beneficial effect of one's words before using language of this sort. The (IX.5.2) states that a bhikkhu is fit to reprove another bhikkhu only if he keeps five points "I will speak at the right time and not at the wrong time. I will speak about what is factual a about what is not factual. I will speak with gentleness and not with harshness. I will spe what is connected with the goal and not about what is not connected with the goal. And I w thoughts of kindness and not with inner hatred." Summary: An insult made with malic to another bhikkhu is a pacittiya offense.

* * *

3. Malicious tale-bearing among bhikkhus is to be confessed. Malicious tale-bearing described in the Vibhanga as follows: X makes remarks about Y touching on his race, nar other ten //akkosa-vatthu// listed in the explanation to the preceding rule. Z, hearing thes remarks, goes to tell someone else -- either W or Y himself -- in hopes of causing a rift bet his listener, or of winning favor with his listener in case there is already a rift between the example: a) X calls Y a bastard behind his back. Z tells Y, in hopes of ingratiating h with Y. b) X makes racist remarks about Y to his face. Z knows that W is a friend hates racists, and so tells W what X said, in hopes of causing a rift between W and X. Bhikkhu Z commits the full offense here when three factors are fulfilled: object, effort, and 1) //Object//: Both Z's listener and X are bhikkhus; X has made remarks about Y that q direct insult under the preceding rule (or, if he didn't make them in Y's presence, remarks t have qualified as a direct insult had he done so). 2) //Effort//: Z reports X's remarks to listener verbally or by gesture (as in writing a letter), 3) //Intent//: with the intent of ingratiating himself with his listener, or of causing a rift between his listener and X. T K/Commentary adds a fourth factor -- Z's listener understands what he is saying -- but as w previous rule, there is no basis for this in the Vibhanga. Object. If either X or Z's liste -- or both -- are not bhikkhus, then the penalty for Z is a dukkata. If X's remarks qua only as an indirect insult under the preceding rule -- e.g., he said with reference to Y that, " asses among us" -- then Z incurs a dukkata if he reports them with the intent to ingratiate cause a rift, regardless of whether his listener and/or X are bhikkhus or not. The Sub-commentary states that there is a dukkata for bearing tales dealing with matters other about the ten //akkosa-vatthu// -- i.e., telling Y about things said or done by X, to make X a bad light in hopes of winning favor or causing a rift, although some cases of this sort wou Pacittiya 13. Effort. This rule is sometimes translated as dealing with slander -- fal tale-bearing -- but as the examples in the Vibhanga show, it actually deals with true tale-be really does say insulting things about Y, and Z gives a true report. The Vinaya Mukha co if Z engages in false tale-bearing, then regardless of whether or not X and Z's listener are incurs the full penalty under Pacittiya 1. Intent. To give a true report of such matters motives other than those of winning favor or causing a rift entails no offense. Examples would include: informing a senior bhikkhu when one bhikkhu has accused another of offense, so that an inquiry can be made for the sake of harmony in the Community; or senior bhikkhu about a student of his who is making racist remarks, so that the senior b a stop to it. Summary: Tale-bearing among bhikkhus, in hopes of winning favor or rift, is a pacittiya offense. * * * 4. Should any bhikkhu have an unordained person recite Dhamma line by line (with him), it is to be

This is an offense with two factors: 1) //Effort//: One gets a student to recite Dhamma line-by-line with oneself (which, as we shall see below, means to train the student t skilled reciter of a Pali Dhamma text). 2) //Object//: The student is neither a bhikkhu no bhikkhuni. Only the first factor needs explanation, and is best treated under two headi Dhamma and reciting line-by-line. Dhamma the Vibhanga defines as "a saying made by disciples, seers, or heavenly beings, connected with the teaching or connected with the g Commentary devotes a long discussion to these terms, coming to the conclusion that //con Dhamma// refers to the Pali Canon -- in Pali, not in translation -- as agreed on in the first t councils, while //connected with the goal (attha)// refers to the Maha Atthakatha, the most ancient commentary (only in its original Pali version, the Sub-commentary says). Th commentaries disagreed as to what other works would fit under this category, but Buddha seems to be that -- in the //Milinda Panha//, for example -- Ven. Nagasena's quotes of th words would count, but not his own formulations of the teaching, and the same principle ho texts that quote the Buddha's words as well. The ancient commentaries are unanimous, t that "Dhamma" does //not// cover the Mahayana sutras or compositions (this would inclu dealing with the Dhamma in languages other than Pali.) This interpretation, identify "Dhamma" with particular Pali texts, has caused no controversy in the context of this rule - it seems unlikely that the compilers of the Vibhanga would have had the commentaries in said, "connected with the goal" -- but it //has// met with disagreement in the context of Pa and so we will discuss it there in more detail. Reciting line-by-line. To make someone line by line means to train him/her by rote to be a skilled reciter of a text. Bhikkhus in days of the Buddha committed the teachings in the Canon to memory so as to preserve th to generation. Although writing was in use at the time -- mainly for keeping accounts -- n it to record teachings either of the Buddha or of any other religious teacher. The Pali Cano written down until approximately 500 years after the Buddha's passing away, when repeat Lanka threatened its survival. The Vibhanga lists four ways in which a person might to be a reciter of a text: 1) The teacher and student recite in unison, i.e., beginning together and ending together. 2) The teacher begins a line, the student joins in, and they together. 3) The teacher recites the beginning syllable of a line together with the stud then completes it alone. 4) The teacher recites one line, and the student recites the next alone. Reciters of the Vedas still use these methods at present when practicing their t

The origin story states that the Buddha forbade these methods of training unordained p they caused the lay students to feel disrespect for the bhikkhus. The Vinaya Mukha expla noting that if a teacher made a slip of the tongue while teaching in this way, his students w down on him for it. If this were the right explanation, though, the no-offense clauses would listed "proper" ways of training novices and lay people to recite the Dhamma, but they don more likely explanation is that at the time of the Buddha the duty of memorizing and recitin was considered the province of the bhikkhus and bhikkhunis. Although some lay people discourses (Mv.III.5.9), and bhikkhus of course taught the Dhamma to lay people, there wa feeling that to teach non-ordainees to become skilled reciters of the texts was not good f relationship between bhikkhus and laity. There are two possible reasons for this: 1) P have felt that the bhikkhus were shirking their responsibilities by trying to pass their duty lay people. 2) The Brahmins at the time were very strict in not allowing anyon outside their caste to memorize the Vedas, and their example may have led lay people disrespect for bhikkhus who were not equally protective of their own tradition. At pre the entire Canon is available in print, and even bhikkhus rarely commit it to memory, altho frequently memorize parts of it, such as the Patimokkha, the major discourses, and othe chanted on ceremonial occasions. To train a lay person or novice person to become skille such teachings by rote would entail the full penalty under this rule. Perception and in are not mitigating factors here. Thus a bhikkhu who trains a novice to recite a text in any o mentioned above -- on the assumption that the novice is a bhikkhu -- incurs a pacittiya al The same holds true for a bhikkhu training a mixed group of bhikkhus and novices, even if intention is to train only the bhikkhus in the group. Non-offenses. Since this rule is aimed at methods of teaching, the Vibhanga states that there is no offense "for one made unison." This, says the Commentary, refers to a young bhikkhu who is told by his teacher together with a novice who is the teacher's student. Also, there is no offense if a bh chants a passage in unison with unordained people who have already memorized it. The extends this allowance to include cases of bhikkhus learning a text from an unordained pe the model of the Itivuttaka, which -- according to its Commentary -- the bhikkhus first lea servant woman who had memorized some of the Buddha's teachings that the bhikkhus ha

Finally, there is no offense if a bhikkhu corrects an unordained person who has memoriz passage or who is reciting in a confused manner. Summary: To train a novice or lay recite passages of Dhamma by rote is a pacittiya offense.

* * * 5. Should any bhikkhu lie down in the same lodging with an unordained p for more than two or three consecutive nights, it is to be confessed. As the Vinaya M comments, "The Buddha originally laid down the rule forbidding the act of sleeping in the s with an unordained person so that lay people would not see the unsightly attitudes a bhi assume while asleep. But then, when novices came into being, they were classed as uno so had no place to stay. The Buddha therefore relaxed the rule, allowing bhikkhus to sle lodging with an unordained person no more than three nights running, thus also opening t them to sleep in the same lodging with ordinary lay men." The occasion for the first form the rule was this: "Now at that time, lay men came to the monastery to hear the D After the Dhamma had been taught, each of the elder bhikkhus went to his own dwelling bhikkhus went to sleep right there in the attendance hall with the lay men -- careles absent-minded, naked, mumbling, and snoring. The lay men were offended and annoy it about, 'How can revered people go to sleep careless, absent-minded, naked, mumblin snoring?'" The occasion for the final formulation was this: "The bhikkhus said to V Rahula (who must have still been a novice at this point), 'There is a training rule laid dov by the Blessed One that (a bhikkhu) should not lie down together with an unordained pe yourself a place to sleep.' So Ven. Rahula, not being able to find a place to sleep, v sleep in the outhouse. Then the Blessed One, getting up towards the end of the night, v outhouse and on arriving cleared his throat. Ven. Rahula cleared his throat.

"'Who's there?' "'It's me, sir -- Rahula.' "'Why are you lying there?'
"So Ven. Rahula told him what had happened." There are two factors for the full offe
1) //Object//: an unordained person. 2) //Effort//: (a) lying down, (b) in the same lodging with the unordained person, (c) for four nights running. Object. The Vibhan defines //unordained person// as anyone other than a bhikkhu. According to the Comment not only human beings, but also any animal large enough to have intercourse with. The though, following the Three Ganthipadas, notes that this does not include female human b there is another training rule, following immediately on this one, that deals specifically with Lying down. To be lying down in the same lodging with someone else means to be pro time as the other person is prone within the area defined as the lodging. This factor is fulfi whether the bhikkhu lies down when the other person is already lying there, or vice versa, down at the same time. Although there are other training rules where lying down is includ term //sitting//, sitting is //not// included under the term //lying down// here. Whether or not bhikkhu or the other person falls asleep is of no account. Lodging. The Vibhanga d lodging that can be grounds for a pacittiya here as a place completely roofed and complete or mostly roofed and mostly walled. A place half-roofed and half-walled, it says, is ground dukkata, while a place (a) fully roofed but with no wall (e.g., an open pavilion), (b) fully w but with no roof (e.g., a corral), or (c) less than half-roofed and less than half-walled, is not for an offense. Buddhaghosa quotes the Maha Atthakatha, the major ancient comm filling in all the other possibilities: //Grounds for a pacittiya//: A place fully roofed and mostly walled, fully roofed and half-walled, mostly roofed and half-walled, r roofed and fully walled, half-roofed and fully walled, or half-roofed and mostly walle //Grounds for a dukkata//: A place fully roofed and less than half-walled, mostly roofed and less than half-walled, less than half-roofed and fully walled, or less than half-roofed and mostly walled. //Grounds for no offense//: A place half-roofed an than half-walled, less than half-roofed and half-walled, or less than half-roofed and than half-walled. The Commentary notes that tents would fit under the definition of pla and it would seem that vehicles -- caravans in the time of the Buddha; automobiles, trains, airplanes in ours -- would fit here as well. The same lodging. Unfortunately, the Vibl does not say how far the boundary of a "single lodging" would extend. For example, wo separate room in a house count as a separate lodging? Would the entire house? Would a building be a single lodging? The Commentary tries to remedy this omission by introduc of "having a single common entrance" or "being part of the same enclosure." (The Pali wo //ekupacara//, has both meanings, and the Commentary makes use of both in its discussio

What it says is this: Even a seven-story palace or a building with 100 rooms would count a lodging if all the rooms make use of a common entrance. If there are several buildings in a enclosure, and one can go from one to another without stepping on outside ground, they w of the same lodging. If there is a building divided into units that are not connected by int doorways, each unit having a separate entrance, the different units would count as separa Locking or closing a door does //not// close off the doorway. Only if the door opening is br otherwise permanently sealed off does it no longer count as a doorway. The Comme that the "single entrance" factor is not mentioned in the Canon in connection with this rule borrowed from the Vibhanga to NP 2. It argues that this factor is unavoidably bound up of "walled and roofed," though, and illustrates its point as follows: There is a two-room dw composed of an antechamber through which one must pass to get to the inner chamber. A in the inner chamber, and an unordained person in the antechamber. Now suppose that a student maintains that if the door between the two rooms is closed, the bhikkhu is sleeping lodging from the unordained person, while if the door is open, they are in the same lodgi teacher then asks him, "Why are they in the same lodging if the door is open?" "Be two rooms share the same roof and walls." "And if the door is closed, does that dest roof and walls they had in common?" "No, of course not. But the enclosure in w bhikkhu is sleeping is marked by the door." This, the Commentary says, shows tha notion of enclosure is part and parcel of the concept of lodging, and that the stubborn stu defeated his own argument. Its reasoning here is probably more convincing in Pali than in as we noted above, Pali uses the same word for enclosure and entrance, but even so th does not carry much force when applied to such places as separate apartments in an apar so leaves the issue unsettled as far as they are concerned. The Vinaya Mukha notes factor introduced by the Commentary has implications that go far beyond the original purp rule -- and of the following rule, in which the concept of "single lodging" is even more impo suggests borrowing an additional factor from NP 2: the factor of separate residences or ownership (the Pali word //kula// carries both meanings). Thus in a large building compose residences -- such as an apartment building, a hotel or a hospital with private rooms -- it that each separate residence count as a separate lodging. Since the Canon gives no guidance on this point, the wise policy for an individual bhikkhu is to follow the views of the Community to which he belongs. Nights here, as in other training rules, are counted b Thus, if a bhikkhu is sleeping in the same lodging with an unordained person but one of th before dawn, that night does not count. If a bhikkhu has slept in the same lodging with an person for two or three nights running but then skips a night, the consecutive series is brok then sleeps in the same lodging with an unordained person another night, the counting s from one. However, once he has slept in the same lodging with an unordained perso running, then if after sundown on the fourth night he reclines in the same lodging in which is reclining -- even if only for a moment -- he incurs a pacittiya. The Commentary in the phrase "after sundown" as meaning any time on the fourth day. In other words, there i wait until the next dawn to count the fourth period of sleeping together. As we noted abov conclusion to the chapter on the Sanghadisesa rules, there was a tendency in the time of t call a 24-hour period of day and night a "night." Perhaps this period was felt to begin at su as we now feel that a 24-hour "day" begins at midnight. The Commentary also states unordained person need not be the same person each of the four nights, and the same ho lodging. In other words, if a bhikkhu lies down in a lodging with novice X one night, and th elsewhere and lies down in a lodging with layman Y the next night, and so on for four nigh he commits an offense all the same. Perception and intent are not mitigating factors he bhikkhu lying down in the same lodging with a novice whom he thinks to be another bhik offense all the same, as does a bhikkhu who miscounts the nights and lies down in the sam an unordained person for what he thinks is his third night when it is actually his fourth. fact, this is a training rule that one may break without ever realizing it. Suppose a novice c down in a room where a bhikkhu is sleeping, and then gets up to leave before the bhikkhu he does this for four nights running, the bhikkhu incurs a pacittiya even though he may nev aware of what the novice was doing. Rules like this are the reason why many bhikkhus of confessing offenses even when they are not consciously aware of having committed the Non-offenses. To lie down with an unordained person in a lodging that would qualify as gr pacittiya or a dukkata is no offense as long as one does it no more than three days running there is no offense in lying down any number of consecutive nights with an unordained per that would not qualify as grounds for an offense. The Vinaya Mukha comments that a rule as it presently stands no longer fulfills its original purpose, bhikkhus should keep the purpose in mind and avoid sleeping in the same place with an unordained person whenev would also be a wise policy to avoid sleeping out in a public park, on a public beach, in a pavilion, etc., if full view of the public, even though no offense would be involved. Su Lying down at the same time, in the same lodging, with a novice or layman for more tha running is a pacittiya offense. * * *

6. Should any bhikkhu lie down in the same lodging with a woman, it is to be confessed are only two differences between this rule and the preceding one: 1) The factor of "ob is fulfilled only by a female human being, "even one born that day, all the more an older regardless of whether or not she is related to the bhikkhu. 2) The four-night clause u "effort" is dropped, which means that the bhikkhu incurs a pacittiya the instant he lies do the same lodging with her. Object. The Vibhanga states that female yakkhas, petas, n devas, and animals -- as well as pandakas, as defined under Sanghadisesa 2 -- are groun here. The Commentary qualifies this by saying that "female animal" means one with which possible to have intercourse, and "female yakkhas, petas, nagas, and devas" includes onl themselves visible. Even if another man is present in the lodging, it does not negate offense. Perception and intent are not mitigating factors here. Thus a bhikkhu who s the same room with a woman he thinks to be a man -- e.g., she has disguised herself -- co offense all the same. Also, a bhikkhu lying down in the same lodging with a woman com regardless or whether or not he realizes that she is there. The same principles apply pandakas: A bhikkhu who lies down in the same room with a pandaka whom he thinks to commits a dukkata; and the same is true for a bhikkhu lying down in a lodging not knowin is also lying down there. A single lodging is defined as in the preceding rule. Thus a sleeping in the same house as his mother, even if they are in separate rooms and another commits an offense all the same. Effort. The main point where this rule differs from t preceding one under the factor of effort is that a bhikkhu incurs a pacittiya the moment h in a lodging at the same time a woman is lying there, with no need to count nights or dawn expressed in the Vibhanga by saying, "If at sunset a bhikkhu is lying when a woman is lyin confessed." The Sub-commentary interprets this as meaning that this rule applies o night, but the no-offense clauses in the Vibhanga give no exemptions for daytime, which s Sub-commentary's interpretation is invalid. What the Vibhanga's statement means is tha need to wait until dawn to count the period of lying down together. As we noted under the rule, there was a tendency in the time of the Canon to call a 24-hour period of day and nig and this period may have been felt to begin at sundown. The Commentary, switching to o practice of calling a 24-hour period a day, says, "In the previous rule, the offense is on the Here it is right from the first day." Thus, no matter what time of day or night a bhikk lies down in the same lodging with a woman, he immediately incurs a pacittiya. The this rule. Another difference between this rule and the preceding one is the obvious point different purposes. As the origin story shows, this rule is to prevent situations that might bhikkhu to commit a serious offense, such as a Parajika 1 or Sanghadisesa 2. "Then having prepared a bed inside (her house) for Ven. Anuruddha, having put on her jewelry herself with perfumes, went to him and said, 'Master, you are beautiful, good-looking, charming. I, too, am beautiful, good-looking, and charming. It would be good if I w your wife.' "When she said this, Ven. Anuruddha remained silent. So a second third time she said to him, 'Master, you are beautiful, good-looking, and charming. I too beautiful, good-looking, and charming. Please take me together with all my wealth.

"A third time, Ven. Anuruddha remained silent. So the woman, having slipped off he paraded up and down in front of him, stood, sat down, and then lay down right in fro But Ven. Anuruddha, keeping control of his faculties, didn't as much as glance at her o even a word. "Then it occurred to her: 'Isn't it amazing! Isn't it astounding! Ma men send for me at a price of 100 or even 1,000 (a night), but this recluse, even when I him, doesn't want to take me together with all of my wealth!' So, putting her upper cl on and bowing her head at his feet, she said to him: 'Honored sir, a transgression overcome me in that I acted in such a foolish, muddle-headed and ill-considered way. accept this confession of my transgression as such, so that I may restrain myself in the

Ven. Anuruddha was very advanced in the practice and so was able to get through the his mindfulness and precepts intact. Many a lesser bhikkhu, though, would have succumb the woman's first request, and so the Buddha formulated this rule for his protection. is also meant to prevent situations where suspicious people might think a bhikkhu had con offense even when he hadn't. Like Caesar's wife, a bhikkhu must not only //be// pure, he //look// pure if he is to uphold the religion and maintain the reputation of the Community. I and a woman are seen going into a house together in the evening and leaving together morning, then even if they slept in separate rooms, suspicious neighbors -- and very few n suspicious of bhikkhus -- would be quick to jump to conclusions. Thus the wise policy m the preceding rule applies even more forcefully here: A bhikkhu would be well-advised no with a woman in such places as parks, beaches, or unwalled pavilions even though in term offense would be involved. There is some overlap between this rule and Pacittiyas 4 which deal with a bhikkhu sitting or lying down together in private with a woman (or women cases covered by this rule not covered by those would include, for example, a bhikkhu and lying down in separate rooms of the same lodging; a bhikkhu and a woman lying down in t with another man present. Also, under those rules, the questions of the bhikkhu's state of his awareness of the situation are important factors. Here they are of no consequence: E with the purest state of mind -- or completely unknowingly -- incurs a pacittiya when lying together with a woman in the same lodging. Non-offenses. There is no offense in lying woman in a lodging that under the preceding rule would not be grounds for an offense, i. fully roofed but with no walls (e.g., an open pavilion), fully walled but with no roof (e.g., a corral), half-roofed and half-walled, half-roofed and less than half-walled, less than half-roofed and half-walled, less than half-roofed and less than half-walled. Still, as above, a bhikkhu would be well-advised to avoid such situations whenever possible, and t present when not. Summary: Lying down at the same time in the same lodging woman is a pacittiya offense. * * * 7. Should any bhikkhu teach more than five or six sentences of Dhamma to a woman, unless a kn present, it is to be confessed. "Then Ven. Udayin, having dressed early in the mor taking his robe and bowl, went to visit a certain family. At that time the lady of the h was sitting in the main entrance, while the daughter-in-law was sitting in the door to inner chamber. So Ven. Udayin approached the lady of the house and whispered Dhan The daughter-in-law thought, 'Is this recluse my mother-in-law's lover, or is he being with her?' Then, having whispered Dhamma into the ear of the lady of house, Ven. to the daughter-in-law and whispered Dhamma into //her// ear. The lady of the house th this recluse my daughter-in-law's lover, or is he being fresh with her?' After whispe Dhamma into the daughter-in-law's ear, Ven. Udayin left. So the lady of the house What did that recluse say to you?' "'He taught me Dhamma, ma'am. And what did you?' "'He taught me Dhamma, too.' So they were offended and annoyed ar it about, 'How can Ven. Udayin whisper Dhamma into women's ears? Shouldn't the taught openly and out loud?"' The two factors for the full offense here are: 1) //Objec a female human being who knows what is and is not lewd and who has not asked one a Dhamma. 2) //Effort//: One teaches her more than six sentences of Dhamma with knowledgeable man present -- i.e., a male human being who also knows what is and is Object. The word //woman// covers //women// as well: If a bhikkhu is with two or more wo a knowledgeable man present, he may teach them no more that five or six sentences of Perception is not a factor here: If a bhikkhu teaches Dhamma to a woman he thinks is a m is fulfilled as well. According to the Vibhanga, a female peta, deva or animal (probab naga) in the form of a human woman, are each grounds for a dukkata here. Dhamma defines in the same terms as under Pacittiya 4: "a saying made by the Buddha, his discipl heavenly beings, connected with the teaching, connected with the goal." Precisely w means is a point of controversy. The Commentary identifies "sayings made by the Buddha seers, or heavenly beings" with different parts of the Pali Canon -- in Pali -- and then treat "connected with the teaching, connected with the goal" as nouns, the first referring to the C second to the ancient commentary named the Maha Atthakatha. This last point is highly the Maha Atthakatha did not yet exist when the Canon was being composed. There alternatives to the Commentary's interpretation: One follows the Commentary in treating " the teaching, connected with the goal" as nouns, but interprets them as meaning //any// dealing with the Dhamma, no matter what language it is in, and regardless of whether or n from a text. Thus, according to this interpretation, anything a bhikkhu would say about th quoted from the Canon, from a later text, or of his own invention -- would count as Dhamm The second interpretation regards "connected with the teaching, connected with the goal" modifying "sayings made by the Buddha, his disciples, seers, or heavenly beings." This ma sense in terms of Pali syntax, but limits the meaning of //Dhamma// in this rule to passages Canon. This would not necessarily limit it to passages in the Pali language, though. Tra from the Canon would also come under the rule, since there is a passage in the Cullavagg the Buddha allows bhikkhus to learn Dhamma each in his own language, thus showing, Commentary, that Dhamma does not have to be in Pali to be Dhamma. There is littl to decide between these two interpretations, and the question comes down to what one pe the purpose of the rule. Adherents of the first interpretation say that the rule is designed to the sort of suspicions that arise when a bhikkhu is talking at length alone with a woman, argument does not fit with the Buddha's allowance for a bhikkhu to give a talk when a wom instruction. It is more likely that the rule is aimed at preventing a bhikkhu from using knowledge of Dhamma as a come-on, a way of making himself attractive to a woman. As Dhamma soon learns, there are women who find such knowledge irresistible. To view th light makes either of the two interpretations tenable, so the wise policy is to adhere to the interpretation of the Community to which one belongs. This rule applies to telephon conversations as well as to conversations in person, but because the Parivara (I.5.7) notes deals only with the spoken word, it does not cover letters or other written communications.

Six sentences. As for the amount of Dhamma a bhikkhu may say to a woman or women w man present, the Pali word for "sentence," (//vaca//), can also mean "word," but the Comm specifically that one //vaca// is approximately equal to a line of verse. The Sub-commenta say that the Commentary's definition here applies to poetry, while one //vaca// of prose is the conjugation of a verb, i.e., six words. In either case, six vacas would amount to six sen Conversations on other topics. Strangely enough, neither the Vibhanga nor the Comme mention of conversations with women that do not touch on the Dhamma. The Sub-comme and in one of its rare stabs at humor concludes, "It is perfectly all right to talk as much as y about Tamils and that sort of thing." Conversation that does not deal with the Dhamm is termed "animal talk" (//tiracchana-katha//) in the Canon, and there are several passag XXI.1; LXXXV.1; Mv.V.6.3-4) that criticize members of the group of six for engaging in ani worldly talk about "kings, robbers, and ministers of state (politics); armies, alarms, and bat and drink; clothing, furniture, garlands, and scents; relatives; vehicles; villages, towns, ci the countryside; women and heroes; the gossip of the street and the well; tales of the dead philosophical discussions of the past and future (this is how the Sub-commentary to Pac explains 'tales of diversity'), the creation of the world and of the sea, and talk of whether th or not." The Sub-commentary notes, though, that to discuss any of these topics in a way understanding of the Dhamma -- e.g., discussing the impermanence of worldly power -- is improper. Although there is no specific penalty for indulging in such worldly talk, a bh who indulges in it with lay people, bhikkhus or novices to the point where he becomes offe Community may be subject to an act of censure, banishment or suspension on the grou association with householders" or "verbal frivolity." Furthermore, a bhikkhu sitting alone w

(or women) engaging in such talk would be subject to the conditions of Pacittiya 44 or 45
1 or 2. It is also worth noting in this regard that, unlike Pacittiyas 44 & 45 and Aniyata 2, this rule covers situations where either the bhikkhu or the woman, or both, are standing words, if a bhikkhu and a woman are conversing while standing, he may teach her at mo of Dhamma unless any of the no-offense clauses apply. Non-offenses. There is no o after the bhikkhu teaches the woman six sentences of Dhamma, either he or she changes stands up, sits down, etc. -- and he continues with six more sentences. This point was mo included to indicate separate conversations. Once a bhikkhu has taught five or six senten woman, he may teach her again when they meet again and is not condemned to silence fo life. Another exemption is that a bhikkhu, after teaching six sentences of Dhamma to may turn and teach six more sentences to another without incurring a penalty. Thus the C that a bhikkhu addressing an assembly of 100 women may teach them a total of 600 sen if he aims each set of six at a different woman. A third exemption is that there is no p for a bhikkhu who is teaching Dhamma to someone else, and a woman happens to be liste Finally, as noted above, if a woman asks a bhikkhu a question, a bhikkhu may give her a other man is present. This exemption is common to all the rules that deal with instructing Pacittiyas 21 & 22), but precisely what it means is somewhat uncertain, as none of the tex teaching Dhamma (//dhammam deseti//) differs from giving a talk (//katheti//), if they diff
The Commentary notes simply that in giving a talk one is not limited to six sentences; its e 'talk' is a recitation of the complete Digha Nikaya (!), which shows that, as far as the com are concerned, teaching Dhamma and giving a talk differ only in length. Thus a bhikkhu m woman's question about Dhamma with a talk including as many sentences of Dhamma a his point clear. This allowance is important in that it honors women in their desire to understand the Dhamma. A wise policy, though, would be to show restraint in such situati relationship of male teacher to female student has a long, well-known history of getting ou Even if a bhikkhu is in control of himself in such conversations, passers-by -- and the wom can easily misconstrue his words and actions. So, wherever possible, he should go out guard himself against suspicion and misunderstandings in such cases by having a man pr alone with a woman, even though the special exemption is made. Summary: Teachin sentences of Dhamma to a woman, except in response to a question, is a pacittiya unless a knowledgeable man is present. * * *
8. Should any bhikkhu report (his own) factual superior human state to an unordained p be confessed. The factors for the full offense here are three: 1) //Object//: an unorda person, i.e., anyone -- human or not -- who is not a bhikkhu or bhikkhuni. 2) //Effor
One reports one's actual attainment of a superior human state to such a person. 3 //Result//: The person immediately understands. Only two of these factors -- effort an require explanation. Effort. The meaning of //superior human state// is discussed at under Parajika 4. In brief, it covers (a) jhana, (b) the cognitive powers that can arise as its and (c) the transcendent states. //Factual// is not explained in the texts, but probabl means factual from the bhikkhu's own point of view. In other words, whether or not he h attained a superior human state, if he thinks he has and reports it to an unordained person an offense all the same. If he actually has attained such a state, e.g., jhana, but thinks he and yet claims that he has -- in other words, he is telling what he thinks to be a lie -- he inc parajika. To report, says the Vibhanga, means to speak directly of one's own attainm speak indirectly of one's own attainments -- e.g., "The bhikkhu who lives in this dwelling en will" -- entails a dukkata. According to the Commentary, gestures fall under this rule as w Thus, if a lay person asks a bhikkhu who has attained Stream-entry if he has reached any attainments, and the bhikkhu nods, his nod would fulfill the factor of effort here. The story to this rule deals with bhikkhus who, as a tactic for getting almsfood in a time of scar agreed to speak of one another's superior human states to householders. This would se that to speak of another bhikkhu's actual attainment of superior human states with such m e.g., hoping to get a share of the increased gains he might receive -- should entail a pen well, but none of the texts mention this point, so it is not an offense. Still, any bhikkhu who act in such a way, on the grounds that whatever is not an offense is perfectly all right, sh remember that the Buddha criticized the bhikkhus in the origin story in very strong terms.

Result. As noted above, the bhikkhu incurs the full penalty only if his listener immediately what he has said. If the listener does not understand, the bhikkhu incurs a dukkata rega whether he spoke directly or indirectly of his attainments. Whether or not the person believes what is said, is of no account in determining the offense. Non-offenses. The states that to report one's own superior human attainments to another bhikkhu or to a bhik carries no penalty. There is, though, a series of stories in the Vinita Vatthu to Parajika 4 th number of points to bear in mind in such situations. A typical example -- the stories differ minor details -- is this: "Then Ven. Maha Moggallana, as he was descending Vulture Mountain, smiled at a certain place. Ven. Lakkhana said to him, 'Friend Moggallana, wh reason, what is the cause for your smile?' "'This is not the time, friend Lakkhana answer this question. Ask me in the presence of the Blessed One.' "So Ven. La and Ven. Maha Moggallana...having approached and paid homage to the Blessed One, one side. As they were sitting there, Ven. Lakkhana said to Ven. Moggallana, 'Just now Moggallana...you smiled. What was the reason, what was the cause for your smile?'
"'Just now, my friend, I saw a man immersed head and all in a dung pit, eating dung wit
The thought occurred to me, "Isn't it amazing, isn't it astounding, that there are bein like this...."' "Bhikkhus were offended and annoyed and spread it about, 'Ven.
Moggallana is boasting of a superior human state!' "Then the Blessed One said to th 'Actually, bhikkhus, there //are// disciples of vision and knowledge who will know or bear witness like this. Once I myself saw that being, but I didn't disclose it. Had I disclosed it, others would not have believed me, and that would have been to their pain for a long time. That being, bhikkhus, was once a corrupted Brahmin right here in F He, in the time of the Buddha Kassapa, having invited a Community of bhikkhus to a me filled a trough with dung and announcing the time, said, "Venerable sirs, eat from this a you as much as you like." Having been boiled in purgatory as a result of that deed years, many hundreds of years, many thousands of years, many hundreds of thousands is now -- through the remainder of the result of that deed -- experiencing existence as a like this. Moggallana spoke truly, bhikkhus. There is no offense for him.'" Ven.

Moggallana's conduct here -- waiting until he is in the presence of his teacher before relati -- has become a model for conduct among meditators, for as the bhikkhus' reaction and comments make clear, there are situations where the act of relating one's visions, etc., eve allowed, will serve no positive purpose. Displaying psychic powers. A related rule in Cullavagga (V.8.2) states that to display psychic powers to lay people is a dukkata. In th story leading up to that rule, the Buddha levels strong criticism at such an act: "Just as a w expose her sexual organ for a miserable wooden //masaka// coin, so too have you displa human state, a wonder of psychic power, to lay people for the sake of a miserable wooden To display psychic powers to anyone who is not a lay person, though, is no offense. Thus these two rules are framed, one may not tell a novice of one's powers, but may levitate b very eyes. Summary: To tell an unordained person of one's actual superior huma attainments is a pacittiya offense. * * * 9.
Should any bhikkhu report (another) bhikkhu's gross offense to an unordained person -- authorized by the bhikkhus -- it is to be confessed. "Now at that time Ven. Upanan Sakyan was on bad terms with some group-of-six bhikkhus. Having committed an intentional emission of semen, he asked the Community to put him on probation....It so certain guild in Savatthi was presenting food to the Community. Ven. Upananda, b probation, sat down on the last seat in the dining hall. The group-of-six bhikkhus sa the lay people, 'Friends, this Ven. Upananda the Sakyan, your esteemed dependent, en do with the very same hand with which he is eating your gift of faith....(This is why), on probation, he is sitting on the last seat.'" There are two factors for the full offense here: 1) //Object//: a gross offense committed by another bhikkhu. 2) //Effort//: C reports it to an unordained person without having been authorized to do so by the Comm Object. The Vibhanga states that //gross offense// means any of the four parajika or thirte sanghadisesa offenses, while Buddhaghosa reports the ancient commentaries as saying t only the sanghadisesas. His discussion of this point is interesting for the light it throws on history of the texts: He presents two arguments for the commentaries' position, effectively demolishes them, but then backs down and ends up siding with them. Why he does this is although it may be that he himself disagreed with the ancient commentaries on this point, forced to side with them by the elders of the Mahavihara who were responsible for putting approval on his work. At any rate, the details of the argument lie outside the scope of guide. The Vinaya Mukha has already adopted Buddhaghosa's arguments against the an here, and we will simply follow our usual policy of siding with the Vibhanga wherever the depart from it. //Gross offense// means both the four parajikas and the thirteen sanghadis A bhikkhu's non-gross offenses, and an unordained person's misbehavior -- gross or not - a dukkata (%). (The passage on which this last point is based is sometimes translated, who is not ordained of a transgression" when it should read, "tells of an unordained person transgression.") According to the Commentary, //gross misbehavior// on the part of an u person means breaking any of the five precepts. Anything else would count as not gross.

dukkata penalty for informing an unordained person about another unordained person's tra precepts is a point frequently overlooked in discussions of this rule, but it is important. It to be aimed at keeping bhikkhus from being gossips, so that novices and lay people may s bhikkhu concerning the difficulties they have in observing the precepts without fear that t will spread it about to other unordained people as well. This also helps preserve the faith of donors: They can give their support to the bhikkhus without fear that the recipients their support might be gossiping about their lapses in the practice behind their backs. If do learn that a bhikkhu //had// been gossiping about them, they might become so disgusted a their support from the religion as a whole. Effort. //Unordained person// here means an not a bhikkhu or a bhikkhuni. To report an offense to an unordained person means to him/her both the action and the class of the offense. Thus, to say, "Ven. Upananda com sanghadisesa by masturbating," would fulfill the fact of effort here; while to say simply, "Ve committed a sanghadisesa." or "Ven. Upananda masturbated," would not, and would not for a lesser offense. This allowance, which looks strange on the surface, was made for such cases as when a lay person, seeing a senior bhikkhu sitting at the end of the line, of the other bhikkhus why. A bhikkhu would be well-advised, though, to examine his mo making use of this allowance, for to take advantage of it to discredit a fellow bhikkhu would a dukkata under Pacittiya 13. Though the penalty is minor, little acts and minor offenses sort are often the ones most destructive to the harmony of the Community. The auth The Vibhanga does not give any indication of when the Community should authorize a bhi unordained people about another bhikkhu's gross offense. As the Vinaya Mukha sees it the training rule is to prevent bhikkhus from advertising one another's faults among people Community. However, there are cases, it says, where a bhikkhu may commit a gross offe acknowledge it, as when committing a parajika and yet continuing to assume the status of committing a sanghadisesa and refusing to go through the procedures for rehabilitation. T Community in such cases is allowed to authorize one of its members to inform lay people, bhikkhu's supporters, as a way of exerting pressure on him to submit to his penalty.
to the Commentary, though, the authorization is to be used in cases where the Community of informing the laity would help to convince a well-intentioned but weak-willed bhikkhu w repeatedly commits sanghadisesa offenses -- even if he willingly undergoes the period of mend his ways. Both interpretations fit with the Canon, although it should be borne i that using the authorization in line with the Vinaya Mukha's rationale -- to exert pressure o who refuses to undergo a penalty -- can often backfire, for the laity may simply think that Community is jealous of the support they are giving to the bhikkhu they assume to be inno wrong-doing. The Vibhanga also does not tell how the authorization is to be issued. to the Commentary, it is to be made as a declaration (//apalokana//) stated three times and agreed to by the Community meeting within a proper boundary for formal acts. The does state, though, that when giving the authorization, the Community may make it limited limited to offenses, limited to both or to neither. Limited to families means that the bhikkhu the authorization may inform only certain specified families. Limited to offenses means t report only certain of the guilty bhikkhu's offenses. A bhikkhu who oversteps the limits of h authorization incurs a pacittiya. Non-offenses. We have already covered the cases t Vibhanga includes in the no-offenses clauses. To recapitulate: There is no penalty -- in telling an unordained person about another bhikkhu's serious offense if one states the not the class of offense, or the class but not the action; or 2) in reporting another bhikkhu's serious offense -- action and class of offense -- to an unordained person when properly authorized to do so, as long as one does not overstep the bounds of one's authorization. Summary: Telling an unordained person of another bhikkhu's seri offense -- unless one is authorized by the Community to do so -- is a pacittiya offense.

* * *

10. Should any bhikkhu dig soil or have it dug, it is to be confessed. This is an offense with four factors: object, effort, perception, a intention. Object. The Pali word for soil, //pathavi//, also means ground or earth. Thus Vibhanga distinguishes what forms of earth are and are not classed as soil: Pure loa clay, whatever is mostly loam or clay with a lesser portion of rock, stones, potsherds, grav mixed in, is classed as soil (//jata-pathavi//). Whatever is pure rock, stones, potsherd gravel, or sand, or any of these with a lesser portion of loam or clay mixed in, is earth no as soil (//ajata-pathavi//). Also, burnt clay or loam -- according to the Commentary, this me that has been burnt in the course of firing a bowl, pot, etc. -- is not classed as soil. As fo of loam or clay that have been dug up: If they have been rained on for less than four mon not classed as soil, but if rained on for four months or more, they are. Also, the layer of that forms on the surface of dry soil as the result of wind erosion is not classed as soil.
the Commentary makes clear in discussing the Vibhanga's no-offense clauses, there is no earth not classed as soil. Thus, for example, digging into a pile of newly dug-up loam or diagrams in the dust on top of dry soil would not be an offense. Effort. The Vibhanga that the term //digging// also covers burning, i.e., firing pottery; and breaking, i.e., making a with a rake or a stick. Thus, using a stick to draw in the soil or driving in a stake or pullin out in such a way as to disturb the surrounding soil would fulfill the factor of effort here.
Non-offenses. Because perception and intention are mitigating factors here, there is no of bhikkhu who digs soil -- //unknowingly// -- e.g., digging into a pile of soil perceiving it to be sand; //unthinkingly// -- e.g., absent-mindedly drawing in the dirt while talking w someone else; or //unintentionally// -- e.g., raking leaves, pulling a wheelbarrow throu mud, or digging in a pile of sand and accidentally digging into the soil underneath. A there is no offense in asking for clay or soil, or in indicating a need for a hole in the ground expressly giving the command to dig. ("Please get me some clay to make a pot." "We're a hole right here.") According to the Commentary, an explicit request that a reservoir or pi dug also entails no penalty as long as one does not say precisely where to dig it. ("We're have to drain the water from A to B, so dig the trench wherever you think it would do the jo This sort of request or hint is termed //kappiya-vohara// -- "allowable expression," or in plai "wording it right" -- and often finds use in in the context of rules where an express comm an offense but an indication of a desire or intent would not. The Commentary quotes commentaries as saying that if another person or animal has fallen into a pit, there is no pe digging the victim out. The same holds true if another person or animal is trapped by a fal still-living tree: The bhikkhu may cut the tree to free the victim without incurring a penalty the following rule. Although the Commentary cannot find any justification in the Canon these opinions, it states that they should be accepted since they are the unanimous judgm ancient commentaries. As we have noted before, Buddhaghosa does not always accept e judgment of the ancient commentaries, but perhaps he felt that these were cases in which better to err on the side of compassion rather than the side of strictness. However, th Commentary goes on to say that if a bhikkhu falls into a pit himself, he should not dig any would be classed as soil, even for the sake of his life. The same holds true if he is trapp fallen but still-living tree: He may not cut the tree even though his life is in danger. T reason for this rule, as indicated by the origin story, is that people in general at the time of Buddha viewed soil as having a form of one-facultied life. The Jains, who were contemp Buddha, classed life into five categories according to the number of senses or faculties the possessed. In the one-facultied category, where there is only the sense of touch, they in and vegetation. One scholar has suggested that the Jains here were simply systematizing belief, predating their theories, that soil and plants had souls. At any rate, this sort of view widespread at the time that any potters who were meticulous in their precepts would take t only from termite nests and other piles of dug-up earth. The Ghatikara Sutta (M.81) descr a non-returner in the dispensation of the Buddha Kassapa -- who even though he was a la take the earth for his pots only from collapsed embankments and the piles of dirt around ra to avoid injuring the soil. Another consideration, carrying more weight at present, is t the act of digging soil risks killing or injuring whatever animals may be living there. Th rule, together with the following one, also effectively prevents bhikkhus from engaging in a Summary: Digging soil or commanding that it be dug is a pacittiya offense.

* * * * * * * *

CHAPTER EIGHT

Part Two: The Living Plant Chapter

~~~
~~~

under this rule. The Commentary states further that to damage bijagama entails a c
The Vibhanga makes no mention of this point, but the Commentary cites as its justification occurs in a number of suttas (D.1, D.2, etc.) saying that bhikkhus refrain from harming b and bijagama. The Mahavagga and Cullavagga give partial justification to the Commenta two passages, dealing with bhikkhus eating fruit, which we will discuss below. The Jain follow similar observances, which suggests that both the Buddhists and the Jains adopted the ancient Indian ascetics who predated both religions. Furthermore, according to th Commentary, there are certain kinds of plants that do not count either as bhutagama or bij this rule, and to damage them entails no offense. To justify this point it quotes a passage Cullavagga (VIII.1.2): "If a varnished wall...(or) finished floor has spots of mould (%), it is wiped off with a moistened cloth that has been wrung out." The Commentary extends the instructions here to cover not only mould on walls but also other lower forms of plant life -- algae on the inside of water jars, fungus on toothbrushes, and mould on food -- that would if they were allowed to continue growing. Effort. According to the Vibhanga, the term //damaging// includes such actions as cutting, breaking, picking, burning, and cooking. T Commentary defines the term as "dealing with a plant as one likes by cutting it, breaking it Although the word "dealing with," //paribhunjati//, literally means "making use of," the Co illustrations of what this covers include even such things as shaking a tree limb to get the c fall off so that one can sweep them up. Thus, it says, //damaging// would include picking leaves, uprooting a plant, engraving one's initials in a tree trunk, etc. Since no exception is doing such things with "benevolent" intentions towards the plant, pruning would be inclu Given the catch-all nature of the Commentary's definition, using herbicides to kill plants wo come under the term "damaging." Plants growing in water, such as water hyacinths, w not extend to the earth beneath the water, have the water as their base. To remove them is to damage them, although there is no offense in moving them around in the water. To m one body of water to another without incurring a penalty, one may take them together with water in which they originally lived and place them together with that water into the new water. Plants such as mistletoe, orchids, and bird vine that grow on trees have the t their base. To remove them from the tree is to damage them and so entails a pacittiya.
Perception. If one damages a living plant (%) perceiving it to be something else -- say, a c there is no offense. If one damages a plant in doubt as to whether it is living or dead, then regardless of what it actually is, the offense is a dukkata. Intention is discussed in detail the non-offenses, below. Making Fruit Allowable. Since fruit seeds are bijagama, the arises as to how bhikkhus should go about eating fruit. The Commentary to this rule discu two passages, one each in the Mahavagga (VI. 21) and the Cullavagga (V.5.2), dealing this question. The Cullavagga passage reads, "I allow you, bhikkhus, to consume fruit tha allowable for contemplatives in any of five ways: if it is damaged by fire, by a knife, by a it is seedless, and the fifth is if the seeds are discharged." The Mahavagga passage reads time there was a great quantity of fruit at Savatthi, but there was no one to make it allowable....(The Buddha said,) 'I allow you, bhikkhus, to consume fruit that is seedless or are discharged, (even if) it has not been made allowable." First, to summarize the commentaries' discussion of seedless fruit and fruit whose seeds have been discharged: Commentary to the Mahavagga, "seedless fruit" includes fruit whose seeds are too imma for fruit whose seeds have been discharged, the Sub-commentary states that this means, mangoes or jackfruit, which it is possible to eat having removed the seeds and separating (from the flesh)." The question sometimes arises as to whether bhikkhus may remove themselves before eating fruit of this sort, or whether an unordained person has to remove given the context of the Mahavagga passage and the wording of the Sub-commentary's seems clear that the bhikkhus themselves may discharge the seeds before or while eating Commentary notes, both these kinds of fruit are allowable in and of themselves, and nee through any other procedure to make them allowable. Other kinds of fruit, though, s those with numerous seeds (such as tomatoes and blackberries) or whose seeds would be remove undamaged (such as grapes) must be damaged by fire, a knife, or a fingernail bef eat them. The Commentary's description of how to do this shows that the damaging nee symbolic: An unordained person draws a hot object or a knife across the skin of the fruit, with a fingernail, saying "allowable" (//kappiyam//) either while doing the damaging or im afterward. The Sub-commentary notes that the word for "allowable" may be stated in any l If a heap of fruit, such as grapes, is brought to a bhikkhu, he should say, "Make it allowa (//Kappiyam karohi//,) either to the donor or to any other unordained person who knows ho unordained person need only make one of the grapes allowable in line with the above proc entire heap to be considered allowable, although he/she should not remove the grape from while doing so. The Sub-commentary claims that the ceremony of making fruit allowa always be performed in the presence of a bhikkhu, but the Commentary mentions this fact connection with this last case -- making an entire heap of fruit allowable by "damaging" o piece -- and not in its basic description of how the procedure is done. In Communitie follow the Sub-commentary, the custom is as follows: When a donor brings grapes, tomat fruit to a bhikkhu, the bhikkhu says, "//Kappiyam karohi// (Make it allowable)." The dono the fruit in any of the three specified ways and says, "//Kappiyam bhante// (It is allowable, while doing the damaging, and then presents the fruit to the bhikkhu. In Communitie not follow the Sub-commentary, the donor may perform the act of damaging the fruit befor inform the bhikkhu that the fruit has been made allowable when presenting it to him. In the act of making a heap of fruit allowable by damaging only one piece //must// be done in presence of a bhikkhu. And we should note again that seedless fruit or fruit whose seeds entirely from the flesh of the fruit are allowable in and of themselves, and do not have to go any procedure before a bhikkhu may accept and eat them. The two passages in the M Cullavagga that we have been discussing deal specifically only with fruit, but the Commen extrapolates from them to say that the same conditions apply to other forms of bijagama, s cane, and bean sprouts as well. Non-offenses. There is no offense for a bhikkhu wh living plant -- //unknowingly// -- e.g., thinking it to be dead, //unthinkingly// -- e.g., absent-mindedly pulling grass while talking with someone, or //unintentionally// -- e.g inadvertently uprooting grass while raking leaves or grabbing onto a plant for support wh a hill and inadvertently uprooting it. Also, there is no penalty in telling an unordained person to make an item allowable, in asking for leaves, flowers, etc. without specifically s //which// leaves or flowers are to be picked; or in indicating indirectly that, e.g., the grass n cutting ("Look at how long the grass is") or that a tree needs pruning ("This branch is in t without expressly giving the command to cut. In other words, this is another rule where on offense by using //kappiya-vohara//: "wording it right." The Cullavagga (V.32.1) says a brush fire is approaching a dwelling, one may light a counter-fire to ward it off. In doing s is exempt from any penalty imposed by this rule. Also, according to the Sub-commenta bhikkhu whose robes have been stolen and who cannot find any other cloth to cover him grass and leaves to cover himself without incurring any penalty here. Summary: Inte cutting, burning, or killing a living plant is a pacittiya offense.

* * * 12. Evasive speech and uncooperativeness are to be confessed.

This rule deals with a bhikkhu's behavior in a communal meeting when being formally que charge made against him. The factors for the full offense here are two: 1) //Intention// desires to hide one's own offenses. 2) //Effort//: One continues engaging in evasive spee being uncooperative after the Community has brought a formal charge of evasive spe uncooperativeness against one. These factors will be easier to understand if we discuss and intention before going on to the formal act. Evasive speech is illustrated in the orig as follows: "Now at that time Ven. Channa, having misbehaved and being exami offense in the midst of the Community, avoided one question with another: 'Who has co offense? What was committed? With regard to what matter was it committed? How What are you saying? Why do you say it?'" The Commentary notes that //evasive s covers any and all forms of speaking beside the point when being formally questioned, a ones given in the origin story. The Sub-commentary agrees and gives an additional exam "Have you committed this offense?" "I've been to Pataliputta." "But we're not asking about your going to Pataliputta. We're asking about an offense."
"From there I went to Rajagaha." "Well, Rajagaha or Brahmanagaha, did you comm offense?" "I got some pork there." As for uncooperativeness: "Now at a later time Ven. Channa, being examined about an offense in the midst of the Communit avoiding one question with another, I will fall into an offense,' remained silent and w uncooperative with the Community." Thus, the texts say, to be //uncooperative// me remain silent when being formally questioned in the midst of the Community. Intentio factor is fulfilled only if one is acting out of a desire to conceal one's own offenses. If one reasons for remaining silent or asking questions while being questioned, there is no pen example, there is no offense for a bhikkhu who, when being examined, asks questions or to the point because he does not understand what is being said, is too ill to speak feels that in speaking he will create conflict or dissension in the Community, or feels t Community will carry out its formal act unfairly or not in accordance with the rule. Th formal act. If a bhikkhu speaks evasively or is uncooperative out of a desire to conceal his offenses, he incurs a dukkata. If the Community sees fit, it may then bring a formal charge evasion or uncooperativeness against him in order to restrain him from persisting in such b then continues being evasive or uncooperative, he incurs a pacittiya. Perception is n factor here. Once a formal charge of evasion or uncooperativeness has been rightfully bro bhikkhu, and he continues to be evasive or uncooperative, he incurs a pacittiya regardle he sees the charge as rightful or not. If the charge has been wrongfully brought against hi the formal act was not carried out strictly in accordance with formal procedure -- then in co be evasive or remain silent out of a desire to hide his offenses, he incurs a dukkata rega whether he perceives the charge as wrongful, rightful, or doubtful. In other words, he is no hook simply because the Community has not mastered formal procedure. If, after th rightly brings a formal charge of evasive speech or uncooperativeness against a bhikkhu, being evasive or uncooperative simply to avoid revealing his offenses, he may further be more severe penalty: a formal act of censure (//tajjaniya-kamma//) for being a maker of tro strife for the Community (Cv.I.1-8) or -- what is essentially the same thing -- an act for furth misbehavior (//tassa-papiyasika-kamma//) for not admitting to a true charge right from th the discussion under the Adhikarana-Samatha rules, Chapter 11). Non-offenses. If answers not to the point or remains silent for any of the allowable reasons, he incurs no pe after a formal act of evasive speech or uncooperativeness has for some reason been brou Summary: Persistently replying evasively or keeping silent in order to conceal one offenses when being questioned in a meeting of the Community -- after a formal charge evasiveness or uncooperativeness has been brought against one -- is a pacittiya offens

* * *

13. Maligning or complaining (about a Community official) is to be confessed. Community officials. In the Cullavagga (VI.21), the Budd allowance for a Community of bhikkhus to designate various of its members as Commun handle such business as distributing food, deciding who will stay in which lodging, keeping rosters that decide who will receive the invitations to which meals, etc. Ven. Dabba Mallap first such official and was well-equipped for the job: "As for those bhikkhus who came night, he would enter the fire-element for them and by that light would assign them
-- so much so that bhikkhus would arrive at night on purpose, thinking, 'We will see the Ven. Dabba Mallaputta's psychic power.' Approaching him, they would say, 'Friend assign us lodgings.' "Ven. Dabba Mallaputta would say, 'Where would you like? W I assign them?' "Then they would name a distant place on purpose: 'Friend Dab assign us a lodging on Vulture's Peak. Friend Dabba, assign us a lodging on Robber's "So Ven. Dabba Mallaputta, entering the fire-element for them, went before them w finger glowing, while they followed behind with the help of his light." Even with his s skills, there were bhikkhus who were dissatisfied with the lodgings and meals he assigned we saw under Sanghadisesas 8 & 9 -- and in the origin story to this rule they malign and c him. Object. Only a bhikkhu who has been formally agreed upon as a Community o fulfills the factor of object under this rule. All other people, ordained or not, are grounds fo dukkata. Effort. The Commentary and Sub-commentary give the clearest description distinction between maligning and complaining: To malign means to speak critically of a p presence of one or more other people so as to make them form a low opinion of him/her means simply to give vent to one's criticisms of the person within earshot of someone else According to the Vibhanga, the penalty for maligning or complaining about a Community o pacittiya if one's listener is a fellow bhikkhu, and a dukkata if one's listener is an unordai person (%). The question of who one's remarks are addressed to is irrelevant if one is ma complaining about an unordained person or a bhikkhu who is not a Community official: dukkata, regardless of whether the person to whom the remarks are addressed is ordaine Non-offenses. The Vibhanga says that if a Community official acts habitually out of any causes for prejudice -- favoritism, animosity, stupidity, or fear -- there is no offense in ma or complaining about him. For example, if he assigns the best lodgings to certain bhikkhu he likes them, gives the poorest food to certain bhikkhus simply because he dislikes ther sends the wrong bhikkhus to the wrong meals because he is too stupid to handle the rotat properly, or gives the best treatment to certain bhikkhus because he is afraid of them or th supporters, there is no offense in criticizing his behavior in the presence of others. However, one should be very sure of the facts of the case before taking advantage of this Disappointment and anger have a way of coloring one's perceptions, making another pers blameless behavior look biased and unjust. If one maligns or complains about an official, convinced that he has been acting out of prejudice, one is still guilty of an offense if it tur that in fact the official's behavior has been fair. The same considerations apply also to con criticisms concerning anyone, ordained or not. To criticize a Community official to his simply for the sake of hurting his feelings, would be an offense under Pacittiya 2, regardl whether his behavior has in fact been prejudiced or not. The job of a Community offi often a thankless one. The procedures he must follow in distributing invitations, etc., can b complex and, in large Communities, quite time-consuming. Since there is no way he can g treatment to all, there may be times when he seems to be acting out of prejudice when he following standard procedure. If he cannot receive the benefit of the doubt from his fellow there is no incentive for him to undertake these duties in the first place. The Buddha like material gains to excrement (see A.V.196), and when excrement is shared out there is rare complaining about who gets the choicest portions. Summary: If a Community official of prejudice: Criticizing him within earshot of another bhikkhu is a pacittiya offense.

* * *

14. Should any bhikkhu set a bed, bench, mattress, or stool belonging to the Community out in the open -- or have it set out -- then on departing neither put it away nor have it put away, or should he go without takin is to be confessed. During the four months of the rains, furniture belonging to the Community -- when not in use -- is to be kept in a place where it will not be rained on, such fully-roofed storeroom or lodging. During the remainder of the year, it may also be kept in roofed with slats or branches, or under a tree where birds do not leave droppings. The Co implies, though, that this latter allowance holds only in those regions with a distinct dry sea and, according to the Sub-commentary, even where there is a dry season, if a bhikkhu see rain storm approaching, he should not leave furniture in such semi-open places. This with bhikkhus who set furnishings of the Community out in the open and then leave withou away in the proper place. The factors for the full offense are three: 1) //Object//: any bench, mattress, or stool belonging to the Community. 2) //Effort//: One sets such fur out in the open and then departs without taking leave, putting the furnishings away, or getting them put away in the proper place. 3) //Intention//: One has set them out for some than sunning them (%). Object. Any bed, bench, mattress, or stool belonging to the Community is grounds for a pacittiya. Perception is not an issue here: If the item actually the Community, this factor is fulfilled regardless of whether or not one perceives it as such furnishings belonging to the Community -- such as carpets, bedspreads, mats, foot-wiping even the brooms -- are grounds for a dukkata, as are furnishings of every type belonging t individual. One's own furnishings are not grounds for an offense. According to the Commentary, if one has made an arrangement with someone else to use his/her belongin no offense in leaving that person's furnishings out in the open. The Sub-commentary ad furnishings a donor presents for the Community to use out in the open -- e.g., stone or cor -- are likewise not grounds for an offense. Effort. To depart the furnishings is defined further than one //leddupata// -- approximately 6 meters -- from them. (A //leddupata// is measure that appears frequently in the Canon and is defined as the distance a man of ave throw a clod of dirt underarm.) Taking leave, according to the Commentary, means infor novice, or a temple attendant who agrees to take responsibility for the furnishings. Responsibility. A bhikkhu is held responsible for putting away furnishings that he has orde person to place in the open, unless the other person is also a bhikkhu, in which case //he// one responsible. The Commentary states that if a senior bhikkhu requests a junior bhikkh the open any furnishings that may be grounds for a penalty, then the junior bhikkhu is re them until the senior bhikkhu sits down on them, places an article of his use (such as a rob shoulder bag) on them, or gives the junior bhikkhu permission to leave, after which point bhikkhu is responsible. If there is to be an open-air meeting, the host bhikkhus are responsible for any seats set out in the open, until the visiting bhikkhus claim their places, point the visitors are responsible. If there is to be a series of Dhamma talks, each speak responsible for the sermon seat from the moment he sits in it until the moment the next sp Non-offenses. As stated above, there is no offense if one departs having set furnishing to the Community or another individual out in the sun with the purpose of drying them, and "I will put them away when I come back." (%) Also, there is no offense if one departs afte takes possession or responsibility for furnishings one has left out in the open, or when th dangers of any sort -- the Commentary mentions tigers, lions, ghosts, ogres, outlaws, and cause one to disrobe -- that give one no time to put the furnishings away. The Vinaya extracting a general principle from this rule, says, "This training rule was formulated to pre negligence and to teach one to care for things. It should be taken as a general model." Summary: When one has set a bed, bench, mattress, or stool belonging to the Commu open: Leaving its immediate vicinity without putting it away or arranging to have it p is a pacittiya offense. * * * 15. Should any bhikkhu, having set out bedding in a lodging belonging to the Community -- or having ha and then on departing neither put it away nor have it put away, or should he go with leave, it is to be confessed. Here again the three factors for a full offense are object, effort, and intention. Object. //Bedding// here includes mattresses, pillows, rugs, she mats, sitting cloths, blankets, bedspreads, animal skins, throw rugs, etc., but not the beds which they may be placed. Unlike the previous rule, the question of whom the bedding b not an issue in determining the offense under this rule. The place where it is left, thou //is// an issue. Bedding left in a dwelling belonging to the Community is grounds for a paci Bedding left in a dwelling belonging to another individual is grounds for a dukkata, as is be the area around a dwelling, in a meeting hall, or at the foot of a tree -- these last three pl belonging to the Community or to another individual. Bedding left in a dwelling, etc., belon oneself is not grounds for an offense. The same holds true for bedding left in a dwelling to anyone who has given one the right to use his/her belongings on trust. Perception issue here. If, for example, the dwelling actually belongs to the Community, it is grounds f pacittiya regardless of whether or not one perceives it as such. Effort. //Putting the it away//, //having it put away//, and //taking leave// are all defined as under the preceding ru way to determine responsibility for bedding when a bhikkhu orders someone else to sprea inferred from the discussion there. To //depart// is defined as going outside the groun the monastery. The absence of any reference to this rule in the duties to be done before almsround (//pindapata-vatta//) (Cv.VIII.5), however, indicates that temporary excursions monastery are not counted as "departing." This conclusion is seconded by one of the no-which says that in the case of a bhikkhu who goes with the expectation of returning but t his mind, if he then sends word back to the monastery, he avoids any penalty under this ru implies that a bhikkhu who leaves his bedding spread out in a dwelling belonging to the leaves the monastery temporarily with the intent of returning, and returns as planned, incu as well. The question arises, though, as to how long a temporary period of absence i allowable. The Vibhanga itself sets no time limit. The Commentary illustrates the no-offen have just mentioned with the case of a bhikkhu who leaves, thinking, "I will return today," no specific statement that longer periods are not allowed. Since the texts give no sp guidelines here, this is a matter that each Community should decide for itself, taking the fo considerations into account: 1) The origin story suggests that the purpose of the rule is t prevent the bedding's being left so long in an unoccupied dwelling that it attracts ants, te other pests. 2) Another consideration, raised by the Vinaya Mukha, is that if a bhikkh for a long excursion, leaving his bedding and other belongings scattered about in a dwe might inconvenience the resident bhikkhus in that they could not easily allot the dwe another bhikkhu in the interim. Intention is a factor here, in that if one plans to return w the allowable space of time but for some reason cannot -- examples in the Commentary i rivers, kings, and robbers -- there is no offense. And as mentioned above, if one leaves w intention of returning, but then changes one's mind, one can avoid an offense by sending w monastery via a messenger. Non-offenses. In addition to the above two cases, the Vi says that there is no offense in departing having left bedding spread out in a dwelling if so has taken responsibility for the bedding or if one has taken leave of the resident bhikkhus. regard to this latter point, though, the duties to be done when moving out of a monastery ( vatta//) (Cv.VIII.3) include putting away the bedding one has been using. To neglect this d when one takes leave of the resident bhikkhus, entails a dukkata. Summary: When bedding out in a dwelling belonging to the Community: Departing from the monastery putting it away or arranging to have it put away is a pacittiya offense.

* * * 16. Should any bhikkhu knowingly lie down in a lodging belonging to the Community so as to intrude on a bhikkhu who arrived there first, (thinki feels crowded will go away" -- doing it for this reason and no other -- it is to be confessed. There are four factors for an offense here: 1) //Object//: a bhikkhu who s not be forced to move. 2) //Perception//: One perceives him as such. 3) //Effort//: One on his space in a dwelling belonging to the Community. 4) //Intention//: One's sole m force him out. Object & perception. //Knowingly// is defined in the Vibhanga as know the lodging's current occupant is a senior bhikkhu, a sick one, or one to whom the Commu official) has assigned the dwelling. The Commentary interprets this definition as a list of and generalizes from it to include any case where one knows, "This bhikkhu shouldn't be f Effort. To //encroach// means to lie down or sit down in the area immediately adjacen bhikkhu's sleeping or sitting place -- which the Commentary defines as anywhere within 75 sleeping or sitting place -- or on a 75 cm. wide path from either of those places to the entra dwelling. There is a dukkata for placing one's bedding or seat in such an area, and a paci each time one sits or lies down there. To place one's bedding or seat in any other part of entails a dukkata; and to sit or lie down there, another dukkata -- assuming in all of these that the dwelling belongs to the Community. Perception with regard to the dwelling is r here. If the dwelling actually belongs to the Community, this part of the factor is fulfilled regardless of whether one perceives it as belonging to the Community or not. There in encroaching on the space of a bhikkhu -- intending to force him out -- in the area immed to such a dwelling, in a place belonging to the Community that is not the dwelling of a pa person (e.g., an eating hall), the shade of a tree, in the open air, or in a dwelling belonging another individual. To do so in a dwelling belonging to oneself entails no offense. Accord Commentary, this last allowance also applies to a dwelling belonging to anyone who has one use his/her belongings on trust. Intention. If there is a compelling reason -- one is suffering from the cold or heat, or there are dangers outside -- one may intrude on the sp bhikkhu without penalty. The reason for these allowances would appear obvious -- one is forcing the other bhikkhu out -- but it turns out that the matter is not as simple as that. The Sub-commentary reports the Three Ganthipadas as saying that because of this allowance excuse of one's illness, etc., as a pretext for intruding on the other bhikkhu's space so as t out of the lodging. The Sub-commentary tries to argue with this ruling, but the Ganthipa support of the Vibhanga here: Only if one's //sole// motive is to force the other bhikkhu ou subject to an offense under this rule. If one has mixed motives, one may take advantage illness, etc., to move in on the other bhikkhu. However, once one's illness, etc., has pa would commit an offense each time one continued to sit or lie down encroaching on his s All of this may seem very strange on the surface, but it is likely that the original occupant feel unduly pressured if an ill bhikkhu or one escaping dangers were to move into his dwel he //would// start feeling pressured by the continued presence of the bhikkhu after the illne had passed, which is why the penalties are allotted as they are. Summary: Encroac another bhikkhu's sleeping or sitting place in a dwelling belonging to the Community, wi sole purpose of making him uncomfortable and forcing him to leave, is a pacittiya offens

* * * 17. Should any bhikkhu, angry and displeased, evict a bhikkhu from a dwelling belonging to the Community -- or have him evicted -- it is confessed. "At that time some group-of-17 bhikkhus were fixing up a large dwellin fringes of the monastery, thinking, 'We will spend the rains here.' Some group-of-six bhikkhus... seeing them, said, 'These group-of-17 bhikkhus are fixing up a dwelling plac drive them out.' But others of them said, 'Wait, friends, while they fix it up. When it fixed up, then we'll drive them out.' "Then the group-of-six bhikkhus said to the grou bhikkhus, 'Get out, friends. The dwelling is ours.' "'Shouldn't this have been mentioned beforehand so that we could have fixed up another one?' "'Isn't this a dwelling belonging to the Community?' "'Yes....' "'Then get out. The dwellin is ours.' "'The dwelling is large, friends. You can stay here, and we'll stay here, too.' "'Get out. The dwelling is ours.' And, angered and displeased, taking then the throat, they threw them out. The group-of-17 bhikkhus, having been thrown out, beg cry." The three factors for the full offense here are: 1) //Object//: a bhikkhu.

2) //Effort//: One evicts him from a dwelling belonging to the Community. 3) //Intentio One's prime motivation is anger. Object. A bhikkhu is grounds for a pacittiya here, whi following are grounds for a dukkata: a bhikkhu's belongings, an unordained person, and a person's belongings. Effort. According to the Commentary, this rule covers both phys eviction -- picking up the bhikkhu and throwing him out -- as well as verbal eviction -- order leave. The penalty in both cases is the same. (The Mahasanghikas and Sarvastivadins w into their version of the rule.) There is a dukkata in telling someone else to evict the bh no allowances for //kappiya-vohara// are given here -- and, assuming that all the other fa fulfilled, a pacittiya once the bhikkhu has been evicted. To evict a bhikkhu from a dw belonging to the Community entails a pacittiya. (Again, perception with regard to the ow the dwelling is not an issue here.) To evict anyone -- bhikkhu or not -- from an area immed to a dwelling belonging to the Community, from a place belonging to the Community that dwelling of a particular person, from the shade of a tree, from a spot in the open air, or fro belonging to another individual entails a dukkata. There is also a dukkata for throwing a belongings out from any of these places. (In all the cases mentioned in this paragraph, th that one is motivated by anger.) To evict anyone or anyone's belongings from one's dwelling -- or from one that belongs to an individual who has offered to let one use his/he belongings on trust -- is not grounds for an offense. Intention. There is no offense in e anyone when one's primary motive is not anger. Examples given in the no-offense claus evicting anyone -- or the requisites of anyone -- who is insane, shameless in his/her behav of quarrels, strife, and dissension in the Community. The Commentary adds here that o right to throw the person out of the monastery as a whole if he/she is a maker of quarrels, dissension, but not if he/she is simply shameless. Also, one may without penalty evict student from his dwelling if he is not properly observing his duties. In all of these ca the Sub-commentary notes, if anger happens to arise in one's mind in the course of evictin there is no offense as long as it is not the primary motive. Summary: Causing a bhik evicted from a dwelling belonging to the Community -- when one's primary motive is a pacittiya offense. * * * 18. Should any bhikkhu sit or lie down on a bed or bench with detachable legs on an (unplanked) loft in a dwelling belonging to the Community, it is to be confessed. Object. A bed or bench with detachab unplanked loft is grounds for a pacittiya if it is in a dwelling belonging to a Community, a if in a dwelling belonging to another individual, and no offense if in a dwelling belonging to to anyone who has offered to let one use his/her belongings on trust. Perception of the in the preceding rules, is not an issue here. The purpose of this rule, as indicated by t origin story, is to guard against injury to a bhikkhu living under the loft: He might get hit head if any of the detachable legs fall down through the floor of the loft. Thus there is no the loft is not high enough off the ground for a man of medium height to stand under it w

